VOLUME 25

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, FEB. 6, 1925

NUMBER 6

Your Income Tax

(Last Installment)

No. 9

Losses arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or "other casualty," or from theft, whether or not connected with a taxpayer's business, may be deducted from gross income in his 1924 income tax return. If his home or automobile is destroyed by fire or his property damaged by storm, the loss is deductible for the year in which it was incurred.

Loss of property by theft or burglary is an allowable deduction, and need not be incurred in the taxpayer's trade or business. A loss from embezzlement is also deductible.

All losses are deductible only to the extent by which they are not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

No. 10

A debt discovered to be worthless and charged off the books of the taxpayer for the year 1924 may be deducted from the gross income in computing net income for that year. The return must show evidence of the manner in which the worthlessness of the debt was discovered and that ordinary and legal means for its collection have been or would be unavailable.

Bad debts may be deducted in whole or in part. When deducted, the taxpayer must be able to show with a reasonable degree of certainty the amount collectible. Partial deductions are allowed with respect to specific debts only.

A valid debt proved to be worthless may not always be a proper deduction. For example, unpaid amounts representing wages, rentals or similar items are not allowed as deductions unless included as gross income in the creditor's return for the year in which the deduction is sought or in a previous year. The fact that expected income was not received does not reduce the amount of taxable income of the creditor.

Unpaid loans made to credit relatives or friends with little or no expectation that they would be repaid are not deductible, but are regarded as gifts.

No. 11

Where by reason of illness or absence from home additional time for filing an income tax return is required, the taxpayer should advise the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., a request for an extension. Collectors of Internal Revenue are not, as under preceding acts, permitted to grant such extensions. The request must be made before the return is due—on or before March 15, 1925, if made on the calendar year basis—and must contain a full recital for the causes of the delay.

Epidemic Subsiding

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 4.—Nome is winning the fight to control the diphtheria epidemic. Dr. Curtis Welch, and his assistant, Miss Emily Morgan, of Wichita, Kansas, are spending day and night inoculating those who have been exposed to the disease.

Their example is allaying any danger of hysteria which might otherwise arise. No new deaths have been reported.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., a request for an extension. Collectors of Internal Revenue are not, as under preceding acts, permitted to grant such extensions. The request must be made before the return is due—on or before March 15, 1925, if made on the calendar year basis—and must contain a full recital for the causes of the delay.

An extension of time for filing the return does not extend the time of payment of tax or installment thereof unless so specified in the extension. As a condition of granting an extension, the commissioner may require the submission of a tentative return and estimate of the amount of the tax, and the payment of at least one-fourth of the estimated amount.

No. 12

Under the revenue act of 1924, thousands of persons are required to file returns of income although the incomes are not taxable. The act provides that returns shall be filed by every single person whose net income for 1924 was $1,000 or more or whose gross income was $5,000 or more, and by married couples living together, whose aggregate net income was $2,500 or more, or whose aggregate gross income was $5,000 or more. The exceptions are $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons living together, plus a $400 credit for each dependent. A person may have a gross income of $5,000 and, by reason of the deductions for business expenses, bad debts, losses, etc., a net income of less than $1,000. A single person may have an exemption of $2,000 as the head of a family. Nevertheless, returns are required in both instances.

Heavy penalties are provided by the act for failure to file a return and pay at least one-fourth of the amount of tax due within the time prescribed, on or before March 15, 1925.

Smile and the World Smiles with You

[The Winner]

REMEMBER the old saying of Ella Wheeler Wilcox: "Laugh, and the world laughs with you; weep, and you weep alone." There's meat for thought in those lines.

Each time you laugh you are happy; each time you see something funny you laugh at it, don't you? And each laugh helps you to live longer and to emit another giggle of delight.

Worrying over the perplexing problems of life never got anyone very far in life. Smiles have the power to make you forget all your troubles; they help to enlighten your whole being. Persons who cultivate a smile are very seldom wanting for friends; the smile constantly draws new ones to their sides.

When you smile it shows the world that you are happy, and as long as you are happy you will always find others who are happy.

The colored man may be broke and hungry, yet just crack a good joke, and you get a hearty laugh in return. He's just plain happy, even if he is broke.

The telephone girl preaches, "The voice with the smile wins."

The girl who looks around for chances of making other people happy cannot escape being happy. Just a smile has been known to make a life-long friend. Try it on the next grouch you meet. It takes quicker than mail-pox.

A pleasant smile adds more to personality than any single attribute. It is an invitation to further acquaintance, a hostage to cheerfulness.

Antitoxin for Nome

Nome, Alaska, Feb. 3.—Fatigued after two days loss of sleep and exhausted from driving a team of dogs sixty miles to Nome through a blinding blizzard for seven and one-half hours in order to deliver 300,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin yesterday, Gunnar Kasson was asleep today.

Kasson accomplished a feat seldom attained by seasoned mushers of the sub-Arctic. For two days he waited on the trail at Bluff with 13 dogs, to transfer serum shipped from Anchorage, via Nenana, from Olsen's relay dog team.

When Olsen's team trotted into Bluff with the precious load of diphtheria anti-toxin, intended to check the spread of the dreaded disease in Nome, the bundle was transferred to Kasson's sled.

