CONVENTIONS ARE NEXT

Republicans and Democrats Will Hold County Conventions Next Week

REPUBLICAN OUTLOOK GOOD

The coming week will be an interesting one in the political way for the people of Lincoln county. Both the Republican and the Democratic County conventions will occur during the week; the Republican's meeting Monday at Lincoln and the Democrat's meeting Wednesday at the same place. It seems to be the feeling among the republicans to put a winning ticket into the field and personal differences, it is hoped, will be at least temporarily forgotten. Most of the offices are sought for by several candidates and there may be some warm contests before the convention adjourns. For sheriff Chas. A. Stevens of Bonito and Chas. Hilburn of San Patricio are in the open, seeking the office and it is rumored also that Bob Brady of Lincoln and Robt. Hurt of Capitan also are out for the office, although no official announcement has appeared. The office of Treasurer seems to be a walkaway for the present incumbent Dr. T. W. Watson although the dark horse possibilities are always to be reckoned with. For Probate Clerk Albert H. Harvey of Carrizozo and Clement Hightower of Capitan have announced. The office of school superintendent is sought by three candidates one of them being a woman, Mrs. Wallace Gumm, of Carrizozo, Samuel Kelsey of White Oaks and C. J. Kennedy of Jicarilla will also be warm contestants for the office.

Henry Corn of Rabenton has announced for the office of Assessor and it also rumored that Alfredo Gonzalez of San Patricio is making a fight for that office. There is a contest on in the Third District for Commissioner between H. Conbrush Geo. Coe and W. R. White.

The convention promises to be at least an interesting one and the democrats may pull off some fireworks also with their several candidates for Sheriff. George Curry Candidate for Congress, E. R. Medler candidate for District Judge, H. B. Hamilton candidate for District Attorney, John Bowman candidate for the state senate and M. C. McCoy candidate for the Legislature will all attend the meeting at Lincoln.

CLASS NO. THREE

The Sunday School class No. 3 of the Baptist Sunday School met Wednesday evening with Miss Lolla Laws at the home of Miss L. B. Spellman and organized a Junior Philathea class and elected the following officers. President Schalls Textor; Vice Pres. Rachel Hughes Secy. Mae Kennedy; Treasurer Euna Harkay; Reporter Helen Estes. Volunteer committee, Bessie Gray Frances Farley, Schalls Textor, Social Com. Helen Estes, Euna Harkay, Rachel Hughes. Missionary Com. Frances Farley, Mae Kennedy and Bessie Gray.

BOOSTERS HERE FRIDAY

Last Friday evening a special train bearing the El Paso boosters and 23rd Cavalry Band arrived in the city at about eight o'clock and were welcomed by a large part of the population of the town. The Outlook had donated a large bunch of ribbon badges to the people of the city each bearing the words Welcome to Carrizozo. The band soon after arrival were seated near the Postoffice and rendered several numbers after which the crowd retired to Real's Hall where several more band numbers were given and an address of welcome made by John H. Canning in behalf of Carrizozo. W. M. McNary of El Paso replied for that city and invited the Carrizozo people to attend the Statehood Jubilee to be held in El Paso next week. Following the speaking and concert the band produced a splendid orchestra from among its number and dancing was in order till past midnight. It was gala night indeed and all seemed to breathe the spirit of enjoyment.

JICARILLA HAPPENINGS.

There was quite an exodus of our citizens to Capitan one day last week. A. H. Norton, Phil Reasoner, S. Gonzalez, and Geo. Haskins attended the court of C. Hightower. W. W. Fitzpatrick is carrying the mail from here to Ancho for a short time.

Will Littell of the Littell Metal Mining and Reduction Company was in the camp a few days looking over the mine and expressed himself as well pleased with the outlook.

Henry Corn was in camp a short time last week, building fences.

Mr. Chas Cox and Miss Cora Crawford both of Pueblo Colo. the latter a daughter of Mrs. Eva were united in marriage here last Thursday by Rev. Walker of Carrizozo.

Phil Reasoner and J. G. Weisher are having very good luck placing these days, the dirt runs about ten dollars to the square yard.

