Wants Big Red Army

Moscow, March 2.—Since taking over command of the Red Army from Trotzky, War Minister Frunze has been warning Russia against dangers of attack from European powers, and urging an increase in the Bolshevik forces. And, speaking before a conference of communist members of the army, the new war chief said the present strength of the organization, 562,500 men, was insufficient for mobilization purposes in the event of attack.

For this reason, Russia must enlarge her territorial forces, he said.

"Our red army must be regarded as not merely a regular army," he said, "but as an armed nation ready at any moment to take up arms and enter battle. We must make our army such that at a moment's notice our command can send to the battlefield millions of well trained fighters."

JUDGE HITS VOLSTEADISM

Reno, Nevada.—Frank H. Norcross, former chief justice of the Nevada supreme court, author of a resolution in the state legislature calling on Congress to assemble a national constitutional convention to amend the eighteenth amendment, declares that universal contempt of the law is being instilled in the minds of the country's citizenship. He believes that the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution should be substituted by a provision empowering Congress to prohibit or regulate the importation, manufacture and sale of liquor, thereby placing the entire question in the hands of the national legislature.

With such a modification of the eighteenth amendment, in his opinion, Congress would feel free to enact moderate liquor legislation that would command the respect and support of the country at large. Such legislation, he considers, should not permit the return of the saloon, but probably should allow the sale of liquor under some such system as that prevailing in several provinces of Canada.

Explaining his position, Judge Norcross said, "I voted for the Nevada prohibition act and supported the eighteenth amendment. But I am convinced that they have failed. As a consequence we are living under a national law and state statutes that are being openly flouted by millions of people.

"Congress can never have a free hand to deal with the situation until we return to the correct principle of making the constitution the repository of congressional power and not itself a penal code.

"Too radical legislation has always failed to accomplish desired results. Natural laws control penal laws, and there are fixed limits beyond which penal statutes cannot go and be generally respected. There are extremists who believe that even the moderate use of intoxicants is harmful. On the other hand, a large portion of the population believes that their moderate use is not wrong. For a minority or even a majority of a free people to impose particular ideas upon a large portion of the population having radically different views has never yet been successfully accomplished."

Judge Norcross added that if the states themselves called a constitutional convention, the question could be removed from politics and solved. This would not be possible, he said, by any other method, as Congress, even though a majority of its members were opposed to the eighteenth amendment, would never initiate a resolution for its revision.

Nevada May License Wide Open Gambling

Reno, Nev., March 3.—A "wide open" gambling bill made its appearance in the state legislature at Carson City yesterday when assemblyman Roberts of Elko county, introduced a measure providing for the collection of $1,000 license from each table operated for various games. Among the games which would be lawful under the bill are faro, roulette, fan tan, big injun, twenty-one, stud and draw poker.

Heavy Cattle Decrease

Alamogordo, March 1.—There are 1,007,000 cattle on New Mexico compared with 1,169,000 at this time last year, according to a recent estimate by R. F. Hare, agricultural statistician for the state. The livestock valuation is estimated at $25,682,133, compared with $34,068,694 in 1920.

It is estimated that 100,000 cattle died or were slaughtered in 1924, and 432,000 were shipped from the state.

Colorado River Pact

Santa Fe, March 3.—In a special message, Governor Hannett has submitted to the legislature the problem of the Colorado river compact.

This important river, treaty, which has been pending since 1921, is held up because of the refusal of Arizona to ratify, and the other states affected, California, Nevada, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico now have an opportunity to permit the pact to become effective as far as the United States is concerned, without taking Arizona into consideration.

In the message Governor Hannett states that he is informed that the national adjustment is to be favorably upon action by states involved, without Arizona, and that Wyoming has already taken action and that such action is pending in California, Colorado, Nevada and Utah.

Americans Descendants of Mark Antony

San Francisco, March 3.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford University, told the members of the eugenics section of the Commonwealth Club yesterday that "most Americans of Puritan stock, including Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt, seem to have been descendants of Mark Antony."

A large part of the English-American ancestry, Dr. Jordan said, gets back virtually to the Watten family, and the Warrens have been traced back to the famous Roman orator.

Dr. Jordan explained his theory of eugenics as one which stresses the preservation of the strongest and best rather than the elimination of the weakest and least desirable.

Discuss Disarmament of Germany

Paris, March 3.—The interallied council of ambassadors is expected to be occupied for several weeks with the question of Germany's disarmament, which it takes up today.

Before them the ambassadors will have the voluminous report of the military control mission with photographs and other data assembled in Germany, as well as the written opinion on the report of Marshal Foch and his colleagues of the allied war committee, a document of eleven typewritten pages. Marshal Foch will regularly attend the meetings of the council, ready to furnish explanations or technical information whenever the ambassadors require them. It is believed in diplomatic circles that after scrutinizing the report the ambassadors will refer the subject to their governments with the idea of calling an allied conference to deal finally with the matter.

Marshal Foch and his committee in their written opinion of the military control mission's report says it shows that the Germans are persistent in their determination to maintain a complete staff of officers for an army such as Germany possessed prior to the World War.

Not only is Germany educating officers to this end, the committee believes, but she is training men enough to supply a strong fighting army, is maintaing her facilities for the production of gas and possesses not only patterns and moulds for the most improved type of cannon, but even unfinished tubes which could be converted within a short time into guns ready for use.

Personal Bonds Abolished for Public Deposits

Personal bonds are abolished as [illegible] in Texas, insurance companies, casualty or surety deposits, as the present law allows, by the special session of the legislature appointed at the request of Senator Frank Vaughan to make a study of the [illegible] conditions.

They are provided, however, as collateral and may be furnished by casualty companies and other companies in lieu of surety bonds, but according to the terms of the joint special committee report, only United States, state, county, city and similar bonds of safety bonds may be accepted to secure public deposits.

In view of the fact that some counties have had difficulty in finding depositories to handle all of these funds in the last few years, the bill removes the present prohibition against deposits in excess of 75 per cent of the capital and surplus of banks and permits deposits to the full market value of securities put up as depository bonds. (Now the deposits are restricted to 90 per cent of the depository funds).

The bill also reduces the interest to be paid by banks from 3 to 2 per cent on daily balances.

Washington, D. C.—"What are Tacna and Arica—besides a controversy?"

The question arises because a decision is pending on whether or not a plebiscite is to be held in Tacna—a question that has hung fire since the "nitrate war" of 1883.

The National Geographic society says:

"Tacna, at present, is the northern most province of elongated Chile and has an area about equal to that of Massachusetts. Tacna also is a city, the capital of the province of Tacna whose 14,000 people comprise half the population of the province.

"Arica, the port of Tacna, once was a thriving city of some 20,000 people. Then it shipped the important products—ores, alpaca wool, hides, and chinchilla skins. Today it has fewer than 5,000 residents and is important principally as the salt water terminus of the railroad that cuts across the lower Andes from La Paz, Bolivia. Another railway runs to Valparaiso 987 miles to the south, not a long trip in a country of magnificent longitudinal distances.

"The term, Arica, as a regional designation has disappeared from the map, the province which bore that name has been merged with Tacna.

"Volumes have been written about the Tacna-Arica controversy—a controversy that had its historic origin exactly 100 years ago when the Republic of Bolivia was born.

"A glance at a map will show the geography of the dispute. Tacna is Bolivia's closest corridor to the sea and is to the Alsace-Lorraine of Chile and Peru.

Rise in Lonely Grandeur.

"Tacna is mountainous but that easy description gives a false picture. The Andes do not project a series of ranges into the province but extend a plateau-like condition, with valleys peaks rising here and there in majestic grandeur. Here there are no vast coastal cultivated zones as there are in Peru and Chile, where the rivers have their grateful saga of water.

"These older mountains nevertheless contain, as well as dignity, in the deep-cleft cañons of the valleys. In the irrigated districts of Tacna water is the first need for manufacturing the water from one section to another. It is in a valley below the sharp rise of the Coastal hills the traveler of today may cover earlier at the western end of the valley.

"After the sun has set in the low lands it continues for some time to light up the mountain summits peaks. Therefore the ancient Incas natives adopted their actual customs using the sun record to illuminate the snow-covered mountains. And it is the farmer folk of Tacna today to the mountaineers for the terms good crops.

"The Sama river is the northern boundary of Tacna and the Sama valley yields grapes which have made the name of Moquega, the bordering Peruvian province, famous among connoisseurs; and helped swell the world's raisin output to the point where the distributors began to inquire whether you had your fruit today.

"And now that science has traced goitre to the absence of the tiny regulatory quantities of iodine your system needs, certain American cities call upon the Chilean littoral for iodine, dump it in their municipal reservoirs, and perform another modern miracle of preventive medicine.

"Nitrate of soda is virtually a Chile monopoly and many of the tiny plants occur in Tarapaca along Tacna's southern border. Whether the world uses swords or plowshares, Chile's nitrates have a ready market—they enrich the soil and they help make explosives.

"Iodine is a by-product of extracting nitrates from the caliche rock. The nitrate establishments limit their production to every sixth year so the market may not be overstocked.

Provides Drug Store Supplies.

"Tacna yields sulphur and borax. There, also, is grown the coca plant, source of cocaine, which thousands who have had the toothache call blessed. This plant has peculiar leaves. The upper surface, deep green, smooth and velvety, is unlike the under side, which is light green with a band of paler color on each side of the midrib.

"Tacna and its northern and southern neighbors not only comprise one of nature's greatest wholesale drug warehouses, but it was from Machu Picchu, the ancient city of the Incas to the north, in Peru, that the world's greatest grocery staple, the potato, originated. This seat of a marvelous agricultural system was explored by a National Geographic society expedition led by Hiram Bingham, now United States senator from Connecticut."

