NEW SCHOOL LEGISLATION.

The 38th Legislature enacted two very important educational laws which will be of interest to most of the schools going public.

One of these new laws reads to the effect that all children, between the ages of seven and fourteen, who live within three miles of a school must attend as long as school is in session.

The substance of the other clause is: Hereafter all Districts shall have school five months instead of three and if there is not enough money with the District Treasurer to hold same, application to Territorial Treasurer shall be made through the County Superintendent.

The legislature voted a bond of three-hundred thousand dollars to be used in the extension of school districts.

FIND DEAD MAN

The body of a dead man was discovered by the Cook of the Bar W Ranch a short distance from the ranch house, last Tuesday. Upon being notified of the discovery, Squire Scoggins immediately summoned a jury and went out to the place where the body was found. The verdict of the jury was that the deceased came to his death by "unknown causes." His name was Thomas Payne and he was a printer from Ft. Worth. His remains were buried in the local cemetery Tuesday night.

SHORTY MCCABE

Have you made the acquaintance of the latest hit in American humor Sewell Ford's "Shorty McCabe" stories? If not you are missing a heap of fun. Shorty is a "character" in every sense of the word. As an artist in humorous slang he can match George Ade's fables, and as a creator of original and witty phrases he can match Mr. Dooley, but Shorty can beat all his predecessors in art of telling a good story. It is a genuine story every time, too, with a hilariously funny plot and with characters that are alive and kicking, full of the quirks and absurdities of universal human nature. Shorty McCabe, his better half, Sadie, and their laughable adventures in New York society can be found and enjoyed only in the Sunday Magazine of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD, whose editor has the honor of having discovered Sewell Ford's powers as a humorist. This unique magazine is filled with good fiction and timely articles every week, written by many of the most noted authors of our day, but nothing seems able to overshadow the perennial interest in the Shorty McCabe stories, which appear every second week throughout the year.

Wherever you go you will hear people talking and laughing over them. Thousands of people take THE SUNDAY RECORD-HERALD simply for its Sunday Magazine and the inimitable Shorty McCabe. It begins to be a question whether Shorty is not a more popular personage than Mr. Dooley.

Our readers will notice the improved appearance of the Outlook this week. This additional news service will cost us considerable more but we believe that the people of Carrizozo and Lincoln County will appreciate an up-to-date paper and give us their support. Please show your appreciation by a renewal of your subscription. It takes money and lots of it to run a newspaper. The editor and publisher has not the wealth of Hattie Green, nor Hellen Gould - far short of it. Unless the Editor sets all the type there are $100 expenses to be met each month before one dollar can be applied to living expenses in Carrizozo a town where the air is very healthful but is not alone sufficient to sustain life for a family of four.

For a limited time with every cash subscription received, we will give two pieces of music composed and published by the Editor.

The Statehood Question.

We hear that Eastern enemies of the Income Tax Amendment are conspiring to keep New Mexico and Arizona out of the Union for fear that they will both approve of the amendment, and make thirteen instead of twelve negative state votes necessary for the defeat.

The Republican Party has declared in its platform, "We favor the immediate admission of the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states of the Union." Since the administration is avowedly favorable to admission, it seems not unreasonable to conclude that statehood will be a certainty at the hands of the next Congress.

If it is a fact that the admission of the Territories will be opposed by certain corporation interests of the East, it is only one more influence of the type that has always opposed the path of progress.

It certainly is true that the Territories are in favor of the Corporation Tax. The Justice of the tax naturally appeals to the broad-minded people of the Southwest and we trust that the enemies of the measure will not be successful in debarring the Territories from admission and thus defeating a just and equitable law.

Delegate to Congress, W. H. Andrews believes in the early admittance of the Territories as states and says that President Taft has set his heart on the admission of the Territories as the second great act of his administration. The delegate is quite confident that the bill will pass the House before Christmas and will go through the Senate before spring. However, Taft insists that a constitutional convention can be held and a constitution adopted before a state election is held, as he does not want the constitution tied up with politics and is very desirous that New Mexico adopt a good fundamental law. This will lose New Mexico several months and it is to be regretted therefore that a constitutional convention was not held this summer as suggested.

Mr. Andrews is working hard to have eliminated from the national forests all non-forest lands. He wishes to emphasize to the settlers holding small claims to file on them in legal form. Together with Gov. Curry he has obtained an extension until next March in which this can be done; those who do not file will have to clear the title to their land later through the courts at considerable expense.

The delegate, who has just returned from Washington, gives incidents of the Tariff debate and illustrates how favorable the Tariff is to Western, and especially New Mexico interests. It is certain that the Republican party need not be ashamed of the services rendered the people by the Delegate.

Campaign Against Tuberculosis is Meeting Obstacles Difficult to Overcome.

The campaign against tuberculosis is making progress beyond a doubt, although it is much slower than could be desired and there are obstacles difficult to overcome. Among these are ignorance, carelessness and poverty. If these could be eliminated the stubbornness of the disease itself would offer less resistance to the attacks that are being made everywhere. It is possible at least to increase the knowledge of tuberculosis and reduce the carelessness in respect to it and without doubt it will be found a wise policy to extend as far as possible the aids held out to those without means properly to care for themselves. The spread of knowledge of the fact that the disease can be cured if taken in hand early enough and of the precautions necessary to make cure possible and to prevent the infection of others is perhaps the most important factor in making head against tuberculosis.

DUTY OF TOWERMEN HIS MOST SERIOUS ACCIDENT

BRANCH OF RAILROADING THAT IS MOST IMPORTANT.
Day of Operating Switches by Hand Has Gone, Supplanted by Interlocking Machines—Men Are Especially Trained.
The days of the old switchtender are over, for the reason that no switches are thrown on the surface by hand men at the interlocking machines in the towers having supplanted them. These tower men, classed as train directors and levermen, are about as alert a set of men as can be found in any line of employment.

There is no going "asleep at the switch" with them. They are required to know to the smallest detail every foot of the terminal tracks and as they work at a long switchboard arrangement they see suspended above their heads, hanging from the ceiling and tilted at an angle, a diagram of large dimensions showing the tracks and the many signals which dot the terminal grounds. There are no great pump-handle levers to be swung. Instead, the levers are only a few inches long, giving the idea of a keyboard. But they do their work so cleverly that not even a small lump of coal or a silver no larger than the end of a lead pencil can lodge between the rails at a signal point without the knowledge of the operators in the towers.

There are three levermen and two train directors assigned to the tower on the north side of the tracks, east of the lift bridge over the river in the yards of the Wells street station. The levermen work in eight-hour shifts and the directors are always on hand before and after the rush hours of the morning and evening.

It is their business to look after the safe movement of 376 scheduled passenger trains a day. Under the working floor of the tower in which the interlocking apparatus is located are the electric dynamo and near by is the board from which the repairman takes his orders in the event of a mishap to the switches. This seldom happens at any of the 18 tracks at which trains arrive and depart. When the new station is in use the trains will enter the sheds over a four-track concrete viaduct which is under construction across the net work of tracks which now find a terminal at Wells street.

