OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 23

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, OCT. 12, 1923

NUMBER 41

Two Banks Close

The Exchange Bank of Carrizozo voluntarily closed its doors Monday morning, October 8, and notified the Bank Examiner of its action. The First State Bank of Capitan, likewise the following morning.

Assistant State Bank Examiner Saunders is now here, and is going over the affairs of the Exchange Bank. A large amount of paper, which could not readily be turned into cash, due to deflation of values, is believed to be the cause of the closing of this old institution. Besides the paper the bank holds, the capital, surplus and undivided profits aggregate $125,000.00, which stand to the protection of depositors. The deposits amount in round numbers to $312,000.00, about $100,000.00 of which is county and state and protected by bonds. The county's deposit is $26,000, and is protected by bonds, aggregating $57,000.

The closing of the First State Bank at Capitan was due to the apprehension that a ruin would be made upon it, and as a ruin would cripple it, or cause it to close, the officials decided to close. In this bank the county has a deposit of $6,000 for which it has a Surety bond of $13,000. State deposit reported to be $8,000.

Temporarily, at least, the commercial life of Lincoln county is seriously disturbed, but the other banks have been able to continue business as usual, and at the same time handle the overflow from the banks that are now in the hands of the Bank Examiner. The people have accepted the calamity philosophically and are facing the world with a smile, and with the belief that all will be well in the end.

Giants Ahead

The world's series began Wednesday between the Giants, of the National League, and the Yankees of the American League. The Giants won the first, 3 to 4, the Yankees the second, 4 to 3, and the Giants won today, the third of the series, 1 to 0. The series is the best four out of seven games.

School Notes

(By Miss E. L. Cole) At the Box Supper last Friday night the Athletic Association netted $32.50. There was a large attendance and everyone had a good time. The basketball teams are starting off in fine style and under efficient management of Coach Bryan Casler expect to repeat the splendid record of last year.

The second year Home Economics class gave another of their delightful dinners last week, and the dinner of this week will be given Thursday. This gives the girls excellent practice in serving good meals in an attractive and charming style. Divorcees are going to be less in a few years. Eh, what!

The school board has had electric lights put into the Domestic Science room. Miss Meux and girls of her room are, of course, delighted. It will help them so much in giving "State Dinners."

Friday of last week the High School gave another one of its fine literary programs. The following was the program as far as was carried out in the time allowed:

Reading	Mary Tuton
Current Events	Charles Ross
Debate	"Resolved, That the Government Should Seize and Control the Coal Mines of the United States."
Affirmative	Miller French and Clinton Brannon
Negative	Fred Lalone and Lee Stimmel
Judges decided in favor of the affirmative.
Reading	Jeanne Reilly
Piano Solo	Lucile Fite
Wit and Humor	Jessie Rustin
Reading	Don English
Subsidiary Paper	Gwen Cramer
	Kestler Taylor

These programs should be of considerable value to the students of the High School. The literary effort is of great worth and there is some fun mixed in with it.

We are proud of the attitude of the pupils of the Carrizozo schools; their morals and manners; their spirit with reference to their teachers and to each other. Recently one of the new teachers said she was surprised to find such a fine class of boys and girls; much better than she expected; that she had not, in the six weeks of school already gone, had a single impudent word or improper expression of any kind from any of her pupils. Whenever the opportunity offers, our teachers talk to their pupils on manners and morals, their duties as citizens and how they should behave in a hundred ways. Character building is one of our greatest duties and privileges.

Woman's Club Notes

Regular meeting of the Carrizozo Woman's Club was held Friday afternoon October 5, at the home of Mrs. A. H. Harvey. The program on Citizenship, arranged by Mrs. Treat, follows: Roll Call, Progress of the Foreign born.

Local Government, Discussion led by Mrs. Stadtman.

Citizens' Creed, Fourteen Ladies, Piano Solo, Otto Prebm.

Paper, "Citizenship," Mrs. Blaney Piano Solo, Mrs. Donaldson.

Paper, "Lincoln County Teachers," Mrs. Goe.

Vocal Duet, Mrs. Kelley and Miss Carolyn Roberts.

Delicious refreshments were served to the thirsty members and guests who were present.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 19, at Mrs. J. B. French's.

The Entertainers

The Carrizozo Entertainers will give their farewell number Thursday, November 8, 1923.

Karissa Dean will come back and dance and train the chorus.

Ethel May Copeland, of the famous Bridgeport Players, will give a humorous reading. All the old favorites of the Carrizozo Entertainers will appear in one way or another, and make their last bow to the audience. Don't forget the date.

Trip to Moon by Atom Force

Mars and Venus Might Also Be Visited Through Discharge of Radio-Activity

Changchal.—One conceivable means by which the moon, as well as Mars and Venus, might be visited, is through the discharge on a large scale of radio-activity, and through the solution of the problem of the disintegration of matter into helium or hydrogen atoms. This is the belief of Mr. Herbert Chantley.

May Be Life on the Moon

In a lecture before the Quest society here, recently, Doctor Chantley said that the presence of life on the moon would be a matter of surpassing importance, but as yet there is no very good evidence in its favor, and it seems almost inconceivable. There can be little or no water there, since no clouds are visible. There is also the conditions that the days are 27 times as long as ours and that the temperature at lunar midday is greater than that of boiling water and at lunar midnight lower than that of the terrestrial poles and it will be understood that the circumstances are by no means propitious for life as we know it, he explained.

Work Would Solve Reclamation Problem

WASHINGTON.—Formation of a fact-finding commission to investigate the whole system of government methods in reclaiming arid and semi-arid lands by irrigation has been announced by Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior. Invitations were sent to seven citizens of national reputation and prominence to serve as members of the commission and conduct an intensive study of the problem which is characterized as one of "national concern." This is in furtherance of a policy instituted last April, Secretary Work, in outlining the reclamation situation, declared, "It is generally reported that relatively few of the original settlers on projects now remain on them as water users." He also cites the fact that "one hundred and thirty-four millions of government money have been expended for reclamation, and but fourteen millions have been returned, while six millions are due and unpaid."