Despite a temperature of 28 degrees below zero, and a blizzard fanned by a stiff wind, Kasson carried on. The storm and darkness prevented him from meeting Fred Rohn at Selomon for the last short relay dash into Nome. He kept up the pace, however, and reached here at daybreak. Four dogs in his team were badly frozen.

Greek-Turk Dispute

Geneva, Feb. 3.—Greece's representative here, M. Dendrakis, visited League of Nations headquarters today and discussed with the officials the dispute between Greece and Turkey over the expulsion of the patriarch Constantine from Constantinople. The Greek diplomat gave the impression that he was making preliminary inquiries preparatory to a possible appeal by Greece to the league under the covenant on the ground that the controversy endangers good relations between the two nations and involves peace. Such an appeal would be founded on article XI of the covenant.

Strongly estranged to Washington, D. C., to see national farm marketing plan can come only through the enthusiastic interest and work of the farmers themselves, and those who are interested in cutting down exhibition crops of parasite industries.

Organize for the Repeal of the Dry Law

New York, Feb. 3.—Nineteen Democratic members of congress from New York have pledged their support to an organization formed last night to seek repeal of the Volstead act.

More than 1,000 men and women attended the dinner at which the organization was formed. Resolutions for affiliation of the organization with the association against the prohibition amendment were unanimously adopted.

In addition to the congressmen, who expressed their support of the organization's purposes, United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, of this state, sent the organizers a letter, in which he said:

"Judging from your description of the purposes of the dinner, I think I can say I am in general sympathy with them."

The movement is considered by its organizers as the most determined step yet taken toward the repeal of the Volstead act.

Leaders of the organization plan to begin without delay the formation of units in every congressional district in the country. Following is a part of the resolution adopted:

"Resolved, that this meeting of free American citizens, who know their rights as well as their duties and who are determined to assert those rights, brand as untrue the charge made by dry propagandists that the enemies of prohibition are foes of law enforcement. We denounce prohibition as an interference with the rights of the people of the United States, and we hereby pledge our united efforts to the work of wiping this law off the statute books."

Kansas Religious Fight

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 4.—The last night of the present session of the Kansas legislature, when Alan Lines may be elected, is expected to bring Kansas over the measure which would pay $100,000 for the teaching of the Bible in the public schools. The bill provides that at least 75 per cent of those desiring to pay $100,000 for the teaching of the Bible in the public schools, or $100,000 for the teaching of the Bible in the public schools, should be in favor of the measure.

The Farmer to Consumer League

State early December the Farmer to Consumer League, an American association for the relief of agriculture, has been organizing an aggressive fight at Washington, D. C., for the most central of the farmers' demands, and at the same time sending relief through the Farmer to Consumer League's relief fund, which is to be organized in the United States.

As pointed out by a writer in the Minneapolis Tribune, a writer who comments that the American farmer has been dealt with unjustly appears to be organizing (as indicated by the recent formation of the Farmer to Consumer League) a national and top-paid association which will be the relief of agriculture through direct marketing and central distribution. With headquarters in Washington and New York the league is conducting a campaign to arouse the farmers and the public alike to the necessity of securing wholesome and adequate legislation for agriculture.

So far, so good. Nothing in the way of permanent good can be accomplished however, without the support of farmers and consumers individually and collectively.

It may not be amiss at this time to suggest that leadership for constructive legislation is being centered in the activities of the Farmer to Consumer League. It is the Farmer to Consumer League that pointed out the vicious legislation proposed in the Copper-Williams bill, which would permit the middle-man to buy and sell the farmer's products. The Farmer to Consumer League has furthered the work of the farmer and has been successful in securing the passage of the most central of the farmers' demands, and at the same time sending relief through the Farmer to Consumer League's relief fund, which is to be organized in the United States.

House Unseats Three

The lower house of the New Mexico legislature has unseated the three Republican members from San Miguel county and seated Democrats in their stead. The contestants claimed and proved that fraud was practiced in various precincts of that notorious bailiwick, which gave the Republican candidates the majority on the face of the returns. The certificates in the poll books of one precinct showed that all Republican candidates were marked up 100 more votes than the poll books themselves showed had been cast. Another precinct, which gave a Democratic majority, was never canvassed by the canvassing board. In another precinct the polls were closed a big portion of the day, and many voters were deprived of the right to exercise their franchise. In still another, it was shown that relatives of Republican candidates were on the election board, that fraud was practiced in the interest of Republican candidates, of which the ejected members had been the beneficiaries.

The contestants submitted no evidence, except in a minor form, made no attempt to refute the allegations of the glaring fraud and the evidence taken in the hearing which confirmed the charge. Of course, the Republican majority on the house spoke and voted in defense of the contestants, but absolutely refused to submit any evidence in refutation of the charges. The house could do nothing but sit and wait the party elected representatives to the National Convention of San Miguel.

Child Labor Amendment Falls Down

The Twentieth Amendment proposed to the Constitution of the United States, known as the Child Labor Amendment, and which is now before the various State legislatures for ratification of legislation, has already been given an adverse vote by more than one-half of the states which constitute the legislature. That has taken action on the proposed amendment have reported it, and many more will do so, following suit. The opposition is confined to no section or parts, states to the extreme west to the middle west, the Rocky Mountain states and as far as the Pacific coasting their opposition to the amendment.

