Mr. John Forsythe has bought Mr. J. K. Martin's blacksmith shop and will continue the business as it was run by Mr. Martin. Mr. Forsythe is a first-class mechanic and will do general blacksmith and wagon work.

To the People of Carrizozo.

I wish to explain to the people of Carrizozo the design and plans of the fair grounds I have built. It cost considerable money to fence the forty acres of ground and to build a half-mile track and a base ball diamond, and I am collecting 40 per cent. of the gate money for all games pulled off in the fair grounds, and as soon as there is enough money collected from such games I will build a grand stand for the accommodation of the people.

But at any time the people of Carrizozo wish to use the grounds for any purpose in which they do not charge admission, I would be very much pleased to donate the use of the grounds.

I have adopted this plan to avoid going to the already well drained business men of our town with a petition begging for money.

When the town becomes large enough we can form a fair association and take over the grounds.

Very respectfully,
PETER C. LACEY.

Gov. George Curry was the chief speaker at the commencement exercises at the New Mexico School of Mines, held in the Garco opera house at Socorro yesterday. Another interesting feature was the address in Spanish by Mr. Estavan

Notice to Subscribers.

We have found that there is considerable misunderstanding in regard to the subscription accounts due this office. If you have advanced your subscription to The Outlook under the old management at the rate of $1.00 please notify us at once, and you will be credited on our new books with the amount you have paid. If we do not hear from you we will date your subscription from the 15th day of May—the date we took charge of the paper—and shall expect you to pay the amount sometime within the year. A Sensible Idea.

It's the same old story this year. Out of fifteen graduates of the Albuquerque high school, only three were boys; of eight graduates at Santa Fe, two are boys; of seven graduates at Carlsbad, seven were girls—not a single boy—and the story of other high schools throughout the territory and even in the states, is the same—only a very small percentage of the graduates are boys. In other words, the modern public high school meets the needs of a school for girls, but seems far from being a school for boys. It is believed that manual training schools will supply that need and that every town that can afford a high school can also afford a manual training school in connection therewith.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

"An Apple King."

Joe M. Walker, the future apple king of New Mexico, and especially of the Sacramento mountains, made a visit to Alamogordo last Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Walker and Dr. Gilbert have a number of acres in young apple trees on their ranch near Mountain Park, and Joe is the man in charge. He is making a study of apple culture and apple tree growth. His idea is not to rush his trees to quick bearing, but to cultivate and prune them for long life, and he will be amply repaid for his patience and labor.

Sacramento apples are known for flavor and beauty, and when the products of Gilbert & Walker's orchard are placed on the market the highest possible price will be commanded.

Charles E. Beasley is also in the apple tree growing business, and a neighbor to Joe Walker. Mr. Beasley is in the chicken business, too, and sells pure blood fowls and eggs as well as raising chickens for the market.—Otero County Advertiser.

She Thought Bed Slats Safer Than

A Bank.

Seattle, June 1.—Mrs. Geo. Shea, of Duluth, reported to the police the loss of $20,000 in currency today. She came to Seattle to invest in real estate, but neglected to put the money in a bank. She left the house after carefully hiding the money between the slats of the bed where burglars found it after ransacking the house.

Fine assortment of furniture of all kinds just received—Lambert patterns in beds, chairs, rockers, wicker rockers, water coolers. Fireless Cookers that are guaranteed to do everything that is claimed for them. Try them; they will surprise you. Goods shipped the installment plan. Call and look through our line. Our prices are right.

What She Wore.

The wealthiest young woman in America attended a public function in New York not long ago, and this is the account of her appearance:

"There was nothing of what the women call 'style' in Miss Helen Gould's appearance. She wore a small black hat that could have been hidden completely in the crown of a 'Merry Widow' hat, and which was trimmed only with a bow of black velvet and a modest buckle. Her white shirtwaist with a neck ribbon was of the simplest order, and a black cloth skirt and a short black coat were alike simple, quiet and ladylike. Not a piece of jewelry was visible anywhere."

And then the report adds these significant words:

"So simple was Miss Gould's attire that she was an unconscious rebuke to the overdressed girls and women around her who could ill afford the clothes that they wore. And it must be confessed that the quietly-dressed millionaires looked the woman that she is; while of the women around her—the less said the better."

