Baptists Plan $50,000.00 for Montezuma

(By Rev. T. M. Blacklock)
Last Sunday was a high day at Montezuma Baptist Assembly. Secretary C. W. Stumph, of the State Mission Board, brought a stirring message at the morning hour, at which four young people surrendered for work as preachers and missionaries. In the state B. Y. P. U. contest, Clovis won the pennant, with a grade of 96.58 per cent. Tucumcari was a close second, with a grade of 96.18 per cent.

In a great Rally Sunday afternoon, led by President Layton Maddox, a campaign was launched to secure $50,000.00 cash for Montezuma College. More than $5,000.00 of this amount was raised at the time, two men giving a thousand each. People of all denominations were represented in the giving. In his address the president said that the policy of the college was not to have a faculty of little men with small salaries, but big men with large salaries. At the same time he showed that practically all the members of the faculty had come to Montezuma on much smaller salaries than they were offered elsewhere. A letter was read from the State Superintendent showing that the work of the college is recognized as standard. The school opened its first session with sixty students and at the close of nine months had one hundred six. The summer session opens June 15, at which time sophomore work will be offered. The college plans to have a large part in the training of the teachers of the state.

Prof. Irl L. Allison, the new Music director, favored the audience with a number of selections of his own composition. There were nearly six hundred in attendance, being the largest congregation ever assembled at Montezuma College.

Going to Santa Fe

Mrs. Louise H. Coe, County Superintendent of Schools, expects to go to Santa Fe within a day or two. She goes to appear before the State Tax Commission in the interest of the schools of Lincoln county.

Educational News

(By Mrs. Louise H. Coe)

The books of the district clerks must be closed not later than June 25, in order that I may be prepared to settle all accounts against districts before July 1, the end of the fiscal school year.

Rural teachers employed for the school year 1923-24 are:

Lincoln—P. N. Bennett, Mrs. Almira Bennett, A. T. Pfingsten, Mrs. Grace Burleson, Clara Peppin; San Patricio—Mrs. Annie Henderson, Rosa Chavez, Frances Fritz; Ruidoso—Carrie Wicker, Ola Casey; Picacho—Virginia Morriss, Lily Casey; Encino—Marie Serna; White Oaks—J. The Lincoln County High School has not secured its full corps of teachers for the coming year. The grade teachers employed for Capitan are as follows: Mary Fritz, Lewis Cummins; Fort Stanton—Mrs. Minnie Dee Besse. Tucson—Mrs. Grace Comrey.

Since the majority of the teachers of Lincoln county are attending Summer School, there will be no Institute held in this county this summer.

Institute attendance for teachers is not compulsory under the New School Code, but the State Board of Education recommends that teachers attend a ten days Institute or Inspirational Meeting if possible.

Volstead Act Amended

The city council passed an ordinance Monday night, placing the city under the protecting folds of the Volstead act. Well, well, and then again, well. Carrizozo promises to be as dry as the National headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League.

Home Team Victors

Carrizozo chalked up an additional victory Sunday on the home grounds, defeating Willard by a score of 10 to 2. Willard sported an imported battery and expected much from it, especially the pitcher, who held a similar position with one of El Paso's league teams last year. Our boys, however, had no difficulty in connecting with the sphere, batted the ball all over the lot and the longer the game lasted the wider the margin grew.

This game closed the series on the home grounds for 'the time, and the Carrizozo team will now begin a series away from home, in return for the games played here and, also, taking on some new antagonists. The first game of the coming series is to be played with the Indians at Mes-calero next Sunday. This will be our team's first experience with the Noble Red Man on the diamond. When the Apaches come here to play a return game, we expect to have the Boy Scouts out to see that the visitors take no scalps, though they may indulge in their war whoops to any reasonable degree.

Dies at Luna

Mrs. Boydston, mother of Ira L. Boydston, died suddenly Monday night at the Luna pumping station, above Ancho. A violent stomach attack, from which no relief could be afforded, produced death. Undertaker Kelley embalmed the body, and burial took place in the White Oaks cemetery Wednesday.

Back After Long Absence

Roy Gumm stepped into our office Wednesday, greeted us and smiled—because recognition was not forthcoming—which he soon adjusted. Time had not dealt unkindly with him, apparently, except his locks had become silvered, which we could scarcely associate with the young man we had last seen, about sixteen years ago. He had just driven through in a Ford, in company with two friends, from San Diego, California, and the trio were on a prospecting trip with the San Andres as their objective. Roy is the youngest son of the the Gumm family which made its home at White Oaks for many years, and a brother of the late Wallace L. Gumm, the latter making Lincoln county his home until his death. Mrs. Gumm, postmistress, and her son Deane, respectively sister-in-law and nephew of Roy, are the only members of the Gumm family now residing in Lincoln county.

SPIRIT OF FLAG DAY, 1923

Francis Scott Key Memorial at Fort Mifflin, Philadelphia

Introduction by JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

On Memorial Day and before Independence Day, comes Flag Day. The flag has ever led to victory. Following the flag we have marked across the continent and have increased the 'new constellation' to 48 stars. The flag may float over the wealthiest and most powerful nation of earth. The Star-Spangled Banner is the oldest flag, the handsomest flag and the most inspiring flag that flies.

What follows is worthy of the flag and of Flag Day. "The Flag Goes By" was written by Henry Holcomb Bennett, author, artist, poet and patriot. "The Makers of the Flag" was delivered on Flag Day, 1914, before the employees of the Department of the Interior at Washington by the late Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior and the "Presidential Impasse Bill" because he was born across the Canadian border. President Harding's words are a part of his address at the dedication of the Francis Scott Key Memorial at Fort Mifflin, Baltimore, June 14, 1922.

THE FLAG GOES BY
Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a rattle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky;
Hats off!
The flag is passing by.

Blue and white and crimson it shines
Over the steel-tipped, ordered lines,
Hats off!
The colors before us fly;
But more than the flag is passing by.

Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Wearry marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;
Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law;
Stately honor and reverent awe;
Sign of a nation, great and strong,
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honor—all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.

MAKERS OF THE FLAG
This morning, as I passed into the land office, the flag dropped me a most coriolar salutation, and from its rippling folds I heard it say: "Good morning, Mr. Flag Maker."
"I beg your pardon, Old Glory," I said, "aren't you mistaken? I am not the president of the United States, nor a member of congress, nor even a general in the army. I am only a government clerk."
"I greet you again, Mr. Flag Maker," replied the gay voice; "I know you well. You are the man who worked in the sweater of yesterday straightening out the tangle of that farmer's homestead in Idaho, or perhaps you found the mistake in that Indian contract in Oklahoma, or helped to clear brought relief to the old soldier in Wyoming. No matter; whichever one of these beneficent individuals you may happen to be, I give you greeting, Mr. Flag Maker."