There are many reasons why the opposition to the amendment gained such headway, but the chief is the threatened invasion of state's rights by the federal government, the danger of transferring the police powers of the states to the government and being controlled by the federal government, the danger of transferring the police powers of the states to the government and being controlled by the federal government, the danger of transferring the police powers of the states to the government and being controlled by the federal government.

Even admitting the unsatisfactory conditions, the masses of the American people seem to agree with Shakespeare, that we had "rather bear the ills we have, than fly to others, that we know not of." Republicans Retaliate

The Republican State Senate ejected two Democratic members and seated two Republicans in their stead. The action was by resolution—no testimony taken, not even a contest pending. It is asserted the action was taken in retaliation for the proceedings in the house, an account of which appears in this issue; but the fact is that the Republican majority was so small as to be uncomfortable, which, by this action, is increased from 1 to 5.

The Democrat unseated were William Butler, of the Fifth District, whose majority in the recent election was around 500; and J. M. Hodges, of the Twenty-second district, of which Quay is the whole. Hodges' majority was a little less than 1200. No request for these seats had been filed, no evidence was ever taken, or submitted, and the Democratic holders of the seats given no notice of any kind concerning the jeopardy of their seats, until a resolution was presented and read in the senate, declaring, in effect, that the two Democratic senators held their seats by fraud and that their two Republican opponents ought to be seated. No time was permitted the defense, in fact, the whole matter was hurried through so rapidly that the entire proceedings, from start to finish, requiring less than an hour, that the opposition to the resolution had to content itself without a few minutes, which was exercised when explaining a member's vote—and this was prudently bestowed by the brilliant floor leader and his associates.

WHOLE BODY SEEMED

IN ONE AWFUL PAIN

Morse, Ia.—Mrs. L. P. Lambert, who has been a popular school teacher here for several years, recently told a writer of her interesting experiences with Cardol. "Just before my ... came on," said Mrs. Lambert, "I would ache all over. My feet, my toes, my arms, hands, head—my whole body seemed to be in one awful pain. I would know no person that could help me. I had to lie in bed for days. My husband would have to hold my coffee for me to drink. Last fall I was in such a condition that I had to be carried to the hospital. It seemed to me that I was on my last gasp."

continued, "For I had been suffering with similar troubles to those mentioned there. I had heard of Cardol all my life and knew many women who said they had been helped by it. The very next day I began to take it. Very soon after, I began to notice my improvement. I kept on till I felt like a different woman. I gained in weight from 88 pounds to 115 and felt better than I had in years. I look six months right along and found it a splendid tonic. My suffering was partly due to a run-down condition and the Cardol stimulated my appetite and helped me to gain the strength I needed. ... I take a bottle every now and then, even now, just as a tonic to keep up my strength. But I am in better health than I have been in for years." All druggists sell Cardol. Try it.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Paris Agreement Worries a Few Senators—Japanese Recognition of Russia.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
SATISFACTION over the work of the American representatives in the Paris conference on division of German reparations payments is not unshared by some American senators. The country may have become thereby unduly "entangled" in the settlement of Europe's affairs. This despite the assurance of Secretary of State Hughes that participation in the Paris settlement has not obligated the United States in the least to join in enforced collection of reparations from Germany. Mr. Hughes said: "The agreement reached at Paris was simply for the allocation of the payments made under the Dawes plan. It does not provide for sanctions or deal with any questions that might arise if the contemplated payments should not be made. With respect to any such contingency, the agreement at Paris puts the United States under no obligation, legally or morally, and the United States will be as free as it ever was to take any course of action it may think desirable."
This did not satisfy Senators Hiram Johnson, Ralph Cram, and others, and at their instance the senate asked President Coolidge to transmit to it the full text of the agreement and a complete explanation of the circumstances attending its execution by the American representatives, particularly Ambassador Kellogg's reported failure to attempt to sign with reservations attaching the United States from responsibility for any part of the arrangement except that pertaining to American claims.

MEMBERS of the senate foreign relations committee were entertained at dinner Wednesday by the President, and with them were Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador in Italy, and A. P. Moore, ambassador to Spain. The principal subject discussed was the treaty of Commerce between Turkey and the United States, and there were indications that Mr. Child would try to have it passed before March 4.

However, says there will not be time to write both bills and the world court matter, and the committee decided to take up the latter question at its next meeting.

Another topic of deep interest to the foreign relations committee, and in fact to the whole country, was the receipt of a note from Japan Tuesday last which stated that Japan had accepted the proposed Japanese-American treaty of Commerce signed in Tokyo in 1911, and that the Japanese government would be ready to accept the treaty in the spring, but that it would not give the right to export silk to the United States and all other countries under a quota system, pending the completion of talks of the treaty government, trade, navigation and fishing agreements are to be concluded later.

There was great rejoicing in Tokyo over the pact, and both the Japanese and the Russians predicted that the United States would soon have to give up its tariff on silk. The late ambassador to Japan, George F. Baker, says the first step of Mr. Coolidge as the newly elected President, in international relations, "during his face to face with the most obvious necessity of drawing the United States out of the circle of its country's political relations. It is impossible personally to preserve the artificial system of separation between the two great countries in the world, which was created by Secretary Hughes. The entry of the United States of Soviet Socialist Republics into the circle of the Pacific brings it face to face with America in the same sense. America will not find itself in a predicament that should estrange from the United States of Soviet Socialist Republics is maintained."