Washington Chapel to Get Pew in Honor of the Lees

Valley Forge, Pa.—The Society of Lees of Virginia has presented to the Washington Memorial chapel here a choir pew in honor of the Lees who served in the Revolutionary war and an endowment for maintenance of the chapel choir. The pew is to be of oak, hand carved. On the ends will be carved continental soldiers kneeling in prayer, and on the back will be the coat of arms of the Lee family, with an inscription and the names of the Lees who served in the war. Included in the list are Richard Henry Lee, who offered the resolution that the states should be free; Francis Lightfoot Lee, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and "Light-horse" Harry Lee.

America Eats Up Its Income

People Spend Fourth for Stuff That Goes Into the Mouth.

New York.—America eats up its income. What people put into their mouths, including tobacco, represents more money than all other expenditures at retail stores combined. Ten years ago one-fifth of one's income was deemed sufficient for food. But the figure has now risen to 27 per cent, and most families save the "Christmas dividends," founder of the Appleyard Home Supplement system of distribution, by spending 25 to 40 per cent of their income on food. Mrs. Frederick has conveyed the changed American budget for the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

The bill for the entire nation at retail stores in two days ($1,000,000,000) as calculated by Dr. Paul H. Nystrom, head of the Retail Research association. In 1921 this was divided and in about decided each into of the total national income of $30,000,000,000 estimated for 1921, showing it to be about a sixth part of it to be spent in retail stores.

Of this $30,000,000,000 $15,000,000,000 goes to food stores, $1,500,000,000 to tobacco shops and $1,000,000,000 to dealers in candy and soft drinks.

Spent in Stores.

Almost $5,000,000,000 is spent in clothing stores, $3,000,000,000 on automobiles, $1,500,000,000 in furniture and housefurnishing stores and $1,000,000,000 in jewelry and music shops.

Americans eat more in calories than most other peoples. Alonzo E. Taylor, food expert, puts the American calories average at 3,500 to 4,000 a day. In the United Kingdom the average is 3,000 calories and in Italy 2,500. Our climate is cold, on the whole, much cold or than those of either of these countries and we need more heating fuel. Ten per cent of the American people are said to eat more than 4,000 calories a day without the hard work that justifies this.

In the last ten or fifteen years, cafe and eating places in this country have increased 50 per cent to a total of 52,000. There are 30,000 cafes; many stores selling 15 pounds of candy a person a year to the people of the United States. There are [illegible] for every 100 persons in the United States and each drinks about 20 cups of coffee a day. Coffee imports have increased 50 per cent in the last ten years.

Of the $30,000,000,000 spent in retail stores, $5,000,000,000 is for clothes, $3,000,000,000 for automobiles, $1,500,000,000 for furniture, $1,000,000,000 for jewelry, $1,000,000,000 for candy and soft drinks, $1,500,000,000 for tobacco, $1,000,000,000 for amusements, $1,000,000,000 for gasoline, $1,000,000,000 for drugs, $1,000,000,000 for electrical goods, $1,000,000,000 for sporting goods, $1,000,000,000 for books, $1,000,000,000 for jewelry, $1,000,000,000 for flowers, $1,000,000,000 for candy, $1,000,000,000 for soft drinks, $1,000,000,000 for ice cream, $1,000,000,000 for soda fountains, $1,000,000,000 for cosmetics, $1,000,000,000 for perfumes, $1,000,000,000 for cigars, $1,000,000,000 for cigarettes, $1,000,000,000 for chewing gum, $1,000,000,000 for snuff, $1,000,000,000 for pipes, $1,000,000,000 for cigarette papers, $1,000,000,000 for matches, $1,000,000,000 for lighters, $1,000,000,000 for ashtrays, $1,000,000,000 for humidors, $1,000,000,000 for cigar cutters, $1,000,000,000 for cigar holders, $1,000,000,000 for cigar cases, $1,000,000,000 for cigar bands, $1,000,000,000 for cigar boxes, $1,000,000,000 for cigar labels, $1,000,000,000 for cigar stamps, $1,000,000,000 for cigar tax, $1,000,000,000 for cigar duty, $1,000,000,000 for cigar import, $1,000,000,000 for cigar export, $1,000,000,000 for cigar manufacturing, $1,000,000,000 for cigar wholesaling, $1,000,000,000 for cigar retailing, $1,000,000,000 for cigar jobbing, $1,000,000,000 for cigar brokerage, $1,000,000,000 for cigar commission, $1,000,000,000 for cigar agency, $1,000,000,000 for cigar representation, $1,000,000,000 for cigar salesmanship, $1,000,000,000 for cigar advertising, $1,000,000,000 for cigar publicity, $1,000,000,000 for cigar propaganda, $1,000,000,000 for cigar lobbying, $1,000,000,000 for cigar politics, $1,000,000,000 for cigar graft, $1,000,000,000 for cigar corruption, $1,000,000,000 for cigar bribery, $1,000,000,000 for cigar blackmail, $1,000,000,000 for cigar extortion, $1,000,000,000 for cigar robbery, $1,000,000,000 for cigar murder, $1,000,000,000 for cigar suicide, $1,000,000,000 for cigar death, $1,000,000,000 for cigar funeral, $1,000,000,000 for cigar burial, $1,000,000,000 for cigar cremation, $1,000,000,000 for cigar urn, $1,000,000,000 for cigar ashes, $1,000,000,000 for cigar dust, $1,000,000,000 for cigar smoke, $1,000,000,000 for cigar fumes, $1,000,000,000 for cigar stench, $1,000,000,000 for cigar odor, $1,000,000,000 for cigar perfume, $1,000,000,000 for cigar incense, $1,000,000,000 for cigar worship, $1,000,000,000 for cigar religion, $1,000,000,000 for cigar heaven, $1,000,000,000 for cigar hell, $1,000,000,000 for cigar devil, $1,000,000,000 for cigar God, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Christ, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Holy Ghost, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Trinity, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Unity, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Eternity, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Infinity, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Absolute, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Relative, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Nothing, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Something, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Everything, $1,000,000,000 for cigar Anything

Without a sound Lancaster leaped at him.

Joan saw the secretary snatch up the lamp and hold it on high. She heard his screaming, terrified voice above the uproar. He stood like some squat statue illuminating the space above the dark in which Lancaster and Lawson sprawled, clutching at each other like two primeval cave men.

It was grotesque, for it was like a man fighting with himself; and, in fact, it might have been Lancaster fighting with his evil angel. He was no match for Lawson, but at first his pent-up fury, at last unleashed, matched the two equally. Then Lawson flung his adversary from him and struggled to his knees. As Lancaster grasped him and tried to rise he flung him down again. Lancaster's head struck the corner of the iron bedstead. His hands unclosed; he sighed and lay perfectly still. Joan saw the look of malignant rage upon Lawson's face, saw him raise his heel above the face of the unconscious man. He would have ground out Lancaster's life, but that Joan pulled the revolver from her pocket and thrust it into his face for the second time.

Lawson staggered backward, rage and terror depicted upon his features in the light of the swaying oil lamp. At that moment Myers was crouching near her. He set the lamp down. Joan felt a sharp pain in the upper part of her arm. She saw the secretary putting something into his pocket. He dodged the wavering revolver and backed toward the door, pulling Lawson with him.

"I'm going to finish this!" yelled Lawson.

Myers dashed at him and pulled him into the hall. Joan heard Myers' eager whispers, and Lawson's struggles and angry muttering gradually subside.

Then she heard them enter the secretary's room, and, forgetting them instantly, she bent over Lancaster and raised his head upon her knee.

He was breathing heavily. The blow had only stunned him. Joan tried to lift him upon the bed, but he was too heavy for her. As she was attempting to do so, however, the door opened and Mrs. Fraser came in.

"I found a key," she whispered, trembling. "I heard them talking. Heaven help me, what has that devil done to the doctor?"

"He isn't badly hurt," said Joan. "Help me get him upon the bed."

Mrs. Fraser and Joan extended Lancaster by there, still unconscious. The matron clung heavily to the bedpost, looking at Joan grimly.

"I knew it all now," she muttered. "I should have known before if I'd listened to the Middle people. That devil is his brother."

"Yes," said Joan shortly. "What are you going to do, Mrs. Fraser?"

"I'm going to stand by the doctor," the woman answered. "I stood by him year after year when I thought he was poisoned by an evil spirit. Wouldn't I stand by him now?"

"Good," said Joan. "And I, too. Together we'll make short work of those men."

"Heaven save you, you don't know that man, Miss Wentworth," warned the matron. "He's a devil. He has no pity. And he has a devil for cheek worse than himself."

"Myers! Who is he?"

"He was his assistant here. He was tried once, they tell me, for poisoning his employer. He got off very—but they couldn't find any poison in his body. It was his master made the analysis, and he had to get Myers free and have his hold on him. He will stick to the end, Miss Wentworth."

"If you knew this," said Joan, "you should have told me, you should have told the police, and anyone rather than let him drug Doctor Lancaster day after day."

"I thought it was the doctor who was in league with him," the matron muttered. "Miss Wentworth, I'm sick, I'm sick—and I'm not ashamed to say it! I keep quiet. To-morrow—"

"Yes, to-morrow," said Joan. "You'd better go to bed now, Mrs. Fraser. I'll watch the doctor with my revolver, and to-morrow we'll end those years of misery. Doctor Lancaster is a free man. Think of him as a free man. The past is all behind us."

