Three Major Operations Performed at Paden Hospital

Three major operations were performed at the Paden Hospital the past week, Dr. Johnson performing them, Dr. Paden assisting in all three and Dr. Bradley, of Roswell, in two of them.

Bert P. Holland, a late arrival from Oklahoma and who had recently located a homestead north of here, was the first to go under the knife, his operation having taken place Saturday. Mr. Holland had his appendix removed, and, despite a serious inflammation from which infection was at first feared, is rapidly recovering.

Mrs. Walter Gray, of Ft. Stanton, underwent an operation last Monday for tumor, and in this case Dr. Bradley was also called to assist. Mrs. Gray is resting very well, considering the serious nature of the operation, and bids fair to be out of the hospital after a reasonable period.

The last of the three was Mrs. Harriett Robertson, of Nogal, who had been ill for three weeks. Dr. Bradley was not only called in consultation in this case, but Dr. Brown, of El Paso, also. The consultation confirmed the diagnosis initially made and an operation was determined upon. Accordingly, Wednesday, Mrs. Robertson underwent an abdominal operation, Dr. Bradley having again been called from Roswell to assist Drs. Johnson and Paden. It is too early to predict ultimate recovery in this case, for the operation was not only delicate and perilous, but involved many complications, from either of which difficulty, following the operation, might arise. However, the patient is reported to have withstood the shock well, strongly rallied and her recovery is confidently expected.

All-Year National Park

A mass meeting was called last night at Lutz Hall to go over the draft of the proposed bill for the creation of the All-Year National Park. J. B. French, executive member for Lincoln county, had a copy of the draft, which was read to and discussed by those present. A committee, consisting of T. E. Kelley, Henry Lutz and W. M. Reily, was named to solicit funds to carry on the work of publicity and to meet the expenses that will be incurred. The committee will call on you soon; be ready with you assessment.

School Notes

(By Superintendent E. K. Cole.)

The Camp Fire Girls met with their guardians, Misses Fordon and Herron last Tuesday evening.

The Boy Scouts held their semi-monthly meeting in the high school Feb. 10. Fred and Archie Tuton told of some of the latest inventions and discoveries in the Popular Science Monthly.

The Alamogordo High School basket ball teams played the Carrizozo High School teams Friday afternoon of last week. The visitors were defeated by our girls, the score being 24-17. Their boys, however, won over our boys by the score 60-14. Both games were played at the ball park. There was a large crowd present, as many of the business houses closed to allow the employes to see the games.

Tuesday was St. Valentine's Day and was greatly enjoyed by the pupils of all the grades. The pupils of the lower grades made their own valentines and placed them in the "box" in the afternoon. The pupils were encouraged by the teachers to make none but beautiful valentines, and many of them were real works of art. The pupils were encouraged to make the day an occasion for showing not only love for their relatives' but also regard for their friends.

The birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, the two greatest Americans, will be celebrated in the grades Friday afternoon 17th. Mrs. Craddock's program will be held in her own schoolroom on the east side. The rooms of Miss Ivy Lindsay and Miss Burton will be combined, the exercises to be held in Miss Burton's room. The 7th and 8th grades will hold their exercises in the 8th grade room. All the other grades will have their exercises in their own rooms. Parents and friends invited.

The High School will hold its Washington-Lincoln program on Tuesday 21st, at 2:45. The literary part of the program is:

Parsons News Letter

A. N. Ruunels, who has been quite ill, is reported much better.

School opened Monday with a good attendance, after being closed for two weeks on account of illness of most of the pupils.

William Robertson has had a boiler moved from the Helen Rae to his mining property in Bear Canon. H B Martin superintended the moving and the transfer was made without accident.

Dr. Wallace and Mr. Payne of Fort Stanton, accompanied by Dr. E. C. Smith of Washington, D. C., were guests of the Rice family last Thursday.

J. H. Fulmer is home for a few days.

B. F. Martin is staying at the home of Mrs. Robertson near the Helen Rae during the illness of Mrs. Robertson in Carrizozo.

Mrs. J. H. Fulmer, who has been on the sick list, is O. K. again.

St. Valentine Party

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Huppertz entertained a number of friends at a St Valentine party, bridge furnishing the amusement of the evening. Four tables were in operation. The little God was in evidence on the cards designating tables and couples, as well as on the articles on which an elaborate repast was served, following the series of games. The settings, decorations and arrangements all proclaimed the presence of the "ruler of hearts." The entire scheme was so appropriate that the guests pronounced it one of the most pleasing functions of the season.

Notes--Income Tax Returns

The internal revenue office at Albuquerque announced that Harry E. Peltz, deputy collector of internal revenue, will be in Carrizozo on February 18th to the 21st, inclusive, to assist persons desiring to make income tax returns for 1921. If you need assistance in preparing your return, it will be to your advantage to see Deputy Peltz while he is here.

Educational News

(By Mrs. M. L. Blaney)

The meeting of the Hondo literary society was pronounced a success.

The Parsons and Nogal schools which have been closed on account of sickness were opened Monday morning.

The "attendance banner" for the month of January was won by Ancho closely followed by the Macho, Tinnie, Gallo and Glencoe schools, each with more than 98 per cent.

Lincoln Consolidated School will give a musical and patriotic program at the schoolhouse on the evening of February 24th. The music, which has been prepared under the direction of Miss Fleming, will be one of the features.

If you doubt the patriotic spirit of the lads and lassies just step into a schoolroom when the teacher is making assignments for the patriotic program and note the unanimous responses to the questions, "Who'll be George Washington?" "Who'll be Lincoln?" and then note, if you please, the willingness of the unsuccessful candidates to take whatever part is necessary to the success of the program.

An excellent program is being prepared by the committee of the Lincoln County Teachers' Association.

The pupils are busy practicing the play which is to be given on February 24th. It is entitled "Scenes in a Union Depot." We are sure it will be well worth seeing as it comprises about forty characters, such as a widower with five children; an old maid, a henpecked husband, an eloping couple, and many other characters.

A school orchestra and boys' quartette have been organized and have been practicing the past week.

Glee Club practice, which was postponed during Miss Fleming's illness, has again been resumed. The club is to sing a song at the teachers' convention which will be held at Capitan.

Cree Hightower is ill and may be absent from school for several days.

The school will have a program on the 21st in honor of Washington and Lincoln.

The Glee Club attended a meeting of the literary society at Hondo last Friday and sang some selections.

