HIGHTOWER-PFINGSTON

Willis Hightower of Capitan and Miss Agnes Pfingston of Carrizozo were married in Alamogordo last Saturday afternoon. The bride is from one of the good old prominent families of Lincoln county and the groom is the son of Mr. Clement Hightower the well known politician and public officer. The happy pair will temporarily make their home in Carrizozo. Their many friends throughout the county join in extending the couple congratulations.

ALMOST DROWNED

An accident that nearly terminated in a triple drowning happened at Red Lake last Sunday and will be long remembered by three Carrizozoites who were the near victims of a watery grave. A party made up of the following persons, Stanley Squier, Ed. Kelly, Jerry Kelly, Tom Davis and Mason Hull, went to Red Lake last Sunday duck hunting. Squier and Jerry Kelly went out rowing in a small canvas boat and while in the middle of the lake Jerry Kelly shot broadside from the boat at a snipe. The recoil of the gun caused the boat to turn turtle and precipitated both occupants into the water.

Squier is a good swimmer having been for a long time connected with the life saving station at Green Bay Wisconsin; Jerry is not much of a swimmer and came to the surface quite a distance from the upturned boat and was about to sink for the third time when he succeeded in catching hold of the boat. Squier had gotten hold of the boat and succeeded in cutting off his shoes preparatory to swimming ashore which was about 200 yards distant but did not wish to leave Jerry to his fate. In the meantime the accident had been observed by those ashore but there was no boat in which to go to the rescue so Ed. Kelly got on a horse and started to ride in, to the boat. When he got into the deep water the horse got tangled up in a wire fence and was stuck there. Ed. succeeded in getting on the top of a fence post and holding the horse's nose above water and Ed. and the horse were finally rescued by a rope being thrown in to Ed.

Lee Singleton who happened to be present got another rope and waded in the water up to his neck and threw one end to Squier and Squier and Jerry were pulled ashore where Jerry collapsed and was resuscitated with difficulty. Jerry lost his shot gun when the boat upset but fortunately Squier had left his gun ashore.

AVIATORS AT ROSWELL

The amusement Committee of the Roswell Products Exposition to be held in Roswell on the 5th, 6th and 7th of October, has signed a contract with an eastern aviation company calling for one flight daily of Curtiss aeroplanes. These machines will be operated by Aviators McCarty and Wetzig, the latter being an aviator of national repute, who starred in the recent aviation meet at St. Louis. These machines will be the first ever exhibited and flown in New Mexico and will be of great interest to the large number of people on this side of the new state who have never seen an aeroplane fly. The flights will be held daily at the Fair Ground at Roswell all three days of the big Exposition, and the contract calls for a genuine flight or money back.

There will be special music and service at the new Methodist church on Sunday.

Henry Lutz and Emil Fritz of Lincoln were in the city yesterday.

AFFIRM LOWER COURT

Territorial Supreme Court Affirms District Court In Quo Warranto Case

IS FAVORABLE TO CARRIZOZO

Another step in the Lincoln county seat controversy came to a close last Friday when the Territorial Supreme Court setting at Santa Fe handed down a decision affirming the former decision of Judge E. R. Wright of the District court. The opinion is by Judge Parker and is concurred in by all judges except Judge Wright who did not participate as he had heard the case below.

The opinion says: "This is an appeal from a judgement of the District Court of the Sixth Judicial District, sitting in and for the county of Lincoln, dismissing the petition for a writ of quo warranto secured upon the relation of appellant. The cause involves no point which has not been heretofore thoroughly considered by this court in the case of Gray et al vs. Taylor et al 15 N. M. 712, 113, rac. 588, and the judgement of the lower court upon the authority of that case is affirmed.

An appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States was granted on motion of T. B. Catron attorney for Lincoln. This together with the former injunction case will be heard in the Supreme Court at Washington, it is hoped, this fall.

The present injunction restraining the Commissioners from paying out further money on the construction on the court house has not yet been dissolved. This injunction is a separate phase of the case and in order to dissolve same it will be necessary to make a motion to that effect in the District court, which is to be done at once. The injunction is backed up by a bond of $15,000 put up as security by Lincoln for the damage caused thru the delay of the case.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 106 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided. New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LULY FRYHOX, 1111 Kerieree St., New Orleans, La.

RAILWAY passenger agents in the east declare that the movement of colonists to the west this fall will break all records. Every transcontinental line is preparing extra equipment to handle the crowds. A large proportion of these homeseekers will come to New Mexico, of course, and a majority of those will stay. The railroad men say that 65 per cent of the travelers who come to the west on the colonial ticket in past years have established homes in the west, and so far as New Mexico is concerned, it is reasonable to expect that even a large percentage will remain this year. The achievement of statehood will influence many settlers to come here.

County News--Letters

NOGAL NOTES

L. F. Arent of Ruidosa was in Nogal last week circulating among the people here in the interest of his candidacy for Sheriff.

A. S. Mayes of Oscura was also here and is a candidate for sheriff.

J. E. Koonce was a visitor in Nogal Sunday the 3rd.

Our old school teacher Sam Kelsey was among us last week.

The Parsons people have secured the right of way and are at work changing the public road from the east side of Nogal Canyon to the west side. A much needed improvement.