The matron slipped away startledly to her room. Joan took her seat beside Lancaster, listening to the incoherent mutterings which had begun. Presently his eyes opened. He stared at her for some minutes until recognition came into them.

She let him take and hold it, and sat beside him, while he began muttering again. Gradually he began to realize where he was, and to remember.

"It is all true, then, Joan," he said. "He has had his revenge for his fancied wrongs. He has had the best years of my life, and he has beaten me in the end."

"Beaten you?" asked Joan. "You are not beaten. They are at their wits' ends what to do now, and to-morrow you will send them packing and begin your new life."

"A pitiful hope," he answered. "For he has given me back one thing—my faith in that poor woman upstairs, and, with it, a greater faith in humanity; but he has robbed me of all my hope."

"Why, John?"

"Because I could not have imagined that humanity was so vile, Joan. I am crushed by his revelation. If he entered this room now I feel that his will would dominate mine."

"Those are the words of a sick man," said Joan. "Tomorrow you will adjust yourself. Tomorrow you will be strong. Why, hardly a man on earth could do what you have done with the morphine."

"I suppose I shall carry on my fight," he answered wearily. "But victory will mean nothing to me."

"I shall stand by your side until I have seen you conquer, and until I have seen you happy in your success."

"And then, Joan?"

"Then? Then I shall go somewhere, I suppose."

"Go away? From me? Is it because of Mrs. Dana?"

"Because of her, John."

"But she is nothing to me. She was never anything. Even my monomania of revenge rose out of wounded pride, not love. Surely you will not leave me because I once thought that I loved another?"

"It isn't that, John. But, you see, she has been an integral part of your life all these years. Even though her mind was gone, there was the subconsciousness of her presence that fed into your brain; she was the mainspring of your existence here. She would have been your wife today, but for that dastard's scheme. She is innocent, she has been deeply wronged, and her life has become bound up with yours indissolubly. You see, John, there is no getting away from that."

"Joan, don't you know she hates me? She thinks that my death will avenge her wrongs and cure her of her troubles. She has tried three times to kill me. In some mysterious manner she has learned the location of my room. Once she startled me in the night with a cable knife—once she got the bullets removed, but fortunately it was unloaded. I have been planning to send her somewhere where she could be better cared for and where my presence would not be a constant irritation to her."

Joan stuck her head. "It is all part of the plot," she said. "The night nurse, the pet. One will pay early in with one and try to profit by it. You know that, John."

"You do not like me, Joan."

She turned her face away; tears that filled her eyes came from the depths of her being. Lancaster took both her hands in his.

"You love me, Joan?"

"Too well to wrong you and myself," she answered. "Too well to let our love build a wall between us. So well that I would rather let the spiritual bond remain, rather than mar it."

He drew her toward him, and she remained with her cheek resting against his, with his arms about her. She could not stir. A strange physical lethargy seemed to hold her limbs, but her will was unshaken.

"Your last word, Joan?" whispered Lancaster.

"No, dear," she answered.

The humorous look that came at such odd moments into Lancaster's eyes flickered there now. "Your very last?" he asked.

"O, don't ask me to deny my resolution," she said.

She released herself and stood beside him. As she did so she had a sensation as if her feet rested on a cushion of silk. Her physical weakness was matched by her sense of instability; she longed with all her heart to lean within the arms outstretched toward her; she knew that, if she had given Lancaster life, he could give her the strength of life; he was of her own people, and all that was chivalric and dear in the land she had loved seemed embodied in him. And before her she saw the closing hospital walls of some far distant city; she must exile herself from everything that she had known.

"You little stubborn thing, Joan!" said Lancaster tenderly. "But I shall go on loving you."

"I shall love you, John."

"I shall hear from you sometimes?"

"Yes. And I shall remain in Avonmouth until your battle is won. But there will be no battle. They know that they are beaten. You will never be weak again."

"No," said Lancaster. "But, O'Joan, if you had said 'yes' to me it would have been so easy."

With the maternal feeling that is part of every woman's love for the man she loves, she stooped and kissed his forehead.

"You must try to sleep now," she said. "I shall leave the revolver with you, and you shall lock your door."

"I am not afraid of them," he answered. "They can do nothing, Joan. Keep it to assure you of your own safety."

That seemed the better way. There was nothing that the pair could do to Lancaster. If they stirred at any one it would be she. She saw that and she went out without speaking to Lancaster again. In the hall she trembled very freely. It was called cowardice, and she knew that she had done the right thing, the only possible thing. But Lancaster had not surrendered the terrible woman's battle which she had fought during those last few minutes.

She stood in the hall for a few moments in uncertainty. She did not mean to sleep, but to lie awake with her door open, resting and listening for any movements in the house. But, though her brain was awake, she was more tired than she had ever been in her life. She could hardly draw her limbs upstairs, and again she had that sense of walking on air. Under the little burning lamp she stopped again to gather strength to go to her room. The ticking of the clock in the hall below was the only sound in the house. She strained her ears to catch the sound of voices from Myers' room, but she could hear nothing for the two could not be asleep. They must be planning together.

The door in the remotest of the hallway was already ajar. It seemed to her abnormally bright, and free of all who had ever lived within its lofty walls. She felt as excited as a child on the Christmas eve which is to take him free. He from the horror of existence. The cold air came in, and the darkness chilled significantly from the eaves.

Joan had an impulse (unusual in subject, in the dark into Lancaster's room, try to kiss to help her to let her face before him as long as they lived. And the scene which was becoming quite vastly over-dramatized, was undoubtedly enhanced.

She pushed her door and tried to shake away her fears. She went to the window and looked out. The dawn was coming, and a faint wash of blue in from the sea. But a cold wave of the sea to Middle of Lancaster. And she was such loneliness. It was a cynical, that point which had begun to be done her, and all her hopes, and all that love which was bound up so intimately with the life of hope.

Genius of Philology Given Stern Justice

Various pens have sometimes been put forward in support of the memory of ancient officials. One of the strangest was that on behalf of George Kelly, an Athenian archon eponymus, who was sentenced to loss of a series of numbers and curses on his wife and daughter being among the victims. For centuries cruelty to parents would be hard to beat, but Kelly had a champion.

He was an ardent philologist, and had been engaged for years on the invention of a universal language. No one could attempt to pronounce its rhumes, but a widely signed petition was presented to the governor of Virginia for its rejection on the ground that as its invention, if completed, would be of the utmost benefit to mankind it would be criminal folly to extinguish such a light of learning. The governor thought otherwise and Kelly was duly hanged.

Copying Nature

Cover a billiard table in a bright red cloth instead of the customary soft green and every billiard ball would be deserted in half an hour. Different tables from the beginning were covered with green for the same reason that nature covers her open stretches mainly with green, because it is soothing to the eye.

A Little Bit Humorous

THE SAME THING

Sybil—It's no use denying it, Maud. It was too dark for me to see who it was, but I saw some young man kiss you in the garden. I'm ashamed of you.

Maud—I don't see why you should be. I've often seen George kiss you.

Sybil (engaged to George)—Yes, but I allow nobody but George to kiss me.

Maud—Well, nobody but George ever kissed me.

Many a True Word

"Papa, what is a low-brow?"

"A low-brow, my son, is a person who likes the funny papers, sloppy stories, girl shows and the like and doesn't mind saying so."

"And what is a high-brow, pap?"

"A high-brow, my son, is a low-brow who won't admit it."—North Shore Bulletin.

DO YOU GET THE POINT?

Fair Voter—I couldn't care to occupy the President's chair—it's too much a seat for me.

He—Yes; it's scarcely possible to sit in it without being subjected to the tax.

Clashes of Authority

The Cat is be at a Queen,
The Queen attempts to catch er,
The Cat, with nerve serene,
Reserves the right to scratch er.

His Dream

Two children were exchanging confidences, as children will, regarding their respective girl friends.

"I hope you're not suffering from any hallucination that your girl is a raving beauty," sneered the other.

"I sure am," replied the youngster belligerently, "and I'm going to continue to beg on Dream."

Vicarious Benevolence

Little Jessie (who has an impulsive mind)—Father, what do they mean when they call a man a philanthropist?

Professor Dimdip—Why, it usually means that he is very liberal to all charities to persuade other people to spend their money recklessly for the public good.—Stray Stories.

Too Good to Change

Alice—It is no use to try.

Vinnie—Why, did you carry him?

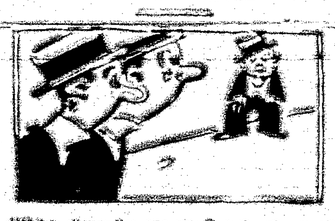
Alice—Oh, but I want him to keep on loving me.

Differentiation

"Is your husband an optimist?"

"Well," replied the unfortunate woman, "he is optimistic in hoping for the best, but a good deal of a pessimist in waiting to get it."

DAY OF REST



"Why does he sit so far back in the picture in church on Sunday?"

"To rest his eyes from going so far front in the stage lights in the theater all week."

That Woman

He would extend the credit,
Was inclined the debt to cancel,
But he thought the time to settle
Was when she was single.

Wouldn't

"Are you in favor of a tax on bachelors?" asked a heckler, knowing that the candidate was unmarried.

"I thought, sir," was the reply, "that I had already said I did not favor a tax on raw material."

Much Occupied

"Tubbub seems to be fastened at the time. Evidently a very busy man."

"He is. In addition to looking after his own business, he writes to all the squabbles his wife has with her various friends."

Two Looks

"Did you notice that insolent conductor looking at you as if you hadn't paid your fare?"

"Yes, and did you notice me looking at him as if I had?"—Paris Le Rire.

