OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 22

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1922

NUMBER 20

Summer Normal Rates

Las Vegas, N. M., May 13.—Rates of one and one-half fare for the round trip with return limit September 1, have been granted by the railroads of New Mexico to summer school students of the New Mexico University. Going tickets may be purchased at any point in New Mexico and at El Paso Texas, May 31, June 1, 2 and 3. School work begins June 5.

This is the most liberal concession the roads have ever given the Normal students, who are permitted, if they desire, to remain here for the continuation school, which will follow the close of the summer school in late July, or to enjoy a vacation in the mountains. It is believed many teachers who have families will avail themselves of the opportunity to bring their wives and children for three months' stay in a climate that is particularly enjoyable during the summer months.

The tickets will be sold on the certificate plan, the purchaser paying full fare on the going trip and receiving a certificate permitting him to buy his return passage at one-half fare, provided 150 tickets are sold. As the Normal University annually has a summer school attendance of over 1,000, there is no doubt but that many more than the required number of tickets will be sold.

The rates have been authorized so far by the Santa Fe, the El Paso & Southwestern and the Southern Pacific railways. The Denver and Rio Grande Western and the New Mexico Central are preparing to announce a similar rate in a few days.

Young Girl Dies

The news reached here this week of the death of Miss Casimira Gonzales, who was committed to the Insane asylum at Las Vegas last week. About two weeks ago she became violently insane, and had to be carefully guarded to keep her from injuring herself or others. She was a very pleasant young lady and had many friends here who are pained to hear of her untimely death.

Healthy Banking Conditions

By reference to the published statements of the three local banks, which appear in this issue of the News, it will be seen that the condition of each reflects better financial standing than has existed for a number of years. During the war, the period of reconstruction and the depression following it, all banks carried heavy loads, but our local banks weathered the storm—stood firm under their burdens—and are now on the up-grade which leads to a normal condition. While financial institutions have failed in different parts of the state and country, and many more crippled, from which it will take years to recover, the three banks of Carrizozo—the Exchange, Lincoln State and First National—the first two State, the latter National, are safe, sound, and on the high road to prosperity. The stability of banks has much to do with bettering conditions surrounding them, and the splendid condition of our local institutions reflects a better feeling throughout the area they serve.

Appraising Equipment

Guy G. Jennings, equipment engineer of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company, was here this week listing and appraising the equipment at Central and in the town. He left for Roswell Wednesday to complete make an appraisal in the Valley, which will complete his work for the entire state.

Other branches of the service have had men going over the entire lines in the state, counting poles, cross pieces, measuring wire, listing tools, and so on, in order to arrive at an actual valuation of company property in the state. This appraisal was made necessary by reason of the ruling of the State Corporation Commission, the company having made application for an increase in rates. On the appraisal will depend whether or not the increase will be granted. Making this appraisal has been a real job.

School Notes

(By Superintendent E. E. Cole.)
The baccalaureate sermon given at the Crystal Sunday morning, was enjoyed by everybody. Mr. Allen is a good thinker and expresses himself well.

The Class Play was a grand success. Everyone did so well. In spite of the bad evening every seat in the house was occupied except one, and a very neat sum was realized.

Mr. H. V. Bamberger deserves our special thanks for his valuable assistance in the play. He is not a member of the school, yet he was prompt and helpful all the way through. Ravi for Hibby!

This is probably our last column of school notes for some time. We wish to thank the editors of the two papers for their many courtesies during the last three years in which we have furnished the school notes column.

We wish to extend to Mr. and Mrs. Sterling our hearty thanks for the many acts of courtesy to the class-play people. We certainly were a nuisance at times, yet no one would ever know it from the treatment we received at all times.

Mrs. Nellie Clark's room has had a large percentage of attendance during the entire year. The honor roll for April was over 90 per cent.

Boys, get a job for the summer. Work will build you up physically and mentally and keep you out of mischief. Then, the money you earn will help dad; and dad needs your consideration.

The art exhibit in all the rooms was one to be proud of. Large numbers of parents visited the grades on Friday and seemed to be pleased with the work. The teachers are to be commended.

Miss Layer deserves credit for the fine art work done in the grades. True, the teachers did nearly all the work, but Miss Layer was the inspiration to that work.

The little Misses Jane Spencer and Marjorie Rolland were the flower girls on Commencement night. They performed their part in a charming manner.

We wish to publish, at this time, the names of those neither tardy nor absent for the whole year. High School, Kastler Taylor. Seventh grade, Jean Reilly; Lena Yates, Mary Tuton, Walter La Fleur. Sixth grade, Lorene Stimmel, Lorena Dinwiddie. Fifth grade, Evelyn Hamilton, Helen Sterling. Fourth grade, Hattie Moss, Mary Romero, J. R. Taylor. Third grade, Helen Huppertz, Julia Romero, Hadda Corn, Beatrice Pino, Presillano Pino. Second grade, Georgia Peckham,

"Daddy" Kahler 79

The Kahler home was the scene of a pleasant gathering Tuesday evening, May 16. It was "Daddy" Kahler's birthday and a number of friends were present with members of the family to "break bread" with the old veteran and Mrs. Kahler.

The Stars and Stripes, under whose folds William Kahler, as a young man, marched and fought for four years, hung over the arch-entrance between the sitting and dining rooms, and the table, which was tastefully decorated, bore in its center the birthday cake into which were stuck red, white and blue candles. However, there were not enough candles to account for Mr. Kahler's years, for as one of his daughters said, "There wasn't room for them." But when the room was darkened and the candles lighted the figures "79" beamed brightly before the assembled guests.

A most appetizing dinner was served and full justice was done by all who sat around the hospitable board. When appetites had been satiated—and that required much time, for some present had not enjoyed such a feed for many moons—the gentlemen adjourned to the sitting room and smoked, while the ladies held sway in the dining room and — and — talked.

"Daddy" was full of reminiscences covering a long life, and pleasant converse was indulged in until a reasonable hour, when guests departed, wishing the old veteran as much joy and prosperity down the mountain as he had experienced in reaching the top, with the added hope that he would be many years in reaching the level from whence he started.

The next meeting of the Parliamentary Study Class will be held Thursday evening, 25th, at the home of Mrs. Stadtmann. The class is studying the Roberts and Fox parliamentary rules.

Georgia Lesnet, Warden Maxwell, Randall Keating, Gerald Sparks. First grade, Nadine Lesnet. Primary, Lorene Baldwin, Carmelita Pino.

The following eighth grade pupils received certificates from the State Board of Education at Commencement exercises: Dora Anderson, Ida Bullion, Maurine Collier, Lillie Elliott, Luz Flores, Maud Hamilton, May Jaurigui, Lucille Jones, Maggie Lujan, Jessie Rustin, Edena Shaver, Leona Whittaker, Wilma Hust, Clifton Branum, Miller French, Fred Lalone, Julian Lalone, Alfredo Lopez, Harold Massey, Urbano Montano, Wm. Moss, Lee Stimmel, Albert Roberts, Britton Vincent, Rayford Jones.