Messrs Brookin, Bloom and Boyce went to White Oaks Sunday. O. P. Morton of Kansas City is here on a visit to his uncle George Thompkins.

NOGAL NOTES

The many friends of Mrs. A. E. Moore will be pleased to learn that she is recovering rapidly at Las Vegas and will return here soon.

There has been so much rain that repair work at Watson's Lake has been delayed.

The perpetual talk of the office seeker has subsided to some extent.

T. J. Moore has two cows with twin calves this year. They are beauties and all the twins resemble each other.

J. M. Rice and family of Parsons were in Nogal Friday.

Mrs. Hence Cochran is very sick. Dr. E. Walker of Carrizozo is in attendance.

We have had several frosts in Nogal.

T. B. Weatherby, the mining engineer, who had been investigating coal fields in this district left last Thursday for Albuquerque to accept a position with a coal company there.

Carrizozo Browns Lost Game To The E.P. & S.W. Shop Team of El Paso

BROWNS GO IN AIR IN FIFTH

Carrizozo baseball fans had the opportunity of witnessing another baseball game last Sunday afternoon between the Browns and the El Paso and Southwestern Shop team. The game started off in a very interesting manner and Carrizozo had the best of it by three runs until fifth when the balloon went up and El Paso began a merry-go-round the bases and when the smoke cleared away in the ninth inning, El Paso had tallied eleven times while Carrizozo brought up the rear with but six. Willie Gallacher and Captain Bennett Dingwall were the battery for Carrizozo while Fisher and King did the main work for the visitors. This was probably the last game of baseball that will be witnessed on the local diamond this year; the Browns, however, are planning to play Alamogordo once more this season.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK

The Carrizozo Postoffice opened up his Postal Savings Bank department last Saturday morning October 7th. and that department will continue hereafter to be one of the features of the local postoffice. L. B. Chase was the first depositor and Frank Gurney the second, in the line Saturday morning.

FIRST LECTURE MONDAY

The first of the five evenings of amusement to be furnished the people of Carrizozo by the J. S. White Lyceum Agency was rendered last Monday evening when Lucian Edgar Follanabee proved to be an interesting talker and held his audience well. He spoke on a variety of subjects all of which were connected in some way with Gumption or Genius.

MC DONALD DEMONSTRATION

Thursday evening, the citizens of Carrizozo without regard to their political beliefs joined in a demonstration to welcome W. C. McDonald democratic nominee for Governor back to his home town. A parade was formed at the livery stable and all those participating were furnished with 'fuzies' or torches, with the McDonald auto in the center containing the democratic gubernatorial candidate, also Mrs. McDonald and daughter Frances. The parade marched to the postoffice corner where a short reception was held after which Edgar Wilson introduced Mr. McDonald as the speaker and Mr. McDonald made a short address. Other local celebrities also spoke after which the crowd retired to the town hall and dancing was in order for the rest of the evening. Mr McDonald left the next evening for Corona.

Holm O. Bursum and others on the Republican ticket are due to arrive in Carrizozo about October 26th when a republican rally will be held and the speakers heard.

MRS. MC DONALD ENTERTAINS

The Ladies Home Mission was very pleasantly entertained last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. C. McDonald and the ladies report one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season. The refreshments were served "a la carte", everyone waiting on themselves and this being a new feature was accepted as a pleasant change. News was received during the meeting of Mr. McDonald's nomination for the office of governor and of course congratulations were in order all around.

Ex. Gov. George Curry stopped between trains Wednesday evening and shook hands with many friends all of whom endorse him for U. S. Congressman.

