English Professor's Views on American Problems

Prof. J. Arthur Thomson, of Aberdeen University, one of the most distinguished of Britain's educators, recently visited this country, and upon his return to England gave out a statement on his observations while in the United States in which his conclusions are interesting, if not altogether pleasing. He says:

"A very remarkable post war phenomenon is the reaction to extremely liberal orthodoxy, called 'fundamentalism.'"

"It implies a return to the things that cannot be shaken, such as creationism and verbal inspiration of the scriptures. Attempts have been made to prohibit the promulgation of evolutionist science in schools; we have heard of the dismissal of evolutionist teachers; and it has been suggested that museums should not be arranged in such a way as to suggest the evolution idea, which is simply that the present is the child of the past and the parent of the future."

"It is always in some measure good that people should have strong convictions in regard to any serious question; but fundamentalism seems ill-informed and intolerant. Anyhow, it is like a pathetic Mrs. Partington trying to sweep back the scientific tide."

"There was much breaking of the ice during the war, and fundamentalist reaction represents a failure in readjustment. It is a frightened rebound behind the bulwarks of an out-worn orthodoxy which proclaims itself impregnable and hypnotizes the credulous into accepting an illusion. The most remarkable feature about fundamentalism is the insecurity of its foundations."

"Cognate with fundamentalism, is the detached outsider's eyes, is another post war phenomenon—the Ku Klux Klan movement."

"Both had their analogies after the civil war. Both are expressions of the self-preservation instinct. For the operations of the Ku Klux Klan express a somewhat scare-driven deter-

Receipts and Expenditures on American Problems

Two weeks ago we published a statistical statement of the receipts and expenditures of the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad Company, for the year 1923, covering the eight New Mexico counties through which the system operates. The revenues shown are derived from traffic to and from points in the eight counties, while the expenditures cover operating expenses, taxes, etc., in the same counties. The statement, based on the above items, shows that the company paid out, during the year 1923, in these counties, almost $2,000,000 more than it received. For instance, in Lincoln county, for the calendar year 1923, the total receipts of the company were $134,578 14, and it paid out in vouchers, taxes and payrolls $439,140.76; the expenditures exceeding the receipts by $304,562 62. To overcome this discrepancy the company has to rely on shipments routed over its lines, but originating outside of the territory over which it operates in New Mexico.

Bishop Visits

Right Reverend Frederick B. Howden of the Episcopal church, Bishop of New Mexico and west Texas, conducted services in the Lutz Hall last Sunday night. The rite of confirmation was administered to many communicants during his visit.

nation to save America for the Americans, just as the fundamentalists seek to secure their souls by becoming defenders of the faith.

"Both are willing to go to considerable lengths, and both suffer from the myopia of fanaticism. The Ku Klux Klansmen are against aliens, negroes, Jews, Roman Catholics, new departures of all sorts. They have the instincts of the game preserver and the aggressive Tory."

"Like the prohibitionists, they are characteristically contradictory expressions of the great country where the flag of freedom flaps so furiously."

Educational News

The County Board of Education met in the office of the County Superintendent on Monday afternoon. The following teachers having been recommended by the local boards of directors, were employed for the coming year: Mrs. Ida Browning, Ruidoso; J. F. Steele, White Oaks; Floy Zumwalt, Nogal; Brooksie Skinner, Angus; E. L. Flores, Rabenton; Estelle Howard, Alto; J. W. Wilferth and Louise Webb, Hondo; Beatrice Chalk, Jacks Peak; Sofia Luna and Maria Sanchez, Arabela; Thelma Haley, Pleasant Hill.

On July 7th final approval of the other teachers who will be employed in the county will be made.

State examinations for teachers will be held in this office, June 26, 27 and 28, and July 16, 17 and 18. Teachers who have not all requirements for certification under the new ruling are requested to forward their credits together with required fees at once to the State Department of Education.

The school budgets for the year 1924-25 were approved by the County Budget Auditors and the State Budget Auditor on May 28. Teachers' salaries with a few exceptions remain the same as last year. These budgets are subject to the approval of the State Tax Commission. Before July 1st of each year the State Tax Commission shall fix the final budget allowances for all schools. Copies of these budgets will then be sent to clerks of local boards.

