Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Next week we will publish the reply of the people of Lincoln to the statistics, etc, published in the Carrizozo News. The reply was received too late for publication in this issue. It should be the business of a newspaper to give every body a chance to vindicate themselves and present their side of the story. The Southwestern Outlook is here to serve all and not a certain faction only. Even a Democrat shall have a square deal.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

HIS NIGHT OF VIVID DREAMS

Mr. Jones Did Sleep, and Also Awoke and an Explanation Doctor Took the Cigars.

"I didn't sleep a wink all night," said the weary looking boarder.

"No?" asked the man whose room was next. "Was it for the purpose of entertaining yourself while you were awake that you snored so loudly during the greater part of the night? I may truthfully say that I didn't sleep much, for your snoring kept me awake."

"I don't know what you are talking about. I certainly did not sleep, nor did I snore, that I know of."

"Of course I don't know anything about your sleeping, but I do know that you snored."

"Gentlemen," urged the doctor mildly, "you are both right. Mr. Jones did snore loudly. I can testify to that; but I have no doubt he fully believes he was awake all night, for his dreams were so real and so convincing and so disturbing that he felt as if he was painfully awake all the time. It was the very acuteness of his mental activity that made him snore so loudly. The fact is that he really had a deep but disturbed sleep all night--also a disturbing one; so the cigars are on you both and I'll take them myself."

"A Daniel came to judgment," remarked Smith, as he handed over his share of the stakes.

ONE EXCEPTION TO THE RULES

And Dr. Wiley's Ability to Name it Got Him Out of Tight Situation.

When the National Biscuit Bakers' association met in annual convention at Atlantic City last summer, Dr. Wiley, head of the pure food commission, came on from Washington to address one of the principal sessions. His attitude toward violators of the food laws was well known to the delegates, who, however, pressed him with questions as to the quality of goods that could legally be offered for sale to the public. The commissioner parried the thrusts of the biscuit bakers with his ready wit.

The discussion ran into stale cakes and biscuits. In the south, it was stated, it is practically impossible to keep bakery products for any length of time free from weevils, and such stuff is said to be disposed of by selling it to the negroes at cheap prices. Was this right? Dr. Wiley was in a quandary. The commission could not interfere when the goods were not shipped from one state to another and to express his own views on the matter might get him into a needless tangle. He thought rapidly; he would be diplomatic.

"Honestly, now, doctor, did you ever see anything good with worms in it?" urged one of the delegates from the north.

"Yes," was the quick reply, "a fishing box."--Circle Magazine.

FOOD AND HEALTH.

"If the average mother spent half as much time learning the common-sense method of feeding her children as she does in worrying about their ailments she would be happier and her children would be in better health," an eminent physician said recently.

"Plenty of fresh air, plenty of fruit and vegetables, soup, cooked oatmeal and the like should form the staples in every child's diet. Good fresh eggs and milk are always desirable, but meat, greasily cooked foods and heavy desserts should never be allowed. In the effort to digest these things in youth the stomach is often ruined for all time. Mothers should encourage their children to talk and laugh during meal times. This consumes time and proves a valuable aid to digestion."

LIVED FAR PAST CENTURY.

Mrs. Fannie Friedman, who died the other day in New York, was said to have just passed her one hundred and twelfth birthday. She was born in Hungary, married before she was 21 and had 13 children. At the time of her death she had five children, 59 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren. Up to the day of her death she was active both in body and mind and took pride in the fact that she had never had a doctor in her life. Her rule for good health was: "Don't worry, take things easy, sleep ten hours a day and eat five meals."

Editorials

Seventy Years Young

We do not have music enough in the home. Children who sing at their work will hardly quarrel; and parents who sing will find the burden of their tasks grow lighter. Once a frail minister who thought the progressive wheels of the world would stop if he took a vacation, slept and dreamed a dream. He dreamed that he died and appeared before the Lord. The Lord seemed surprised to see him, and asked: "What did you come so soon for? Why did you not take needed rest and recreation, and so prolong your life?" The minister waked and went to Europe, recovered his health, is alive today, and is known for inspiring words all over America.