CONFIDENCE OR DOUBT

Republican Party Stands For Vital Interests Of The People of New Mexico

HOME INDUSTRIES PROTECTED

"The Republican party invites the confidence and the votes of the people now, because it stands as it always has done, for the vital interests of New Mexico. It stands for those policies under which the state can flourish and remain prosperous, and without which, if overturned, it is bound to suffer from depression, diminished returns from her existing industries, and discouragement of new ones. It stands uncompromisingly for the protection of American industries, so long as they need protection. It insists that the American laborer shall not be deprived of his work at good wages, to increase the trade of importers of foreign goods. It insists that American producers shall continue to utilize the natural resources of the country and give employment to its labor, at a fair profit when measured by the cost of production elsewhere. When tariff duties go beyond this, and afford unreasonable profits or monopolies, it wants them reduced; but it does not want them reduced by wholesale, simply because somebody calls it reform, and where the people benefited are the competitive producers of other countries. It does not see any good in free hides, when our shoes cost as much as before, and the price of hides is not materially reduced, but the amount of the duty which has been removed goes into the pockets of the foreign producers instead of into the United States treasury. It makes a serious difference to the ranchman, the laborer and the merchants of New Mexico whether the fifteen million pounds of wool she produces shall bring twenty cents a pound, or five cents, as it did under the "Tariff Reform" policies of the Cleveland administration. And the Republicans of New Mexico do not believe in such 'reform' at the expense of our own people, and for the benefit chiefly of foreign wool growers and eastern manufacturers. They remember the empty dinner pail of the American workman all over this country in 1893, and they are not pining for any more reforms of that kind. These are the National as well as local issues, and they are of double importance to us now, because in our new capacity of a sovereign state, it may fall to the lot of New Mexico to decide the next presidential election, or to determine the policies of Congress in regard to these matters which are so vital to our welfare and prosperity.

Baseball still stands out as the clean sport.

Flying could almost be classed as a hazardous occupation.

When the summer has waned people will stop rocking the boat.

Of course a woman is young at thirty-five, but not disgustingly young.

The French detectives are unlike Mona Lisa. Their smile has come off.

Wyoming reports four feet of hail, which is apparently nothing to boast of.

Just after one's vacation the year ahead looks even longer than the big fish one failed to land.

Because of the katydid's miscalculation persons who sleep outdoors have not yet begun to boast of it.

Christmas comes only late in December, but one's friends insist upon getting married every little while.

The California wild man is not half so wild as some other Californians become when their climate is criticized.

"Bathing ear" is the latest summer resort disease. Physicians say it can be avoided by giving the water a wide berth.

There is always a silver lining. The report comes from Pennsylvania that the fool who rocked the boat was drowned.

The season approacheth wherein the nimrods go forth into the forest glades to puncture the anatomy of the elusive guide.

It is only once in a while that actors can secure as much advertising out of getting married as they can out of being divorced.

When permanent world wide peace comes we recommend that the armor plate be beaten into plowshares, the swords being kept for cheese knives.

A citizen of Kansas advertises for a wife who can furnish music, but he does not mention whether he prefers the instrumental or the chin variety.

Paris people who decree fashions are turning out winter jackets in three lengths instead of one. This will allow woman to be even more of an individualist than she was before.

"Shall the baby be rocked to sleep?" is the question that is agitating Boston. In Newport and on Fifth avenue the paramount question is: "How often shall Pido be man-cured?"

An Omaha society woman was blown over by an ocean breeze and lost her false teeth. Now we know what is meant by the "teeth of a gale."

A 17-foot shark caught off the Delaware breakwater is reported as having an umbrella in its stomach, though whether folded or spread the voracious reporter neglects to say.

ROAD and FARM IMPROVEMENT

TWO BARLEY LEAF DISEASES

Blights, Commonly Called Rust, Has Appeared in Many Sections in Past Two Seasons.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ)

During the past two seasons there has appeared in many sections a widespread disease on barley, commonly called rust, but in no way related to this disease. It is caused by an imperfect fungus.

There are two forms of these leaf-spot diseases of the barley, one an early blight which has been designated as "the yellow leaf disease."

The yellow leaf disease appears early during the season. This is a—Barley leaf affected by "late blight." b—Barley leaf affected by "yellow leaf disease." c—Blade of corn affected by this fungus.

characterized by yellowish longitudinal stripes alternating with darker lines. This is transmitted by the seed.

The late barley blight causes brown spots of irregular outline, and occurs on the leaves, glumes and seed.

There are many species of this fungus on grasses, and one occurs on the leaves of corn, sometimes doing much injury.