"The work is of the most important nature and the operators are men who have been long in the employ of the company and trained especially for their duties," said Edward Hillard, who is connected with the signal department of the company. "Every route is protected by a signal and it is impossible for the operator in the tower to give a conflicting signal, because the interlocker is so arranged that no two conflicting routes can be given. It is important that the public should understand this point. The electro-pneumatic machine is so constructed that in setting up a route for an engine all signal levers that control a conflicting route must be in a danger position before any switch can be thrown. Switches are so adjusted that an opening of the points even one-sixteenth of an inch would lock their lever and automatically call forth the repair man from his place in the tower. In the meantime the levermen are at a standstill as far as that particular routing is concerned."—Chicago News.

But So Few Do.
It is prodigious the quantity of good that may be done by one man, if he will make a business of it.—Benjamin Franklin.

A Railroad Goes to Dinner.
New York commuters who imagine that they have experienced almost every variety of railroading, should take a trip this summer over the Catskill Mountain railroad, which runs from Catskill to Palenville, with a branch to Cairo, says the New York Sun.

On this line not a wheel is moving between 1 and 2 P. M. The station agents lock their doors, the firemen bank their fires and the whole road takes an hour for dinner. At two o'clock the men come strolling back. The ticket agent opens up the ticket window and the engineers climb into their cabs, the firemen rake up their fires and train service is resumed. Another road, the Catskill and Tannersville, takes an hour, from 11 to 12 o'clock; no trains moving and all stations closed while the employees go home for dinner.

A Priceless Heritage.
We are all one, and we will maintain our nation as it was handed down to us, the most priceless heritage that ever sons inherited.—Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

A bunch of railroad men had been telling of their most hazardous experiences. They spoke up William McGreevy, city passenger agent of the Rock Island railroad. "The most distressing accident that ever befell me in all my railroad career," says McGreevy, "was when I was city passenger agent of this same road out in Los Angeles. One day a young fellow came to me and wanted me to map out his route for a wedding trip. I engaged a state room for him and a lot of things like that, and then he called me to one side and told me with a serious face about two feet long, that there was one more important thing he wanted me to do for him. He said I must help him identify the girl he was going to marry that evening.

"Wh-a-t!" I says. "Help you to identify 'er?" I was startled, for it looked as if the young chap must have had his reason kind of unseated by the anticipation of approaching unwedded bliss. But he was in dead earnest about it. "You see," he tells me, "I did all my courting by mail and I've never seen the object of my attentions. She is coming in on the train this afternoon and I might not recognize her. I know only that she is very beautiful, for I have her photograph." And he took the picture out to show it to me.

"She was a pretty girl, all right. I told him it oughtn't to be any trouble to recognize her from the picture. But he said his was a timid, shrinking disposition when young women were concerned and he wouldn't take a chance on approaching the wrong girl when the crowd got off the train, not for anything. He looked up at me with pleading eyes like a child, and coaxed me to go down to the station and see if I couldn't pick her for him. So I went down.

"Well, I held the photograph in my hand, looking first at it and then at the crowd, and right up among the first bunch that climbed off the day coach was a slick-looking little dame that I thought must be the one. She wasn't dressed what you would call swell, but her clothes looked neat and seemed to fit her everywhere at once. I wondered how it could happen that such a girl would have to answer an advertisement in order to get a man, but there wasn't much time to ponder over that. As she came through the gate, I walked up to her with the bridegroom right at my heels, and says I, clearing my throat nervously: "Do you happen to be Miss Twinkleton, the girl that—"

"Before I could finish it, dashed if she hadn't thrown her little arms around my neck and was gurglin' in my ear: "You're just the darlinest boy ever. I was afraid you might not know me, but I knew you!" And a lot more like that, before I could break her clench and get her stopped and introduced to the bridegroom.

"That," says McGreevy, "was the most serious railroad accident I was ever in."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Gramophones in Railroad Stations.
It has been left to the managing board of the Moscow, Windau and Rybnik railroad to turn the gramophone to practical use, for the board has announced its intention to set up a huge gramophone at the Moscow station of the line, so that the arrival and departure of every train can be announced clearly to the traveling public. At the same time, the gramophone will sound the bell thrice, as is usual, before a train starts on its journey. As over 70 per cent. of the people of European Russia are unable to read or write, the ordinary time tables are not of the smallest use to them, and the gramophone referred to has a splendid future before it, if only it can be made to speak clearly and loudly enough.—Pathfinder.

45 Years in Cab; No Accidents.
With a record of more than 2,000,000 miles at the throttle of a locomotive without an accident during 45 years continuous service, James Voorhies, Wilson, for 14 years general master mechanic of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system, died at Elgin, Ill., recently.

Broken in health after his long service, Mr. Wilson made his last run July 12. The veteran railroader was born in Glencoe, N. Y., 73 years ago. As a lad he came west and began work for the Milwaukee road at Madison. There he "got his engine" a half century ago. Seventeen years ago he was appointed master mechanic of the railroad system with headquarters in Chicago. Because of the many responsibilities of the position and a longing to return to the cab, he resigned three years ago and went back on the road. Since then he has run between Elgin and Chicago.

NEW SIDELIGHT ON HISTORY

Englishman Has Other Than Accepted Version for Cornwallis' Surrender at Yorktown.
They were commemorating the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown with the usual fiery speeches. At the close of the regular program the chairman announced with a wink to those near him:

"We are happy to have with us on this auspicious occasion a representative of King Edward, if not of King George. Ladies and gentlemen, I beg to present to you Maj. Arthur Forrester of the First Royal Dragoons, who will now say a few words."

The major looked a little surprised as he strolled to the front of the platform, polished his eyeglass, and began with a drawl:

"It has long been a wonder to me how Cornwallis, with the pick of the British army, held Yorktown against a miserable force of militia for only a few weeks. But, ladies and gentlemen, I've seen your town to-day, and my wonder is now that he cared to hold such a forlorn-looking spot for even one day."

