STATEHOOD IN BALANCE

Flood Resolution Passes The Senate But Taft Will Veto Owing to Recall

ENTER NEXT YEAR ANYWAY

Washington, Aug. 8.—The bill granting statehood to New Mexico and Arizona, legislation that has been urged for many years by the people of those territories, was passed by the senate tonight, 53 to 18, after rejection of the Nelson amendment which proposed striking out of the Arizona constitution its judiciary recall provision.

The bill as passed by the senate differs only slightly from the house measure and it is said may be unsatisfactory to President Taft. He has contended all along that he would be glad to sign the statehood bill if the Nelson amendment prevailed, but that it was a grave question whether he would be willing to sign it if the amendment were defeated, as it was 43 to 26. Indications are that the bill may become a law without his signature. The senate amended the house bill with two minor changes regarding the manner of voting in New Mexico on proposed amendments to its constitution. These will undoubtedly be agreed to by the house and the bill will be expedited to the White House. These amendments were reported by the senate committee on territories and agreed to without debate.

Practically all the debate on the bill centered around the Nelson amendment. Even some senators who declared their opposition to the recall of judges voted against the amendment on the ground that if the people of Arizona desired the recall as part of their system of government it was for them and not for congress to say whether they should have it.

The bill as passed, compels Arizona, as a condition precedent to entry into the union, to submit the recall proposition to the voters for final decision as to whether it shall remain in their constitution. New Mexico must vote on the proposition embodied in the bill which would make the constitution of the state easier of amendment.

The test vote came on the Nelson amendment which was lost.

After this had been defeated it was thought the bill would be adopted without division but Senator Bailey called for the ayes and nays. Senators Bradley of Kentucky and O'Gorman of New York, voted for the Nelson amendment. The same two members with Senator Baily voted against the final passage of the measure as did two progressive republicans, Senators Bristow of Kansas and Kenyon of Iowa.

PRESIDENT WILL VETO.

Washington, Aug. 9—That he was on record as opposing recall of judges, that he did not intend to change his mind and could not sign the Flood resolution, was the gist of information obtained from the president this afternoon by a delegation of New Mexicans headed by Delegate Andrews. Those in the party, besides the delegate, were A. A. Jones, Dr. Kraft, Summers Burhart, P. F. McCanna, T. J. Mabry, Clovis; and A. W. Pollard, of Deming.

The president was very positive in his statements and when in was suggested to him that the territories wanted statehood mighty bad, replied:

"Yes you are too anxious, especially Arizona."

Should President Taft veto the resolution and Congress not pass it over his head the territories will enter the Union automatically by limitation after the 1912 Session of Congress.

The White Oaks Social Club gave a very fine dance Saturday night last; mong those present from a distance were Miss Helen Canning of Carrizozo and Miss Annice Fewell and the Palmers from the Park.

The Joneses, who occupy the Tinnon ranch down the canyon are supplying the town with some very fine vegetables these days while the Wells' orchard above here looks as if it might do the same in the line of fruits

There is a young couple in this town—and they are not so newly young either, who are utilizing so much of the moonlight these nights that the rest of us have to carry lanterns when we wish to get about after dark.

W. C. McDonald appears to be going some these days. Just when the newspapers had him in Washington City on statehood affairs he bobbed up here behind a gas tank, kidnapped Attorney Hudspeth and disappeared in a cloud of dust and blue smoke in the direction of the Block ranch.

Treasury Department Orders Reorganization at Fort Stanton Hospital

MATTHEWSON TO BE REMOVED

"We are going to reorganize the Hospital at Fort Stanton, and hope to make it an institution of the highest grade of usefulness. There will be a new chief."

A copy of the above message from the Treasury Department of the United States was received by this paper last Friday and the news is indeed welcome to the many good citizens of the county as well as to the patients at the Fort who have exerted every effort to have the Marine Hospital reorganized

Dr. Matthewson, who has been in charge at Fort Stanton has been an unsatisfactory chief to almost the entire patient body and now that he is to be removed and the Fort reorganized much is to be hoped for in the way of improved conditions at the hospital over the hill.

The real cause of the former lack of action on the part of the higher officials at Washington has come to light recently thru correspondence. A number of official investigations had taken place at the Fort but in each instance nothing had come of them. A prominent Lincoln county citizen who was interested took the matter up with Hon. Wm. H. Andrews, delegate from New Mexico and Mr. Andrews has worked earnestly with the assistance of other congressmen called to his aid in getting the last investiagtion report, of Drs. Woodward and Guterras, thru the red tape of the department and up to Secretary Franklin MacVeigh, personally. That the Secretary had not previously been aware of the conditions at the Fort is quite evident from the immediate action taken as soon as he had received the reports, and made himself acquainted with the unsatisfactory conditions existing. Investigation in the Treasury department seems to point to the fact that the previous reports of investigation committees were "pidgeon holed" by deputies before their chief had passed upon them.

Delegate Andrews is to be congratulated on his untiring effort in behalf of the Marine Hospital. Fort Stanton is a great benefit to mankind and Lincoln County is proud to have it within her borders.

The patients at Fort Stanton are elated over the prospect of the better conditions and all hope for a speedy action in the work of reorganization.

QUO WARRANTO AUGUST 25TH

The docket of the Supreme court of the territory of New Mexico that has just been published for the court which is to convene next Tuesday, August 15th. has the Lincoln county Quo Warranto Case, which was appealed from the District Court, set for August 25th. The docket reads as follows:

No. 1410. Territory of New Mexico, ExRel. J. J. Aragon, appelant, vs. The Board of County Commissioners, Lincoln County, N. M. Appellee (Lincoln) Set for hearing August 25th.

Sauce for the Lentil Soup.—One-half pound German lentils; wash; cover with boiling water ten minutes; drain. Put on with three pieces bacon, cut small and fried with one large onion, sliced. Simmer four hours. As water boils away, if cooking peeled potatoes or rice, add water in which these were boiled. Season to taste and thicken with two tablespoons of browned flour; add a small piece of butter.

Parsley Potatoes.—Boil peeled sliced potatoes; add chopped parsley and a little butter.

Stuffed Peppers (for eight).—Three slices stale bread soaked in cold water and drained. One-half liver sausage, little parsley, small onion; salt and pepper to taste; one well-beaten egg to bind. When eggs are cheap add one or two, hard boiled.

Economical Rice Pudding.—Wash one cup rice. Cook in plenty salted boiling water; drain; add small piece of butter. Put aside.

Sauce.—One-half drawer strawberries. Simmer 20 minutes; strain juice (if quantity scant add little water and juice of one lemon); add one-half cup sugar; bring to boil. Stir one teaspoon cornstarch in a little cold water; add to boiling juice and simmer five minutes. Serve cold.

French Eggs.

Boil six eggs hard, strip off the shells, cut in quarters and arrange on a dish. Make a sauce after this recipe: Take a half of a quarter pound of fresh butter and a tablespoonful of flour, stir over the fire until it thickens; pour in slowly a pint of milk, which should be boiling, add the seasoning, boil five minutes, add the rest of the butter and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Squeeze the juice of half a lemon over the eggs, and pour the sauce over them; serve garnished with the parsley.

Butter a dish thickly with good butter, let it heat until the butter melts, break four eggs into it and sprinkle with white pepper and salt, laying thin slices of butter on top of each egg; put the dish in the oven and let remain until the whites are set, but not hard, and serve quickly; garnish with parsley.

Baked Indian Pudding.

This old-fashioned recipe requires two quarts of milk, five tablespoonfuls of Indian meal, three-quarters of a cupful of molasses, a pinch of salt, a tablespoonful of butter and a little ground ginger. Scald one quart of milk, add the molasses, butter, salt and ginger; moisten the corn meal with a little cold milk, add to the ingredients in the saucepan and scald well.

Turn into a well-buttered pudding dish and place in a very moderate oven. Add the remainder of the cold milk, a little at a time, during the baking, stirring the mixture. Bake from four to five hours and serve with hard sauce or sweet cream with a little maple sugar added.

IMPORTANT LAND CASE

An important land case came to hearing before Commissioner A. H. Harvey in his office at Carrizozo, Wednesday. The action taken was by the Government to cancel the entry of Porfirio Chavez of Lincoln to his homestead near that place The government was represented by Leroy R. Moore, chief of the field division of the Land office, for New Mexico, while the defendant was represented by Att'y Geo. B Barber. A number of witnesses were summons, among them; Robt. Hurt, Clement Hightower, Capitan; Bona Baca, Sam Farmer, and Genevevo Griego of Lincoln, Jose Lopez, Tecolote The decision by the Department of the Interior will be awaited with interest by those implicated.

"ALAMOS" ARE COMING

Large Baseball "Stunt" Is Scheduled to Come Off Saturday and Sunday

FENCING BASEBALL GROUNDS

Something large in the way of baseball is promised Carrizozo baseball fans next Saturday and Sunday. The "Alamos," with war paint and full regalia are scheduled to arrive Saturday and meet the Carrizozo Browns on the local diamond that afternoon. Alamogordo is coming up with the intention of avenging the shut-out, suffered by that team at the Browns hands two weeks ago when the Carrizozo boys went down to Alamogordo. They may win the game but they will have to play some ball to do it. Sunday the Alamos will meet White Oaks on the local diamond and this is also expected to be a good contest. Preparations are being made for a fine dance Saturday evening and a good time all around for everybody while the Alamo team and rooters are in the city. Carrizozo hopes to repay the Alamogordo bunch of "live ones" in a measure for the splendid time shown the Carrizozo people when in Alamogordo recently.

