OLDEST AND LEADING NEWSPAPER IN CIRCULATION IN THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN, NEW MEXICO

VOLUME 23 — CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, DEC. 21, 1923 — NUMBER 51

Educational News

(By Mrs. Louise H. Coe)

The recent snow storm greatly affected the attendance of the county schools; a great many of them were not in session Monday and Tuesday of last week. The school trucks were unable to run. Since the number of teachers employed in our schools depends upon the average daily attendance, we are glad the weather man doesn't send such storms often.

Splendid Christmas programs are being given in all the schools this week. Lincoln, Capitan, Hondo, and others will have Christmas trees in connection with their programs.

All schools will be discontinued Friday, December 21, until January 2. Some of the teachers plan trips home during the Christmas Holidays; some will spend their holiday season in the community where they teach, and others expect to have only Christmas day and New Year's day, teaching the rest of the time.

At the regular meeting of the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners, January 6, one day will be given over to school matters.

On account of many families moving out of the Spindle community last summer, they did not have sufficient number of children to begin school in September. Most of these families have returned and the Spindle school will begin January 2.

One hundred boxes of the very best, dustless blackboard crayon have been purchased by this office, through the Rolland Brothers firm, and will be distributed to all schools needing chalk the first of the year.

Village Board of Finance

Special meeting of the Board of Finance of the Village of Carrizozo, New Mexico, held on December 17, at the office of the Secretary of said Board.

Members present: Fred Lalone, Chairman; G. T. McQuillen, T. E. Kelley, H. Lutz and J. M. Taylor, Members; W. W. Stadtman, Secretary.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The matter of the Depository Bond offered by the First National Bank, of Carrizozo, coming up for discussion and approval is read and the same not being made according to law, G. T. McQuillen makes a motion that said bond be approved only after the provisions of Section 19, Chapter 76, of the 1923 Law of the State is complied with by the said Depository, and that the Secretary so inform said bank. Upon the second of this motion by Fred Lalone the same is put for a vote and unanimously carried.

Upon the motion of H. Lutz, Sr., and second of T. E. Kelley, the surety bond offered by P. M. Shaver in the sum of $3,000.00, as Treasurer of the Village of Carrizozo, is approved.

There being no further business before the Board the same declares the meeting adjourned.

Secretary of the N. M. E. A., J. H. Vaughn, State College, and the County Superintendent would appreciate that the teachers of Lincoln county who have not enrolled in the Association would send in their membership card and fee, if possible, before the first of the year.

The Cow, the Sow and the Hen

The Agricultural College, State College, sends a poem bearing the title given above with the following introduction: Apropos of the "Cow, Sow and Hen" train to be run by the Santa Fe railway and the New Mexico State College early in February, the following is presented. Dr. A. H. Upham, of the University of Idaho, on hearing that the Kansas Agricultural College was about to operate such a train last year, wrote these verses and sent them to W. M. Jardine, president of the Kansas institution. Some excellent agricultural philosophy is contained in them:

The farmer smiled as he passed them by,
The cow and the sow and the hen;
For the price of wheat had gone sky high,
And the cow and the sow and the hen
Ate up the grain he could sell at the mill:
They needed his care when nights were chill.

He swore of them all he'd had his fill—
The cow and the sow and the hen.

Those barnyard critters had had their day,
The cow and the sow and the hen.
He could get thirty bones for a ton of hay—
No need for the cow or the hen,
He never would milk another cow,
He hated the sight of a grunting sow,
And raising chickens was work for the frau,
Goodbye to the cow and the hen.

They gave no heed to his jeer or frown,
The cow and the sow and the hen,
Whatever goes up, they said, comes down,
The wise old cow and hen.
The hen laid eggs the winter thru,
The cows gave milk and the piggies grew;
But hay dropped down from thirty to two—
Oh, the cow, the sow and the hen.

Now he sits and sighs, as he counts his cost
For the cow and the sow and the hen,
He almost cries for the milk he's lost,
Oh, the cow, the sow and the hen.
He'd tend them gladly in mud and rain,
And lessen his acres of hay and grain,
If he only could buy them back again—
The cow and the sow and the hen.

School Notes

(By Miss E. E. Cox)

The Christmas vacation begins December 22 and ends January 1, 1924. We wish pupils and teachers a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Most of the rooms are making great preparations for the Christmas programs which are to be given Friday afternoon, December 21. The kiddies are treading on air, of course, and just think of it, we have not had a case of discipline for a long time. It is wonderful how good boys can become about this time of the year. Can anyone explain why there are so many cases of discipline in January?

Mr. Burke, of the Outlook, and Mr. Haley, of the News, are to send copies of their papers to the Carrizozo High School each week. These papers will be placed on paper files and added to the library. We thank these gentlemen for their contribution to our school.

Mrs. Harold Clarke, teacher of the eighth grade, has brought to her room her Victrola. Besides its high educational value, good music brings great enjoyment to any human being who has the slightest appreciation of music in his soul. Wish we had a Victrola in every room.

Last week Mr. Brickley again visited the High School and gave a very interesting and helpful talk to the whole body of the students, though it was intended principally for the commercial department. He spoke of the form of the promissory note, the necessity of its various parts, that it and all business papers as well should tell the whole story in clear, concise and unmistakable language. The talk was of great value to the whole body of students.

We are expecting a visit, the annual visit, of the State Inspector of High Schools. We believe he will find us fully up to the standard in all things.

Mrs. Macey: "Boyd, what is the difference between gossiping and talking?"

Boyd Longbein: "Mer talk, women gossip."

Mexican Revolution

The revolt in Mexico against the Obregon government, which has been manifest in many spots of the republic the past few months, has spread to Sonora province and the dispatches indicate that the revolutionists are making much headway. In fact, some of the information that comes from our southern neighbor leads color to the belief that the Obregon government is impotent to stay the revolt and that the capital may fall at any time. The sentiment is growing that intervention by the United States is the only salvation for stricken Mexico.