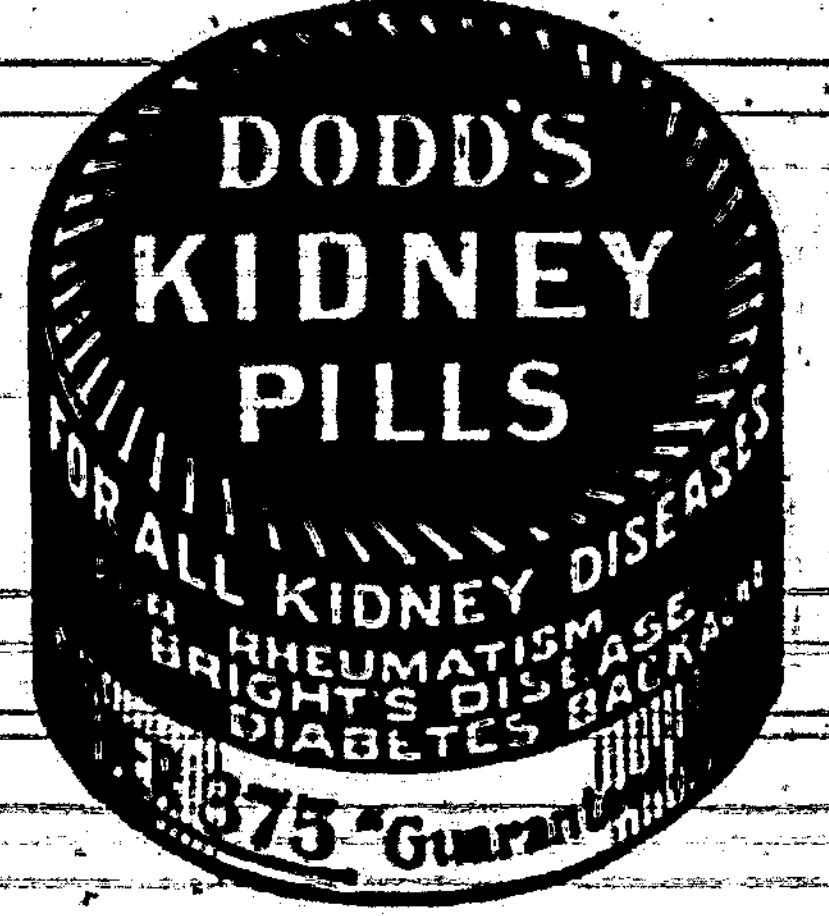

"Shake!" broke in the chairman "the drinks are on me."

Sit Up.
Much rot has recently been writ, and wags have rent their brains asunder, in trying to make food for wit this drear night lid the girls hide under. What need have men to knock it so? They do not have to sweat beneath it. Is it because the fellows know the landscape has been robbed to wreathe it? We are no judge of ladies' lids, and care not what your choice or vote is; it's not what's on but in girls' heads that makes us sit up and take notice.—Dard of Benzie.

SOUTHWESTERN OUTLOOK

Mrs. Anna M. DeBoer, Publisher. CARRIZOZO NEW MEXICO

THE MILLIONAIRE'S BURDEN.

In a recent interview, John Arbuckle, the millionaire coffee man, laments the sorrowful spectacle of the sons of rich Americans who travel over Europe and haunt home pleasure resorts making fools of themselves...

Kodama Ocamateu, a Japanese explorer, is on the way to Australia, where he will establish a base of operations having the attainment of the south pole in view.

Traditions of the American southwest in the period immediately following the civil war are recalled by the information from Germany that brigands held the highway between Augustow and Lipsk on the Russo-German frontier...

The trouble between Bolivia and Argentina seems to represent on a grand scale the spirit of "Kill the umpire!" Bolivia and Peru had a boundary dispute. It was referred to arbitration, and Argentina was the arbitrator.

Only a few months ago the police dogs of New York were regarded as a joke. Now the residents are demanding more of them as a protection against burglars.

A woman in Atlantic City dived from her yacht to rescue a drowning guest and swam with the latter to safety, while the men on the yacht looked on.

The band of departed gypsies in New York who used their children as clubs on the officials in their fight against deportation proved very plainly the government's point against them as undesirable citizens.

A socialist, sued for breach of promise, has invoked the French law in his defense. It is odd how promptly these enemies of law resort to it when their own rights, privileges and property are in danger.

A shipload of South American parrots recently landed in Mobile, Ala. serves to remind the public that Africa is not our only source of rare and valuable animal specimens.

NEW MEXICO TERRITORIAL NEWS

School Report Shows Great Gain. Territorial Superintendent of Public Instruction made the following report to Governor Curry, for inclusion in the Governor's annual report to the secretary of the interior:

Every year adds strength and efficiency to our school system, but in no public interest has there been greater advancement during the past year than in educational matters. A new salary schedule for county superintendents went into effect January 1st, 1909, whereby the salaries were increased.

The census of August, 1908, reported 25,894 persons (24,864 the year previous) of school age (5 to 21 years). The June, 1909, reports show a public school enrollment of 47,987 (45,607 in 1908).

During the year 1908-1909, 1,246 teachers (1,065 in 1907-08) were engaged in teaching the public schools—742 women, and 478 men. A larger portion of our teachers hold licenses of the higher forms than has been the case in the past.

The territorial department of education during the past year has issued the first common school course of study for the territory. With this as a basis, the work in the various schools will become more unified.

The total value of public school property within the territory is over one million dollars. The total bonded indebtedness is practically six hundred thousand dollars.

A fine pointer dog belonging to A. J. Love, manager of the Albuquerque Flaming Mill Company was killed by a rattlesnake.

Louis Lilly, charged with arson, was released at Clovis after preliminary hearing. A man named Morris of Hereford, Tex., however, was held under $1,000 bond on the same charge.

Something New at Exposition.

The twenty-ninth New Mexico Fair and Resources Exposition at Albuquerque, October 11-16 will have the merit of being new. The management believes that the people have tired of the same old things year after year and has been hunting novelties.

Electrical storms caused considerable damage to wires in the vicinity of Raton this week.

Rich specimens of silver ore from the Kleinworth claims of the Sandia mountains, south of Santa Fe, are being exhibited at Albuquerque.

At Folsom, Union county, a man named Franco stabbed Alexander Haney, a barber, first in the back and then in the breast. Haney was hurried to a hospital at Trinidad, Colo., where he lies in a critical condition.

Max Gardener, accused of embezzlement from the Baldwin Piano Company of Denver, and also of unmentionable crimes, succeeded in his second attempt at Santa Fe, in escaping from the county jail and made his way during the night, overland to Lamy, where trace of him has been lost.

A copper-circuit-telephone-line between Las Vegas and Santa Rosa, N. M., has been completed and the people of the thriving town at the head of the Pecos valley are greeting to the people of Denver through the Rocky Mountain News.

The Territorial Supreme Court has handed down three important opinions. One upholds the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicants to persons between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one.

Charles Buchanan, a half-breed Indian has been arrested at Albuquerque, for shooting through a year old Margaret Chavez. Later the complaint was changed to one of criminal assault.

Invested With Power.

Santa Fe.—Most Reverend Archbishop J. B. Pitaval has been invested with the insignia of full episcopal power, Bishop N. C. Matz of Denver conferring upon him the Pallium. The occasion was the scene of one of the most impressive ceremonies of the great Church of Rome.

A large body of clergy and acolytes proceeded from the Cathedral to the Archbishopal residence of the Archbishop and then escorted His Grace to the Cathedral. The procession was led by Mayor Jose D. Sena, followed by the Banda de Santa Fe.

Most Reverend Jean Baptiste Pitaval was born February 10, 1858, at St. Genes Torrenolre, Diocese of Lyons, France. He studied at the Seminary Montbrison at Loire. In 1878 he entered the Grand Seminary at Lyons. At the hands of Cardinal Caverot at the Cathedral of Lyons he received minor orders and was a sub-deacon. In June, 1881, he left for America at the call of the late Bishop of Denver, Right Reverend Machileuf.

HOUSEWIFE WHO MAKES MANY KINDS OF SHORTCAKE.

Points Out One of the Best Ways to Use the Summer Fruits and Berries—Canned Preparations in Winter.

