Chicago, Ill., June 25, '08.

Eli J. Schumack, of Dundee, Ill., was in Carrizozo and community prospecting dur ing the week.

On last Tuesday morning Clay Van Schoyck and Miss Irene Tinnon took the automobile and starting in the we small hours of the morning, drove the machine to Lincoln. At the county seat Clay seperated himself from the price of a marriage license. With this document tucked snugly away in a place secure they came back to Carrizozo, and securing the offices of Rev. J. Allen Ray, they were made 10,(Mrs. Van being the 'one and Clay the 'cipher.' The many friends of these young people wish for them an abundance of success and a supremely happy married life, in which good wishes the Outlook joins with sincerity.

The People's Bros. Cash Store have a fine new delivery wagon on our streets.

The El Paso Herald of Wednesday suggests editorially that the newspapers and business men's club's, the chambers of commerce and the commercial clubs of the southwest should all get together and boost for this country. Good enough; here is one that's in for it and the Alamogordo Business Men's Club has been working along that line for some time. If we can't get it for Alamo then we put in a good word for Tularosa, or Carrizozo or El Paso or any other town in the southwest. We don't care whohe is what his business is, there is more opportunity in New Mexico just now than any place in the United States. And now is the time to get here.—Alamogordo News. Now, by gum, here's good sence mixed up with brotherly love, and The Outlook joins in with the Herald and the News, insofar as it can be counted on to do all in its power to assist in the cause.

N. S. Rose, who last Sunday returned from a month's trip to Iowa, Missouri and other northern points, reports business of all kinds as being better than at any time for the past several months. Mr Rose says that the shops and factories are resuming operations and that the future is assuming a brighter hue.

Arrangements have about been completed for the Carrizozo ball club to visit El Paso either on July 13 or July 20. A rate of one fare for the round trip has been given by the E. P. & S. W., and the intention is to leave here on the Saturday morning train, play one game Saturday afternoon and two games Sunday, and return home Sunday night. As the railroad has made such a low rate and with the opportunity of seeing three good games of ball there is certain to be a good sized delegation of 'rooters' go with the boys.

We wish to express our gratitude and thanks to all our friends who so kindly and lovingly assisted us in the affliction and death of our dear mother and wife.
Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Long and J. C. Paxson.

Mrs. Anna M. Walker has accepted a position as head bookkeeper with the firm of Welch & Titsworth of Capitan.

Little by little this glourious country of ours is being robbed of its traditions. The "real" George Washington, we are told, never chopped down a cherry tree.

Similarly, all English schoolboys are pursuaded that Alfred the Great didn't burn the pancakes in the peasants cottage, and that King Arthur didn't have a flaming sword. But what inspiring traditions!

Now comes the iconoclasts, who declare that Betsey Ross was a mere ordinary seamstress, never designed the Stars and Strips, and, if she did sew the first flag together, deserved not a bit more credit for it than if she had darned a pair of stockings.

It appears, then, that the famous "flag house" of the school-book stories that has been purchased by the dimes of patriotic children; that has been the mecca of thousands of pilgrims, is of no more value than a suprious painting, or the relic of the true cross picked up at a Constantinople bazar.

We have no patience with those literalists who would thus strip history of its picturesqueness. We have too few shrines in America, and in these sordid times it is encouraging to think that in days past there lived persons with true hearts and noble sentiments.

With the faith of early Christians we believe that Betsey Ross made the American flag and that Barbara Frietchie waved it. We believe that Washington cut down his father's cherry tree and that he owned up to it. We believe that Mary had a little lamb. We believe in fairies. We believe in Santa Claus. We believe that the liberty bell cracked while pealing out the news of freedom. This is our Apostles' creed

These image-breakers do nobody good. Having no imaginations themselves, they cannot understand why others should be thus endowed. They are the heretics who dissillusion children in regard to Santa Claus and fairies.

Nations of old were rich in legend and were better off for it. In those days the gods peopled the world, had human passions, and took part in human affairs. They had their loves and hatreds, and their vanities.