Village Trustees Meet

Special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Carrizozo, New Mexico, held on Dec. 17, at the office of the Village Clerk, at 7:30 p. m.

Members present: J. M. Taylor, Mayor; H. Lutz, G. T. McQuillen, T. E. Kelley and Fred Lalone, Trustees; W. W. Stadtman, Clerk; A. M. Vega, Marshal.

The Christmas Card

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

I AM a Christmas Card. I was born shortly before Christmas of 1918. I was put away in a box after Christmas and the next year I came forth again, and the price put upon me had risen from two cents to five.

The next year I cost ten cents. Still I did not sell.

"We'll have to charge a quarter for that card," my owner said, "and get up the prices of some of these others, or they won't be bought."

So I was a quarter. And then I cost 50 cents and was purchased.

The price mark has been left on me. I've been traveling with it written on my back ever since. Sometimes, too, I get around to a number of places around Christmas time, especially if I'm started off early in the first place.

So far, too, I've been greeted with joy, and an exclamation I do not quite understand.

"Oh, good! Here's a card which is marked fifty cents. Who would believe it possible, but no matter, it did! And it's not written on, either!"

I do not understand their joy over me, but they never keep me with them!

Christmas Fish.

A fish which resembles a cod is considered by the Swedes as an indispensable adjunct of their Christmas feast. This fish is buried for days in wood ashes or else soaked in soda water, then boiled and served with a milk gravy.

Velvet, Satin and Chiffon Are Good

A wealth of fabrics offers inspiration to the artists of Paris and America this season in the creation of fine garments, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. Not in many years has there been such richness of beauty in color and in variety of pattern, and the designer's fancy can take long flights. Little imagination is needed, indeed, to combine the splendid brocades, the satins and the velvets of beautiful texture and sheen, the laces of gold or silver, with the furs, the embroideries and the jeweled accessories that compose the smart costume.

The whole scheme is an extravagant one this year, though the lines are straighter and trimming is less than in former seasons. The cost mounts in the lavish use of material and in following the modern idea of luxury in detail. Brocades suitable for the most elaborate gowns and wraps are quite commonly used as a lining, and the inside of a garment is likely to be as attractive as the outside. The softest silks and chiffons are lined with velvet or fur or metal brocades, and a wrap of plain material is built to disclose something most lovely on the reverse side. Except for the athletic woman, there seem to be no serviceable clothes. Everything is dainty, often perishable.

Gowns meant for utility are sometimes so fantastic or so formally elaborate that it confuses one to decide just where in the wardrobe of a fashionable woman they belong. Nobody nowadays wears homespun or twill or serge or, for that matter, anything "sensible," except for morning, for shopping or for a cross-country hike.

To be strictly up to date one must wear velvet or satin or chiffon; anything so it expresses style and beauty and luxury, especially luxury. The saleswoman in a smart shop asks you "seven-fifty" for an afternoon gown of chiffon and satin, for instance, with as much nonchalance as a while ago she asked one-third of that sum.

Negligee Is Important.

The negligee is now a compelling feature. For several seasons it has been growing in importance, its freedom and grace of line charmingly expressed in the new materials. Some of the glorified negligees are shown in the new metal brocades, and some beautiful models are done in metal lace. A stunning model of blue and silver in a large conical pattern is cut in two straight panels that hang like a cassock from the neck to the instep. The back splits its longer than the front, leading the way. These are caught loosely at the sides with silver cords, the ends of which terminate in silky tassels of silver and gold. The skirt is a fully pleated affair of pale blue chiffon, of which the full "cassock" sleeves are formed. The sleeves are caught only at the wrist with a cord and tassels of silver.

The most popular models among the new negligees are those made of one material and that, of course, because of their simplicity, are the most comfortable. Nothing could be more engaging than a negligee of soft lustrous charmeuse in the style of a one-piece evening gown, half-fitting princess, the material in a delicate shade of orchid, trimmed all about the bottom, around the wide flaring sleeves and across the square neck at the back with marabou in deep flounces. Marabou is much used by modistes for trimming negligees. It is so dainty and becoming.

In a striking new model the long sweep is all-over gold lace in effective floral weave. The foundation of the negligee is of ivory satin, cut in an easy princess slip, heavy length, all around. Over this is a loose and somewhat circular robe of gold lace that falls straight in front, sprangs at the sides, and forming at the back a train, several inches on the floor, like a large flowing cape.

A long, rather tight and slightly draped negligee of silver tissue shot with rose color might be worn with distinction for a dinner or ball gown. It is caught over one hip with an ornament of arabesque pattern in old silver and is outlined with black fox fur. One side of the gown is left as a loose panel forming a short scarf train. Silver slippers in Colonial shape with large silver buckles are worn with black chantilly lace stockings.

A delightful model that might easily be worn as a tea gown is of hydrangea blue chiffon, elaborately embroidered in silver and trimmed in bands of marabou in a deeper shade of the blue. A slender girdle of silver holds the coat at the low waistline, and the petticoat of peach-colored satin is finished with a deep flounce of silver lace.

Girdle Is in Fashion.

The one-piece frock has brought into fashion one of the prettiest novelties seen in many seasons. It is the girdle of medieval origin, a modern adaptation of that worn by Shakespeare's heroines and other ladies famous in poetry and painting. Some of the more elaborate jeweled and metal girdles are faithful copies from the antiques, and they are quite the rage.

Since the waistline, literal or imagined, has been dropped low on the hips, sashes have been cast in vogue; sometimes wide, of soft material, swathing the figure and caught with an ornament or buckle; sometimes narrow, a mere strap, to be tied at one side or at the back. Some of the one-piece frocks are held in slightly with just a heavy ribbon one or two inches wide, having a tassel or ball attached at each end.

