Income Tax Facts

In making out his income tax return for the year 1922, the taxpayer is required to include all items of gross income. In the case of a storekeeper the gross income consists usually of the gross profits on sales, together with income from other sources. The returns must show the gross sales, purchases and cost of goods sold. To reflect net income correctly, and to ascertain gross income, inventories are ordinarily required as of the beginning and end of each taxable year. The professional man, doctor, lawyer, dentist, must include all fees and other compensation for professional services.

The farmer is required to report as gross income all profits derived from the sale or exchange of farm products, including crops and live stock, whether raised on the farm or purchased and resold. A farmer who rents his farm on the crop sharing basis must report such income for the years in which the crops are sold. Profit obtained from the sale or rental of farm lands also must be reported.

In order that they may obtain full advantage of the deductions from gross income to which they are entitled, taxpayers are advised by collectors of internal revenue to study carefully the instructions on the forms for making returns under the head "Income from Business or Profession."

Liability to file an income tax return for the year 1922 is determined by a person's status on the last day of the taxable year, December 31, if the return is made on the calendar year basis, as most are. If on that date he was single he must file a return if his net income for 1922 was $1,000 or more, and he is allowed only an exemption of $1,000. If he was married on December 31 he has the exemption allowed a married person for the full year, $2,500, if his net income was $5,000 or less, and $2,000 if his net income exceeded $5,000. The bride's income, however, must be considered with that of her husband, the larger exemptions being allowed married couples living together. A widow or widower whose spouse died before the end of the year is classed as a single person. Divorces and persons separated by mutual consent are also classed as single persons.

Similar conditions exist with respect to the head of a family. If, during the year, his support of relatives ceased he is entitled only to the $1,000 exemption. A man who has a dependent child, not mentally or physically defective, that attains the age of 18 years just before the close of the taxable year, can not claim the $400 credit for the dependent.

To avoid penalty, income tax returns must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives or has principal place of business on or before midnight of March 15, 1923.

Where additional time is required because of illness or absence of the taxpayer from home, the collector may grant, upon application before the return is due, March 15, an extension of not to exceed 30 days. If an accurate return can not be made within the 30 days extension period, a request for a further extension must be made to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C. Collectors have not the authority to grant an extension exceeding 30 days.

Failure to make return on time subjects the delinquent to a penalty of $1,000 and an additional penalty of 25 per cent of the amount of the tax due. If the failure is willful, however, or an attempt is made to evade the tax by filing a false return, the offender is liable to imprisonment and to a fine of not more than $10,000 and costs, in addition to a penalty of 50 per cent of the amount of tax evaded.

Captain A. F. B. Portman died at his home, Chevy Chase, Maryland, January 27, according to a letter received here by a friend of the captain's, the letter having been written by the lawyer looking after the estate. ## OTERO COUNTY SHERIFF KILLED

W. L. RUTHERFORD, POPULAR OFFICIAL, SHOT DOWN IN THE STREETS OF ALAMOGORDO BY DESPERATE CHARACTERS WHOM HE ATTEMPTED TO ARREST.

W. L. Rutherford, sheriff of Otero county, was shot and instantly killed in Alamogordo Tuesday night, February 13, at 9:00 o'clock, by two men who had just driven up in a car and whom the sheriff had been notified to arrest. Sheriff Rutherford was standing on the main street of Alamogordo on the lookout for two men in a car who had escaped from Lincoln county officers. The car bearing the proper description drove near where the sheriff was standing and, following a short conversation, in which one of the occupants of the car enquired the way to El Paso, the sheriff told the men what his official position was and that he had a wire to apprehend them. The driver of the car began to back the car from the curb, the sheriff leaped to the car's running board, but failed to stop the car, which, in the meantime, was moving down the street. Soon after a shot was heard, people gathered, found the sheriff dead in the street and the car rapidly vanishing in the distance.