Educational News

(By Mrs. M. L. Blaney)
Last Friday morning R. W. Goddard, Dean of Engineering of State College, called at the office of the county superintendent, and in a short time "wires were being pulled" for a wireless demonstration. We appreciate this visit and shall be glad to have Mr. Goddard visit us again next season.

This and the coming week are so full of splendid entertainments that one can scarcely be every where they choose. The closing programs of the County high school for next week promises to be very entertaining and instructive. Corona also has an excellent program arranged. The public is urged to attend as many of these programs as possible. The White Oaks school closes May 26 with appropriate exercises. The exercises the past week proved that pupils are being trained in the right way.

Robert Pingsaten, of the Mesa school, holds a record which I believe has never been equaled in the county. He has not been absent nor tardy the past eight years. Keep up this record, Robert, and it will lead you to success.

On account of a change of plans of the educational auditor, the meeting of the county board of education, the board of county commissioners and representatives from the department of education, the taxpayers association, local taxpayers, etc., will be held on Friday, May 19 instead of 20, as announced last week.

Teachers are requested to accompany the second trial in the State eighth grade promotion examination with the required fund of fifty cents; also to see that the papers have correct postage.

Stock Sales

There have been some sheep and cattle sales recently, covering the surrounding country, that, in the aggregate, involved considerable numbers. Some of the sales were made through local commission houses, but others were made by growers direct with buyers from Colorado and Texas. Prices, while not as good as expected, indicate an upward tendency.

Showers---Hail

Heavy showers fell in various parts of the county the first of the week, especially in the mountain sections. The showers, in many places, were accompanied by hail, and much damage is reported from the fruit growing section of the county.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

"They've swiped it," he said. "Put an empty one from the hold in its place. We got plenty without using that one for a while, an' I only happened to notice it this morning by chance. They're bin drinkin' all night, I reckon. They're ugly, Mr. Rainey. It's the crew this time. They got the booze. The hunters are sober. Deming ain't in on this. They did it on their own. I don't know how they got it. I didn't get it for 'em, sir. They must have worked plumb through the hold an' got to it that way."

"All right, Sandy. Thanks, Mr. Lund can handle them, I guess. He's counting now."

The men had got to the ice, hidden from Lund, who was walking to the Karak on the opposite side of the vessel. The seamen were gesticulating freely; the sound of their voices came up to him where he stood, tinged with a new freedom of speech, rough, confident, menacing. As they climbed the craft their legs betrayed them and condemned the boy's story. Behind them came the four hunters, with Hansen, walking apart, watching the sailors with a certain gravity that communicated itself despite the distance.

Lund showed at the far fall of the schooner with his bar. He glanced toward the men going to work, went below, and came up with a sweater. He had left the bar behind him in the cabin, where it was used for a stove poker.

The men filed by Rainey, their faces flushed and their eyes unusually bright. They seemed to share a prime joke that wanted to bubble up and over, yet held a restraint upon themselves that was equal to discipline in any other man's hands when one stumbled or hiccupped.

But Hansen was stolid as ever, and the hunters had evidently not shared the stolen liquor. Only Deming's eyes roved over the group of men as they gathered round for their cups and panikins of food. He seemed to be calculating what advantage he could gain out of this unexpected happening.

Peggy Simms, under cover of pouring the coffee, snatched heavily with condensed milk, found time to speak to Rainey.

"They're all drunk," she said. "Not all of them. Here comes Lund. He'll handle it."

Lund seemed still pondering the problem of the foe. At first he did not notice the condition of the sailors. Then he apparently ignored it. But, after they had eaten, he talked to all the men.

"Two more days of it, lads, and we're through. The beach is high cleared. We can get out of the floe to blue water easy enough, an' we'll get a good start on the patrolship. We'll go back with full pockets an' heavy ones. The shores'll be half an' large again as we've figured. I wouldn't wonder if they averaged sixteen or seventeen thousand dollars apiece."

Rainey had picked out a black-bearded Finn as the leader of the sailors in their debauch. The liquor seemed to have unchained in him a spirit of revolt that bordered on insolence. He stood with his bowed legs apart, mottled hands on hips, staring at Lund with a covert grin.

Next to Lund he was the biggest man aboard. With the rum giving an unusual coordination to his usually sluggish nervous system, he promised to be a source of trouble.

Rainey was surprised to see him shrug his shoulders and lead the way to the beach. Perhaps breakfast had sobered them, though the fumes of liquor still clung cloudily on the air. Lund went down, with Rainey beside him, reporting Sandy.

"I'll work it out of 'em," said Lund. "That booze'll be an expensive luxury to 'em, paid for in hard labor."

They found the men ranged up in three groups. Deming and Beale, against custom, had gone down to the beach. They were supposed to help clean the food utensils, and Aid Tamada after a meal, besides replenishing the area.

They stood a little away from the hunters and Hansen and the sailors. The Finn, talking to his comrades in a low growl, was with a separate group.

"There was an air of belated manliness, a feeling of suspense in the tiny valley, backed by the frowning coast, ribbed by the two icy promontories. Lund surveyed them sharply.

"That in h—'s the matter with you?" he barked. "Hansen, send up a man for the drift net shovels. You work's laid out; hop to it!"

"We ain't got 'a work no more," said the Finn aggressively. "Not 'a no work like you give."

"You ain't got 'a work?" barked Lund. "No work? Hansen, send up a man for the drift net shovels. You work's laid out; hop to it!"

git to diggin', or I'll put you ashore in San Francisco flat broke, an' glad to leave the ship, at that. Jump!"

The Finn snarled, and the rest stood firm. Not one of them knew the real value of their promised share. Money represented only counters exchanged for lodging, food and drink enough to make them sodden before they had spent even their usual wages. Then they would wake to find the rest gone, and throw themselves upon the selfish bounty of a boarding-house keeper.

But they had seen the gold, they had handled it, and they were inflamed by a sense of what it ought to do for them. Perhaps half of them could not add a simple sum, could not grasp figures beyond a thousand, at most. And the sight of so much gold had made it, in a manner, cheap. It was there, a heap of it, and they wanted more of that shining heap than had been promised them.

"You talk big," said the Finn. "Look my hands." He showed palms caloused, split, swollen lumps of chilblained flesh worn down and stiffened "I bin seaman, not navy."

Lund turned to the hunters. "You in on this?" he asked. Deming and Beale moved off. Two of the others joined them. "Neutral?" sneered Lund. "I'll remember that."

Hansen and the two remaining came over beside Lund and Rainey.

"Five of us," said Lund. "Five men against twelve fo'c'sle rats. I'll give you two minutes to start work."

"You talk big with your gun in pocket," said the Finn. "Me good man as you enny day."

Lund's face turned dark with a burst of rage that exploded in voice and action.

"You think I need my gun, do ye. You pack of rats? Then try it on without it."

His hand slid to his holster inside his heavy coat. His arm swung, there was a streak of gleaming metal in the lifting sun-rays, flying over the heads of the seamen. It plunked in the free water beyond the lee.

"Come on," roared Lund, "or I'll rush you to the flat bath you've had in five years." The Finn lowered his head, and charged; the rest followed their leader. The hot fool had steeled their motive control to a certain extent, they were firmer on their feet, less vague of eye, but the crude alcohol still fumed in their brains. Without it they would never have answered the Finn's call to rebellion.