Thomas E. Campbell of Arizona; Former Gov. David W. Davis of Idaho, now commissioner of reclamation, and Dr. John A. Widtack, formerly president of the state university and agricultural college of Utah. The letter of invitation sent forward by Secretary Work follows, in part: "Time extensions for payment of both construction and maintenance charges have been asked which, if granted, would multiply deferred annual payments. It is feared, beyond the ultimate ability of the settler to pay, entailing probable loss of his home and to the government the loss of the investment. "Reclamation has done much toward the development of the West, but it now clearly requires to be adapted to existing conditions, so that its future success may be achieved and the possibility of home ownership be assured to settlers. "Although, only recently charged with the responsibility of reclamation, I am not a stranger to the irrigation of arid lands, but prefer, however, not to suggest procedure and would not expect to advance opinions to this commission unless requested, asking only that the questions may be treated with open publicity and that I may transmit your report to congress."

Government Essay Contest in Schools

RENEWAL of its annual safety contests, in which 35,000 will be given away in prizes, is announced by the Highway Education board. Training children in habits of highway safety is the principal task of the 1923 safety campaign, but through the children it is hoped that the principles of traffic regulation and safety education will be impressed upon adults, both pedestrians and drivers alike.

to exceed five hundred words in length. Those eligible are pupils of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades, who are not more than fourteen years of age. The contest opened with the beginning of school and will close December 4, 1923. Teachers are requested to submit safety lessons on the subject "Traffic, Children in Habits of Safety on the Highways." The limit suggested is between 1,000 and 3,000 words. All elementary school teachers in the eighth and lower grades are eligible to submit lessons. In the teachers' contest the first national award is $500 and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid. The second is $200, the third is $100. The first national prize for pupils is a gold watch and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid. The second and third prizes are each gold watches. The board announces that the contests will be conducted with the cooperation of state departments of education, women's clubs, civic organizations, safety councils, automobile clubs, and kindred organizations that may wish to assist.

Uncle Sam to Make New Paper Money

SECRETARY MILLON'S approval of the new design for paper money, under consideration for more than a year, has been announced at the Treasury department and may bring the bill of the new five type and marking soon will be in circulation. The new design at first will affect only United States notes, silver certificates and federal reserve notes in denominations up to $100, with the exception of the "one-dollar" two dollar note, but it is hoped later to extend the new design, amounting almost to a program of reorganization, to national bank notes and ultimately to the rate gold certificates.

Working to make the job of counterfeiting less remunerative, treasury experts chose the method of standardizing designs, giving one denomination of all kinds of currency one distinctive design for face and back, so that those persons who would possess the money counter may recognize, instantly, if a forgery has been attempted. The faces of the new bills will carry portraits of well known figures in American history, mostly presidents, and the best known faces have been chosen for the bills most used. The one dollar bill for instance, will have Washington's portrait; the five, Lincoln, and the ten, Jackson. Cleveland's likeness will appear on the twenty-dollar bill while for the fifty and one hundred, the portraits of General Grant and Benjamin Franklin, respectively, have been selected. The backs of the new bills will be of the same general character as the present gold notes, consisting of the conventional scroll work pattern with large work borders and not pictures and the design of any one denomination will become well known, whether it be a United States note, silver certificate or federal reserve note.

Japanese Government Thanks America

IT WILL require five years to lay the foundations of the new cities of Tokyo and Yokohama, and from ten to fifteen years to complete their construction, according to reliable estimates compiled in this city. An approximation of the Japanese houses places the figure at $2,000,000,000. This area is one of the most densely populated in Japan, supporting 15,000,000 people, more than one-fourth the entire inhabitants of Japan.

A touching expression of gratitude for the sympathy and assistance of the United States in the Japanese disaster was communicated by Count Yamamoto, premier of Japan, on behalf of the Japanese people to the American government. The message was transmitted to the State department by Masume Hamada, imperial ambassador here. It reads in part: "At a time when Japan was making her best endeavors to follow the letter and spirit of the Yermoland Treaty and the Washington treaties, which we believe have laid the foundation of world peace and will greatly promote human welfare, the catastrophe was visited by a most appalling disaster, in which all the elements combined. "In this hour of deep grief and sorrow, we are by the Emperor and all his subjects, the President of the United States issued a proclamation urging the American people to come to the aid of the stricken people of Japan and designating the American Red Cross to administer the relief work. Then the commander of the American Asiatic fleet lost no time in dispatching the ships under his command to the scene of the disaster and offered the services of his entire fleet for the immediate relief of the sufferers. "The report of these spontaneous and prompt measures, taken by the President, the government and the people of the United States, is creating a profound impression in the grateful hearts of suffering Japan. "With these facts in mind, I desire to express in the name of the Japanese government their most heartfelt thanks to the American government and at the same time to convey to the President and people of the United States the deep sense of gratitude of my government and of the entire nation of Japan for this noble manifestation of a sincere and generous sympathy. I am happy in believing that this precious gift of the American sympathy in the hour of greatest trial for the Japanese nation cannot but bring the peace of the world, in sharing with them the load of calamity and bring between the two countries."

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor H. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician, but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their great remedial qualities, especially for weakness of women, and after careful preparation succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so-called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standing as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the female system.

Aside from Mathematics. The teacher had been explaining fractions to her class. When she had discussed the subject at length, wishing to see how much light had been shed, she inquired: "Now, Bobby, which would you rather have—two apples or two halves?" The little chap promptly replied: "Two halves." "Oh, Bobby," exclaimed the young woman, a little disappointed. "Why should you prefer two halves?" "Because then I could see if it was bad inside."—Chicago Daily News.