The National Educational Association meets in Washington June 29 to July 4. Excellent programs have been prepared. President Coolidge will take part in one of the programs.

Candidate for Assessor

In this issue of the News will be found the announcement of Harry A. Gallacher, of White Oaks, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of Assessor of the county of Lincoln. Notwithstanding the candidate's birthplace, Lincoln, and the further fact that he comes from a Republican family, since his majority he has been a Democrat and worked with that party, and two years ago, as chairman of his local committee, gave a good accounting of his present. He came with his parents to Carrizozo, New Mexico, in 1881, at the age of five, and to White Oaks in 1887, has lived in Lincoln county ever since, a period of thirty-seven years. Harry Gallacher is particularly well fitted for the office for which he is an aspirant. He possesses the education essential for the proper fulfillment of the duties of the Assessor's office, and his long acquaintance with its affairs will add to his usefulness as an official, should his candidacy prove successful. His qualifications will appeal to many voters and those who know him best feel that he will make a conscientious and faithful official.

Democrats have always liked a horse race, and everything indicates that they will get their fill of it at this month's national convention in New York City. There are three leading candidates, none of whom appear to have a commanding lead, and numerous "dark" horses from which selections may be made.

Fort Stanton Notes

Fort Stanton, June 4
Memorial Day was observed by appropriate ceremonies at Sierra Vista (Station) Cemetery, after which the flag-decorated graves were strewn with flowers and green boughs. Trucks and cars went out the day before and brought in loads of wild flowers and locust and algerita. Mr. F. Pfingsten of Lincoln furnished roses, while Mrs. Hoover brought strawberries for the patients as well as flowers from Mr. Adams' strawberry ranch at Glencoe.

Mrs. J. V. Tully and her three sons, Gerald, James, Jr., and Kivas were confirmed in the Episcopal church here Monday evening. The Right Reverend Frederick B. Howden, D. D., Bishop of the Episcopal church, officiated at the service. Before the confirmation, Paul Schreiber played two beautiful cello solos, and Mr. Beckner of Picacho sang a tenor solo. Miss Helen Rice, accompanied Messrs. Schreiber and Beckner at the piano. About one hundred people attended the service, which included many friends from Glencoe, Capitan and Lincoln.

Little "Betty Jane" arrived via the "stork express" Tuesday June 3rd to gladden the hearts of Jas. Anderson and wife, and to be a devoted sister to a delighted Jimmie.

Major and Mrs. Anderson and family have returned from an outing trip, which included the Grand Cañon and many other points of interest.

Captain and Mrs. Besse are staying at the Buena Vista hotel in Capitan while preparing for an extended trip through the Canadian Rockies.

The dance on the 30th, given by the Seaman's Social Club was the usual social success. The music was furnished by Lem's orchestra—the "Night Owls" of Roswell.

Mr. J. C. Michelmore has returned to his post of duty after a week's vacation spent with his mother and son in El Paso. On Wednesday morning Cooper Hendron accompanied Captain Esteban to San Francisco where the Captain hopes to be benefited by the lower altitude. Captain Esteban held the biggest case of any seaman at Fort Stanton. He leaves many friends who wish him well in Frisco.

T. H. Hines has gone to El Paso to get out of a few more hours of class, and has left his bird ranch in the care of James Houghton.

A big time is expected at the Fourth of July celebration here. Watch this column for program and particulars. The baseball game will be followed that evening by a dance at eight o'clock. The music will be furnished by the Roswell Ours.

Fordyce-Rowland

O. C. Fordyce and Miss Ella Rowland were married in Chicago May 26, and the newly-weds will make their home in the city by the lake. The groom, though not generally known over our county, lived for a period at Capitan and was connected with a garage at that point. The bride, a daughter of Mrs. Maggie Esby, was born in Lincoln county and lived here until a few months ago when she accompanied her sister, Miss Myrtle, to Chicago. Miss Fordyce graduated from the Carrizozo High School one year ago, is a most charming young woman and highly esteemed by her associates. A host of friends wish the young couple a happy and prosperous future.