I wish every mother could dream this dream. Does she inquire then how she may economize her forces, that they may last; how she can learn less fuel, that her little fire of life may burn brightly and long? My answer is, let women try to give things their true importance. Learn to do the most important things first, and if your strength ebbs let the minor things wait. Sing inspiring songs. Try to get something out of life for all you put in it. Enjoy something today for tomorrow may not be yours. People ought to get more than an existence with such help as song and sunshine, laughter and friendship.

The charm of music is great. It hushes the infant to rest. At the family altar it lifts the soul in worship to God, and heaven. In the home it fosters the family spirit and strengthens family ties. Encourage the children to sing. It matters not whether there is much music in their voices or not; there is music in their soul and that is enough.

If the gift of song is a divine gift the disposition to sing is a holy influence for the salvation of that being to whom it comes. "Seventy years young" is the clever phrase that fitted well the birthday of a famous New England woman who had kept untouched by time her vivacious interest in life and youth. Now that women are learning that with them as with men, it is true that one is as old as one feels,—that their secret as well as that of men, lies in powers of mind, grace of spirit, in vivacity and sympathy and broad-mindedness and affection and serenity,—they no longer conceal a birthday like a crime, and tell white lies about their age. The woman who is determined to keep the fine edge of youthful endeavor and the joy of youthful enthusiasm will do it. She may be fifty or sixty or seventy years of age, but a gray haired youthful optimist.

The kingdom of the soul is too large to harbour petty thoughts. The only sorrow worth any thing in the world is the sorrow that teaches us to think of others.

The County Seat.

At the last meeting of the County Commissioners a petition was presented signed by 1200 qualified voters, asking that an election be held on the question of moving the County Seat from Lincoln to Carrizozo. The election was duly ordered and will be held Tuesday August 17th.

The proposition is now up to the Voters of this County, and the matter rests entirely with them. We feel confident that when the votes are counted, a large majority of the electors will have chosen Carrizozo as the logical location of the County Seat of the new Lincoln County.

It is now nearly a third of a century since Lincoln was chosen as the county seat of a district which at that time comprised an empire within itself, including all of the present Counties of Chaves, and a goodly proportion of Otero and Torrance Counties and the town of Lincoln in those days was as important a trading center as was Las Vegas, Albuquerque and Las Cruces for their respective territories. Roswell, Eddy, Alamogordo, Capitan, Carrizozo, Corona and such important towns were not on the map in those days, and there was nothing in the shape of a town between the Rio Grande Valley and the Pecos that could be called a trading point, unless it was the military post of Fort Stanton. Events have changed all these conditions; the advent of the railroad in the Pecos valley, and the discovery of artesian water opened up the domain in Eastern Lincoln, and the two great Counties of Eddy and Chaves were created. The building of the El Paso and Northeastern road created the town of Alamogordo and as a consequence the creation of Otero County. The building of the Santa Fe Central opened up the famous Estancia Valley, and the establishment of Torrance County. Since the extension of the railroad from Carrizozo East to Tucumanari, it has been evident to thoughtful men, that the time would eventually come when the wealth, population, and tax producing property would be on the western slope of the White Mountains of this county. The growth of such towns as Carrizozo, Oquirro, Ancho, and Corona, situated directly on the railroad supplying a large and rapidly growing section would be bound to demand more modern facilities in reaching the County Seat than the present existing conditions warranted, and when Carrizozo was decided on as the terminal of the El Paso and S. W. R. R. and the shops, and division point was established here it was only reasonable to assume that this place would become the most important town in the County, and logically, the point for establishing the County Seat under the new order of things.

In these days of rapid transit, telegraphs and telephones, the public will not submit to the inconvenience of traveling from 35 to 60 miles over rough mountain roads to reach the county seat when a few hours on a train will bring the same results. Carrizozo is a town which is growing, and the establishment of the County Seat here will ensure one good town in the County.