I was about to pass on, when the flag stopped me with these words:
"Yesterday the president spoke a word that made happier the future of 10,000,000 peons in Mexico; but that act looms no larger on the flag than the struggle which the boy in Georgia is making to win the corn club prize this summer."
"Yesterday the congress spoke a word which will open the door of Alaska; but a mother in Michigan worked from sunrise until far into the night to give her boy an education. She, too, is making the flag."
"Yesterday we made a new law to prevent financial panics, and yesterday, maybe, a school teacher in Ohio taught his first letters to a boy who will one day write a song that will give cheer to the millions of our race. We are all making the flag."
"But," I said impatiently, "these people were only working!"
"Then came a great shout from the flag:
"The work that we do is the making of the flag. I am not the flag; not at all. I am but its shadow.
"I am whatever you make me; nothing more.
"I am your better in yourself, your dream of what a people may become.
"I live a changing life, a life of moods and passions, of heart-breaks and tired muscles.
"Sometimes I am strong with pride; when men do an honest work, fitting the rails together truly.
"Sometimes I droop, for then purpose has gone from me, and cynicism I play the coward.
"Sometimes I am loud, garish, and full of that ego that blazes judgment.
"But always I am all that you hope to be and have the courage to try for.
"I am song and fear, struggle and panic, and ennobling hope.
"I am the day's work of the weakest man and the largest dream of the most daring.
"I am the Constitution and the courts, statutes and the statute-makers, soldier and dreadnaught, drayman and street sweep, cook, counselor and clerk.
"I am the battle of yesterday and the mistake of tomorrow.
"I am the mystery of the men who do without knowing why.
"I am the clutch of an idea and the reasoned purpose of resolution.
"I am no more than what you believe me to be and I am all that you believe that I can be.
"I am what you make me; nothing more.
"I swing before your eyes as a bright gleam of color, a symbol of yourself, the pictured suggestion of that big thing which makes this nation. My stars and my stripes are your dream and your labors. They are bright with cheer, brilliant with courage, firm with faith, because you have made them so out of your hearts; for you are the makers of the flag, and it is well that you glory in the making."

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY MEMORIAL
My fellow Americans—The shrines of American patriotism not only reflect the quality of its gratitude, but they are ever-refreshing and inspiring. We are assembled today to rededicate one of these sacred shrines. We are met to commemorate a historic victory in arms, when the young Republic national inspiration. Here the patriotic sons of the early Republic crushed one of the most ambitious invasions ever aimed against our nation. Here, during the rage of combat, was born the swelling anthem of American patriotism.

It is wholly fitting that Flag Day should be chosen for this commemoration and rededication, because our hymn of patriotism is an apostrophe to the flag we love. Yes, it is apostrophe and invocation as well, born of a patriotic and poetic soul in the travail of a sublimely heroic night.
If one, forgetting the music, will ponder that poem of battle and victory and thanksgiving, I think he will comprehend the elements that have made it great—great as a song of patriotism and exaltation, great merely as a piece of poetical portraiture. The first stanza tells the anxiety with which, after the bombardment had ceased, the author peered through the mists of dawn and asked the one question whose answer would tell the fateful story:
"Can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,
In the second stanza he glimpses the banner, and bursts into song of rejoicing. The third stanza is a defiance of the oppressor; and then, in the fourth and last stanza, we find the note of thanksgiving, the prayer that the victory may be justified in the conduct of a race of freemen:
"O, thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand
Between their lov'd homes and the war's desolation,
That was the poet's prayer. We may fairly claim, in pride for the deeds of our fathers, our sons, our brothers, the prayer has been granted. The faith has been kept.
It is the hope of every American heart today that it will continue to be kept. The intervening century has brought our country power and high places. It has cast upon us heavy burdens of responsibility, making us share the difficult problems of a world in the turmoil of a new time. We need all the inspiration and faith which fired his glowing soul of patriotism. No generation of men has ever come into the world to find its path smoothed, or to find its problems solved for it in advance. Solution is the fit price we pay for our great inheritance of liberty and opportunity.
The outstanding and the reassuring thought of today is the supreme exaltation of Key, in the hour of great trial, to reveal the soul of a patriot, in the night of surpassing anxiety and devotion to country.
No concern for self narrowed his thought. No glorification of the individual marred his vision. No pursuit of fame set his soul ablaze. No personal advantage hindered his pen. His country and his concern for its safety were combined in his all-consuming thought; the nation was the great, uplifting and exalting love. In this impassioned, anxious, self-sacrificing, exalting and exulting love of country, transcending all else, Key reached the sublime heights, and wrote the poetic revelation of an American soul, as fame.
An American citizenship of the high and simple faith of Francis Scott Key, ardor for defense, and no less devoted in meeting the problems of peace, will add to the luster of the banner he so proudly proclaimed. Every glittering star is fixed, every worth-while procession is the more impressive for its bearing, every passion for country is refined by its unfolding. On ships of mercy or vessels of war, in the armed camp or at the memorials of peace, in the rejoicing procession or flying from the staff over the simple temples of the schooling youth of America—everywhere it pleases the eye, and reassures the heart and stirs the soul, until we sing in all confidence with the poet:

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Uncle Sam Needs Many New Buildings

WASHINGTON.—Congress at its next session will be urged by the President to appropriate sufficient public money that the government's agencies may be properly housed in Washington.
The problems of housing the various departments and bureaus of the government was discussed at a cabinet meeting at the White House and it was agreed by all present that between now and the time congress convenes a consistent and economical construction program must be carefully prepared. It seemed to be the opinion of the meeting that the building program should not be confined to Washington, but should answer the needs of the federal government in its operations throughout the entire country.
The President and his advisers are in accord with the general idea presented by the fine arts commission, which calls for a centralization of government departments in the mall and south of Pennsylvania avenue, and it was intimated after the cabinet meeting that the program to be prepared very likely will include these ideas.
According to the views expressed by a number of the cabinet officers during the discussion, the problems of housing have grown to embarrassing proportions. The condition of some of the rented buildings is such that not only is the health of occupants endangered, but the efficiency of workers is being impaired. The discussion was brought up by Secretary Mellon of the treasury, who stated that he wanted advice on how to handle the situation, which up to that time had him "stumped." One rented building under his department and which houses a certain section of the income tax division is in such need of repair that the building has actually become unsafe.
Secretary Mellon was followed by other cabinet officers, each with their gloomy accounts of housing conditions of their respective departments. Each gave the opinion that the problem is becoming worse each year, and that already it had been found difficult to efficiently carry on the work of the government.
Postmaster General New, in describing the problems of his department, is known to have told the gathering that the demands for better housing facilities for post offices throughout the United States are most extraordinary and insistent.
It was pointed out that the normal business of the department has increased more than 250 per cent. The buildings are still being used throughout the country which were either exalted or rented for the use of the department as far back as fifty years ago.

Wedding in High Life Is "Postponed"

THE marriage of Miss Nancy Hoyt, the twenty-year-old daughter of the late Henry M. Hoyt, solicitor general under the Taft administration, to Lieut. F. Wiseman Clarke, twenty-three, R. N., has been indefinitely postponed. According to a statement issued by Mrs. Hoyt, the plans for the wedding were canceled because of the sudden and serious illness of her daughter. It is understood, however, that the engagement is broken.
Lieutenant Wiseman-Clarke and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wiseman-Clarke, who arrived for the wedding, returned to England.
The matrimonial troubles of Miss Hoyt's sister, Mrs. Horace Wylie, who has been twice divorced and whose first husband, Philip Hiehorn, committed suicide, are rumored to be the real cause of the breaking off of the marriage.
The facts, it is said, were previously unknown to the young man's family, who were greatly shocked. Mrs. Hoyt was so seriously offended that she at once terminated the engagement.
News of the cancelling of the marriage shocked Washington society. Dinner and dances in honor of the bridal party had been given every evening for a week, the concluding festivity being the dinner-dance given by Senator and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., whose daughter, Evelyn, was to have been one of Miss Hoyt's bridesmaids.
Ellnor Hoyt, it will be remembered, first married Philip Hiehorn, son of the late Admiral Hiehorn, leaving him and their infant son nearly fifteen years ago to elope with Horace Wylie, a man nearly twenty years her senior, married and the father of four children.
Within a year Mr. Wylie and Mrs. Hiehorn returned and left together a few months later. Mrs. Wylie in the interval having adjusted his business affairs and settled nearly all his property on his wife.
About a year later Philip Hiehorn shot himself. Shortly afterward Mrs. Wylie divorced her husband, who married Mrs. Hiehorn with the least possible delay.
For the last few years Mrs. Wylie has devoted herself to writing and has become widely known as a poet. Recently it was reported that she was about to marry William Rose Benet, who denied it.