CORN CRIB IS MADE MOVABLE

Serviceable Building May Be Constructed Out of Old Barrel Staves—Keeps Grain Dry.

(By E. G. STEIN)

A good movable corn crib may be built of barrel staves, that is the walls, the roof of lap siding or any kind of roofing you want.

For the side walls use two lengths of staves and run a pole of the middle, as shown in the cut, to nail the staves on and run the two rods through the middle of the crib, one through poles and one through plates. The size of the crib is according to how much corn you raise.

The walls must slant out a little toward the top, as this will keep out the rain better. The floor is light.

This kind of a crib is quite cheap and may be built of small poles nailed close together if no barrel staves are at hand.

Such a crib keeps the corn in good condition. It dries quickly and keeps dry all the year around, which is not possible for corn kept in a tight granary where it molds and spoils at once.

Onions in Winter.

To keep onions over winter put them in a dry location, such as a barn loft, and spread them on the floor or on shelves in thin layers. If they should happen to freeze it will not damage them provided they are not disturbed when frozen. They should be covered with sheets of paper in order to assist in preventing sudden thawing, but usually if the layers of onions are not so thick and the location is dry, they will keep without difficulty.

Select Seed Potatoes Early.

The proper way to select seed potatoes is to go through the field when the vines are in full bloom and drive a stake at those hills having the largest, strongest and heaviest blossoms. Then, when the tubers are dug in the fall the hills thus marked will yield good strong seed potatoes.

Fifty Cents' Worth of Fertility.

A ton of manure is said to have the same effect as fifty cents' worth of fertilizer.

HANDY FOR CRUSHING CLODS

Drag Can Also Be Used for Dust Mulch Producer and is Quite Easily Put Together.

A good clod crusher and dust mulch producer is shown in the cut. It is made of posts fastened together by chains held on the upper side by screw bolts. The bolts go through a link into the front edge of the post so it will not turn under as would be the case if fastened back of the center. A board is fastened on top by a couple of lag screws that have considerable play in a slot in the board. A large washer keeps the bolt head from going through. Ride the drag.

This drag will not push clods into the ground as a plunger will for they get between the posts and roll until crushed. This drag is as good for field as for garden work.

Care of the Lawn.

If the season happens to be a dry one don't mow the lawn oftener than once a week. Frequent clipping causes rapid evaporation of moisture from the soil.

Allow the clippings to remain in a dry season. They help to shade the soil and act as a mulch.

To do good work with your lawn mower keep it well oiled and sharpen it frequently. If it is not well oiled it will run so hard that you dread to operate it, consequently the proper attention demanded by the lawn mower will not be given, quite likely. If not kept sharp the blades will tear off the grass, leaving a ragged looking sward. To secure the velvet smoothness which characterizes the ideal lawn, the grass must be cut evenly and cleanly.

Ideal Pastures.

Pasture that is allowed to grow up too luxuriantly becomes tough and unpalatable. Where it is overpastured the stock pulls some of the grass up by the roots, and what pasture they do get has very little strength in it. Grass from two to four inches high makes ideal and profitable grazing.

Go to Work.

Luck and fortune are the result of honest endeavor, work and toil, and if you would succeed, go to work.

FARM NOTES

Watch for cabbage bugs and cabbage worms.

The dry loft of a barn is an ideal granary for onions.

Plow and harrow the ground before sowing fall turnips.

An authority says that potatoes should not be planted in hills.

That a good silo is a money maker is no longer a question for argument.

Early plowing kills nimble-will, which is often mistaken for quack grass.

There are several different ways for distributing and packing the corn in the silo.

The plant is a good commercial vegetable. The demand for it on the city markets is good.

Could we get such appropriations for good roads as go to build battle-ships we would soon be out of the mud.

Strawberries should be cultivated, the weeds eradicated and the moisture conserved for late summer drought.

Too much water is as bad as too little, because the surplus fills up the interstices in the soil, excludes the air and smothers the plant.

The man who has alfalfa this year may not be cutting as heavy crops as usual, but he is still away ahead of the farmer who hasn't any.