Poses were immediately organized, officers notified at every adjoining point and the manhunt began in earnest. Sheriff Harris, of this county, was in El Paso, headed north with a posse from that point, and Deputies Harry Straley and Jake Cole, taking with them the two blood hounds from here, immediately responded, and as soon as power could carry them reached Ora Grande, where the murderers had abandoned the car in which they had been riding. The dogs at once picked up the trail along the railroad, but after the fugitives left the beaten track and struck into the sand hills, they made a trail so distinct that men followed it easily without the aid of the dogs. The posse had grown to about a hundred, not counting those headed for that point from Las Cruces and El Paso.

The hunted men circled about, doubled back, at times crawling, and succeeded for hours in eluding their pursuers. Finally, Little Bradford, night watchman at Alamogordo, who was on horseback ahead of the posse, came in close contact with the fugitives. The cornered men fired several shots at Bradford, one shot grazing his thigh. The officer returned the fire, but the rearing of his horse prevented accurate aim, and might also have been the means of saving his life, as the shot at him failed to reach a vital spot. The two men disappeared for a time in the sand hills, but were soon after sighted and, being surrounded and realizing the futility of further resistance, surrendered and were taken to Alamogordo.

A special train, containing officers and four blood hounds from the penitentiary and also a number of horses, had been run from Santa Fe. This special passed through here at noon Wednesday and reached the point where the arrest was made, about eight miles below Ora Grande, just after the surrender, 3:30 p. m.

The two men charged with this deplorable crime go by the names of Bill Morris and Buck Smelter and are said to be from Amarilla, Texas. They had been arrested by Deputy Sheriff McCamant, of this county, on a charge of theft, taken to Corona, given a hearing, bound over and the deputy, accompanied by an assistant, started in a car to Carrizozo with the prisoners. On the way down, by ruse and a concerted attack, during which the deputy's pistol fell from his pocket and was secured by the man with whom the deputy was fighting, and the positions suddenly changed; the deputy and his assistant, the latter having closed with the second prisoner in combat, found themselves looking into a gun with a threatening man behind it. The deputy's overcoat was taken and he and his assistant told to hit the road in the opposite direction, with the injunction not to look back. This left the bandits in possession of the car, which contained a 30-30 rifle, and the late prisoners headed in this direction. Before, however, the officers could reach a place to communicate with the authorities here, the escaped prisoners had already passed through Carrizozo, where they secured gas and purchased cartridges. The Alamogordo sheriff was notified at 8:30, and at 9:00 o'clock a message was received here that in an endeavor to apprehend the escaped prisoners Sheriff Rutherford had lost his life.

"Savings" not Apparent in the Taxes

(Ohio State Journal, Rep.) Loyal and dependable Republican as we are, we can't help wondering in our depressed way, though we are always careful not to mention it in the presence of Democrats, when the tremendous savings which our great party has instituted in Washington and can prove by the statistics are going to begin to show in the taxes.

Carrizozo School Notes

(By Miss E. E. Cole)

Washington and Lincoln—the two great Americans. Have you seen the new "Old Glory" on the flag pole in front of the High School building? The most beautiful piece of dry goods on the face of the earth! Long may it wave.

Wednesday was St. Valentine's Day. Nearly all the rooms had valentine boxes, some of them very beautiful. The box in Miss Humphrey's room was simply a beauty. It was highly decorated with hearts and other suitable figures. The decorating was done by Clara Lujan, Orane Massey, Warden Maxwell and Lorenzo Garcia. In Mrs. Vaughan's room a basket was beautifully and tastefully decorated. In the Carrizozo schools hundreds of valentines were made this week. In all of them the pupils put forth their very best efforts at heart, skill and originality. A great many of them were marvels of constructive effort and all of them fine examples of expressed affection, respect and love. Valentine's Day is one of those days called 'expression days' in which the pupils express in art what they have already learned.

In the High School building the three glass doors of the rooms of Mrs. Tuton, Mrs. Vaughn and Mrs. Kelley were quite beautifully decorated with curtains and valentine designs. The inside of the rooms corresponded in decorations. Thursday of next week, Feb. 22, the schools will honor Washington and Lincoln. It is almost the universal custom in the United States to honor these two Americans on the same day, since their birthdays are so close together. All the rooms will have exercises and every body is invited to visit them at 1:10 in the afternoon. After the program, the pupils will be dismissed for the remainder of the day.