President Butler Remarks

Columbia's President has about as much Use for the Tariff as He Has for Prohibition

Nicholas Murray Butler, whom we quoted some time ago on prohibition, and whose declarations on that subject stirred up a bitter controversy, rises again to make a few remarks. This time he takes the tariff as his text, and although a Republican, President Butler shows, no more disposition to soft-pedal on the tariff than he did on prohibition. The Columbia University head had just returned from a sojourn in the west, where he had done a little first hand investigating, and his conclusions are far from complimentary as to the beneficent effects of the tariff, for which he is due to be the recipient of such epithets as traitor, encouraging law-breakers, etc.; for, he understood, that the tariff is just as sacred a fetish with some as prohibition is with others. Anyhow, President Butler, speaking of his observations in the farming belt, has this to say:

"The general sentiment appeared to be that while agricultural conditions are improving, they have a long distance to go as many 'frozen loans' are still handicapping both the farmers and the bankers. It was stated that the farmer feels his grievance to be that while he must sell in an open market, he is compelled to buy in a closed market."

"He has found by experience that a tariff on agricultural products does him no good, and that those tariff duties which help the manufacturer increase the farmer's cost of living and limit his capacity to sell abroad. He is thinking very seriously on these things and there may be some surprises when the votes are counted in November."

"This account of conditions and opinions coincides with the reports that have been made by nearly every investigator who has toured the agricultural states west of the Mississippi river. The Harding-Coolidge administration is held responsible for increasing taxes in the form of tariffs at a time when thousands of western farmers were struggling under a load of debts and unable to obtain hardly more than the cost of production for what they had to sell."

Whence Came "Gringo"?

The Santa Fe New Mexican publishes a letter from Col. Ralph E. Twitchell, in which the colonel gives his version of the origin of the word "Gringo." Col. Twitchell is a well known New Mexico historian and writer, and whatever he has to say on questions of this nature commands attention. We feel that the New Mexican will pardon the liberty we take in reproducing the matter. The letter reads:

"A number of people have asked me several times what I know about the origin of the word 'gringo.' Etymologists have been prone to attribute the origin of the word to the first two words in a song which was very popular among the American people in the early 'forties, beginning with 'Green Grow the Rushes, Oh,' and which was sung by the American soldiers during the Mexican war. This is not the origin, however."

"In a Spanish dictionary of 1818 we find that the word is interpreted as meaning 'something unintelligible,' and in another Spanish dictionary of 1787, where it is stated that the word was used in Malaga to indicate foreigners who spoke Spanish poorly."

"The use of the word by the Mexican people and those of Mexican origin in referring contemptuously to Americans is of comparatively recent origin. In speaking of the American soldier it was not so used by the Mexicans, but later on it seems to have taken on this interpretation."

"My authority for these statements is the late Will M. Tipton, who, in my judgment, was the most discriminating Spanish-into-English and English-into-Spanish translator in the country. I thought it would be well to publish this, so that Mr. Tipton's research might not be lost."

"R. E. Twitchell."

Republican speakers in and out of Congress have ceased to point with pride to the achievements of the Republican party, but are dwelling on the character of the chief executive. In this they are in the position of the Biblical character who leaned upon a reed. In private conversation they make small effort to conceal their feeling that the only question remaining in their minds is as to the size of the disaster which they are facing.

The National Conventions

In the Republican National convention in Cleveland the nomination of President Coolidge will be only a formality. He will have practically all the votes in the convention. The only question over which a fight appears to hover, centers around the selection of a running mate for the President and the platform declaration. The latter promises a wordy contest, but everybody knows what the result will be—the ultra conservatives will be in control absolutely, as they always have been in a Republican convention, and the platform will be written accordingly. The progressives will not get in a single word-length of inserting an outstanding principle of theirs in the document.