TO FENCE BALL PARK

The city father got together one day this week and when the conference was concluded it had been decided that the local ball park would be fenced. The entire ground cannot be fenced this season but two wings of high board fence are being run out from the grand stand past first and third bases and the fencing will be left in such shape that it can be tied onto and completed later at little expense. It will be a "Pay as you enter" stunt for the rooters at future games. A charge of fifty cents will be made at all future ball games.

ALTO BARBECUE-PICNIC

A big barbecue and picnic is to take place at Alto, August 18th to which everyone is cordially invited. Before the potash, phosphorus and nitrogen become available the soil must pass through the stage of disintegration and chemical change which can take place only under favorable conditions. There must be present moisture, heat and air. These are largely controlled by cultivation and climatic conditions. The method of cultivation which will bring about these conditions is the one that is best for the farmer who is handling the land.

Bite Each Other's Feet.

Young chicks, especially young Leghorns, often get into the habit of picking the feet of other chicks in the flock, and the moment the blood is drawn there is a regular stampede and, unless detected in time they will pick the entire feet of the victim to pieces. The only remedy is to catch the chicks that are being attacked and coat the feet with carbolated vaseline or some similar substance. The taste of it will at once discourage any further attempts.

What Protein Is.

"Protein" is a term employed to designate the compounds containing nitrogen in feeds, and is a necessary ingredient for the formation of flesh, ligaments, muscles, tendons, sinews, hair, hide and all portions of the body which have strength, including bones, which contain from 20 to 25 per cent. of a nitrogenous substance.

PEANUTS ON DRY LAND FARM

One of Best Drouth Resisting Plants—Milo Also Is Crop That Never Fails in Arid Regions.

The peanut is one of the best drouth-resisting plants, according to Prof. H. M. Cottrell. Last year in some parts of the southwest was the dryest year that has been known since the country was settled. In some parts of this section there was, in summer five weeks of severe [drou]th with burning hot winds daily. [The] peanut stopped growing, but [liv]ed; it wilted every day and fresh[e]ned every night. A rain came, the [pea]nuts filled out and stockmen got 500 [t]o 1,000 pounds of gain on hogs for each acre of peanuts pastured. This [i]n one of the dryest seasons known.

Milo is a dry land crop that never fails. Ten bushels of milo has the same feeding value as nine bushels of corn. Milo is a starchy feed like corn. In Nebraska, eastern Kansas and eastern Oklahoma the feeder uses alfalfa to balance up corn; the dry land farmer can use peanuts for the same purpose and secure equally as good results.

All the regularly grown dry farming feed crops, such as Kafir, milo and sorghum, have been deficient in oil and protein, the material necessary for making flesh, milk and blood. The peanut, one of the best drouth resisting crops, is exceedingly rich in both protein and oil.

The growing in large fields on every farm with sandy soil in the dry farming sections of Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado, and milo and Spanish peanuts, will make this territory a great producer of beef cattle, hogs and dairy products, and the feeding of these crops will insure good profits, no matter how dry the season.

Good Dry Country Advice.

One who has had long experience in Montana says:

"The potato might possibly give the best yield on new spring plowed lands. Some seasons potatoes yield well on sod land. Hulless barley is also a good crop to grow, where the moisture is uncertain. But our counsel to the beginner is to sow Scotch Fife wheat just as early as possible. If he gets a crop it will be saleable and if he does not get a crop of grain he may get a crop of grain hay. If our friend is going to try to make a home on dry land, we would urge him to get five or ten acres seeded to alfalfa as soon as possible. Dry farming is largely a wheat proposition for the man able to operate on a large scale. But if our friend can get ten acres of alfalfa seeded he may soon get so he can keep four good cows, a few chickens and a good brood sow. It will be slow and hard work establishing one's self on a dry farm without money, and even money may fail. There are a great many factors entering into dry farming."

Plant Some Popcorn.

Plant a small patch in the garden. Not only will it be a source of much satisfaction for the children next winter, but in a small way it can be marketed, especially in country towns and villages. Cultivate the same as field of sweet corn. Plant somewhat closer, and do not allow more than four stalks to remain in the hill. Of the two general varieties, white and red, choose the white, as it looks better and if to be sold finds a more ready market.

FARM NOTES.

Keep a close watch for the cut worms.

Coal ashes do not add anything to the soil.

Moles in a garden prove an intolerable nuisance.

For potato blight spray with Bordeaux mixture.

The secret of growing good cabbage lies in rich soil.

A noted gardener says: "Water the garden with a rake."

Rhubarb plants once planted continue to yield well for eight or ten years.

Beet leaf spot is one of the most common diseases of the garden beet.

Select and mark large and vigorous hills of potatoes for next season's seed.

To do their best all garden crops must have regular, thorough cultivation.

Spraying vegetables should be commenced the very moment the insects are seen.

It is better to give the crop a thorough soaking once a week than to sprinkle lightly over it.

Wood ashes and lime should be sprinkled over the garden and among the growing vegetables often.

Fine manure in the cow lot may be worked up and applied to the garden between the rows of vegetables during all summer.

Sweet corn is one of the wholesome and popular American table vegetables, and it should be had for table use from summer until after frost.

Burglar Befriended Him.

A burglar was arrested for robbing a house up the state some time since, and the next morning the victim rushed wildly into the magistrate's office. As soon as he could get his breath to working again he told the official that he had come to see about the prisoner.

"Glad you came down," was the affable response of the magistrate. "I suppose you want to appear against him."

"Well, I guess not!" exclaimed the victim with a glad smile. "I want to kiss him on the brow and give him $10. Among other things that he stole from the house was a package of love letters that I wrote to my wife before we were married."

PITIFUL SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

"A few days after birth we noticed an inflamed spot on our baby's hip which soon began spreading until baby was completely covered even in his eyes, ears and scalp. For eight weeks he was bandaged from head to foot. He could not have a stitch of clothing on. Our regular physician pronounced it chronic eczema. He is a very able physician and ranks with the best in this locality, nevertheless, the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like, as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting one application after another on him. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has as much hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't believe anyone could have eczema worse than our baby.

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would fuss until I would treat him, they semed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Rosser, Mill Hall, Pa., Feb. 20, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 20 K, Boston.

Black Bass Chews Tobacco

New Yorker Discovers Fish That Strikes at Cigar Butts and Has Taste for Nicotine.

Bartletts, N. Y.—John J. Flanagan, manager at Bartletts, has as one of his proteges a black bass which uses tobacco. The fish, being an intelligent one, does not smoke cigarettes. But it chews.

Mr. Flanagan got acquainted with the habits of the bass about a month ago. The bass' favorite loafing ground is near a power-house. Always, when Mr. Flanagan goes to the power-house, he flings the cigar he happens to be smoking away, so that there will be no danger of fire.

He flung his cigar into the water by the power-house one day and the bass made a rush for it and grabbed it, disappearing under the water. Mr. Flanagan thought little of that at the time, for on certain days bass will strike at nearly anything, while on other days the most alluring bait will not tempt them. A day or two later he flung another cigar butt into the water and the same fish rose to it and nabbed it.

After this had happened a dozen times, Mr. Flanagan was forced to the conclusion that it was not mere random hunger on the part of the bass, but a genuine taste for tobacco. Several times shreds of the cigar, much torn and raveled, have risen to the top of the water half an hour or so after the fish has grabbed them, thus showing that the intelligent bass really tried to smoke the cigar, but being handicapped by certain natural disadvantages, contented itself by merely chewing the weed.

Some of the summer boarders, after observing Mr. Flanagan's bass came to the conclusion that a natural taste for tobacco might be inborn with fish, just as it is with deer and goats. They experimented on several other fish, notably a number of catfish. The catfish, however, when put into a tub on shore, and fed small portions of navy plug chewing tobacco, became very sick at the stomach, showing every sign of nausea, and mewing pitiably. This, and other research along the same lines, with dog fish and pickerel convinced them that the black bass who hangs around the power-house is unique in his habits.

PEST OF GOPHERS IN TEXAS

Estimated That There Are 50,000,000 of Little Animals on Spur Ranch in Lone Star State.

Spur City, Tex.—Charles D. Moore is engaged in poisoning gophers on the Spur ranch of 463,000 acres, in Dickens, Kent, Garza and Crosby counties. He expresses the belief that there are about 50,000,000 of the little animals. These gophers will cut down and carry away a field of grain in a night. Their destructive propensities are wonderfully developed. They store their winter supplies in the fall. Allowing from 100 to 300 to the acre, they soon denude the land of grass or any growing vegetable or grain. They are disappearing like the Indian, buffaloes and antelopes. They can't live where the white man holds sway.

CAT UNCOVERS MUCH MONEY

Feline Thrusts Paw in Hole in Old Footstool and Draws Forth Hoard of Dead Woman.

Fort Plain, N. Y.—A cat chased a mouse under a footstool in the home of Henry Karg. The cat squeezed part way under the stool, then thrust its paw up into the hole in the bottom of the stool.

Presently down came the paw without the mouse, but with a $50 bill sticking to one of the claws. The members of the family at once suspended housekeeping to explore the hole in the footstool.

In all $675 was found stored away in the stool, which had been knocking around the house ever since the death of Grannie Karg, on February 25 last. She was known to have been of a saving disposition, but she died so suddenly she got no chance to reveal where she had stored her hoard.

Part of the treasure trove is to be spent on a monument to Grannie with a carved footstool on it.

Beer Barrels Save Life.