U. S. GIRL SUCCEEDS AS FUR TRADER IN SIBERIA

Marie Kelly Plans Coup Which She Learned From Morgan

Seattle, Wash.—Once librarian for J. Pierpont Morgan, Miss Marie Kelly is in a land where books are unknown, once wearing summer frocks on Fifth avenue, she now controls one of the largest fur trading posts in Siberia, making more than $100,000 profit from her enterprise last year. Not content with waiting around for trappers to bring in furs, Miss Kelly runs a trading store at Anabar, on a steamer on the river of the same name, operates a coal mine to produce fuel for local needs, employs three American prospectors and in the hole-making gold, on Sunday trawlers and pranchers, and acts as postmaster for the American colony in Siberia. The traders returning here from Anabar report that Miss Kelly has no desire to leave the isolated settlement until her mining interests have located the gold mine of her dreams. That the gold is there is certain, for A. M. Smith exhibited a handful of coarse nuggets which he washed from the gravel of the Anabar. Located in the timbered region wherein it found the mine, Miss Kelly last winter was able to control the supply of this fur for a large territory. The catch of Arctic fur was good, and the trappers brought their skins 100 miles out of their way in order to trade with the pale American princess. According to fur dealers, it is known that Miss Kelly is planning a coup which she learned from her former employer. Anticipating a season of increased trapping in the well-watered and heavily wooded region around Anabar, she has acquired a large amount of cash, with which she intends to buy up an immense amount of fur, especially of one or two kinds, then invade the New York market. With an immense credit certain, she will, it is related here by traders, try to make a corner of her favorite variety of fur, and then sell at a big profit of her own. Both the respect Miss Kelly and the merit ambassadors trying to establish a stable government, would welcome other such patriotic, self-possessed American women in that region as a fitting example for their own women folk to emulate.

WHY BIRDS MOVE

Glacial Era Held Responsible for Annual Migration.

Habit Started Same Time Changing Seasons Replaced Continuously Semi-Tropical Conditions.

The "honk" of the passing flocks of wild geese leaving the cold snap in the Far North is heard again in the pathway of the feathered migration on route for the sunny southland in the tropics.

It is said that flocks of migrating purple martins, teal and bobolinks and such like are on the wing making for their winter quarters on the Gulf coast and further south, all of which, in bird life, indicates an early winter, for their unerring bird instincts never fail.

For more than 2,000 years, according to the investigations of the United States geological survey, the phenomena of bird migration have been scientifically noted, but while the extent and course of routes traversed have of late years become better known, no conclusive answer has been found to the question, "Why do North American birds migrate?"

Two different and diametrically opposite theories have been advanced to account for the beginning of these migrations. The sum of these conclusions might be expressed in plain words, because it is natural.

According to the more commonly accepted theory, ages ago the United States and Canada swarmed with non-migrating bird life, long before the arctic ice fields, advancing south during the glacial era, rendered uninhabitable the northern half of the continent. The birds' love of home influenced them to remain near the nesting site until the approaching ice began for the first time to produce a winter—that is, a period of inclement weather which so reduced the food supply as to compel the birds to move or starve.

As the ice advanced very gradually, now and then retreating, these enforced retreats and advances—at first only a short distance and a brief time—increased both in distance and duration until migration became an integral part of the being of the bird. In other words, the formation of the habit of migration took place at the same time that changing seasons of the year replaced the continuous semi-tropical conditions of the preglacial era.

As the ice advanced southward the swing to the north in spring migration was continually shortened and the fall retreat in a suitable winter home lengthened in proportion until the glacial period birds were, for most part, confined to middle North America. But the habit of migration had been formed and when the ice receded toward its present position the birds followed it southward and in time established their present diversified migration routes.

The late John Burroughs, eminent student of nature and bird life, long ago placed the blame of Canada's being the great bird land of the world on Washington.

Wind-Killed Birds.

Foreigners are not so slow as Americans think they are in listening to what they are told and in coming to their own conclusions. They are not so slow as they are made out to be.

Near one city in Europe an ingenious country baker had purchased a machine on top of his plant with which to make bread, which he sold to his neighbors. The machine, however, was not to be used by wind power. When baking he had to go forward and the wind to be used in turning the wheels that grind the wheat and the flour.

Herring Fish Killed by Shock.

Italian anglers getting ready to spread their nets on Lake Bracciano recently were amazed to see the surface of the water covered with dead fish.

All that they believed it to be the work of poison, who often start explosions under the rocks where fish are known to shelter, but some of the fish were sent to Rome for experts to study the case. The experts came to the conclusion that the fish had been killed by an electric shock, and this suggestion is supported by the fact that Lake Bracciano lies in the crater of a dead volcano.

Almost Repeated.

Of two friends at a hospital where most beds in most rooms, one went off to bed, undressed, and turned in, snoring his friend's room for his own. Half an hour later the friend followed, and his bed occupied and returned to the coffee room.

"Did you see me go to my room just now?" he said to the night porter.

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Well, then, why didn't you tell me I'd gone to bed already?" he grunted, and proceeded to snore the night on a chair in front of the fire.—Yachting Post.

Expanded Responsibilities.

"The automobile has made a great difference in our affairs."

"Yes," answered Capt. Joe. "And it isn't all in the line of improvement. It used to be possible to start the most stammering boy in the class and have him speak every month or so. But if you wait to get after them never fifteen from Sunday before the time you've had to start a stammerer."

Periscopes for Cars.

English street railway cars, or trams they call them, are "double-deckers," with seats on the roof, in most towns. Now they are being fitted with a new type of shaftless periscopes for "searching" top decks. Experiments made recently have been successful, and there is little doubt about the device coming into general use. It is a mirror fixed at each end of a car, and viewed from the stairway, it enables the conductor to see what is happening on deck without having to go upstairs. From the footboard the conductor can always note if there is any movement on the high level gangway as halting points are approached, and thus time is saved and scrambling avoided.