Vacation Season Brings Forest Fires

RECENT forest fires in Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and New Jersey—several of them near Washington, and some of them close to other large centers—have taught the people of this section the lesson which the forest service has long been endeavoring to impress upon the people of the country as a whole.
One of these fires raged over an area of 10 square miles within an alarmingly short distance of the nation's capital city, and caused a large loss of property in houses, barns, etc., in addition to the loss in timber.
During the coming summer there will be approximately 34,000 of these forest fires, if the annual average of the last six years is maintained. Last year 33,400 such fires were reported to the federal authorities.
The lesson to be learned is not alone of the great loss which they cause, but that almost all of them could be prevented. Fully 80 per cent are the result of carelessness or ignorance, or both. Natural causes are responsible for only about one-tenth.
"Will we this year have learned our lesson of care?" asks Col. W. B. Greeley, chief of the forest service, "or will

Why Gen. Dawes Said "H-I and Maria!"

HE USED to be a clerk in one of the government departments during the, in a manner of speaking, late war. One day a desk was deposited in the hall outside his door. He needed a desk, just that sort of a desk.
"Shall I make out a requisition for it, sir?" he asked the head clerk.
The head clerk is an old-timer in government circles. He recalled to his subordinate's mind the incident of the mule which was shot and which, upon inquiry, proved to be the wrong mule. Whereupon 48 letters were written and the time of many men in war time was taken up in putting the record straight.
"First take the desk," said he. "Then put in your requisition."
So the clerk who needed a desk took the desk and put in his requisition. Time went on. He used the desk until it became warped and scratched. He forgot about the requisition, the head clerk forgot about it, every body forgot it.
"But the point is that in almost 100 per cent of cases I get what I go after," said he. "Whereas in the strictly conventional way I might average a bad one-third."
No doubt there is a moral which proves that he is entirely wrong.

Senator Borah Condemns Excessive Federal Taxes

Condemnation of excessive federal taxes was one of the themes of a speech delivered by Senator Borah, of Idaho, in Manchester, New Hampshire, a few days ago. The American people are now carrying a heavier burden of taxation than ever was borne by any nation in history, Senator Borah declared.

"There is nothing which you buy which you have to have in order to live - gas, coal, freight rates, clothes, education - but is seriously burdened or withheld from you by reason of these taxes," said Senator Borah.

Senator Borah charged that a clique of a few men had combined to gouge consumers of sugar of millions and that another set had compelled the people to pay exorbitant prices for coal and freeco. The government, he declared, was not in a position to render any aid to the public against the extortioners.

The expenses of the Federal Government for all purposes - army, navy and various activities - are now running about $4,400,000,000 a year. The profiteers' tariff enacted by the present Republican administration is adding to the cost of living about $4,000,000,000 annually. If the cost of government cannot be reduced it is certain that the taxes on consumption can not be cut in half - thus giving the people a very considerable relief. Senator Borah did not suggest this method, though he voted against the tariff.

G. O. P. Gems

From the State Journal (Rep.)

We don't know for sure, just what issues our great president is going to emphasize on his swing across the continent, but our own plan for the coming campaign of education and accounting of our stewardship is to act as if the Fordney-McCumber law weren't there at all, heeklers or no heeklers.

Well, we see the forward-looking farm credits law, from which we expect such excellent results in next year's campaign of education - it is now in full operation and it is very gratifying to know that the toil-worn and sorely beset farmer can borrow money at 6 per cent just as easily as he could before.

Attention is called to the Board of Violations of the Prohibition Law within the limits of the Village of Carrizozo and the need of an ordinance providing punishment for violators of said law, and after a general discussion of the subject, Trustee T. E. Kelley presents to the Board Ordinance Number 27, entitled an ordinance prohibiting the manufacture, sale, etc., of intoxicating liquors within the Village of Carrizozo.

After the reading of the proposed ordinance No. 27, Geo. T. McQuillen, trustee, makes a motion that rule Nos. 11, 12 and 13, governing the passage or ordinances, be suspended for the purpose of passing this ordinance, and that said Ordinance No. 27 be read by title a second and a third time and passed and approved by the Board. The said motion having been seconded by Trustee Fred Lalone, the Mayor, J. M. Taylor, calls for a vote upon the same, which carried by the unanimous vote of all members present, as follows:

Ayes: G. T. McQuillen, T. E. Kelley, Fred Lalone.

Nays: None.

The Mayor then declares said Ordinance No. 27 passed and approved by the Board.

Attention is then called to the advisability of the Board designating a depository for the School District No. 7 School Funds, and it being apparent from the correspondence submitted from the State Comptroller and the office of the State Superintendent of Schools that it is the duty of the Board to designate such depository, Geo. T. McQuillen moves that the Lincoln State Bank be designated as such depository upon complying with the law as to depository bond, and that the clerk be instructed to notify the County Treasurer of such designation. Upon the second of this motion by Trustee Fred Lalone, the same is put by the Mayor, J. M. Taylor, and carried.

The said Lincoln State Bank, of Carrizozo, is then declared, by the Mayor, to be the depository of the funds of School District No. 7, upon said bank qualifying as such by giving the bond required by law.

Attention of the Board is then called to the necessity of taking care of accumulation in and stagnation of water in the dead ends of the Village water system, which matter, after general discussion, is referred to the Water, Sewer and Light Committee, with instructions to immediately proceed with the connecting of said dead ends, or providing other substantial relief.

The Mayor, with the approval of the Board of Trustees, then appoints A. H. Harvey trustee to fill the vacancy of C. H. Haines, previously appointed trustee, but who never qualified for the office, by taking the oath of said office. There being no further business before the Board, the same is declared adjourned.

Baptist Church

(T. M. BLACKLOCK, PASTOR, P. 2050)

The pastor will return from Montezuma Assembly in time for the regular services Sunday. At the morning hour we expect to have a baptismal service.

A training class in Sunday School work will begin Saturday evening at 7:30, and continue through the coming week. This is a part of the work planned all over the state. The people of the church and town are cordially invited to these meetings. The work will be conducted in such a manner as to interest all who come.

MOTOR MOUNTED ON POWER STAND

New Electric Equipment Has Proved Useful to Farmers During the Busy Season.

CAN BE EASILY MOVED ABOUT

Called the "Extra Hand on the Farm," Because It Can Do So Many Small Duties—Motor is 1/4 H. P.

In an endeavor to solve, to some extent, the labor problem on American farms, the General Electric Company has brought out a unique, yet simple, apparatus known as a power stand. It enables a small, powerful motor to be transported from place to place about the farm, mounted on a tripod. The tripod is provided with a combination pulley, which allows either a round or a flat belt to be used. The motor can also be connected directly to the farm machine which it is to drive. No new parts need be secured, but the handle of the farm machine need simply be replaced by a pulley, to enable the power stand motor to be connected up.

To steady the tripod against the vibrations of the motor there is a telescoping rod which allows it to be braced against the farm device which it is operating and a strap, which is snapped into a screw-eye in the floor. Included with the equipment is a standard plug and twenty feet of cord.

The motor is of the fractional horsepower type, not above one-fourth horsepower in rating. It will operate at 110 or 220 volts, 60, 50, 40, 30 or 25 cycles, alternating current, and at 110, 220 or 32 volts, direct current.

Gives Farm an Extra Hand

What the power stand, with its motor practically amounts to is an extra hand on the farm. It can work away at one farm operation watched by a young boy, or even a woman, thus requiring only the attendance of someone who would not be able to participate in the heavy duties of the farm. Meanwhile the able-bodied working force can carry on the pressing occupations of the moment without being retarded by the necessity of doing the lighter work that the power stand handles.