Even a simple style of this sort seen with a gown that is severely plain adds a touch rare. For example, a straight one-piece dress of blue poiret twill is trimmed around the bottom, down one side, where the garment opens, and about the edge of the deep sleeves with black, imperial moire ribbon, and is held in slightly at the low waistline with a narrow girdle of the twill, tied loosely at one side.

A quaint girdle is a dull shade of metallic cloth in large oval links, filled with smaller circles of gilt. One of silver rings like those used on the gowns for equestrian or motoring is fastened to an inconspicuous grosgrain ribbon run through and ending in a buckle that fastens the girdle's fastening.

Fashioned Out of Metal.

A girdle that shows sufficient ingenuity to have a place in an art museum is fashioned out of a metal known as "gunmetal." It is an amalgam of gold, silver and pewter, is extremely rich and takes the most delicate handwork. A small jewel is also in a girdle of this character, a series of medallions set with semi-precious stones in shades of amethyst, topaz, coral, emerald and aquamarine. Nothing but a jeweled girdle has been seen this season.

Modistes are introducing a girdle in many of the latest wedding gowns. A gorgeous robe of white and silver brocade has a slender girdle of platinum set with brilliants. For a wedding dress of ivory Satsuma velvet is shown a girdle that is practically a chain of white topaz stones, set in small circles of green gold, very little of the metal showing. A prominent house offers a girdle of slight gold chain workmanship traced in an arabesque pattern, linking medallions of turquoise matrix, thus adding to the bride's toilet the "something blue"—a tradition which is still held sacred by the young and romantic.

Perhaps the daintiest girdle seen anywhere this season is one of pearl beads, in the making of which two old necklaces have been used. This is designed to be worn with an evening gown or wedding dress of sprayy white satin. The old brooch and earrings belonging to the original set, fashionable fifty years ago, go with the girdle.

These cost a pretty penny, but still more expensive is a girdle made of an old firescher broken into necklaces, with the addition of a spray such as was worn long ago, all set with rose diamonds.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Supreme Council of National Defense

WASHINGTON. — Through the completion of a reorganization program begun immediately after the World war, the United States at last has a supreme council of national defense which is declared by service experts to be the most efficient ever effected.

An even half-dozen officers, three army and three navy men, comprise the council, officially termed the joint board. Appointments are all ex-officio, the detail of an officer to a certain bureau carrying with it membership on the board. The present organization includes Gen. John J. Pershing, chief of staff; Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, deputy chief and the head of the army war plane division, and Brig. Gen. Briant H. Wells, for the land forces, and the chief of naval operations, Admiral E. W. Eberle; the director of war plans of the navy, Rear Admiral W. R. Shoemaker, and the assistant chief of operations, Rear Admiral R. H. Jackson, for the navy.

To this board is finally referred every major problem, involving the national security, and all items of information and all rumors which may have a remote bearing upon the national defense. The new organization extends in a network over the entire country.

The joint aeronautical board has been made virtually an adjunct of the super-council through an order which requires its recommendation to be referred to the higher tribunal. A similar restriction upon the joint munitions board, composed of the assistant secretaries of war and navy, brings this agency of defense under the same directing control.

A glimpse of the scope of the new plan is given in the following partial list of subjects recently presented for the consideration of the board:

Function and missions of the army, navy and marine corps.

Policy relative to development of aircraft in the army and navy.

Policy relative to uses of rigid airships by the army and navy.

Defense plans for sections of the coast.

Courses of instruction, army war college and naval war college.

Experiments in bombing naval vessels from aircraft.

Censorship and control of communications in war.

Coal and fuel oil supply and storage.

Man-power available for military and naval purposes.

Combined army and navy exercises for the coming winter.

Six Army Planes to Fly Around World

SOME time in the early summer of 1924, four or possibly six army airplanes will hop off from Rolling field, Washington, and turn their noses to the west. Before their pilots again glimpse the nation's capital, they will have traveled 20,000 miles, crossed two oceans and almost a score of countries and encircled the globe in the air for the first time in the world's history.

Such is the picture in the minds of officials at McCook field at Dayton, O., who, under the direction of army air service headquarters at Washington, are making plans for the first 'round the world aerial cruise.

Tentatively, a route has been laid out and two air officers are going over it with the idea of making recommendations for necessary changes and completing other preparations. Lieut. C. P. Cranston of the McCook field, now is in Iceland, heading eastward, while an officer of the Philippines aerial forces is working in the opposite direction. They will meet in Europe and after comparing data, return to their home stations.

The flight, designed primarily to demonstrate the ability of planes to operate away from their regular supply bases during wartimes, will be made in comparatively short jumps. The distance between most of the stations will be 500 miles or less, the longest hop being approximately 800 miles.

As laid out at present, the route to be taken would not necessitate any sustained flight over open water. After crossing the country from the capital to Seattle, the squadron would hold northward through Canada and after touching at Wrangel, Alaska, would hop to the Aleutian islands and then to the Japanese archipelago where several stops would be made. The mainland of Asia would be reached at Shanghai, China.

For the trip across the Atlantic alternate routes are available. One itinerary calls for hops from Aberdeen, Scotland, to Faroe island, to Iceland, to Greenland, and to the mainland of North America at Frederikdal, Hamilton Inlet, Canada. The other provides for the European take-off at Dunmore Head, Ireland, and the more direct course to Newfoundland and thence to Quebec.

Through continental Asia and Europe the tentative itinerary would carry the aviators to Shanghai, China; Mandalay and Delhi, India; Chuchar and Bagdad, Persia; Damascus, Syria; Aleppo and Constantinople, Turkey; Angora, Asia Minor; Bucharest, Rumania; Belgrade, Serbia; Budapest, Hungary; Vienna, Austria; Munich and Strassbourg, Germany, and Paris and London.