New York.—If Felix Madell, a five-year-old patient in an uptown hospital, lives he can thank a pyramid of beer barrels in the rear yard of his tenement-house home. He fell five stories from the roof the other night while playing leapfrog and struck the apex of the beer-barrel pyramid. The barrels rolled away under him, breaking his fall, and he slid down gradually.

Stuffed Peppers (for eight).—Three slices stale bread soaked in cold water and drained. One-half liver sausage, little parsley, small onion; salt and pepper to taste; one well-beaten egg to bind. When eggs are cheap add one or two, hard boiled.

Economical Rice Pudding.—Wash one cup rice. Cook in plenty salted boiling water; drain; add small piece of butter. Put aside.

Sauce.—One-half drawer strawberries. Simmer 20 minutes; strain juice (if quantity scant add little water and juice of one lemon); add one-half cup sugar; bring to boil. Stir one teaspoon cornstarch in a little cold water; add to boiling juice and simmer five minutes. Serve cold.

French Eggs.

Boil six eggs hard, strip off the shells, cut in quarters and arrange on a dish. Make a sauce after this recipe: Take a half of a quarter pound of fresh butter and a tablespoonful of flour, stir over the fire until it thickens; pour in slowly a pint of milk, which should be boiling, add the seasoning, boil five minutes, add the rest of the butter and a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Squeeze the juice of half a lemon over the eggs and pour the sauce over them; serve garnished with the parsley.

Butter a dish thickly with good butter, let it heat until the butter melts, break four eggs into it and sprinkle with white pepper and salt, laying thin slices of butter on top of each egg; put the dish in the oven and let remain until the whites are set, but not hard, and serve quickly; garnish with parsley.

Baked Indian Pudding.

This old-fashioned recipe requires two quarts of milk, five tablespoonfuls of Indian meal, three-quarters of a cupful of molasses, a pinch of salt, a tablespoonful of butter and a little ground ginger. Scald one quart of milk, add the molasses, butter, salt and ginger; moisten the corn meal with a little cold milk, add to the ingredients in the saucepan and scald well.

Turn into a well-buttered pudding dish and place in a very moderate oven. Add the remainder of the cold milk, a little at a time, during the baking, stirring the mixture. Bake from four to five hours and serve with hard sauce or sweet cream with a little maple sugar added.

Creole Baked Fish.

Cod or any firm-fleshed fish will answer. A middle or tail piece is best. After scraping and washing arrange on a flat pan, pour over and round it a cupful of thin tomato sauce which has been well seasoned with onions and green peppers. Bake until the flesh draws away from the bones, basting every ten minutes with more of the sauce, which is kept hot at the side of the fire. Serve with the remainder of the sauce.

Tomato Jelly Salad.

Soak half box gelatine in cold water, place one quart can tomatoes in saucepan, add one dry pepper (whole), one onion sliced, tablespoonful chopped parsley, tablespoonful chopped celery; salt to taste. Cook until onion is tender; push through strainer; bring to a boil and turn over gelatine; beat well; turn into small molds and cool. Serve on lettuce leaves and mayonnaise.

Make sandwiches of rye bread and Swiss cheese; put in oven and toast; serve immediately.

Orange Pudding.

Cut up about five oranges and cover with sugar. Boil one pint of milk, mix thoroughly one heaping tablespoon of corn starch and three tablespoons of sugar, then add the beaten yolks of three eggs. Stir this mixture into the boiling milk until it thickens. Let cool before pouring over the oranges or it will be bitter, then stir oranges and custard all together. Frost with the whites of the eggs beaten stiff and browned slightly in the oven.

"Why, certainly," he assured her.

"Well, just because I made a suggestion to him he threw all his tools in the wheelbarrow in an angry manner and went away without saying a word."

"Why, what had you said to make him act like that?"

"I just asked him to plant a few nice dandelions in the lawn."

HEART RIGHT.

When He Quit Coffee.

Life Insurance Companies will not insure a man suffering from heart trouble.

The reason is obvious.

This is a serious matter to the husband or father who is solicitous for the future of his dear ones. Often the heart trouble is caused by an unexpected thing and can be corrected if taken in time and properly treated. A man in Colorado writes:

"I was a great coffee drinker for many years, and was not aware of the injurious effects of the habit till I became a practical invalid, suffering from heart trouble, indigestion and nervousness to an extent that made me wretchedly miserable myself and a nuisance to those who witnessed my sufferings.

"I continued to drink coffee, however, not suspecting that it was the cause of my ill-health, till on applying for life insurance I was rejected on account of the trouble with my heart. Then I became alarmed. I found that leaving off coffee helped me quickly, so I quit it altogether and having been attracted by the advertisements of Postum I began its use.

"The change in my condition was remarkable. All my ailments vanished. My digestion was completely restored, my nervousness disappeared, and, most important of all, my heart steadied down and became normal, and on a second examination I was accepted by the Life Insurance Co. Quitting coffee and using Postum worked the change." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

UP TO MR. TAFT

PRESIDENT Taft is now confronted with the necessity of signing or refusing to sign a resolution admitting New Mexico and Arizona into the union as states.

This resolution, which requires both territories to vote again on certain features of their constitutions, was passed by a unanimous vote of the house of representatives and by a majority in the senate which lacked only one vote of being a three-fourths majority.

It would be to say the least a rather remarkable spectacle for the president of the United States, in the face of the united demand of half a million people and in the face of practically the solid sentiment of the United States congress to veto a measure giving statehood to these territories.

Such action by the president will be putting a false executive branch against the entire legislative branch of the federal government and the rights of the citizens of New Mexico and Arizona.

If President Taft, to save his own face, vetoes this measure and it should fail to pass over his veto, he will be directly, personally responsible for the defeat of statehood and the vanquishment of the people of the great southwest again after the most determined and persistent struggle in all the history of the statehood fight.

Does Mr. Taft want to take such a position?

THE advise from Washington that the Secretary of the Treasury in person had at last been informed of the actual conditions at Fort Stanton and that he had taken immediate action for the reorganization of the Marine Hospital came as a welcome climax to the long fight by the patients and friends of the Fort for an improvement. Fort Stanton is one of Lincoln county's long assests and the reorganization will tend to make the Fort again in condition to accomplish its orginal purpose of curing consumptive sailors.

"ROSWELL is to have another daily paper commencing with next Tuesday August 15 and if one may judge from the announcement it is going to be a 'dandy'. The new paper, the News, is to be printed on the Register-Tribune press, the Pecos valleys leading republican paper at this time and if the new paper is as good a democratic sheet as the Tribune is a republican booster, Roswell will have another organ it may well be proud of.

THERE is plenty of talk current throughout the county in favor of holding a county fair this fall at Carrizozo but the matter has not come to the point of organization as yet. We'd better get busy on this right now.

Smoker Couldn't Be Tempted

Secretary of Navy Thompson Accepted All the Cigars Offered Him, but Such Gifts Never Helped to Extract Favors.

When President Hayes, following his inauguration, sent to the United States senate his nominations for cabinet officers, the list of names included that of Richard W. Thompson of Indiana for secretary of the navy.

At once there was a great scratching of memories on the part of public men and the public generally. "Thompson?" was the universal query, "who's Thompson?" And straightway the personal friends and political acquaintances and associates of Daniel W. Voorhees, "the tall sycamore of the Wabash," who from 1877 until his death in 1897 represented Indiana in the senate, fell upon him with the question.

"Oh, that's Dick Thompson," Voorhees replied characteristically. "I know him well. I don't like his politics, but he is a splendid man." And then, when pressed for further details, he would add: "Well, we heard of him in Indiana years ago. He first went to congress in 1840, when you and I were boys. And now he's dragged back into public life, because, I suppose, the president thought it best to have as secretary of the navy a man who had never traveled by water except upon a Wabash river canal boat or an Ohio river stern-wheeler."

In sooth, when "Uncle Dick" Thompson, as he shortly became known, entered the cabinet he was unknown to the new generation, and completely forgotten by the old, despite his career in congress and his record as a federal judge in the late sixties. He was a little dried up wisp of a man. His personality was somewhat eccentric, nevertheless, he was blessed with abundant common sense. And he had an infinite capacity for tobacco. Many stories of his marvelous consumption of cigars came to be told of him, and it was said of him, that, like Seward in Lincoln's cabinet, he had been granted the privilege of smoking cigars at cabinet meetings.

Certain it was that he was a great lover of the weed, and therefore, in order to gain his favor, or to persuade it to lean their way, those who had something to ask of him as secretary of the navy frequently presented him with cigars, sometimes offering him not a cigar or two from a case or waistcoat pocket, but a box of choice Havanas. He was never known to reject such an offering, and it was equally observed by the donor that his cigars were consumed with great gusto; yet, however, they never helped to produce the desired results.

These attempts to reach Uncle Dick on his weak side had been going on for some time when one of Senator Voorhees' constituents, having some business with the navy department, asked the senator to accompany him thither and introduce him to Secretary Thompson.

"I will on one condition," replied Senator Voorhees. "You are not to take any cigars with you, or, if you have any in your pocket, you are not to offer any to Dick. I'll explain later."

The friend agreeing, he was speedily introduced to Secretary Thompson, who listened carefully to the statement that the caller had to make. Then, as the latter was preparing to leave, Uncle Dick wrinkled up his forehead and requested: "Just tell me over again, in as few words as possible, what it is that you want."

The caller complied, and hardly had he finished when the secretary exclaimed: "That is a perfectly proper request. I will give the necessary instructions, so that it will be carried out. When you are in Washington again, I shall be glad to see you."

When they were on their way from the department, Senator Voorhees explained to his constituent.