The onion is akin to the turnip and cabbage. You must see that the roots are well in the ground, but need not be so particular about the bulb.

Lettuce may be had for table use till late in winter by starting the plants now and protecting them with a cold frame when cold weather comes.

Beeskeeping is well adapted to gardening and fruit growing. The bee will appreciate your skill as gardener and show their appreciation by paying tribute in honey.

Are we making the largest use possible of our soil? The farmer in this country is not.

STREW PROMOTERS FLEECE THE 'GRINGO'

A MEXICAN BRED MAN

MEXICO savors of romance, mescal, chili, guitar thumpings and gold. It has about it the lure of easy money and swinging hammocks, and there is a popular feeling that fortunes wait for the bustling American who ventures into the land of the Montezumas.

Americans look upon the Mexican as an untutored and childlike individual who cannot compete with Yankee shrewdness. Sooner or later the adventurous financier of the northern republic ventures across the line into the southern republic and invests in a banana plantation, a dye wood concession or a mine of laudable richness.

Fleeing the "gringo" has become an established business in those arid lands that lie to the west and the south of the Rio Grande del Norte. A stream of good American dollars is poured across the line into the "land of tomorrow." The Mexican has taken a leaf from the book of the dead and gone boomers of the old boom towns of the prairie. The recent insurrection has stimulated business of this sort, but it has been well established for the last decade.

Fakers Looking for Victims.

You can buy anything you may happen to desire among these transient promoters of the resources of Old Mexico. They have aped the advertising of the legitimate concerns that are honestly endeavoring to open up certain rich sections of the backward republic. The fact that many colonists well placed and carefully instructed have made money in the new lands has made business good for the faker and the swindler who have followed in the steps of the honest promoter.

Many of the plausible tongued gentlemen who come up out of Old Mexico to sell plantations are Americans, sun tanned, saturnine men, with a gift of tongue. The great majority of them, however, are gentlemen with saddle colored complexions and Castilian accents. They let it be known that for reasons not unconnected with the disturbed conditions of their homeland they must sell. Their descriptions of their very great plantations roll from practiced tongues.

They will sell you anything from a sugar beet plantation to a salt mine or a gold mine. They prefer to deal in those "lost mines," of which all trace vanished before the revolution of 1838. Some old Indian in their group of family retainers has, so the story goes, recently rediscovered this place of fabulous richness. The plausible gentleman cannot return, and work this mine. He will be thrown into jail or he will be persecuted by his political enemies. Alas, he needs money now, at once. He must sell, and he usually does sell. The gold brick has always been a weakness of the American.

Banana plantations are one of the main standbys of the dark skinned promoter. He always has many pictures. They are photographs of beautiful banana groves, with himself standing well in the foreground. Big bunches of the fruit are dropping over his shoulder, and around him are a number of white clad halfbreeds, to whom he refers as his "peons."

His language rises to iridescent heights as he describes the "so grand hacienda," and the vast acres that surround his home. His tongue fairly drips gold as he describes the fertile land, the glorious climate and the certainty of a fortune to the lucky man who grasps the providential opportunity.

These gentlemen with the smooth and versatile manners invade American cities. They work very cautiously and very quietly among the sort of people who dream of getting rich over night by some lucky speculative turn. They stop at the little out of the way hotels and tell a tale of persecution that accounts for their secretive movements.

Talk for the Investor.

As a rule the swartky coloring, the Castilian accent and the photographs of the plantations, concessions, rubber groves and banana forests are all that the promoter needs in order to convince his victims.

"Ah, but see, señor," he exclaims, "here is the station of the railway, that is located quite near the hacienda." As he talks he rises through a bunch of Mexican photographs, selecting one now and then with much to edify his listener.

"You will see that there is transportation for the minerals, the fruits and the dry stuffs from the plantation. Then, too, señor, the labor is the cheapest. Do you see in this picture the moscos who work for me? Ah, but they are contented folk, who will work and work hard if properly handled. It is the Senor American who would know how to handle these patient workers. Dangerous? Not at all, and very temperate."