BY AN amendment added to the new appropriation bill by the senate the President is authorized and requested to call another international conference on the reduction of armaments.

ment. Mr. Coolidge has said he wished to do this, but preferred to await the action of other nations on the disarmament conference proposed by the League of Nations, with which we would have nothing to do. This may have to be dropped, for opposition to the attending protocol as amended, by demand of the Japanese has not abated. British diplomats are so strongly against it that it is reported the British government has abandoned the plan of calling an imperial conference to consider it.

While considering the naval bill the senate rejected an amendment which would provide money for elevating the guns of 13 capital ships, thus sustaining the stand taken by the administration.

REPRESENTATIVE PORTER, head of the American delegation to the international opium conference which has resumed its sessions in Geneva, is rather hopeful of results, and his position seems justified by the fact that it is being made, especially by the British, against the American proposal for the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East within three years.

Vicent, Cecil, of Chatham, head of the British delegation, says it would be impossible to inaugurate any fixed time limit, and in his remarks he asserted the American people were using more opium and narcotic drugs than the people of India. This was fully resented by Mr. Porter, who declared the charge was a vile slander on the people of the United States. Vicent withdrew his statement and apologized. Most of the delegates to the conference support the American proposal, but, as Cecil says, international justice requires unanimity in ratification of this bill.

Mr. Alfred Hae, Chinese representative, treated a resolution which he warned the so-called opium law powers that unless now law was enacted and that if the powers failed to subordinate their national interests to international justice and did not cease to export the Chinese and the Far East they would be held responsible not only by the world as a whole, but, in particular, by 400,000,000 Chinese.

VIIITH president of the New Jersey state bar recently it was declared that every man in high position were certain to be involved. Last week several prominent agents testified that United States Senator Edward I. Edwards had accepted and held in secret a $5000 which he was to have paid to William Gilman, one of the defense attorneys. Gilman delivered the check of $5000 to Edwards and called the deal off and that Edwards returned the money. Gilman to his testimony admitted two of the agents had the money for him with Edwards, but denied that of her he or the defense team had a dispute about was contemplated. The defense insisted that there was an attempt to "frame" the senator, but the prosecutor said the evidence against Edwards would be presented to the grand jury.

BY A vote of 88 to 56, the senate adopted the majority report of the committee on the Transport House bill (S. 100) by which Albert H. Fall and former Secretary of the Navy Denby are censured. All the Democrats, the Progressives and Senators of Massachusetts (S. 100) for this report. All the majority votes were Republicans. During the debate Senator Reed of Missouri introduced his colleague, Speaker, Senator Hoar's amended bill, and House of Representatives, and Senator Walsh denounced Speaker's majority report as "a tissue of half-truth and misrepresentation characterized by the most egregious passion and political bias."

The Department of Justice is recommending in Washington, for submission to a grand jury, the testimony in the case of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who was indicted in that state on a charge of arranging in violation of restrictions resulting from his election, to receive a fee of $10,000 from Gordon Campbell, Montana oil man, for services in the leasing of public lands.

MRS. MURRAY FENNING, second woman to become the governor of a state, was inaugurated as chief executive of Texas in the presence of an immense and jubilant throng. When she took up her official duties her husband, a former governor who was impeached and ousted, sat by her side and it was apparent to the newspapermen that he would have a large share in the administration.

SENATOR MOSES' postal pay and rate increase bill, which is understood to have the approval of the administration, was up for consideration in the senate. It is designed as a temporary measure, granting pay raises for ten months beginning April 15. The rate increases provided for are estimated to bring about $30,000,000 annually, and the salary increases would be $28,000,000. The bill provides for a joint congressional committee to conduct hearings and formulate a permanent measure.

COMPLETION of the work of the federal railroad administration, which was created during the war, was announced by the President. The total cost to the people was $1,474,000,000, divided as follows: Loan to the government during period of federal control, $1,122,000,000; expenses of guaranty period, $288,000,000; amount required to reimburse small deficit lines, $15,000,000. The settlement with the railroads was of enormous magnitude and was effected without a lawsuit for nearly fifty millions, or a little more than 6 per cent of the revised claims submitted by the roads.

THE spectacle of a solar eclipse, total on a curved path from Minnesota to Montauk Point, L. I., was enjoyed by the people of the United States Saturday morning. Hundreds of astronomers were prepared to make observations if the day were clear, and hoped to discover some new facts about the sun. Whatever they learned will be told the public later.

CHANCELLOR LUTHER presented to the German Reichstag the names of the new cabinet last week, and the Social Democrats and Communists, possibly opposed their attack on the government. Their spokesman declared it represented the first step toward restoration of the monarchy, and the Nationalists responded with joyful cries of "Very true" and "God be thanked." The Catholic party members protested against this and were obviously disturbed. Herr Brüning, head of the Independent Socialists and monarchist students of all universities are being trained secretly for future army officers' commissions. This charge agrees with French and British charges in the report upon which the severance of Cologne is based. Chancellor Luther told the Reichstag his government would support both the republic and the Dawes plan.