"I was right," he said. "You got what you wanted, and got it at once. He was not suspicious of you, but fond as he is of cigars, he is instantly suspicious of a visitor who comes to ask some favor and in the course of the conversation offers cigars. He will take the cigars, but I have noticed that the chances are that he will not grant the favor sought. So I asked you not to offer cigars to Dick. I am sure that if you had done so your request would have been held up, and likely denied in the end."

Uncle Dick Thompson remained as the head of the navy department until a few weeks before the expiration of President Hayes' term, when he resigned voluntarily to take a remunerative civil position. He died in 1900, when 91 years of age.

Enmity Made Political History

General Arthur's Dislike of Reuben E. Fenton Kept Latter From Being Vice-President, but Put Him in United States Senate.

A delegate to the first national convention of the Republican party, and a vice-president of that assembly, chairman of the national committee of that party during the first three campaigns it conducted, war governor of New York, then from 1863 to 1869 a United States senator, and in 1872 chairman once more of the Republican national committee, Edwin D. Morgan was a noted national figure of yesterday. Yet, long as was his career in high public positions, it would have been lengthened by six years but for the unexpected triumph of another ex-governor of the Empire state, Reuben E. Fenton, who succeeded Governor Morgan in the United States senate.

"I knew Fenton very well," said the late Colonel George Bliss of New York, my authority for this anecdote. "I first made his acquaintance when I was upon the staff of Governor Morgan in the early days of the Civil war. Chester A. Arthur served on the same staff with me. I never knew what it was that caused Arthur to dislike Fenton, who was then in congress from a western New York district and a staunch supporter of Lincoln and his policies, but I do know that had it not been for that dislike Fenton would probably have been a vice-president of the United States and Governor Morgan would have been elected to the United States senate for a second term.

"After it was apparent to one and all that General Grant would be nominated by the Republicans for the presidency in 1868," continued Colonel Bliss, "it came to General Arthur's knowledge that Fenton, who was finishing his second term as governor of the state, was very anxious to be nominated as vice-president. I am sure it was not generally known that this was Governor Fenton's ambition. But it was, and, of course, if New York stood united in the support of a candidate for vice-president, the probabilities were that the candidate would be accepted by the impending convention, for Grant was to be accredited to Illinois, and it is tradition for the Republican party, when selecting a presidential candidate from the west to look to New York for his running mate. But when Arthur heard of Fenton's ambition, he got busy and persuaded myself and two or three others that it would never do to let Fenton secure the plum he so coveted. Tom Murphy was one of the men so persuaded; Murphy, at that time, had a good deal of political power—Grant subsequently appointed him collector of the port of New York. We had a good deal of influence with the party organization up state. Arthur controlled the organization in New York city, and so, to make a long story short, we were able to prevent a majority of the New York delegation to the national convention recommending Fenton for the vice-presidential nomination. And thus Schuyler Colfax of Indiana was nominated for and became vice-president.

"When Fenton saw that he was beaten he showed no signs of disappointment. Indeed, to us who were on the other side it seemed that he took his defeat very philosophically, and we were glad, for we wanted no rumpus within the party. Had we been a few years older we probably should not have viewed the situation so complacently and looked forward so confidently to the re-election a few months hence of Morgan to the senate.

"But when the legislature met we discovered to our mingled astonishment and dismay that Fenton, in the short time that had elapsed since the wrecking of his vice-presidential aspirations, had been quietly at work and secured a majority of the legislature in favor of his election as senator to succeed Morgan. And so he gained the caucus nomination and was elected, and thereby got even with us for blocking his plans to run with Grant."

Grant As a Maker of Jokes

How, When President, He Hoaxed His Family Concerning His Choice of a Nominee for the Position of Chief Justice.

General Frederick T. Dent, father-in-law of General U. S. Grant, was a guest at the White House for several months in 1874.

During his visit Salmon P. Chase, chief justice of the United States, died, and General Dent had personal knowledge of the embarrassment and perplexity which President Grant met with in attempting to name a successor to Chief Justice Chase, whose nomination the senate would confirm.

"General Grant first offered the place to Senator Roscoe Conkling," said General Dent some years later to a group of friends, "and I know that he was very anxious that Conkling should accept it. He told us one day when we were gathered at dinner—only members of the family were present—that he had been much disturbed because he had that day received a letter from Senator Conkling in which he had declined the appointment of chief justice.

"We knew from General Grant's manner that he began then to turn over in his mind one or two other names, but did not know until the nomination was made that he had offered the place to General Caleb Cushing. General Cushing was not in good favor with the senate, and that nomination was withdrawn. I never heard General Grant express any opinion which would indicate that he was disappointed at the failure of Cushing's nomination. But I feel certain that he was considerably chagrined when he found that the senate would not confirm the nomination of George H. Williams of Oregon, who was at that time in the cabinet.

"What happened all of the time got quite excited over the matter. My daughter, Mrs. Sharp, was very much more interested in the matter than she had ever been previously to any appointment or rejection of cabinet officers; I suppose that was because she looked upon the cabinet as almost a part of the White House family.

"Well, one evening, when there was no one at dinner but the family and the guests at the White House, we thought that General Grant seemed a little preoccupied. We were certain that he was thinking over the chief justiceship, wondering whose name he should next send to the senate. At last Mrs. Grant asked him if he had made up his mind whom to nominate, and in reply he said that he had about made up his mind.

"'Who is it? Tell us, won't you? We are getting greatly interested,' Mrs. Grant said.

"'Don't you think you can wait until I have made the appointment?' General Grant asked.

"'I really wish you would tell us tonight,' Mrs. Grant persisted.

"'Oh, wait,' said the general, 'wait until tomorrow.'

"The next day General Grant sent to the senate the nomination of Morrison R. Waite of Ohio, having been assured that it would be confirmed unanimously. That evening, at dinner, Mrs. Grant said to him:

"'Why didn't you tell us yesterday that you were going to make this nomination?'

"'Why, I did tell you,' General Grant replied.

"'You surely are mistaken; we asked you, and you wouldn't tell us,' my daughter answered.

"'I certainly did tell you,' the general insisted. 'I said, "Waite." It wasn't my fault if you did not understand me.'

"Then, of course, we all had a hearty laugh, none enjoying the joke that he had made more than General Grant himself."

BEAUTY'S CHIEF FOES

MENTAL INFLUENCE MORE SERIOUS THAN PHYSICAL ILLS.

What the Face Expresses Is of More Moment Than Shape of Nose or Brilliancy of the Complexion.

That there are many physical foes to beauty, everyone knows—wrong food, bad ventilation, insufficient sleep and a host of other ills. They will damage one's physical good looks to a considerable extent. But far more serious in their effects are the mental foes to beauty. For the spirit is more than the body, and what the face expresses is of more moment than the shape of the nose or the brilliancy of the complexion.

The fact, physically attractive, but spoiled by its expression, is familiar. Many a girl with faultless features and a rose-leaf complexion spoils all their beauty by a peevish, discontented or vapid expression. On the other hand, many a girl with a snub nose and a sallow complexion wins all by the sunny lovableness of her face. The expression counts very large in summing up the factors that compose beauty.

In the quest, then, for beauty that so many women go upon ceaselessly, this matter of the value of mentality should be taken into account. If those who seek beauty will acquire right mental states, they will do as much, perhaps more, toward accomplishing their desire as they will by securing the right masseuse or the right facial cream.

The mental states that are foes to beauty are many. We all indulge in them more or less, and by so doing detract to just that extent from the beauty we are trying to acquire. Again, anger, irritability, envy, jealousy, hatred, fear, suspicion, depression—all these and many others of the same nature have a bad effect upon the looks.

It is now known that these mental states affect us physically, and thus in a physical way they react upon our appearance, through the digestion, the liver, the nerves, and other organs. But they have also, in addition, a direct effect upon the countenance. They bring lines. They cause the corners of the mouth to droop. In time they will actually change the shape of the nose and the contour of the eye. We all know the fretful mouth, the furtive eye, the inquisitive nose. And none of these things are beautiful.

The woman, therefore, who desires beauty should not only give her attention to the physical necessities for it, but also to those that are mental. And as mental states are altogether within one's power to control, no woman need feel that the quest for beauty for her is hopeless. By acquiring right mental states she will first of all affect herself physically, so that her complexion, her eyes, her lips, her whole physical self, will improve. But most important of all, she can give her face the spiritual beauty which outweighs all else in the final count for charm.—Barbara Boyd, in the Chicago Post.

MAGNETIC THIMBLE IS LATEST

Enables One to Pick Up a Needle Without Getting Out of Temper.

An ingenious novelty in the form of a magnetic thimble is shown in the cut, the object being to enable one to pick up a needle readily without getting out of temper. A little horseshoe magnet is fastened to the thimble, the ends projecting slightly beyond the end but not interfering with the ordinary use of the thimble. This Scarfs and Bags.

Among the summer accessories are some charmingly novel scarfs with bags to match. One is of exquisitely fine cotton voile in a creamy white with a narrow border of Egyptian embroidery done in the striking colors that always distinguish this sort of decoration. An effect that is equally good, though in a different way, is obtained with a pure white fabric and embroideries of silk and beads in delicate tones of blue and green.

LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT

Wardrobe Trifles That Tell Whether the Wearer Is Careful and Neat.

Look at the fit of a guimpe and you can tell whether the wearer is careful and neat. It should be loose enough to insure a perfect fastening at the back. It should be pulled down at both front and back and pinned in place, if necessary. Then there is the fastening on the dress. The eyes or plaits should always be sufficiently in from the edge of the under flap so that no sight of them is possible.