Essential to Profitable Farming

The Utility Express Truck $550 Chassis Only

Fits any Standard Truck Body

No business can succeed unless its product is profitably sold. Most farms have a fine production department but no sales department. They grow crops and stock bought by buyers who set the price.

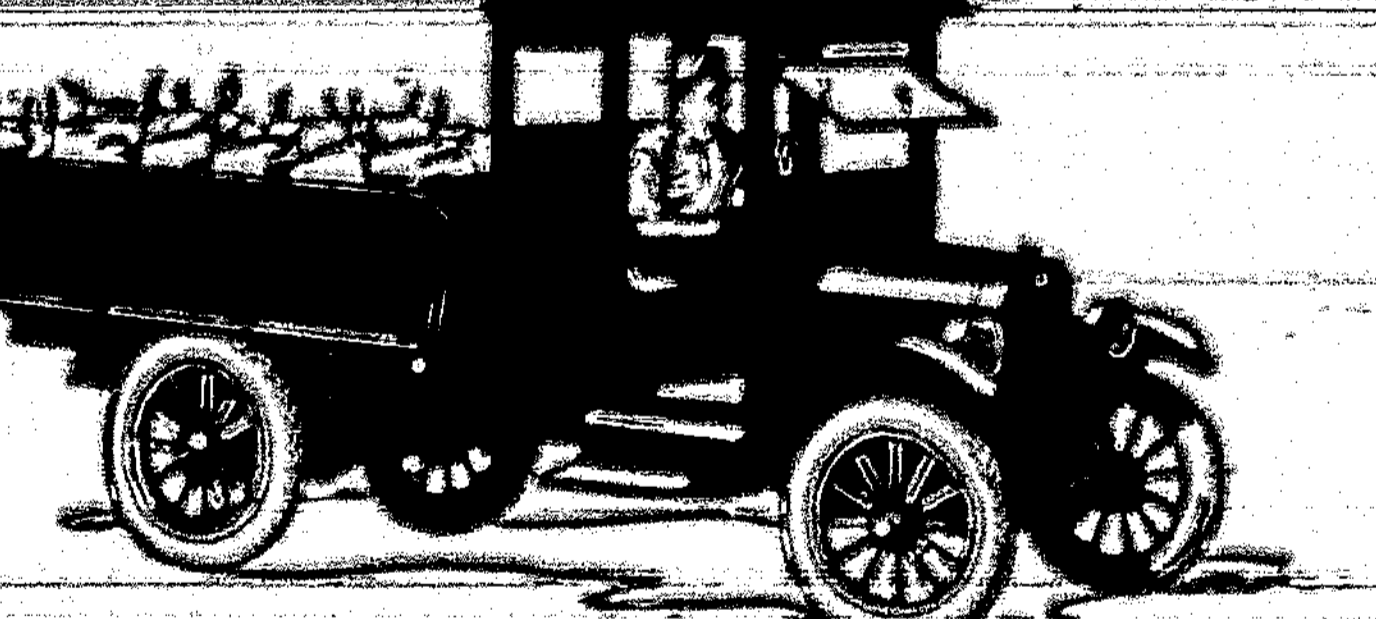

One of the chief reasons for this unprofitable situation is the average farmer's poor facilities for moving his crops or stock to the place where he can sell or ship to the best advantage. Because of the time and expense of horse delivery millions of dollars worth of produce spoils annually on American farms. The saving of this waste would, in many cases, change a losing farm to a money-maker.

This low-priced, high-grade, reliable truck was designed as a money-saver and money-maker for farmers and business houses needing fast low-cost haulage of heavy or bulky goods. It fits any standard type of the truck body. Ask any Chevrolet dealer for price of the style of body you require.

DISCOVERY WEEK

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

DISCOVERY WEEK, celebrated this summer at Sault Ste. Marie, brought belated honors to the memory of Etienne Brule and tardy recognition of his claim to fame as the first white man to see the Great Lakes, discovery of which has been credited to Samuel de Champlain.

Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian army in France during the World War, unveiled a memorial cairn to Etienne Brule and Grenville, his companion, whose first name is unknown, the contents of both who found the Sault and discovered Lake Superior 300 years ago.

Moreover, the Indians gave a poignant portrayal of Etienne Brule and Grenville as the first white men to arrive in the Great Lakes, although in the poem the white men are not named.

The Indians of the Garden River reserve, on the banks of the historic St. Mary's river, live in the very heart of the Huron country. The Indians are descendants of those who the first white man found along the famous river which give the city its name.

Pawling (or DOWLING) was the old name for the Indian village which existed there when Brule and Grenville and their Indian's successors came. It was only in 1842 that the Indian village on Whetish Island, in the St. Mary's river, with the city limits, was abandoned, due to the onward march of civilization which decreed the construction of additional great locks and power houses.

It was a colorful legend and followed strictly the Indian poem, with the exception of the identification of the first white men as Brule and Grenville. Miss Wabosness, the Muskoka of the poem, is an Indian girl of exceedingly attractive appearance.

The leading role of Muskoka was taken by a young Ottawa named Chuck. He is twenty-one years old and comes of a very good old Indian family. He has the looks and the figure for the part.

There is no portrait of Brule extant and there is no record of any kind in his writing. But there are abundant references to him. Indications are that he was uneducated, ignorant of arithmetic, respectful of his religious duties and that he lived among the Indians as one of them.

The French priests refer to him as "Brule the interpreter." So does Parkman in his "Fronter of France in the New World"; the historian praises him as the "pioneer of pioneers," but nevertheless credits Champlain with the discovery of Lake Huron in 1615. Champlain usually speaks of Brule's services as those of "one of my young men." Nevertheless, his third work, which covers the period 1615-19, contains Brule's narrative of his travels among the savages south to Chesapeake bay and in his writings about 1622 there is a passage which states that Brule was "fort victor a sonnet aux femmes." He also says that "it was a bad example to send persons of such bad morals as the interpreter Brule among the Indians. . . . Such characters ought to have been severely chastised."