On his return home Lincoln confessed that he had soon to deal with that question.

I was in his office when Herndon said "I tell you that slavery must be rooted out."

"What makes you think so?" Mr. Lincoln asked.

"I feel it in my bones," was Herndon's answer.

After that he used to speak with respect of "Bill Herndon's bone philosophy."

His term in congress having ended, he came back to the law in partnership with William H. Herndon—a man of character and sound judgment.

Those days Lincoln wore black trousers, coat and stock, a waistcoat of satin and a Wellington high hat. He was wont to carry his papers in his hat. Mary had wrought a great change in his external appearance.

They used to call him "a dead square lawyer." I remember that once Herndon had drawn up a fictitious plea founded on a shrewd assumption. Lincoln carefully examined the papers.

"Is it founded on fact?" he asked.

"No," Herndon answered. Lincoln scratched his head thoughtfully and asked:

"Why, might we better withdraw that plea? You know it's a sham and generally that's another name for a lie. Don't let it go on record. The cursed thing may come staring us in the face long after this suit has been forgotten."

In the whole he was not so communicative as he had been in his young manhood. He suffered days of depression when he said little. Often, in good company, he seemed to be thinking of things in no way connected with the talk. Mary called him a rather "slut-mouthed man."

Herndon used to say that the only thing he had against Lincoln was his habit of coming in mornings and spending on the lounge and reading aloud from the newspaper.

The people of the town loved him. One day, as we were walking along the street together, we came upon a girl dressed up and crying in front of her father's door.

"What's the matter?" Lincoln asked.

"I want to take the train and the wagon hasn't come for my trunk," said she.

Lincoln went in and got the trunk and carried it to the station on his back, with people laughing and throwing jokes at him as he strode along. When I think of him, his civility and unobtrusiveness come first to mind.

He read much, but his days of book study were nearly ended. His learning was now got mostly in the school of experience. Herndon says, and I think it is true, that he never read to the end of a law book those days. The study of authorities was left to the junior partner. His reading was mostly outside the law. His knowledge of science was derived from Chambers' Vestiges of the Natural History of Creation.

He was still afraid of the Abolition Movement in 1852 and left town to avoid a convention of its adherents. He thought the effort to resist by force the laws of Kansas was criminal and would hurt the cause of freedom.

"Let us have peace and revolutionize through the ballot box," he urged.

In 1854, a little quarrel in New York began to weave the thread of destiny. Seward, Weed and Greeley had wielded decisive power in the party councils of that state. Seward was a high-headed, popular idol. His plans and his triumphant progress absorbed his thought. Weed was dazzled by the splendor of this great star. Neither gave a thought to their able colleague—a poor man struggling to build up a great newspaper. An office, with fair pay, would have been a help in those days. But he got no recognition of his needs and talents and services. Suddenly he wrote a letter to Weed in which he said:

"The firm of Seward, Weed and Greeley is hereby dissolved by the resignation of its junior member."

When Greeley had grown in power and wisdom until his name was known and honored from ocean to ocean, they tried to make peace with him, but in vain.

Then suddenly a new party and a new Lincoln were born on the same day in 1860, at a great meeting in Mendon, Illinois. There his soul was in a state of the wildest excitement. He was a man of a new order of things had arisen for it. He reached the station at Mendon on the morning of his great fight. The candidate was already there.

He went up the steps to the platform. I saw, as he came forward, that he had taken the cross upon him. Oh, it was a memorable thing to see the smothered flame of his spirit leaping into his face. His hands were on his hips. He seemed to grow taller as he advanced. The look of him reminds me now of what the famous bronze founder in Paris said of the death-mask, that it was the most beautiful head and face he had ever seen. What shall I say of his words save that it seemed to me that the voice of God was in them? The reporters forgot to report. It is a lost speech. There is no record of it. I suppose it was scribbled with a pencil on scraps of paper and on the backs of envelopes at sundry times, agreeably with his habit, and committed to memory. So this great speech, called by some the noblest effort of his life, was never printed. I remember one sentence, relating to the Nebraska bill.

"Let us use ballots, not bullets, against the weapons of violence, which are those of kingscraft. Their fruits are the dying bed of the fearless Sumner, the ruins of the Free State hotel, the smoking timbers of the Herald of Freedom, the governor of Kansas chained to a stake like a horse-thief."

In June, 1858, he took the longest step of all. The Republican state convention had endorsed him for the United States senate. It was then that he wrote on envelopes and scraps of paper at odd moments, when his mind was off duty, the speech beginning:

"A house divided against itself must fall. Our government can not long endure part slave and part free."

I was among the dozen friends to whom he read that speech in the State house library. One said of those that sentences: "It is a fool utterance."

Another: "It is ahead of its time." Another declared that it would drive away the Democrats who had lately joined the party. Herndon and I were the only ones who approved it.

Lincoln had come to another fork in the road. For a moment I wondered which way he would go.

Immediately he rose and said with an emphasis that silenced opposition: "Friends, this thing has been held back long enough. The time has come when these sentiments should be uttered, and if it is decreed that I shall go down because of this speech, then let me go down linked to the truth."

His conscience prevailed. The speech was delivered. Douglas, the Democratic candidate, came on from Washington to answer it. That led to Lincoln's challenge to a joint debate. I was with him through that long campaign. Douglas was the more finished orator. Lincoln spoke as he spoke. His conscience was his beetle. He drove his arguments deep into the souls of his hearers. The great thing about him was his conscience. Unless his theme were big enough to give it play in noble words he could be no orator, as any one sees. He was built for a tool of God in tremendous moral issues. He was a warrior and a diplomat in beginning a speech. Often his hands were locked behind his back. He postulated words with his head then his hands. He stood square-headed always. He never walked about on the platform. He stood in place with his feet together. Herndon says that he would have a hand on his voice, high pitched, at first, mellowed into a pleasant sound.

One sentence in Lincoln's speech at Ottawa thrust "The Little Giant" of Illinois out of his way forever. It was this pregnant query:

"Can the people of a United States territory in any lawful way and against the wish of any citizen of the United States exclude slavery from its limits prior to the formation of a state constitution?"

He knew that Douglas would answer yes and that, doing so, he would alienate the South and destroy his chance to be President two years later. That is exactly what came to pass. "The Little Giant's" answer was the famous "Freeport Heresy." He was elected to the senate, but was no longer possible as a candidate for the presidency.