Parties coming to court from the more distant sections will find accommodations here that they could not expect in a place like Lincoln. Good hotels, restaurants and rooming houses will cater to the wants of the public at reasonable prices. A movement is now on foot to establish a large wagon yard where parties coming a long distance with teams can be cared for at a moderate cost.

With the growth of the town, Carrizozo will naturally become the best school town of the County. Four teachers have all ready been engaged for the coming term. And it will be but a short time before a high school will have to be built.

With the many advantages in her favor we cannot see why Carrizozo should not be selected as the County Seat by a very substantial majority. Nothing can be gained by continuing the present conditions. The old pile of shingles at Lincoln, now being used as a Court House have long outlived their usefulness. The jail is a source of worry to every Sheriff.

This county is rich enough to own a modern Court House to which the people could point with pride, and where the County Officers could maintain their offices without having to go outside of the County Building. It is now only a question of equipping the place and getting the voters to the polls on election day.

EVERY MAN SHOULD WORK FROM NOW UNTIL ELECTION. No pains should be spared to bring out the vote favorable to Carrizozo, and success is assured.

In the next issue we will discuss the increased taxes being levied that is being perpetrated by the opposition in the futile effort to bring the real issue.

ONE DEFECT IN THE CHICKEN

Let the Man of the Area Get Busy and Try to Grasp it on the Gallbladder.
Never since Noah's quince preserves has the chicken of commerce had enough legs. All of them have enough legs to walk on and to scratch with, the game-cocks can put up a great fight with 'em, and as long as the chicken is alive there are legs enough on him—or her—as the case may be. But the moment you prepare the chicken for the table, when it lies reeling in gravy and dressing and is the center of interest, you realize that it hasn't legs enough to go 'round. Some people like the white breast, some prefer dark meat, and there are even those who call for the gizzard and the neck. But most of them like the leg. As the common or garden chicken has but two legs, there are never enough to supply the demand. Many calls for the drumstick, Johnnie wants the leg, Willie wants a leg just like Johnnie's, and that leaves father and mother with not a single chicken leg to their names. And if company has come to dinner the whole family has to sit around and watch the visitors hold the drumstick by the bone end and eat the sweet meat, while the family is left legless and forlorn.

NEARLY A MODEST MAN.

Wife—You are positively the most conceited man I ever met.
Hussy—Conceited? Woman, there's not a conceited bone in my body. Why, another man with the same abilities would be absolutely carried away with pride.

GORDON'S ROSE TREE.

Of the actual work of Gordon's hands there remains but a rosebush in the palace garden, which, hewn down by the malice of his enemies, sprang to life again with the coming of spring. It is affectionately tended by an old Sudanese sergeant who was one of Gordon's men, and stands in the midst of an earthly paradise.

This rose tree was found blooming beside the ruins when on the second day after his red victory at Omdurman a British army was drawn up, in the full pomp of war, beside the last earthly habitation of Charles George Gordon, to give him, in the religion of the three kingdoms, the most solemn funeral service ever read over a general killed in battle.

JUST ABOUT TO BE SETTLED

Contention at That Moment Was for the Purpose of Answering Minister's Question.

One more comparison should establish the Scotsman's claim to wit and fix upon Irish pleasantries the label of humor.

A Scot minister of the Gospel, while making his usual rounds among the members of his flock, came to the door of a house where his gentle tapping could not be heard for the noise of a contention within.

After waiting a little, he opened the door and walked in, saying with an authoritative voice: "I should like to know who is the head of this house!"

"Weel, sir," said the husband, "if ye'll sit down a wee, we'll maybe be able to tell ye; for we are just trying to settle that point."

This, like all legitimate Scottish anecdotes, possesses all the characteristics of wit.—Sunday Magazine.

GIRL OF MANY COLORS.

Mrs. Bleakem—George, this is the most interesting novel I ever read. Just listen dear: In the tenth chapter the heroine sees the hero approaching and she turns pink. He kisses her and she turns red. A footstep is heard and she turns white. Five minutes later the villain arrives and she turns purple with rage. Now wouldn't you call such a girl as that a heroine, George?

Mr. Bleakem (absently)—H'm! I think I should call her a charlatan.