How true it is that the women who "dress," as we use the word, are the women who find it necessary to do so—generally to cover up some mental or social deficiency. A woman who feels sure of herself doesn't have to "dress."—Ladies Home Journal.

Limitations.

"Madam," said the young man who had called at the back door on Monday, "I have the pleasure of introducing to you our new, automatic housecleaning machine—a simple thing which does the whole work of housecleaning, leaving to you merely the general supervision."

The New Orleans Picayune records the conversation.

"Does it all, hey?" demanded the woman of the house. "Will it wash the outside of the up-stair windows?"

"Why, no madam, but—"

"Will it take down, wash, stretch to dry, iron and hang up the parlor curtains?"

"Well, of course—this machine—"

"Will it gild the chandeliers, paint the kitchen, make my daughter help wash the dishes, persuade my husband to be content with cold dinners, get out the screens and patch them up?"

"Oh, madam, this machine—"

"Will it take down the parlor stove and set up the refrigerator, wash the winter bedding and put it away, lay down the furs with moth balls, paper the hall bedroom, wash down the paper in the bathroom, wash, fold, starch and iron and put away the family clothes, darn, patch and sew on buttons, wash dishes, set three meals a day, and pacify the household?"

"No, madam, you have misunderstood the limitations of this machine."

"Limitations?" demanded the woman of the house. "I guess it has limitations. It will be a long time yet before any man will get up a machine that will do all women have to do in housecleaning time."

She took a fresh mouthful of tacks and went back to the dining-room carpet, and the agent faded sadly away.

Franz Schmidt, of San Marcel, was in Socorro this week. According to Mr. Schmidt's statement the drought is very serious over on the Jornada and unless there is rain on the ranges within the next two or three weeks cattlemen and sheepmen will suffer very serious losses. In fact, the losses have already been considerable.—Socorro Chief.

DEVELOPED A NEW INDUSTRY

Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt Has Really Done Good on Her North Carolina Estate.

Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt is taking personal interest in the work of women in Biltmore, N. C., at various forms of weaving. The idea originated with Mrs. Vanderbilt, who saw an opportunity for the wives and daughters of many men employed on the Biltmore estate, and also of others employed near there, to engage in light and profitable home-employment. She brought two expert weavers from New York, and instruction was given to a class of 50 women and girls. The result has been surprising, as these 50 graduates have made their knowledge general. The chief work of the Biltmore weavers is the manufacture of blue and white counterpanes of an old-fashioned pattern, and so great has been the demand that it seems as if all other lines of weaving will be dropped for the counterpanes. Mrs. Vanderbilt has given Biltmore a new and growing industry, and she frankly admits taking pride in her achievement.

YOUTHFUL OREGON FINANCIER

When City Marshal Hoggard hired a small boy to catch stray dogs for him the first of the week he little dreamed what he was up against. He promised to pay the small boy 50 cents for each dog caught, but did not know that the same boy was the owner of a dog and that he was 50 cents short in the amount of a dog tag. The marshal was somewhat surprised then to find that the boy had caught his own dog and thrown him into the pound, demanding 50 cents for doing so. The marshal paid the fee demanded, the boy dug up 50 cents more, hid himself in the office of the city recorder, where he bought a tag, and secured the release of the canine.—Echo Register.

PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Verily, it pays handsomely to advertise even a church. The Congregational Church society of Wakefield, Mass., has found this out. On February 21 the church was burned and the members set about getting funds for a new one. Recently they inserted the following "ad." in their local papers: "Wanted—Thirty thousand dollars to rebuild the Congregational church destroyed by fire February 21. Subscriptions received Sunday." On Sunday gifts amounting to $23,000 were received.

"Cy is rotten on the aeroplane. Dies in shocking bad form." "Yes, he always was a sad bird."—Princeton Tiger.

A "Pantaloons Gown."

A "pantaloons gown," which is said to produce an even more startling effect than the sheath gown, having made its appearance in New York, being imported from Paris, will probably now proceed to spread over the rest of the country. The pantaloons gown may be all right, but why cannot sweet woman decide on some gentler form of dress and stick to it, without bringing on these startling changes at yearly periods? Really she allows the tyranny of dressmakers and milliners to go too far.—San Francisco Chronicle.