In the Democratic convention in New York, later this month, conditions point to a situation almost wholly different. In the contest for the leading place on the ticket, McAdoo, it seems, will lead in the balloting, with Governor Smith and Senator Underwood trailing in the order named. There will be presented to the convention a long list of favorite sons, and the action of the delegations, after a complimentary vote has been given to each respective favorite son, will most likely, decide the contest. For the second place on the ticket, well founded belief that someone now mentioned for first place will be chosen. In the preparation of a platform there will be diverse opinions, but no such basic differences as there exist to the Republican party, as the Democratic party is progressively inclined, and serious opposition to progressive thought has no existence in the party.

The big fight on the Democratic convention will, therefore, be over the nominees for president, not only because of the multiplicity of candidates, but also, because of the new methods which may lead to the elimination of the leading candidates and the selection of a dark horse.

No Republican of the conservative wing of the party has been able to visualize sufficient chance of victory in November to cause him to tear his clothes for the occasion. As Taft viewed it in 1912, Coolidge probably views it now—that disaster is ahead, but he must face the music.

In the Sheriff's Race

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of A. H. Aguayo for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff of Lincoln County. Harry Aguayo was born at Tulare, but his parents moved to Lincoln County during his infancy and he has since continuously made this his home. In his early manhood he was a cow-puncher, but later acquired a ranch and cattle and now has a comfortable home in pleasant surroundings, near Nogal. Mr. Aguayo is a descendant of the Hill family, one of the well known families of the state. He has never been an aspirant for office, but has numerous friends who have urged him to enter this race, and having decided to do so makes his candidacy known through these columns. Mr. Aguayo is in the prime of life, is a capable man, has a life-time acquaintance with the county and its people and, if chosen, should make a very satisfactory official.

The Big Burden

In the west there is a growing conviction that such nostrums as the tariff on wheat and corn, and farm relief bills—are make-shifts of little avail to the farmer. They begin to realize that the real source of their difficulty lies in tariff taxes so high as to compel them to pay fancy tariff-protected prices for everything they have to buy, but that a tariff on imports cannot possibly protect the prices of their products, which have to be sold to a large extent in foreign markets, where our tariff is powerless to aid the American farmer. They are beginning to learn that 'protection' merely protects the high price of the man who sells his manufacturers to the American consumer, while restricting the trade of those Europeans who would buy our wheat and corn if permitted to sell us some of their own products. It will be difficult to keep the tariff from being a very important issue in the campaign, for men are learning that this indirect tax takes an annual toll of billions of dollars, insidiously but surely.

Every month I would stay in bed from one to two days. The pains in my back and sides were awful. This went on for several months after I was married until, one time when I was having a bad spell, my husband suggested that I try Cardui. I said I would try it, so he got me a bottle at the store and I began to take it. It seemed like I improved from the very first dose. When I had taken one bottle I was very much better. I did not cramp so hard the next month and I ate and slept better. I was not nearly so nervous, either. I thought Cardui was fine, so I continued the treatment until I had taken five bottles, at which time I felt completely well. I had no more cramping spells at all, and my health was as good as anybody's. I am feeling fine now and I give all the credit to Cardui, for I had been suffering for years before I took it."

Cardui is a vegetable extract, containing no harmful ingredients. It is made from mild-acting medicinal herbs with a gentle, tonic, strengthening effect upon certain female organs and upon the system in general. Its users have testified to its special value at the time of entering womanhood, at maturity and at the time of the change of life.

For over 40 years, Cardui has been tested in use by thousands of women who have written to tell of the great benefit they have received from it. For over 600 years, medical authorities have recommended one of the principal ingredients of Cardui in the treatment of certain female complaints.

Cardui, the woman's tonic, tested by time, is today the product of many years of experience and investigation. It is manufactured in up-to-date laboratories by the most modern and scientific methods of pharmaceutical science and is for sale by all druggists.

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn.—"I was badly run-down, had pains in my side and back, sometimes I could hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my housework again. I do my housework, have a garden, raise chickens, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-month-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

The Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved women of such troubles for the past fifty years. For sale by druggists everywhere.