Responsible for Idea of "Unknown Soldier"

Perhaps no movement has ever appealed more strongly to the imagination of the world than the suggestion of bestowing honor on the dead who died for their country by paying tribute to the "Unknown Soldier." Yet it was not till the American advertising clubs visited England this summer that the name of the man who conceived this great idea was made public. Reverend Hailin, vicar of Morgate parish church, a modest person originated this now internationally adopted ceremony after he had visited at the burial of no name soldier who died on the battlefields of France. It took months of persistent hard work on his part to persuade the British government to adopt his plan for affording every unfortunate his own nation or its allies. Hard hat on dresses a table, for, in the face of fame things, it's work that he prefers to remain an unknown soldier.

Made Autos Register

Interest with routine work is a fer the matter of invention. A part of the job of C. B. McFarland, forest ranger in the Cascade National forest in Oregon was to keep track of the number of automobiles that traversed the government roads. It was drudgery work, and unnecessary. So Mr. McFarland invented a machine to do it. The machine consists of a small platform across which tubes are laid. Each end of each tube is connected with the back of a camera. When a car passes over the platform it forces air through the tubes to the camera, which takes a picture of the car's number. It is also used to count the number of persons in each car.

Immense Electric Sign

In Milwaukee an electric sign weighing 50 tons has been set up which requires a total of 4,000 electric lamps to illuminate it. The letters of the sign are 70 feet high and the signs to be illuminated weigh all by electricity. It is erected by a team of 4000 people.

Prefer Wireless to Study

Broadcasting is causing a large number of schoolboys to scamp their home lessons, is the complaint of the head master of an English grammar school. He has sent out a circular letter to parents calling their attention to the serious effect listening in is having on the work of the boys and expressing the hope that parents will strictly regulate the conditions under which wireless is used.

Get rid of constipation by internal cleanliness

HEADACHES, biliousness, sleepless nights, heaviness, are Nature's warning that intestinal poisons are flooding your system. If this is allowed to continue, you may become a victim of serious organic disease.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favour Lubrication

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1925

To break one amendment to the constitution in order to enforce another doesn't jar the "law enforcement" squad.

The difficulty with the proponents of Volsteadism is that, when they speak of "law enforcement," they have nothing in mind but the 18th amendment.

The short session of the United States congress expired, by limitation, March 4, without the passage of any of the big measures before it, except the usual appropriation bills.

If it isn't one thing it's another Just as we are about to get the legislature off our hands, the contest for the state offices in the courts comes along, and the battle goes on

The state legislative session is rapidly drawing to a close, and it will breathe its last the middle of this month The last minute rush is on and the indications for the passage of some good laws are much brighter than they were a week ago.

Calvin Coolidge was inaugurated as President March 4 for the elective term of four years. His service the past nineteen months was by succession; he now assumes the responsibilities for the period stated by the mandate of the American people

The successful Republican candidates for the offices won by 11 counties in the counties of San Miguel and Mora went to the Democrats in electing the others. The way, and, then again, it may not, cause cold chills to creep up and down Mayor's vertebra if, indeed, he perceives one.

That witness in Judge Hallman's court the other day, who testified that he had been given $50 to vote the Democratic ticket ran into a fence The court questioned the witness as to what he did with the money and elicited the response that he spent the $ for whiskey for himself and his friends. Further interrogation by the court brought forth the fact that, in the end, witness voted the straight Republican ticket Nuff sed!

Bratton Dons the Toga

Washington, March 4.—Among the 32 senatorial swearers in for new terms were 11 who never before graced a senate chamber, including one from the far west. Samuel G Bratton, Democrat, from New Mexico, the judge who defeated Senator Bursum, Republican.

After a brief session, following the inaugural ceremonies, the senate convened in a special session, called by the President to consider nominations, then adjourned until noon tomorrow.

Klan Incorporates

Santa Fe, March 3—The Ku Klux Klan is making a determined effort for an official status in New Mexico. Articles of incorporation were issued today to the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, under an opinion by the attorney general.

W. L. Williams, of Albuquerque, is named as agent. The organization is described as a Georgia corporation and application papers are signed by H. W. Evans, Imperial Wizard.

Application of a woman's branch of the Klan for incorporation, submitted some weeks ago, has not been acted upon. This application named the Secretary of State as its state official without her consent.

Carrizozo Basketeers Back from Pecos Valley Tournament

(Contributed)

The High School Basketeers left for Roswell Wednesday last to compete in the Valley tournament.

The following boys went: Brewer Chandler, captain; Clint Branum, Sol Show, Alfred Topez, Miller French, Ernest Lopez, Chas. Pfingsten and Albert Roberts. The boys arrived in Roswell without a mishap. They roomed at the Ramona and had their meals at the Bankhead. They report a good time. The Institute treated the team to dinner Thursday, to a free swim that night and to a picture and vaudeville show Saturday afternoon.

The boys played the first game Thursday night with Elida, who had already eliminated the Rogers team. The Elida team was one of the strongest of the tournament. The local boys, after a hard-fought game, in which the score had changed from favoring one team to the other half a dozen times, lost to Elida. Score: Carrizozo 9, Elida 11. It was one of the closest games of the tournament and the hardest fought. After the whistle had blown, the old gang gave Elida the customary 15 rahs. Notwithstanding the jinx that the boys seemed to carry, the cheers were real and the sportsmanship genuine. As one of the boys put it, "They can beat us but they can never have our sportsmanship."

There were nineteen teams in the tournament: Artesia, Carlsbad, Carrizozo, Clovis, Corona, Dexter, Elida, Floyd, Fort Sumner, Hope, Hagerman, Lake Arthur, Lovington, Rogers, Ranchvale, Roswell, Grady and Tatum.

The semi-finals were played between Portales and Clovis and Roswell and Carlsbad.

The final game for the championship was played between Roswell and Clovis. This game was played Saturday night. It was a fast game and was won by Roswell—20 to 15.

The Roswell and Clovis teams will represent this district in the state tournament at Albuquerque on March 6 and 7.

The Roswell tournament was conducted in a splendid manner. Captain Pommer, the various officials, the New Mexico Military Institute and the people of Roswell deserve much credit for their sportsmanship, fairness and hospitality

The local boys say that though Carrizozo was defeated, there were 18 other teams that also went down to defeat.

Fort Stanton Dance

Tomorrow night, March 7th, a dance will be given at Fort Stanton for the benefit of the Fort's base ball team. Admission $1, ladies free. A unit of the Roswell Night Owl orchestra will furnish the music. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee, will be served at fifteen cents per person.

Our people are interested in the organization of a good ball team at Stanton, and hope to meet them with a similar aggregation during the ball season. Fort Stanton offers about our best opportunity for sport this summer, and those attending from this section tomorrow night will perform a double service—render help to our neighbors and aid in creating an interest in sport in our own community—besides the assurance of a delightful evening's entertainment.

NOW YOU MAY TRY THIS VEGETABLE SYRUP FREE

This is Your Chance to Prove that Toning up Your Liver will End that Tired, Run-Down Feeling. Build Yourself Up! Win Back Sound Digestion, Strength and Energy. Feel Your Best Again!

In his private practice Dr. H. S. Thacher demonstrated that such symptoms as Indigestion, Gas on a Sour Stomach, Belching, Dizziness, Colds that Hang On, Sick Headaches, Constipation, that Tired Feeling and a general Run-Down condition of the System are often the result of a Sluggish Liver—and that relief in such cases comes quickly when the Liver is properly Cleansed and Toned and the System is working normally again.

Why This Gives Relief

When working as Nature intended your liver does three things necessary to keep you feeling your best. First, it purifies your BLOOD, every drop of which passes through the Liver every fifteen minutes. Second, your Liver furnishes the essences that are essential to perfect DIGESTION. Third, your Liver supplies the secretions Nature uses to lubricate your intestines so that your bowels can move naturally, gently and regularly every day. When your liver becomes sluggish it cannot do these three things; consequently you suffer from one or more of the symptoms above described.

Share It With Family!

Just to prove to you that you CAN get quick RELIEF, druggists are giving away FREE liberal trial size bottles of Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup. It is a syrup of PURELY VEGETABLE ingredients known to Physicians for their CORRECTIVE and HEALTH-BUILDING properties. Each ingredient is chosen to help Nature to cleanse and tone the Liver—to correct this cause of constipation—to improve Digestion and Appetite—to Nourish and Strengthen the System—to Tone the Tired and Overtaxed Nerves, and to send purer, Healthier Blood coursing through your veins.

The "Flu" Subsiding

The "flu" epidemic, which has attacked more than one-half of the people of our town and county, during the last two months, is reported to have about run its course, although the physicians are still kept busy with old cases and occasional new ones.

The "flu" is a malady, as one man puts it, that "leaves the patient ill long after he is over it" However, as far as can be ascertained, there have been no fatalities as a result of its attack in this county.

According to dispatches, it has been world-wide, and its ravages have been death-dealing in foreign countries. England and the British Isles lost thousands, a comparative proof that we have been rather fortunate. And in far-off Japan, a dispatch dated the latter part of February, conveys the following sad story of deaths:

"The influenza epidemic, which has caused a heavy toll of life since the first of the year, is now considered over.

"A police report made public today shows the total number of cases of influenza reported to the authorities between January 1 and February 20 to be 111,134. Of this total, 12,250 cases terminated in death."

Therefore, notwithstanding the suffering that has visited our homes, we have largely escaped the sorrow that has enveloped the human family in other lands, and for which we should, indeed, be thankful.