"Unrest" in Our Insular Possessions

ALTHOUGH political activities in the Philippine Islands and in Porto Rico have been marked in the last fiscal year, Maj. Gen. Frank McIntyre, chief of the War department's bureau of insular affairs, said in his annual report that there was little justification for reports that a condition of unrest existed in these territories."

"Political activity has been marked during the year," General McIntyre said, "both in the Philippine Islands and in Porto Rico. This has led many people in the United States to believe that a condition of unrest existed in these territories, which is very far from the fact. Both Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands have received during the last year greater benefits from the United States than at any time in the past, and these benefits have been more generally appreciated."

"The year has been one of general prosperity," the general continued. "The first six months of the calendar year 1923 show a material betterment in foreign trade. For this period the total shipment of domestic products was $97,594,579, of which $91,478,997 came to the United States; the imports were $41,776,542, of which $34,908,136 came from the United States."

Speaking of the economic situation in Porto Rico the report said:

"The economic situation in Porto Rico is, compared to former years, excellent. This by no means implies that the serious economic problem resulting from the overpopulation has been even partially solved, so that this continues to be the one pressing problem in Porto Rico. This would be partially met if the shipping laws between the United States and Porto Rico had adequate passenger facilities, particularly for steerage passengers.

"There is little doubt that if such facilities were in operation the passenger traffic between Porto Rico and the United States would in a short time be increased tenfold. The excess of labor would receive in the United States permanent and seasonal employment at steerage accommodations were available.

"Owing to the great liberality with which Porto Rico has been treated by congress in an economic way, the revenues of the island have in recent years materially increased. The budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, was based on estimated revenues of $11,600,000. This is about four times the revenues of 15 years ago and a little less than three times what they were ten years ago."

Great Waste of Natural Gas and Oil

LOSSES of natural gas and oil, through flooding, seepage, waste and negligence in the various fields in the United States, have been enormous, according to statements of the interior department, based upon a recent survey by the bureau of mines.

While the oil and gas industry has progressed steadily and has been practically revolutionized during the 61 years of its existence, losses have run into untold millions of feet of gas and gallons of oil fact.

Floodings of oil sands by water have damaged irreparably valley oil and gas fields, the water tripping underground oil that probably never will be recovered. Waste in an oil well to increase filling costs that many wells are abandoned before the normal recovery of oil and gas is obtained.

Although "blow-outs" and "wild wells" were formerly the greatest factors in the loss, modern equipment has made it easier to subdue the uncontrolled flows. The old practice of allowing "gushers" to waste oil and gas unchecked until the force either was stopped by caving or decreased an appreciable amount, has been done away with, but not before millions of dollars' worth of the natural resources were lost.

In the early days of the Cushing field in Oklahoma, in 1912 and 1913, it is estimated 300,000,000 feet of gas were wasted daily.

In 1912 the total amount of gas consumed throughout the country was 893,000,000,000 cubic feet, while the loss of casing-head gas alone was estimated at 141,000,000,000 feet in that year. It seems probable that from one-third to one-half of all the gas produced is wasted, the bureau's study showed.

Production of gasoline from natural gas was started in 1904, and while the amount recovered has increased by leaps and bounds yearly, it was estimated that since that year at least 2,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline have been wasted.

Your doctor advises internal cleanliness

HE will tell you that the first results of constipation—headache, sleepless nights, biliousness, backache, etc.—warn that the body is flooded with intestinal poisons. In time, these poisons may cause the breakdown of health and lead to serious disease. In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

"Keep Clean Inside" Say Physicians.

Hence, doctors urge internal cleanliness—regular and thorough removal of food waste from the body.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

The Christmas Spirit

by Katherine Edelman

WHO would not be merry, who would not be glad, when all over the earth there can be heard the jingle of Santa Claus' sleigh bells, the patter of his reindeer's hoofs and the chuckle of the jolly little man?

Who would not be merry when everywhere we see eager, expectant little children, their eyes and feet dancing in happy expectation of the joy which they know is coming?

Who would not be merry and glad at the sight of full stockings by the chimney, the gaily-ornamented tree with gifts on every bough?

Who would not be merry and glad at the thought of the gathering and feast that make Christmas a celebration of the home and of family ties?

Who would not be merry when everywhere we look we see men and women at their very best, filled deep with the spirit of love and giving—when everybody seems to have been touched by the magic hand of Christmas?

Who would not be merry when in every home there is happy whispering and planning and streets and shops are filled with a gladsome throng all bent upon the most unselfish mission in the world: to help bring joy to others?

Who would not be merry and glad when the whole country is radiating peace and joy and good cheer; when the Christmas spirit has spread itself like an encircling mantle over the nation?

Who would not be merry and glad and of good cheer in the conviction that some day, when the Christian citizen serves God in relation to his home his community and his nation, there will be literally "On earth peace, good will toward men."?

Christmas

The end of the year approaches and the glad Christmas season is at hand. It may lack some of the joys of past years, because of the disturbed conditions existing throughout the world and the uncertainties of the future, and especially in this section where the hand of plenty has not so generously doled out its largess. Even so, as the Day of all Days comes nearer, the old spirit revives, and everyone, regardless of station, welcomes its coming and feels a quickening of the pulse as the event, which, for almost twenty centuries has been acclaimed by the Christian world, draws nigh.

It is a time of peaceful thoughts and good will to mankind; it is a season of forgiveness; it is a period when animosities are buried, or laid aside, and brings human kind in closer communion. It does not necessarily follow that one must be intensely religious to be affected by the anniversary of the birth of the lowly babe of Bethlehem, but that it does have this gladdening effect upon all Christian peoples, even though the evidence of extreme reverence is lacking in some, is conclusive proof that the birth of Christ, and his life of righteousness, marks the greatest event in human history. And coincident with his birth was also born the new and uplifting thought of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

That beautiful sentiment prevails today, it is deep-seated in the foundations of our government, it pervades the home, and reigns in our hearts; and as again the recurrent event approaches we are touched with the solemnity, as well as the joyousness, of the occasion, and heartily join in the anthem, "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

RED CROSS PLANS FOR COMING YEAR

Over $2,000,000 in Fund for War Sufferers—National Budget is $5,543,077.