Stories like that of Betsey Ross, as the legends of King Arthur and of Alfred, make history easier to study. They tinge the past with a romance that makes the present sordid in comparsion. What if our gods were not all unimpeachable—can we not love them just the same?

So in spite of everything we shall continue to give Betsey Ross the credit that is hers by right of undisputed tradition—just as we hope that generations yet to come will believe that Mr. Fairbanks never rank a cocktail.

P. C. Kilpatrick, representing a Dallas, Texas, manufacturing concern was in Carrizozo for a day or so this week.

Mr. Sidney Wilcoxson, formerly of east of town, but now located at Oscuro, was a business visitor here on Wednesday.

The Crowd to the Big Store

This was the motto last week, it will hold good all the time. The immense success of our big feast of bargains last week fully demonstrated the truth of our statement, that "We lead in low prices." It is a strong advertisement for us to see others trying to follow. No better proof could be given.

This week we are still offering the balance of many lines of dry goods and groceries, at the

Come in and take advantage of the bargains. They will be all closed out while they last.

It looks to us as if nothing can be gained by delay in commencing the Republican campaign. The sooner the convention is called and the sooner the candidate for delegate to the sixty-first Congress shall be nominated, the better it will be all around. As then the Republicans will know on which lines to fight, and in what manner to conduct the campaign.

That the party is not altogether united upon the question of the nomination of a delegate is apparent, although the great majority of the newspapers, and it seems also of the voters favor the selection of the present delegate, W. H. Andrews to lead the fight. The pros and contras of the position are being discussed and that openly and above board. This is the way it should be. One county, that of Roosevelt, has already acted, and the Republicans there have placed themselves strongly in position for Delegate Andrews and have instructed their delegates to the convention accordingly. The Republican party managers in that county claim that there will be a good many more Republican votes there than the Democratic bosses expect, and that Mr. Andrews, if nominated, will receive the ballots of many statehood Democrats and of independents who desire most of all statehood, and to whom politics are a secondary consideration, to be fought over after statehood is obtained.

The question of the nomination of a candidate for Congress should be settled promptly. Dissentions, if allowed to go on, grow and grow, and they are much more easily stopped in the beginning than they are if they are allowed to grow greater and stronger as time passes. As far as we are concerned, we believe that Delegate Andrews deserves renomination if any delegate from New Mexico has ever so deserved it, as his services have been very great and beneficial, which is acknowledged even by his worst enemies. That he has some weaknesses may be true. We have never known in our political or newspaper career known of a man in any political party against whom some objection has not been made, and who has been infallible as a candidate.

On the other hand, looking the situation over carefully, we cannot understand how sensible men, even Democrats, could vote for Larrazolo, the Democratic nominee, even if elected by ten thousand majority, he would be absolutely useless in the National Capital. There will be a Republican President, and there will be a Republican Congress. Larrazolo has had absolutely no public experience, is not a successful man in his profession, in the law, knows no one in the National Capital or outside of New Mexico, and no one knows him outside of New Mexico. Even were he a very able and brilliant man, while he is not, it would take him years before he would be of any consequence to New Mexico in the National Capital, and then only could he serve the people with benefit were he a representative from here under a democratic administration, which is not at all likely to be.

Lincoln county Republicans are almost a unit in favor of the nomination of Delegate Andsewr for the coming term in the office he now holds. They realize and appreciate his efforts for their welfare in the past and are sure of his ability to handle the all-important matter of getting statehood for New Mexico at the coming session of Congress. Mr. Andrews has done more for this territory than has any two Delegates we have ever had, and the people of the territory are fully aware of the fact. Regardless of politics, or of influence of politics, The Outlook really believes that he can and would do more toward obtaining a place for us in the sisterhood of states than would or could any other man whom we could send on such a mission. We are greatly in hopes of his being nominated and re-elected to the office

In no nation in the world do the elections have the effect upon business they do in this country. The reason is obvious. In the first place the Tariff is made a political issue of this country, and a great many of the leading industries of the country are affected by any change in Tariff schedules.