School Code Re-Vamped

Santa Fe, March 2—The establishment of a suspense fund to enable schools to operate on a cash basis from the first of the year, is one of the changes proposed by a new school code bill, introduced in the legislature by a joint education committee from both houses. The fund is to consist of 5 per cent of the total school budget, which is to be set aside by county treasurers from month to month as taxes are collected in 1925. This fund, together with the state appropriation, will provide for the expenses of the schools for two months, thus allowing for late tax collections

Other school legislation incorporated in separate bills provides for the election of the county board, the repeal of the poll tax, and a minor change in adoption of state text books. Two bills have been introduced providing for the election of the board. A bill in the Senate, which aroused a storm of controversy, provided that the nine richest men in the county select the board, under certain restrictions. A House bill provides for the selection of the board by the district judge.

Both aim to establish a non-partisan board. A bill has already been passed raising the rate of interest on school certificates of indebtedness from six per cent to eight per cent.

Fort Stanton Notes

Fort Stanton, March 5

Last Saturday night in the Amusement Hall a most excellent musical program was rendered by Miss Merle McClure, pianist, and and Paul Schreiber, 'cellolst.

Owing to the prevailing epidemic of "flu" throughout this part of the county, the audience was not as large as had been expected, but the ones who were fortunate enough to attend the concert felt that they had received a real musical treat. The program was repeated Monday night for the benefit of the patients and others who were unable to attend the Saturday night concert.

An old stork who has been hovering above the Fort for some time, finally left a baby boy with Mrs. J. W. Sellars. Mary Ellen, the delighted little sister, says his name is John Randolph and that he weighs 9½ pounds. Mr. J. W. Sellars arrived from White Tail in time to welcome his son.

Dr. and Mrs. T. B H. Anderson entertained the married folks bridge club at a Bridge dinner Tuesday evening. Mrs. W. A. Wunsch carried off the honors of the evening with the highest score.

The Novice Bridge Club met at No. 2 on Wednesday evening. Miss Emma Kinkannan was hostess for the evening and served excellent refreshments at the close of the game.

Mr. John Mitchelmore, feeling that the Lincoln Sunday School does not need his help any more, went on down to Hondo Sunday and established a Sunday School there.

Miss Genevieve Coffee, who has been teaching school at Capitan and living with her sister, Mrs Ben Cosper here, is critically ill with pneumonia. A nurse from El Paso was secured for her.

Mrs. Farris, who contracted the "flu" after nursing Mrs. Hudgens through pneumonia, had recovered sufficiently so that she was able to leave the hospital and return to her home the first of the week.

Mrs. "Dad" Cavanaugh is the latest victim of pneumonia. She was removed to the hospital Tuesday, and is reported to be improving.

Mrs. Horace Kirk and Mrs. E T. Gensler motored to Carrizozo Thursday to do some shopping in the metropolis.

Strand to Show "Her Temporary Husband"

Sidney Chaplin, brother of the famous Charlie, returns to the screen to play a most important comedy role in "Her Temporary Husband," a rib-tickling farce which is to be the feature at the Crystal theatre, Saturday, March 14th. It is a First National version of Edward Paulton's popular stage success of the same title.

"Her Temporary Husband," is an exceptionally humorous comedy, centering about a young girl, who, to win a fortune, is forced to marry within twenty-four hours.

The girl not wishing to burden herself with the troubles of matrimony, yet wishing to win the legacy goes to a sanitarium and chooses as a husband a decrepit old man with one foot in the grave and the other on a banana skin, to later wake up to the realization that the man she married was a young admirer who had made up to represent the older man.

Owen Moore plays the part of the disguised invalid. Sidney Chaplin enacts the role of his valet. An exceptionally talented all-star cast supports the play.

Chills, & Stomach Trouble

MR. N. A. SMITH, of Shaw, Miss., says he can't remember being without Thedford's Black-Draught Liver medicine since he and Mrs. Smith began keeping house, many years ago. "When we have chills," says Mr. Smith, "Black-Draught is what we use and we find it just splendid. I had a bad case of stomach trouble. I couldn't eat enough and was very weak. Everything I ate hurt me, I rested as I got up my food. I would feel sluggish and dizzy. I didn't feel like doing any work. I knew what Black-Draught had done for me and I began taking it. I took a few doses. I certainly got relief. It did me lots of good. When I go to town, I look first to see how near out of Black-Draught we are, and then get more. We are a good way from the doctor and keep our home remedies and the main one is Black-Draught."

In hundreds of thousands of homes, Thedford's Black-Draught is the first, last and only medicine used when a need arises for a liver stimulant, laxative, blood purifier or stomach regulator. A dose is the measure. A trial of Black-Draught will prove to any one it is a good thing for the whole family. Keep it on hand. Buy it at your store.

Navy Board Declares Battleship Still Is Backbone of Our Naval Defense.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CONTRARY to the opinion of Brig. Gen. William Mitchell and those who support his contentions, the battleship is still the backbone of naval defense and the airplane, while a very valuable arm, will always be an auxiliary instrument of warfare against whose attacks the battleship can be made practically invulnerable. Such is the finding of the special board of the navy created by Secretary Coolidge to investigate the claims of those who asserted that aircraft could annihilate capital ships from the seas.

This board, headed by Admiral Eberle, chief of naval operations, reported last week. Its conclusions summarized, are these:

"The battleship is the element of ultimate force in the fleet, and all other elements are contributory to the fulfillment of its function as the final arbiter in sea warfare. The other elements have their importance, and at times indispensable functions.

"Aviation has introduced a new and highly important factor in warfare, both on land and sea. It was utilized as an auxiliary arm and with great effectiveness in land operations during the World war but did not materially change sea operations. We believe in naval warfare undoubtedly will increase in the future but the principle that it will remain auxiliary will continue to be applied.

"The airplane (bomber type) has also been valuable in reconnaissance, but as a vital value in war.

"Aircraft cannot operate from territory that is not controlled by the military or naval forces of their own country.

"Airplane bases such as Guam cannot exist under their own power with any effective military load, and therefore, cannot operate there effectively or defensively with aircraft with weapons and fuel.

"The battleship of today, while not invulnerable to airplane attack, when protected very efficiently by its own protective, as shown by the experiments on the Washington. The battleship of the future can be so designed as to diminish by her armor or design and size, and as to increase vulnerability to aircraft bombs from the air.

"The effect of gunnery has always been paramount and has never become clearly subordinate to the effect of fire by heavy armed bombs.

"By attacking the battleship's deck with air bombs (size of armor so effectively used as protection at long range (as at Jutland) the battleship will be open to attack by gun projectiles fired at the greatest probable battle ranges.

"The bomber will not always carry any striking effect from aerial bombs. It cannot be said therefore that an attack has rendered the battleship helpless.

"The airship (bomber type) has also been valuable in reconnaissance, but due to great vulnerability, is of limited value in war.

"Aircraft cannot operate from territory that is not controlled by the military or naval forces of their own country.

"Airplane bases such as Guam cannot exist under their own power with any effective military load, and therefore, cannot operate there effectively or defensively with aircraft with weapons and fuel.

"The battleship of today, while not invulnerable to airplane attack, when protected very efficiently by its own protective, as shown by the experiments on the Washington. The battleship of the future can be so designed as to diminish by her armor or design and size, and as to increase vulnerability to aircraft bombs from the air.

"The effect of gunnery has always been paramount and has never become clearly subordinate to the effect of fire by heavy armed bombs.

"The bomber will not always carry any striking effect from aerial bombs. It cannot be said therefore that an attack has rendered the battleship helpless.

"The observation value of the airplane has been extended to submarine convoy by observing and reporting the fall of shot relative to the target.

"Airplanes have demonstrated their great value to the fleet in scouting, observation and bombing. The use of torpedo planes, gas and smoke screens is still in the process of development. Airplane carriers are necessary elements of a properly constructed fleet to carry airplanes to the scene of action."

As to the plan of unifying army and navy aviation in a separate department of the government, urged by Gen. Mitchell and many others, the board says it would be most injurious to the continued efficiency of the fleet and is a step that should not be taken.

The board made recommendations for a rather elaborate immediate building program to be completed in three years at a cost of $80,000,000 a year. For this the President has substituted this initial program costing $30,000,000:

1. Modernization of three of the coal-burning battleships.
2. Continuation of the construction of the two aircraft carriers.
3. Three million dollars for airplanes for the carriers. (This is in addition to $1,000,000 for this purpose included in the budget for 1926.)
4. Laying down and commencing the construction of two 10,000 ton cruisers.
5. Commencing the construction of submarines for patrol service on the Yangtze river.

COINCIDENT with the publication of this report came the story from Los Angeles of the preference of navy bombing squadron No. 2 under Lieutenant Commander J. Strong. From a height of 7,200 feet the bombers made 20 direct hits on a small sea target that was being towed at 15 miles an hour. Strong's command was Brigadier General Mitchell was correct as to effectiveness of air bombardment on war vessels. We have known it for a long time. Today we proved it."

He added the assertion that the bombers were 1,200 feet above effective anti-aircraft gun range and said the test was made more difficult than expected because a lack of clouds complicated such preliminary maneuvering to get a peek at the tiny target.

WASHINGTON dignitaries of the social set declared that Vice Chief Billy Mitchell had settled to Civil Service General Mitchell for ranking the chief of the bureau in the War department and presumably would give him the choice of accepting demotion from the office of assistant chief of the army air service and returning to the regular rank of colonel, or retire from the service. Mitchell is quoted as saying he would accept the demotion and continue to work for a united air service.

High officers of the army and navy appeared before the house committee on naval affairs to tell it the naval aviation situation as it appears to them, and while their testimony was not made public it was learned that they showed that the country was utterly unprepared to resist attack, so far as aircraft are concerned.