I come now to the last step in the career of my friend and beloved master. It was the Republican convention of 1860 in Chicago. I was a delegate. The New Yorkers came in white beaver hats, enthusiastic for Seward, their favorite son. He was the man we dreaded most. Many in the great crowd were wearing his colors. The delegations were in earnest session the night before the balloting began. The hotel corridors were thronged with excited men. My father had become a man of wealth and great influence in Illinois. I was with him when he went into the meeting of the Michigan delegates and talked to them. He told how he came West in a wagon and saw the spirit of America in the water floods of Niagara and saw again the spirit of America in the life of the boy, Abe Lincoln, then flowing toward its manhood. When he sat down, the Honorable Dennis Flanagan arose and told of meeting the Traylor party at the Falls, when he was driving an ox-team, in a tall beaver hat; how he had remembered their good advice and cookies and jerked venison.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I am willing to take the word of a man whose name is hallowed by my dearest recollections. And believing what he has said of Abraham Lincoln, I am for him on the second ballot."

The green Irish lad, whom I remember dimly, had become a great political chieftain and his words had much effect. There was a stir among the delegates. I turned and saw the tall form of Horace Greeley entering the door. His big, full face looked rather serious. He wore gold-bowed spectacles. He was smooth-shaven save for the silken, white, throat beard that came out from under his collar. His head was bald on top with soft, silver locks over each ear. They called on him to speak. He stepped forward and said slowly in a high-pitched drawl:

"Gentlemen, this is my speech. On your second ballot vote for Abraham Lincoln of Illinois."

He bowed and left the room and visited many delegations, and everywhere expressed his convictions in this formula. Backed by his tremendous personality and influence, the simple words were impressive. I doubt not they turned scores of men from Seward to the great son of Illinois.

Then—the campaign with its crowds, its enthusiasm, its Venetian mutterings. There was a curious touch of humor and history in its banners. Here are three of them:

"Menard County for the Tall Sucker."

"We are for old Abe the Giant-Killer."

"Link on to Lincoln."

Then—those last days in Springfield. He came to the office the afternoon before he left and threw himself on the lounge and talked of bygone days with Herndon.

"Billy, how long have we been together?" he asked.

"Sixteen years."

"Never a cross word."

"Never."

"Keep the old sign hanging. A little thing like the election of a President should make no change in the firm of Lincoln and Herndon. If I live, I'm coming back some time and then we'll go right on with the practice of the law as if nothing had happened."

Then—that Monday morning in Springfield, at eight o'clock, on the eleventh of February, the train bore him toward the great task of his life. Hannah Armstrong, who had fixed his trousers in New Salem, and the venerable Doctor Allen and the Brinton, and Aleck Ferguson, bent with age, and Harry Needles and Bin and their four handsome children, and my father and mother, and Betsey, my maiden sister, and Eli Freudenberg were there in the crowd to bid him good-by.

A quartet sang. Mr. Lincoln asked his friends and neighbors to pray for his success. He was moved by the sight of them and could not have said much if he had tried. The bell rang. The train started. He waved his hand and was gone. Not many of us who stood trying to see through our tears were again to look upon him. The years of preparation were ended and those of sacrifice had begun.

Now, we are at the foot of the last hill. For a long time I had seen it looming in the distance. These days it filled my heart with a great fear. Now, how beautiful, how lonely it seemed! Oh, but what a vista lay on that very fruitful hill! I speak now when I think of it. Harry Needles and I were on our way to Washington that fateful night of April 15, 1865. We reached there at an early hour in the morning. We made our way through the crowded streets to the little house opposite Ford's theatre. The

The latter held an open watch in his hand. I could hear it ticking the last moments in an age of history. What a silence as the great soul of my friend was "breaking camp to go home."

Friends of the family and members of the cabinet were in the room. Through the open door of a room beyond I saw Mrs. Lincoln and the children and others. We looked at our friend lying on the bed. His kindly face was pale and haggard. He breathed faintly and at long intervals. His end was near.

"Poor Abe!" Harry whispered as he looked down at him. "He has had to die on the cross."

To most of those others Lincoln was the great statesman. To Harry he was the beloved Abe who had shared his fare and his hardships in many a long, weary way.

massed in the street waiting with tear-stained faces for the end. Some of them were sobbing as we passed. We were admitted without delay. A minister and the doctor sat by the bedside. The latter held an open watch in his hand. I could hear it ticking the last moments in an age of history. What a silence as the great soul of my friend was "breaking camp to go home."

Friends of the family and members of the cabinet were in the room. Through the open door of a room beyond I saw Mrs. Lincoln and the children and others. We looked at our friend lying on the bed. His kindly face was pale and haggard. He breathed faintly and at long intervals. His end was near.

"Poor Abe!" Harry whispered as he looked down at him. "He has had to die on the cross."

Reason for His Preference. Richard was fond of a neighbor and liked to spend the greater part of every day at her home.

One day I said: "Why, Richard, I believe you like Mrs. Ford better than mother."

"Well," he replied, "she isn't always washing me up."

Tactful. "Why did he not accompany you to the theater, instead of sending tickets for yourself and mother?"

"It was not the kind of show," answered Miss Cayenne, "which would permit a gentleman to feel at ease in the presence of ladies."

The world could manage to rub along without us, but we are rather glad that it doesn't have to.

Many Had Idea of Velocipede. The velocipede was the father of the bicycle. The list of those who claimed to have made the invention would fill a column, and a page would hardly accommodate all those who devised the improvements which made the velocipede a really useful means of locomotion.

Blanchard, the aeronaut, who described the invention in detail in 1778, is believed entitled to first honors.

The Frenchman, M. Joseph Mique, appears as a good second in 1818. Baron von Drais, a German, spoke of his velocipede with his "velocipede" or "velocipede" in the same year.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Settlement of Shantung Controversy Announced to the Arms Conference.

NAVAL TREATY IS APPROVED

Agreements on Poison Gas, Submarines and Chinese Quotients Also Indorsed—Senate Passes Foreign Debt Refunding Bill—Senator Kenyon Is Made Federal Circuit Judge.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SECRETARY of State Hughes and Arthur J. Balfour accomplished a great feat of real diplomacy last week when they succeeded in persuading China and Japan to accept the compromise arrangement by which the long-standing and troublesome Shantung controversy is brought to an end. The settlement was announced on Wednesday in the fifth plenary session of the conference, and both the statesmen voiced their personal rejoicing over it because it was their own plan. Mr. Balfour went further and told something that aroused the conference to cheers. He said that Great Britain had decided to enter at once into negotiations for the restoration to China of the territory of Wei-Hai-Wei, which it has held under lease since the time when Russia seized Port Arthur. This China will get back sovereignty over her most ancient and most thickly-populated province in its entirety.