The moment there is any liklihood of a change in Tariff schedules, there begins a period of uncertainty that causes a temparary cessation of business, until matters are adjusted, and consequent dull times. This cannot be avoided. A radical change in the Tariff policy of the Government would inevitably be followed by a period of business depression.

Today, more than ever, the business of the country will depend on the coming Presidential elect on, and the voters are asking themselves how the business interests of the country will view the nomination of Taft, Bryan or the other fellow.

It is evident that if the men with capital are going to put their capital into industrial enterprises they must know beforehand pretty near what the policy of the government is to be.

Just now Japan is supplying an illustration of how poor a dependance foreign trade may be as a support for industries. The people of the southern part of China inaugurated a baycott on Japanese goods in retaliation for the humiliation to which their country was subjected a short time ago by Japan; and now comes the report that the Japanese industries which formerly supplied the Southern China trade are about to shut down, because of the boycott and the subsequent inability to dispose of their products.

There is no more comparison in the quailfications for the office of Delegate to Congress between Messrs. Andrews and Larazolo than there is comparison as to the taste of an orange and a hedge-ball Mr. Andrews is a tried and experienced man who has demonstrated his ability and worth. Mr. Larazolo is an inexperienced man, a stranger to politicians outside of his own domain, and altogether of a doubtful calibre.

The Tariff will be revised. Whether the lowering of customs duties on imported goods will lower the retail prices paid by consumers is to be proven. A few years ago the Tariff was taken off of coal, and folks are paying more than ever for coal.

The ever-trusting public of Carrizozo had another lemon handed to them last Sunday when they in generous numbers wended their way to the ball grounds in anticipation of seeing a game of the national sport. John Baird had spread hot air all around the community until the people really had come to the belief that he had assembled a collection of has-beens and will be's who could at least give an excuse for their being on the diamond. But the article of ball they foisted on the spectators was sorry. The Outlook could pick a team from the "old ladie's home" and tie weights to the feet of the basemen and beat 'Baird's Bunko Bluffers" on a sloppy field. The game was so rotten that even the umpire was contaminated and made some decisions that were decidedly off color.

Manager Adams, of the local ball team is in correspondence with the manager of the Morencia team, and will probably arrange for the latter aggregation to stop with us for a series of games while on its tour of the Territory. Morencia has a fast lot of youngsters, but if Carrizozo don't hand them a 'lime' we miss our guess.

The automobile garage on Third street and El Paso avenue has been completed and the company is now ready to handle their business in a proper way.

THE OUTLOOK

Entered as second class matter January 4th, 1907, at the postoffice at Carrizozo, New Mexico, under the Act of Congress of March 3rd, 1879.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF LINCOLN COUNTY
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY BY ERNEST D. FRED.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE

One Year (in advance).....$1.00
If not paid within six months.....$1.50

After careful consideration of business conditions, The Carrizozo Publishing Company have decided that it was for the best interest of all, and advisable, that it lease its plant and business into new hands, and in consequence, have done so. Mr. E. D. Fred is the lessee and future head of of the business, having taken charge on last Monday morning.

In retiring from the active management of the plant we wish to thank all our old patrons for past favors, and support, and would ask a continuance of the same for the new proprietor.

Mr. Fred will be found to be an able and thoroughly reliable young man of extensive experience, and well qualified to serve his constituents. We understand that he will continue the "Outlook" as Republican in politics, and are sure you will find him as being progressive and enterprising, and ever ready to advance the best interests of the community.

Very Truly,
CARRIZOZO PUBLISHING CO.

Having assumed charge, under lease, of the business of the Carrizozo Publishing Company's plant and the publication of the "Outlook," I respectfully solicit the support of the people of the community.

Bound in no way to any party or faction, political, or business, social or religious, but with the best interest of all at heart, and hoping for the opportunity to prove our impartial attitude toward every citizen of the valley, it will be our aim to give our clientele as newsy and reliable a paper as the surroundings will permit.

In politics Republican, we will strive to advance the interests of that party as we believe advisable, and in a manner open and above board. We are not subservient to the dictates of any faction, and are free to express our views and opinions at pleasure, which prerogotive we shall exercise as the occasion seems to demand, and invaribly in accordance with our own view of the matter.