He had promised, and their drunken minds believed, that refusing in a man to work would automatically halt things until they got their "rights." They had not expected an open fight. The spur of alcohol had thrust them over the edge, given them a swifter flow of their impoverished blood, a temporary confidence in their own prowess, a meek valor that answered Lund's contemptuous challenge.

Lund, thought Rainey, had done a fool-hardy thing in teasing away his gun. It was magnificent, but it was not war. Pure bravado! But he had scant time for thinking. Lund looked him a sorry of advice. "Keep movin'! Don't let 'em crowd you!" Then the fight was joined.

The girl leaped out from the promontory to watch the tussle. Tamada, impulsive as ever, pulled his gun. He'd swept down to his beach, from whence he'd set out to work. He'd seen the Finn's gun, and he'd seen the Finn's gun.

eyes red with rage, crazy with desire to make good his boast that he was as good as Lund. In his barbaric way he was somewhat of a dancer, and his legs were as limber as his arms. He leaped, striking with fists and feet.

Lund met him with a fierce uppercut, short-travelled, sent from the hip. His enormous hand, bunched to a knuckly lump of stone, knocked the Finn over, lifting him, before he fell with his nose driven in, his nose shattered, his lips broken like overripe fruit, and his discolored teeth knocked out.

He landed on his back, rolling over and over, to his still, half stunned, while two more sprang for Lund.

Lund roared with surprise and pain as one caught his red beard and swung to it, snarling and kicking. He wrapped his left arm about the man, crushing him close up to him, and, as the other came, diving low, butting at his solar plexus, the giant gripped him by the collar, using his own impetus, and brought the two skulls together with a thud that left them stunned.

The two dropped from Lund's relaxed arms like sacks, and he stepped over them, alert, poised on the balls of his feet, letting out a shout of triumph, while he looked about him for his next adversary.

The bedrock on which they fought was slippery where ice had formed in the crevices. Two seamen tackled Hansen. He stepped the curses of one with a straight punch to his mouth, but the man clung to his arm, bearing it down. Hansen swung at the other, and the blow went over the shoulder as he dodged, but Hansen got him in chancery, and the three, staggering, swearing, sliding, went down at last together, with Hansen underneath, twisting one's neck to shut off his wind while he warded off the wild blows of the second. With a wild heave he got on all fours, and then Lund, roaring like a bull as he came, tore off a seaman and flung his headlong.

"Pound him, Hansen!" he shouted, his eyes hard with purpose, shining like ice that reflects the sun, his nostrils wide, glorying in the fight.

The Finn had got himself together a bit, wiping the gouts of blood from his face and spitting out the snags of his broken teeth. He drew a knife from inside his shirt, a long, curving blade, and aimed, like a crab, toward Lund, murder in his piggy, bloodshot eyes, waiting for a chance to slip in and stab Lund in the back, calling to a comrade to help him.

"Come on," he called, "Olsen, wit' your knife. Gut the swine!"

Another blade flashed out, and the pair advanced, crouching, knees and bodies bent. Lund backed away warily toward the opposite cliff, looking for loose rock fragments. He had forbidden knives to the sailors since the mutiny, and had forced a delivery, but these two had been hidden. A knife to the Finn was a natural accessory. Only his drunken frenzy had made him try to beat Lund at his own game.

One of the two hunters, lamed with a kick on the knee, howling with the pain, clinched savagely and bore the seaman down, battering his head against a knob of rock. The other friendly hunter had bashed and buffeted his opponent to submission. But Rainey was in hard case.

A seaman, half Mexican, flew at him like a wildcat. Rainey struck out, and his fists hit at the top of the breed's head without stopping him. Then he clinched.

The Mexican was slippery as an eel. He got his arms free, his hands shot up, and his thumbs sought the inner corners of Rainey's eyes. The sudden, burning anguish was maddening and he drove his chapped fists upward, wedging away the drilling fingers.

Two hands clawed at his shoulders from behind. Someone sprang fairly on his back. A knee thrust against his spine.

The agony left him helpless, the vertebrae seemed about to crack. Strength and will were shut off, and the world went black. And then one of the hunters catapulted into the struggle, and the four of them went down in a maddened frenzy of blows and stifled shouts.

The sailors fought like beasts, striving for blows barred by all codes of decency and fair play, intent to maim. Lund had got his shoulders against the rocks and stood with open hands, watching the two with their knives, who crept in, foot by foot, to make a slash.

Peggy Simms, a strand of her pale yellow hair whipped loose, swung it out at her eyes, as she stood on the edge of the cliff, her lips apart, her breasts rising stotfully, watching; her features changing with the tide of battle as it surged beneath her, panicked with maddened shouts and wild snatches of breath. She saw Lund's fist, and she saw Lund's fist.

The girl leaped out from the promontory to watch the tussle. Tamada, impulsive as ever, pulled his gun. He'd swept down to his beach, from whence he'd set out to work. He'd seen the Finn's gun, and he'd seen the Finn's gun.

and the two creeping closer with their knives, cautious but determined. Tamada stood farther back and could not see them.

The lad's wit, sharpened by his forecaste experience, surmised what Deming and Beale were after as they gained the promontory flat and ran toward the trees.

"Hey!" he shrieked. "Look out; they're after the tools!"

Deming's hand was stretched toward a shovel, its worn steel scoop sharp as a chisel. Beale was a few feet behind him. They were going to toss the shovels and drills down to the seamen.

Tamada turned. His face did not change, but his eyes gleamed as he thrust a dipper in the steaming remnants of the pea soup and flung the thick blistering mass fair in Deming's face. At the same moment the girl's pistol cracked with a stab of red flame. Beale dropped, shot in the neck, close to the collarbone, twisting like a scorching snake, rolling down the trail to the beach again.

Deming, howling like a scorched devil, clawed with one hand at the sticky mass that matted his hair as he ran blind, wild with pain. He tripped, clutched, and lost his hold, slid on a plane of icy lava, smooth as glass, struck a buttress that sent him off at a tangent down the face of the cliff, bounding from impact with an out-thrust elbow of the rock, whirling to space, into the icy turmoil of the waves, flooding into the inlet.

Peggy Simms fled down the trail with a steel drill in either hand, straight across the beach toward Lund. The Finn turned on her with a snarl and a side swipe of his knife, but she leaped aside, dodged the other slow-foot, and thrust a drill at Lund, who grasped it with a cry of exultation, swinging it over his head as if it had been a bamboo. Hansen had shaken off his men, and came leaping in for the second drill.

The knife felt sinking on the frozen rock as Lund smashed the wrist of the Finn. The girl's gun made the second would-be stabber throw up his hands, while Hansen snatched his weapon, flung it over the farther cliff, and knocked the seaman to the ground before he joined Lund, charging the rest, who fled before the sight of them and the threat of the bars of steel.

Lund laughed loud, and stopped striking, using the drill as a goad, driving them into a huddled horde, like leaderless sheep, knee-deep, thigh-deep, into the water, where they stopped and begged for mercy while Hansen turned to put a finish to the separate struggles.