AID TO VETERANS STANDS FIRST

Expended $9,738,448 in Services to Mankind Last Year at Home and Abroad.

Washington.—With a budget of $5,543,077.81 for carrying out the program of service during the current fiscal year, beginning July 1, the American Red Cross announces that this amount was $4,195,370.41 less than was expended during the fiscal year ended last June 30. During that year expenditures reached a total of $9,738,448.22, of which amount $2,605,696.09 was devoted to relief of refugees in Greece who had been driven out of Asia Minor. In announcing the budget for the year, the statement from National Headquarters emphasized the fact that its extensive work at home and abroad depends almost wholly upon the nation-wide support of the organization through enrollment of membership in large numbers during the annual roll call, which will be in progress from November 11 to November 29 under the auspices of the 3,609 Chapters in the United States and throughout the world. These Chapters, it is pointed out, during the last fiscal year expended of their own funds approximately $3,929,000 in work for the men who wore the United States uniform during the World War, so that the estimate of some $15,000,000 expended during twelve months by the American Red Cross as a whole is considered conservative.

Soldier Service Stands First

From July 1, 1917, to June 30, 1923, the American Red Cross spent nationally and through its Chapters close to $144,000,000 in behalf of American soldiers who served in the war and their families. During last year the figure alone amounted to more than $6,344,345, and for the current fiscal year National Headquarters has set aside under the heading, "Assistance to Disabled ex-Service Men and Women," $2,845,124.26. The Chapters will continue to do their part, so that it may be predicted with confidence that again more than $4,000,000 will be disbursed in the large variety of services to the disabled men and women and their families—services for which the Government cannot provide and which reach the individual case with the sympathy and understanding only personal contact can furnish. This work of the American Red Cross approaches the fifth anniversary of the Armistice, which ended the World War with only a slight decrease in calls for service in the interest of the welfare and rehabilitation of those who suffered physical disability in the service of their country.

In the interest of the disabled men serving in the Army and the Navy the budget provides $941,000 for the current year. This is obligatory under the Red Cross charter, for the organization must act in matters of voluntary relief and as a medium of communication between the people and their Army and Navy.

Domestic Program Extensive

The domestic operations of the American Red Cross comprise an extensive program of the continuing calls for expansion in all the established and authorized services. The budget appropriates $1,001,140.71, as against expenditures during the last year of $1,012,915.96. The abnormal demands in the foreign field in the last several years, however, have largely subsided, and in consequence $911,931.21 has been cut for the 1923-24 budget under foreign operations. Of this amount $91,945.21 is set aside for engagement's which will close the work for the refugees in Greece, for whose amelioration $2,605,696.09 was expended up to June 30, when the American Red Cross withdrew, and the work was taken over under the control of the Greek government. For liquidation and completion of general relief in Europe the budget provides $140,000, and for American Junior Red Cross projects, foreign and domestic, and assistance to Chapters listed under foreign operations.

Ready for Emergency Calls

The readiness of the American Red Cross to answer immediately with effective service in cases of emergency is an outstanding feature of its program that is universally recognized. During last year $636,500 was spent for relief in 116 disasters, which was $547,500 in excess of budget provisions. This year $400,000 has been appropriated for this service. Since 1881 the Red Cross has administered more than $30,000,000 in relief work following disasters.

Other budget items in the schedule for domestic operations include $1,366,324.20 for service and assistance to the 3,609 Chapters and their branches; $90,000 for assistance in other organizations, particularly extending child health activities; $324,000 for Junior Red Cross projects and service; $30,524.50 for assistance to Mexico Training School, and for part of activities $311,806.96. For supervision of service activities and general management of the entire American Red Cross less than $200,000 is allowed.

"The Flirt"

The above is the title of a picture that will be shown at the Crystal Theatre for two nights next week—Christmas night and the night following. Reviews from the press where this production has been presented pronounce it an excellent picture and capable of pleasing any audience. It is adapted from one of Booth Tarkington's stories, with Eileen Percy in the title role, supported by an A 1 cast.

Capitan School Notes

B. V. Weber, Principal

Primary and First Grades—Christabel Osborne, teacher:

Thirteen little people were vaccinated last week for the first time, and several are obliged to be out of school with sore arms.

The Christmas program to be given Saturday night, December 22, is well under way and promises to be the best we've had.

There will be two plays, a cowboy song and a dance, a folk dance of Fairies, and Brownies, several other musical numbers, including part songs by the Glee Club, intermediate grades and primary children.

The Fairies and Brownies, who will dance and sing at the program, are known by their school mates as Berta Evans, Jean Merchant, Josephine Torres, Robert Provine, Deman Payne and Ruskin Patterson.

The attendance is very low this week, owing to the storm preventing the travel of the school truck, and the vaccination of so many little people.

2nd and 3rd Grade room—

Mr. Cummings, teacher:

The following were the perfect in attendance the past six weeks: Aurora Anaya, Lucia Anaya, Trene Artiago, Maria Padilla, Herminda Chavez, Julia Garcia, Sofia Garcia, Cleo Thompson, Bertie Burks, Gregorio Trujillo, Kemp Pepper, Claude Patterson, Filberto Chaves, Billie Stuart and Charles Gardner.