Samuel de Champlain was the ruling spirit and prominent figure in the French exploration and colonization in the New World from 1603 to 1635. An explorer of the kind, under Sieur de Monts, he explored the Atlantic coast south to Massachusetts bay at a time when there was no settlement between Newfoundland and Mexico. Then on his third expedition he founded Quebec (1608). It was the dream of France to discover a new passage by water to Asia and the "wealth of Ormus and Ind."

So Champlain's was a keen explorer. In 1608 he discovered and gave his name to Lake Champlain. In 1615 he induced the Hurons to take him to LAKE HURON. In return he acted in aid of an expedition against the Iroquois Confederacy in central New York. The Hurons took him to Ontario bay. Thereupon Champlain and the Indians set out on their raid. They crossed Lake Ontario just where it empties into the St. Lawrence; two conjectural routes are shown by the dotted lines in the map. Champlain fought an indecisive battle with the Iroquois at Fort Lake and was wounded. He withdrew his forces and retired to Quebec after an absence of nearly a year. Then he left on a visit to France.

Brule, it appears, was born in 1592 and at first went as a servant with Champlain to Quebec. He left Champlain in 1619 to live with the Hurons. It was during this time that it is believed that he was taken by the Indians to Lake Huron over the route followed by Champlain in 1615—the trail, throughout up the Ottawa, across Lake Nipissing and down the French river.

Anyway, the Honorable Frier Sagar made record of the fact that Brule told him of vast masses of native copper known to the Indians. Frier Sagar also wrote:

"The interpreter Brule with some savages assured me that beyond the fresh sea [Lake Huron] there is another large lake which empties into this one by a waterway named the Sault de Gaston, being nearly two leagues wide, which lake with the fresh sea contains about thirty days' journey by canoe, according to the statement of the savages, and of the interpreter 300 leagues in length."

This is strong evidence that Brule had been to Lake Superior and to St. Mary's rapids, to which he had given the name of the brother of the French king.

Brule came out from among the Hurons to go with Champlain on the 1615 expedition as interpreter. At Georgian bay Brule was commissioned by Champlain to accompany a Huron advance party bound for the sources of the Mississippi to secure aid from the tribes there in the raid on the Iroquois. He preceded Champlain over the Lake Ontario route and returned with the Indian allies to Quebec lake. He arrived too late for the battle, found the Hurons in retreat and returned home with his allies, to follow the Mississippi to its mouth at Bayou de Grand Chenouette bay.

So presumably Brule was the first white man in Lake Ontario and to travel overland to Chesapeake.

Father Sagar wrote the details of Brule's return from the Indians of the Susquehanna. He was captured by the Iroquois. In stripped of his clothes they set upon his Agnes feet. "If you touch it," he warned them, "you and all your tribe will die."

Just then a thunderstorm threatened. Brule pointed to the black clouds as a sign of the anger of his God. The Iroquois fled, but returned to pay him high honor and set him on his way home.

In the meantime Quebec had fallen into the hands of the French. The French had dispatched a supply expedition in 1628, which had been captured by Admiral Kirk and an English fleet. Kirk had then demanded the surrender of Quebec, which Champlain had refused.

In 1629 Kirk returned and a French pilot guided three ships up the river to Quebec, which promptly surrendered. That pilot was Brule. He was executed as a traitor by some, but had his epitaph, inasmuch as the Quebec garrison had been reduced to 15 men and the women and children were grabbing for roots.

Nevertheless Brule, when the treaty of 1629 gave Quebec back to France, left and went back to live with the Hurons.

The French fathers bring the story of Etienne Brule to a close by recording that a few months later the Hurons, after a sudden and mysterious quarrel, had killed and eaten him. Now, the Hurons were not cannibals. What really took place, probably, was that the Hurons put him to death for some offense against the tribe and ate his heart—that they might secure for themselves his courage and qualities of leadership. That was their custom when they tortured to death a man with a great heart. And surely Etienne Brule was that.

Maurice Hewlett was once a great in an old English country mansion dating from Edward II. The same family had always had it. In the stable room of the house he found books, the overflow of the shelves being—dictionaries, Bradshaw's, and a list of the king and took from it a random selection, and took, back-to-back, but with faded green sides, opened it, then looked quickly for the page and portrait. All were there. It was a first folio Shakespeare worth $20,000.

THE GUILLOTINE

The guillotine devised for patient decapitation, was introduced during the French Revolution by the national convention. It received its name from the supposed inventor, Joseph Ignace Guillotine (1732-1814), a physician who, as a member of the committee, simply recommended its adoption from motives of humanity. The suggestion that Guillotine was a victim of the instrument whose use he had suggested, is untrue. He lived to become one of the founders of the Academy of Medicine in Paris, and died peacefully of the age of seventy-six. The guillotine was first used in Paris to put to death a criminal named Peltier on the Place de Grève, April 25, 1792. The first political victim to suffer death by this means was Desmoulin, who was guillotined August 21 of the same year.

Lincoln News Notes

Lincoln, Oct. 10

John M. Peckfield attended the picnic assembly in the county seat Tuesday.

Haymaking is still going on in the Valley, and people are beginning to harvest their winter apples.

A bad rain storm hit Lincoln and the lower Rio Grande valley Tuesday. It was accompanied by hail which did considerable damage down about the Hedges place. A creek burst from the hills, and the creek washed mud and rocks down into the house causing considerable damage.

Mr. Dale Reddy, who ships across the country with fresh fruit, was long enough in Lincoln to spend his month anniversary with his wife who is a guest at the Elmore Inn.

The basket ball game Friday between the Lincoln High School girls and the Hondo High School girls was witnessed by many interested spectators of both teams. Miss Clara Peppin refereed the game, which ended in a score of 19 to 16 in favor of Lincoln. The victory showed that the hard practice of the Lincoln girls had not been in vain, for the Hondo girls played a good game.