In all major details the agreement between Japan and China is as was told in these columns a week ago. Japan is to get out of Tsingtao and the salt fields within six months, and is to give up the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu railway within nine months.

The one discordant note in Washington was sounded by Ma So, representative of the Canton government. He asserted the Chinese people would not recognize the treaty agreed upon in the conference.

Mr. Hughes presented to the conference the completed draft of the naval limitation treaty with the agreement on Pacific fortifications, and it was formally adopted. No material change in the treaty as already detailed had been made, and the Pacific agreement also stands in the main as formerly described. According to the fortifications clause the status quo must be maintained by America in the Philippine and Aleutian islands; by Great Britain in Hongkong and the Pacific Islands east of 110 degrees west longitude; by Japan in the Kurile, Bonin and Loochoo islands, Amami-Oshima, Formosa and the Pescadores.

In presenting the five-power naval act, Mr. Hughes said: "This treaty absolutely ends the race competition of naval armaments. At the same time it leaves the security of nations unimpaird. It is significant of far more also, because here we are talking of arms in the language of peace and have taken the greatest forward step to establish the reign of peace."

Albert Sarraut, head of the French legation, took the opportunity again correct misapprehensions concerning his country's naval policy. He said France had appealed for only what she must have to defend herself, and added: "The camouflaged set of imperialistic France which man propaganda parades about the verse may still deceive a few armchair statesmen, but it will soon evoke not only but smiles."

Mr. Root presented for approval the five power treaty outlawing poison and the use of the submarine as a means of warfare. He said that it does not undertake to fix international law in regard to land search, but to state the most important provisions which already are part of the law of nations. He said that the violation of these rules is a crime and that the death of women and children is a crime.

and an act of piracy. This treaty will be supported by the greatest power known to history. It crystallizes in simple and concrete terms the opinion of the civilized world that already exists in order that hereafter no nation shall dare to do what was done when the women and children of the Lusitania went to their death by wanton murder on the high seas."

In completing a wonderful day's work, the conference gave its approval to resolutions relating to China, to be embodied in treaties, including declaration of the open door, publication of existing treaties, agreements and commitments with China, radio establishments in China, Chinese railways, withdrawal of foreign post offices, withdrawal of foreign troops from Chinese territory, and reduction of Chinese military forces in the interest of economy and internal tranquillity. These treaties, not yet drafted, are to be reported to the next plenary session of the conference, which probably will be its last.

The question of reducing their land forces by one-half was presented to the governments of two nations. By one it was rejected, and the same action is expected in the other case. To the central executive committee of the Russian soviet government, Lenin proposed that the Russian army be cut in half, with a view to meeting the wishes of the United States. Leon Trotsky spoke in opposition and the committee rejected the plan. In the Japanese diet the Kokuminto party brought forward the same proposition. The war office opposed it, having a plan of its own which contemplates reductions in personnel and the strengthening of armaments and equipment. The minister of war says the idea of halving the army is preposterous in view of the fact that the Russian army is still a million strong and can be transported easily with the restoration of the Trans-Siberian railway. It was considered that political reasons would prevent the adoption of the Kokuminto resolution.

WITH the exception of the United States all the nations asked to participate in the Genoa conference in March have accepted the invitation. The French government has announced that it will be represented, because it feels itself bound by the action of former Premier Briand at the Cannes meeting of the supreme council. Premier Poincare is devoting much attention to the German reparations problem and has asked the other allied governments to state their views as to the procedure that should be adopted in regard to the latest proposals made by Germany. He intimates that France prefers to leave the whole matter in the hands of the reparations commission, as the treaty of Versailles provides. Lenin has sent word to Italy that he personally will head the Russian delegation in Genoa.

THE senate of the United States passed the bill for refunding the foreign debt into securities maturing in not more than 25 years. The vote was 39 to 25, three Republicans—Borah, La Follette and Norris—joining the Democratic opposition. The measure is virtually as the administration recommended, though it was said President Harding didn't like some of its provisions. Senator Simmons of North Carolina offered an amendment providing for the use of the interest on the allied loans to pay a soldiers' bonus, and Senator Jones of New Mexico offered another providing for the payment of the bonus directly out of the treasury. Both were defeated. Senator McCumber stating a bill was now being prepared that would give adjusted compensation to the former service men. Senator Borah denounced the bill as a measure whose ultimate purpose was the cancellation of the entire foreign debt.

Mr. Kenyon himself issued this statement: "The President has known since our service together in the senate that political life did not appeal to me and that my ambition was to serve on the federal bench. I am deeply appreciative of the act of the President in appointing me to this position."

In Washington it was believed Representative Burton Sweet of Iowa, who announced candidacy for the place is H. O. Weaver, Iowa lawyer and farmer, president of the American Shorthorn Breeders' association and of the Iowa Agricultural society.

NEARLY one hundred persons perished when the roof of the Knickerbocker movie theater in Washington collapsed under the weight of a heavy snowfall. Nearly all the victims were killed instantly, but one, and perhaps the most prominent, survived several days. This was Edward H. Shaughnessy of Chicago, second assistant postmaster general. The house District of Columbia committee has under consideration a plan to purchase the site of the theater and transform it into a park in which shall be erected a memorial to those who lost their lives in the disaster.

This terrible accident in the capital marked the worst storm that the Atlantic coast states have experienced in many years. Deep snow, high gales and severe cold almost paralyzed many cities and greatly hampered railway transportation.

IT is probable that before this is in the hands of the reader the successor to Pope Benedict XV will have been chosen. The sacred college began its conclave in the Vatican on Thursday with 62 cardinals present. Several others were on their way there. In accordance with ancient custom, the cardinals were cut off from communication with the outside world until their task should be completed, and the only sign of their doings was the periodical smoke wreath from the chimney of the Sistine chapel when each secret ballot was burned. Before the voting began both the Italian and French governments had denied having any favorite candidate. It was thought the successful cardinal would be one who would moderately continue the policies of Benedict, and many believed Gasparri had the best chance.