ABOUT 100 delegates, representing some national women's organizations, held a conference in Washington to determine the cause and cure of war. Among the interesting personalities to address them was Lord Thomson, who was secretary of state for air in the Macdonald cabinet. Himself a veteran of the war, he spoke as an ardent pacifist, but gave the women sound advice against being too idealistic and dealing in abstractions. "An end and out peace attitude," Lord Thomson said, "does not help the cause along. In fact, I have known instances where it has done positive harm. AVOID abstractions in dealing with so enormous a question, for when we talk about them in dealing with a concrete subject we but lead ourselves into a maze of meaningless phrases. When we need to be happy combination of ideas and common sense, a combination, however, not to be effected by idealism, who only make phrases, but just by common sense people, who sometimes insist upon something on their heads to prove that they are hard-headed. The thing most needed in the world today is some detached, uninterested intelligence working incessantly for peace."

OKLAHOMA has lined up with the states that oppose the child labor amendment to the United States Constitution. In so far as the lower house of her legislature is concerned, the representatives voted 21 to 21 against ratification. A committee of the Texas state senate voted in favor of a concurrent resolution refusing to ratify the amendment. In Arizona, however, the house has ratified it and the senate is sure to follow suit, having voted that way unanimously in committee of the whole.

The moisture in the state recently gives promise of plenty of grass for the ranges and a heavy lamb crop in the spring, according to Albuquerque wool growers. The price of wool in the state now ranges from 40c to 45c and at Roswell it is reported selling at 46c, the highest since the war. Lambs are being contracted for at 12 1/2c and 12 3/4c a pound.

Emma Bristol, 16-year-old bobbed hair beauty, and Harold Malcolm, 20-year-old youth, pleaded guilty in District Court at Albuquerque following their arrest after an attempted street holdup. They confessed to robbing a residence the previous night and Malcolm said he had robbed a house in Santa Fe and a man in Itaton before arriving in Albuquerque.

Gov. Arthur T. Hannett sent the child labor amendment to the Legislature accompanied by a brief special message, covering a page and a half in typewriting. Quoting excerpts from both Republican and Democratic platforms, pledging members to support the amendment, the governor expressed confidence of favorable action by the Legislature at an early date.

The eighth annual automobile show of the Albuquerque Trades Association will be held at the armory, Feb. 19, 20 and 21. H. J. At the annual meeting of the Las Cruces Chamber of Commerce, Glenn W. Bright was chosen as the president of the organization for the coming year. D. W. Bronson was elected to fill the unexpired term of the vice president, this office formerly being held by Mr. Bright. Following the election plans were made for the work of the coming year, a feature of which will be a big advertising campaign giving details of Las Cruces and surrounding country.

At one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the local commerce chamber ever held in Carlsbad, E. E. Hubert was elected president for the coming year. The meeting was held at the armory with about fifty members in attendance, including the chairman of the committee for the past year. The secretary's roll call showed that the organization has shown a big gain during the past year, the total membership now being 172, or a gain of about thirty members. Following the election the work for the coming year was discussed and several committees appointed by the president.

About 77,000 acres of timber land in New Mexico were added to the Carson National forest in an executive order issued in Washington on the recommendation of Secretaries Work and Carr. Most of the area is in the patented Los Trampas and Santa Barbara grants. A recent act of Congress authorized the exchange of land, chiefly valuable for national forest purposes, for an equal value of National forest timber in New Mexico with the provision that upon their acceptance of timber traweled lands shall become part of the Carson forest. The National strip of public land lying between the Los Trampas and Santa Barbara grants also is added to the Carson National forest by the order.

Establishment of a State Industrial School at Wagon Mound on condition that the town board of education furnish a building and lots is sought in a bill introduced in the House by Representative Charles H. Hamble, Mora county. The property, which the board is said to be willing to turn over to the state, is described as the "old public school house." The bill carries an appropriation of $10,000 from the state treasury for additional buildings, improvements and salaries.

Members of the Greater Cotton Oil Association, which was formed about a year ago are now making plans for the erecting of a large gin early in the spring. The plant will be large enough to take care of the Quay county crop and will be one of the most modern in this section of the state.

About 300 quarts of nitroglycerine will be stored in the magazine which is to be erected in the vicinity of Artesia soon. The plant will be built by the American Glycerine Company, of Cleo, Texas, for the benefit of the local oil fields. Heretofore most of the glycerine has been hauled to the local field by truck from Texas.

The Congressional Road Right and First City electric plant, took over the management of the plant the last of the week. The new owners are making plans for many improvements among which are a new addition to the plant and a new 300-horsepower engine.

J. E. Moyer, of the American Company of Cleo, Texas, arrived in Artesia recently to make arrangements for the building of a magazine to store the glycerine for use in the Artesia oil fields.

TOLD WITH A BANG

George Ade, at a dinner in New York, urged a subtler use of words. "Use words with delicate care," he said. "Observe all subtle distinctions. Never write 'vision' for instance, when 'sight' is what you mean." "There's no difference between 'sight' and 'vision,'" interrupted an editor. "No," said Mr. Ade. "And yet, Billy, when you and I passed each other on Broadway yesterday, the girl I was with was a vision, while the one with you was a sight.—Everybody's."