ALTO ITEMS

J. W. Stewart, our new Postmaster, moved into his new building last Friday.

A number of young people chaperoned by Mrs. Lwelyne Layne went to the top of the White Mountains last Saturday returning Sunday. The party spent the afternoon in a rain storm and it certainly was a beautifully "be draggled" bunch that passed thru Alto on the return trip.

Carl E. Adkins of Fort Stanton came up Saturday evening and joined the tourlets on their trip to the Sierra Blanca.

J. J. Hollem of Fort Stanton visited home folks at Alto Sunday.

Buckner Evens of the Mountain Park has been called into service for a few weeks by our postmaster. With the new office fixtures and Mr. Evens in charge of the new Postoffice it is proving quite an attractive feature in Alto, especially to the young ladies.

The White Mountain Literary Society meets at the school house next Saturday evening. An attractive program has been arranged.

CAPITAN CORRESPONDENCE

Earnest Burrell, who for the past two years has been connected with the Capitan Mercantile Company, left for Columbia, Arizona, where he goes to accept a position with a mining company. Mr. Burrell is accompanied by his family and they will make the trip in the old-fashioned way--by wagon.

Mrs. J. F. Deputy and two children departed on Monday's train to join the doctor, who is at Colorado Springs, Colo. The many friends of the family greatly regret their departure from our community.

Most of the farmers in this vicinity are busily engaged harvesting their crops, which are generally exceeding expectations in quality and yield.

The absence of a leader, coupled with the vigorous and prompt action of Dr. Smith of Fort Stanton, in all probability prevented a lynching last Sunday. The full particulars of the case are lacking, but enough is known to warrant the statement, that New Mexico narrowly escaped a black stain upon her escutcheon. It appears that a couple of negroes made indecent proposals to a lady employed at the fort, who immediately reported to the Surgeon in command, who in turn without loss of time deported the "blacks" before the news became generally known and before a leader of the infuriated whites could develop.

The Justice of the Peace Court has been kept very busy during the past week and as a result some delinquent poll-taxes have been collected and a couple of marriages performed, as well as some other matters adjudicated.

Mr. L. R. LaMay accompanied his wife and children to Carrizozo Monday, from which place Mrs. LaMay and the children will go to Kansas City to spend a few months visiting relatives. "Dugs" will remain at home to harvest his big bean crop, which he estimates will exceed thirty thousand pounds; some frijoles for a bad season.

Capitan is slowly assuming her rightful position as the political as well as commercial center of this county. Both the Republican and Democratic County Central Committees will meet in our spacious school house during the present week.

Refugio Sera and Maximiana Garcia; Marciano Garcia and Magdalena Zapata, were the high contracting parties in a double wedding performed by Justice of the Peace Hightower, Monday eve. In each case the parental blessings were obtained only after strenuous efforts on the part of friends.

PARSONS PICKUPS

D. F. Stewart of Parsons left last Thursday for the Soldier's Home in Los Angeles, California.

Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Robinson went to Alto last week to visit their daughter Mrs. W. M. Hightower.

The Parsons Company thru John M. Rice are having some fine road work done on the Parsons Hill and below in the Nogal canyon.

P. L. Krouse of Alto was a visitor in Alto this week.

RUIDOSA RIPPLES

Watt Gilmore has returned home from Rio Grande country where he had been looking after cattle.

J. B. Wingfield of Mesalero passed thru the Ruidosa country enroute for Roswell.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Wingfield are now occupying their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Johnson were visitors on the upper Ruidosa Sunday.

This district has been visited by two light frosts.

AUGUST LAND DECISIONS

The following important law points have recently been decided by the Secretary of the Interior.

HOMESTEADS

The homestead law does not in express terms require establishment of residence within six months from date of the entry, as said in Nilson vs. St. Paul, M. & M. R. R. Co. (6 L. D. 567, 569). The law gives a period of seven years within which to prove five years actual residence and cultivation.

The Land Department, like all other tribunals recognizes rights arising from inevitable casualty. Serious illness of a member of one's family is inevitable casualty, for the anxiety arising from affliction and the duty arising from human obligation constrain the mind so that it is not free to carry out its purposes.

When real estates, comprising more than 160 acres had been conveyed to a person by another for the purpose of defrauding creditors, such grantee took the legal title and did not hold as trustee. When such grantee thereafter made homestead application, he was disqualified upon the ground that he was the owner of more than 160 acres of land.

Where entryman has settled upon land and made substantial compliance with the homestead law as to cultivation, residence and improvement for the five years immediately succeeding that date, his subsequent residence elsewhere, after the expiration of the five-year period and the submission of his final proof, can in no wise affect his right to patent for the land.

DESERT LANDS

When a person takes a desert land entry by way of assignment, he is thereafter disqualified from making an original desert land entry.

A United States deputy surveyor is also disqualified under Section 452 of the Revised Statutes.

In cases where lands are open both to settlement and entry, a homestead claim may be initiated either by settlement or by entry.

A person making an additional homestead entry contiguous to his original entry under Section 2, of the act of April 28, 1904 (33 Stat. 527) may reside upon either tract.

The object of the requirement of annual proof in connection with a desert land entry is to test the good faith of the claimant.

Entryman must have a good water right for sufficient water to irrigate the entire irrigable area in the entry.

In allowing credits for annual proof it is not necessary that the water right should be full complete in the entryman nor that the water should at that time be available for use by claimant.

An entryman under the homestead laws, who had acquired title, is not qualified to make an entry under the Reclamation Act. Instructions of June 15, 1909 (L. D. 58) affirmed.