R. G. Dun & Co. announce that the future is bright. R. G. Dun & Co. must have a new fire ticket all paid for and several tons of coal left in the cellar.—Ex.

Land Swindlers

As the public attention is drawn more and more to New Mexico lands, it is quite natural that unscrupulous promoters seek to benefit by this movement and inaugurate land schemes that, to say the least, are questionable. Some of these projects are obviously swindles, while others are based upon misrepresentations so cleverly worded as to make it difficult to prove their true nature. In Colorado, just at present the Rocky Mountain News is exposing and is making a crusade upon the methods of land sharks, who, although they control or own the lands they seek to sell, dispose of them through glowing descriptions of their fertility and availability for farms and through lottery schemes. The recent exposure through the territorial officials, are even worse, for in the New Mexico cases, the promoters did not at all own or control the lands in question; they tried to sell what was not their own; disposed of water rights they did not possess and engaged in barefaced swindling and gambling upon New Mexico's fame, methods which are certain to react upon the Territory, for the man who comes to New Mexico expecting to find a paradise ready for him at $3.00 an acre and is disappointed, will not so much blame the promoter as the country and its people, and when he returns home, he will assiduously "knock" New Mexico as a matter of course. It is well, therefore that Governor Curry, Land Commissioner R. P. Ervian, Immigration secretary H. B. Heining are after the promoters of that kind with a sharp stick. New Mexico does not want immigration that is drawn further by misrepresentation.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

Economic Value of Tree Planting

This valley may yet have to adopt the windbreak system. Enough money would have been saved this year in crops to have paid the whole cost of planting windbreaks. This spring was unusual in having such continuous high winds. But wind in spring is a climatic condition that will always exist in this section of the country, and the only thing man can do to protect his property and promote his comfort is to plant trees everywhere in the city and the country.

The region around Roswell, N. M., has learned this lesson, and as a result good crops are raised there even in years when the early winds are especially bad.

If the streets of a town or city are uniformly lined with trees, the dust nuisance and the annoyance of high winds would be reduced everywhere from 50 to 90 per cent.

It is remarkable how quickly the winds that sweep over the open mesa and plains are dissipated and modified when they strike the trees planted in rows.

The effect is noticed instantly when a breeze is blowing from the north and a line of trees is planted.

The secondary effect of tree planting in cities is to decrease the rate of evaporation and thus promote the growth of every green thing.

If this city and valley were thoroughly planted it would require much less water to achieve the same beauty and productivity.

Trees along the county road, for instance, would greatly simplify the sprinkling problem and it would be found that the road could be maintained in much better condition, both through the action of the shade and also through the windbreak.

The question of tree planting in city and country is not purely esthetic, concerning only the beauty of our surroundings and our comfort and convenience, but it also has an economical side and actually saves money, makes money and brings money in from outside.—El Paso Herald.

Home for Vacation

During June a small army of girls scatter from boarding schools and colleges and make their way to homes in town and villages and on farm. Their trunks and suit cases load the station platforms. Their pretty, girlish clothes, their merry voices, their college songs enliven trains, steamers and stages. They will lay out tennis courts in the dooryards and golf links in the pastures, and will carry home new-fangled notions about cooking meals on a chafing-dish, and of sleeping in a bed disguised as an Oriental divan. College flags give a touch of color to staid parlors, and a hammock swings in the corner occupied for years by the useful what-not.

The girls have three months of freedom before them. If they are months of complete leisure, it will be strange indeed if the old proverb does not come true which connects Satan with idle hands.

Do nine months of study deserve a reward of three months of immunity of work? What if the mothers who have had nine months of cooking and sweeping and dusting and dish-washing were to claim a three months vacation from all these occupations? Surely the world would go dirty and hungry.

A winter of hard work does bring the just claim that the summer shall see a change of work. Golf and tennis may find a place in the schoolgirl's vacation program; but ironing and mending and cooking and being generally useful are also health-giving occupations.

There is still point in the old story of the daughter who sang in the parlor, "Who will care for mother now?" while her mother was splitting kindling in the cellar. A late breakfast prepared for a girl athlete by her pale and tired mother, who has been up since day-break, ought to be as impossible as it is absurd.