The fastening of your glove is a little thing, but it tells much. First, it should be fastened; otherwise why the buttons? Next, the first button should be below the palm at the wrist line. The opening should never be in the center of the palm. If it is, your glove is too small.

A silk petticoat is not worth very much if it shows a frayed edge. One little piece of the torn ruffle will counterbalance any rustle that you may hear.

The vents of all skirts, under or outer, should be carefully considered. Buttons are the best, especially on wash dresses, and be sure to have enough of them.

Yes, it's the little things that are important!

Beaded Designs Retain Popularity.

Beading is much used on all styles of dressy and lingerie waists, and this form of elaboration is also in evidence on the cotton voile and marquisette models. UP TO MR. TAFT

PRESIDENT Taft is now confronted with the necessity of signing or refusing to sign a resolution admitting New Mexico and Arizona into the union as states.

This resolution, which requires both territories to vote again on certain features of their constitutions, was passed by a unanimous vote of the house of representatives and by a majority in the senate which lacked only one vote of being a three-fourths majority.

It would be to say the least a rather remarkable spectacle for the president of the United States, in the face of the united demand of half a million people and in the face of practically the solid sentiment of the United States congress to veto a measure giving statehood to these territories.

Such action by the president will be putting a false executive branch against the entire legislative branch of the federal government and the rights of the citizens of New Mexico and Arizona.

If President Taft, to save his own face, vetoes this measure and it should fail to pass over his veto, he will be directly, personally responsible for the defeat of statehood and the vanquishment of the people of the great southwest again after the most determined and persistent struggle in all the history of the statehood fight.

Does Mr. Taft want to take such a position?

THE advise from Washington that the Secretary of the Treasury in person had at last been informed of the actual conditions at Fort Stanton and that he had taken immediate action for the reorganization of the Marine Hospital came as a welcome climax to the long fight by the patients and friends of the Fort for an improvement. Fort Stanton is one of Lincoln county's long assests and the reorganization will tend to make the Fort again in condition to accomplish its orginal purpose of curing consumptive sailors.

ROSWELL is to have another daily paper commencing with next Tuesday August 15 and if one may judge from the announcement it is going to be a 'dandy'. The new paper, the News, is to be printed on the Register-Tribune press, the Pecos valleys leading republican paper at this time and if the new paper is as good a democratic sheet as the Tribune is a republican booster, Roswell will have another organ it may well be proud of.

THERE is plenty of talk current throughout the county in favor of holding a county fair this fall at Carrizozo but the matter has not come to the point of organization as yet. We'd better get busy on this right now.

Smoker Couldn't Be Tempted

Secretary of Navy Thompson Accepted All the Cigars Offered Him, but Such Gifts Never Helped to Extract Favors.

When President Hayes, following his inauguration, sent to the United States senate his nominations for cabinet officers, the list of names included that of Richard W. Thompson of Indiana for secretary of the navy.

At once there was a great scratching of memories on the part of public men and the public generally. "Thompson?" was the universal query, "who's Thompson?" And straightway the personal friends and political acquaintances and associates of Daniel W. Voorhees, "the tall sycamore of the Wabash," who from 1877 until his death in 1897 represented Indiana in the senate, fell upon him with the question.

"Oh, that's Dick Thompson," Voorhees replied characteristically. "I know him well. I don't like his politics, but he is a splendid man." And then, when pressed for further details, he would add: "Well, we heard of him in Indiana years ago. He first went to congress in 1840, when you and I were boys. And now he's dragged back into public life, because, I suppose, the president thought it best to have as secretary of the navy a man who had never traveled by water except upon a Wabash river canal boat or an Ohio river stern-wheeler."

In sooth, when "Uncle Dick" Thompson, as he shortly became known, entered the cabinet he was unknown to the new generation, and completely forgotten by the old, despite his career in congress and his record as a federal judge in the late sixties. He was a little dried up wisp of a man. His personality was somewhat eccentric, nevertheless, he was blessed with abundant common sense. And he had an infinite capacity for tobacco. Many stories of his marvelous consumption of cigars came to be told of him, and it was said of him that, like Seward in Lincoln's cabinet, he had been granted the privilege of smoking cigars at cabinet meetings.

Certain it was that he was a great lover of the weed, and therefore, in order to gain his favor, or to persuade it to lean their way, those who had something to ask of him as secretary of the navy frequently presented him with cigars, sometimes offering him not a cigar or two from a case or waistcoat pocket, but a box of choice Havanas. He was never known to reject such an offering, and it was equally observed by the donor that his cigars were consumed with great gusto; yet, however, they never helped to produce the desired results.

These attempts to reach Uncle Dick on his weak side had been going on for some time when one of Senator Voorhees' constituents, having some business with the navy department, asked the senator to accompany him thither and introduce him to Secretary Thompson.

"I will on one condition," replied Senator Voorhees. "You are not to take any cigars with you, or, if you have any in your pocket, you are not to offer any to Dick. I'll explain later."

The friend agreeing, he was speedily introduced to Secretary Thompson, who listened carefully to the statement that the caller had to make. Then, as the latter was preparing to leave, Uncle Dick wrinkled up his forehead and requested: "Just tell me over again, in as few words as possible, what it is that you want."

The caller complied, and hardly had he finished when the secretary exclaimed: "That is a perfectly proper request. I will give the necessary instructions, so that it will be carried out. When you are in Washington again, I shall be glad to see you."

When they were on their way from the department, Senator Voorhees explained to his constituent.

"I was right," he said. "You got what you wanted, and got it at once. He was not suspicious of you, but fond as he is of cigars, he is instantly suspicious of a visitor who comes to ask some favor and in the course of the conversation offers cigars. He will take the cigars, but I have noticed that the chances are that he will not grant the favor sought. So I asked you not to offer cigars to Dick. I am sure that if you had done so your request would have been held up, and likely denied in the end."

Uncle Dick Thompson remained as the head of the navy department until a few weeks before the expiration of President Hayes' term, when he resigned voluntarily to take a remunerative civil position. He died in 1900, when 91 years of age.

Enmity Made Political History

General Arthur's Dislike of Reuben E. Fenton Kept Latter From Being Vice-President, but Put Him in United States Senate.

A delegate to the first national convention of the Republican party, and a vice-president of that assembly, chairman of the national committee of that party during the first three campaigns it conducted, war governor of New York, then from 1863 to 1869 a United States senator, and in 1872 chairman once more of the Republican national committee, Edwin D. Morgan was a noted national figure of yesterday. Yet, long as was his career in high public positions, it would have been lengthened by six years but for the unexpected triumph of another ex-governor of the Empire state, Reuben E. Fenton, who succeeded Governor Morgan in the United States senate.

"I knew Fenton very well," said the late Colonel George Bliss of New York, my authority for this anecdote. "I first made his acquaintance when I was upon the staff of Governor Morgan in the early days of the Civil war. Chester A. Arthur served on the same staff with me. I never knew what it was that caused Arthur to dislike Fenton, who was then in congress from a western New York district and a staunch supporter of Lincoln and his policies, but I do know that had it not been for that dislike Fenton would probably have been a vice-president of the United States and Governor Morgan would have been elected to the United States senate for a second term.

"After it was apparent to one and all that General Grant would be nominated by the Republicans for the presidency in 1868," continued Colonel Bliss, "it came to General Arthur's knowledge that Fenton, who was finishing his second term as governor of the state, was very anxious to be nominated as vice-president. I am sure it was not generally known that this was Governor Fenton's ambition. But it was, and, of course, if New York stood united in the support of a candidate for vice-president, the probabilities were that the candidate would be accepted by the impending convention, for Grant was to be accredited to Illinois, and it is tradition for the Republican party, when selecting a presidential candidate from the west to look to New York for his running mate. But when Arthur heard of Fenton's ambition, he got busy and persuaded myself and two or three others that it would never do to let Fenton secure the plum he so coveted. Tom Murphy was one of the men so persuaded; Murphy, at that time, had a good deal of political power—Grant subsequently appointed him collector of the port of New York. We had a good deal of influence with the party organization up state. Arthur controlled the organization in New York city, and so, to make a long story short, we were able to prevent a majority of the New York delegation to the national convention recommending Fenton for the vice-presidential nomination. And thus Schuyler Colfax of Indiana was nominated for and became vice-president.

"When Fenton saw that he was beaten he showed no signs of disappointment. Indeed, to us who were on the other side it seemed that he took his defeat very philosophically, and we were glad, for we wanted no rumpus within the party. Had we been a few years older we probably should not have viewed the situation so complacently and looked forward so confidently to the re-election a few months hence of Morgan to the senate.

"But when the legislature met we discovered to our mingled astonishment and dismay that Fenton, in the short time that had elapsed since the wrecking of his vice-presidential aspirations, had been quietly at work and secured a majority of the legislature in favor of his election as senator to succeed Morgan. And so he gained the caucus nomination and was elected, and thereby got even with us for blocking his plans to run with Grant."

Grant As a Maker of Jokes

How, When President, He Hoaxed His Family Concerning His Choice of a Nominee for the Position of Chief Justice.

General Frederick T. Dent, father-in-law of General U. S. Grant, was a guest at the White House for several months in 1874.

During his visit Salmon P. Chase, chief justice of the United States, died, and General Dent had personal experience of the embarrassment and [illegible] which President Grant met with in attempting to name a successor to Chief Justice Chase, whose nomination the senate would confirm.

"[illegible] Grant first offered the [illegible] Senator Roscoe Conkling," said General Dent some years later to a coterie of friends, "and I know that he was very anxious that Conkling should accept it. He told us one afternoon we were gathered at dinner [illegible] members of the family were present—that he had been much disappointed because he had that day received a letter from Senator Conkling in which he had declined the office of chief justice.