It ended as swiftly as it had begun. One hunter could barely stand for his kicked knee, Rainey's back was strained and stiffening, Lund had lost a handful of his beard, and Hansen's cheek was laid open.

On the other side the casualties were more severe. Deming was drowned, his body flung up by the tide, rolling in the wash. Beale was coughing blood, though not dangerously wounded. The Finn was crying over his broken wrist, all the fight out of him.

CITES EARTH'S 14 MOVEMENTS

Fiammarion, French Astronomer, Enumerates Various Activities of Globe During Its Travels.

The fact that our earth in its voyage through space has no fewer than fourteen distinct movements has been pointed out by the French astronomer and scientist, Camille Fiammarion, according to an article in the Paris Temps. These are as follows:

"Daily rotation, annual revolution, fluctuation or rocking due to the procession of the equinoxes in a period of 25,775 years, monthly movement of the earth around the center of gravity of the earth-moon couple; nutation caused by the attraction of the moon every eighteen and a half years; variation, coming once every century, of the obliquity of the ecliptic; variations every century of the eccentricity of the terrestrial orbit; displacement of the line of apses every 21,000 years; disturbances caused by the constantly changing attraction of the planets; displacement of the center of gravity of the solar system around which the earth travels annually, this center being determined by the variable positions of the planets; perpetual variations of latitudes; daily tides of the continental soil; displacement of the whole Milky Way, of which our sun is one star, toward the constellation of Capricorn, at the formidable speed of 275 miles per second, or 1,320,000 miles per hour."

Wheel of Australia. The great superiority of Australia is supposed to be due mainly to its position in the tropics and to the fact that it is a continent.

FEDERAL AID FOR HIGHWAYS

$211,136,276 Was Spent for Construction of 23,186 Miles of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

How the government has employed federal aid funds for road building through the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, among the various types of roads, is shown in a summary prepared by the department. The tabulation covers the expenditure of $211,132,276.31 of federal-aid funds from the beginning of the work when it was authorized by congress up to November 1, 1921, a period of four years four months. That sum was applied toward the construction of 23,186 miles of roads. The total cost was $498,151,683.43. The average cost was $17,630 per mile.

Nearly 98 per cent of the federal-aid funds, or $75,800,279.30, went into the construction of 4,053.5 miles of high-grade concrete roads. Next in size were total appropriations of $47,192,905.41 federal-aid funds applied to the building of 10,043.5 miles of gravel road, at a total cost of $104,814,098.71. Federal-aid funds to the extent of $24,721,020.92 were applied during the period to the construction of 6,364 miles of graded and drained roads, at a total cost of $35,704,258.78. structed, at a total cost of $11,412,567.58, claimed federal-aid funds to the extent of $19,846,066.17. For another high type of road—bituminous concrete—$9,290,864.32 was made available through federal aid. That sum went toward the construction of 772.5 miles of roadway, at a total cost of $23,445,374.85.

Toward the construction of brick roads, of which 444.6 miles were built, federal aid was available to the extent of $4,925,482.13; and toward the cost of 2,907.5 miles of sand-clay roads the federal government contributed $10,465,172.10. The total cost of sand-clay roads was $22,228,362.60.

CONCRETE ROAD VIBRATIONS

Experiment Started to Determine Amount of Moisture Increase Under the Road.

Does vibration caused by the movement of a vehicle over a road increase the amount of moisture in the earth under the road, and thus weaken its bearing power? This question will be answered when results are secured from an experiment just started by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. Two similar concrete slabs have been constructed side by side, and on one there will be placed a gasoline engine with an unbalanced flywheel which will cause vibration. Soil samples will be taken from under the slabs and the amounts of moisture compared. This experiment is undertaken, not with the idea that road vibration can be prevented, but to determine whether sufficient increase in the moisture of the subgrade is caused by it to weaken the bearing power of the soil, and incidentally, to develop new ways of testing methods of subgrade treatment.

MONEY WASTED ON HIGHWAYS

No Excuse for Community to Be Without Good Roads or to Permit Them to Deteriorate.

With modern road building and maintenance machinery, there is no longer any excuse for a community to be without good roads, nor is there any reason why it should allow millions of dollars spent in building roads to be wasted, because of improper care. It is a matter which concerns us all, town and country people alike.

An eminent French doctor declares that love is a disease of the emotions. Not being curable, we should describe marriage as a long and pleasant convalescence.—London Opinion.

Isn't that slightly cynical, though, cousin?—Boston Transcript.

An Elaborate Menu.

"I understand the Laplanders eat candles." "Must be a big to do ever a birthday cake."

Honestly, do you like a fancy pipe?

You know the kind we mean. It comes in a beautiful velvet-lined leather case and arrives on your birthday or Christmas. And when you have company, and they talk pipes, you go to the drawer, pull out your fancy pipe, polish it with the palm of your hand and perhaps fill it up and smoke with your best company manners.

And then, when all the folks have gone—or before they have gone, if they stay too long—you reach for your favorite briar, fill her up just right, and then the world is pretty good again. The people who seemed terrible horrid a few minutes ago look like regular human beings as you see them through a transparent blue haze of curling smoke. In the meantime, the fancy pipe has been relegated to its glorious case for another period of oblivion.

It's the same with tobacco, too. Somebody smelting a fancy brand offers you his pouch, and just to be a good fellow you take a pipeful (leaving a little pang of conscience as you push the unfamiliar tobacco into your pet pipe). And you smoke it. It may be very good tobacco. Perhaps you can't even decide what, if anything, is the matter with it.

But it isn't your brand, and when you get near the end, perhaps just a little hastily, you knock out the fancy tobacco and pull out your own, fearful lest the too-friendly pouch appear again and you may have to refuse gently but firmly.

Have you had such an experience? And isn't it almost worth it to know how much you really like your Edgeworth?

We don't claim that Edgeworth pleases every man. But we do want every pipe smoker to try Edgeworth—to find out for himself if it isn't just the taste and strength to suit him.

We gladly take the burden of proof on our own shoulders. So we will send generous samples of Edgeworth, both Ready-Rubbed and Plug Shies, to any pipe-smoker who will ask for it.

Send us a postcard with your name and address, and we'll put the samples into the hands of Uncle Sam's messengers just as quick as we can. Then, when you get them, light up your pipe, puff away to your heart's content and you can be the whole jury and the judge. If you like Edgeworth—and we hope you will—you can buy it at your dealer's by the package, tin or jar.

Address your order for five samples to Larned & Boring Co., 600 South 21st Street, Minneapolis, Minn.

Jobless Actors Turn to Stores

Dullness in Theater World Transforms Players into Floorwalkers and Salesmen.

HARD SUMMER IS EXPECTED

More Than Half of Country's Actors Are or Will Be Out of Employment This Summer—Movie Work Offers No Hope.

New York.—New York's department store floorwalkers always have been noteworthy for their politeness and urbanity. Improving on their manners would seem like painting the lily. Yet many a woman shopper has commented of late on the fact that some of these human Baedekers display a debonaire air that is unusual, even for floorwalkers. And many of them have seemed in some way familiar.