Another witness who was Frank B. Cook, secretary of the Glenn Curtiss Museum association, who told the committee he was telling about what he saw when he was in the presence of pilots of the army who had been ordered to sink the battleship New York. Cook declared that it would require 2,000 planes and 2,000,000 pounds of bombs per to attack a city the size of Washington. From it is planned, he said, could demolish a military force like Pershing's, and one out of five would score a direct hit on the target.

Even plans from outside have been carefully worked out, Cook testified. He declared that they called for the attack from various points by the planes to be made simultaneously.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, it was announced last week, is awaiting the report on the practicability of calling another naval disarmament conference to amend the Washington treaty limitations to battleship craft. Our ambassadors have been carrying on preliminary conversations in London, Tokyo and Rome and are said to have met with considerable encouragement there. France alone, of course, has remained but her attitude is not yet revealed. Her assent is necessary. A London paper says Mr. Kellogg, the retiring ambassador, is bringing to the President a message from Foreign Secretary Chamberlain stating that Great Britain would welcome American initiative in the calling of such a conference, which probably means that the British government recognizes that the Geneva peace protocol is practically dead. In Tokyo it was said Foreign Minister Shidehara would insist on preliminary conversations in that city to fix the agenda of the meeting.

THAT Germany's warlike preparations are continuing and that the Berlin government has not been acting in good faith are the charges made in the report of the interallied control commission presented to Marshal Foch's Versailles committee, and the charges are supported by a great array of alleged facts. With this comes reiteration of the French government's position that evacuation of the whole or a part of the Rhineland would remove France's last tangible pledge for security against aggression without giving anything but vague promises to replace it.

TRAGEDY of Sand cave in Kentucky reached its climax and conclusion when the miners sinking the shaft for the rescue of Floyd Collins got down to the unfortunate young man and found he had been dead for several days. To release his body from the imprisoning boulder that fell on his foot January 30 would have been difficult and dangerous to others, so it was decided to make the cave his tomb. Funeral services were held on top of the hill and the entrances to the cavern were filled up. Above the shaft will rise a rock cairn that will stand as a memento of the gallant and brave efforts of those who toiled for many days and nights to extricate the trapped man.

CONGRESS has now authorized a project that has been long urged by citizens of the North and the South as a symbol of national unity, and by artists and architects as well. It is the Arlington Memorial bridge to link the Lincoln Memorial on the north shore of the Potomac with the Arlington National cemetery and the old home of Gen. Robert E. Lee on the south side. The bridge is to cost $2,000,000 and is to be the most beautiful structure of the kind in the world if all the suggested plans are carried out.

IF THE senate has its way, the salaries of members of both houses will be raised from $7,500 a year to $10,000, and those of cabinet members from $12,000 to $15,000. This was provided for by a senate amendment to the legislative appropriation bill, which was adopted without a record vote, despite the warm opposition of Senator Watson of Indiana and some others. It was confidently predicted that the amendment would be approved in conference and accepted by the house.

WILLIAM M. JARDINE, president of the Kansas State Agricultural college, is to be secretary of agriculture after March 4. President Coolidge announced after long and careful consideration that he had decided on Jardine. The decision was reached after a conference between the President and Jardine at the White House. Jardine's appointment will be subject to confirmation by the senate.

DR. HARRY DE WOLF HUTCHINS, president of the University of Michigan and one of the country's leading educators died at Ann Arbor after several months of illness. He was a native of Iowa and was only fifty years old. Before going to Michigan in 1909 he had been president of Smith college and of the University of Missouri. In the Republican national convention last June he made the speech placing Calvin Coolidge in nomination.

Frederic W. Upham, for years until last June the national treasurer of the Republican party and one of the leading bankers men of Chicago, died at Palm Beach, Fla., where he had gone in the hope of regaining his health. He was entombed remembrances from Illinois.

M. H. De Young, founder and publisher of the San Francisco Chronicle and one of the richest men in the state, passed away rather suddenly after an emergency operation.

Another death of note was that of Addison G. Proctor of St. Joseph, Mich., who was the last surviving member of the Republican convention of 1860 in Chicago that nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency.

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the garage owned by Frank Kreck, at Raton, and both the building and the contents were a total loss.

There is considerable sentiment among cotton planters of the Mimbres Valley for the formation at an early date of a cotton growers' association.

Frank B. Hunter, of Santa Rita was instantly killed and his auto reduced to a mass of wreckage when he lost control of the machine and it plunged over an 800-foot cliff.

Safe blowers entered the Liberty garage at Capitan, blew the safe open and escaped with about $65 in cash. The safe was demolished. No trace of the thieves has been found.

Eastern capitalists, who have been in Las Cruces for several days, announce that they will erect a large cotton compressing plant similar to the one now in operation in El Paso. A site of several acres has been selected.

A gin, to cost approximately $25,000, will be erected in Deming by W. A. Sutherland of Las Cruces, in time to take care of next season's cotton crop. This enterprise is practically a certainty, as the few farmers present signed up for 1,268 of the 2,500 acres to be planted in cotton, demanded by Mr. Sutherland as a condition of his locating his gin here.

Mrs. Herman A. Snyder, wife of the assistant cashier of the First National bank of Albuquerque, was instantly killed when the automobile in which she was riding overturned north of Carrizozo and pinned her underneath the machine. Her husband, two children and her father-in-law, who were the other members of the party, escaped with minor injuries.

The Province of Santa Fe, composed of the archdiocese of Santa Fe and the dioceses of Denver, Tucson and El Paso, which celebrated the diamond and golden jubilee of the creation of the first bishopric and first archbishopric in the Rocky Mountain region, is composed of nearly half a million Catholics. In this province there are over 400 priests with over 500 churches. In Catholic population the archdiocese of Santa Fe leads, with Denver second, El Paso third and Tucson last.

With the installation of a new 100 k. w. generator at the big power plant south of Garland, the Public Utilities company now has the complete power unit in working order. This new generator is in addition to the one already in use, and with the recently installed water wheels, completes the work commenced last summer, and gives the company the largest and most up-to-date power plant in the state. The new machinery has been tested in a new turbine, which was completed several months ago in contemplation of the recently installed generator being put into operation.

Reports of carnage from the skies of the "Land of Sky" during the week, recently, were over 900 this, according to reports of the Land of Sky chapter. Additional applications will be added at the rate of not less than 100 per week to the end of July in order to take care of the future business. Orders for seed to be used by the Public Fish and Game Commission at Pecos, Texas, are very large and indicate new color for 10,000 cans from the Santa Fe, and the capture the early months of September in Santa Fe City County waters is going.

Nearly every part of the state will be represented and the several tournaments will be completed by the end of the month so the competing teams will be selected by the time of the opening date.

Estancia has a fruit stand. The first State Fair of Estancia opened last week, Estancia town claims that from Torrance county, where it was formerly known as the Tajique and Scottsville land. The land has a capital of $25,000 and former State Senator E. M. Fraley of Estancia is the president. This is the only bank in Torrance county which has been without one for several months.

Col. Manuel R. Otero of Albuquerque, Republican nominee for governor at the last election, has gone again into court to contest the election of Mr. Democratic opponent, Arthur T. ROAD BUILDING

WIDER HIGHWAYS TO BE STANDARD

A $32,500,000 road program for this year—$20,000,000 for new construction and $12,500,000 for reconstruction—favored by the New York state bureau of highways is based on a policy of making virtually all new highways of the so-called dual width, having two outside strips of nine-foot each. Such construction enables three cars to pass with ease, and more than double the capacity of a road as compared with the ordinary 18-foot roadway.

How much of the program it will be possible to put through depends on the money to be made available. The program contemplates paving 387 miles of new highway and old dirt roads and reconstruction of 301 miles.

On some of the reconstruction jobs sheet asphalt will be used for the covering, which proves a cheaper and satisfactory type of reconstruction on roads of this kind.

Nothing less than 18-foot roads will be built. The day of the 16-foot state road in New York is passed.

The program of 387 miles of new construction probably will increase to 400 before the engineers of the department complete their plans.

Of the $20,000,000 for new roads, the state would pay $13,000,000. The federal allotment would amount to $3,600,000 and the counties' share to $3,400,000. The $3,600,000 allotted to the state under the federal aid system already is available. All the state has to do to take advantage of the appropriation is to make the necessary appropriations and comply with the regulations of the federal government.

The state pays the entire cost of reconstruction work, unless the communities wish to share. Where a community shares in reconstruction of a highway its share amounts to 35 per cent.

Up to last year not more than three counties shared in the cost of such work in any one year. Last year the number rose to 10.

New York city will have unusual interest in the major project of the highway bureau for 1926. This is for construction of parts of the New York-Albany Post road that require the work. Much of this road is in excellent condition, but much of it still is in very poor shape.

The dual type pavement will be used as far as possible. This will put a 27-foot highway in place of a 16-foot road in many stretches.

Modern Transportation Demands Wider Highways

Modern transportation demands speeds as swift as will conform with the rules of safety. With millions of trucks and passenger automobiles in use all capable of rapid travel, it is only natural that the cars of these vehicles and those handled by them use should desire that motor vehicle traffic be as swift as possible.

Many good roads and motor men—alone can make swift, efficient use of vehicle traffic and give at the same time the necessary measure of safety.

Evidence that highway department officials have recognized this fact is to be found all over the country. New pavements on highways are being laid several feet wider than was the custom only two or three years ago. And what is just as significant is the fact that in many places old pavements which are no longer wide enough to bear the constantly increasing automobile traffic are being widened with the addition of strips of concrete beside the old pavement.