"I knew from General Grant's manner that he began then to turn over in his mind one or two other names, though I did not know until the nomination was made that he had offered the place to General Caleb Cushing. General Cushing was not in good favor in the senate, and that nomination was withdrawn. I never heard General Grant express any opinion which would indicate that he was disappointed at the failure of Cushing's confirmation. But I feel certain that he was considerably chagrined when he found that the senate would not confirm the nomination of George H. Williams of Oregon, who was at that time in the cabinet.

"[illegible] happened all of the ladies got quite excited over the matter. My daughter, Mrs. [illegible], was very much more interested in the matter than she had ever been previously to any appointment [illegible] of cabinet officers; I suppose that was because she looked upon the cabinet as almost a part of the White House family.

"Well, one evening, when there was no one at dinner but the family and the guests at the White House, we thought that General Grant seemed a little preoccupied. We were certain that he was thinking over the chief justiceship, wondering whose name he should next send to the senate. At last Mrs. Grant asked him if he had made up his mind whom to nominate, and in reply he said that he had about made up his mind.

"'Who is it? Tell us, won't you? We are getting greatly interested,' Mrs. Grant said.

"'Don't you think you can wait until I have made the appointment?' General Grant asked.

"'I really wish you would tell us tonight,' Mrs. Grant persisted.

"'Oh, wait,' said the general. 'Wait until tomorrow.'

"The next day General Grant sent to the senate the nomination of Morrison R. Waite of Ohio, having been assured that it would be confirmed unanimously. That evening, at dinner, Mrs. Grant said to him:

"'Why didn't you tell us yesterday that you were going to make this nomination?'

"'Why, I did tell you,' General Grant replied.

"'You surely are mistaken; we asked you, and you wouldn't tell us,' my daughter answered.

"'I certainly did tell you,' the general insisted. 'I said "Waite." It wasn't my fault if you did not understand me.'

"Then, of course, we all had a hearty laugh, none enjoying the joke that he had made more than General Grant himself."

BEAUTY'S CHIEF FOES

MENTAL INFLUENCE MORE SERIOUS THAN PHYSICAL ILLS.

What the Face Expresses Is of More Moment Than Shape of Nose or Brilliancy of the Complexion.

That there are many physical foes to beauty, everyone knows—wrong food, bad ventilation, insufficient sleep and a host of other ills. They will damage one's physical good looks to a considerable extent. But far more serious in their effects are the mental foes to beauty. For the spirit is more than the body, and what the face expresses is of more moment than the shape of the nose or the brilliancy of the complexion.

The fact, physically attractive, but spoiled by its expression, is familiar. Many a girl with faultless features and a rose-leaf complexion spoils all their beauty by a peevish, discontented or rapid expression. On the other hand, many a girl with a snub nose and a sallow complexion wins all by the sunny lovableness of her face. The expression counts very large in summing up the factors that compose beauty.

In the quest, then, for beauty that so many women go upon ceaselessly, this matter of the value of mentality should be taken into account. If those who seek beauty will acquire right mental states, they will do as much, perhaps more, toward accomplishing their desire as they will by securing the right masseuse or the right facial cream.

The mental states that are foes to beauty are many. We all indulge in them more or less, and by so doing detract to just that extent from the beauty we are trying to acquire. Again, anger, irritability, envy, jealousy, hatred, fear, suspicion, depression—all these and many others of the same nature have a bad effect upon the looks.

It is now known that these mental states affect us physically, and thus in a physical way they react upon our appearance, through the digestion, the liver, the nerves, and other organs. But they have also, in addition, a direct effect upon the countenance. They bring lines. They cause the corners of the mouth to droop. In time they will actually change the shape of the nose and the contour of the eye. We all know the fretful mouth, the furtive eye, the inquisitive nose. And none of these things are beautiful.

The woman, therefore, who desires beauty should not only give her attention to the physical necessities for it, but also to those that are mental. And as mental states are altogether within one's power to control, no woman need feel that the quest for beauty for her is hopeless. By acquiring right mental states she will first of all affect herself physically, so that her complexion, her eyes, her lips, her whole physical self, will improve. But most important of all, she can give her face the spiritual beauty which outweighs all else in the final count for charm.—Barbara Boyd, in the Chicago Post.

An ingenious novelty in the form of a magnetic thimble is shown in the cut, the object being to enable one to pick up a needle readily without getting out of temper. Scarfs and Bags.

Among the summer accessories are some charmingly novel scarfs with bags to match. One is of exquisitely fine cotton voile in a creamy white with a narrow border of Egyptian embroidery done in the striking colors that always distinguish this sort of decoration. An effect that is equally good, though in a different way, is obtained with a pure white fabric and embroideries of silk and beads in delicate tones of blue and green.

LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT

Wardrobe Trifles That Tell Whether the Wearer Is Careful and Neat.

Look at the fit of a guimpe and you can tell whether the wearer is careful and neat. It should be loose enough to insure a perfect fastening at the back. It should be pulled down at both front and back and pinned in place, if necessary. Then there is the fastening on the dress. The eyes or plaits should always be sufficiently in from the edge of the under flap so that no sight of them is possible.

The fastening of your glove is a little thing, but it tells much. First, it should be fastened; otherwise why the buttons? Next, the first button should be below the palm at the wrist line. The opening should never be in the center of the palm. If it is, your glove is too small.

A silk petticoat is not worth very much if it shows a frayed edge. One little piece of the torn ruffle will counterbalance any rustle that you may hear.

The vents of all skirts, under or outer, should be carefully considered. Buttons are the best, especially on wash dresses, and be sure to have enough of them.

Yes, it's the little things that are important!

OSCURO OBSERVINGS

Last Thursday evening a dead man was found on the railroad right-of-way six miles south of this place by a train crew passing by. The fact was reported to Carrizozo when the train arrived there and in the absence of the local Justice of the Peace, Ed. Massie, of Carrizozo drove down and enpaneled a jury consisting of Jno. H. Boyd, J. B. Leasure, R. L. Ransom, J. E. Harris, J. H. Kinmen and J. W. Pursley. The jury found that it was impossible to identify the man and returned a report that he died from unknown causes He was buried in the local cemetery. The deceased, was an elderly man and had stopped in Oscuro two days before and had been fed. He had told Oscuro people that he was 82 years old and was headed for El Paso where he anticipated the receipt of some money.

The farmers hereabouts report their crops as doing well but they all hope for more rain at an early date.

A card has been received from J. I. Hinkle stating that he lost a roll of bedding on his way home to Haderman from here. This is the last of a series of mishaps that have befallen Mr. Hinkle on his Ruidosa camping trips. Four years ago while camping here his camp was entirely burned out; he did not return again till this year and sent a wagon on ahead with supplies a day or two in advance and came up with his family in their auto later The missed the wagon on the road in some way and beat it here several days and found camping out without bedding or provisions pretty hard. We wish him better luck next trip

VALUABLE READING

I CONTEND it pays to read the Bible," said Dave Leahy, secretary to Governor Stubbs, of Kansas. "It is good for the morals of every man and woman—and it is great literature." Also, it pays in other ways.

"A good many years ago I was running a paper in a small town in the southern part of the state. My partner was a young fellow who knew about the business and mechanical ends of the plant. I was the editor. It was tough going. One day we got to a place where we had to have ten dollars to get some paper out of the express office or we could not issue our palladium of the liberties of the people thereabouts. I had no ten My partner had no ten There wasn't a dime between us. However, that was his lookout I was writing a powerful editorial article and I wanted to use a quotation from the Bible. I looked around the office for one. There was none. So I yelled out to my partner to go and buy a Bible at the bookstore near by. He told me he couldn't buy a sandwich—much less a Bible.

"Well," I said, "I've got to have a Bible so I can round out this gem of English prose I am composing. Go out and rustle for one"

"He started out; and while browsing around, trying to borrow one, he remembered his mother had given him a nice new Bible when he left home. He galloped up to his boarding place, found the Bible and brought it back to the office

"As I was running through the leaves to find the verse I wanted, what do you think I found? A ten-dollar bill his mother had put there when he left home! That was just enough to take our white paper out of the express office; and the people were thus providentially not deprived of their weekly message of cheer, instruction, admonition and advice—which would have been disastrous, for that was a whale of an editorial!" —Sat. Eve Post.

THE NEW CARTOON.

A local philosopher, laughing over one of Ralph Wilder's cartoons in THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD the other day, remarked that the cartoon is mightier than the sermon. Certainly the humorous picture that has come to be so popular a feature of the big city newspaper often hits off the news of the hour with a veritable stroke of genius

The whole art of the cartoonist has become more kindly, less slashing, than in the days when Thomas Nast began it. The cartoonist no longer hits somebody over the head for your amusement, but tickles you under your own ribs somewhere near the heart. He does it by illustrating the little humors of human nature, of domestic life, of boy nature, of feminine foibles—any sort of homely joke that both husband and wife can laugh over at the breakfast table.

One of the gentlest, cleverest and happiest cartoonists of this new school is Ralph Wilder, whose daily picture on the front page of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD is an unfailing delight. Mr. Wilder's drawing is unsurpassed, and his humor, if not sidesplitting, always has a "point" with a smile in it His pictures help to brighten life and send one to one's own task more cheerily. They help to explain why THE RECORD-HERALD is the favorite family newspaper in the West.