If you wear Tailor Made clothes see H. E. Alexander, your home tailor he will guarantee you satisfaction in quality and price at the Elite Tailoring Parlor.

Porter's Tribute to Grant

Letter's Action in Denouncing the Sentence of the Famous Court-Martial Deeply Gratified the Victim of Injustice.

Alone of all the great commanders in the Civil war, Maj. Gen. Fitz John Porter was disgraced by being cashiered from the Union army for alleged misconduct at the second battle of Bull Run. Under the sentence of the court-martial, he was debarred from ever holding any office under the federal government, a disqualification that was not removed until 1882, when President Arthur took executive action. Four years later President Cleveland signed the bill which restored General Porter to the army, giving him the rank of colonel, and annulled completely the finding of the court-martial of the sixties.

A few days after this bill had been signed I called upon General Porter at his office. When I entered the office and saw a man of slight physique, whose hair was turning iron gray, whose complexion was pale, and whose manner suggested that he had spent his life at the desk or in the library, my first thought was that the gentleman was the secretary to General Porter. But he held out his hand graciously and a very kindly smile flitted over his countenance as he said: "I am very glad to see you." I could not repress my feeling of astonishment when I first saw this distinguished general. Here was the very man upon whom McClellan had chiefly relied in his great Peninsula campaign; in this quiet, gentlemanly man were the soldierly qualities which made McClellan's victory at Malvern Hill one of the great achievements of the Civil war. I detected, as I thought, an expression of sadness in his countenance, due, doubtless, to the fact that he had not yet been able wholly to overcome the chagrin, the humiliation and the crushing sense of injustice which had been his daily portion for so many weary years.

I told the general that I had come to congratulate him that what General Grant had called the grossest kind of injustice had been corrected so far as possible by an act of simple justice, by which his honor was maintained and his rank in the army restored to him.

"To me the most gratifying feature of this affair which has cost me untold misery during the best part of my life has been the attitude taken by General Grant," said General Porter. "I believe that that attitude is without any precedent. The commander of the Union army, who at one time stood firmly in the support of the findings of the court-martial, of his own accord publicly confesses that he was grievously mistaken, and by that mistake shared with others in the cruel injustice that was done to me.

"Those of my friends who knew General Grant well told me that there never lived a man with a more devoted sense of duty or of loyalty to justice than General Grant, so I and my friends were convinced that if we could persuade him to read the record, he would speedily see that I had been unjustly convicted. But some of those who were near to General Grant when he was president, and who had his confidence, were army men who were bitterly opposed to me. Therefore, General Grant, as president, preemptorily refused to read the evidence.

"But three or four years after he had retired to private life, he was persuaded by one or two of my friends to read the record. To do that required much patience, yet Grant read every word of it. As he read on and on he became deeply moved and when he had finished, he said frankly: 'This soldier has suffered unjustly, and I will say so over my own signature.' He did say so, and largely because he dared to take and maintain that position the stain which was upon my name has now been fully removed.

"There are very few men who would take blame to themselves in that way. I have heard of many noble and just acts done by General Grant; I cannot help thinking that this is as noble an act he ever did. Certainly, it is a perfect illustration of the real character of General Grant."

Tale of War and Literature

Novels of Theodore Winthrop, Rejected by Publishers, Eagerly Bought by Them After His Tragical Death at Big Bethel.

Theodore Winthrop is a name not known to the present generation, but there was a time, at the beginning of the Civil war, when his death caused him to be compared with Elmer Ellsworth, who was shot by a hotel proprietor in Alexandria because Colonel Ellsworth had gone to the cupola of the hotel to pull down a Confederate flag flying in plain sight of Washington.

"Theodore Winthrop," his friend, George William Curtis used to say, never suggested to any of his friends that he possessed the real instincts and character of a soldier. His face was that of a man of great cultivation; it suggested not exactly effeminacy, but qualities the reverse of those entailing great courage, great powers of endurance and the ardor of a soldier.

"That undoubtedly is to be explained by the fact that he was a nephew of President Theodore D. Woolsey of Yale college, and inherited the fine literary capacity which has distinguished members of the Woolsey family, and which was later best exemplified by the writings of Sarah Susan Woolsey, Theodore Woolsey's cousin, widely known by her pen name, Susan Coolidge.

"Yet Theodore Winthrop was a great lover of outdoor life. I have sometimes thought that it would have been fortunate could he have been brought in touch with Thoreau, the great nature lover and post-philosopher, at the time Thoreau was living on Staten Island. Thoreau went there about the time that Theodore Winthrop came to my house on the island to live. I do not think, however, that they ever met.

"Winthrop had given up a mercantile career, because the call to literature had mastered him. He felt that he could make use of some of his experiences upon the Pacific coast and at Panama in romantic fiction. He wrote constantly, and he had the customary experience of young and unknown authors—manuscript after manuscript was refused by publishers. Still he persevered. And then came the Civil war and he enlisted.

"I saw Theodore Winthrop on his way to the front with the Seventh New York regiment as it passed down Broadway to the steamboat. I thought him in his military uniform about the fairest and handsomest young man I ever had seen. He saw me and waved his hand to me and to other members of my party.