BECAUSE the Italian government saw fit to recognize the death of the late pope the opposition element was enabled to get together, and on Thursday Premier Bonomi and his cabinet announced their resignation. They had retained the support of only the Catholic party and a small group of reform Socialists.

SECRETARY of War Weeks submitted to congress Henry Ford's offer for the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., "for such action as congress may deem appropriate." Mr. Weeks did not advise either acceptance or rejection, but he said if the proposal were accepted "the government must make new appropriations amounting to $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, of which Mr. Ford will have the benefit for approximately 100 years at 4 per cent."

In the event the offer be rejected, the secretary gave it as his "opinion that dam No. 2 (Wilson dam) should be completed by the government and that the power requirements for commercial purposes, the benefits to navigation, as well as the possible needs of the government would warrant this expenditure."

"The Way to the Heart"
A Long Island bachelor was showing a friend from New York over his estate. When they reached the sheepfold the woolly inmates, catching sight of their master, came bleating to the gate.

"See how these innocent creatures love me, Harry?" said the landholder.

"Love, nothing!" chortled the city man. "They come to you because they're hungry, and they think you're going to feed them."

"Harry," replied the other solemnly. "When you have reached a certain age that passes for love."—American Legion Weekly.

Gustavo Nachtigal (1824 to 1885) had made many exploring trips into Africa and brought back tales of commercial and other possibilities that strongly appealed to Bismarck. In 1883, the Iron Chancellor instructed Nachtigal to explore certain regions on behalf of the government, and when the scientist had arrived at his destination, a German officer who had accompanied him at the special direction of Bismarck, instructed him to plant the German flag on the roof of the hut of the greatest chief of the country and to declare the population subject to the scepter of the German Kaiser.

Why does any healthy person want to be kicked into wakefulness in the morning?

Many people feel that they have to be agitated into wakefulness in the morning. They think that without the tea or coffee they take in the morning that they will not be able to meet the tasks and duties of the day.

Nothing could be more false than this reasoning. Any doctor can tell you this. For a healthy body does not require a stimulant. It gets all the stimulant it needs from food.

The thein and caffeine found in tea and coffee are irritating to the heart and nervous system. They jolt the nerves into undue activity. The result is a reaction. This is why regular tea and coffee drinkers think they must have their stimulant the first thing in the morning to wind them up for the day.

If you will stop using tea and coffee for a week, and drink Postum, the pure cereal beverage instead, it will give Nature an opportunity to rid the system of the irritating substances that harass your nerves, upset digestion, increase your heart action, and make you nervous and irritable.

Many people who have tried Postum say that inside of a week they wake in the morning without that "all gone" feeling that they used to have, and are full of energy, strength and endurance.

Order Postum from your grocer today, and make it according to directions. Your first sip of Postum will surprise and please you.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of large bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling 20 minutes.

Uncle Walt's Story

THE DESIRABLE HUSBAND

"JEMIMA BINSWANGER was in luck when she captured Tobias Todmarsh," observed the druggist.

"Tobe will make a perfect husband, or I miss my guess. He has no bad habits, and he is a moneymaker, without being a tightwad. She will be able to bank in the lap of luxury the rest of her days."

"Of course that ought to make her happy," commented the village patriarch, "but I doubt whether it will. I have heard a lot of people speak of the marriage of these two, and they all take the same view; Tobe is a good citizen and a moneymaker, and consequently he ought to be a first-class husband. Some of the citizens who talk this way are venerable married men, and they ought to know better."

"Of course a woman likes to have plenty of money, and unlimited credit at the stores, but the man isn't properly educated who assumes that she will be satisfied with that. I am not the official forecaster, and I haven't my goosebone with me, but I venture to predict that the marriage will be a dismal failure. Tobias, with all his excellent qualities, is the most close-mouthed man in town, and if he ever had an emotion he probably took it for a chill, and began dopping himself with quinine. There's as much sentiment in a concrete hitching post as there is in that man."

"Jemima, on the other hand, fairly stops over with sentiment. She's a languishing sort of girl, who looks upon herself as a vine, and will want her husband to be a sturdy oak, so she can wind herself around him, as it were. She will expect Tobias to tell her, four thousand times a day, how much he loves her; and every time he takes a chair she will climb on his knees and push her topknot into his face, and expect him to assure her in burning language that he simply couldn't live five minutes without her."

"When that sort of a girl gets the right husband, my friends, she is an excellent wife. She would make any sacrifice for him. She wouldn't care a penny about the size of his bank account. She'd be perfectly willing to live under a bridge with him, and wear a burlap gown, if he'd only keep on telling her that she is the center solar system where he is concerned. It is a tragic fact that this sort of girl seldom does get the man she ought to have. She should splice up with a half-baked poet, or a hungry artist with long hair, but there is much irony in human lives and destinies, and so she usually marries a man who is strong on mathematics and short on sentiment."

"That's the mistake Jemima is making. Why does she marry such a hard-headed individual as Tobias? Because, like all her kind, she is a dreamer of dreams, and she has given him attributes which don't belong to him. She has framed up a character for him, and it isn't a bit like the real goods. When she has been married a little while she will see that her blueprints and specifications were all wrong, and the disappointment will make an old woman of her, and her temper will become warped and she'll be so disagreeable in every way that her husband will spend most of his time thinking up excuses for staying away from home."

"That's the way with a sentimental girl; if she happens to marry a man who appreciates the poetry of her nature, she is the best thing that ever happened. She looks young when she is seventy years old, and her whole career is one long basket picnic. But if she marries the wrong man, which she does in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, she loses her grip as soon as she finds that her dreams were all moonshine, and then she develops into a shrew."

"Why does Tobias marry Jemima? That's the real problem. He's so clear-sighted in most things he should be able to see that she isn't the wife he needs, but men have blind staggers when they think they are in love."

No Case, but Get a Bill. Angry Man—Here, what do you mean, sending me this bill for $10? Didn't you say that I had no case against the railroad company? Lawyer—My dear sir, that is what the bill is for—advice.—New York Central Magazine.

Water Power in France. The utilization of water power in France has increased by more than 50 per cent since the commencement of the war, and by the end of 1921 the available water power will be double the amount installed at the outbreak of the war.

His Job. "This new nurse wants to know what is his special job. He is an expugnant." "All right. Tell him he will come in handy to put the patients to sleep."