4th, 5th and 6th Grades—

Miss Fritz, teacher

The enrollment in these grades up to the present time is 45; those on the honor roll in perfect attendance are:

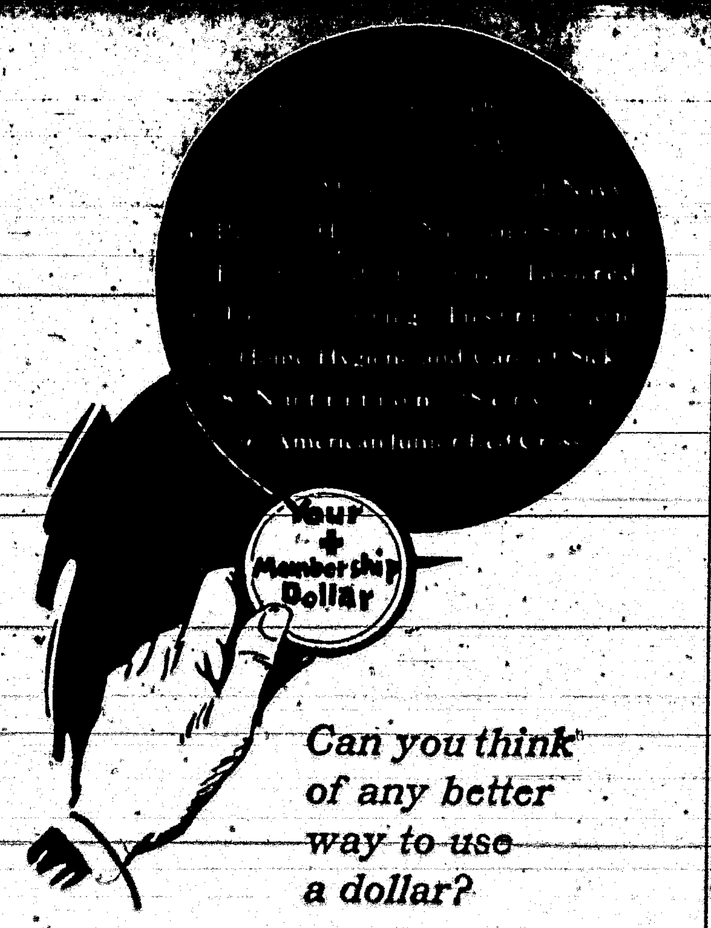
Sixth Grade—Emelia Fritz, Mary Gardner, Mary Jane Provine.

Fifth Grade—George Stuart, Francis Gardenhire, Tom Hilburn, Dwight Allison, Ruth Gardner, Frank Pino.

Fourth Grade—Josephine Peters, Helene Titsworth.

The intermediate room is very prettily decorated with poinsettias, Santa Claus and evergreen wreaths.

The pupils of the Art Class are making calendars, Christmas cards and snow scenes.



Can you think of any better way to use a dollar?

"Our Family Medicine"

"I WILL WRITE you in regard to Black-Draught liver medicine, as I have been using it more than 15 years," says a letter from Mr. S. F. Mintz, of R. F. D. 2, Leland, N. C. "I keep it in my home all the time, for it is mostly our family medicine. When we begin to feel feverish or sluggish, with trouble from the liver or stomach, we take a dose of Thedford's Black-Draught and the trouble is soon over. I usually buy a dollar package at a time, and it has saved me many a bill."

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable remedy, acting on the liver, stomach and bowels. It is made from selected herbs and roots, and contains no calomel or other mineral drugs.

It has been found of great value in indigestion, stomach trouble, sick headache, constipation, and lazy liver, helping to relieve the symptoms caused by these troubles, and to put the digestive system into proper working order.

Better Than the Mine Mule

In a Wyoming coal mine there is an electrical mine locomotive that is still going strong after 17 years. It was built by the Timmen-Hunter Electric Company, predecessor of the General Electric Company, and has hauled 2,712,500 tons of coal an average of 13 miles. Many a mule has gone to a quiet grave in that period, for mules wear out and must pay, but an electric locomotive goes all the time.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Coolidge in First Message Favors Tax Reduction, Opposes Soldiers' Bonus.

TORIES LOSE IN ENGLAND

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

OUR national legislative mill reopened on Monday when the Sixty-eighth congress began its first session. Plenty of grist will be poured into its hoppers, but few if any laws will be ground out for several weeks. No wonder is the present Republican majority that the group of progressives was able to block the organization of the house until assurance had been given that there would be opportunity for revision of the rules. Most of the group thereupon voted for the re-election of Speaker Gillett and the deadlock was ended. This took place on Wednesday, and the next day President Coolidge delivered in person his first message to the two houses.

Clearly and concisely, the President declared himself in favor of continuing our present foreign policy and therefore against the ratification of the covenant of the League of Nations. Said he: "The League exists as a foreign agency. We hope it will be helpful. But the United States sees no reason to limit its own freedom and independence of action by joining it. We shall do well to recognize this basic fact in all national affairs and govern ourselves accordingly."

Of the closely related question of American membership in the world court he said: "As I wish to see a court established, and as the proposal presents the only practical plan on which many nations have ever agreed, though it may not meet every desire, I therefore commend it to the favorable consideration of the senate, with the proposed reservations clearly indicating our refusal to adhere to the League of Nations."

Expressing earnest hope that the people of Russia will be restored to their position among the nations of the earth, Mr. Coolidge declared flatly that the soviet government would not be recognized by the United States so long as it refuses to recognize the sanctity of international relations, but he said he was willing to make large concessions, and that our government would offer no objection to the carrying on of commerce by Americans with the people of Russia. Concerning the war debts owed us by other nations, he said he did not favor their cancellation, but saw no objection to adjusting them as was done in the case of Great Britain.

Continuation of the policy of retrenchment and economy by the government was strongly urged, and as was the challenge of the right to issue tax-exempt securities. The President asked congress to avoid constant revising of the tariff law, promising to exercise his power to change the schedules whenever investigation showed this to be wise.

As had been predicted, the President while heartily supported Secretary Mellon's recommendations for the reduction of taxes, stated that "of all services which the congress can render to the country, I have no hesitation in declaring this one to be paramount." He especially commended a decrease on earned incomes and further abolition of admission and message taxes. He also expressed opposition to excess-profits taxes.