Friday evening in the High School building Supervisor Cook of the State Forest Service spoke in regard to the National Forest. His address was interpreted by Perrie Chavez. This was followed by a moving picture of the work in the National Forest, which was both interesting and instructive.

GET POWER WITH HIGHWAY LIGHTS

Electric Service for Farmers Might Follow Road Lighting Anywhere, as in New York.

Electric service for farms is usually unavailable without special efforts on the part of the farmers unless there is an electric light and power company with electric distribution lines running within reach of the farm. Yet the experience met with in territory near Buffalo, N. Y., suggests a method of automatically securing the extension of the necessary power lines so that farmers who desire the advantages of electricity can be connected up.

This possibility is bound up with the installation of high intensity road lighting units. The illumination of many country highways in the towns of Amherst and Tonawanda, outside of Buffalo, has caused distribution lines to be run along roads which previously were without them, and the benefit to the farming district has been two fold in consequence. The farmers have had a flood lighted road, and they have been able to secure electric service on their farms.

The installation is not yet completed in these towns, but as far as it has gone every farm house along the roads illuminated has been wired for electric lights as well as outhouses. A number of these farms are dairy farms, and these agriculturists have put in electric motors, by means of which they are operating milking machines, feed cutters and grinders.

All this work, therefore, is now being done by electricity on these farms. And the farmers are jubilant over the situation because it has solved at one stroke a most serious problem. They had been finding it almost impossible to secure electric light help. It was coming to such a pass that many farmers were worried day and night over it. Now they are worrying no more. They have made an expenditure for electric wiring and electric motors, and the work is being done. But it could have come to pass had not the electric lines been extended to the corners of their farms and the highways. The highway lighting plan calls for the lighting of a few mile stretch of roads with the electric light company's new low voltage lighting. This can be done at a small cost of far less than the cost of putting in a full line of electric lines and they are perfectly clear for miles.

BOSTON NEWS ITEM

Some time ago, this paper received from a press agency and printed an article dated from Boston and headed "Judge Report in Christian Science Litigation Filed," which purported to be an account of the report filed by the master in the suit brought by John V. Dittmore to contest his dismissal from the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. Now the Committee on Publication of this Church has issued a statement challenging the account in question as being extremely unfair. The statement of this writer follows:

"The account in question was most unfair in that, while purporting to quote or state the master's findings from the evidence as to why the majority of the Christian Science Board of Directors voted to dismiss Mr. Dittmore from this board, it neither quoted, nor stated the master's main finding on this subject. The following words are exactly quoted from the master's report: 'I find that the committee which advised its adoption by the defendants who voted to dismiss Mr. Dittmore on their part to be the master's proposal by the plaintiff's presence on the board to their efforts to create a committee with the trustees, though they acted in the more ready order said committee by reason of their willingness to discontinue themselves from all future with whom they could not agree and which they did not like.' The master then explicitly assigned as the controlling motive for the dismissal of Mr. Dittmore by the board 'the fact that the majority of the trustees were unable to agree with the plaintiff, though they acted in the more ready order said committee by reason of their willingness to discontinue themselves from all future with whom they could not agree and which they did not like.'"

Governor Walton Wins a Bloodless Victory Over Oklahoma Legislators.

TROOPS PREVENT SESSION

Germany Surrendering in the Ruhr, Bavaria Revolts and Establishes Dictatorship—War Minister Goseler Made Dictator of Khris' Country to Meet Crisis.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
CHOMWELL WALTERSON and his troops won a bloodless victory over the legislators of OKLAHOMA who wanted to assemble in special session for the purpose of investigating what they term the mistakes and illegal actions of the governor. Sixty-two members of the lower house attempted to convene in the state capital Wednesday, and were driven out by the military. They offered no resistance, but at once prepared a petition to the Supreme court for a restraining order prohibiting Adjutant General Markham from interfering with the sessions of the legislature. They contended that they already were legally in session. Asked whether he would prevent such action by the Supreme court, Governor Walton said that would depend on the advice of the lawyers, who number fourteen. He added that there was no way by which the governor of Oklahoma could be removed except by appeal of citizens to federal courts or to Congress.

On Thursday the governor extended absolute martial law over Murray county some of whose citizens had asked for protection from the Ku Klux Klan. He said martial law in the state would continue until the Klan gangs and newspapers get off my back and give me a chance to clean up the courts and the country from Klan influence.

There wasn't a ghost of a show for the "red" legislators. They filed the call for the session and then proceeded toward the legislative chamber. There in front of the doors was a line of National Guardsmen through which they could not penetrate. A squad of a platoon of U. S. Marine, speaker pro tem, directed the clerk to call the roll in the lobby. Immediately Colonel Keel, in command of the troops, read Adjutant General Markham's order directing the members to disperse, and told the soldiers to start them moving. They then moved back they were outside the capital. The legislators later tried to meet in a hotel room for a conference and found it guarded by gunmen who, the governor admitted, were on the state pay roll and working for him.

Charles Russell, a former state officer, was arrested for circulating a cartoon depicting Walton as a dictator, and newspaper photographers who tried to get pictures of the scenes at the capital also were taken into custody.

It must not be supposed that Walton had his immediate supporters are alone in their fight against the "red" legislators in Oklahoma. When the governor called on the people of the state to be ready to join the militia if they were needed to enforce his orders, it is said 25,000 men volunteered for service. Most of the newspapers are against him because of what they consider his unwarlike assumption of dictatorial powers. So far the national government has taken no part in the fight, merely sending the warning that federal buildings could be used only for federal business.

BREITANY surrendered again last week, and thousands were displaced. Fighting received the assistance of support from the premiers of all the German states, President Ebert and Chancellor Brüning announced that positive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland had officially abandoned. First re-ing the circumstances of the French and Belgian occupation, the proclamation of surrender continued: "The former production of the Ruhr and the Rhineland ceased and the economic life in occupied and unoccupied Germany became disorganized. It is most seriously to be feared that should this same line of action as hitherto be proceeded with, the maintenance of economic life and existence itself would be impossible for our people. In the interest of Germany's future, as in that of the Rhineland and the Ruhr, this danger must be removed. In order to preserve the life of the people and the state we are today faced with the dire necessity of relinquishing the struggle.