The girls' team of the Carrizozo High School won its eighth consecutive victory of the season last Saturday by defeating the El Paso High School girls by a score of 34 to 10. The game was full of pep and the Tigresses, though holding the small end of the score, fought gamely to the last whistle. The team work of both schools was fine but the speed of the Carrizozo girls, together with the accurate shooting of their forwards, easily won the game for the locals. The Carrizozo team has defeated the best teams in this section of the state and are in line for the championship of eastern and southern New Mexico. A return game is to be played in El Paso March 10.

WASHINGTONIANA, 1923

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

GEOGE WASHINGTON was the Father of His Country. And don't you forget it! If you do, you will feel lonesome. For the American people haven't forgotten it and are not forgetting it. On the contrary the American people are getting to think more and more of George Washington with every succeeding year. They are trying to get a clearer mental vision of George. For a time George was too great and good and perfect to be true. Now the people are trying to visualize George as a regular fellow.

For example, William Rowlee Thayer has just brought out "George Washington," intended to be the definite one-volume biography of Washington. Mr. Thayer's purpose as expressed in his preface has been to give a sketch of George Washington's life and acts, which should disclose "the human reality" which he felt sure must persist in Washington's character. "No other great man in history," he says, "has had to live down such a mass of absurdities and deliberate false inventions," including the picture of an imaginary Father of His Country amusing himself with a fictitious cherry tree and hatchet. In short, the author has written his book to help those who complain that they cannot find a flesh and blood man in the George Washington of history. He expresses the confident hope that those who read this biography will no longer consider George Washington the most illusive of historic personages.

Here's the way "Campton" in the Chicago Tribune's "Line o' Type or Two" puts it:

"O! O! Misad of buried time,
What trick is this you play,
Who sing to us in prose or rhyme
The hero born today?

"Your blazing torch athwart the gloom
Lights up our noble dead,
Your record snatches from the tomb
The lives our heroes led.

"You show us Jackson, crude and bold,
Impetuous, quick to fight,
Sworn foe of caste and graft and gold—

A man, or wrong or right.
"You show us Grant in gain and loss,
His early waning star,
The gold that gleamed amid the dross,
Purged by the fires of war.

"You show us Lincoln, calm in strife,
With homely, serene and just,
The shambling gait, the kindly life,
The freedom of the West.

"But when we seek on history's scroll
The Father of the free,
The name that leads our muster-roll,
We ask, "Can this be he?"

"We see a demigod of old,
Grim, faultless and serene,
Olympian grandeur stern and cold,
A god from the machine.

"Oh lead him down from heights above
And set his feet on earth,
To show his soul the men they love
In weakness and in worth."

"Resolved, etc., That the secretary of state be, and he is hereby, authorized to transfer the said relics to the custody of the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution for safe-keeping and exhibition in the National museum."

The resolution accepting the Washington sword and Franklin staff was passed by both houses on the same day. The proceedings in the house were especially impressive, many senators and diplomats being present. The speech of presentation was delivered by Representative George W. Summers of Virginia. The part of his address referring to the Washington sword contains the following interesting information concerning the weapon carried so long by the Father of His Country:

Mr. Summers—Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of discharging an office not connected with the ordinary business of a legislative assembly. Yet, in asking permission to interrupt for a moment, the regular order of parliamentary proceedings, I cannot doubt that the proposition which I have to submit will prove as gratifying as it may be unusual.

Mr. Samuel T. Washington, a citizen of Kanawha county, in the commonwealth of Virginia, and one of my constituents, has honored me with the commission of presenting, in his name and on his behalf, to the congress of the United States, and through that body to the people of the United States, two most interesting and valuable relics connected with the past history of our country and with men whose achievements, both in the field and in the cabinet, merit illustration and adorn our annals.

One is the sword worn by George Washington, first as a colonel in the colonial service of Virginia in Forbes' campaign against the French and Indians, and afterwards during the whole period of the War of Independence as commander in chief of the American army.