AN OPERATION RECOMMENDED

Avoided by Taking Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I cannot give too much praise to Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me. My mother gave it to me when I was a girl 14 years old, and since then I have taken it when I feel run down or tired. I took it for three months before my two babies were born for I suffered with my back and had spells as if my heart was affected, and it helped me a lot. The doctors told me at one time that I would have to have an operation. I thought I would try 'Finkham's,' as I call it, first. In two months I was all right and had no operation. I firmly believe 'Finkham's' cured me. Everyone who saw me after that remarked that I looked so well. I only have to take medicine occasionally, not but I always keep a couple of bottles by me. I recommend it to women who speak to me about their health. I have also used your 'Sensitive Wash' and like it very much."—Mrs. E. Gould, 400 East Side Boulevard, Los Angeles, Cal.

Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised.

Classic Ensemble Milady's Favorite

Out of extreme moderation is achieved, says a fashion authority in the New York Times. So from the wildest extravagances and incongruities of Egyptian and other far distant origins have been evolved, the refreshing youthful silhouettes, the slender lines, and the classic ensemble. And in these the rarest fabrics, the most splendid metal and silk brocades appear in patterns inspired by great works of art, expressed in all the beautiful colors ever known. No woman could look unlovely in them.

In dress of this type are embodied classic ideals in lines, materials and harmonies of color. As a result of radical remodeling, the curvaceous one-piece frock, whether made of blue serge for morning street wear or of rainbow tinted silver tissue for evening, is a garment of dignity, beauty and importance. Its variants are countless. It is an enchanting in finely plaited white chiffon, snowy and soft, as when the same model is done in the most bizarre metal cloth splashed across with colors. When a simple, plain-colored fabric is used, the unbroken line of the chemise frock is made into a brilliant costume, with added motifs in brilliants, feathers, fur, metal lace and other most lovely luxuries.

With daring and assurance the leading creators of Paris have presented the most important styles in models of elaborate simplicity and grace, done in splendid fabrics, beautiful colors and detail of much interest. Unheard-of combinations have been successfully achieved with the use of rich-brocades, velvets, fur, metals, laces and gauzy tissues. And the proof of their value is the appreciative response of cultivated taste, for women of today are discriminating.

With a sure touch the folk crafts of old countries are used to ornament the latest achievements of the loom, and peasant-woven-woolen-embroiders the sheerest spun silks. That these extremes are made to meet with results wholly artistic is a tribute to the talent and skill that are given to the subject of dress and the important place it has come to have in the estimate of artists of the highest standing.

One style of dress that has needed no argument for its presentation is the "period" costume. Nothing has

After the straight frock began to be monotonous the feeling for something more interesting was evident in the softening of lines, the drawing of curves, the lifting of length to create drapery and the dropping of skirts to add grace. The most striking gown was built in a manner to match dignity of design with quality and type of material, and nothing more charming has ever been shown by the present style creator.

Generally Satisfactory. "Ensemble" expressed one of the most satisfactory costumes of the season. The three-piece suit known heretofore as a clumsy affair which, being all cloth, appeared always to be too heavy or too light for late autumn street wear. When it reappeared this season it presented a gown of satin or crepe with a practical wrap of cloth and fur, the idea of ensemble being maintained by lining the coat with the stuff of the dress. It has gone so well that the model is redone in more elaborate form for evening and is designed in lighter materials for southern resort wear and early winter weather.

The fur trimmings is almost universal. A frock of satin or crepe receives a richer appearance with bands of fur of even the narrowest measurement, and in some of the late models of straight silhouette a wide band of fur borders the skirt. This is used with profusion on the wrap that accompanies the frock, and one seldom sees now a coat that is without a lavish display of fur.

Another type of dress that shows a marked evolution is the sport suit. There is not nowadays anything like-made or nondescript about the sport suits of persons of fashion. They have a style of their own, striking, picturesque, suitable and comfortable. The latest outfits, breeches, sweaters, the jackets, boots and scarfs, are showing—extremes done with masterful skill and artistry. The wraps and knitted sweaters—Mousses, waistbands and scarfs, in the striped, plaid and zigzag patterns, are gay, chic affairs and are the high lights in the most successful expression of costume in the entire wardrobe. The modern version of the homely old-time knit goods is present, and the attraction of the homespun and flannel materials that are best adapted to this sort of costume.

Dinner and Dinner Frocks. The dinner gown and dinner frocks of the season are among the most artistic, so, come, and match in beauty and grade the models of earlier times.

One style of dress that has needed no argument for its presentation is the "period" costume. Nothing has error expressed better the subtlety and charm of the swish of silken skirts, and more beauty is suggested by the skirt of many folds than is revealed by the clinging lines of most dresses. Designed long ago, the quilted frock with plain, light bodice, the skirt lined with a dense fur, a waistline exaggerated and wide and full skirts have come back to fascinate the belle of today and to give her a conscious air of something that bears the stamp of tradition.

Kitty girl loves to wear this dress reminiscent of the crimson period. While it graces every one, only an occasional woman appears in it with ease and distinction. This season some of the most prominent models and the most exclusive shops in New York have featured the period dress, depending upon material and color for whatever variations they have offered, and its popularity continues undiminished.