One of the best ways to use the summer fruits and berries is in short-cakes. We use all kinds of fruits. We make individual shortcakes by the following rule: Sift one pint of flour with one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries, peaches, pineapples and bananas all make delicious short-cakes. We like blueberry shortcake almost better than blueberry pie.

In serving, have the shortcakes hot. Split them, butter well, put two large spoonfuls of the mashed and sweetened fruit inside and one on top.

Franchised Chicken.

Dress a chicken which is too large for frying, or almost grown. Disjoint all parts, cut the breast in two, then salt and pepper and roll well in flour. Fry in hot lard (part butter is good), but add butter after chicken has begun to fry well.

Tomato Faribit.

Fry about two tablespoonfuls of onion in butter size of an egg, add one quart of tomato juice. When boiling, stir in one-half pound of finely sliced cheese.

Mixed Fish.

Take any pieces of cold fish and put through your food chopper. To a cup of the fish add a large cracker rolled very fine, one beaten egg, a tablespoon of milk, and salt and pepper to taste.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Sardines.

Select large, ripe tomatoes of uniform size and pare them carefully with a sharp knife. Set on the ice to harden and cut out the hearts neatly, leaving the walls whole.

Currant Water.

To two cupsful of currants and one cupful red raspberries mashed add a cupful of cold water and bring to a simmer over the fire.

To Prevent Irons from Sticking.

Rub irons with a flannel soaked in kerosene oil. It will keep them free from rust and no stains will stick to them.

WESTERN NEWS.

Jack Johnson, heavy weight champion of the world, and Al Kaufman of San Francisco, are matched to fight ten rounds at Coltrath's arena in San Francisco on September 9. The men will weigh catchweights and if they are both on their feet at the end of the tenth round no decision will be given.

J. O. Milliken, disciplinarian of Haskell Institute at Lawrence, Kas., declared to the Associated Press that the story of alleged traffic in Indian girls attending this school is absolutely untrue. Mr. Milliken insisted that there was no basis for any such story. He stated further that there was no thought of asking the federal authorities to make an investigation, as there was nothing to investigate.

John Schively state insurance commissioner, on trial for impeachment before the state senate at Olympia Washington admitted that 182 insurance companies from 1905 to 1909 and that each had paid an advance fee of from $100 to $200, making a total that ranged from $18,200 to $36,400, of which no record was ever kept. He said that each sum as it was paid to him was divided equally between Sam H. Nichols and himself. Nichols at the time being secretary of state and insurance commissioner ex-officio.

Miss Glendora Fair, the first white child born in Phillips county, recently made final proof on the quarter section of land on which she was born. This unusual proceeding came about by her parents mistaking the location of their land twenty-three years ago, owing to an inaccuracy in the government survey. The claim was alternately filed upon and abandoned until Miss Fair reached her majority, when she successfully contested it and won her case. In the past two years she has improved and cultivated it with money earned by teaching school. This week she cooked a meal for her threshers, the larger part of the food coming from her own garden and barnyard.

Chief Sam Resurrection, one of the subchiefs of the Flathead Indian tribe, was found in a dying condition beside the Northern Pacific railroad tracks near Bonner, Mont. Circumstances surrounding the case cause the officers to entertain the suspicion of foul play. His skull had been fractured as though from a blow with a heavy instrument, and his left wrist was broken. He was unconscious. Chief Resurrection was an important witness against a Missoula saloonman, indicted for subornation of perjury in connection with the sale of liquor to Indians, and was to have appeared before the Federal Court at Helena on September 22nd to testify in the case.

GENERAL NEWS.

Fear that the bubonic plague may be communicated to Mexico has caused the Superior Board of Health to order the rigorous examination of all persons from San Francisco touching at the West Coast ports. The measure was taken on the receipt of a telegram from the Mexican consul at San Francisco stating that a case of the plague had been discovered in the Chinese district of that city. The officials of the Board of Health here are greatly concerned over the situation in San Francisco and close telegraphic communication with the consul in that city is being maintained.

Mrs. Frances Kubyack of Chicago has thirty days in which she must learn how to prepare a savory pickle sandwich, the favorite midnight lunccheon of her husband, John Kubyack, and thus restore the domestic equilibrium of their home. Municipal Judge Watkins, before whom Kubyack was arraigned on the charge of refusing to support his wife, listened to the husband's story and, when he learned that Mrs. Kubyack could not furnish her husband's favorite viand, continued to learn the secret of making this sandwich. Mrs. Kubyack told the court her husband grew angry at her inability to prepare him a pickle sandwich after he had finished his work at midnight, and drove her from home with a broomstick.

President Taft indicated in talks with callers while at Beverly, Mass., that in his message to Congress next December he will strongly urge the early establishment of a postal savings bank system. He will ask that the Republican platform declaration in favor of postal banks be fulfilled as speedily as possible.

Dispatches from Manila say that expert opinion has been justified, as it has been found impossible to cut the Marchia canal under four months. General Marina, commander of the Spanish forces, decided to commence the advance to Restinga along the sea front in intense heat. The men, however, appear glad that the long suspense is ended, and that the war has really begun. They displayed excellent spirits, and are greatly encouraged by the presence among them of the Duke of Saragossa and the Marquis of Valdecerrato, both of whom are serving as privates, and are treated in every respect like the men. The Marquis of Valdecerrato traveled direct from Cambridge University to volunteer.

Superintendent James W. White, who presided over the recent Indian land drawings, announced that the Cheyenne River and Standing Rock Indian lands in North and South Dakota will be opened in October. This is the largest compact area of Indian lands left unopened, being 90 miles long, and from 30 to 84 miles wide, containing approximately 2,018,000 acres in South Dakota, and 217,000 in North Dakota. Applications will be in much the same manner as for the Couer d'Alene and Flathead reserves. Registration days have been fixed between October 4 and October 23, the registration points being Aberdeen, Pierre, Lemmon, Leban, Mohrbridge in South Dakota and Bismark, North Dakota. Judge Witten will hold the drawing of numbers at Aberdeen, South Dakota, the last week in October.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

E. R. Baumhardt, W. J. Benoit, C. F. Payne and R. D. Forter of Denver and B. J. Lee of Pueblo have been appointed railway mail clerks.

Under the enlarged homestead act, allowing 320 instead of 160 acres, Acting Secretary of the Interior Pierce designated for settlement 642,480 additional acres in Montana, making a total acreage so designated in that state of 26,030,080. Under the provisions of the same act, 123,330 acres of land in San Juan county, Utah, have been similarly designated.

"Send the wagon. A man slipped on the ice and is seriously hurt." When the desk sergeant at a Washington police station received this message, the thermometer was hovering around 80°. But it was all true. Edward Wells, employed at an ice company's warehouse, was helping to load a wagon with ice and slipped while standing on a large cake. Another cake was sliding toward him at the time, and he did not get out of the way. Three of his ribs were broken by the impact.