These developments in highway building emphasize the wider roads are absolutely necessary in these days when automobiles are being built faster than pavements are being laid to carry them.

Good Roads Notes

Good roads are worth while.

* * *

The United States has nearly 36 per cent of all the automobiles registered in the world. Compared with this our proportion of improved highways to reach country roads is the worst of that of any highly civilized country.

* * *

An increase of approximately 150 per cent in the average cost of road construction in Connecticut in the last ten years is shown by a statement made public by the state highway department.

* * *

Driving over rubber pavement for any appreciable distance might seem a luxury to the average motorist. But that is one of the experimental observations on the current motorless calendar.

* * *

Track highways are a splendid safety device. The Chestnut street bridge in Philadelphia has steel tracks to keep vehicular traffic from the street cars.

* * *

Another important chapter is being added to the history of commercial transportation in this country by the nearly motor truck and highways.

* * *

Constant patrol and smoothing of graveled roads is really a money saver. The money has been spent. Let the highways be preserved so they do not have to be rebuilt in a few months.

SICK WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Can Be Carried Comfortably Over The Critical Period by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound —Note Mrs. Headden's Case

Macon, Georgia.—"During the Change of Life I suffered with my whole right side and could not lie on my left side. I was in bed about two months and could not get up only as my son would lift me. After doctoring without relief a man who was rooming with us told my son that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured his mother at the Change of Life, so I began taking your medicine. After taking it for two weeks I could get out of my bed by myself. I am now 53 years old and in better health and stronger than ever in my life. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to many suffering women, young and old, and you may use my name anywhere as long as you please. I will be glad to answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. F. B. Defective Vision

Defective vision of pupils in the public schools of this country costs the taxpayers at least $150,000,000 every year, according to reports of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. This is due to the fact that many students are compelled to take two or more years of a single grade because faulty vision has made them backward in their work.

Causes for Divorce

The University of California has taken a step toward correcting the "divorce evil," by instituting a course of critical analysis of the home. Miss Mary Burt Messer, formerly of the sociology department of the University of Wisconsin, is director of the course. Miss Messer has been quoted as saying that the troubles of American home life fall into two main categories: "The belief on the part of the modern young woman that she is indifferent to the ties of love and home," and "the insufficiency of the home itself, its inelasticity and inability to meet the needs of the present-day man, woman and child."

The SANDMAN STORY

THE MOONBEAMS

ONE night some very young Moonbeams scampered down to Earth to look for closed doors and shutters.

Moonbeams, you know, just love to creep through cracks and crevices and see things that folks think they have locked up—just like boys and girls for all the world—the Moonbeams, I mean.

"Oh, here is a place to peep through," cried one little beam. "Come, there is room for all of us and I expect there will be something wonderful to see."

The shutters through which they crept were those of the broken toy shop where all the dolls and toy dogs and cats and crippled toys of all sorts are taken when some accident happens to them.

Now, it was not long after Christmas, and the toy mender had been so busy that he could not mend half the toys that were brought to him to be made well, and the long, wide shelf in front of the window was pretty well filled.

Just as the little Moonbeams peeked the magic hour struck, which set all the toys talking. One poor dolly had lost her hair and a foot. "Oh, will I ever be made well again?" she was saying.

"Of course you will," replied another doll that had lost her arm. "Once my little mother was cross and she grabbed me right by my hair and took it all off, but the toy mender fixed it as good as new."

"I am sure I will never be another cooky," mewed a poor pussy made of cloth. "Both my eyes were pulled off by the little mistress of our playroom, and she threw them out of the window, too—meow!"

"Oh, hush, Puss, you are enough to set folks crazy," said a poor Teddy Bear with a dreadful hole in one side of his body. "You will see all right again; the toy mender will give you a new pair of eyes."

"What happened to you, Teddy?" inquired a little Dog on wheels, that had a hole in his back.

"Oh, a boy came to our playroom and played at hunting bears, so he stabbed me with his knife," said Teddy. "But how did you get so badly damaged?"

"Oh, somebody wanted to know why I didn't bark, and he cut me open," replied toy Dog. "They say the toy mender can fix me all right, but I am afraid he will have a hard time mending my back."

"O-o-o!" cried the Dolly without any hair. "I have been thinking, suppose something happens to the toy mender before he gets to us, we will never be made whole. O-o-o."

By this time the little Moonbeams were trembling so with fright they could hardly creep from between the shutters. They did not stop to peek anywhere else, but made their way back to the Moonman and threw themselves in his lap. "It was a terrible night," was all they could say.

When at last Mr. Moonman found out what had scared them he laughed. "Go back tomorrow night and see what you find behind those shutters," he said. "It happens every year. You'll find everything will be right."

It took a great deal of urging the next night to get the little Moonbeams started off on their trip down to the earth. Old Mr. Moonman was very late in showing his face, but after a while off ran the Moonbeams and crept through the shutters of the toy shop.

It was a very different sight from that which they saw the night before. They hardly knew Miss Dolly, with her new hair and her new foot, and the other doll had her new arm and Puss a new pair of eyes, which she was using to look into every corner for a stray mouse.

Teddy Bear was so well mended you could not tell where the cut had been, and toy Dog was barking for everybody to look at his back and trying

EXERCISE

A MORNING exercise I've found
That helps me all day long
Is when the dawn comes creeping round
I lift my voice in song.

Then when I seek the breakfast chimney,
And with my fellows stand,
I fill with cheer all the day
To let my heart expand.

And then I stretch my strengthened arms
I find
The process mighty good
To stretch them forth to all my kind

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL.

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significances your lucky day, lucky jewel

CLAUDIA

ONE of the popular names of modern times with a certain noble-ladylike class is Claudia, meaning famed. The name has a distinguished origin and is fitted to grace the most queenly. It comes from the Claudian gens of Rome, and going still farther back, is derived from the Greek word meaning famed.

Though the Claudii were a family of evil fame who figure in most of Rome's tragedies, there is no denying their imperious will and attractiveness. The reign of Emperor Claudius gave his name vogue in both the masculine and feminine form.

The first Claudia known was one who sends her greetings to St. Timothy in St. Paul's Epistle. She is believed to have been the daughter of a British prince and the wife of Pudens. The epigrams of Martial speak of a lady of the name of Claudia as British, and this Claudia is ranked by two very dissimilar authorities as one of the first British Christians.

Claudia is popular in France. Louis XII, who gave both his daughters masculine names, called the child Claude and when she was the wife of Francois I, in these Claude plans were so tempted in her favor. Her daughter carried the noble Claudia into the House of Lorraine. From there it passed into Switzerland where it became Claudine. The Italians immediately adopted it and termed it Claudia. France clings to Claude, Claudine, and Claudie.

Claudia's talismanic jewel is the cat's eye, which is surrounded by more superstitions and legends than almost any other stone. It is used by the natives of Ceylon, where most cat's eyes are found, as a charm against evil spirits and it has the same value to the people of India. It becomes almost a hypnotic stone to some people and is said to produce in many mediums falling magnetism and attraction. But to dream of a cat's eye signifies treachery. Claudia's lucky day is Thursday and 6 is said to be her lucky number.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morton

CONTRADICTIONS

WHEN Saturday evening came and Mary realized that John was going off for the entire day to play golf she suddenly felt as if the person to whom she had been married for two years were a total man and a stranger.

She was standing on a street corner waiting for a car, when she noticed a green dress and huge hat. The woman was rouged and powdered and wore many flashing jewels. "What a creature," thought Mary. Then she began to wonder why her car didn't come. Evidently there was a block, and presently it began to rain. The first thing she knew a pleasant voice beside her said: "Will you have half of my umbrella?" There was the dressy lady.

All the way home Mary was arguing with herself on the inconsistency of human nature. She couldn't explain it; she just began to recognize it. She was late when she opened her own door, and John had already reached home. There he sat in her precious winged chair, dropping cigarette ashes on the chintz. For a moment her soul ran riot. Then the train of thoughts she had been following in the street car came back to her. The inconsistencies of human nature! At that point she accepted her husband's contradictions, too. Moreover, as she found him an apt receiver, she felt it comfortable to have got past the difficult stage, instead of a somewhat awkward equation, she found herself confidently united to a very dear and splendid, and also feminine, human being.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

BONFIRES

BONFIRES as we know them in this country now are but expressions of popular superstition but they date back to a time when they were sacrificial and looked on quite reverently. Even the heathen nations who merely sacrificed as a matter of custom, like the Greeks, Romans and Celts, looked on the fire as a sacred thing.

When one friend of yours is always late for an appointment, or when another irritates you with a small vice, or when an acquaintance for whom you otherwise have great esteem insists on shouting forth your name in a public place—have you acquired the habit of asking yourself this question. Has she an honest mind and a kind heart? If so, you will find that the other traits assume their just proportions.

In the old days, says one writer, these fires "lighted on every hill and in every farm. No field was fruitful into which a burning brand had not been thrown, no home or cow which had not been touched by fire that night."

These "needfires" of old were set burning in all parts of Europe, though the date upon which they were lighted appears to have differed in different localities. As a rule, however, they were midsummer fires and were supposed to symbolize the reaching of the sun to its highest point in the heavens.

In this country the bonfire has become simply an expression of general joy over some great event or at some great anniversary. But originally these fires were undoubtedly connected with sun-worship. The fact that in some places these fires are still called "balefires" is thought by some authorities to indicate that they were once lighted in honor of Baal, the Phoenician sun god. That they are survivals of sun worship in some phase is, however, abundantly proved. This is not in antagonism to Professor Frazer's story that they were originally fires for human sacrifice—they might well have been both. About these "balefires," "teal fires," "needfires," etc., of which our border is the representative, enough has been written to make a small library.