It is a plain cut-throat, or hanger, with a graven blade and silver guard. On the upper ward of the scabbard is engraved "J. Bailey; Fishkill." It is accompanied by a buckskin belt, which is secured by a silver buckle and clasp, whereas are engraved the letters "G. W." and the figure "1777." These are all of the plainest workmanship, but substantial and in keeping with the man and with the times to which they belonged.

The history of this sword is perfectly authentic, and leaves no shadow of doubt as to its identity. The first gift and recipient of George Washington's sword was on the 28th day of February, 1778, when, during a brief sojourn in Lancaster, Pa., he presented it to the Rev. Mr. William Augustine Washington, George Lewis, George Blaine Washington, and General Washington. The latter, in return, gave one of the youths or officers of which I may be possessed, and has ever since been in the possession of the latter's descendants. It is accompanied by a buckskin belt, which is secured by a silver buckle and clasp, whereas are engraved the letters "G. W." and the figure "1777." These are all of the plainest workmanship, but substantial and in keeping with the man and with the times to which they belonged.

WASHINGTON AT FREDERICK
them in their hands to the relinquishment thereof." In the distribution of the sword, hereby devised, among the five nephews therein enumerated, the one now presented fell to the lot of Samuel Washington, the device last named in the clause of the will which I have just read.

This gentleman, who died a few years since, in the county of Kanawha, and who was the father of Samuel T. Washington, the donor, I knew well. I have often seen this sword in his possession, and received from him the following account of the manner in which it became his property, in the division made among the devices:

He said that he knew it to have been the side arm of General Washington during the Revolutionary war—not that used on occasions of parade and review, but the constant service sword of the great chief—that he had himself seen General Washington wear this identical sword—he presumed for the last time—when, in 1794, he reviewed the Virginia and Maryland forces, then concentrated at Cumberland, under the command of Gen. Lee, and destined to co-operate with the Pennsylvania and New Jersey troops, then assembled at Bedford, in suppressing what has been called "the whisky insurrection."

General Washington was at that time president of the United States, and, as such, was commander in chief of the army. It is known that it was his intention to lead the army in person on that occasion, had he found it necessary; and he went to Bedford and Cumberland prepared for that event. The condition of things did not require it, and he returned to his civil duties at Philadelphia.

Mr. Samuel Washington held the commission of a captain at that time himself, and served in that capacity.

He was anxious to obtain this particular sword, and preferred it to all others, among which was the ornamented and costly present from the great Frederick.

At the time of the division among the nephews, without intimating what his preference was, he joyfully remarked, "That, inasmuch as he was the only one of them who had participated in military service, they ought to permit him to take choice." This suggestion was met in the same spirit in which it was made; and the choice being awarded him, he took it, the planet and divinely the least valuable of any simply because it was "the battle sword."

I am sure in possession of the most interesting relic, preserved by Col. George Washington, of George, in the which made relating of the sword, was given, as to the identity of the sword, the information was given by the author, William Augustine Washington, the son of the first, in the clause of the will, which he had read, in the name of the donor, and which he had seen the last time in the hands of the donor, and which he had seen the last time in the hands of the donor.

Photographs reproduced herewith show Arthur Dawson, official portrait painter at the United States Military Academy at West Point, and the original Gilbert Stuart bust portrait of George Washington, which he discovered by accident in an unnoticed corner of the Washington and Lee university, Lee Memorial chapel at Lexington, Va., last summer. The portrait is painted on the peculiar "twisted" wood panel used by Stuart and was discovered by Mr. Dawson while looking over the paintings in the chapel. It is estimated by art experts to be worth from $25,000 to $100,000 and is pronounced the finest Stuart in America at the present time. It has been in the Washington and Lee university for many years, but until Mr. Dawson's discovery, its true value was unknown. Records call to mind where the picture came from. The panel measures 36 by 30 inches.

Congress has passed a joint resolution on the following lines:

"Resolved, by a joint resolution of the senate and house of representatives, approved March 4, 1923, the words of George Washington and the bust of the same, which were discovered by accident in the Washington and Lee university, Lexington, Va., last summer, are hereby placed in the custody of the Smithsonian Institution, to be preserved in the Department of Art."