That the Dutch ship Andyk is en route to the United States with cholera aboard is inferred from a cablegram from the American consul at Rotterdam, received by the marine hospital service through the State Department. The cablegram reads: "Cholera. Andyk Wednesday Baltimore." This message is interpreted as meaning that the Andyk sailed from Rotterdam for Baltimore with one or more cases of cholera aboard. The vessel is a slow steamer and is not expected to arrive off Cape Charles before September 8th. In the meantime the hospital service will take steps to prevent landing of passengers or crew until a thorough investigation shall have been made. Surgeon General Wyman of the public health and marine hospital service called Assistant Surgeon Robert A. C. Wollenburg, stationed at Naples, to proceed at once to Rotterdam to assist American Consul Liston in seeing that the Treasury Department regulations regarding vessels sailing for the United States are carried out.

Officials of the department of commerce and labor feel considerable concern, it is said, because of failing to receive the report of Agent W. I. Lembeck, giving the number of seals taken on the Pribiloff Islands by the North American Commercial company which leases the sealing rights from the government. The report should have been received by August 10, but nothing has been heard from Mr. Lembeck. The fact that there were known to be a number of Japanese pelagic sealing expeditions in the vicinity of the islands, is the chief cause for the alarm. Mr. Lembeck took with him two mountain howitzers and a quantity of sleds. All of his men were thoroughly armed. Raids on the islands have been numerous in the last few years and the Japanese were particularly daring. It was said, about the time the season closed. The revenue cutter in that vicinity was kept engaged in patrolling and watching sealers who kept so close to the islands that unless under known surveillance they did not hesitate to kill the herds in a ruthless manner.

BRAVE OPERATOR SAVES 200 LIVES

STEAMER OHIO STRIKES ROCK IN PACIFIC OCEAN AND SINKS TO THE BOTTOM.

FIVE GO DOWN WITH SHIP

WIRELESS MESSAGE BRINGS RESCUING BOATS OR ALL WOULD HAVE BEEN LOST.

Seattle, Wash.—Two hundred passengers, rescued from the ill-fated steamer Ohio are rejoicing over their escape from seemingly certain death. Five men are dead at the bottom of the sea off Steep Point on the coast of British Columbia. One of the five is George W. Eccles, a wireless telegraph operator who, on a last trip which he had undertaken after resigning his place saved the lives of the passengers on his ship at the cost of his own.

His calls for help brought the steamers Kingfisher, Humboldt and Rupert City to the rock off Steep Point in Hishkiah Narrows, British Columbia, and all but himself, the purser, quartermaster, a soldier and one steerage passenger were saved. The Ohio went down within thirty minutes after it struck. The dead are: Purser Frederick J. Stephens, Seattle.

Wireless Operator George E. Eccles, Seattle, formerly of Winnipeg.

The quartermaster, a soldier and a steerage passenger, names not known. Operator Booth of the station at Ketchikan, Alaska, heard the whole story of the wreck from the hero up to the time of his death. He says:

"About 1 a. m. I was sitting with my receivers clamped to my ears, having just finished working with Operator Eccles on board the Ohio, when I was startled by hearing him call 'C. Q. D.' 'C. Q. D.' I immediately answered and he sent the following message: 'Ohio struck a rock—a rock—steamer sinking—send aid immediately or everybody will be lost.'

"The steamers Humboldt and Rupert of the McKenzie Brothers' Steamship Company happened to be near and they both called the Ohio, asking for her latitude. Eccles gave it immediately and the Rupert flashed back that they would change their course and stand by the Ohio as soon as possible.

"Meanwhile Eccles sent another message, saying: 'Ohio sinking fast—cannot hold out. Passengers being taken off in small boats. Captain and crew will stick to the last.'

"The Humboldt and Rupert both replied that they were headed for the Ohio and would pick the passengers up. Then came the final message from the stricken vessel. It was never finished: 'Passengers all off and adrift in small boats.' It said: 'Captain and crew going off in last boat; waiting for me now—good-by.'

"I was unable to get him again and knew he had gone down with his ship."

Pilot Snow was on the bridge when the ship struck. The boats were lowered at once and the women and children taken off first. The soldier and the steerage passenger were killed by the upsetting of a boat during the rescue of the passengers. The Humboldt took twenty survivors to Ketchikan, Alaska.

Operator Eccles, who was a big man, worked valiantly in rescue work and is reported to have been drowned while so engaged. Purser Stephens also is said to have given his life for the passengers and other members of the crew might be saved.

The Ohio left Seattle August 20th for Port Graham and Valdez, Alaska, and including crew and passengers had 210 persons on board.

According to a wireless message received here, Operator Eccles and the purser went below to search for the quartermaster and a steerage passenger. Unable to find them he returned to his station and began sending a message. Just before the vessel made the plunge that carried it to the bottom, the operator was seen to leap from the wireless station. He fell on his head and his apparently lifeless body rolled into the water and was carried down by the whirlpool made by the sinking steamer.

Boats had not expected to make the trip with the Ohio. The day before the steamer sailed he handed in his resignation, having secured a position at Seattle, Alaska.

As the company was short of men he consented to make one more try before giving up his post.

AND NO WONDER.

"I don't know why you moved, my dear. Your house was close to the golf-links."

"I know; but I found the children were learning such bad language."

HAD AWFUL WEEPING ECZEMA

Face and Neck Were Raw—Terrible Itching, Inflammation and Soreness—All Treatments Failed.

Cuticura—Proved a Great Success.

"Eczema began over the top of my ear. It cracked and then began to spread. I had three different doctors and tried several things, but they did me no good. At last one side of my face and my neck were raw. The water ran out of it so that I had to wear medicated cotton, and it was so inflamed and sore that I had to put a piece of cloth over my pillow to keep the water from it, and it would stain the cloth a sort of yellow. The eczema itched so that it seemed as though I could tear my face all to pieces. Then I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and it was not more than three months before it was all healed up. Miss Ann Pearsons, Northfield, Vt., Dec. 19, 1907."

All in Fight Against Tuberculosis.

Prevention of tuberculosis versus dividends is the proposition which some of our largest insurance companies are now trying to establish. The Metropolitan Life recently applied for permission to erect a sanatorium for its policy holders and employees afflicted with tuberculosis, but the application was refused on grounds of illegality by New York State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss. The company is, however, conducting an active educational campaign by distributing 3,500,000 pamphlets among its policy holders. The Provident Savings Life Assurance society has also established a health bureau, where its policy holders may receive free medical advice. Several fraternal orders, notably the Modern Woodmen, Knights of Pythias, Royal League, Royal Arcanum and Workmen's Circle, have already established or are contemplating the erection of sanatoriums for their tuberculous members.

A Noble Love.

"Is the contract of dowry properly drawn up, signed and witnessed?" asked the count of Castle-on-the-Bum.

"Yes," sighed Gladys Golden.

"There are no loopholes through which your wise lawyers of Philadelphia might creep?"

"Not a loophole," said the fair Gladys.

"And your father's holdings in Amalgamated Wholesale, American Cheese and Macaroni and Tin Soup-Plate Co. have not been affected by the recent depression?"

"No, dearest," answered Miss Golden, firmly.

"Then I love you," said the noble count; and two fond hearts beat as one.—Puck.

IT WORKS

The Laborer Eats Food That Would Wreck an Office Man.