Similarly, at the counters, patrons have found new faces and personalities of a different stamp. Some of the salesmen, like the floorwalkers, have a carriage different from their fellows. Men shoppers as well as women have been intrigued by some of the salespeople plainly "not true to type." "Where have I seen him before?" the women ask, and "Her face is familiar," the men say.

They have seen those same faces heard those same voices, from their seats in a Broadway theater. Times are hard along the Rialto these days with the road practically closed and the summer season coming on. Many an actor and actress is only too glad to become a department store clerk or floorwalker.

There are 32,000 men and women playing in the United States. Half of these are or will be without employment in their chosen calling this summer. Already that part of Broadway which enjoys the term Rialto is taking on a midsummer appearance. Gathered on street corners, strolling along or chatting by twos and threes in front of buildings devoted to booking agencies and managers' offices are men and women who bear the unmistakable stamp of stage folk out of a job.

Well Around the Corner. Spring may be here, but its presence is not heralded in the garb of these players. Fur coats are still in evidence, and to the initiated the gowns and hats of the women and the suits of the men are manifestly of winter vintage. The winter itself has been a hard one with more than 6,000 players who usually have read engagements forced to remain idle or find other employment. Summer will see the wolf hungrier and more powerful and the deer fastenings in some cases unable to withstand his attacks. But the day has gone by when the player need go hungry or without shelter. The Actors' Fund and the Equity association see to it that no member of the profession in good standing has to walk the streets. And it is significant of the strength of the reserve funds of the profession, as a whole, that up to date only eleven players have applied to the Equity for food money. But the association expects and is ready to meet a large increase in the number of those applying for such assistance in the coming months.

The actor or actress is a person with a temperament. Once he or she plays on Broadway at a salary of $250 or $300 a week, that figure in his own mind fixes his future rating. A Living on the Road. But there is a good living for the actor and large profits for the managers in the summer shows, and, thanks to them, the smaller towns and cities which have gone without the Broadway successes because of the increasing cost of transportation and the high prices charged for plays given by inferior companies, will see during the coming months many of the hits of the year.

The tent shows are not of the type associated here in the East with street carnivals and country fairs. They put on Broadway successes with competent companies and good settings. Last summer the proprietor of a tent show, who toured only Nebraska, cleaned up $18,000 with plays of the character of "Turn to the Right." The proprietor of a repertoire company who last year played in Texas and the Southwest was credited with taking in a profit approximating $18,000. The repertoire was not "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Ten Nights in a Barroom," "East Lynne" and "The Two Orphans," either. It consisted of comedies and dramas which had been Broadway successes of the preceding year but never had been presented in that territory.

It is to these companies that the players out of a job are turning who prefer three meals a day even though their pride be jolted. To the uninitiated, it would not seem that the depression in the moving picture theater business would affect players of the legitimate stage. Nevertheless, this is the case. When the moving picture studios were at the height of production, as they were up to a year ago, with studios operating in the metropolitan district, the legitimate actor temporarily out of a place could count on enough work as an "extra" in a moving picture production to pay his room rent and keep the laser man satisfied. Now even this is gone, for practically all of the new pictures are being staged in Hollywood.

Flies 1,210 Miles in Ten Hours.

New York.—Flying at an average speed of 121 miles an hour through three storms, a seaplane carrying a total load of 1,000 pounds made the flight from Palm Beach, Fla., to New York, a distance of 1,210 miles, in 9 hours and 56 minutes.

COP RAISES CHICKENS

H. H. Hartman is one of Washington's "fanciest" who daily guides to safety the chickens and fappers on F street. The chickens under his arms, however, are another kind, being prize-winning purebred Plymouth Rock poultry raised by him as a side line in his few spare hours at his home. Hartman says "This is the only kind of chicken you can fool with in safety."

TO SURVEY MT. LE CONTE SOON

Federal Geologists to Seek Exact Height of Mountain.

Want to Settle Dispute as to Which is the Highest Peak in the Appalachian Range—Of Special Scientific Interest.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Mount Le Conte, in the southeastern part of this state, near the North Carolina line, will be a center of scientific interest in the coming months because of a geological survey to be made under federal direction in June, to test the claim that it is the highest peak in the Appalachian range.

Until about a generation ago that distinction was held by Mount Washington, which towers 6,298 feet above sea level. Then a survey fixed a height of 6,711 feet for Mount Mitchell, that measurement standing now as the official altitude mark for uplands east of the Rocky mountains. Measurements of Mount Le Conte, for which accuracy is not claimed, have come within 99 feet of the Mount Mitchell figure. It is believed the coming federal survey will make good that estimate and add several hundred feet to it, thus furnishing the geographers with a new item.

When Washington was officially overtopped by Mitchell, a weather observatory on Washington, functioning continuously, justified its advertisement as the highest point in the eastern United States that was inhabited throughout the year. Roan mountain in the southern range sought that distinction when Gen. John T. Wilder established a hotel estate there known as "Cloudland" at a certified elevation of 6,318 feet and visitors were able, from the hotel porch, to sweep the vision over cloud masses below them, floating, breaking or thundering over lower peaks. "Cloudland" proved too difficult to reach and too expensive to maintain. With its abandonment the advertisement of Mount Washington as the highest inhabited all-year Eastern spot, became freshly assertive. It will probably continue to be true, for the top of Mount Mitchell has not been inhabited all the year. There is no such prospect for Le Conte, even though it may hereafter outrank all the other Appalachian peaks in height.

OWE LESS ON OWNED HOMES

Washington.—According to a preliminary report that has just been issued by the Department of Commerce, through the bureau of the census, the total estimated mortgage debt on owned homes and farms in continental United States in 1920 was $11,501,000,000 and the total estimated value of these mortgaged homes and farms was $31,708,000,000, the mortgage debt thus representing 34.7 per cent of the total value. It should be noted that the term "owned homes" is used by the bureau to designate those homes which are occupied by their owners, and similarly, "owned farms" is applied to farms operated by their owners, rented homes and tenant farms not being included in these totals.

The total mortgage debt on owned homes and farms in the United States in 1920, the only previous estimate of such homes as $14,000,000,000, the ratio of debt to value being 32.5 per cent, and the total value of these mortgaged homes was reported as $22,000,000,000, the mortgage debt thus representing 30.8 per cent of the total value. The mortgage debt on owned homes increased 47.8 per cent, and the value of such homes 45.5 per cent, between 1920 and 1920. This has resulted in a slight increase in the ratio of debt to value—from 30.8 per cent in 1920 to 34.7 per cent in 1920.

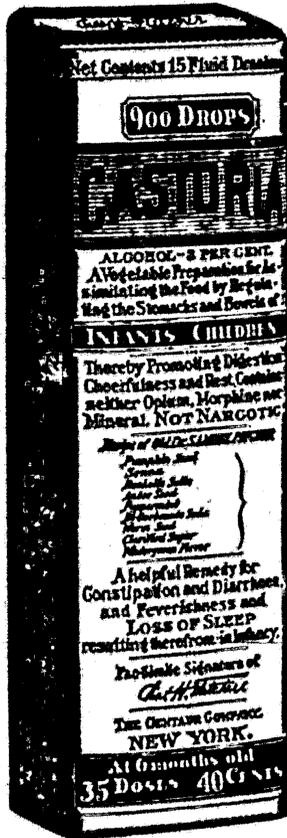

The total estimated mortgage debt on owned farms in the United States in 1920, including the estimated mortgage debt on partly owned farms, was $5,001,000,000, and the total estimated value of these mortgaged farms was $17,000,000,000, the ratio of debt to value being 29.4 per cent. The total estimated mortgage debt on owned farms in 1920 was reported as $4,000,000,000, and the total value of these farms was reported as $13,000,000,000, the ratio of debt to value being 30.8 per cent. The mortgage debt on owned farms increased 25.5 per cent, and the value of such farms 47.4

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

Have you heard them cry for Fletcher's Castoria? Try it.