After hearing this, congress waited expectantly for the part of the message dealing with the care of the veterans of the World war, and was not surprised when Mr. Coolidge closed that section with the words: "I do not favor the granting of a bonus." However, he declared himself in favor of much of the legislative program which the American Legion will present to congress.

Taking up the question of the veterans' welfare, Mr. Coolidge said:

"Indirectly, the farmer must be relieved by a reduction of national and local taxation. He must be assisted by the reorganization of the freight-rate structure which could reduce charges on his production. To make this fully effective there ought to be railroad consolidations. Cheaper fertilizers must be provided. . . .

"I do not favor the permanent interference of the government in this problem. That probably would increase the trouble by increasing production. But it seems feasible to provide government assistance to exports, and authority should be given the War Finance corporation to grant, in its discretion, the most liberal terms of payment for fats and grains exported for the direct benefit of the farm."

Considerable space in the message was given to the coal problem. The President said he did not favor government ownership or operation of the mines, and continued: "The supply of coal must be constant. In case of its prospective interruption, the President should have authority to appoint a commission empowered to deal with whatever emergency situation might arise, to aid conciliation and voluntary arbitration, to adjust any existing or threatened controversy between the employer and the employes when collective bargaining fails, and by controlling distribution to prevent profiteering in this vital necessity."

PEACE between the "regular" and "progressive" factions of the Republicans in the house is supposed will continue for 30 days, during which time the latter will have a chance to bring forward their proposals for the liberalization of the rules. They demonstrated during the deadlock over organization that they hold the balance of power, though they are few in number, but it is far from certain that they can line up enough Democratic votes to change the rules as they desire. The progressives voted, usually 17 strong, for Cooper of Wisconsin for speaker. The Democrats were split for Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, who thus became the minority leader. The leader of the majority is Nicholas Longworth of Ohio.

SUPPORTERS of President Coolidge for nomination next year were crushed last week by the vote from South Dakota. In the Republican state proposal convention Mr. Coolidge was given the preference over Senator Hiram Johnson, his only opponent, by a majority of 20,000 out of 77,000 votes cast. Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas was the choice for vice president. The Democratic convention indorsed Madden by a vote of 30,615 against 3,972 for Henry Ford, and chose Judge James W. Gerard of New York for second place on the ticket. The Farmer-Laborites were strongly in favor of the nomination of Senator La Follette. After the President's message was delivered the Hiram Johnson crowd felt a little better, for in it, as is told above, Mr. Coolidge declared himself flatly against the soldiers' bonus, while the South Dakota Republicans adopted a platform containing a strong bonus plank. This question may well develop into the deciding issue of the nomination campaign.

THE British parliamentary elections were held Thursday, and at this writing it appears that the Conservative party will be given a majority over all other parties, but will not have a majority over the Laborites and Liberals combined sufficient to enable it to control the house. The Conservatives have 258 seats, the Laborites 191, the Liberals 157, and others 9. The Conservatives gained 155 seats, the Laborites 50, and the Liberals lost 158. The Laborites elected 11 members in Scotland, where they had not before had a single representative. The French agree to recommend the most favorable action in the cases of railway workers who were expelled and all employees in the occupied region will be paid the same wages as those in the rest of Germany. Altogether, the developments of the week indicated that Premier Poincare had adopted a conciliatory policy, and it was hinted that he might soon yield to Great Britain and America and consent to a discussion of the reduction of Germany's debt by the proposed committee of experts subject to the reparations commission.

Chancellor Marx so far is making good in Berlin, for he has induced the socialists to consent to the "enabling act" which gives him dictatorial powers if he needs them and thus may avoid the necessity of dissolving the legislative body. The socialists ceased to oppose the act on receiving a promise that any emergency measures should be submitted to an advisory commission of 21 deputies before being issued. It is reported that Germany has completed negotiations for a foreign loan of $125,000,000 to support the new permanent currency issue.

CIVIL war has broken out again in Mexico. In the states of Vera Cruz, San Luis Potosi, Chihuahua, Michoacan, Tamaulipas and Guerrero there is active rebellion against the government of President Obregon, the leader of the movement being Adolfo de la Huerta, the Cooperatista party's candidate for president. He and his helpers have told Obregon that they are rebelling because the government is violating the sovereignty of the states and otherwise offending the institutions of the republic. Actually, it seems, De la Huerta's chief complaint is that Obregon is supporting Calles for election as his successor.

FEDERAL JUDGE WOODROUGH of Omaha has decided that prohibition agents are not civil officers in any strict or constitutional sense and are without lawful authority to serve search warrants.

Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition and tax cases, reports to Attorney General Daugherty that litigation over violations of federal laws is on the increase. Under the national prohibition act alone, she says, 30,651 criminal and 4,198 civil cases were begun during the last fiscal year—an increase of 12,500 over the previous year. Federal courts were unable to keep abreast of the number of cases brought, although 26,275 criminal cases were disposed of during the year, with 36,892 criminal and 4,884 civil cases left pending. Even mounting, Mrs. Willebrandt's report added, is "the most gigantic criminal problem the United States ever faced on the high seas."

NEWS from Russia is decidedly scant these days, but there has just come from Moscow a dispatch that is of vast importance if true. It says that Professor Joffe, Russian scientist, has discovered a method for making wire stronger than steel out of common rock salt. The discovery resulted after experiments in metallurgy of metals by structural chemistry. By submitting rock salt to high heat pressure before the elementary crystals began to decay he arrested the decay by changing the structural arrangement of the atoms and molecules, this change increasing the durability and ductability of the substance 900 times. It is stated that if the discovery can be applied to metals it will revolutionize the world.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DAUGHERTY has announced that criminal prosecutions will be begun as a result of the investigation, by his department and the special senate committee, of alleged irregularities in the conduct of the veterans' bureau under the former director, Colonel Forbes. Presumably the facts brought out will be placed before a federal grand jury.