Men who are actively engaged at hard work can sometimes eat food that would wreck a man who is more closely confined.

This is illustrated in the following story:

"I was for 12 years clerk in a store working actively and drank coffee all the time without much trouble until after I entered the telegraph service. There I got very little exercise and drinking strong coffee, my nerves were unsteady and my stomach got weak and I was soon a very sick man. I quit meat and tobacco and in fact I stopped eating everything which I thought might affect me except coffee, but still my condition grew worse, and I was all but a wreck.

"I finally quit coffee and commenced to use Postum a few years ago, and I am speaking the truth when I say, my condition commenced to improve immediately and today I am well and can eat anything I want without any bad effects, all due to shifting from coffee to Postum.

"I told my wife today I believed I could digest a brick if I had a cup of Postum to go with it.

"We make it according to directions boiling it full 20 minutes and use good rich cream and it is certainly delicious."

"There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

When a Greeley man who conducts a fruit stand purchased some tin jewelry for 30 cents about two weeks ago from Charles Williams, a negro from Cheyenne, he did not know he was receiving $190 worth of gold and gems. This morning Lieutenant George Mason of Fort Russell appeared, with Marshal Williams, and laid claim to a diamond ring, a attack pin and some other jewelry. Williams had been arrested in Cheyenne and had confessed to the theft of the valuables. The negro was employed by Lieutenant Mason and departed from Fort Russell about two weeks ago. He came to Greeley and while there sold all of the articles for 30 cents. The ring, valued at $105, was sold for 5 cents. Lieutenant Mason returned the 30 cents and got back his possessions.

William Benton, who is working the Tom Rayburn farm near Greeley, lost half of his field of eleven and one-half acres of oats in shock when a spark from a Union Pacific engine set it on fire. He managed to save half his crop by the hardest kind of work. This means a loss of $300.

Mrs. Capitola Adams, married, divorced, and remarried, though only twenty-two years old, drank carbolic acid at her summer home at Columbine Lake, a mile and a half west of Grand Lake. She died without explaining the reason for her act. Her husband, Roy Adams, a salesman and former stamp clerk in the Denver postoffice, is said to have nearly lost his mind, and attempted to take his own life, when he saw his young wife of six months die in agony. Mrs. Adams is said to have been in poor health and to have brooded over the death of a relative in Chicago. But this is not supposed to have been the only cause.

USEFUL SCRAP BOOK

MUST BE ARRANGED WITH PROPER SYSTEM.

And in That Way It is Invaluable— Photographer's Paste the Best Medium for Keeping Selections in Shape.

The scrap book habit, provided it is not carried to excess, is invaluable. For reference nothing takes its place, as it has an advantage over other compilations of information in that it is usually formed along lines that peculiarly appeal to the owner.

A scrap book to be useful must be arranged with system. A hodge-podge of information defeats the purpose of the book. It is well to have smaller books than are usually used, both because they are more easily handled and because a scrap book is more valuable if it treats of but one class of subjects.

Be careful in selecting a scrap book that it opens out, flat and is well bound. It is a mistake to get one with a filmy cover or poor paper that crinkles with pasting. Many books ready mutilated can now be bought, but these are more expensive than ordinary kinds and sometimes fail to stick.

A good photographer's paste is the best medium; mucilage is sticky and not lasting and flour paste sours. Have a broad brush to apply the paste and put it on thinly enough not to get lumpy.

There will be less danger of pages sticking together if, after a clipping is pasted in, a thick paper or piece of muslin is put over it and pressed with a moderately hot iron. This makes the pages look neater and flatter.

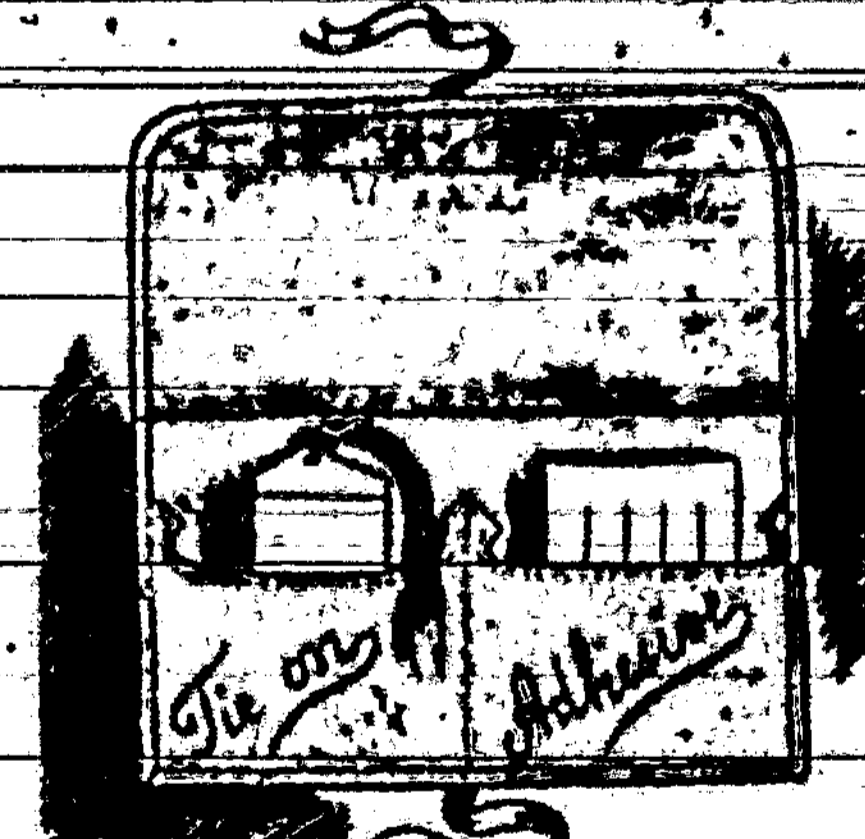

Even when a book is devoted to one class of subjects, the clippings should be grouped in subdivisions, and an index should be placed in the front of the book. If the scrap book is not alphabetized, and paged, it should be

CASE FOR BAGGAGE LABELS

Handy Receptacle in Which Small Articles of Value May Be Found When Wanted.

Now that vacation days are here the suggestion contained in our sketch of a case for baggage labels should be of use and interest. Baggage labels are among those necessary household articles which are never to be found when they are wanted, unless a special place is set apart for them.

The accompanying sketch illustrates a case in which they can be kept, and which can always be replenished as the supply becomes exhausted.

The case is made in crash or linen, and the two pockets are set apart for the use of adhesive labels respectively. The words being embossed on each division in brightly colored ink. The edges are bound with narrow ribbon, and there is a fold-over flap at the top which ties down on to the lower part with a smart little ribbon-loop. A case of this kind is always useful for travelling purposes, as it keeps the labels clean and prevents them being creased and crumpled, which so often happens when they are loosely thrust into a box or bag among other things.