BELIEVES IN DEEP WELLS

H. V. Plant, who, on last Monday made final proof on his homestead situated at Polly will leave in a few days on a trip through New Mexico, in the tyvewriter business. He has selected a site on his claim for a deep well and has also picked out a place for a five-room bungalow on his land. He will begin work on both as soon as conditions are favorable. In putting down a well, he thinks it best to drill 100 to 200 feet below the first flow of water incountered; believing that a stronger flow of softer water would thus be obtained and that it would probably rise near enough to the surface to be availabale for irrigation purposes by pumping.

Plant is an enthusiast over this country and expects this valley to "come back" rapidly in the next few years.

HOW TO MAKE A SAIL WAGON

Does Not Take Average Boy Long to Arrange One to Suit Himself—General Description.

In Fig. 1 the sail wagon is shown complete with an end view at "a" showing the steering arrangement. A board about 3 feet, 6 inches in length, by 18 inches across and about one-half or three-quarters inch thick, is cut into a shape something like an ironing board, narrower at one end than at the other. A one-inch piece of board is secured to the front end to give strength for the mast and steering gear.

One pair of large wheels and one pair of small ones must be procured or made as described further on. The large wheels and axle can be secured to the bottom board by means of two blocks of wood as shown in Fig. 1 and Fig. 2, the latter being a view of the under side of the wagon.

The two small wheels must be rigged up a little differently. A board about the same thickness as the axle is shaped at one end into a round handle, which should fit loosely into a bored hole in the front end of the wagon. The broad end of this board rests on the axle, and is bolted to two pieces of board the same width, which come down on the front and rear sides of the axle, and are bolted to it, Fig. 2, A, A. The fifth-wheel bearing is made out of tough wood, and placed so that the steering wheel turns easily (Fig. "a") A round stick is put through the stern of the piece, to press the feet against when steering (Fig. 1 "b").

Some boys make a rail (Fig. 1, "c") around the end, that they sit on.

The mast can be made from a round stick about 4 feet, 6 inches long. A broom handle will do for the cross arm, to which the sail is attached. The sail should be so arranged that it can be very quickly lowered should the wind get the best of the wagon.

Should it be found inconvenient readily to procure a set of discarded baby buggy or express wagon wheels, they can easily be made by an ingenious boy as shown in Fig. 3. A hub is made from a round block of wood, as shown at "c," and round sticks, cut from light curtain poles or broom handles, made into spokes as at "b," care being taken to get them all the same length. The rim is made from barrel hoops, although some boys make them of thin wood, well soaked in warm water and bent into shape. A nail or screw is put through the rim at each spoke, as shown at "a," the completed wheel.

While this is a general description of a sail wagon, it does not take the average boy long to make one to suit himself out of almost any old thing he is sure to find about the place. It is interesting to notice the many and different designs of wagons and sails when once the craze is started. Smooth roads, an open space and plenty of wind is all that is necessary for a successful sail-wagon race.

AIR CUSHIONS AID SWIMMER

Apparatus Designed by German Master Enables Person to Move About in Water Freely.

The swimming apparatus designed by a German swimming master is both for trained swimmers and those ignorant of the art. When out of use, this apparatus is readily carried in the pocket, says the Popular Mechanics. It consists of two oblong air cushions, each subdivided into five compartments which are connected together by transversal straps. Before putting on the apparatus, which consists of thin caoutchouc lined with a dense fabric, it is inflated through a valve, within a few seconds, by a few strong breaths.

Being arranged on both sides of the body, the apparatus leaves the head and neck perfectly free, thus doing away with any pendulating motions characteristic of most salvage apparatus. The person equipped with the apparatus moves about in the water with remarkable safety and stability. A special advantage of the apparatus is its allowing the swimmer at will to take up a vertical or horizontal position, thus enabling him to remain in the water for hours without fatigue.

The Truth.

Father and son were walking the streets and passed a large park in which were many statues. One of them—the largest of all—was of a woman.

"Father, what is that?" asked the son, pointing to this particular one, which was inscribed "Woman."

"That is not a statue, my son," answered the father. "It is but a figure of speech."—Life.

MAKES CYCLE LOOK UNIQUE

An American Eagle.

The United States transport Buford, on its way from China to San Francisco, rescued an American eagle in distress far out at sea. The national bird had probably come from Alaska, the nearest land, and it was so tired that it would soon have fallen into the sea if the steamer had not appeared. It alighted in the rigging and a sailor climbed up and caught it. It was put in a cage and carried with the steamer to San Francisco.

PREPARE FOR DROUTH

Farmer Must Pay Particular Attention to Soil and Crop.

Perhaps Most Important Consideration in Connection With Moisture Conservation Is Plowing—Use Disk and Harrow.

(By H. F. PATTERSON, Montana Experiment Station.)

It is not possible for anyone to foretell the season and it is not the purpose of this article to try to predict the amount of rainfall during the coming spring and summer months. The season of 1910 was very dry in nearly all parts of the United States; previous to 1910 we had a number of very wet years. A good many authorities are of the opinion that the wet and the dry seasons alternate. It is not the purpose of this article to leave this impression, for the writer has not access to the precipitation tables over a long enough period. He does not know whether the coming season will be dry, or wet, but, in the event that it is dry, it is well to be prepared for it. Then, if it should turn off wet, the extra labor would still bring one in good returns.

To protect himself against a dry season the farmer must pay particular attention to the method of handling the soil and to the crops that are planted. It has been stated that the equivalent of about seven inches of rainfall can be stored in the soil by proper methods of cultivation. If this amount of water is saved and if then there is any rainfall during the growing season, one is quite sure to have good yields. If, however, the soil is not properly prepared and moisture has not been saved, and if then it turns off dry, there is nothing to do but to fail.

Perhaps the most important consideration in connection with moisture preservation is the plowing. The land should be plowed as early in the spring as possible. It should be plowed to a good depth and the plow should be followed immediately with the disk and the harrow. The disk will pack down the land, fill up the air spaces, aid in decaying the organic matter, and the harrow will place a dust mulch over the surface. This dust mulch will act as a cover and prevent the evaporation of moisture.

Whether or not it will pay to seed a crop upon this newly plowed land is difficult to say. In some instances a quick-growing crop would give a yield and in many instances it would not. In order to be on the safe side it is suggested that the land should be summer fallowed the first season and seeded the next fall or the next spring.

The second consideration that means success or failure in a dry region is the crop that is grown. Crops that are especially well adapted to the dry land areas should be used. The quick-growing varieties seem to give the best results. There are both winter and spring varieties of quickly maturing grains. The Turkey Red wheat seems to be very desirable for fall seeding. The seed should be sown quite early in the fall. This will give opportunity for a good root development. Then again, the fall sowing permits the grain to start very early the next spring. Because of these characteristics Turkey Red wheat will mature before the dry weather of July and August. If one is to sow a spring-grown crop he should also secure a variety that will mature in as short a time as possible and one that has a hardy root growth. These characteristics will tide the plant over a dry spell and no doubt will mature a crop.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the method of handling the land and in choosing the varieties of grain that are used.

Humus in Orchard Soil.

The humus loosens the soil particles which in turn increases its water capacity. The humus is essential for the growth of the beneficial bacteria in the soil. One of the most important parts that a cover crop plays is its ability to change chemically the compounds of the soil and put them in an available form for the trees. The clover crop gathers, digests and turns over to the trees the plant food which it has stored.

Save Many Trees.

Trees that have been out of the ground for a long time may be frequently saved by immersing the roots for two or three hours before planting in water to which is added a small quantity of finely pulverized bone or super-phosphate of lime.

Price of Horses.

At a recent sale of saddle horses held at Mexico, Mo., the horse Jack o' Diamonds was bought by George Snyder, of Allentown, Pa., for $960 and

GROW ALFALFA ON DRY LAND

Excellent Plan to Select Strain That Grows Coarse, Strong Stalk—Drill Seed Carefully.

In adapting alfalfa to dry farming a very good plan is to select a strain that grows a coarse, strong stalk, use the same strain of seed year after year and thus adapt the plant to local conditions. We would prefer to pay a dollar a pound for seed grown several years under such conditions than to use seed at market prices that has not been acclimated. The alfalfa seed from Turkestan which the agricultural department foisted on us several years ago is not suited to high table lands and does better in fields under irrigation which is just contrary to the dope that was handed out to us by the alleged scientists, says the Denver Field and Farm. We should say that a sufficient quantity to sow on dry land is to drill in eight pounds of seed the acre, using any of the up-to-date styles of corn planters that carry an onion seed plate with holes thirteen sixty-fourths of an inch in diameter. Drill the seed carefully to the depth of an inch. The soil should be in perfect condition to assure germination of a full and even stand. Having drilled the seed with a two-row corn planter, the drills are just right to be cultivated with a common two-row riding plow. The shovels should be run to a depth of three inches and thus compel the alfalfa roots to keep below the three-inch soil mulch. It will probably be necessary to cultivate five times during the season and also to break the soil crust after each rain so as to lessen the loss of moisture. Early in the season until the growth is six inches in height harrow across the rows with a slant-tooth drag.

GOOD OATS FOR DRY FARMING

Best Plan to Sow Two Varieties, Kherson for Early Crop and Swedish Select for Late.

(By J. E. PAYNE, Colorado Agricultural College.)