"I never knew exactly how it happened that Winthrop, after he reached the front at Washington, was transferred to the staff of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, who was at Fortress Monroe. It seemed a promotion, but it was the cause of his death. We read of the skirmish at Big Bethel, a few miles west of Fortress Monroe, and then came the bombarding announcement that Major Theodore Winthrop had been shot through the heart while rallying his command. His body was brought home and conveyed up Broadway upon a gun carriage; and I remember that the universal comment was that he was the first Union officer in the east to be killed in action.

"Now, what might appear to be a strange change of sentiment on the part of publishers took place. They fairly brought me for manuscripts of Theodore Winthrop's novels. These were published one after another in quick succession. Of course the wide sale of them was explained by the widespread popularity and prominence which attached to the name of Theodore Winthrop, first officer killed in the Union army.

"But the curious thing about it all was this—the careful critics and the best judges all found in the posthumous novels of Theodore Winthrop merit which the publishers had not discovered, excepting in one instance, when those manuscripts were first submitted to them during Winthrop's life. And I have been accustomed, when speaking to young and disappointed would-be authors, to refer to Theodore Winthrop—to tell them the story of the rejection of his novels by the publishers and eventually of

HOT WEATHER HINTS.

Rise very early and do the hot work before the heat of the day. It is surprising how much more can be done from five to six than from ten to eleven. There are no interruptions, as the majority of people prefer to take their "forty morning winks."

Have the work dresses made simply with a square or round neck, without a collar, and the sleeves elbow length. Such a dress is a real comfort if it is short enough.

Simplify the house furnishings in the warm weather as we do our food and clothing. Put away the bric-a-brac and dust-gathering things. Fill the house with flowers, cover the cushions with linen, remove heavy rugs and simplify housekeeping in every department. If there is a small porch off from the kitchen big enough for a table and covered with vines, have that for a breakfast room. It is a splendid way to start the day.

Iron only the necessary articles, press out the hems of sheets and buy white crepe cloth for underwear that needs no ironing.

Serve fresh fruit oftener for dessert, and do away with the cooking. The result will tell in disposition as well as in digestion.

If the house is lighted by lamps or gas, use candles for going to bed, they give sufficient light with much less heat.

If one is using gas it is necessary to do as much as possible with the heat because of the expense, as well as the comfort. If water must be heated for any purpose while the oven burners are lighted, set the pan in the lower oven under the flame. A small portable oven is a great convenience, and if a flat iron or two is put on top it is kept steady, which is its greatest disadvantage. For a small family this oven will do about all the baking except the bread, and a single loaf may be nicely baked in one of the small burner ovens.

WHEN a man will trust his wife with his name, his honor and his purse, it is easy to see on which he puts the highest value.

CARING FOR CURRANTS.

This pleasant acid fruit is most refreshing in hot weather and a dessert of red and white currants in a pretty glass dish is one that will please the most fastidious appetite. Currant jelly holds the highest place among jellies, the red is usually used because of its beautiful color. The black currant is greatly prized by many of the older housekeepers; in fact they were famous remedies for colds and sore throat in our grandmother's youth. Large black or red cherry currants make a beautiful garnish for a dessert. It prepared as follows: Dip nice bunches of the fruit into the well beaten white of egg, then roll in sugar and lay on a paper to dry.

Spiced Currants.—Take two pounds of brown sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, a cup of vinegar, a tablespoonful each of cinnamon, ginger, allspice and cloves. Cook all together thirty minutes. Keep in a stone jar well covered and sealed.

Black Currant and Raspberry Ice Cream.—Rub a pint of black currants through a sieve with a quart of raspberries, add a pint of sugar and let stand an hour. Add a quart of whipped cream and freeze.

Black Currant Jam.—Gather the fruit on a dry day and see that it is perfectly ripe. After stripping the currants from their stems put them in a preserving kettle with just water enough to cover. Let them come to a boil and boil five minutes. Warm the sugar in the oven and allow a pound for every pound of fruit. Stir and cook for forty-five minutes, reckoning from the time it simmers all over. Try a little on a cold plate, and if it does not set quickly, boil a little longer. Put away in sealed jars.

This jam is delicious for steamed puddings and for dumplings. When the currants are fresh the following recipe is approved.

that have been cooked together. Place more bread on top and put a weight to press out the juice. When cold turn on a deep dish and serve with cream.

A FEW SPANISH DISHES.

Anything that savors of the Spanish must of necessity be peppery, as their dishes are so frequently seasoned with the piquant pepper.

Spanish Rice.—Put two frying pans over the heat, in each put one teaspoonful of bacon fat. Chop very fine one onion and four green peppers; add salt and put into one of the frying pans. In the other put a cup of well-washed and well-dried rice, stir until brown, then add the mixture from the other frying pan and a cup of tomato. Add boiling water and let cook until the rice is dry.

String Beans, Spanish.—Take a quart of string beans and chop fine. Put one tablespoonful of bacon drippings in a frying pan and one onion cut fine, half a dry red pepper cut fine. Let the onion and pepper fry brown, then add three ripe tomatoes, stir in a tablespoonful of flour and add a quart of cold water; add the chopped beans and salt, and pepper to taste, and let the beans cook until tender, keep adding water as needed, not to let them cook dry.

Chili Con Carne.—Take the pods of two dried red chili peppers, remove the seeds and discard them. Soak the pods in warm water until soft, then scrape the pulp from the skins, discarding the skins and saving the pulp and water. Cut two pounds of round steak in small pieces, and cook in a hot frying pan in pork drippings until brown. Add three tablespoonfuls of flour, and stir until browned, then add a clove of garlic, in which two gashes have been cut, the chili water, which should measure about a pint. Let simmer until the meat is tender. Season with salt to taste.