GUMME USED IN MANY WAYS

The newest hot gumme is brought into unity with the freck with which it is worn by slight touches of an excellent material the freck in color. Gumme of plain white, in color, held in part over the face or embossed done by hand. The alphabetizing may be omitted, but the paging never. It saves much time in making a scrap book if each clipping is carefully trimmed as it is cut out. It should be pasted at once, to let it lie around for some convenient time means to lose it, possibly, or to have the edges curl so that it is doubly hard to paste. There should be a censorship of clippings though it is self-imposed. It is not worth while to clutter the book with information which has no definite value or is of only passing interest. To cut out everything one reads that attracts for the moment is to clutter oneself with clippings valueless by their number.

EFFECTIVE BLOUSE

Blouse of pink lousine cut in straps in front, fastened with buckles over a tucked under blouse of white net, with yoke of gulfure. The cuffs and belt are also of gulfure.

ered net or metallic tissues, are popular with Parisian designers, and these plain unlined gumpes often accompany bodices also unlined and unboned.

But the colored gumpes, while modish, is not becoming, and in view of this fact all sorts of concessions are made.

The sheer-colored gumpes of chiffon, lace, net, etc., often fills in the low cut bodice almost to the throat line, while above it rises the very shallow gumpes line and collar in white or cream.

The gumpes of fine tucked net has given way in the smartest models to gumpes constructed of fine cobwebby lace or combined lace.

At the Five O'clock Tea.

A popular combination much served instead of iced tea at five o'clock is grape juice and ginger ale mixed. Use about a third of the latter. If white grape juice instead of purple is chosen the drink is better yet. Serve with glasses half filled with cracked ice.

It is said that so simple a lotion as rose water and borax will remove freckles.

If you get ink on your hands and moisten them and apply the sulphur end of a match the stain will at once be removed.

When you are terribly fatigued try taking half a dozen long, deep breaths and see if you don't feel more like living.

When the skin becomes overheat, as it often does in summer, try putting a little baking soda in the water in which you wash.

Dandruff arises from different causes, but it is usually a sign of neglected roots and the scalp needs feeding with grease or tallow.

A FEW REMARKS FROM PAPA

Quiet, But Emphatic, and Young Thing Immediately Took a New View of Life.

An Atchison Young Thing had a head that ached, her honey boy having taken his affections elsewhere, and her father recently shut himself up with her to reason with her. "That Honey Boy averaged spending 50 cents a week on you," he said. "Here's a dollar a week to take its place. Every time he called he cleaned out the refrigerator, your mother will see to it that your brothers do this in future. He kept you up late nights. Your baby sister is cross, and hereafter you will let the baby do this for you. He took possession of the most comfortable rocker on the porch; when you look at that rocker in future it will not be empty, bringing the pang to your heart that your silly novels tell about; it will be occupied by the man who paid for it, and that's me. Your mother and I stayed by you through college and teaching, and we are going to get you through this if we have to take turns spanking you. Now, take your eyes off the moon and look at the dust around you."—Atchison Globe.

BED-BOUND FOR MONTHS.

Hope Abandoned After Physicians' Consultation.

Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew and Washington Sts., Centralia, Wash., says:

"For years I was weak and run down, could not sleep, my limbs swelled and the secretions were troublesome; pains were intense. I was fast in bed for four months. Three doctors said there was no cure for me, and I was given up to die. Being urged, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I was better and in a few weeks was about the house, well and strong again."

UNSETTLED.

"Ah! And whose little girl are you?" "I don't know yet, mister. George an' Jimmie is just fightin' a duel over in the lot to settle the question!"

Marriage and Meanness.

Some years ago there lived in Atchison a young woman noted for her good works and gentleness. She was always helping the poor and was patient and kind and universally admired. She married a fairly good man and abused him within three months. She had been good and patient for years, but a husband was too much for her; she had never been cross to any one until she was cross to her husband. There is something about marriage that stirs up hidden depths of meanness on both sides.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Wed's Her Rich Stepfather.

Social circles in Pasadena, Cal., learned with amazement the other day that Miss Katherine Traphagen has become the bride of her stepfather, Cyrus M. Davis of Los Angeles. Miss Traphagen lived with her sisters in Altadena and was one of the prominent members of the Young Women's Christian association, being director of its short-story club.

Style of Price.

"Are you going to raise any fancy crop on your suburban place this summer?" asked Jones of Smith, as they met in the business district.

"Well, yes," hesitatingly admitted Smith. "I am going to try to raise the mortgage."

Hardly Flattered Himself.

Family Lawyer (to young heir)—Now, remember, my boy, that a fool and his money are soon parted. Young Heir (impressively)—I intend, sir, to be the exception that proves the rule.

PAINT DURABILITY.

The first thought in painting should, of course, be durability—and durability means simply pure paint properly applied. Pure paint is pure white-lead and linseed oil (with or without tinting material).

Some years ago the paint-buyer was likely to get adulterated or counterfeit white lead if he was not familiar with brands. To-day he may buy with perfect safety if he only makes sure that the Dutch Boy Painter trademark is on the packages of white lead that he buys. This trademark was adopted by National Lead Company to distinguish the pure white lead made by them from the worthless adulterated and fake goods. It is a guarantee as valuable to the house-owner as the education of a paint expert could be.

Diek—I should say so. The "chug-chug" makes such a racket she couldn't hear a smack to save herself.

The Ever Changing Waist Line.

Consider the mental agility it takes to keep up with one's waist line. One goes to bed at night in the sweet assurance that it will be under the arms for the next two or three months at any rate, and awakes to learn from the headlines in the morning papers that the waist line is positively at the knees. There is absolutely no use in prognosticating anything about it any longer. That the waist line occurred at the waist was an axiom accepted as unquestionably as that the earth revolves on its axis, but in these days of higher criticism it is likely to be anywhere. It bloweth where it listeth.—Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, in American Magazine.

A Candid Judge.

A Dover lawyer tells a story in which figures Hon. H. L. Dawes, who, it seems, in his younger days was an indifferent speaker. Shortly after his admission to the bar he had a case which was tried before a North Adams justice of the peace, and Dawes was opposed by a lawyer whose eloquence attracted a large crowd. The justice was perspiring in the crowded room and evidently fast losing his temper. Finally he drew off his coat and, in the midst of the eloquent address, burst out:

"Mr. Attorney, supposing that you take a seat and let Mr. Dawes speak. I want to thin out this crowd."—Lippincott's.

Called For in Person

By JULIETTE B. MCCARLEY

Mrs. Thompson was the soul of happy hospitality, shooting chickens, flapping fires and talking to the cats as she poured out coffee and handed fried potatoes and meat and great soda biscuits.

Primus sat on the refrigerator, between two plates of freshly churned butter and once a great calf stuck its head in at the door.

"I don't think I can stand it nine months," thought Elizabeth, as she drank her coffee. "Maybe I'll let him come for me in two." Then she felt more cheerful.

"You can see the schoolhouse from the first turn in the road," said Mrs. Thompson at the gate, as she squinted her eyes in the sunlight. "It's right beyond the depot, and down the bayou a little ways is the graveyard where Buddy is buried. We'll walk there some pretty evening."