When the Red Gods Call

one is a scene in the South St. Vrain Canyon, near Rocky Mountain National park. The men—and some of the women—have been whipping the stream for trout, and now all hands are busy getting lunch. Thousands of such scenes are staged every day all through the West. The group of cars contains all kinds. The group of humans contains all kinds. And maybe it doesn't do the humans good. Angling, you know, makes all men brothers—at least for the time being. And eating together warms the cockles of the human heart. The farmer from Kansas and the banker from Maine and the merchant from Louisiana, after such an experience, have a better understanding of their fellow-citizens and a kinder feeling. Great is the democracy of the out-of-doors.

The top picture shows a permanent camp in a national forest. Camping, by the way, is the severest test of the real worth of people. After a month in camp, every one knows every one else for keeps. If a person has a long streak or a mean streak or a yellow streak—it will show as sure as God made little fishes. So a valuable hint for vacation campers is this: Choose your company carefully.

The Scotch West is the "Land of Rattlers" in summer time. Every one wears trousers which are more or less unfortunate.

But the average is high. Take a well-shaped American girl and put her in a modern sport "ketchup" and she's just about the most fetching woman in the world. So the general effect is pleasing. Microscopes are necessary for many recreations. The woman who rides all-saddle in the West is a goddess of utility. And mountain climbing, if it's the real thing, cannot be done safely in skirts. The girls in the picture are Mount Hatcher visitors.

Mount Hatcher, by the way, has it on all the other parks. The top of the mountain is always snow-covered and winter sports in July are the regular thing every year. And here's something interesting. Young Americans are apparently taking to winter sports from coast to coast. New England was full of people playing to the snow last winter. Now Montana had two months of it—February and March—with many visitors. It's a good thing, too. Climbing the summer for your mount is not good for people. A touch of frost is needed to harden the feet of a man and bring him to his normal mental and physical stature.

Of course the real value to the American people of the national parks is their spiritual, educational and physical possibilities. The physical is self-evident. The educational is an accident, with variation. These national parks are vast natural museums of objects of our earth in the making. The people, up to the present, have looked upon mountains as the abode of some mysterious power. The National Parks association, a national-wide organization of mountaineers, is putting a campaign of education in progress that will make the mountains of these states the visitors' playgrounds. Most of the principal parks have nature guides and lectures and museums in addition to the facilities of education.

As to the spiritual: The mountains—Louis Park, "King of the Rockies"; Mount Hatcher, the "Mountain That Was God"; Mount McKinley, most majestic of all North American peaks—are majestic indeed; but even more majestic is the response to them that is awakened in the human mind and soul. The man is a poor specimen of the human race who is not bettered by association with the beautiful and majestic in nature.

Oh, it is there, I think, that all the roses of learning wait! And it is there true wisdom lies. Our wisdom is transcendent.

Where the River Shannon Flows

Project on Foot to Harness Historic Irish Stream.

Washington.—The Shannon river, which so long has figured in the romances of the imaginative Irish, will soon be connected with an industrial romance of that country, if the great engineering project for harnessing its waters, reported to be in progress, is put into operation," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Dainty shamrock blooms and other flowers nod their pretty heads by the side of its foaming weirs and its bawling rapids. They give a colorful background to stories concerning the fairies who still play pranks upon the inhabitants in its vicinity, the miraculous cures of the numerous holy wells, and the potency of the wishing wells near its banks.

Longest in Irish Free State.

"Statistically speaking, the Shannon is the largest and longest river in the new Irish Free State, measures 240 miles in length and is eight miles wide at its mouth. During its course it drops 150 feet from the foot of the Cullinagh mountains, where it rises, to the sea—the last feature being the source of its power to turn the wheels of industry.

"From Loop Head and Kerry Head, the twin capes at its entrance to the sea, it is navigable for all classes of ships for 35 miles, or up to its junction with the Fergus river and a considerable world navy might be hidden within its estuary, which in some places widens out to ten miles. Once, many years ago, the town of Limerick at the head of navigation on the Shannon, had fond aspirations of being the greatest port in Ireland because ships from America could sail up the river and dock at her wharves, but a turn in the tide of affairs of the island caused the city to wither away, and now few boats except excursion steamers and pleasure craft drop their gangplanks along Limerick's waterfront.