Hoping to receive a fair share of the business and support of the people of the community, and that the future of the "Outlook" may prove of value and benefit to Carrizozo, Lincoln County and New Mexico, I am, Very Truly Yours, E. D. FRED.

The Democratic platform ought to be quite a notable production after all the excitement that has been wasted upon it.

And now the small boy points to the 'rising young attorney' as the "fellow that read the Declaration of Independence at our Fourth of July picnic."

From reports in the daily papers in the past few days it would seem to have been the cannon crackers and unloaded guns that caused the most trouble. Queer, isn't it?

Revolutions get started in Mexico once in a while, but the 'Outlook' just wishes to call attention to one masterful old party, one Porfirio Diaz, who generally is found to be 'Johnny on the Spot', and they seldom go very far.

Had Harry Thaw formerly displayed the same amount of energy in making something out of himself as he is now using in trying to get himself released from the asylum, we believe he might have been a better, if less famous, young man.

A Marconigram informs the 'Outlook' that the convention hall in Denver has been kept cool with snow from the Rockies. The world's champion collection of hot-air artists were there assembled and some drastic action had to be taken.

Carrizozo should have made an effort to get the next Democratic National Convention. Just think of the glory. Why, never before has old Denver had such a chance to advertise the beauties of Pike's Peak, the wonders of the Colorado climate and the other things, real and imaginative, of which the Colorado metropolis is so proud.

As a rule a Latin-American revolution isn't considered as particularly serious occasion. Seldom are the issues involved significant, and the affair generally resolves itself into a game of hide and seek between the two rival participants. Personal ambition is the only incentive; jealousy the prevailing motive. A president in such is a case is apt to be like Finnegan—an intermittent office holder.

Occasionally it has happened in the past that a strong national feeling has asserted itself, and that the patriots rallying around some popular leader have thrown off the yoke of the oppressor. It was in this way the republic was born. The trouble that is brewing on the Mexican frontier can hardly be dignified by the name of revolution. Some scattered bands of refugees, desperadoes, bad men, half-breeds, the riff-raff and tag end of the Mexican population, it appears, have gathered in the mountains near the Rio Grande, bent on plundering and outraging their common enemy, the law. Theirs is no cause such as that which led Juarez against Maximilian. Theirs is but a loose organization at best. Their leaders are professional fly-by-nights, who have seen an opportunity, by making raids on insufficiently protected communities, of supplying themselves with resources which shall keep them for a while longer in the malicious idleness.

Weak and unsoldierly as they are, in the wild country where they have foregathered, it will be possible for them to conduct a long-drawn-out gourrilla warfare, and defy the Government's much stronger forces. These bands of outlaws might, under an unsatisfactory administration, count on some substantial support from the people. Under President Diaz, however, they have about as much chance of eliciting sympathy as the 'Night Riders' have in Kentucky. President Diaz has made Mexico what it is, and is a constructive statesman of remarkable ability.

The regular forces now seem to be well or fairly well in control of the situation, but it is possible that their presence on the border will be necessary for some time to come to protect property. The "Insurrectionists" have shown their cowardly nature by conducting operations near the boundary line. Hard-pressed, they can escape to the United States, where extradition, in the case of this particular offense, is not provided for. The co-operation of Uncle Sam's troopers at Fort Houston, however, should put a stop to this engaging little game.

If the ring-leaders and conspiritors are still in the United States there is no reason why they should not be apprehended and turned over to the proper authorities. Once they are landed safely in jail, the devastating army of marauders will take to their heels, for, after all, they are no more than a pack of jackals.

TORNADO AT SUNNYSIDE.

MOST SEVERE WINDSTORM IN HISTORY OF THE TERRITORY.

The most severe wind and hail storm in the history of the territory occurred at Sunnyside on the afternoon of July 2nd. The following account of it is taken from the Albuquerque Journal of July 7th, and was written by a staff correspondent of that paper who was sent to the scene.