Very Likely. Church: "Do you remember when they used to put a calliope at the end of a circus procession?" Gotham: "Sure, I do!" "Why did they do that do you suppose?" "To show that the worst was yet to come, I reckon."

Made No Rash Promises. "Who was the smooth talker?" "A promoter." "I care say he wanted to make you rich in six months?" "No. He was very conservative. He said he thought it would take at least a year."

The Reason. "I see in a new production of 'Othello' they use electric lights in the murder scene." "Probably that is to make Desdemona's death more shocking."

True Detective Stories

ALL EVIDENCE

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

C. D. WEST, head of the prosecution department of the National Association of Credit Men, leaned back in his chair and placed the tips of the fingers of his left hand precisely against the tips of the fingers of his right, a habit that was second-nature to him during the consideration of a difficult problem.

"Why on earth, Edwards, didn't you come to me with this story before? It's too late to help you now. Your stock's gone, your credit ruined, and they've milked you dry. A word to the association in time would have saved you money and us time."

"I didn't dare to come out in the open," groaned the man on the other side of the desk. "They had the goods on me, too, remember. I did hire a private detective agency, but . . ."

"Private detectives!" snorted West. "Detectives of any kind are practically useless in cases connected with commercial crimes. There's nothing that can be done in this case, but there is a way in which you can assist the law, and the men who fleece you, and possibly make a grubstake for yourself. Listen . . ."

Less than six months later, Abe Einstein, who called himself a "credit manager," wandered into the office of Henry W. Easton, lawyer, and after seeing that all the doors were carefully closed, inquired if Easton remembered Edwards, the shoe dealer, whom they had nicked some time before.

"The name's familiar," replied the lawyer, "but I don't recall the details."

"Oh, it was the same old game," grunted Einstein. "I got him to come up and talk to you—you suggested that he ship the bulk of his stock out of town to me—I'd sell it, and we'd split with him after the 'usual fees' had been deducted."

"I remember now. Then, when he came back here and finally asked for his part of the take-off, I told him he was lucky not to be in jail for violating six or eight different statutes. Our 'fees,' as I carefully explained to him, more than ate up the proceeds of his stock at a forced sale, and he really owed us money! You should have seen his face then. But what's the trouble? Has he made a peep to the police?"

"No, nothing like that," Einstein replied. "But I happened to be passing through Wilkesbarre the other day, and who should I run into but Edwards. Prosperous, too. I knew him in a minute, and wondered where he'd gotten his money. Followed him down the street aways, and found that he'd opened another store. Flashy, but good-looking. Somebody's evidently staked him, and he's trying his luck, but—and here's the part that concerns us—he's nearly on the rocks again!"

"What? On the verge of bankruptcy?"

"Exactly; only this time he evidently intends to work the game all his own. You can't blame him for that, after he's been burned once."

"But," protested Easton, "he can't handle it by himself!"

"That's what I figured," said Einstein. "But, naturally, I didn't put the matter up to him. Things have been pretty dull around here for a while. Why don't you run up and see Edwards? Admit that we didn't do as well for him the first time as we might have, and make him a guarantee of $2,500 on a 40-00 split."

"Right!" snapped the lawyer. "I'll take a run up there tomorrow."

The following afternoon, in the private office of his store, Edwards and Easton thrashed out the details of their former arrangement the lawyer stating that he had come to pay over $5,000, "which had been unexpectedly saved from the wreck."

"Incidentally," he added, "I understand that you won't be here much longer. Going to try the same game yourself?"

"Possibly," replied the shoe dealer, "Why not?"

"You can't do it without an organization," insisted the lawyer. "You need us, and we need you."

Then, while Edwards nervously played with some papers on his desk, Easton outlined his plan—how the goods were to be shipped, how Einstein would handle them, and the $2,500 guarantee which would be paid the shoe dealer for his part in the fraudulent bankruptcy proceedings.

Terms were finally agreed up, and the whole court proceedings went forward without a hitch.

The day after he had been declared bankrupt, Edwards accompanied Easton to the bank, and there received the $2,500 which had been promised him. As the lawyer handed him over the money, he heard a voice behind him say:

"Nab him, boys!"

Pains Were Terrific

Read how Mrs. Albert Gregory, of R. F. D. No. 1, Blufford, Ill., got rid of her pains. "During . . . I was awfully weak. . . My pains were terrific. . . I thought I would die. The bearing-down pains were actually so severe I could not stand the pressure of my hands on the lower part of my stomach. . . I simply felt as if life was for but a short time. My husband was worried. . . One evening, while reading the Birthday Almanac, he came across a case similar to mine, and went straight for some Cardui for me to try."

My baby was fat and strong, and myself—thank God—am once more hale and hearty, can walk miles, do my work, though 44 years old, feel like a new person. All I owe to Cardui." For many years Cardui has been found helpful in building up the system when run down by disorders peculiar to women.

Nine Killed in Gas Explosion.

Birmingham, Ala.—Nine convicts were killed from a local gas explosion in the Belle Ellen coal mines in Bibb here by C. H. Nesbitt, state mine ina local one, that all the bodies had been recovered and that the mine was clear.

Locomotive Co. Asks Receivership.

South Norwalk, Conn.—A receivership for the Locomotive Company of Bridgeport was applied for in papers filed here. This action was taken, it was stated, as a step toward reorgan-and various credit interests were represented by counsel, who stated that the proceedings were by agreement.

 It is represented in the application that the interests of banks and mar-holders, can be best served through a reorganization through a receivership.

Mexia Is New Law-Abiding Town.

Mexia, Texas.—Mexia and vicinity, which sheltered gamblers and alleged bootleggers several weeks ago, under the control of state troops, has become a quiet oil town, with nothing to worry about but muddy streets. Mexia "grew up over night" when oil was discovered, and was the objective of the average "get-rich-quick" underclass.
 Oil boomism began to show up on the police blotter, and continued to increase. Gov. Pat M. Neff took notice, and declared martial law Jan. 12.

U. S. Steamer Sunk at Desk.

Baltimore, Md.—The United States shipping steamship Eastern Dawn, loaded with grain, presumably for Russian relief, was sunk at her moorings alongside of the Western Maryland Company's grain elevator at Fort Corbett, Baltimore harbor. It is reported that one of the sea-cocks of the vessel had been opened in some inat-tended manner which let in a rush of water, which flooded the engine room and sank the ship.