Of the many varieties of oats which we have tested on irrigated land, the Kherson and Sixty-day have generally made the best yields of grain. This has been because these varieties are early-maturing. Usually, the earliest variety of oats will give the best results on unirrigated land; but some years the drought comes just as the early varieties are heading or filling. They are then cut short. It often happens that rain comes just a few days too late to make the early oats fill well. In such a time, a variety which ripens ten days or two weeks later will be heading just at the right time to be benefited by the rain which was too late for the early variety. In this case, the later variety will make a good crop when the early one will fail. With these facts before us, we can see that it is a good plan to sow two varieties of oats: Kherson for early, and Swedish Select, or Colorado No. 37, for the late variety; then, if drought strikes either variety, it may give a small yield of hay. The later varieties of oats will usually make more straw than the early ones, so they may be planted for hay. Land which has been in corn the year before, and has been given clean cultivation, will usually furnish a good seedbed for oats by double-disking the corn stubble.

FARM NOTES.

Onions, cabbage, and tomatoes are good crops for the owner of an acre tract.

Next to the mowing machine in importance in alfalfa harvest is the side delivery rake.

Once a week all manure should be cleaned away from the barns and all refuse disposed of.

Keep up your dust mulch. The late vegetables will suffer severely for moisture during the dry, hot weather if you neglect this.

An acre of good sorghum should produce three to five tons of fair hay.

When watering plants do not force water against the plant; let it fall in the form of a shower.

If you have some fine tomato vines on which the fruit is being sun-scalded fix them up a little shade.

After the hay is off the meadow we can see its thin spaces better. Get busy with the manure spreader.

The succulent grasses are rich in muscle and bone forming materials, and are loosening and cooling to the system.

During the hot weather the garden should receive very frequent cultivation to keep down the weeds and conserve the moisture.

Every gardener should now "make hay while the sun shines." It is very essential that we cultivate our plants while they are young.

Cucumbers for pickles should be picked every alternate day at least. Cut them, but never pull them off, as the vines are liable to be injured.

As soon as the crop appears above

A New Sensation.

Little Jean had visited one of the large summer amusement parks for the first time, and with the courage possessed only by those girls whose playmates are boys and girls older than themselves, she had not hesitated, when invited, to take a ride on one of the "thrillers" that abound in such places.

To her mother, on her return from the park, she confided the emotions she had experienced as she swept round the curves of the "figure eight" with her elder brothers.

A Quaint Thought.

Miss Geraldine Farrar, seated in her deck chair on the George Washington, regarded a half-dozen urchins playing on the sunny deck, and then said with a pensive smile:

CHANGING BEE-HIVE FRAMES

Not a Difficult Matter to Convert Eight-Frame Affair Into Ten-Frame Structure.

I have, at different times, met with an uncalled-for objection to the eight-frame hive, the objection reading something like this: "You can make an eight-frame hive out of a ten-frame hive, but you can not make a ten-frame hive out of an eight-frame hive." In a way this is correct, writes G. W. Joice of Montpelier, Ohio, in the Gleanings in Bee Culture. One can not make ten frames out of eight frames of like proportions; but one can change an eight-frame hive so that it will accommodate the furnishings of a ten or twelve-frame hive.

To do the work you need a square, a saw, and a plane, something like what we use to match boards for floors—the tongue and groove plane. Mark your hive with a straight line, perpendicular to and parallel with the locked corners of the dovetailed hive, somewhat nearer one corner than the other, so that you will not have the grooved hand-hole to work with. Saw the end of the hive on the line, and groove the edge of each side of the newly sawed end. Take a ⅞-inch board of the proper length (height of the hive-body), and the proper width, which will vary according to whether you wish a ten or twelve frame hive, and work this board down with a tongue on each side and the rabbet at the top end, and place the same board between the now two-pieced ends of the hive-body. Nail one of the hive-cleats (such as Dr. Miller uses) at the top of the hive and another near the bottom, and put a ten-frame tin rabbet in place of the former eight-frame one.

CARE IN CORN CULTIVATION

Soil Should Be Stirred Frequently to Create Dust Mulch and Maintain Moisture About Roots.

The illustration shows why deep cultivation of corn after the root systems have been formed is destructive. After the corn is well started, the roots spread out often from one row to another, interlacing in the middle. A plow ripping along between the rows at a depth of from 5 to 8 inches will cut off the roots and very materially slacken the growth of the plant and cut short the yield. The first cultivation may be fairly deep, but after that the surface of the soil should only be stirred lightly. It should be stirred frequently, however, in order to create a dust mulch and maintain the moisture about the roots of the corn.

Big Farms.

Big farms are all right for those who are equipped to handle them properly, but they are desirable for people who have not capital enough to hire plenty of help and organize in a businesslike way to secure good results.

Posts for the Cornhouse.

If you put stones under the posts of your corn house, have them thick enough and large enough so that the frost will not get below them and break them to pieces.

Light and Heavy Soils.

Clay is called a heavy soil and sand a light soil. This does not refer to weight, however. Light and heavy as applie to soils are terms which refer to the ease or difficulty with which they can be plowed or cultivated.

Cultivating Potatoes.

Don't cultivate the potatoes when out in bloom, or coming out, unless you want a lot of stunted little tubers. Cultivate them before they get that size and keep them clean of weeds.

PROFIT FROM TWO SWARMS

Make $21 Worth of Honey, Besides Furnishing Food for Family of Four for Six Months.

From an investment of $15.55, two swarms of bees made $21 worth of honey. Besides, they furnished honey for a family of four from the middle of June until Christmas, and gave a new swarm of bees worth $5 last year. From one hive, 109 pounds of honey were taken. At 15 cents a pound, the average selling price of the honey, it brought $16.35. The two swarms of bees were worth $10, and the hives, including one for the new swarm, at $1.85 each, were worth $5.55, making the invoice $15.55. As one swarm made $16.35 worth of honey, it made 80 cents more than enough to pay for the total expenditure. What the other swarm made was clear profit.

These bees belong to Custodian Lewis of the Kansas State Agricultural college. He says that every farmer who lives where alfalfa grows ought to keep a few bees. They do not require much work and they give good results for the investment. They should be watched closely, but a little work at the proper time is all that is necessary. Honey is better than sirup or molasses.

Mr. Lewis keeps his bees in a quiet place where the sun shines on them in the morning, but not later in the day. He says if the bees are given lots of room and not allowed to get too hot, they are not so likely to swarm.

MANY BENEFITS OF THE SILO

Huge Receptacle Effects Considerable Saving in Production of Beef, Mutton and Milk.

By means of the silo more of the food value of forage can be saved than by any other method of preservation.

Forage placed in the silo keeps at a uniform quality, whereas field cured forage constantly deteriorates.

Considering the food value saved the silo affords the cheapest means for forage preservation.

Because of the palatability and succulence silage possesses higher feeding value than does the same forage dry cured. Conservative feeders estimate that the silo doubles the value of the forage crop.

It has been conclusively proved that the silo effects a considerable saving in the cost of production of beef, mutton and milk.

FARM NOTES

Clover hay should not be hauled in until it is well cured.

Vegetables grown on the farm can be had when wanted.

The spraying of potatoes is often spoken of as potato insurance.

Do not be afraid to thin out your plants—they must not be crowded.

For a farm of 160 acres a four-horse team with one driving horse will answer.

To have large ears of sweet corn the ground should be deep, finely pulverized and.

It is a great mistake not to raise the grain and forage to feed the farm stock and the family supplies.

At least 10 per cent of the hay crop, or $60,000,000 worth of hay, is levied on annually by locusts, grasshoppers, etc.

Doctors Said He Would Die

A Friend's Advice Saves Life

I wish to speak of the wonderful cure that I have received from your noted Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder cure. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back and sides. I could not breathe without difficulty and was nearly wild with the desire to urinate. Was compelled to do so every ten minutes with the passage of pure blood with the urine. I tried all the different doctors from far and near, but they said it was no use to doctor as I would die anyway. I was at the end of my rope and was so miserable with pain and the thought that I must die that words cannot tell how I felt. One day a friend told me of the wonderful help she had received from Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. She gave me one of your pamphlets which I read and determined to try Swamp-Root. After taking half a bottle I felt better. Have now taken ten bottles and am well as I ever was, thanks to Swamp-Root. I wish to tell all suffering people that have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the best medicine on the market.

All persons doubting this statement can write to me and I will answer them directly.

Yours very truly,
CLYDE F. CAMERER,

The Girl's Handicap.

In her pretty new frock sister Mabel felt quite proud as she sat on the front step and watched some boys playing on the sidewalk.

After a time one little boy came up to talk to her and to admire, in his rough little way, her bright shiny slices and pink sash.

"See my nice square-cut waist," exclaimed the girlie, "and my nice coral beads! Don't you wish you wuz a girl?"

"No sire-ee," replied the boy. "I wouldn't want to be any girl at all, because lookie how much more neck you haf to wash."

THE TRUTH ABOUT BLUING.

Talk No. 7.

Avoid liquid bluing. As a real Simon Pure farce liquid blue is about the biggest yet. Don't pay good money for water.

Settled Them.

"I've a sight o' sons—thirteen altogether," remarked a prosperous old farmer, "and all of 'em's done me credit save the three eldest, who sowed wild oats at a pretty rapid rate, and then came home and saddled my shoulders with the harvest.

"Well, I own I was glad to see 'em back, and I feasted 'em, and petted 'em, and set 'em on their legs again, only to see 'em skedaddle off afresh only to see 'em skedaddle off afresh when things had slowed down, with all the cash they could lay hands on.

"That thereabouts sickened me, so I called the rest of 'em together and

"'There's ten of you left, and if any of you 'ud like to follow t'other three I won't try to stop you. But, understand this, though there may be a few more prodigal sons, there'll be no more fatted calves. I've killed the last of 'em!'

"And," continued the old man, triumphantly, "I've had trouble wi' none of 'em since!"