"Down through Lough Allen, near the northwestern coast of Ireland out into the central portion of the country and back again to the southwest, the river flows, measuring off a portion of land very similar in shape to Wales, about the same size and in a corresponding location with reference to Ireland that Wales bears to England. It has been canalized and made navigable for small vessels as far as Lough Allen near its source; the Grand and Royal canals connect it with Dublin, the Ulster canal with Belfast. Its volume is obtained from a catchment basin of 4,344 square miles.

Divided Island Historically.

"Historically speaking, it has for a thousand or more years been the dividing line between eastern Ireland, which was overrun at various times by the Danes and the English, and western Ireland, which is Irish through and through and where Gaelic is still the language of the people.

"But the beautiful fertile valley, with its green, calm, lush meadows seems fitter for a more peaceful life than history has hitherto accorded it. The Danes pushed their boats up to the head of navigation at Limerick in the Ninth century, and managed to throw a bridge across the river. This was almost the only way of getting across the river barrier with the exception of the ford at Athlone just below Lough Ree.

"Brian Boru led his forces against the Danes and drove them out after a struggle which romantically colors the pages of Irish history, but the Normans came just a little while later, took Limerick and erected a great round-towered castle from which they might clinch their hold upon the country. Scarcely a century passed that did not know bloody struggles along the peaceful river. Edward Bruce captured the Norman castle in 1310, and Hugh O'Neill held it for six months against one of the greatest of Cromwell's generals. The venerable old castle, with its great drumlike towers and walls ten feet thick, stands by the riverside today.

"The portion of the river just above Limerick is known as the most beautiful, and has been dubbed by happy fishermen—the "Utopia of Irish anglers." Its salmon and trout fishing are famous enough to make devotees cross their roads, poles, and lines in retrospect over the hours they spent at Carrick-on-Shannon, Athlone, Killaloe, or Castletown.

Texas Landmark Is Being Razed

72-Year-Old Schoolhouse Has Romantic History.

Austin, Tex.—Austin's first schoolhouse, the parent of all Texas educational institutions and a landmark in the Southwest, is being razed in preparation for the erection of a modern residence upon the site where the school has stood the last 72 years.

A bride's wedding gift, the old structure has in turn been a home, a schoolhouse, a powder magazine for the Confederate army, a public meeting place, and in the later days a boarding house for university students.

It was built in 1852 by the state of Texas, a land baron of those days. It has changed hands only twice in its history and is now owned by Edward Booth, who wants to erect a modern dwelling on the site.

Its limestone walls have withstood even an attack by the federal army, whose soldiers, during the reconstruction period, tipped off its roof and all its doors to make platforms for their tents.

Erected in 1852.

The occasion for the erection of the house was the marriage of Miss Louise Horst, daughter of the great landowner, to George Robinson in 1852.

The bride's father owned a tract of land, including the present site ally neighborhood and all North Austin, extending approximately as far south as Fifteenth street, which then marked the northern boundary of the city limits, though the town itself was at that time a full mile away, situated upon the banks of the Colorado.

Horst desired to build his daughter a home as a wedding gift. Accordingly, in the year of her marriage, he built the ancient structure which stood until recently in as firm a condition as it was on the day of its completion. The "old" which went with the house included practically all of present North Austin.

Used as Powder House.

In 1862, when the Yankees captured New Orleans and Galveston, excitement ran high in the southern part of the state, and three forts were erected to guard approaches to the capital city. The rock edifice was then turned into a powder house and magazine for high explosives. But when Dick Taylor with a handful of Texans defeated Banks and Porter at Sabine Cross Roads in April of 1863, the excitement died out, and the old house was emptied of its military equipment and again made into a schoolhouse.

Louise Horst, grandchild of the elder Horst who erected the house, and a resident of Austin at the present time spent his first school days in this old hall.

Refuge in Indian Attacks.

For many years the seven-room rock house was a refuge for people living in the neighborhood when Indian attacks were made. Numerous legends concerning wildness and Indian atrocities that occurred around the old rock house are told.