The new crisp tulle in plain colors and the "silk" silks are extracting in these fall-petite frocks, and a bonnet of red lace is more common to better advantage. One model which will have an enduring place will be made of black tulle veils, the collar of old rose point plumed with an old bonnet of seed pearls. Long lustrous earrings match brooch and necklace, and a cluster of pearls is fastened at one side of the belt. Nothing in the styles of the present day illustrates more happily and truly the elegance and beauty of the dress of earlier times.

Evolution of Barbecues. In just what manner the styles of today will develop, which way they will be swayed by fashion and fancy, cannot be foreseen. But that they have now a place of increasing importance in the world of art and convention is quite plain. And whatever of folly, extravagance or lack of taste or propriety appears in the present modes, we have come a long way in the elimination of some barbarities that will not likely be seen again. For now that light plays and collars, Louis Quinze knots for waists, and skirts that sweep the pavement are no longer fashionable, they are certainly obsolete and their extreme opposites that add so much to the joy and comfort of life will endure.

The style of writing street gowns with the cuffs turned down over the hand has resulted in special designs in the lining of the lining which runs much to the appearance of the glove. Because of this the cuff lining is strikingly emphasized and has become more important than the ornamentation of the outside covering. In some instances it is literally a "silver lining" of silvered kid or cloth of silver or matching silk with silver threads.

GOOD SAUCE

In seasoning and preparing sauces the French have attained a mark nearest to perfection of any nation. A perfect sauce is a thing of surprising delicacy and only he who has the most sensitive taste can ever achieve such perfection. There is always simmering in the kitchen of a good cook, the pot of stock made from the liquor from mushroom cans, or trimmings, bits of fowl that are trimmed in the dressing, as well as vegetables. This will be the basis of any number of sauces.

Sauces are thickened fluid, flavored with vegetables, flavored with meat and bones and seasoned with condiments and herbs. The fluid may be stock, milk, vegetable juices (like strained tomato or mushroom liquor) or the thickening, starch, in the form of flour, cornstarch, arrow root, egg yolks, or in cold sauces oil and gelatin.

The flavor of meat is extracted in the stock. The bones used are preferably veal, crushed and roasted.

Basic sauces most commonly used are the well-known white sauce, and brown sauce called Espagnole.

To make Espagnole, take chopped onion, carrot and celery, trimmed with trimmings from uncooked ham cut into small pieces, chopped carrots, leeks, onions, celery and parsley roots, salt, pepper, cloves, bay leaf and thyme. All put into a fat roasting pan; spread with sweet fat to prevent burning and roast to a golden color in the oven. Stir until the under surfaces are brown, then sprinkle with flour and let the flour brown lightly. Remove the whole mass to a saucepan, cover with cold water and simmer for six hours on the back of the stove. Strain and reduce by simmering three more hours, skimming during the cooking. This sauce is placed in the ice box to be used as required.

In making the white sauce the French cook uses half butter and half chicken fat when boiling but add the flour, bread and cook, adding the milk hot, stir constantly, then let stand for fifteen minutes over water to finish cooking.

Patied Meats.

At this season of the year patied meats are more enjoyed than at any other, although at summer picnics they are always popular. For porting, small steaks that are a little larger at the top than at the bottom are best. So that the meat may be taken out whole, the meat must be well cooked and tender so that it can be easily pointed to a piece.

Patied Beef.—Take three pounds of beef from the upper part of the round, one-half cup of butter, one tablespoon of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, a pinch of cayenne, one eighth of a teaspoonful of nutmeg, the same quantity of cloves, bouquet of sweet herbs and three tablespoonfuls of water. Cut the meat into small pieces and put in the fat with the water and seasonings. Mix a paste of a cupful of flour and water enough to make a stiff paste. Cover the mouth of the jar with paper, spread over the paste and place the jar in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven for five hours. Take up, remove the cover and brown and pound the meat to a paste and season with the butter to it and pack tightly into the jar. Most of the remainder of the butter and paste over the meat. Paste paper over the jar, put on the covers and set away in a cool dry place.

Patied Chicken.—Take one quart of cold roasted chicken, one cupful of cold melted lard, four tablespoonfuls of butter, a pinch of cayenne, a stick of writing of nutmeg and two teaspoonfuls of salt. Free the chicken of the skin and bones, cut the meat into large pieces, chop and pound to a paste. Add the butter and seasonings and pack tightly into stone jars. Cover and place in hot water in a moderate oven; cook for an hour. When the meat is cold cover with melted butter and put away in a cold place.

Lemon Prunes Pie.—Line a pie plate with pastry and bake in a hot oven. Mix two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one cupful of sugar and one cupful of water and cook twenty minutes in a double boiler. Add carefully, stirring constantly, two egg yolks, slightly beaten, and cook until smooth. Remove from the fire; add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and the grated rind of one lemon. Line the baked pastry shell with prunes which have been cooped and the stones removed. When the filling is cold pour it over the prunes and top with a meringue made from the egg whites beaten stiff, adding six tablespoonfuls of sugar. Place in a slow oven to brown the meringue.

The butter used for cover must only be used in boiling fruit meats; otherwise that used for hot may be used in boiling roasted fish.