ROAD BUILDING

SCRUBBING-BOARD SURFACES

Bureau of Public Roads Building Experimental Highway to Determine Cause of Waves.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What causes a "tarred" road to develop that peculiar scrubbing-board surface is a question that has been worrying the highway engineers quite as much as the long-suffering public.
 As often as not the symptoms appear in a macadam road that has been treated with asphalt. But the trouble is largely confined to roads built with tar or asphalt. Concrete and brick roads never develop such a surface, and ordinary dirt roads seldom do.

The bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture is building at the Arlington (Va.) experimental farm an experimental roadway 15 feet wide in an attempt to discover the cause of the trouble. The road is laid out in the form of a circle with a 50-foot radius, and its circumference, 565 feet in length, is to be divided into sections, each of which will be surfaced with a different kind of asphalt or tarred surface.

The experimental sections will be built exactly like actual road surfaces and when completed they will carry a "traffic" as much like actual traffic as it is possible to devise. The "traffic" will be supplied by a driverless motortruck which will be held to the circular path by means of a long arm extending from the center. The course of the truck will be altered from time to time so that the entire width of the roadway will be traveled.

It has not been possible to determine the cause by observation of actual roads because there are too many unknown quantities. The defect may be due to distortion of the earth under the road surface or to defects in the surface itself. It is probably caused Treating the Surface of a Macadam Road With Bituminous Material.

In some way by the wheels of motor vehicles—how and why the engineers have not determined, largely because they have never possessed all the facts with regard to surface and subsurface conditions and character and weight of traffic.

OILED ROADS ARE APPROVED

Operation Must Be Performed Intelligently or It Will Make Conditions Worse.

The American Highway Bulletin, which approves of oiled roads, observes that oiling must be performed intelligently or it will make conditions worse instead of better. According to this authority it is useless to oil a dirt road which is not thoroughly drained and properly graded. It is a waste of money to oil a road which does not have a smooth hard surface free from dust. If the surface is uneven, oil collects in shallow depressions and softens the surface so that after the first heavy rain the travel tends to make mudholes at these places. If there is dust on the road, the oil combines with the dust to form a sort of mat, which the travel over it quickly breaks up into large flakes or scales.
 But if the road is in proper condition to receive the oil and the right kind of oil is used, the oil penetrates into the pores of the earth for a depth of several inches, sealing them with an asphaltic binding material which unites the surface into a tougher mass than the original surface. The oil cannot make the road any harder, for only stone or gravel will accomplish that, but it will prevent the displacement of the earth particles under any loads which an earth road is adapted to carry. If the oiled surface is immediately covered with a thin layer of clean, hard sand, the travel will not disturb the oil and the travelers will suffer less inconvenience.

Gate for Crossings.

A new safety gate for railroad crossings is designed which stretches across the road like the old style gate, but is flexible and elastic, so that it gives instead of breaks, when run. The gate will force the vehicle back wards, away from danger.

Unless Work on Road, it Will not be Safe to Travel on it.

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

JUST KEPT GROWING

The origins of these antiquated, cumbersome, costly, inefficient pieces of the national machinery that we call the executive departments show how any establishment if well watered with government money will expand and hold together, no matter how conflicting and incongruous its functions.
 Hardly one of these great business establishments—for that is what they are—was planned. As they are today they just happened.

Take the Department of Agriculture, for example, one of the greatest and most complex and widespread of all the departments. It is in closer touch and more directly affects the greatest number of people in the United States than any other branch of the government with the possible exception of the post office. It began in 1839 with an appropriation of $1,000, taken from the patent funds for the distribution of free seeds and the collection of agricultural statistics by the patent office, then a bureau in the State department. Now look at the darning thing. It is all over the place.

The title of the department indicates its most important field of activities, but its functions have been extended to include the whole range of rural industry and some branches of administration only very indirectly related to agricultural interests. For about 60 years subsequent to the Revolution the general interests of agriculture were left almost entirely to individual initiative.
 Federal activity was confined to relatively narrow limits and was merely sporadic. Soon after the national government was organized some attempts were made to establish a board of agriculture; but neither the first proposal in 1793 nor a second effort in 1817 was successful.

Shortly after the Revolution, following the example of Benjamin Franklin while in England, as agent of the colony of Pennsylvania during the years 1764 to 1775, American consuls and naval officers began the practice of sending home foreign seeds and cuttings for new crops, and of aiding in the introduction into the United States of new breeds of domestic animals.
 Even such small governmental participation was, in the beginning, rather extra-official.

In 1836 the commissioner of patents, one H. L. Ellsworth, began the distribution of considerable quantities of seeds and plants received from government representatives in foreign countries; and three years later through his influence an appropriation of $1,000 was made for the purpose of procuring and distributing seeds of new plants, carrying agricultural investigations and collecting agricultural statistics. This was the historic beginning of the much-talked-about free seed distribution.

By an act of congress in May, 1862, since generally called the organic act, the activities of the government affecting agriculture were placed under a separate and distinct organization known as the Department of Agriculture, in charge of a commissioner of agriculture. It did not rank, however, with the other executive departments, and the commissioner was not entitled to a seat in the President's cabinet. Isaac Newton, chief of the agricultural section in the patent office, was appointed the first commissioner of agriculture. Other officers provided by the organic act included a statistician, a chemist, an entomologist and a superintendent of the propagating garden and experimental farm.

The chrysalis was now ready to be broken. In 1869 the Department of Agriculture was elevated to the rank of the other executive departments and its commissioner was made secretary of agriculture with a seat in the President's cabinet. This was in Grover Cleveland's administration. In honor of its new rank a few more functions were taken on.

But that's enough detail. It kept on growing. Beginning with an appropriation of $1,000 and two or three clerks, the department had, in 1910, employees to the number of 12,490, and an appropriation of $12,995,000. Five years later the appropriation had grown to $19,867,832 and the employees to 18,223. The employees in May, 1920, numbered 19,008, and the appropriation given by congress for the fiscal year 1921 was $31,475,308.

The department has increased its cost of living in 52 years from a mere $1,000—that is, $83.33 a month—to more than $31,000,000 a year—$2,622, 947.33 every month. That shows as clearly and as sharply as it can be shown how the high cost of government living affects your own cost of living.