Fort Sumner, N. M., July 5.—I have spent the day going through the ruins of Sunnyside and Fort Sumner with the officers of the Commercial Club and others, and have been astonished and shocked by the ruin wrought by the storm of last Thursday, and by the prospect of continued suffering for a considerable number of people unless substantial help is forthcoming at once.

Sunnyside is practically a ruin. In all a total of thirty-six houses were blown down and completely wrecked, while most every other house in the town is badly damaged. Quite a number of people have lost all and there is scarcely a sufferer in the town who is able to recover from the loses suffered without assistance. The officers of the Commercial Club have made a careful survey of the situation and today decided to and did issue the following statement to newspapers in New Mexico and elsewhere, making a frank appeal fo financial help:

"The Sunnyside Commercial Club takes the liberty to issue the following statement regarding the disastrous tornado that swept our little community on the afternoon of July 2 at 5 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.

"Our community has a population of 400 people and is situated seventy miles west of Texico, on the Belen cut-off of the Santa Fe railroad, the railroad name of the community being Fort Sumner.

"The tornado was accompanied by terrific hail that broke out all our doors and windows, making the disastrous work of the wind easy, to the extent of thirty-five totally wrecked houses and not one left undamaged. The night of July 2, 1908, shall always be vividly remembered and painfully so by the citizens of our little community. No lights, no stoves, no shelter, no dry cloth ng and the ground all but a solid sheet of hail.

"It is all but miraculous that scores were not killed, and we are grateful and more than pleased to state that there are but three deaths recorded; however, there are many seriously injured, and are unlimited numbers bruised with hail and flying timbers.

The maimed and injured were crowded into the depot, and one or two other partially dry houses where they spent the longest night of their lives sighing, wailing and freezing clad in wet clothes and none dry to be found, even in the stores, where the roofs had all been blown off and the goods were all wet, so that our town afforded no immediate relief, and all suffered together.

Our people have been brave and patient all full of sympathy for each other, but none in position to help each other because of the great leveling blow of the vicious tornado which took one to rebuildings as well as frames.

The Sunnyside Commercial club has, by committees, canvassed the entire community and find the actual needs to rebuild and replace for those who have no resources, about $11,000, and our community confronted with a task beyond our ability and yet one that has to be done.

Consequently the Sunnyside Commercial club in meeting just ended, reluctantly gave their consent, because of the urgent need, to make an appeal to twenty cities thru some of their daily papers for a stipulated amount which we have apportioned them.

We do this as a matter of justice to the outside world, so that not one dollar more than actual needs shall be sent.

The Commercial club is composed of honest men, business men, who feel humiliated to make outside appeals and assure all that the Sunnyside business men have contributed painfully liberally already, and only appeal from a sense of duty to our afflicted citizens.

Following this was a list of designated papers to which contributions might be sent, but any one who has a desire to assist the unfortunate citizens of Sunnyside can do so by forwarding their donation to Dr. Lovelace, the Secretary or the Commercial club and that gentleman will take great pleasure in acknowledging all communications.

LAND OFFICE OPENED

The Tucumcari Land Office opened Monday in the court house and the Register and Receiver and corps of assistants are a busy set getting the multiplicity of preliminary work off hand in order to get down to the regular routine of land office business next week. There is practically two months work on hand to begin with, and there is nothing amateurish in the manner in which the entire force is taking hold of the business. Both the Register and Receiver are capable men and hard workers and with the assistance of experienced clerks and a couple of experts furnished by the government they are intending to catch up with the business next week. The clerical force is as follows: Arra E. Patterson, Illinois, bookkeeper; Festus Carruthers, Clayton, N, M., clerk; Stephen D. Pool, Springfield, Mo., clerk; Robert M, Codsar. Denver, Colo., stenographer; J. F. Macy, Denver, Colo., stenographer.—Tucumcari News.

IRRIGATION MATTERS.

A PAPER ON THIS INTERESTING SUBJECT BY H. SCOUGALL, C. E.