Let the girls see to it that vacation is vacation for "mother," and they will go back to school in the fall with consciences refreshed and character developed, even if golf and tennis records have not been broken.

Man Not Interested in Umpire's Destruction Down to Mere Devotee of Golf

The man was closely followed by a dense mob, whose imprecations rent the air. A band incarnate could not have inspired more bitter denun-ciations.

"Robber!"
"Thief!"
"Kill him!"

Such were the cries of the excited populace.

"Is he, then, such a notorious criminal?" wonderingly asked the stranger within our gates.

We paused in our hasty preparations to hurl a brick and explained to the stranger that the subject of our wrath was a baseball umpire, and that the Giants had lost the game.

But the stranger displayed little interest, and coming to the conclusion that he was merely a devotee of golf, we threw the brick.—

JOKE ON CUSTOMS OFFICERS.

The smuggling case which was reported in New York recently, in which it was alleged that a man acting as valet had taken valuable jewels ashore for the owner, recalled a smuggling story which took place several years ago. A servant had gone ashore from a German liner, with a basket, and was about to leave the pier when a passenger whispered to a customs officer that he had better see what the basket contained.
Following the tip, the basket bearer was detained and a wooden box was found among a lot of soiled linen.
The box contained another, and this still another box, the third securely fastened with screws. When these were removed a card was discovered on which was written in three languages: "This is the first of April.
Many happy returns of the day."

VILLAGE RULED BY WOMEN.

In the village of Froisy, near Paris, nearly all the important posts are filled by women. Passengers alighting at the railway station are met by a woman, who is station master, while her husband is only a guard.

A barber shop bears the notice that "Mlle. Jeanne" will "henceforth shave her customers only on Tuesdays and Fridays, as she has undertaken other work." At the postoffice "Mme. Lesobre" is met. She walks on an average 20 miles a day.
The municipal drummer is a woman
in her nineteenth year.

OF COURSE.

A nature faker declares that he heard the following conversation the other day on a doorstep of upper Fifth avenue:

Said one small brown sparrow wonderingly, as he pecked at certain white grains scattered over the brown stone: "Why ee, this is lots sweeter than what we found here last spring!"

His pert little wife cocked her head saucily. "Of course, stupid!"
she chirped. "That was only rice;
this is pentonized baby food!"—New York Times.

A POSTAL TIP.

"Most people don't know how to put a stamp on a letter," said a post office official. "They moisten the stamp, taking off a certain amount of the mucilage by the process and making it hard to stick. The proper way is to moisten the tip of the envelope where the stamp is to go, then press on the stamp. The paper should not be soaked, just moistened on the surface; however. That stamp will never drop off in the mail bag."

GOOD WORD FOR ABDEL.

Referring to the deposed sultan
the Hebrew Standard calls Abdul Hamid "one of the most clever and diplomatic of the crowned heads of Europe." Such a man as the ex-sultan has shown himself to be in the last situation must command our unbounded admiration, and we can never forget that when Christian rulers ruthlessly banished their Jewish citizens from the land of their birth the Ottoman government gave them shelter and protection. Commenting on this article a correspondent says: "And now, in his hour of sorrow when there are none to do him homage, the monarch that was sheltered at Salonika in a house owned by a Jew."

FAIR WARNING.

The meek and lowly drug clerk had just proposed to the fair soubrette who presided over the soda fountain.

"Fade away," murmured the fair fizz-water dispenser. "No wedding bells for you and the undersigned."
"You love another?" he queried.

"S'pose I do," she retorted.
"What's it to you, little boy?"

"Oh, nothing," he said. "But you are making the mistake of your life in turning me down and allowing them to fool you with something just as good."

EXACTLY.

Roderick—"The cream of society" from our town was there, but they looked small beside the Newport set.
Van Albert—"H'm! Sort of condensed cream, eh?"

SOMETIMES.

Gilruth—"Can anything be broader than it is long?"
Yansaw—"Yes; I've seen many a

A PUBEIST AT LARGE.

"Let me see—the census gives our town about 6,000, doesn't it?"
"No, sir; our town gives the en-tus 6,000."

MIXTURES.

"My dear boy, Nancy's hot against you."
"I suppose that is why she freezes me out."

"Yes," said the farmer, "I get my

"Same here," rejoined the wash-lady.