SUMMER DRINKS.

There is no drink that quite takes the place of lemonade for most palates, and with the addition of a sprig of mint and a few bruised leaves a simple julep is made.

Crushed currants and mint, with a little lemon juice, makes a delicious drink.

Fine Apple Cup.—Put into a bowl the juice of three lemons, two oranges, sliced and the seeds removed, one grated pine apple, and one cup of sugar. Let stand an hour to extract the juice, then strain carefully. Add as much cold water as desired, two slices of shredded pine apple, and fill the glasses half full of cracked ice before adding the fruit juice.

iced Tea.—Make tea, using a teaspoonful for each cup of boiling water, let stand to brew or steep, but not boil, for five minutes. Then pour over cracked ice in a pitcher. Serve with loaf sugar and slices of lemon.

Raspberry Cup.—Mash and strain two cupfuls of currants stripped of stems. Mash also an equal quantity of raspberries. Mix the juice, sweeten to taste, and serve in glasses half full of cracked ice and decorate with a sprig of mint.

Mint Sangaree.—Crush two or three sprigs of mint with a lump of sugar. Put into a glass half full of cracked ice. Add four tablespoonfuls of grape juice and fill the glass to the brim with charged water. Shake thoroughly and strain into another glass.

Raspberry Dash.—Fill a tumbler half full of cracked ice, add a tablespoonful of sweetened raspberry juice and a tablespoonful of sweet cream. Fill the glass with soda water.

Webster Was Fully Primed

His Graphic Reply When Asked if He Was All Ready to Make His Answer to Colonel Hayne.

One evening, in the spring of 1853, when I called upon Samuel J. Randall, then speaker of the house of representatives, I found him in a reminiscent frame of mind. It was, in fact, the only time I ever knew him to be in such a mood; he was customarily absorbed in his duties as a member of the house of representatives; so much so, indeed, that, while speaker, he made a practice of carefully reading as many of the printed bills that were before the house as the pressure upon his time made possible. As a result, his study—a little room on the second floor, back of the modest two-story house near the capitol, in which he made his home—was crammed full of and littered with printed documents of all sorts.

On the evening I speak of bills lay all about him, but this time his thoughts were of another day; he was interested in comparing the southern members of congress of the reconstruction period with their famous predecessors of ante-bellum days, and it was a comparison not at all unfavorable to the latter-day senators and representatives. In the course of this comparison, the name of Hayne of South Carolina cropped up.

"And that reminds me," said the speaker, "of an anecdote of Hayne and Webster which was told me by Mr. Sanford—I do not now recall his first name—who held an official position in Washington for nearly thirty years, and who was one of the first men—if not the very first—to write regularly for publication in the newspapers letters descriptive of news and events in Washington. He had a very graphic style; he was intimate with many of the leading statesmen in Washington between the years 1832 and 1860. After Colonel Hayne had delivered his first day's speech of the greatly moved by Hayne's very powerful arguments and oratory was Daniel Webster. Mr. Webster, with great dignity and courtesy, but very formally, crossed the senate chamber and said a few words, very formally and very politely, to Senator Hayne. The South Carolina senator gracefully bowed his acknowledgments, and it was presumed by all that Webster had spoken in a complimentary way of his colleague's effort. Then Webster, still preserving his formal dignity, returned to his own seat and, taking from his desk a sheet of paper, began to write what seemed to be a letter. Although he must have known that the eyes of every senator were upon him, and that, by common opinion, he was expected to answer Senator Hayne, yet he appeared to be not conscious in the least of that tribute.

"When the senate adjourned that day the senators, in conversation with one another, differed in their view of Webster's ability to reply to Hayne. All knew that he would reply, and that by his reply the test of his abilities as an orator and a statesman would be measured.

"The next day, as Webster was entering the senate chamber, one of his friends ventured to help him.

"Senator," this friend asked anxiously, "are you primed?"

"Webster fixed upon his anxious adherent his great solemn eyes and in them was a look which meant more than his words expressed. "You ask me if I'm primed? I reply: Yes, sir, three Angers." And he held up three fingers of one hand, in the customary manner of indicating the size of a drink, three fingers being an unusual allowance of brandy.

"It was evident that Mr. Webster spoke metaphorically, that he regarded himself as fully primed to reply to Hayne, as he was, continued Mr. Sanford, and as he shortly made plain to everyone. And during the entire delivery of that great speech, upon which, in an small part, the

YOUR OWN TOWN

Any place is just what the men who live in it make it.

Don't sit arounds and damn your town. A town is just as good or just as bad as the people who are damning it.

Every community, even if it hasn't more than two hundred inhabitants, should have a town room where the cigars are good and where everyone can meet, free from religion or politics, and absorb the good qualities of one another; where the spirit of the Golden Rule can be instilled; for no religion and no political party can deny this perfect scientific principle.

A town is seldom the result of virgin natural conditions. In any event it was the man who saw the natural advantages—and frequently it was some one individual.

For illustration: There is no natural reason why Cleveland should have been the oil center of the world. There are no oil wells in or about the community. So far as oil is concerned, and as a shipping point, it is no better than a dozen other towns. It was simply John D. Rockefeller. He wanted to live in Cleveland and his individuality and personality brought the oil to him.