This lighter work includes such duties as operating a grindstone, a feed grinder, a corn sheller, fanning mills, cider presses, horse clippers or watering pumps. The power stand, as an "extra hand" or a farm helper whom somebody has described as "never quitting," can also run a churn, a cream ripener, a cream separator, an emery wheel or such devices as fruit graders, ice breakers, ironing machines, small lathes, milk mixers, sheep shears, sausage stuffers, washing machines or pea and bean hullers.

A Lift in the Rush Season

During the perennial rush season on the farm, when duties come pressing from morn to night, the power stand answers two momentous questions: "Which job shall be done first?" and "Which man can be spared to do it?" Actual experience on farms where the power stand has so far been put into use proves the usefulness of the power stand and the timeliness of its appearance. It allows more time for other things; it releases more manpower for the fields; it eliminates the vexatious interruptions which always occur when human hands undertake a task, for the tireless motor works right ahead until the work is done. The fact that it is portable and can be carried to the work, on any part of the farm, has appealed to many users.

The power stand works as well if the electricity comes from an individual farm lighting outfit as it does when the energy is purchased from a power company's lines.

Parsons News Letter

Parsons, June 13

Mrs. W. L. Weber and two children, of Fort Bayard, are with Mrs. Weber's parents for a few weeks.

The Woman's Club of Oscurro, fortified by several ladies from Carrizozo were the guests Sunday of Mrs. C. A. Culter. A picnic dinner was served, and everyone enjoyed the day on the Bonito.

Aside from the gathering at the Culter home, the upper Bonito was practically deserted Sunday. Everyone who was able to do so motored over to the Ruidoso to see the aeroplanes.

Fishing parties are to be seen along the steams most any day, but so far no one has been able to depart with marvelous tales of the fish "they have caught"—that is, if they told the truth.

Mr. Norman of Roswell, one of the real old timers of the Bonito, manages to return each summer on some pretext or other. This year he came fishing and had for a buddy Dr. Presley of Roswell.

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS TAKE NOTICE

I find that a number of automobile owners in Lincoln county have not yet made application for their 1923 license, and it is my duty as Sheriff to remind them of the fact that the law is strict, and requires me to apprehend the owners of all cars that do not bear a 1923 license plate. It is an offense, punishable by a fine, and every day the car is operated constitutes a separate offense. It is not my desire to apprehend any car owner on this charge, but the law makes it my duty.

You will oblige by calling at the court house and making your application at once.

Ordinance No. 27

An Ordinance Prohibiting the Manufacture, Sale, Importation, Use and Possession of Intoxicating Liquor within the Village of Carrizozo, Lincoln County, State of New Mexico, and Providing a Penalty for the Violation thereof:

Be it ordained by the Board of Trustees of the Village of Carrizozo, New Mexico:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, association or corporation within this Village to manufacture for sale, barter or give any ardent spirits, ale, beer, alcohol, wine, of liquor of any kind whatsoever, containing alcohol, or for any person, association or corporation to bring in and import into this Village any such liquor or beverages for sale, barter or gift, or to sell or barter, or keep for sale or barter, any of such liquors or beverages, or offer any such beverages for sale, barter or trade; provided, nothing in this section shall be held to apply to denatured or wood alcohol or grain alcohol when intended and used for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes only, or to wine, when intended and used for sacramental purposes only, within this Village.

Section 2. It shall be unlawful for the proprietor, owner or manager, or his or her family, or agent, servant or employee of the proprietor, owner or manager of any hotel, rooming house, or place where lodging is furnished for hire, restaurant or place where meals are served for compensation, or any pool or billiard hall, to bring into, serve or dispense or have or keep in or about such building or place or any building or buildings connected therewith or adjacent thereto, any intoxicating liquor of any kind or character; provided, that the provisions of this section as to possession shall not apply to the portion of said premises or buildings adjacent to or connected therewith, used and occupied exclusively as the home of any person; but it shall be nevertheless unlawful for any person or any member of his or her family, or his or her servant, employee or agent to serve, or in any manner dispense, or permit to be served or dispensed in or about such premises, any intoxicating liquors to any person, within the limits of the Village of Carrizozo.

Section 3. It shall be unlawful for any club, society or fraternal organization to have, keep, maintain or serve intoxicating liquors of any kind or character in any building situate within the Village of Carrizozo and occupied by such club, society or organization, or any room or place connected with or adjacent to said building.

PENALTY

Section 4. Any person violating any of the provisions of the preceding sections shall be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of not less than ninety days nor more than six months, and the court shall have no power to suspend the imposition or execution of any sentence required by this ordinance to be imposed for violation hereof.

Section 5. For the better enforcement of this ordinance it shall be the duty of the Marshal of Carrizozo, upon his learning and personal knowledge of any violation of this ordinance, to go before the Justice of the Peace in this Village, make or cause to be made, a complaint against any person violating the same, procure a warrant for the arrest of such person and make and arrest by virtue of same, and assist generally in procuring witnesses to support the allegations of the complaint.

The foregoing ordinance consisting of five sections was passed by the Board of Trustees of the Village of Carrizozo, on the 11th day of June, 1923.

Approved this 11th day of June, 1923.

A VICTORY FOR AMERICA MOTORISTS

The Crude Rubber Monopoly weakened when it came into contact with aroused public sentiment. The press of the country today reflects the determination of the American Motorist that tire prices shall stay at a reasonable level—and that America must produce its own rubber.

Firestone CUTS TIRE PRICES

EFFECTIVE JUNE 11

We announce a 10% reduction in tires and tubes effective June 11. The lowered cost of crude rubber and the special Firestone manufacturing and distribution advantages make this possible.

Firestone factories are organized on a basis of large volume and effective production, prior costs are down but quality is at its peak. Stockholder workmen are daily building many thousands of Gum-Dipped Cords—the best tire Firestone ever produced and, we believe, the leader on the market today.

Firestone Cords took the first four places and eight of the ten money positions in the Indianapolis sweepstakes, May Thirtieth, without a single tire failure.

Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords have set new standards in mileage, traction, comfort and safety. Car owners have expressed their approval of the extra value in Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords by increasing their purchases 104% in the past six months.

We have replaced many expensive branches with warehouses. We now have 100 distributing points which are delivering Firestone tires to the consumer at the lowest cost in our history.

Follow the tide of economical tire buying—equip with Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords—and learn what Most Miles per Dollar means to you today.

LADY WAS IN A BAD FIX FROM NERVOUS INDIGESTION

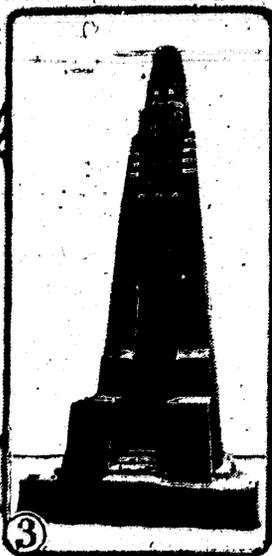

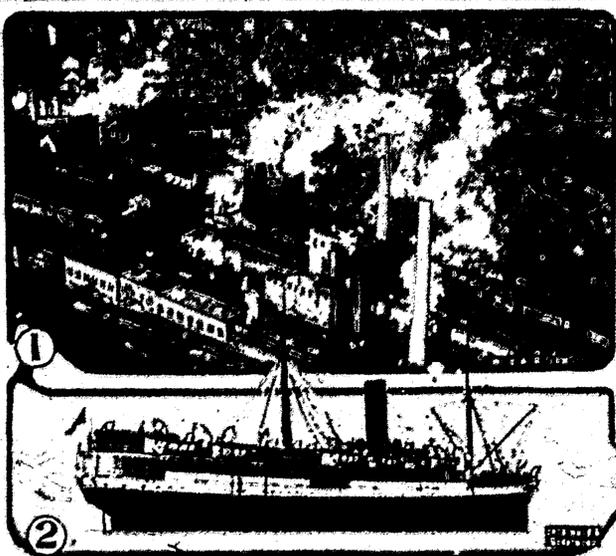

Blotz, Miss.—"I had, for a year or more, nervous indigestion, or some form of stomach trouble," says Mrs. Alonzo Ford, 1117 Clay Street, this city. "The water I drank at that time seemed to constipate me. I would suffer until I got so nervous I wanted to get down on the floor and roll. I felt like I could tear my clothes.