Just help baby out of its trouble tomorrow with a taste of Castoria. Watch the difference in the tone of the cry, the look in the eye, the wiggle in the tiny fingers. The transformation is complete—from pain to pleasure. Try it.

You'll find a wonderful lot of information about Baby in the booklet that is wrapped around every bottle of Fletcher's Castoria.

His Great Mistake.

Joseph Lovenson, head of New York's motion picture censorship, said at a luncheon:

"The movies do a lot of good. But they do harm, too, sometimes. Think of the love affairs they break off!"

"It's all over," a young man groaned one day. "It's all over now between Mabel and me."

"Sorry to hear that, old chap," said a second young man. "What caused the split, may I ask?"

"I took Mabel to the movies last night, and she said that the heroism of the serial called 'The Pact of Death' was a beautiful girl."

"Well?"

"Well, I agreed with her!"

Spilled Her Evening.

"Maud says she didn't have a good time at the reception at all."

"What was the trouble?"

"She'd heard a choice bit of gossip about a girl who was there, and the girl kept within hearing distance all the time, so that Maud didn't have a chance to tell it."—Boston Transcript.

And the Discussion Ended.

Two little boys, living in different towns, one day were visiting an aunt in a distant city. A discussion arose between them as to the merits of their home towns. The heights of their respective churches became a part of the discussions.

"Our church reaches above the trees," said one.

"Our church reaches to the sky," retorted the other.

"Oh, but the steeple of our church reached clear above the sky and punched a hole through heaven," exclaimed the first boy, and this closed the argument.

Brief and Comprehensive.

Ben Dierks has an express agency and transfer business in a village in Sonoma county, California. Recently he detailed one of his teamsters with a wagon and pair to take a San Francisco man and wife to their country place a few miles out of town. The bill, as rendered by the teamster, read: "Haul grip, grub, and people, three hours, three dollars."

Nothing to Choose Between Them.

Husband—Hi, hu, hu! Did you ever see a fanner eight than a woman trying to drive a nail?

Wife—Yes; a man trying to wrap up a bundle for the laundry!—London Answers.

King George Democratic.

"When he is out of the public eye King George often sacrifices appearance for comfort—indeed, while in conversation with him not long ago I noticed that one of the shoes he wore was adorned with a patch!" This is one of many intimate anecdotes of his long connection with the royal family told by Ernest Brooks, O. B. E., the accredited royal photographer, in the Strand magazine. Queen Mary's favorite portrait of Princess Mary reveals something of the King's taste in regard to feminine fashions. When Mr. Brooks showed the king the first print, his majesty raised an objection to the width of the panthers on either side of the princess' frock and ordered him to have them taken out of the negative.

The Thrifty Citizen Who Caught the Plugged Nickel

MR. BROWN had swallowed his lunch and had paid his bill. Cautiously he counted his change. "Here!" he said, sharply, "Take back this plugged nickel and give me a good one!"

Mr. Brown walked proudly out. They couldn't fool old Brown.

But old Brown had fooled himself.

Brown's day was heavy and dull. He lacked "pep." There was a mid-afternoon drowsy spell when he needed to be awake—the direct and natural result of heavy, starchy breakfasts and lunches, taken on faith and without question as to value—just because the food looked and tasted like food.

Thousands of shrewd business men who count their change, take their food for granted.

That's what builds up the enterprising business, and puts the tired "all-done" feeling into the mid-afternoon of a business day.

Old Clothes Campaign

From the Near East Relief is issued the following appeal:

Clean out the attic and the closet corners to clothe the needy of the Near East. For the people are going in rags and nakedness while the looms of the Near East are still in the production of cotton and wool.

These people must be clothed. If we have no second-hands to give them, then why not our best? We can duplicate our clothes here in this country with a little effort.

The entire populace over there is suffering and starving, excepting only those who are fortunate enough to get old clothes from America. And the demand is imperative. By the time we can get the fruits of our attic spring cleaning to Mount Ararat the winter snows will be there.

Southern Baptist Convention

At Jacksonville, Florida, the Southern Baptists are in convention this week. According to the reports of the various boards of the convention no debt remains against any of the boards save the Home Board, and its debt has been materially reduced. Reports to the convention, covering the territory, comprising the Southern Baptist Association, show that in 1921 Southern Baptists baptized more than 260,000 people, which, it is claimed, is more than any other two denominations in America. In this period of unprecedented depression another remarkable feature is shown and that is that not a single Baptist institution failed during the year.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Conference of Genoa Is Nearly Wrecked by Divergence Over Russia Plan.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM BALK

Soviet Delegates Don't Like the Terms, Either—Bloody Battle Near Peking—Truce in Irish Fighting—Beveridge Beats New In Indiana Primaries.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

DEVELOPMENTS of last week almost if not quite put the Genoa conference on the rocks. More than that, they brought Great Britain and France to the verge of a rupture. At this writing the prospect is dark, for all except the soviet Russians, who appear to have maneuvered themselves into just the position they wanted.

Prodded by Tchitcherin and his colleagues to give a quick answer to the proposals of the Russians, the allies drew up terms which Lloyd George declared embodied the maximum that would be granted Russia and the minimum that would be demanded from her. Summarized, these were:

Russia recognizes her prewar debt. The war debt will be recognized, but reduced.

Russia must restore foreign property or indemnify the owners for damage or confiscation.

Russia will be expected to take such judicial and other measures as will attract foreigners to Russia for business purposes.

France had yielded to the British on the matter of absolute restoration of confiscated property, at the insistence of Lloyd George, but forced an amendment forbidding property in Russia to be allocated to other persons than the former owners. To this Lloyd George appended this rider:

"If exploitation of property can only be carried out by its incorporation in a general group, the preceding arrangements will not apply."

France then signed, but Belgium absolutely refused to approve the proposition. Barthou hurried to Paris and Premier Poincare told him some things that had not come out at Genoa. Thereupon the French cabinet agreed unanimously to support Belgium and withdrew the assent to the proposals offered to Russia. This alone was enough to strain international relations, but the Paris press added to it by its explanation of the dispute over the property clause. It made the flat charge that the soviets were negotiating to transfer to English and German oil field property that belongs to Frenchmen and Belgians, and that Lloyd George added the above mentioned rider to further that scheme.

It did not seem probable, anyhow, that the Russians would accept the terms offered them. They were especially displeased with the fact that recognition of the soviet government was not included, and they did not like the article concerning foreign property restoration. There were other features that did not suit them, and they got into communication with Moscow, with the intimation that their answer might not be ready for some time.