The ground on which the schoolhouse stood prior to the erection of the present one, occupied during the first days of the period of reconstruction following the 1860 war, when Union troops were stationed in Austin to enforce federal power and the state government. They pitched their tents on George Hill, where the part of the University of Texas, erected in 1881, now stands. It is said the ground was used for many years for their headquarters. The soldiers were often ordered to make parties, social for the night, and for which were to be taken from the old rock schoolhouse. The schoolmaster was to be every body in and on the house was broken—the porch, window frames, doors, doors, roof, doors and all.

The story Horst appended several lines to the inscription for damage done to the building by federal troops, but the money was never obtained.

By JOHN DICKINSON-SHERMAN

The recurrent message of the spring airs us all, for it is then that the "red gods" call loudest and with most insistence. Their call goes out from their abiding places—the unspoiled places of earth, the silent places, the places where Nature is at her wildest and best. And everywhere and by everyone the call is heard. This imperative call of the Red Gods is always the same. And the message we get is this:

Come and play, where the work and are heavy laden. Drop the strenuous life. Take up the simple life. You will know the reality for all who are not dead. Breathe, take breath, rest, rest!

That's the message, simple and clear. But of course this message means different things to different people, since we can interpret only according to our individual understanding and experience. Some of us are indeed fortunate to whom the call means but one thing—where the Red Gods travel of the factually summer resort of the Blue Stream where like the best of the camp beside the river take of the broad highway that leads the automobile across the continent of the continent to peaks of everlasting snow. Or it may be that some of us are so fortunate that we can say with the mountaineer:

I wish it was a little rock
As high as a mountain,
As long as a day,
As wide as a world,
I would sit on it
And watch the world
Go by.

But many of us are not so fortunate—and are more unfortunate. To the unfortunate the Red Gods call with no clear message. They have no where or at what to play. So the annual spectacle of the American people at play includes the saddest spectacle of thousands getting no real enjoyment and legs rest—wasting their precious vacation days.

Let us not be of these unfortunate. Let us use our brains with our play. Let us get a fair amount of common sense and know how to spend our vacation days. Let us profit by the successes and failures of past vacations. Let us play temperately; let us play to make the play less strenuous. On the other hand, "Astronauts" need not bring rest as compared with a change of occupation in a different environment.

Getting right down to rock-bottom, the right sort of vacation is a godsend, while the wrong kind may be worse than none. To come back from a vacation to rest up from the play—that's one thing. To return with renewed strength and courage—that's another and very different story. Let us therefore play wisely. So shall we return to the duties of everyday life refreshed and rested and with determination to face anew its responsibilities.

Yes; we Americans are loyal and devoted subjects of the Red Gods. The United States Department of Commerce reports that in 1923 American tourists spent $200,000,000 in pleasure abroad. The Tourist Bureau of Montreal reports that 152,000 Americans took the 1923 cruise entered the Province of Quebec last year. It estimates that the 152,000 automobiles brought 600,000 visitors and adds that "a conservative estimate in regard to the amount of money brought into the province by automobile tourists alone amounts to close to $11,000,000." Every state in the Union except Utah and Nevada was represented.

However, the cruise, "The Alberta Cruise" has not fallen even close to that. Approximately 100,000 automobiles are in the trails of the country during 1923, amounting to the tourist business of the Chicago Motor Club. The Seattle Western-Pacific route and national street-automobile tour of this month used figures furnished by the national park service of the interior department show that the national parks—the public playgrounds of the American people—have a large percentage of the nation's vacationers are some of the figures:

Rocky Mountain National park in Colorado—the most easily accessible and most popular of all the parks—had an attendance of 129,000. The official estimate is that these visitors spent $75,000,000 and about 100,000 days. About $2,000,000 was expended in Yellowstone by visitors and $1,000,000 was expended by these tourists in the immediate adjacent states.

A large proportion of these motorists carried camping outfits. Some always camped only some used hotels at their convenience. Every self-respecting community in the Rocky West has an up-to-date auto camp. Tourists usually pass by all towns that have no camp. The point is: The American people are rapidly becoming efficient campers who can be comfortable out-of-doors and are independent of hotels.

Two of the pictures herewith suggest the possibilities of such a project, which is more or less unfortunate.