"Every night, and night after night, I had to take something for a laxative, and it had to be kept up nightly. My side would pain. I looked awful. My skin was sallow and seemed spotted. I would look at my hands and arms, and the flesh looked flabby.

"I happened to get a Black-Draught, so I told my husband I would try the that nervous, tight feeling was going, as was the pain in my side. I found I did not have to take it every night. Soon, after a few weeks, I could leave it off for a week or so, and I did not suffer with constipation. . . I gained flesh. I have a good color, and believe it was a stubborn liver, and that Black-Draught did the work.

"I went to my mother's (Mrs. Deeters) one day, and she wasn't well at all. . . I told her we'd try Black-Draught. We did, and now she keeps it to take after eating. It certainly helped her, and we neither will be without it in our homes. It is so simple, and the dose can be regulated as the case may be. We use small doses after meals for indigestion,

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Henry Ford's Probable Candidacy for Presidency Interests the Whole Country.

HE MAY HEAD THIRD PARTY

Railway Chiefs Reply to Attack of LaFollette's Valuation Conference—Strike in the Ruhr Ending—German Chancellor Preparing New Reparations Offer.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Women from 15 states, meeting in Chicago, have planned a co-operative association for the marketing of eggs through the establishment of selling exchanges in the various states. In this way they think the profits of the flock owners will be tripled and consumers will be saved from 5 to 10 cents a dozen. What is your opinion of the project?

NOT only the politicians, but all other Americans are intensely interested in the prospective candidacy of Henry Ford for a presidential nomination. The vague talk that has been heard for months and even years has within the last week of two crystallized into a definite "movement" which demands recognition. Enamel Ford is quoted as saying his father is seriously intending to enter the race and actually means to stand for nomination. Whether he will seek the nomination from the Republican or the Democratic party or will head an independent ticket is not yet known, and is the question that is causing the politicians considerable anxiety. The Republican leaders say they are not worried about it, since Ford was a Democratic candidate for the Michigan senatorship, and that, even if he did enter the Republican primaries, he would not cut much of a figure. It is generally believed Ford will be the nominee of a third party, and if so, he will have the support of William Randolph Hearst and all the Hearst newspapers. In a published interview Hearst said: "If the presidency of the United States were to be settled by popular vote today Henry Ford would be President, and I am with him because of this. He is the man that should have all the people's support. But the only way Henry Ford can ever run for the presidency will be to run as an independent candidate. I am a great believer in independence and for that reason want to stand with him in his great fight for recognition."

The American Economic league, organized to sponsor a third party movement, was in session in Omaha last week, and its president, Roy M. Harrop, said there was no doubt that Ford was his choice for the presidency, that the league already was active in 17 states in efforts to get Mr. Ford's name before the voters and that the organization would be extended until all states were included. Mr. Ford himself refuses to comment on the matter, because, he says, no authoritative group has yet signaled it wants him to be a candidate. "As far as national problems go the two big problems at this time are the railroads and the judiciary. We pay our judges such inadequate salaries that some of them are retained by corporations because they don't get enough to live on. There is no question but that the railroads should operate under one central head. They are one indispensable agency for commercial expansion."

FROM another point of view the statements comprising Senator LaFollette's "National Conference on Valuation of American Railroads" also profess to look on the railroads as one of our greatest problems. The conference wound up its Chicago session with threats to invoke court action to compel the interstate commerce commission to find the "original cost" of the railroads and the "public donations" to them. Presidents of six big rail systems, stirred by the denings of the LaFollette conference, issued a statement charging that the radicals do not aim at fair regulation of the railroads but seek to cripple private management and thus to make government ownership inevitable. "The railroads cannot furnish the public adequate and satisfactory service," says the statement, "unless they can constantly raise large amounts of new capital with which to increase the capacity of their equipment and other facilities. They cannot raise the new capital required for these purposes unless they can earn a net return sufficient to pay reasonable interest and dividends upon the existing investment in railroad properties and upon additional investment that must be made. The net return the railroads are now allowed to earn is based upon the tentative valuation made by the interstate commerce commission. The net return they will be allowed to earn in future will be based upon the final valuation made by the commission. The proponents of government ownership are seeking to get a low valuation and a consequent drastic reduction of the net return allowed, for the plain purpose of making it impossible for the railroads under private management to raise new capital, enlarge the capacity of the properties, and satisfactorily handle the country's business."

Smooth Surface Needed for Concrete Highways

If we are going to construct a concrete surface for our primary roads, it is very important that the surface of the concrete should be made smooth. Not only does this smoothness add to the comfort of the traffic, but it is also a factor in the lasting quality of the road surface. The ordinary layman very seldom thinks of the impact as the load passes over the rough road. If the pavement is rough the impact may be serious. Recent experiments by the United States bureau of roads have given us data concerning this impact, which are very interesting. For instance, if truck wheels drop one inch when traveling at a speed of 16 miles an hour, and if the wheel load is 8,000 pounds, they will deliver a blow to the pavement of 56,000 pounds, or seven times as much as the load of the wheel. Under the same load, the pneumatic tired wheels deliver an impact equivalent to 14,000 pounds. Often this impact is not caused by rough pavement but by a defective wheel, or a small obstruction dropped on the road surface, or if large skid chains are used. The wheel strikes the obstruction, rises over it, and falls, delivering an impact. Or, if the solid rubber tire is defective, each revolution of the wheel delivers an impact to the pavement. It may be that with our heavy truck traffic, the cement surfacing will be stressed to an extreme extent by this impact on account of the rough surface or defective wheel. The surface cracks and breaks, and repairs are necessary. The surface of the concrete for our roads can be made smooth if care is taken in surfacing the same, and the inspectors should see to it that this surfacing is rightly done.—E. R. House, Colorado Agricultural College.

Jacks Protect Highways From Overloaded Trucks

Weighing jacks with which the load carried by a heavy truck may be ascertained by road police are helping Maryland protect its new state roads from damage by overweight vehicles. Most roads are constructed to withstand a moving load of ten tons. Heavier loads break down the surface and start ruts, the police assert. Each weighing machine consists of a screwjack operating in an oil-filled cylinder. When four of these jacks are placed under the suspected truck, lifting it clear of the ground, its weight is transferred to the oil cylinders and can be read directly on the pressure gauge. If the truck is found to weigh more than ten tons, the excess material is unloaded by the roadside. The jacks are of aluminum alloy, weighing only 40 pounds each, so that the inspectors can carry them about in a light car. State officials estimate that this supervision reduced overloading 75 per cent within 80 days. California has also recently passed a law limiting the weight of motor-trucks, and road officials and taxpayers are seeking to reduce the maximum permissible weight below the limit now set—30,000 pounds gross weight for four-wheeled trucks, and 40,000 pounds for six-wheeled vehicles, providing the axles are at least 96 inches apart, and there are not more than 800 pounds on each inch of rubber tire width.—Popular Science Monthly.