There is no reason why Boston should be the hide market of the world. There are no hides there. They are all shipped from the West. Simply some man who knew how to make shoes on large scale wanted to live there and his success encouraged others to follow in his wake.

There is no physical reason why Chicago should be the meatpacking center of the world. It could have been St. Louis. Simply because old Phil Armour wanted to live there.

In nearly every town you hear some resident say: "Aw, this ain't nothing but an overgrown village".

The resident of any town that makes such a statement wears whiskers and boots at heart. Of course, if the town isn't sporty enough for you, why, you can move—that isn't the town's fault.

If you get too sporty you'll have to move anyhow.

It isn't the sports who make the town—it's the jays.

The man that gave the light for the sports on, the Great White Way was a jay—Thomas A. Edison, a jay telegraph operator from Indianapolis.

John D. Rockefeller, who, in a money way, is the ideal of every sport, was a jay from Richford, New York.

Russell Sage, who loaned money to sports for years, was a jay—he started by jumping counters in a country store.

Some jay from Connecticut went to the World's Fairs in Chicago in 1893. He set up a stand on the Midway and sold wooden nutmegs to the sports for souvenirs. Finally, he ran out of the wooden ones and he sold them the real thing at twenty-five cents a throw.

William Dean Howells, America's foremost literary character, will take more pride in telling you of the days when he set type as a jay printer on the Sentinel at Ash Tabula, Ohio, than his literary success of the later years—the days when they used shoe pegs to space type, and about a printer getting drunk and using a plug of Star Tobacco for a cut.

Nearly every man in art, science, literature, industry and commerce here in America either is or was a jay.

Cincinnati is the supply center of the South. Years ago, at the waning of the river traffic, it was about to give place to Louisville and Memphis in the commerce of that territory.

The citizens of Cincinnati got busy and built the Cincinnati Southern Railroad.

This road was a dream of a jay. They called him a jay dreamer, but his dream saved the town.

You hear people of the Far West in mercantile, industrial, artistic and scientific pursuits, saying: "If we were only in Chicago, we could do or get so and so." In Chicago you hear them say: "If we were only in New York." When in New York you hear them wishing for something in London or Paris.

Chicago, New York, London and Paris are all the results of their citizens taking the conditions and material at hand and doing the best they could with them—just as we can all do.

There you are! Any place is just what the people who live in it make it.

If any of the towns that any of us live in are not to our liking why not get busy—it's up to us.

The first process in the improvement of any town is to get rid of the people who are damning it.

DRY FARM RESEARCH

Much Money Appropriated for Investigation in 1911.

Shows How Interest in "New Thought" Agriculture Has Advanced—Nebraska Leads All States With $100,000 for School.

Dry farming, the "New Thought" in agriculture, received more attention from legislators and more money was appropriated for investigations in 1910-11 than ever before. This demonstrates how the "International Dry Farming congress," which was organized five years ago, and which meets at Colorado Springs in October next, has advanced its propaganda. States that a few years ago never hoped to have agriculture now are organizing farming commissions and establishing experimental stations. In some of the states having dry land, that is where farming must be done with less than 20 inches of rainfall in the growing season, the legislators did not meet. This was true of Arizona and New Mexico, which were expecting statehood. Dry Farming, the official magazine of the congress, has gathered the following information:

The United States congress made the following appropriations for 1911 and 1912:

Dry land agricultural investigations	$1,700	$7,000
Crop physiology investigations	17,000	20,000
Alkali and drought resistant plant breeding investigations	17,500	12,100
Dry land grain investigations	18,000	21,000
Total	$54,200	$122,100

California appropriated $15,000 to be devoted to fundamental work in the improvement of methods of grain production and gluten qualities of wheat. This applies to dry land farming, but the money cannot be applied to demonstration farm work.

Colorado's legislature appropriated $8,000 to the state board of agriculture for dry farming experiments, but the governor cut down the sum to $2,500 before signing the bill. The board will be able to continue the work begun at Cheyenne Wells station, but will not undertake anything new.

Oregon failed to make an appropriation, but the counties have taken up experimental station work. Harney county has set aside $1,500 for such a station and Crook county is about to do the same.

The sum of $10,000 was appropriated by the state of Nevada to continue the experimental station work in Elko county. The law reorganized the state board of control, placing the work in charge of two practical farmers of the county and an agricultural college teacher.

Kansas appropriated $970,000 for agricultural school purposes, of which the dry farming portion may be said to be as follows: Kansas station, $44,500 for the biennium; branch at Hays, where the 2,500-acre dry farm is located, $45,300, of which $27,500 is to be spent the first year.

Nebraska did best of all, setting aside $100,000 to establish a school of agriculture in the western part of the state and $15,000 to establish a station in the western part of the state, contingent upon the location of the college. For maintenance and improvements at sub-stations already located the following sums were set aside: At North Platte, $20,000; Valentine, $15,000; Scott's Bluff, $5,000.

A bill was adopted in Utah providing an annual appropriation of $5,000 for dry farming investigations. It is to be continuous. Also an annual appropriation of $10,000 was made for extension work by which the results of dry farming are to be carried to

BENEFITS OF DRY FARMING

Methods Rapidly Gaining in Popularity in Regions Where It is Impossible to Irrigate.

Dry farming is gaining ground rapidly, because where it is impossible to irrigate, dry farming methods must be followed in order to conserve moisture.