Gen. Frank T. Hines, new director of the bureau, has just put a gift in the American Legion for 150 to finding suitable employment for the rehabilitated ex-service men. There are approximately 70,000 men in vocational training. Director Hines declares, and within the next three months about 10,000 of them will complete their courses.

New Mexico State Items

Cattle sales have been good in Lunn county this fall, according to reports from the Cattle and Horse Growers' Association. The total to date is over 6,000 head.

Hugh McKeen, one of the best known stockmen in the Alma district, received a carload of Hereford bull calves last week from a prominent breeder in Kansas.

According to reports of the Chamber of Commerce of Artesia, there is a big shortage of homes and many people, who would like to become residents of the city, find that they are obliged to go elsewhere to find a place to live.

Formal dedication of the new water plant three miles east of Tularosa occurred last week when many citizens went to the site to witness the turning on of the water in the mains. The new plant is modern in every way and the water, coming from the springs in the hills, is said to be equal to any in the state.

Plans for the annual state convention of the New Mexico Wool Growers' Association were formulated in Albuquerque at a meeting of the executive committee. The convention will be in Albuquerque, Feb. 1 and 2. Of chief importance will be action on a project to establish three bonded warehouses in the state.

Three men were burned, one of them badly, in a gasoline explosion near Pecos, a few days ago. They were: W. B. Fisher, A. C. Fisher, his son, and William Christian. The elder Fisher, who was in the most serious condition, was burned about the body and face. For a time his chance of recovery was regarded as doubtful.

Thomas C. Van Stone of Santa Fe, son of Mrs. Berta Van Stone, has been awarded a fellowship in the Harvard Engineering school, an award based on a previous scholarship record of highest distinction. Mr. Van Stone, who is now continuing his studies in the engineering school with a first group scholar in the rank list for last year.

One of the most enthusiastic meetings of the exercise men ever held in Dawson took place the last week at the Dawson opera house when a local post of the American Legion was formed with twenty-five members. More than the necessary number of members have signed the roll and the charter has been applied for under the name of the Brady-Aragon post.

John Sloan, Santa Fe and New York, one of the foremost American artists who have been listed as the later men who developed original ways of doing things, has shown another streak of originality. It might be called good luck. Sloan has sold a collection of twenty paintings to one man and has reaped a financial harvest to the tune of $30,000. The purchaser is Mr. Hicks of New York, a grandnephew of Harriet Hicks, wife president of the United States during the Civil War.

"While in New Mexico are in good condition generally the ranges are not overstocked and there is plenty of grass to winter them in good shape," declared John H. Hicks, one of the most experienced livestock men in the state. The shipping of stock is not active but the prices in all cases are not satisfactory to the growers, although steer products are selling for more than last year at this time. One of the real assets of the state, said Mr. Hicks, is the raising of large quantities of alfalfa so that the cattle men will not be obliged to import feed from out of the state.

The first meeting of what is to be known as the Gallup Rotary Club was held at the Manhattan Cafe in Gallup last week, when the by-laws were adopted and the officers elected. The club started off by adopting constitution and by-laws and electing officers and board of directors, as follows: President, J. W. Chapman; vice president, T. H. Seymour; secretary, L. N. Cary; treasurer, C. W. Davis.

The second section of the westbound Golden State Limited, running over the El Paso & Southwestern tracks, ran into the rear of the first section at Lamy, N. M., a few days ago, due to one of the worst snowstorms in the history of that section. No one was injured. The locomotive of the first section was derailed in a snowdrift one mile west of Lamy. The second section, running exceptionally slow, hit the tourist car at the rear of the first train. The tourist car and the locomotive of the second section were damaged. The first section consisted of baggage, mail cars, a day coach and the tourist car. The second section was a solid Pullman train.

One of the most complete Boy Scout club houses in New Mexico was opened in Dawson recently. After the completion of the new building the debt on it is only $500 and this will be cleared up during the coming year. A large number of the residents of the city attended the opening.

A new company, to be known as the Mesa Oil Company, is soon to start drilling in the vicinity of Hagerman, according to reports of Californians who have been in the city. The company has taken a lease on about 30,000 acres of land.

COLORADO GOLDEN JUBILEE TO BE SUGGESTED TO STATE CONFERENCE.

Denver—Colorado Golden Jubilee! That is the name which will be suggested to a meeting of representatives of all parts of the state on Saturday, Dec. 15, for a joint celebration in 1926 of the fiftieth anniversary of the admission of Colorado to statehood and of consolidation of the Mexican cession.

The suggestion will be made by a committee appointed last week by Gov. William H. Sweet for consideration of the advisability and feasibility of holding a celebration of the kind. The committee, of which Gano N. Hedgepeth is chairman, believes the jubilee could be made of immeasurable value to all Colorado, but decision as to whether the big affair will be carried out will rest with the meeting representatives of the different sections of the state a week from next Saturday.

The presidents of all chambers of commerce in Colorado, the mayors of all the larger cities, all former governors of the state, the president of the State of Colorado and the president of the Territorial Daughters of Colorado will be invited to participate in the meeting.

The governor's committee sees an opportunity in the jubilee to advance the development of all the principal parts of the state in a most practical way.

Laying their own experiences and ideas before the conference, the governor's representatives will ask for suggestions and criticisms and a decision as to whether or not Colorado should go ahead. If the decision is for a jubilee, steps toward perfection of the organization to do the work will probably be taken immediately.

This the members believe can be accomplished by working out a complete balanced program in which different weeks or periods can be devoted to different sections of the state where special attractions and features would be held during those weeks. Automobile trips and railroad excursions to those sections during the feature weeks and generally throughout the jubilee would supplement the efforts of the various sections.

The other members of the committee appointed by Governor Sweet to start the ball rolling include: Clara N. Stannard, A. R. Trott, C. C. Parks, Charles A. Johnson and Calvin E. Mills.