In the southwest they cut their eye teeth on such tales and pictures long since. The business of marketing imaginary banana plantations and arid wastes of sand for sugar beet fields has languished there for years. It has forced the promoter to penetrate farther northward with his thrilling, entrancing and iridescent stories of wealth to be had for the asking. Popular ignorance of Mexico has aided them. Our estimate of the Mexican shrewdness has made the task of the promoter easy. We think that because he cannot speak English fluently he is already delivered into our hands.

When He Wants Grapes.

"Champ Clark is rather leary about giving an opinion now-days," said one of his friends in the house press gallery. "He is running for president. He is much given to saying that he will not discuss a subject that everybody else is discussing."

"Mr. Clark reminds me of a young lawyer out west. The legal light would not commit himself on any subject. Two of his friends, Tom and John, underook to make him take a stand. They went to his office and incidentally commenced a debate whether or not a buffalo ate grapes."

"Of course, he eats grapes," said Tom. "I saw one climb twenty feet into a tree to get a bunch of grapes."

"What! A buffalo climb a tree?"

"Yes!"

"What do you think of that proposition—a buffalo climbing a tree to get grapes—judge!" said John to the lawyer, who had remained silent up to that time.

"Why, I don't know, but there's no telling what a buffalo will do when

City Building in Canada.

An expert condemns the common practice on this continent of laying out our cities with the regularity of a box of blocks. This system is the triumph of utilitarianism. We usually build our cities on the plan of a certain sort of bookcase, so that it is easy to add new sections whenever we like, without incongruity.

Sound Philosophy.

A correspondent of the Portland, Mass. Times asserts: "Men are like hedges—the more grass they contain, the further you can see them. Women are like tulips—the more modest and retiring they appear, the better you love them." There is some truth, we think, in that.

Futile Arguments.

There was once an orator. Themistocles, and as he reasoned a Colonel Bonaparte in the audience hurled a stone at the speaker. He took it up and showed it to the audience with the remark: "A very valuable argument."

For years the rubber forests were the sweetest song sung by the singers that came up out of Mexico with luring tales of fortune. The present high price of rubber that has followed the development of the automobile industry will doubtless revive interest in the rubber areas of Old Mexico. The promoter with his photographs and his heavily stamped credentials, with the red and blue seals will again invade the United States.

The Mexican insurrection has helped him in his campaign against the timid American dollar. It has aroused an almost forgotten interest in the country of the snake and eagle banner. Every one expects development as soon as the muddled situation over the country begins to clear up. People are thinking Mexico and talking Mexico. Their knowledge of what is going on there is at the best half knowledge, and the promoter finds the ground already broken in which he is to sow the seeds of the lure of easy wealth.

The recent troubles make good his story—reverses because of political conditions. He is a sort of a hero among the suckers whose names are on his list. They listen open mouthed to his tales of guerrilla warfare and appear to sympathize as he describes his arrest and deportation for political reasons.

They decide to buy. "Speculation" they call it among their friends and the immediate members of their families. Some of the lands that they buy have been sold scores of times to different purchasers. Some of the Mexican rubber plantations, sold to American investors, have been surveyed and found to be out in the gulf somewhere to the north of the Yucatan peninsula.

The legitimate exploiters of Mexico have made the presence of this horde of smooth tongued adventurers possible. They are fattening in the publicity given the real schemes of Mexican development.

Berrying With a Bear.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Clark and family of Milton are putting in this month in the mountains, and a few days ago she left the camp to pick huckleberries, and when about a mile away found a bush well loaded with the fruit and was busy filling her bucket when she heard a rustling noise on the other side of the brush, relates a dispatch from Milton, Ore.

She got up to investigate and there, almost touching her, was a large bear. They gazed at one another for some little time, and then Mrs. Clark started to run for the camp, believing the bear was after her, but he was running in the other direction.

The Rent Sheepskin.

The president of a college near Boston tells me that he received today a letter, the writer of which, a graduate, asked for a second diploma. He said that he had been engaged but that he and the lady of his choice had a falling out. The lady showed her displeasure by tearing his diploma into bits. "I am afraid," said the president, "he will have to go through life minus his diploma, but with a certified copy."