For small grains a double-disk the land immediately after harvest, says a writer in the Orange Judd Farmer. It rains comes between the time the ground is disked and plowed, it is well to harrow to maintain a dust-mulch. After this the ground is plowed and the use of the subsoil surface packer is practiced. In some cases grain fields are simply disked as soon as the crop is cut and then left undisturbed until the next spring, either in May or June, when it is the farmers. This was done by unanimous vote. There was no direct legislation in Washington for dry farming, but the board of regents of the State Agricultural college set aside $5,000 from the maintenance fund for such investigations.

Wyoming established a board of farm commissioners who are to direct experiments in non-irrigated or dry farming lands. The sum of $5,000 was appropriated for the work, of which $2,000 is for the salary of a director of experiments. Also the sum of $8,000 was appropriated for the experimental stations located near Cheyenne and New Castle.

SUMMER FALLOW AS AN AID

Man Who is Thorough Enough to Treat Land While Idle Will Be Able to Secure Annual Crop.

I am not an advocate of summer fallowing for wheat except in regions of very scant rainfall. In most years and in most wheat-growing sections the rainfall is sufficient to produce a good yield when the ground is properly handled. The man who is thorough enough to conduct a good summer fallow will give his soil proper preparation for annual cropping, says a writer in the Kansas Farmer. There are exceptional seasons when the rainfall is insufficient to grow a crop of wheat. The land can be thoroughly prepared early and if at seeding time conditions make it inadvisable to sow, seeding can be put off and the land can lie fallow for the season. Land that has become very weedy, seeded with mixed varieties, or where the volunteer crop becomes seriously detrimental, may be summer fallowed to advantage. In some states, where the average annual rainfall is ten inches or less, the rainfall of a single year is seldom sufficient to produce even a small yield of wheat. There the farmers sow wheat once in two years, giving the land thorough tillage during the fallow year. This results in a yield of 20 to 40 bushels of wheat in alternate years, making the cash returns in each alternate year much more than twice as great as in many sections of good rainfall, where wheat is sown annually. Alternate cropping and fallowing collects all the moisture that can be saved from two years' rainfall, greatly increasing the available plant food in the soil and doubling the efficiency of this moisture.

While this plan has been frequently advocated for much of the winter and spring wheat territory, I believe that better results are obtained here by proper handling of the ground under an annual cropping system. I do not believe summer fallowing is necessary in anything but an abnormal year in any section where the annual rainfall is above 15 inches.

Give fresh well water twice a day. Poultry drink a large quantity of water when weather is hot. Wash out the vessel every morning. Stale water is not fit for poultry. Shade of some kind should be had. If natural shade cannot be had, put up a shed of poles and cover with cornstalks, straw or weeds. Sunflowers make a most satisfactory shade; sown early, they grow quickly and when the seed is ripe, provide an excellent oil grain for winter food for all stock. The Russian sunflower is the best variety to grow. It is remarkably hardy, growing to a height of six to eight feet and a great producer of seed. Sunflower seeds are equal to flaxseed as poultry food.

PROFITABLE CARE OF FOWLS

Fresh Water Should Be Given Twice Every Day When Weather is Hot—Shade is Necessary.

Insure your apple trees against decay. The best way is to make clean wounds when pruning and paint each with good white lead and oil.

Had the Proper Yell. The baby across the car aisle caught sight of the bibulous individual opposite and let out a shrill yell of alarm. The bibulous person leaned forward. "Baby attendin' college, ma'am?" he asked.

MAKING GOOD CIDER VINEGAR

Process is Simple and Involves Very Little Work—Cleanliness is First Important Factor.

(BY B. M. MILLER.)

There are many apple orchards, especially those that have never been sprayed or cultivated, in which large quantities of apples are allowed to go to waste every year.

Such fruit makes a good grade of cider vinegar, and a handsome profit can be made in utilizing it in this way.

Even if one sprays and cultivates the orchard regularly each season and does everything possible to prevent having anything but marketable fruit there will always be a good many culls.

However, do not allow these unmarketable apples to go to waste. Make cider vinegar from them and get a good price for the product right here at home.

Making cider vinegar is very simple. There is practically no labor attached to it other than extracting the juice from the apples.

Perfect cleanliness first, last and all the time is a matter of vital importance. Apples that are picked up from the ground are usually dirty and should be thoroughly washed before being placed in the cider mill.

The mill and all utensils used in the making must be kept well cleaned if a good product is to be made. To use unclean fruit or unclean vessels simply invites bad fermentation.

If all sorts of germs which are found on dirty and decayed fruit are put in the cider a good quality of vinegar must not be expected.

Where one has no mill the fruit can be pulped by hand with wooden mauls in a wooden trough, and where only a sufficient quantity of vinegar is wanted for home use it is not a difficult matter to secure it in this way.

The best receptacles in which to put the cider are molasses kegs or barrels, preferably those which have held vinegar previously, since fermentation commences sooner when the fermenting organism is present than when it must find its way into the liquid from outside medium.

To make a good grade of vinegar two factors are essential during the process of fermentation. First, the air must have free access to the liquid to support the organism. Second, the temperature must be favorable for the growth of the fermenting agent.

The barrels or kegs should be placed in a room where the temperature will be fairly constant at 70 to 75 degrees, placed on their sides in order to give more surface to the atmosphere, and filled with the juice to within six inches to eight inches of the bungholes.