Elizabeth squeezed her fat hands gently. It was impossible not to like her and yet—how could the material part of her stand it? She went along, heedless of the morning sunlight on the flat fields where the cotton stalks were standing. She did not feel that she could teach school. She was no longer the capable, well-poised female that she had imagined herself to be. She was only a little homesick girl, longing with all her heart for the sight of a big, clean man who smelled of good cigars.

Then, suddenly she stopped short. In front of her was a little red-roofed depot, with some freight cars on a siding and telegraph and telephone wires ran into it. She could, if she would, send a message that minute—and he would come. In his new character—new and delightful—she felt sure he would be capable of anything. She need never sleep on that feather bed or eat after Primus. Neither need she starve or die of insomnia. Almost before she realized it she was startling the young agent with a vision of youth and beauty seldom seen there. Then her voice failed her and she seemed to wait interminable minutes until he came into his office—and his voice traveled over a hundred miles of sunlit space and reached her happy ear.

"It is I," she said, at her end of the wire, and the young man in the office listened eagerly as he wrote meaningless things with a stub pen. "Yes. . . . No, not ill, but so horribly lonesome and the cats fight all night and I miss you. . . . Yes—I read it. I found it last night. . . . No, not angry. No, no! . . . But I wish I had read it—or you had said it—before I bought my ticket."

Then, heedless of the agent's surprise, she laid down a quarter and left from the office, with flame-colored cheeks.

Elizabeth could never remember afterward, when she tried to recall the details of that one day of her vocation, how she found the schoolhouse or got through the morning. In after years it was always a vague dream of a dingy, ink-spattered room filled with girls and boys all amazingly freckled. At 12 o'clock she sent them home and, still in a happy dream, she went to Mrs. Thompson's and sat down to soup and turnips and dried apple pie, untroubled even by the sight of Primus, which sat in the window washing red tomato soup from his whiskers.

"I'm not going back to school," she said, with a flush on her happy little face. "I've classed them and I'm going for a long walk."

She put on a soft, lace-trimmed white dress that made her look like a big baby, and a hat trimmed with pink roses, and strolled past the depot again and down the old bayou by whose banks the dead were laid away. It was a quiet, peaceful spot. Masses of honeysuckle and golden rod hid the sunken graves. No new mound struck a note of pain. The sadness was gone and only the peace of death remained. A little farther on she found Mrs. Thompson's little freckled boy, who had been buried in his "first long pants." There was a marble slab with his name and age and "We Shall Meet in the Sweet By-and-By."

Elizabeth looked at it with misty eyes. "I hope they will," she thought, "and that he will be just a little freckled-faced boy."

Already she seemed to have learned something of the everlasting joy and the everlasting sorrow of wifehood and motherhood and so she dreamed on until the shrill whistle of the evening train broke the silence.

"It is too soon to expect even a letter," she told herself, but with a movement like a flower when it trembles on its stem she arose and with quick, happy little feet and a rose-flush on her face she went down the grassy path.

As she went a tall, fair man, who looked dear and familiar, and yet delightfully strange, came hurrying to her, and so—and so—they met in the sunset glory of the autumn evening and, forgetful of all else, he lifted her little face with his strong hands and pressed his eager, loving lips to hers.

Mrs. Thompson was loud with lamentations when she found that a bold Luchinvar had come to rob her of her boarder and Seven Oaks Hollow school of its teacher of a day, but there was a delightful thrill of excitement over it all. It was almost as if a bride was going away. She hastily stirred up a cake for supper and tied a blue ribbon on Primus' neck.

"It's hard to give you up so soon," she said tearfully, as Elizabeth stood ready to go away, "but I'm glad you got one good sleep in my feather bed. You must come back some day, dear, and see us and the cats again."

"I'll never forget you," said Elizabeth, not without a few tears in her happy eyes. "Some day we will come back and see you."

So she passed out, clinging to her lover's hand, with a parting back view of Primus on the hall table, drinking out of the bucket of water.

"And to think you really loved me all the time," said her lover ecstatically, almost unbelieving, as the night train rushed through the darkness of field and swamp, like some enchanted dragon, carrying them away to the fairyland of love and happiness.

"Yes," she said softly, as she nestled by his side, "I think I really loved you all the time, but I would never have told you half so soon if it had not been for Mrs. Thompson's cat."

"I detect a liar above everything," "Well, you're certainly not egotistical."

HANDWRITING.

"It is a curious fact," said a prominent handwriting expert the other day, "that if a document were put before me, and I were asked the sex of the writer, I should probably fail."

"People generally are accustomed to think that the masculine or feminine temperament will readily betray itself in writing; but I assure you such is not the case."

"Bold, black and firm penmanship will frequently be found the characteristic of a woman; while delicate writing, indicating a lively fancy, expected in a woman, will belong to a member of the opposite sex."

"You can test this statement for yourself. Take, say, 20 envelopes written by people you know, and number them carefully. Pass them round, and see how many will name correctly the sex of the writers. You will seldom find more than one-third of the guesses will be right."

NOT TO BE CHEATED.

"This is a mighty dishonest world, you know," said Henry Dixey, "and it don't hurt to be suspicious of some people. I sympathize with the old negro who came to a watchmaker with the two hands of a clock."

"I want yer fer to fix up dese han's. Dey ain't kept no correct time for mo' don six munfs."

"Well, where is the clock?" demanded the watchmaker.

"Out to my cabin."

"But I must have the clock."

"Didn't I tell yer dar's nuffin de matter wid de clock 'ceptin de han's? An' here dey be. You joss want de clock to you kin tink'er it, and charge me a big price. Gimme back dem han's."—Young's Magazine.

WORSE BATHS THAN OURS.

Traveler Tells of at Least Two in His Experience.

"I guess the two-by-four bathroom in the modern flat isn't the worst thing you can get up against in the way of abominable contrivances," remarked a flat dweller to a friend.

"Well, if you know of anything worse," said the other, a man of more than six feet of perpendicular bulk, "it's on me."

"Those were my own sentiments," continued the New Yorker, "until we had occasion to entertain my wife's brother in our apartment last week. He's a jolly big Englishman, who's traveled a lot, and like most of his countrymen, is devoted to his matutinal tub. Almost before he was inside the door my wife began to apologize for the size of our bathroom, when, to our astonishment, her brother burst into an uproarious laugh."

"My dear girl, don't apologize, you know," he explained to her. "I fancy you don't know what difficulty I had in taking my tub in South Africa this summer. It was beastly inconvenient. You see, my Kaffir boy knew all about it, and got me a barrel which had been cut in half and a hole bored in one end. I knew I couldn't possibly tub in that, and remonstrated with him, only to see him plug up the hole with a cork and fill the barrel with water. Then, by means of a pulley, while I stood by in my bathrobe, he hoisted it to the branch of a tree and directed me to stand beneath it. Seeing no alternative, I did so, and he pulled out the cork. Oh, yes, the stream pours on a solitary spot of one's blessed anatomy, but it's better than washing in a couple of bottles of Apollinaris, as I had to do some years ago, when crossing the desert, so don't apologize, I beg of you, for this bath."

Of course, lots of honest men go into politics—just look aight at them in the chumpe.