We, you and I, paid out of our savings and earnings every red cent of that increase from $1,000 a year to more than $31,000,000. It may have been well spent. We probably got a run for our money; but nobody knows, except in a general way. We have a right to know. It is simply fat-headedness on our part not to find out.

HAPHAZARD EXTENSION

The Department of Agriculture is one instance of how governmental establishments grow and spread and extend their activities, once they get started. The bureau of fisheries, in the Department of Commerce, is another. It had a modest beginning, and there was no branch of the federal government especially charged with the consideration of fishery affairs.

Several of the states had established fish commissions and these state authorities, supported by private interests, began to agitate for a national bureau devoted to fishery interests.
 So it came about that by 1871 congress was ready to yield and begin to make appropriations. The first one was for $5,000 and provided for a commissioner of fish and fisheries to prosecute investigations and inquiries "with the view of ascertaining whether any and what diminution in the number of food fishes of the coast and in the lakes of the United States has taken place; and also whether any and what protective, prohibitory or precautionary measures should be adopted in the premises; and shall report upon the same to congress."

The commissioner was to draw no pay, for it was provided by congress in the same joint resolution that he should be a civil officer of the government, of proved scientific and practical acquaintance with the fishes of the coast, who should serve without additional compensation. The then assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, by name Spencer Fullerton Baird, was chosen as the best man for the job, and so he proved to be. He made the little acorn grow. He was industrious and competent and knew how to get along with congress. He was diligent and he stood before kings.
 See what happened.

Remember, he started out with $5,000 to discover whether there had been any diminution of the supply of food fishes along the coasts or in the lakes. He was at the head of an independent investigation and reported directly to congress. The thing was kept alive by annual appropriations as an independent institution until 1906, when it was incorporated into the newly formed Department of Commerce and Labor as the bureau of fisheries.

By 1899 the annual appropriation had grown to $1,000,000, and the bureau had 1,000 employees.

"Four and twenty blackbirds baked in a pie. When the pie was opened the birds began to sing: Wasn't that a dainty dish to set before a king?"

OPEN PIES

The open pie may be made so attractive that it is always a welcome dessert.

Coconut Pie.—Beat three eggs, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of scalded milk and one cupful of coconut. Pour into a deep-lined pie plate and bake in a moderate oven. When cool, cover with sweetened whipped cream, sprinkled generously with freshly grated coconut or other chopped nut meats.

Spice Pie.—Line a pie plate with rich pastry and spread a layer of marmalade or jelly over the bottom.
 Cream one-half cupful of butter with one-half cupful of sugar, add two well-beaten eggs, one tablespoonful of cream, one cupful of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of cloves and the same of baking powder. Bake until firm in a moderate oven. Decorate with cheese balls and serve.

Crumb Pie.—Line a baking dish with pastry. Beat four egg yolks with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, add the grated rind and juice of an orange, one cupful each of finely chopped walnut meats and bread crumbs, one-half teaspoonful each of grated nutmeg, cinnamon, a pinch of cloves and ginger, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and the whites of two eggs, beaten stiff. Mix and pour into the shell. Bake in a moderate oven until firm.

Stuffed Egg Plant.—Take two medium-sized ripe egg plants, cut in halves, and remove the pulp without breaking the skin. To the pulp add a teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and one taspoonful of vinegar. Let stand one hour. Chop one onion, a clove of garlic and one shallot fine; add three taspoonfuls of minced parsley, one-half cupful of mushrooms, chopped, also two tomatoes, chopped. Place in frying pan and fry a golden brown.
 Add the drained egg plant and one cupful of soaked bread crumbs, more salt and pepper, and fry until well cooked. Fill the shells, adding butter, and bake until the shells are tender.

Banana and Peach Compote.—Wash two cupfuls of dried peaches, cover with cold water, cook over night and the next day until tender, then rub through a sieve and sweeten to taste.
 Add the strained juice of an orange, the pulp of six bananas, put through a sieve, with a drop of pink coloring.
 Serve cold.

The mission of the dessert being that of a comforter of the stomach, which, already appeased, nevertheless craves a little reflex natter through the palate.

HELPFUL HINTS

Save the safety razor blades to use for rimping, cutting corns and scraping paint from windows; they will be found useful in other ways.

Save all bits of laundry soap, melt in hot water and use for dish washing so that none is wasted. Bits of toilet soap may be used in the bath, if treated in the same way.

Embroidered pillow slips will last twice as long if they are turned at night for sleeping on the plain side. When the plain side of the case is worn it may be renewed, making a new case.

When cooking any food which boils over easily grease the sides of the kettle.

A roll of cheap toilet paper kept in a handy place in the kitchen will save much work; wipe knives and greasy plates, clean up spilled material and save cleaning cloths, wipe out sink.
 Various other uses for it will occur to one who is using it daily.

When using a flat-topped gas oven on top of the stove always keep a pan of water on top to heat; then there will be hot water ready to wash the dishes without extra heat.

Keep a measuring cup in the flour-box or bin, one in the sugar bucket and one or two for liquids and the work of measuring will be greatly decreased.

Have any canned fruit juice—a cupful will make a good pie; mix with sugar, cornstarch, egg and milk and bake in a pastry shell. Cover with a meringue and a most delicious pie will result. Water may be used instead of milk and with a tablespoonful of butter for richness the food value is increased.

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding
 Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman.
 When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger.
 I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me.
 I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me!
 I want you to know that I am a friend indeed, for you were a friend indeed."
 —Mrs. GEORGE HARDEE, 1043 Byram
 St., Los Angeles, California

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound be a "friend indeed" to you.

Humility.
 "It would appear," observes a Southern-minister, that humility, as a virtue, is in some quarters at least, fast disappearing. Our fathers used to preach humility to us—respect for our superiors, contentment with our humble station and so forth. "He who is down need fear no fall," said one of the old-timers to a ducky in his employ.

"Just so, ah," answered the ducky, but he's shore to get set on and walked over."—Miltwaukee Sentinel.

These goods will begin to arrive soon, and the firm promises a very attractive display of latest styles of reasonable merchandise.

A dry-washing company has been organized in the Jicarillas, and is putting in a battery of approved dry washers, each connected with an automatic bellows which blows the fine dust from the canvas that catches the gold particles. The battery will be ready to operate in a few weeks. In the meantime the development of water continues, boxes are being made, and sluicing will be begun just as soon as the frost leaves the ground. Those engaged in the enterprises, both wet and dry, feel optimistic of the outcome.