Aerating Ground After Rain.

Cultivation as the plants develop requires not only care and skill, but forethought also. If the heavy rains have beaten the soil into a hard mass and it is water soaked, it may be necessary to go as deeply as possible without injuring the roots in order to aerate the ground properly.

Yearlings Are Best.

The inexperienced planter things he is getting a bargain when he buys trees three or four years old, but experience will show him that yearlings are better and he should never plant over two-year-olds.

Trees In Kansas City.

Kansas City, last year, set out in the public streets 4,012 hard maples and white elms and in addition to those were a large number planted by the park board along public boulevards and in the parks.

Neat Packages Count.

A customer who observes that the fruit is carefully assorted and put up in clean packages will naturally want to know the name of the grower and that is where the stencil and rubber stamp come in.

Comparing Orchards.

If your neighbor's orchard has been sprayed at least twice during the season it will interest you to compare the quality and quantity of his fruit with yours, if yours has not been sprayed.

Files Not Wanted.

When a customer sees files which many have just arrived from dining off a dead animal or from a manure pile—crawling around over the fruit in the store, she is not likely to buy it.

USEFUL LOW-WHEEL WAGON

Has Been Found Practically Indispensable for Various Jobs Around Farm Every Day in Year.

Every farmer knows that there are numberless small jobs about the place that require the use of a wagon where the bed will be close to the ground so as to make the lift as short as possible.

That need has been met with the low-wheel wagon and has made it practically indispensable for gathering apples, and hauling basket fruit, fodder, manure, hay and grain, clearing the fields of stones and stumps and carrying tools and timber for fixing up fences, or any odd job, say, like hauling away a fallen tree.

Then there is nothing that fills the bill better for all kinds of work in the corn fields. There is no earthly reason why a man should lift the corn as high as his shoulder when the low wagon will permit him to perform the labor in the same amount of time, to say nothing of the wear and tear on a man's back and body.

Almost every year a farmer buys some implement that he can use only during one season of the year—perhaps only a few days; but the low wheel wagon is something that he can use every day in the year.

The broad tires make the draft lighter, and that means saving the team. Of course for certain kinds of road use there will always be a demand for the narrow tire wheels, but on a smooth surface and particularly where the ground is soft the pull on the team is decreased 25 per cent to 50 per cent for the simple reason that the broad tires do not sink into the ground; the wider bearing surface of the tire distributes the load in such a manner as to buoy the wagon up and keep it on top of the ground. Especially on plowed ground or very muddy roads those wheels do not mire like the ordinary wheels, which of course makes the saving on the horses even greater.

even animal tissue into metal, says Popular Mechanics. He does not deposit a thin layer of metal upon the surface, as in electroplating, but it is said actually to transmute the life-grown material into dead metal.

The bunch of grapes shown in the illustration was so converted, the grapes and leaves having all their natural tints in the metal. The treatment is accomplished by an electrical agency.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

It is good practice to graft plums on peach stock.

A spraying of the currant and other small fruit bushes will help.

Fruit should never be offered for sale that is exposed to flies.

Never cut a limb from a fruit tree unless you know just why you do it.

An orchard neglected for one year virtually puts it back three years.

If the rabbits have gnawed only the outer bark, wrap the wound with cloth.

Do not be stingy of water for the plants. Soak them plainly once or twice a week, and don't dribble once a day.

It is a great mistake to pick out the poorest soil on the place on which to plant the orchard. The best is none too good.

If a man sells fruit of which he is ashamed then he should throw away his stencil and conceal all evidence of his ownership.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BLUING.

Talk No. 11.

The well often runs dry where they make bottle blue. It's easy to see. Only a little quantity, say half a cent or a trifle more, in the double strength kind and a large bottle of water and the delusion is completed. Buy RED-CROSS BAG-BLUE. Get a pure blue. Makes clothes snowy white. ASK YOUR GROCER.

Ended Cat's Sojourn.

Felix Smith of Easton, Pa., bought a cat the other day. He paid $5 for her. Why did Felix pay five bucks for the cat? Answer—Because she was guaranteed to be a good rat-ter. Did Felix have rats? We should say he did—the house was full of 'em! And the cat cleaned 'em out! No; that's the curious part of it. After the cat had been on the job a week the rats were as plentiful as ever. Felix couldn't understand it until one evening he concealed himself in the basement to watch the cat. About 9 p. m., as the cat sat with her eye on a rat hole, Felix says that rat after rat came out of the hole, walked up to the old cat, kissed her good-night, and then returned to the hole. After that Felix kicked the cat out of the house.—Boston Post.

Dying by Organs.

It has been discovered that if a human being dies after an ordinary illness and not a violent death he does not die all over and all at once. He may have a diseased liver, heart or lung, and this may be the cause of his death; but it has been found that if the diseased organ could have been replaced by a healthy one life might have been maintained indefinitely. This is no imagination or speculation. It has been confirmed by the most careful experiments by the ablest medical scientists in the country.—Leslie's Weekly.

An Undefinable Definition.

A few days after school opened in the spring a teacher in a Brooklyn school was testing the members of one of her old classes on what they had remembered of the definitions she had taught them during the preceding term. Finally she asked the bright boy of the class this question: "Now, Robert, tell me what a hypocrite is?" "A hypocrite," replied Robert without hesitation, "is a kid w'at comes to school wit' a smile on his mug."