"It depends on the powers which have invaded our territory and on their allies by adhering to this idea to give peace to Germany or to bring about by rejection of this peace all the consequences which would ensue with respect to the relations between peoples. We invite the German people to stand closely together in the days of dire moral and material strife which are to come. Only thus shall be frustrated all projects for dismemberment of the Reich, and the nation recover its honor, life and liberty, which is its inalienable right."

Supplementing this, the chancellor told a gathering of newspaper men that if France refused to show mercy and made a second dictated peace, he would as a last extreme break off all relations with the allies and let come what will, even though the allies march upon Berlin and occupy the whole of Germany by military force.

The first reaction to the surrender came in Bavaria, the center of monarchism. The ministerial council of that state met, listened to Premier von Kahr's explanation of his support of Brüning's policy and swiftly discarded him. It then named Oswald von Kahr, former Bavarian premier, as dictator and declared the German constitution set aside so far as Bavaria was concerned. Among the laws which were suspended are all those guaranteeing freedom of speech, press, assembly, telephone, telegram, secrecy of mail, secrecy and security of person, dwelling and property. Kahr's speech is declared unconstitutional.

Herr von Kahr is vested with powers to call troops and use troops, arrest any one he chooses, keep prisoners without trial and seize the property of any one he declares an enemy of the nation. The ministerial council also issued orders placing the railroads at the dictator's disposal, declaring all military substances to be his and that his orders are higher law than the laws of the national German government. It was announced that there was no appeal from his decisions.

Brüning at once called an extraordinary session of the cabinet in Berlin and it was decided that the national government would not recognize the Bavarian dictatorship and would oppose it with all the means in its power. President Ebert then proclaimed the existence of "extraordinary conditions" and appointed War Minister Otto Goseler military dictator, giving him practically complete executive power. A decree was issued restricting such constitutional rights as freedom of the press and the right of assembly, and authorizing special military searches and seizures.

If the opportunity seems ripe, von Kahr may be expected to restore the monarchy in Bavaria with Crown Prince Ruprecht on the throne. In this he might be opposed by General Ludendorff, who is a pan-German, and perhaps by Adolf Hitler, head of the Bavarian fascists.

Of course the Communists are trying to take advantage of the situation, but so far they have made little progress. That they are receiving arms and other aid from the Russian soviet government has been proved by the Berlin authorities.

BULGARIA'S communist revolution kept on "revoluting" last week, and at this writing the outcome of the struggle is altogether uncertain. The latest reports said King Boris and Premier Danekoff had left Sofia, where fighting was going on, and that nearly 20,000 communists were advancing on the capital from the north. The war office announced that the decisive battle in the fighting was being fought in the city of Ferdinand and the near-by village of Berkowitz where the communists and their agrarian allies were surrounded by government forces. The rebels are armed with rifles and machine guns supplied by Russia.

ITALY has evacuated Corfu according to promise, but first Premier Mussolini compelled Greece to pay the 50,000,000 lire indemnity for the murders at Janina without waiting for the apprehension of the assassins. On the demand of Mussolini the council of ambassadors ordered this payment. Lord Greer, the British ambassador to France, held out as long as he could, but stood quite alone in the council.

PRESIDENT PRIMO RIVERA of the Spanish directorate and his able assistants are pulling into effect reforms that bring joy to the people. Thousands of grafting politicians and superfluous office holders have been dismissed; the cost of living has been reduced and profiteers are being punished; banditry is being ended by court-martial and prompt execution; syndicalism and its terrorism have been abolished.

It is understood in London that the proposition to swap Gibraltar for Corfu is being seriously considered by both the British and Spanish governments.

DANGER and death attended the international balloon race for the James Gordon Bennett trophy which started from Brussels, Belgium. The aeronauts ascended during a violent storm—the rules of the contest forbidding postponement—and half a dozen of the balloons were destroyed by lightning and collisions. Five of the balloons were lifted, including Lieut. K. G. Olindeud and J. W. Cheptaw of the U. S. army, whose balloon was wrecked by a bill of lightning in Holland. The race was won by Lieutenant of Belgium, winner of last year's contest.

FULL responsibility for the catastrophe in which seven destroyers were lost on the California coast and 20 members of the crew perished was assumed by Capt. E. H. Watson, commander of the squadron. In his testimony before the naval court of inquiry, he admitted that the mistake was made by his order, and that he took no soundings. The commanding officer of the Dupuy, which was leading the squadron, admitted the disaster was due to an error of judgment, but thought a contributory cause was the unusual northerly current near Point Arguilla where a southerly current was to be expected.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE believes he has devised a way for the government to help the farmers. In a report to President Coolidge he recommended the establishment by the government of an agricultural support commission or corporation with broad powers. He does not suggest details. Mr. Wallace reiterates his opposition to government price fixing of any one crop, and expresses the opinion that while the buying and holding of a large part of the surplus wheat might be of temporary benefit such action also would make conditions worse under production of the crop could be controlled.

As part of the effort to stimulate exports of wheat Secretary Wallace declares there should be a reduction of at least 25 per cent in freight rates, and that the entire structure of freight rates should be analyzed.

LYNN FORD has disappointed the South and many of those who have been looking for a presidential nomination. He seems to have lost interest in his proposal to take over the government's water power plants of Muscle Shoals, Ala., with a view of developing a great industrial center there. His present speech is wrought about by the fact that the government, compelled to act promptly in the matter of the Georgia steam plant down there, sold it to the Alabama Light and Power company. Mr. Ford had not come forward with any indication of his original offer that would include the Georgia plant. President Coolidge believes the project should be an attraction to Mr. Ford as it ever was.