THE second plenary session of the conference was held Wednesday and a Russian report was submitted containing 10 articles in the nature of recommendations without definite commitments. The main ones were:

Restoration of stability of currency. A meeting in the near future of big central banks. Reestablishment of the gold link. Reestablishment of the gold link. Reestablishment of the gold link.

At London, Washington, France, Geneva and the League of Nations, it was stated that the proposals could not be carried out without the restoration of the gold link.

subject of reparations was excluded, and then detailed a number of the proposals which he said Russia would not accept.

It is quite apparent that what the soviet government wishes is not a general agreement with Europe, but separate treaties with the powers, such as she already has with Germany. It probably could do this with Great Britain and Italy and the neutral nations, and probably with some other powers, and France and Belgium would be left in an uncomfortable position. And Russia will be able to lay on France the blame for the failure of the Genoa conference.

Soviet Russia's defiant attitude toward the world was demonstrated in the May day doings at Moscow. Leon Trotsky, minister of war, reviewed 100,000 most excellently equipped and drilled soldiers, and in an address declared that Russia "will resist until her last drop of blood is shed any attempts of the capitalistic governments to enslave her."

France consented to sign the nonaggression pact proposed by Lloyd George on three conditions: That every European nation signed; that Russia agreed to recognize all her existing boundaries for ten years, and that France surrendered none of her rights to take action to enforce the Versailles treaty. The Russians rejected the second of these and the Germans the third.

DESPITE the hard working propagandists, the American administration shows no signs of willingness to take part at present in all these European negotiations. Its position concerning Russia was made clear by Secretary of State Hughes in his reply to a delegation of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom which asked him to advocate the immediate recognition of the soviet regime. Mr. Hughes told the women that recognition is in the control of those who dominate the affairs of Russia, and would be accorded only to a government competent to discharge its international relations and demonstrating a disposition to discharge them. He added that there are no legal obstacles to trade with Russia.

THAT France fully expects Germany to default on the reparations is indicated by a statement in Sketch of London, which says it has learned from a reliable French source that preparations are being made for immediate mobilization of the 1918 class of reserves, numbering about 150,000. Mr. Lloyd George gave up his plan for a meeting of the nations signatory to the Versailles treaty in Genoa to take up the matter of enforcing the German payments, but still hopes it may be held elsewhere. The French insist that no such meeting be held after May 31.

DURING most of last week the predicted battle between Gen. Wu Pei-Fu and Chang Tso-Lin raged in the vicinity of Peking. Judging from the dispatches, Wu was having the best of the conflict. The casualties were rather heavy. On Wednesday President Hai made another effort to stop the hostilities, calling to the attention of the rival commanders the fact that the foreign diplomats had protested three times against the fighting and had warned of serious consequences to China should foreigners suffer from the hostilities. Almost all the plans regarding China made at the Washington conference have been suspended because of the warfare. The Chinese press is almost a unit in deploring the fighting, asserting that it is only harmful to the country, which ever side wins. Early in the week General Chang issued a statement that General Wu had been killed by artillery fire. This has not been confirmed.

Sun Yat Sen, head of the South China government at Canton, asserted he had combined with General Chang and would soon start for northern China. Sun's own government was weakened by the defection of Gen. Chen Chiung-shan, who resigned the governorship of Kwangtung.

of four days was declared and a peace committee of five members of each faction was named. It is hoped the opposing sections of the Irish army will be able to find a basis for negotiation. Before this the Free Staters had stormed and captured Ormonds castle, the last stronghold of the irregulars in Kilkenny; the police barracks in Mullingar, occupied by irregulars, had been blown up, and there were numerous bloody encounters elsewhere. The situation on the Ulster border was reported as again becoming serious.

WHEN the fifth Pan-American conference is held next March in Santiago, Chile, it may become another conference on limitation of armaments. Acting on instruction from his government, the Chilean ambassador to Washington has suggested to the Pan-American union that the question of reducing military expenses of the American republics be placed upon the agenda.

IN THE United States the most interesting event of the week was the defeat of Senator Harry S. New for re-nomination in the Indiana Republican primaries by former Senator Albert J. Beveridge. Since New was running on the record of the national administration his failure was looked on as something of a blow to that administration and the "regulars" in the senate were frankly disappointed. Senator McCormick, chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, however, said the committee had taken no part in the contest and would support the nominee energetically. Mr. Beveridge served twelve years in the senate and was a leader in the Progressive party movement. He made his campaign on such planks as demands for the repeal of the Adamson law, repeal or amendment of the Sherman law, adoption of a sales tax and the promotion of greater efficiency and wise economy in government.

Samuel Gompers, former governor of Indiana, easily won the Democratic nomination, and in him Beveridge will find a strong contender for the senate seat. It may be that modification of the Volstead act will become a prominent issue of the campaign.

SAMUEL GOMPERS was in the public eye and the public ear to a considerable extent last week. In a May day manifesto the venerable head of the American Federation of Labor made a vigorous attack on Bolshevism, declaring that American recognition of the Russian soviets would constitute a "needless and base betrayal of civilization." He denounced the Bolshevik propaganda in this country and asserted that he had ample proof to substantiate the charges that "Red" millions have been sent to America for propaganda purposes and that "W. Z. Foster, who had no money, went to Moscow and came back and announced that he was building a great secret machine to undermine the American labor movement and turn it over to the Red Internationale, owned by Lenin. He began publication of an expensive magazine and proclaimed 'a thousand secret agents in a thousand communities.'"

A few days later Mr. Gompers was one of the principal speakers at a mass meeting called by the New York branch of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and in his address said that "labor must make the fight now, and we will never stop fighting until the rights of the people have been restored to them." Continuing, he said: "I and the federation I represent are in favor of beer and light wines and against any attempt to enforce sumptuary laws aimed at personal liberty. Temperance was the rule of the great mass of organized labor, but the prohibitionists and the so-called Anti-Saloon Leaguers have done more to undermine the morality and temperance of the workman than any other agency I know. I have traveled all over the United States before prohibition, including its so-called dry territories, and today as I pass through these sections I have found more drunkenness than ever before."

HAS FIRST WELL DAY IN 6 YEARS

Huntington Citizen Could Neither Sleep Nor Eat With Any Satisfaction Before He Got Tanlac.

"Before taking Tanlac I had not seen a well day in six years," said W. H. Peoples, 328 22nd St., Huntington, W. Va.

"It seemed like I had lost my health for good. I could neither sleep nor eat with satisfaction. I was badly run down, nervous, had no appetite and had to force down every mouthful I ate. Even then my food soured. I would fill up with gas until I had intense pains in my stomach and chest. Headache almost drove me mad, rheumatism in my arms, shoulder and hips kept me in pain all the time, and I had to force myself to work."

"Tanlac went right after my troubles. On four bottles I gained ten pounds and the rheumatism and stomach trouble soon left me. My wife has given a statement about the good Tanlac did her, and I am glad to add my endorsement of this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

For Women of Fame. There will be a hall in the new home of the Women's National Foundation in Washington, where on columns, one for each state, will be inscribed the names of those women of the states whose memory is most worthy of perpetuation. The hall, which is the suggestion of Mrs. George Barnett, wife of Maj. Gen. Barnett, United States marine corps, will be called "The Hall of Remembrance." The choice of names will be left to the people of each state, and will be passed on by a local board. Living women are excluded.