Iron Ore Quite Useful in Road Construction

Iron ore, found in northwestern Louisiana, has proven of great value in road building in that state and, in some localities where it has been used, has effected a saving of $2,000 to $3,000 a mile in the cost of construction. Highway engineers in Louisiana have been using the ore as a binder instead of sand clay and have found it far superior to that material in many instances. During 1922 the Louisiana state highway department completed 850 miles of new roads. Most of this mileage consists of gravel. The remainder consists of roads built of shells, sheet asphalt or bitulithic. The 1923 program includes a larger amount of asphaltic construction.

Growing Popularity of Autos Shows Road Needs

With the growing popularity of the automobile, there has come a parallel increase in the need of building up the highways. Of course, it is not to be done within a few years. Many sections of the Old World have excellent highways, but they have been built for centuries. But certainly we should begin now to lay the foundation of a great highway system. Many Motor Vehicles. According to figures compiled by the bureau of public roads in Washington, there are 12,338,375 motor vehicles in the United States. The report shows 10,800,113 private passenger cars, 66,400 taxicabs, busses and cars for hire, 122,714 motorcycles and 29,238 trailers. Illinois State Roads. The Illinois highway commission is working toward the completion of 1,000 miles of state paved roads.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success. An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

THIS LITTLE BABY GIRL

Was Benefited by the Good Her Mother Got from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my little girl was born, and the effect it had was wonderful. This will be the first child I have nursed, as I had to bring my two boys up on the bottle. I was very nervous and worried, tired all the time, and after I read about the Vegetable Compound I tried it and kept on with it. I still continue its use and recommend it to my friends. You may publish these facts as a testimonial for your medicine."—Mrs. Wm. Klinger, 169 Plymouth St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after the birth of the child, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It can be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success. An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

THE CHART

SYNOPSIS.—Cruising with his friend, Sir William Skelton, on the yacht, Dryad, the Bahama bank, Bobby Ratcliffe, wealthy, twenty-two and impressionable, becomes dissatisfied with conditions on board. The arrival of a small fishing boat attracts his attention and he visits her, finding the vessel is the Sarah Tyler, owned and sailed by Satan, Tyler and his sister Jude, the latter in the costume and having the manners and appearance of a boy. Ratcliffe is strongly attracted by Satan and Jude and envies their adventurous life. Following a quarrel with Skelton, Ratcliffe accepts the invitation of the Tylers and joins them on their boat.

"Not much!" said Jude. "They'd boot you off the ship. Water's what you ask for, pretendin' you're dying of thirst; then you drink till you're near bustin' and all the breaker you've brought with you. It's all on the square. Satan would never hold up a ship unless he had some fish to offer them for whatever he wants—potatoes or fruit or tobacco. He's got the fish in the boat and hands it up. They're always glad of fresh fish and they offer to buy it; but he won't take money, but says, 'If you've got a few potatoes handy, I don't mind takin' them for the fish.' Sometimes it's fruit he wants, or other things. Then you push off—and if it's a passenger packet the passengers, thinkin' they've saved you from dyin' of thirst, line up and cheer. It's no end of fun."

"What flag do you sail under?"

"Murricean, what else? You see," went on Jude as she put the potatoes into the kettle, "fish costs nothing to us and they're mighty glad of it, but reckon they'd bat our heads off if they knew about the dyin' of thirst business."

"But suppose you struck the same ship twice?"

"It's not a job one does every day," said Jude, with a trace of contempt in her tone, "and Satan, don't wear blinkers, and it's not a job you could do at all if you didn't know the lie of the fishin' banks by where the ship tracks run. I reckon you've got to learn something about things."

"I reckon I have," said Ratcliffe, laughing, "and I bet you'll teach me!"

"Well, shy that over to begin with," said Jude, giving him the pail of dirty water.

He flung the water over the side. When dinner was over Jude made Ratcliffe help to wash up the plates and things in the galley.

"Satan's cap," said Jude. "He never helps in the washin' or swillin'. Not cold water!—land's sake! where did you learn washin' up?—hot! I've left some in that billy on the stove."

She had taken off her old coat and rolled her guernsey sleeves up to the shoulders nearly, and it came to Ratcliffe as he helped, without a word of remonstrance, naturally, and as a part adapts itself to the economy of a whole, he had sunk into the position of kitchen maid and general helper to the Tyler family; furthermore that Satan was less a person than a subtle influence. Satan seemed to obtain his ends more by wishing than by willing. He wanted an extra hand, and he had somehow put the spell of his wish on him, Ratcliffe.

Only for Jude and the Sarah and the queer new sense of freedom from all the associations he had ever known, only for something likable about Satan, the something that gave him power to wheedle things out of people and bend them to his wishes, Ratcliffe might have reacted against the Tyler hypnotism. As it was, the whole business seemed as jolly as a pantomime, as exciting as a new form of novel in which the folk were real and himself a character.

Leaving Satan and the old Sarah aside, and the extraordinary fascination of spars, sails, narrow deck and close sea, catching one's own fish, cooking one's own food, and dickered with winds, waves, reefs and lee shores for a living—leaving all these aside, Jude alone would have held him; for Jude gave him what he possessed when he was nine—the power of playing again, of seeing everything new and fresh. Already they were good companions and, when together of the same age, about nine—though she was fifteen and he over twenty.

"Stick them on that shelf," said Jude. "Oh, Lord!—butter-fingers!—lemme! That's the gadget to keep them from shittin' if the ship rolls. Now stick the knives in that locker. You don't mind my tellin' you, do you?"

"Not a bit."

"Well, that's all."

They found Satan under the awning, attending to the gooseneck of the spars gaff.

Jude sat down on the deck clasping her knees, criticized Satan's handiwork, received instructions to hold her tongue, and then collapsed, lying on her back with knees up and the back of her head across her eyes. She could sleep at any odd moment.

"He Said There Was a Hundred Thousand Dollars Aboard Her."

hold of the gaff and keep it steady while I fix this ring to her!"

He worked away in silence while Ratcliffe sat watching, vaguely intrigued by what had just passed. It was less the words than the place and circumstances—the little deck of the Sarah Tyler, the blue, lazy sea, the voice of the surf on Palm Island, the figure of Jude and Satan. He had seen Rum Cay. They had passed it in a pink and pearly dawn. The steward had called him up to look at it. South of that lonely and fascinating place old man Tyler had located a sunk ship. What sort of ship he knew instinctively and that the Tylers were not the people to halloo over nothing. The gulls did not know these seas better than they.

"Look here," said Ratcliffe. "I'll help you if you care to go for it. I don't want any share; just the fun. What's in her?"

"Well," said Satan in a half-hearted way, "maybe we'll have a look at her; but it's a job that wants more than three by rights. Pap was three men in himself; he'd a done it. It's a dynamite job. She's got to be blasted open."

"I've heard stories about buried treasure in these seas—" began Ratcliffe. Jude turned her head.

"That's bilge," said she.

"Yarns," said Satan. "Pap used to turn any man down that talked of stuff bein' buried. Havana is full of tall stories of buried treasure—chaps make a livin' sellin' locations and loon in Havana he heard three Spanish chaps layin' their heads together. He knew the lingo well enough to make out their meanin'. They were in the bar. Pap was sitting there that night just dead beat, as any man might be after the day's work he'd done, runnin' the customs—"

"Luff!" said Jude in a warning voice.

"Oh, close your head! Think I am talkin' to a customs officer? He don't care."

"Not a bit," said Ratcliffe. "Heave ahead."