But the average is high. Take a well-shaped American girl and put her in a modern sport "ketchup" and she's just about the most fetching woman in the world. So the general effect is pleasing. Microscopes are necessary for many recreations. The woman who rides all-saddle in the West is a goddess of utility. And mountain climbing, if it's the real thing, cannot be done safely in skirts. ## FACTS ABOUT RICE

There has always been considerable discussion and misunderstanding as to just what is meant by the terms polished and coated rice and whether coating injures the food value. Polished rice has the bran, the germ, the gluten layer, and some of the water layers of starch cells removed from it. The common practice in the rice mills in this country is to coat polished rice with very small proportions of glucose and talc. The coating makes rice whiter and more lustrous, and, although it is a rather costly operation, millers and dealers believe that it pays. Since rice should be thoroughly washed through several waters before it is cooked, probably only very slight traces of coating remain. There is no evidence tending to show that coated rice, when properly washed and cooked, causes any digestive disturbances due to the small amount of coating left in the food. There is, therefore, no danger in using coated rice as a part of a mixed diet when the rice had been properly washed and cooked.

Eastern Music

Eastern music consists chiefly of songs, chants and recitations. Many of these possess considerable musical rhythm. Although the tunes to which they are sung are crude they are traced to keynotes. The melodies especially are said to be very pleasing and a number of these have been published with corresponding music.

NEW UNIVERSE IS SEEN IN HARVARD PHOTOGRAPHS

Paint Stars in September May Erred That Heavens Are Formed From Ice.

Washington.—Government scientists identified with glacial research at the Mount Hatcher National park are showing interest in the new theory developed by the Viennese scientist, Dr. Hans Hoerger, that glacial cosmogony "explains" the origin of the heavens.

This idea, that ice is the building material with which new universes are constantly forming in the heavens, recently stirred scientific circles of Europe. Now it is being given particular attention in America in connection with the recent discovery at the Harvard observatory, where photographs were taken showing that a faint, but unmistakable nebula in the sky is the constellation of Sagittarius, the Archer, is a distinct universe.

From these photographs Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory, estimates that it takes 1,000,000 years for light to travel from this newly found universe, which, he says, is the most distant object ever viewed by the eye of man. He bases this statement on the fact that the most distant stars known prior to this measurement are only 200,000 light years from our earth.

The new universe found by the main-moat lenses measures six quadrillion miles away. It took a 100-inch reflecting telescope, the largest ever made, to find this "cloud of stars."

Port Huron, Mich.—A circus poster, painted to the wall of a building on Main street 52 years ago and covered by an adjoining wall has again been brought to light. Workmen removing the wall found the poster. It advertises the Adam Forepaugh circus, showing in Port Huron, May 5, 1872.

Milk-Burning Engine Draws Cars 20 Miles

Chicago.—Dr. Herman N. Eisenberg, health commissioner of Chicago, ran a train over the Rock Island tracks from the Englewood station to Beverly Hills and back, about twenty miles, using for fuel chunks of dry milk instead of coal.

When the skeptical crowd reached the station Doctor Eisenberg was at the throttle in the engine cab and H. Wortheller, the fireman, was shoveling chunks of dried cow's milk into the firebox. During the entire experiment milk was the only thing fed to the fire.

The locomotive pulled a train of five cars, carrying more than 500 passengers, mostly children, from the Chicago Home for Friendless Children and the Chicago Orphan asylum.

Tucson, Ariz.—The massive bones of a mastodon, believed to have lived during the Pliocene period, some 500,000 years ago, have been found near here and turned over to the University of Arizona.

Pure Mesquite Honey

OUR CHOICE WHITE MESQUITE HONEY will be on the market in a few days. We cater to particular people. Here are some reasons why you should buy "The Hedstrom & Allen" Honey:

- 1st—We use Queen Excluders. These separate the young bees from the honey. You get the pure honey with the true flavor.
- 2nd—We leave honey in the hives and let the bees ripen it. This gives the honey the best flavor and it will keep its true flavor always.

We make prompt deliveries and our prices are low for this high-grade honey. Be sure and put your order in early if you want some of this delicious Mesquite Honey.