NEW FALL HATS ARE OF FELT AND SUEDE

Upward Rolling Brim One of the Newest; Tams for Young Girls.

Chic Short Coat for Fall and Winter Wear

The fall line of hats is divided among suedes, taffetas and felts. Combinations of suede and taffeta are shown and quite a large number of these models is made up in red. Two shapes predominate in the suedes and taffeta and combination models. The brimmed hats nearly all show an upward roll from the face, and there are chic little turbans with a wing of taffeta or suede, darling from one side with a downward bend.

Many of the fall taffeta hats have the roll brim closely shirred, the shirring put in with a picot stitch. In most cases the under side of the brim is of a different shade from the top and the crown. Some of the loveliest of these hats have the upper side closely covered with varicolored embroidery.

The felt hats are all of the cloche shape and extremely small and close-fitting. Many of these are trimmed with kid, forming narrow bands and cocardes.

With the hats are a number of matching scarfs and bags of suede and taffeta.

The young girl will glory in the new tams. In fact, adaptations of tams have arrived from Paris so smart and so different that even the more mature members of the feminine sex will be seen wearing them. They are made of velvet, plush and brocade ribbons. Those made of the velvet are intricately embroidered with narrow satin, grosgrain and polio ribbons. Some of the new tams made of faille ribbons are richly embroidered with vivid shades of velvet ribbons. Some have gone to the extent of adding a touch of beads to the ribbon embroidery, to add to the elaborateness of the effect.

Some of the tams have a little framework about the face entirely covered with tiny ribbon loops, narrow velvet ribbons and shaded metallic ribbons being especially favored for this purpose, while variations of the ribbon cocarde are exceedingly popular, giving a colorful and feather-like effect to the hat which makes it becoming to almost any face.

They are good with the more severe style of top coat, with the short fur jacket, with the one-piece dress, with the coat frock and with the tailored suit, leaving but little more that can be considered a part of the modern girl's wardrobe for everyday wear just now.

This winsome short coat for fall and winter is beautifully designed to please the careful dresser. The creation here shown is of taupe camel with squirrel collar and cuffs.

Sable Neckpiece With Hat of Black Beaver

The sable neckpiece is very appropriate when worn with a smart hat of black beaver. The model is trimmed with Japanese zigzags.

Trimmings at the sides of all these hats are notable and most effective when it comes to telling the tale of modern style. Sometimes they are straight and stiff and applied to one side only. At other times they are softer and are placed on either side in exactly opposite positions. Again they are loose and flowing and graceful, being applied to one side only and allowed to sweep or flow over the neck and shoulders with a graceful sweeping for the face which makes them most attractive.

May Use Lace Scarf for Picturesque Touch

Striver cloth faces with an apricot shade is used for a model featuring a tracing lace scarf. The foundation, which is long and thin, has a very scalloped hem and a few swirling washlines accentuated by a thickly padded giraffe of frills made of green and yellow silk. The scarf is hand-painted in colors to match the giraffe and covers the entire back of the boater as well as the front, the chair trailing on the ground at the front.

These scarfs are particularly effective when worn in color to match the foundation. The use of lace lends a picturesque touch to the boater gown, and designers have been quick to take advantage of this. Lace from the scarf, lace may be introduced in a judicious, discreet, and subtle manner.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Relief When Other Medicines Failed

Winston-Salem, N. C.—"I was weak and run-down and had trouble with my side. I had been taking 'regular' medicines for a long time and nothing seemed to do me any good. My husband went to the drug store and he said to the clerk, 'I want the best medicine you have for women's troubles.' He gave him a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me. In a short time I was able to do my housework, and now I am not only able to do every bit of that and washing and ironing, but I help my husband at the store and feel good all the time."—Mrs. L. K. ## Feels New Life and Strength

Keene, N. H.—"I was weak and run-down and had backache and all sorts of troubles which women have. I found great relief when taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am able to do my work and feel new life and strength from the Vegetable Compound. I am doing it. I can be strong if I use it."—Mrs. A. F. FLETCHER, 25 Carpenter Street, Keene, N. H.

About 10,000 Americans committed suicide last year, according to insurance statisticians. It compares with around 10,000 murders. The suicide rate was 15 out of every 1,000 population. Figuring it on the basis of lifetimes, suicide apparently ends about 1 life out of every 150. It is a futile attempt to escape from the unescapable; for we take our troubles with us when we pass over.

The Capitan Bank

Concerning the closing of the First State Bank at Capitan, we have been requested by an official of that institution to say that "it is not probable that anybody will lose anything in connection with this bank."

The explanation continues to the effect that the First State Bank felt sure there would be a run, under the conditions existing, and the management deemed it advisable to close. The final statement, which many, having a knowledge of the bank's condition, believe to be true, reads: "This bank was in good shape at the time it closed."

Concerts Postponed

Baron Auriemma came in Tuesday afternoon and remained until the following day, when he left for Clovis where he will conduct a campaign for the Salvation Army. THE LINCOLN STATE BANK

CAPITAL $25,000.00 SURPLUS $15,000.00

CARRIZOZO, NEW MEX.

October 8, 1923

The Officers and Directors of the LINCOLN STATE BANK desire its customers and friends to know that this bank is not in any manner whatever connected with any other bank---that it is absolutely independent.

In the early part of March, the Stockholders of this Bank acquired by purchase all of its stock held by Exchange Bank interests, paying therefor $150 for every $100 worth of stock purchased, thus gaining entire and complete control.

These statements are not made with the intention of injury to others, but for the purpose of informing those interested in the conduct of the affairs of this Bank.

We thank our friends and the people of Lincoln County for the confidence and patronage which they have given us, and desire to assure them that this institution will continue to be conducted along conservative lines, and that we shall be glad to extend to them every courtesy in keeping with safe banking principles.

Yours very truly,

J. B. FRENCH, President.
A. J. ROLLAND, Vice President.
E. D. BOONE, Cashier.