As readers of the 'Outlook' will remember, Vernon L. Sullivan, Territorial Engineer, some weeks ago made an offer of a Trophy Cup o the writer of the best article submitted to a committee before a given time on the "Improved Methods of Irrigation" The following article was submitted by H. Scougall, C. E., and will, we feel sure, will be of interest to our readers:

"I had intended to publish these few remarks as part of a paper which I have promised to write for submission to the delegates to the forthcoming International Congress to be held in Albuquerque in September next, but I conclude it will do no harm to submit them to you incompetition for the cup offered by you.

"It is true that the people of the Western states are daily gaining experience in irrigation matters, but there is still much to be learned, especially under the following headings: 1st 'Obtaining Additional Water.' 2nd 'Proper Use of Water and Additional Cultivation.' 3rd 'Distribution of Water Without Waste.'

"Under these three headings respectively will be found the following brief remarks to apply:

1st. No country in the world presents such opportunities for the construction of masonry dams and the storage of large quantities of water (rain or snow) as the mountain ranges of the Western states of America.

"Any engineer with an eye to business who has ever ascended the 'Rockies' in pursuit of bear or other big game, must have noticed with a sigh, many great sites for rich reservoirs, but has regretted the distance that the water would have to be conducted before beoming available for irrigation purposes. I have experienced this in days gone by in the Hymalayas and in other mountain ranges of Hindoostan, as well as the Western states of this country and in Mexico, but today it has become a different matter for the following reason:

"Cheap power and labor saving machinery is being looked for all over the country, and this is to be obtained by first using water from reservoirs for the purpose of driving turbine and Pelton wheels, by which electricity can be generated and transmitted to the low altitude fouseinf in factories and mills in the immediate vicinity of our already agricultural centers and towns. In some cases this water can be used over and over again, according to the difference of altitude and distatance between the reservoir site and the mesas, or plains, upon which it is proposed to deliver the water for irrigation purposes. In most instances the power thus generated will sell readily and pay a good dividend on the outlay, and the water for irrigation should be looked upon as all clean profit.

"Should this power and irrigation company be one and the same they will be killing two birds with one stone, and the combination should become most remunerative, with the result that more irrigated land and more farmers would come into existance. In addition to this a good class of mechanical laborers, that receive good wages all he year round would be brought in from the east. Factories, mills and manufacturing towns would spring up, creating a market for the consumption of home provisions, and homes for the thousands of people of all classes who at the present time are so densely packed together in eastern manufacturing cities. There are innumerable opportunities for combining water power and irrigation, and the people should look into this matter without delay, and not wait until all the waters obtainable from the rivers is eceded away.

2nd. "As regards the quantity of water necessary per acre to produce a full crop, this can only be learned by practice and varies with the latitude and longitude, altitude and soil. Practice along will tell you the right time and the amount of water necessory. After repeated experiments in various parts of the world, including the last six years in Northern New Mexico, I have come to the conclusion that if the garden, grain or fruit trees be watered at night, sundown to sunrise, instead of in the daytime, that two-thirds of the water now being used will produce a full crop. In the daytime the amount of water lost by evaporation is enormous, while as soon as the water disappears below the surface, the soil becomes baked, and sets hard around the butts of trees and the stalks of grain crops at the surface of the ground. Upon minute examination it will be found that the bark or outer skin has been completely eaten through, and permanently injured. Of course night irrigation cannot be indulged in by every one, nevertheless I have clearly proved to my own satisfaction, that at least 35 per cent of the water can be saved where it is practicable.

"Again it will be fonud that very great benefits will be derived from a little more cultivation with the hoe in the garden and cultivator or plow in th fields, by which the soil will be loosened up and more air admitted into the ground during the growth of the crop, necessitating less water.

3rd. "After having measured many of the principal canals of the west I find nearly all (in earthwork) are losing more water by seepage than was originally intended, or calculated for, by their designor, and consequently are not delivering to each seperate acre of ground the amount they are taking in at the headgate.