Why Farmers are Turning to

for Economical Transportation

In 1922 Chevrolet jumped from seventh to second place in sales of all cars, and to first place in sales of fully equipped modern cars.

Purchases by farmers were the chief factor in this remarkable development.

Farmers want automobiles not only of low first price, but also of low later cost for operation and maintenance.

They want room, comfort, and the ability to stand up under hard conditions.

They find that Chevrolet, fully equipped as sold, is the best value per dollar in the low-priced field, and neighbors tell them it costs less per mile to operate.

WILL NOT STAND MINGLING. CAME BACK WITH INTEREST

Some Danger in Combination of Potash Tablets and Potassium Chlorate.

At a merry party in England, one of the guests suddenly found himself emitting a shower of sparks. The place of origin was his coat pocket. Everybody laughed, and thought it was a well-contrived joke. But it was not. That was proved by a burned jacket, chair, carpet, and hand. Investigation showed that the guest had in his pocket a packet of potash tablets. Also he had there a box of safety matches.

Now a safety match is coated with potassium chlorate, and it strikes when it is rubbed against phosphorus painted on the box surface. But potash tablets are made of potassium chlorate, and so they, too, are likely to strike on a safety matchbox. This is what they had done. Some of them had escaped from their packet and were loose in the jacket pocket, ready to make a fireworks display if they rubbed against the matchbox. If you carry a safety matchbox, be careful what else you carry in the same pocket. Mind it is not potash tablets for a sore throat, or you may "go off" unawares in a private fireworks display.

Delivery Man's Bright Scheme for Getting Rid of Dog Somehow Didn't Seem to Work.

William Rugenstein, delivery man for the Big Four railroad, one time owned a house dog that he wished to get rid of. As a certain means of accomplishing his object, he locked the dog in a freight car bound for Springfield, Ohio, heaved a sigh of relief and went about his work, glad with the thought that he finally had got rid of that dog.

Two weeks later, Rugenstein was opening a car containing a consignment of goods from Springfield. He heard something scratching on the door.

As he opened it, out bounded three emaciated, raw-boned cur dogs. On the door of the car was written in chalk:

"See your one dog and go you two dogs better!"—Indianapolis News.

"Pull Down Your Vest."

An American colloquialism, meaning, originally, "Attend to your own business," but now used as a mere senseless exclamation of willings. It comes to us from the time when trousers and waistcoats were alike shorter than they are at present, and when a wide gap of linen shirt induced careful mothers, wives or discriminating friends to use the adjection, to the negligent. The phrase soon became general and for a time was used ad nauseum.—Chicago Journal.

Concern for Santa.

Little Letha is about the smallest patron of the West Indianapolis library, and was being taught a piece to speak for her Sunday school Christmas entertainment.

"I come to say, good night, sleep tight—"

"For Santa will be speeding," prompted her mother.