"Well, he was sittin' with his eyes shut, and he heard these guys coludn' together. He didn't get more than half they said, but he got enough to make him want to hear more. Then they quit the bar and went into a back room with their lemon juice and cigarettes. Ten minutes after, he broke loose in that back room, and when Pap and the bartender got the door open there was the chaps, one on the floor shot through the head and the other two near done in. Two of them had set on the guy that was dead; but they hadn't knocked him out before he began to shoot, and he'd pretty well riddled them with a Colt automatic pistol. Then they must have knocked it out of his hand and used the last shot on him."

"His brains were all over the floor," said Jude with relish. "Pap said they looked like white of egg beat up and enough to fill a puddin' basin."

"Pap spotted somethin' else on the floor," went on Satan. "A piece of paper folded double. He put it in his pocket while the fellers were bein' lifted to the hospital, where they died that same night. He was on the square all right, takin' that paper, and I'll tell you why. Six months before that we'd spotted a wreck comin' up from Guadaloupe. She's so placed—as maybe you'll see yourself one day—that a hundred ships might have passed her without spottin' her, and bein' out of trade tracks made her all the safer. These guys had been talkin' about a wreck before they left the bar for the back room, and he reckoned it was our find they were onto. The piece of paper made him sure of that, and, takin' it with the talk he'd heard, he reckoned he had got the biggest thing that ever humped itself in these waters. He said there was a hundred thousand dollars aboard her."

It was a fascinating story, yet it seemed to Ratcliffe that Satan showed little enthusiasm over the business.

"You don't seem very keen about it," said he.

"Well," said Satan, "it seems a bit too big, and that's the truth. The hooker's there right enough, but I don't seem to see all that stuff aboard of her."

"Satan'd sooner be grubbin' round after abnoles," said Jude. "Bone lazy, that's what he is! I know the stuff's there, and I'm goin' to get it if I have to dig it out myself."

"Well, off with you, then," said the other, "and a good riddance you'd be!" Then to Ratcliffe: "We'll run you down there some day and you can see for yourself. If you've any money to burn, you might like to put it in the spec'. We'd want extra help. The island where she's lyin' is Spanish, and the Dagoes would claim what we got if they knew."

"We'd have to get half a dozen men and give them a share," said Ratcliffe. "That would make them hold their tongues; but I see an awful lot of difficulties. Suppose you got rid of the stuff, how are you to get rid of it?"

"We'd have to get it down to a Brazil port," said Satan, "or run it into Caracas. That's handier. Look! She's puttin' a boat off." He pointed to the Dryad.

A quarter-boat had been lowered and was pulling away from the yacht. As she drew closer Ratcliffe saw that the man in the stern sheets, steering, was Skelton—Skelton coming either to make trouble or to make friends.

The oars rose up and fell with a crash as the bow oar hooked on to the dingy old Sarah.

"Hullo!" said Ratcliffe.

"Hullo!" said Skelton.

"Won't you come on board?"

"No, thank you. A sniff from Jude. 'I just came over to say that we are starting.'"

Ratcliffe saw that he wanted to say a lot, but was tongue-tied before the boat's crew and the Tylers.

"Better come on board," said he, "and have a chat in the cabin before you're off."

Skelton hesitated a moment, then he came. He gave Satan a nod, utterly ignored Jude, and, followed by Ratcliffe, passed below.

"Well, if you don't specially want me back, I'll stay."

Victorian Flavor in Bridal Array

The bride and her attendants are the chief purveyors of fashionable dress—especially in springtime, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. At this season of the year we cannot help but look to the clothes of the wedding party for an indication of smart styles, for at such functions are gathered so many of those people to whom we look for leadership in dress. Just naturally they are going to wear their best and their newest when it comes to a wedding day, and at these gatherings we find costumes that set our imaginations working or spur us on to steps in that established direction.

The wedding this season is no exception to the general rule of ultra simplicity in the way of clothes. Everything, from the baby dower girl's garb to the costume of the bride, is done in series of lines, with no unnecessary decoration, no trimping that might have been dispensed with. It is noticeable that the beauty and distinguished quality of the materials employed for the dresses of the bridal party are rare and wonderful. No expense has been spared to make the foundation of these costumes so handsome that almost anything that might be done with them in the way of design and making would insure their ultimate success.

Period styles, into which the season's costumes have arranged themselves, are particularly adaptable to the bride's dress, which can be combined with designs for her maids and other attendants until the combination makes the prettiest sort of a picture. After all, the essential requisite of the successfully beautiful wedding is that it shall be picturesque. It demands all the elements of pageantry for its expression, and it needs all of the prettiest costumes of the season to insure its success as a well-arranged display.

Full Skirts, Drooping Shoulders. A wedding of this season which met with all sorts of commendation from those who were looking only for beauty of effect was one at which the costumes were designed along Victorian lines. Every dress had full skirts and drooping shoulders. The hats were wide and drooping. There were wide ribbon sashes and the skirts just barely cleared the ground. You can see, at the first suggestion, what a very fertile field this general principle of design supplied.

The bride's dress was made from pearl white taffeta. Its skirt was wide and spreading, nothing being arranged in the way of hoops, but so much of the stiff material being employed that the skirt puffed out quite sumptuously and beautifully in a swooping line to the floor. With this there was a bodice that draped snugly to the lines of the figure and a low neckline that drooped over the shoulders in that careless way that was known during the Victorian era. About the graceful neck there was arranged a deep bertha of duchess lace, one that reached almost to the waistline and curved its way across the neck, over the arms, meeting directly in front. The thickest of ribbon sashes marked the line between the tight waist and the full skirt.

Now, with this gown there was worn a veil of tulle, arranged in a full but closely fitting cap, confined over the brow with a banding of orange blossoms. From the back and sides this cape reached into great billowy coverings of bridal veil that ended just a shade before reaching the bottom of the skirt. There was no train, not even the veil being made to reach into a train length. But the whole effect was that of a pretty maiden swathed in tulle, the details of her dress becoming apparent only when one caught a glimpse of the bodice and lace bevery young girl with her bobbed hair that must be held in some semblance of a coiffure on her wedding day.

Carried Out in Taffeta. The bridesmaids for this wedding had their dresses also carried out in taffeta, the colors being blue and mauve. One was hardly able to tell the difference between the two colors just at first glance, but, as the colors were of the changeable variety, one caught the glint of different toning as the girls glided along in the wedding procession. There was just enough of a subtle variation to make the combination of colors most interesting and to create the needed diversity in the glow of color. Their skirts were long and full, with lacy petticoats that showed as the dress skirts were kicked away by the toes of the shoes. The maids' bodices, like the bride's, were fitted, and across the drooping shoulder lines there were arranged fichus of soft cream-colored chiffon with frilled edges that folded in graceful lines over the arms and throat. These were fitted in front, leaving long and rounded ends that hung below the waistline, and where the knitting of the fichus took place there were bunches of silver roses mixed with pink ones to hold the folds of the chiffon in place. Another rosette of this same character appeared at the waistline, where a fold of the taffeta was held in place at one side to finish the softly folded girle. There were no sleeves, of course; or such infinitesimal ones that they could scarcely be noticed, considering the fact that they were entirely covered by the chiffon folds of the fichus. The bridesmaids wore sandals of black patent leather with white lace stockings, and on their arms were three-quarter-length mitts, also made of lace. Their hats were of the lightest yellow tone of horsehair, braided, entirely transparent, broad and drooping of form, with sides wider than the backs and fronts. They were wreathed in spring blossoms of various hues, the blues and mauves predominating, with yellows and soft pinks mixing in.

It made a very quaint-looking wedding party, with all the flavor of an older day and all the style of the present time. The girls fitted into their graceful frocks with the utmost ease.

An All-Organic Wedding.