BIBLE ASCRIBED TO SATAN

Evil One Declared to Have Assisted Monk to Perform Work, for a Fearful Price. One of the most famous copies of the Scriptures in existence is the one which bears the curious title, "The Devil's Bible." It is an exquisite piece of workmanship, inscribed on 300 asses' skins, and was taken to Stockholm at the conclusion of the Thirty Years' war.

According to tradition this Bible was the work of a poor monk who was condemned to death for some deflection, but was told that the sentence would be commuted if he would copy out on asses' skins the entire Bible in a single night. He agreed to try to do it but, finding the task too great, made a compact with the devil to exchange his soul for the required transcript. The devil kept his part of the bargain, and the work was finished on time. The monk's life was spared by his marvelous judges, but tradition is silent as to how he kept his end of the agreement.

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. Problem of Millions in Alien Property

WASHINGTON.—The complicated problem of passing legislation to dispose of the $350,000,000 worth of property held by the alien property custodian that will not be confiscated and still protect American interests and claims against Germany is being considered in congress.

Under the prevailing statutes, nothing can be done with German property here except to liquidate it and turn the money into the treasury.

This procedure is being frowned on by administration leaders, who contend that the sequestered property should be returned intact to alien nationals where possible. If it were not for the American claims against Germany, a settlement which is now being negotiated between the State department and the German foreign office, the seized property would be returned immediately.

These claims include damages for loss by fire and loss of property at sea, due to the ruthless submarine warfare, and American property seized by the German alien property custodian. Sixty millions worth of American property was seized.

The German custodian is now offering a return of the American property at the depreciated value of the mark or a reduction of approximately 90 per cent from the pre-war value. This offer would mean practical confiscation of American property by Germany and will not be accepted.

There is a German tax against all capital brought into the country, including property returns. Under this tax the returned property would be confiscated and no provision made to compensate Americans for their losses.

The general feeling in congress seems to be that before the property is returned the United States should arrange to have the German tax retained in this country as a fund to satisfy the claims of American citizens when their cases against Germany are adjudicated.

No Recognition for Mexico in Sight

THE United States is not going to extend recognition to Mexico on mere promises of protection to American rights.

This government must have something more than personal assurances of Mexican officials that all will be well with Americans in Mexico in future.

There has been no change in the American policy toward Mexico since Secretary of State Hughes stated the position of the government many months ago.

That position requires that Mexico enter into a treaty with the United States providing for guarantees of protection to American lives and property rights and providing further for adjustment of claims resulting from past outrages.

Today the United States stands just where it stood at the outset of the Harding administration and recognition must come through a treaty. There will be no recognition and then the negotiation of a treaty afterward. The United States says in effect to Mexico: "Negotiate with us now a treaty of guarantee to protect American lives and property and that treaty automatically will constitute recognition of your government."

The foregoing was disclosed here

In an authoritative quarter. The government's position was reiterated as a result of current reports that recognition of Mexico was believed to be imminent following the dispatch of a note from the State department to the Obregon government.

There has been no note sent to the Obregon government, but officials admit that the State department has communicated frequently of late with Mr. Summerlin, American charge d'affaires at Mexico City, who is in almost constant conference with Mr. Pena, the Mexican foreign minister, with regard to re-establishment of diplomatic relations with the United States.

It was pointed out that the American government is not being swayed by propaganda from many sources favoring recognition.

Anti-Trust Laws Throttling Business?

ARE the anti-trust laws, as now interpreted, throttling American business? Business men generally answer in the affirmative, and the Harding administration has become so impressed by their assertions that it has indorsed an investigation to determine whether the restrictions on business need an overhauling.

A resolution introduced by Senator Edge of New Jersey, which has been approved by the administration and is scheduled for passage soon by congress, provides for the appointment of a joint committee of three senators and three representatives to conduct the inquiry.

This committee is to "investigate existing conditions of industry and commerce in the United States and the markets of foreign countries, in so far as the same directly affect industry and commerce of the United States, including questions as to production, distribution, labor and business methods, and to report to congress and to suggest such legislation, if any, as it may deem best upon these subjects, with a special reference to the most effective ways and means to revive industry and to stimulate foreign and domestic trade, to stabilize business conditions as to the future, to minimize the danger and distress of recurring periods of business depression, with their resultant cycles of general unemployment, and to define the rights and limitations of cooperative organizations as distinguished from illicit combinations in restraint of trade."

In indorsing the Edge resolution Secretary of Commerce Hoover wrote Senator Jones, chairman of the senate committee on commerce that his department was in a position to assist in the consideration and development of legislation that will make for the advancement of public interest through these trade associations and at the same time eliminate from their organization those destructive practices that have crept into a minority of them.

Restricted Immigration Is to Continue

RESTRICTED immigration seems assured. The senate adopted the resolution, extending the 3 per cent immigration restriction law. The life of the present law, which expires June 30, 1922, was extended to June 30, 1924, one year longer than provided by the senate.

In order to strengthen the restrictions and prevent aliens reaching the United States after brief residence in Mexico, Cuba, and Canada, an amendment was adopted requiring foreigners to live five years in these countries before they may be admitted to the United States. The house resolution required only one year's residence.

Another amendment imposed a fine of $500 upon steamship companies which bring aliens to this country in excess of the quota. It also requires that the steamship company shall refund the passage money to aliens refused admission.

Amendments offered by Senator Harlow stated that the merchant marine bill now being written would require that 40 per cent of the immigrants be transported in American vessels.

Discussing the effect of the first eight months of the operation of the existing law, Senator Colt of Rhode Island, chairman of the immigration committee, said:

"The number of alien immigrants from southern and eastern Europe admitted to the United States is only about 6,000 more than the number who were deported, and the number

Dead—Old Man Credit

Saturday night, May 6th, A. D., 1922, Old Man Credit, the senior member of this firm, passed away. Cause of death—Overwork, the Trend of the Times.

Cash—Monday morning, May 8th, a new partner by the name of CASH AND SELL FOR LESS was taken into the firm as an equal partner by the members of this Corporation. This young man has all the "pep" and "go," and is the spirit of the year that we're living in.

To Our Friends

On Saturday, May 6th, we closed our credit books forever. Our reasons for doing this were not because we think the people of Lincoln county dishonest. On the contrary we have found them more than honest, and their word something to be relied upon.

But we believe that in changing our business into a strictly cash business we will be able to do business on at least a 10 per cent less basis, thereby enabling us to sell you the same goods for 10 per cent, and more, less than we have in the past.

We have not taken this step without taking into consideration everything, and we know you can use this ten per cent, if for nothing else you can buy more goods.

We know that this is only falling in line with what all the rest of the Large Business all over the country are now doing in their effort to bring the prices a little farther down.

All we ask is for you to come and see for yourself. Our slogan will be: "THE SAME GOODS FOR LESS MONEY."

WE THANK YOU,

The Carrizozo Trading Co.