Unprecedented Progress in Education

UNPRECEDENTED progress in education was made in the United States during 1924, there being more real achievement than any year yet recorded, according to a statement made by John L. Tillet, commissioner of education of the Department of the Interior. The statement follows in part:

During the year there were enrolled in the public, elementary and high schools 25,000,000 pupils, of whom about 8,500,000 were in the high schools; there were enrolled in the private and parochial schools about 2,000,000, with 500,000 in the secondary schools; universities and colleges enrolled over 700,000 students; the teachers' colleges and normal schools enrolled 300,000 pupils, of whom about 40,000 were students in the secondary stage; business colleges and commercial schools enrolled 350,000 students. The average daily attendance in public, high and elementary schools was in the vicinity of 20,700,000 pupils. These enrollments can be best appreciated when compared with the year 1900, for example. In the twenty-four years since 1900 attendance in the public elementary schools has increased 44 per cent; in the public high schools

Madden Questions Power of President

The legal right of President Coolidge to appoint a commission on which Mr. Hoover served?

"The President appointed it," General J. Edwin Madden replied. "Where was the law?" countered Mr. Madden.

Later Mr. Madden stated that the only legal authorization for funds to study the international joint commission, and that report must be made to congress. The President has no legal authority to appoint a commission unless congress authorizes it."

The letter from Mr. Coolidge asking for $200,000 for the agricultural commission stated that the members had agreed to work for nothing. And he said:

"I feel that as the services they are rendering the government are in the interest of the whole people of this nation, the government should pay their expenses while engaged on this task."

Robert D. Carey, one of the members, told the committee that as two members lived in California, two in Minnesota, two in Wyoming, two in Pennsylvania, one in New York, and one in Kansas, every time they came to Washington, and returned about $1,000 in railroad fares was needed.

Farmers Coolidge and Lowden in Accord

It is not until the day when the grand old pioneer stock of our country," said Frank B. Lowden in a speech before the cooperative marketing conference, "shall be replaced by the present and all that the present implies, then some progress in marketing conditions so far as we are concerned, so largely based on speculation, that it makes a large crop worth less in the aggregate than a small crop."

"Take cotton as an example. The price is 12 cents a pound, less than 5 per cent and you decrease the price 50 per cent. Is there any justification for such a system of marketing as this? Under any just, sane or sensible system would that sort of payment be possible?"

"It is impossible," he said, "to have, in any way, a system of marketing that is in the present method of marketing farm products when they are sold on speculation at a price below the price of production."

A few minutes after Farmer Lowden had finished President Coolidge beckoned him up. Farmer Coolidge agreed with him, saying:

"Truly as I believe in the broadest and soundest program of co-operation

Coolidge and Curtis Win by One Vote

THEY are still talking about the closeness of the vote by which the President's veto of the postal employees' pay raise bill was sustained by the senate. Fifty-five senators voted to override the veto and twenty-nine to sustain it. The supporters of the bill lacked one vote of the two-thirds majority required to make the measure a law without the signature of the President.

The prestige of Mr. Coolidge in this first test of his leadership when his important decision was maintained by virtue of the support of the veto by several "home duck" Republicans and by several Democrats, some of whom executed an about-face on the pay raise measure in order to make his defeat certain.

The Democrats to whom the President is indebted for his victory are Senators Dill, King, Owen and Shields. Had any of them fallen with the President would have been beaten. Mr. Dill voted for the pay raise bill last May, but voted to sustain the veto on the final vote. Others who voted for the pay raise originally but changed front in order to defeat it by supporting the veto, were Senators Holt, Davenport, Cameron, Capper, Cummings, Curtis, Harrell, Hays, Keyser, McMillan, Oddie, Poynter, Phillips, Steiwer, Wadsworth and Walker.

(Woman's Club)
One spot in the desert will certainly blossom as a rose, on the evening of February 19 and 20, at the Crystal Theatre, when the Woman's Club of Carrizozo presents the operetta, "The Wild Rose."

"She has health,
And great wealth;
She is pretty,
Also witty;
Still is sad,
Surely, 'tis too bad."

This entertainment promises to be a rare treat, beautiful music, fancy dancing and pretty girls in attractive stage settings combine to make this a most successful entertainment.

The music is arranged for all ladies' voices, and all performers are members of the fair sex. There are little girls, big girls, young girls; pretty girls and ladies—young, sedate, stern, talkative and fussy; also a Cat.

Seat reservations will be made for line parties coming from a distance. Make applications to Mrs. Albert Ziegler, giving date and number in party.

The 14th at the Fort

Fort Stanton is preparing for a big time for the night of February 14th, St. Valentine's. A dance will be given at the Fort on that occasion and the committee in charge is exerting itself to make it one of the most pleasant affairs among many of a like nature—that has ever been offered to the dance-loving public. Gus Lepp's Original Roswell Night Owls, with lamp at the piano, and the band, the saxophones, drums and cymbals, form a musical combination that always pleases. Coffee and sandwiches will be served during the evening and everything will be done to add to the comfort and pleasure of those attending.

Louise Faxenda in Novelty

Louise Faxenda has costumed her gingham dresses and costumed pictures of Spanish days and is appearing as a stage beauty in Thomas H. Iste's new comedy opera, "The Galloping Fish." With Freddie, a trained star, Miss Faxenda does some of the cleverest comedy work of her career. Besides a comedy being set in which she does some spectacular "stunt" starts with the seal, there is a big food sequence at the climax of the production furnishing thrills and laughter. "The Galloping Fish" will be shown at the Crystal Theatre Saturday, February 14.