For the early summer, a wedding is being costumed by one of the smartest designers in New York. It is to be an all organic wedding and the dresses are resplendent with hand work and hemstitchings. Even the bride herself is to discard the accepted silk or satin dress and is to wear a frock of crisp white organdie. It has insets of footling to add thickness and liveness to its effect and the little full bodice, with its short puffed sleeves of net, is attached to a full skirt made of the organdie with inset portions of the footling running round and round. She is to wear a net veil that covers only her shoulders. This is held to her head by a bunch of white gardenias.

The bridesmaids' dresses are made of violet organdie in a rather deep shade, but as they are worn over white slips the color of the fabric is lightened and given an airy touch. These dresses are trimmed only with rows of hemstitching and rounded bertha collars that are embroidered in white. It is planned that the girls shall wear white lace hats with wide and totally transparent brims, the lace hanging in billows from one side. Then there is a dress for the matron of honor that is made of pink organdie hand-stitched, in the same manner as the violet frocks, and the hat for this frock is of a silver gray lace with a bunch of violets concealed among the overhanging folds at the right side. The colors are subtly tied together and the whole combination of elements

SURELY CASE OF HARD LUCK

Usually Immaculate Housekeeper Caught at a Most Unfortunate Moment.

I am a methodical housekeeper, for which I have been severely criticized by my mother-in-law, and her daughter, who are most happy-go-lucky than I, about their work.

One day I discovered a moth in my flat and decided, without delay, to clean out all the clothes closets and trunks.

My rooms were in utter confusion when the doorbell rang and, to my dismay, my mother-in-law entered with guests. She had a happy, confident look upon her face, which, however, soon turned to one of consternation when she saw the state of my flat.

After a short visit she took me aside and said, in an indignant voice: "Lulu, knowing what an immaculate housekeeper you are, I brought these two delegates to visit your home, in preference to my daughter's, and this is what I find."—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. E. A. Gumma spent the week-end with the Penfields at Lincoln.

Miss Grace Moss, assistant in the postoffice, is in El Paso this week.

J. B. French, president of the Lincoln State Bank, visited El Paso Monday.

Charles F. Grey, postmaster and merchant at Oscura, was up with us Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley are expecting their daughter, Miss Tiny, up from Roswell the coming week.

L. P. Hall was a Tuesday visitor from Ancho. This is the first time we have seen L. P. since his return from Texas.

Saturday Special—Men's heavy $2.00 blue overalls for $1.50. Ziegler Bros.

W. R. White was over Monday from Ruidoso; but Sallie was so busy that he had little time to tell anything about developments in his diggings.

A card from A. V. Swearingen this morning states that he and the family are enjoying a sight of the "big green," from the Presidio, San Francisco.

J. D. Baker came in Saturday from Nacozari, Mexico. Mrs. Baker and little daughter have been here sometime with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Farley, Mrs. Baker's parents.

J. M. Rice is reported to be quite sick at his home at Parsons. His illness has extended over several months, and his many friends here and throughout the county hope for his speedy recovery.

Melon shipments are keeping the rails hot along the line. It is expected the shipments will continue until about the middle of July. A number of extra crews have been put on to handle the increased traffic.

Frank Lesnet returned yesterday from Wichita, Kansas, where he had gone to see his sick daughter, Nadine. The daughter recovered, but Frank was detained by high water. He says Kansas and Oklahoma resemble a vast inland sea.

E. H. Talbert was here Monday from Jicarilla, having but recently returned to the old camp from Pularosa. Mrs. Talbert is spending the summer in Colorado Springs, while Mr. Talbert is giving his attention to his mining properties in Jicarilla.

Ruidoso Valley is reported to have been visited by a heavy rain this week, but it is, also, said the rain was accompanied by a damaging hail. We have no definite information, but fear is expressed that fruit in that section suffered severely.

T. E. Kelley was called to Fort

Stanton Wednesday to embalm and prepare for shipment the body of Leonard E. Bagnall, a patient at the sanatorium. The body will be brought over this afternoon, placed on No. 4 and started on its long journey for Norfolk, Virginia.

George J. Weishar, merchant and postmaster at Jicarilla, spent Monday and Tuesday in the county seat. Conditions are unfavorable in his section because of the lack of moisture, he says, but added that an early rain will yet save the farmers' crops.

John L. Bryan, county assessor, was here Wednesday. Mr. Bryan says he was securing the scattering returns from those missed in former visits; that he was about through with this part of the work and ready for the final touches on the schedules.

Jeff Claunch is up and about following a severe attack of pneumonia. He was brought in from the ranch when the malady became violent to secure medical attention and nursing. Mrs. Claunch has been here with her husband, giving him every aid.

Miss Evelyn French and Miss Helen Rolland reached home Wednesday. Evelyn came by train to Torrance and her parents met her there with a car, while Mr. and Mrs. Rolland drove to Santa Fe early in the week, bringing Helen with them on their return. The two girls had just completed their second year of school at the Loretto Academy.

The B. B. Club will give a dance at the Lutz hall tomorrow (Saturday) night, the object of which is to raise sufficient funds to defray expenses to the Indian reservation Sunday where they are billed to play a picked team of "red skins." Patronize the dance Saturday evening. A dollar will help, and the boys need the coin for expenses.

As the weather becomes warmer the daily winds seem to become stronger and moisture is becoming a necessity on ranch and range. Weather reports show good rains in the north and east. The warm weather may bring a shower or two before the usual July rains. It would be welcomed by the farmer and stockman, as the daily west winds are making the country dryer and dryer.

Saturday Special—Regular $2.00 Men's blue overalls for $1.50, Saturday Special. Ziegler Bros.

Dr. J. Q. Welch, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Rice, was here Saturday on his return from Parsons to his home at Dawson. The recent illness of Mr. Rice called the doctor and his family to Parsons.

Trout fishing in the mountain streams has been poor so far. Most of the fish hooked are of the kindergarten variety—the fry of last year—do not come up to the regulation length, and have to be returned to the streams. However, some "old ones" that have side-stepped the angler's lure for several seasons, are occasionally landed. As the waters become warmer the larger fish will begin moving up stream and the fishing will be better.

The first arrest in this county for fishing without a license was made on the Ruidoso last week by Mrs. Zeta Brockwell of Fort Stanton, a deputy game warden. The misdemeanant was a lady from Fort Stanton also. She stated her husband had a license, and thought that the one ticket sufficed for both, but the justice who heard the complaint thought otherwise, and informed her that "them days are gone forever,"—that her husband's was an individual license and not good for the family, and imposed a fine of fifty dollars. It was hard, considering the dear creature did not have the pleasure of catching a fish, or even getting a "bite."

Married in El Paso

ARNETT-TINNON—Allmond A. Arnett and Miss Belle Tinnon were married in El Paso Thursday, June 6. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for California on their honeymoon, after which they will be at home in Los Angeles.

The bride is a Lincoln county girl, born at White Oaks, and is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Tinnon. The Tinnon family is an old Lincoln county family; well and favorably known throughout this section, and resided in Carrizozo for many years before moving to El Paso about three years ago. The groom is unknown here, but in El Paso and elsewhere, where he has made his home, he is regarded as a most worthy young man. Many friends wish them happiness and prosperity.

Live Stock Industry

The present season has been a good one for the sheepman in Lincoln county. The lambing season was the best for many years, and, as a result, the flockmasters have marked up a 70 to 90 per cent lamb crop. Prices of wool are most satisfactory, and sheep and lambs, also, are going at commanding figures.

The cattle industry, though not as thriving as the sheep industry, either as to increases or to prices, promises a better showing than was indicated earlier in the season. Most cattlemen felt that they would have to be content with a calf crop of about 35 per cent, but many now have raised the figure to 50 per cent, and some place the percentage even higher than that. The continued dry weather, however, is