"It is not supposed that canals of any length will flow through the the same class of soil for the whole of their length, consequently, upon examination will be found many long and short lengths along the line where the water is percolating, or seeping away to a much greater extent than in other parts. I find that as a rule in the older canals, the designer has struck an average as the allowance for seepage. This will not do for reasons space will not permit me to go into here. To rectify the loss going on everywhere by excessive seepage, I would advocate strongly the lining of all canals with cement or concrete if not for their entire lengths as an along such distance as an excess of seepage occurs.

"The Gage Canal is a good examiple of the money to be made by such outlay. On completion of the concrete lining throughout this canal it was found that under old ordinary earthwork wet perimeter, they had been losing as much as 50 per cent of their water. Many canals are taking the matter up, and I hope to see it adopted everywhere where the soil is porus above the average. With cement concrete lined canals there can be no seepage whatever, consequently, no soddening of the land below the canal, necessitating large drainage works or creating alkali.

"There is a lot of money to be made by canal companies, large and small, by taking up this matter, and as the value of both water and land is daily becoming greater, water especially, now is the time ot look into this matter.

"In conclusion let me advocate a trial of 'night irrigation' and 'extra cultivation' during growing season and I will guarantee that as good crops as are obtained today with a cubic foot of water can be obtained with 40 per cent less water than now being used, while with the introduction of the European system of rotation of crops, 50 per cent can be saved, or in other words, 50 per cent more land can be irrigated with the water in use today. It must be remembered that science has proved that no more water should be poured on the land than is actually necessary to produce plant life, anything above this amount will injure both the ground and the crop.

"The 'use' and not the 'abuse' of water is what quite a number of irrigators have yet to learn, and it is for the benefit of these and irrigation in general that these few lines are written.

H. Scougall, C. E.

HAD A GOOD TIME

The program for the local celebration of Independace Day was carried out as scheduled. The barbacue was a big success and hugely enjoyed by a large number of people. The races were close enough to be interesting and the ball game was, as expected, the most interesting event of the day. The final score of 8 to 8, after 11 innings of fast playing shows how evenly balanced were the teams.

In the Cow Pony race, 300 yards for a purse of $25.00 Ed Kelley won first money on his black horse, Al. Roberts capturing second place.

In the Free for All, ¼ mile, for a purse of $25.00, Skeet Henley piloted Leo Oswald's bay horse home with the grapes, and Al. Roberts again got inside the money by riding an O V mare mare at the tail of Oswald's horse.

—The broncho busting was rather tame. The riders were here and willing, but too much civilization has taken the "buck" out of the local horses and they failed to perform their part of the program, consequently no very severe test could be given the boys in chaps. First money was taken by Ed. Harris and ——Schotsey took second place.

The dance at Wetmore's Hall in the evening was a bouncing success. An immense crowd was present and everyone had a fine time.

There was not a semblance of disorder during the entire day or evening, and was another demonstration of the always prevailing good order in Carrizozo.

BALL PLAYER INJURED

CATCHER VAN SCHOYCK HAS RIGHT LIMB BROKEN IN SATURDAYS GAME

During the progress of the base ball game here on July 4th Clay Van Schoyck, catcher, and one of the best players on our local team, met with an accident that will lay him up for some time and have him out of the game for the balance of the season.

It was in the fifth inning, with the score 4 to 1 in favor of the visitors, that Dr. Frick, third baseman on the latter team, had worked his way to third. A ball was hit into right field and the Dr. started for home. Fast relay work, right to third to home in an effort to catch the runner was a successful play, but in some manner the runner either stepped on Van Schoyck's leg or hit it in such a manner as to break both bones just above the ankle. Dr Frick made an examination and soon saw that the limb was broken, and after the injured man was brought to town and his home Dr. Sugg was called in and set the injured member.

Managers Van Zant and Adams promptly agreed to donate the purse money, $50.00, to Mr. Van Schoyck, and as the game went eleven innings and was called on account of darkness when the score was 8 to 8, the donation was made by both teams.

Clay was resting easy the last report that we got and the injured limb was doing very nicely.

Therefore, if your subscription to this paper is due please be so kind as to remit or notify us of your desire to have the paper stopped.