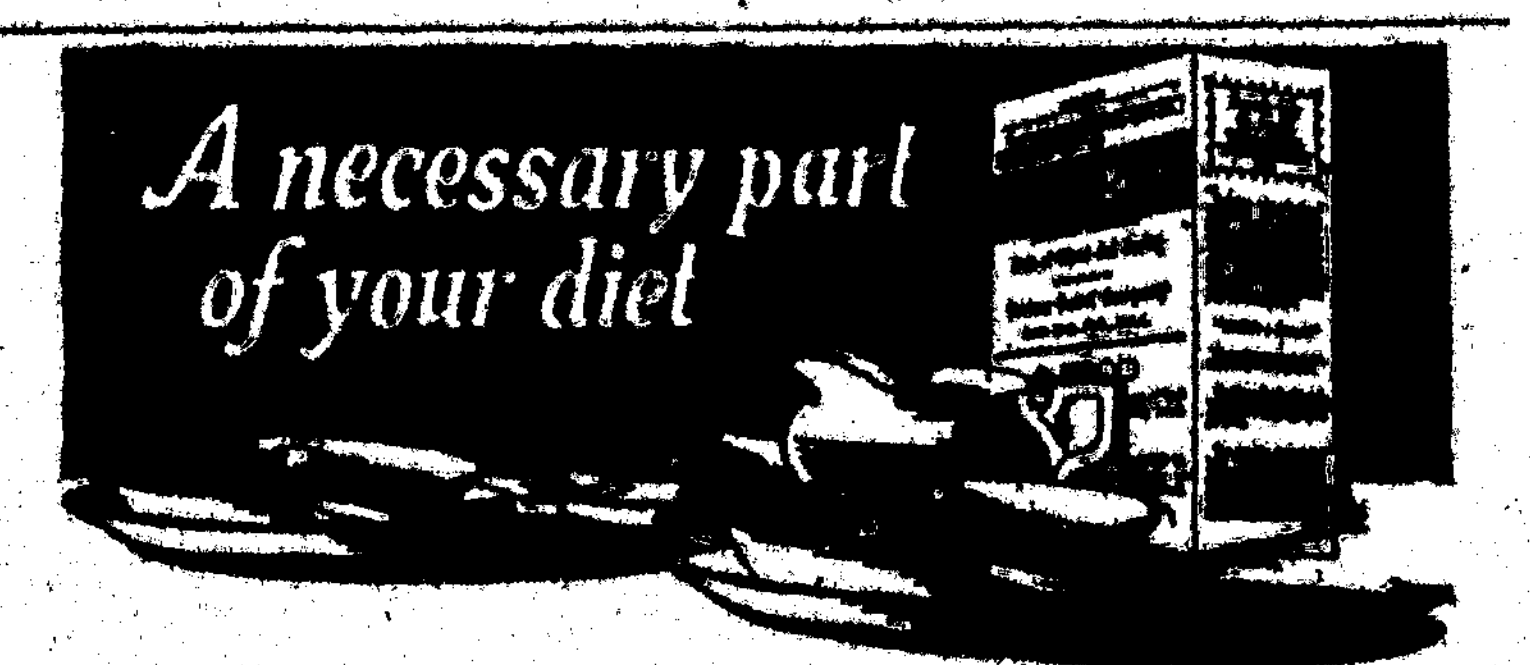

"Santa will be what, mother?" exclaimed the little girl.

Mother patiently repeated the lines and Letha's concern grew.

"Oh, mother, Shan' will get him, and he'll get arrested," she said in frightened earnestness.—Indianapolis News.

Undesirable Age.

Age of discretion is a period when nothing is as attractive as it was.

LADY WAS IN A BAD FIX FROM NERVOUS INDIGESTION

Dixon, Miss.—"I had, for a year or more, nervous indigestion, or some form of stomach trouble," says Mrs. Alonzo Ford, 1117 Clay Street, this city. "The water I drank at that time seemed to constipate me. I would suffer until I got so nervous I wanted to get down on the floor and roll. I felt like I could tear my clothes. "Every night, and night after night, I had to take something for a laxative, and it had to be kept up nightly. My side would pain. I looked awful. My skin was sallow and seemed spotted. I would look at my hands and arms, and the flesh looked like wax. "I happened to get a Birthday Almanac, so I told my husband I would try the Black-Draught, which I did. I took a few big doses. I felt much better. My liver acted well. I made a good, warm tea and drank it that way. Soon I found that nervous, tight feeling was going, as was the pain in my side. I found I did not have to take it every night. Soon, after a few weeks, I could leave it off for a week or so, and I did not suffer with constipation. . . I gained flesh. I have a good color, and believe it was a stubborn liver, and that Black-Draught did the work. "I went to my mother's (Mrs. Deeters) one day, and she wasn't well at all. . . I told her we'd try Black-Draught. We did, and now she keeps it to take after eating. It certainly helped her, and we neither will be without it in our homes. It is so simple, and the dose can be regulated as the case may be. We use small doses after meals for indigestion, and larger doses for headache or bad liver." Thesford's Black-Draught liver medicine is for sale everywhere. 184

Foreman-Moore

News reached here yesterday that Mills B. Foreman and Mrs. Amanda Moore were married at Deming this week. The marriage is not altogether a surprise to their many friends here, although it was not thought they would go to distant parts to become man and wife. The News takes particular pleasure in felicitating the pair, as it numbers them among its old friends and esteems them highly.