THE FAMILY FOOD

During the cold weather the body can use fatty foods and needs them to keep up the heat of the body. This is the season when the hearty foods, boiled dinners, suet and baked Indian puddings, as well as rich cakes, may be used with good results.

Pork Cake.—Take one cupful of finely chopped pork, one cupful of boiling water poured over it; add one cupful of sugar, three eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, two of cream of tartar, one of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and nutmeg, with flour to make a rather thick batter. Into two cupfuls of molasses put two cupfuls of chopped and soaked dried apple and one-half cupful of raisins; add the spices and simmer three hours on the back of the stove. For the boiling water used in the cake, the water in which the apple was soaked should be used. Mix well and bake slowly like any fruit cake.

Ice-Box Cookies.—These are easily made, as they may be mixed up and rolled one day and sliced and baked the next. Take one cupful each of brown sugar, white sugar, butter, two well-beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt and four and one-half cupfuls of flour and one cupful of coarsely chopped nuts, and flavoring to taste. Mix and roll into a roll as round as possible, put on ice or in a cold place over night. In the morning cut into very thin slices and bake while the mixture is still chilled.

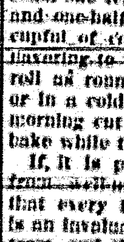
If it is possible to get the liquor from well-made sauerkraut, be sure that every tablespoonful is used. It is an invaluable food for the digestive tract, and there is nothing better for the blood. Taken a tablespoonful or two before meals, it is a tonic.

Stuffing for Ham.—Boil a pound of chestnuts until tender, then chop one, add one can of mushrooms and six truffles cut into strips, add one slice of ham, one beaten egg, two cucumber pickles chopped, one-fourth teaspoonful each of allspice, cloves, one tablespoonful of minced parsley, two teaspoonfuls of salt and one tablespoonful of onion, finely chopped. Chop the ham and mushrooms and mix all the ingredients well with the raw egg.

Rabbit Pilaff.—First catch your hare. Prepare and cut into serving sized pieces and brown in four tablespoonfuls of lard and butter, adding salt and pepper and one finely chopped onion. Cook ten minutes, then add six tablespoonfuls of consommé and one-half pints of boiling water; cover and cook slowly until the rabbit is tender.

Good Things for Every Day.

A nice luncheon dish for the family when there is leftover cooked potato is the following:



Nest Eggs.—Take two cupfuls of cooked potato, two well-seasoned and cooled fish cakes, and form in the center to hold an egg. With sides of baking dish form the potato cake and fish with a fork pick. Drop an egg into the center and place dish in a hot baking oven, setting the pan of cakes carefully to bread the latter well. Serve on a hot platter, garnished with parsley.

Southern Succotash.—Take equal parts of corn cooked, cut and taken from cob and lima beans cooked. Put on each plate a slice of ham then a slice of chicken, and pour over a white sauce to which has been added one teaspoonful of minced parsley and chopped yolk of boiled piece of mushrooms that have been stewed in butter. Serve very hot. These may be added, but if so, sprinkle with the grated cheese and set in the oven to melt.

Spanish Toast.—Cut in two slices peppers, a slice of onion, two sprigs of parsley and a cupful of milk to make sauce. Simmer the entire until tender. Toast rounds of bread, butter them and put a spoonful of the tomato mixture on each round of toast, then add a poached egg.

Stuffed Onions.—Take good sized onions, parboil and take out the centers. Chop the centers and mix with minced meat, bacon and bread crumbs or any chopped meat. Fill the centers, put around them any good broth, or add butter and water. Bake until the onions are tender, basting often. When nearly ready to serve, sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and take them until brown.

Scrapple.—Cook corn meat in the broth left from any meat, adding a cupful of the chopped cooked meat. Toss one into a small breadpan to mold and, when firm, cut into slices. Pork is the best meat for this dish.

A clove of garlic thrust into the roast of pot roast will add a most appetizing flavor to the meat. As onion will add flavor, remove it before serving the roast. An onion in a pot of beans is an improvement to the seasoning.

Permanent roads are a good investment —not an expense

The High Cost of Postponing Permanent Highway Building

Poor motor roads stifle industry and agriculture; waste huge sums annually in high maintenance costs, and greatly increase gasoline, tire and repair bills.

There is not a state, not a county, not a community, that isn't paying a heavy price for having too few permanent roads.

There are still many sections of the country—even whole states—that are trying to operate twentieth century traffic over nineteenth century roads.

This is costing millions of dollars every year, and will keep on costing millions until we have well-developed permanent highways everywhere.

Even what we often call the most progressive communities are far behind the demands of modern highway traffic with its 15,000,000 motor vehicles.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Mexico, we need more Concrete roads—the roads for twentieth century traffic.

Your highway officials want to be of the greatest possible service to you. Get behind them with ways and means that will provide more Concrete roads and streets. Such an investment will pay you big dividends year after year.

DR. HUMPHREYS' "77" BEST FOR COLDS GRIP INFLUENZA

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Charles Le Baron, Nogal merchant, was a business visitor Tuesday.

P. C. Peters, well-known merchant of Capitan, was here early in the week.

Miss Hilary Cooper is again at the cashier's window in the First National Bank, after a month's siegewith the "flu."

Will Ed Harris has purchased the Felton Grey bunch of cattle. He will move them to the Ancho country for pasture.

Mrs. Maggie Wetmore returned this week from an extended visit to relatives in Tularosa, El Paso and other points.

Hiram Garrard, who had a tussle with the "flu," has recovered sufficiently to set out some shade trees around the hotel this week.

Buy a ticket for "Dorothy Vernon of Hatton Hall," and help the High School boys pay for the Roswell trip. Serial features and good music.

W. E. Kimbrell, probate judge, whose home is at Picacho, spent the greater part of the week here presiding over the regular term of probate court.

Mr and Mrs Doyle Rentfrow came in Wednesday from their ranch amongst the crags of the upper Ojo Caros. Mrs Rentfrow remained over a few days, the guest of Mrs. Haley.

J. C. Heater, who has been here the past month assisting in the work at the First National, returned to Tucumcari last night to resume his duties as cashier of the First National there.

Don't miss the operetta "The Wild Rose," to be given at the Crystal Theatre, March 16th and 17th. Pretty girls, pretty music and fancy dancing.

The "flu," which struck the editor's family about six weeks ago, has lessened its grip to some extent, and the long siege seems to be approaching an end.

Attorney George Spence says he is better today than yesterday; but if experience is a reliable guide, he fears he may again be worse tomorrow. So runs the game of tag with the "flu."

It is currently reported this morning that the White Oaks power plant, transmission lines, etc., had changed hands. We have been unable to confirm the report, however, and, therefore, withhold the name of the reputed purchaser.

Mrs. E. S. Coldren and son Sam came in this week from Casa Grande, Arizona, where they had spent the winter. Mrs. Coldren expects to return to Arizona in a short time, but Sam will remain over for a period to look after interests here.

The Fort Stanton ball tossers are looking forward to a busy season. The diamond is being put in shape, and they expect to start the ball rolling on the first Sunday in May, if an outside team can be procured. What's the matter with Carrizozo?

W. L. Smith is here from Alamogordo and has charge of the railroad club house. Mr. Smith had a run on the Clouderoft line for a lengthy period, but was injured about a year ago, since which time he has been unable to continue in that line of work. He succeds F. F. Killed In Auto Wreck

Mrs. J. P. C. Langston was injured in an auto wreck Sunday, February 22, while driving with other members of the family between Los Angeles and Long Beach, and succumbed to her injuries the following Sunday, March 1. The body passed thru here this week for interment at Tucumcari, beside the husband, who died about fifteen years ago.

The Langstons lived in White Oaks many years before moving to Tucumcari, and were among our best known citizens of early days. Mrs. Langston, who was nearing 80 at the time of her death, had spent the last days of her life with her son, Ernest, and family, in California. The deceased had many old-time friends remaining in this county, and made two visits to see them during the past few years. Our fellow townsman, William J. Langston, is a cousin of the family. It is with deep regret that these friends learn of the tragic death of this former well known woman of our county.

Business Changes

Two local business changes were made this week. One was the the sale of the Carrizozo Cleaning works by R. A. Walker. Luther A. Jolly becomes the new owner. Mr. Jolly takes possession today. The other was the purchase of the Star Restaurant from W. C. Burnett by R. A. Walker. Mr. Burnett has no plans for the immediate future.

Taylor Families Leave

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Julian M. Taylor and their children left Wednesday for their new home at Las Cruces. The families made the trip by motor; and their shop tools, household effects, etc., were shipped by railroad. The Taylor Bros. will open a general repair shop in Las Cruces, and do all kinds of mechanical work.

The Taylors had made Lincoln county their home for more than thirty years, and the county had no better citizens within its confines. Many old friends, who esteemed them for their outstanding uprightness and a generation of honorable association, regret very much to lose them as citizens, and take pleasure in commending them to the people among whom they have cast their lot.

Water Supply Excellent

T. E. Kelley, town trustee, on February 15, took several samples of water and sent them to the State laboratory for analysis. Recently the results of the analysis were received, and are as follows:

Sample No. 1, Eagle Creek—Total count, 2 bacteria per cc; negative for B. coli.

Sample No 2 Spring at Eagle Creek Lodge—Total count, 6 bacteria per cc; negative for B. coli.

No. 3, Carrizozo city water—Total count, 15 bacteria per cc; negative for B. coli.

The laboratory concludes its report with the statement: "These analyses indicate that the city water is in excellent condition at the present time."
