Perhaps the greatest prison reformer of the last century is Warden J. C. Sanders of the Iowa state prison. He has abolished stripes as a prison emblem, organized and directs an orchestra and glee club from among his convicts, encourages baseball and basketball practice ev ry day. A lecture course of five numbers is secured for the prisoners every year, and the lectures are delivered in the prison chapel. Nearly one half of the prisoners are attending the night school. Warden Sanders has put the prisoners on their honor not to escape. He holds that prisoners are not sent their for punishment but for the protection of society.

Hostilitis between the Indians, halfbreeds and negros in Oklahoma will probably be closed by the surrender of Crazy Snake. The reports which were first sent out were well exaggerated, still it reminds the heros of pioneer days of the hardships they encountered with the Indians on the frontier. Of course this instant is not to be compared with the battles of several years past for the reason that the insurgents were checked by the militia force and trorps from nearby posts. These safeguards were unknown in pioneer days and the Iddians caused terror which will long be remembered by descendants of the pioneers.

Washington, March 20,— A bill has been introduced regulating the passenger fare on railroads in the territorries of Arizona and New Mexico. It provides that the passenger fare on all railroads in both territorries shall not exceed 3 cents a mile, with an allowance of baggage not to exceed 100 pounds. It also provides for the care of waiting rooms, accomodation to passengers and other conditions in connection to passenger traffic. Similar bills are being passed by the states and the territorries may get the rate but it is rather doubtful.

Six vagrants who were locked up in the Tucumcari calaboose broke out Sunday and almost literally walked off with it. They made the threat that if they were locked up in it they would walk off with it, and they nearly carried out their threat Perhaps it would be fortunate if those six hobos would visit Carrizozo and completely remove our calaboose

Mrs. Mary Farmer was electrocuted in the New York state prison at 6:15 on the morning of the 29th. The woman was placed in the chair murmuring a prayer which was cut short by the electric shock of 1840 volts which lasted for one minuet. Two more similar shocks were given and the wretched women was pronounced dead.

The National Congress has come to the conclusion that its members do not have time enough for oratory and unanimously voted to hold night sessions untill the great oratorical flow on the tariff qucation ceases.