Roasted Victim Alive.

An almost unbelievably cruel happening has come to light at Hiroshima, Japan. There a man and his wife have been arrested for willfully cremating a live man. The prisoners were in charge of a crematorium, and while at work a faint voice coming out of a coffin begged for fresh air. The couple took no notice, however, and proceeded to apply fire, roasting the man alive.

Spiritual Insulation.

Many a man, who is now thrilled with the currents of the life of this modern age freely passing through him, is in danger of moral disaster, through defective spiritual insulation. Are the wires of your ambition well wrapped around with the insulating material of prayer and faith and love?

Prosperity Decreased Crime.

One hundred and seventeen persons, chiefly habitual criminals, were banished for life from Perak last year. Of these 99 were Chinese, 12 of whom had been convicted of participating in unlawful societies. It was discovered that the number of prison offences varied in indirect ratio with the price of tin. When tin was high and the industry accordingly prosperous inmates of jails were few, and vice versa.

Sublime and Ridiculous.

We like his writing when it is properly applied; so we appreciate the following burst of eloquence in a contemporary: "As the ostrich uses both legs and wings when the Arabian courses bounds in her rear—as the winged harlots leap from the heavens when the thunderbolts are loosed—so does a little negro run when a big dog is after him."

No Excuses.

There is a small boy in the city who is known for his misdeeds. He is a very naughty boy, and he is always getting into trouble. He is a very naughty boy, and he is always getting into trouble.

DEATH BEFORE 100 YEARS IS SUICIDE

Prof. Munyon Says Ignorance of Laws of Health Explains Early End of Life.

NOTED SCIENTIST HAS ENCOURAGING WORD FOR DESPONDENT MEN AND WOMEN

"Death before 100 years of age has been reaching nothing more or less than a slow suicide. A man (or woman) who dies at an earlier age is simply ignorant of the laws of health."

Such was the original and rather startling statement made by Professor James M. Munyon, the famous Philadelphia health authority, who is establishing health headquarters in all the large cities of the world for the purpose of getting in direct touch with his thousands of converts. Munyon is a living embodiment of the cheerful creed he preaches. Vigor, well poised, active and energetic, he looks as though he would easily attain the century age limit which he declares is the normal one.

"I want the people of the world to know my opinions on the subject of health, which are the fruit of a life-time devoted to healing the sick people of America. These are the things that I have done enough to house the people in this State alone who have found health through my methods. Before I got through there won't be a building big enough to house my cured patients in this city alone."

"I want, most of all, to talk to the sick people—the invalids, the discouraged ones, the victims of nerve-wearing, body-racking diseases and ailments—for these are the ones to whom my message of hope, which I bear, will bring the greatest blessing."

"I want to talk to the rheumatic, the sufferers from stomach trouble, the ones afflicted with that noxious disease, cancer. I want to tell the story to the women who have become chronic invalids as a result of nervous troubles. I want to talk to the man who is 'all run down,' whose health has been broken by overwork, improper diet, late hours and other causes, who feel the crushing clutch of serious, chronic illness."

"To these people I bring a story of hope. I can give them a promise of better things. I want to astonish them by showing the record of cures performed through my new system of treatment."

"I have taken the best of the ideas from all schools and embodied them in a new system of treatments individually adapted to each particular case. I have no cure but my present method of attacking disease is the very best thought of modern science. The success which I have had with these treatments in this city and all over America proves its efficacy. Old methods must give way to new medical science moves. I know what my remedies are doing for humanity everywhere. I know what they will do for the people of this city. Let me prove my statements to you at my laboratory."

The continuous stream of callers and mail that comes to Professor James M. Munyon at his laboratories, Fifty-third and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa., keeps Dr. Munyon and his enormous staff of experts and assistants busy.

Professor Munyon makes no charge for consultation or medical advice; not a penny to pay. Address Prof. J. M. Munyon, Munyon's Laboratories, Fifty-third and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

EARLY DAYS OF EDINBURGH'S STRONGHOLD

HOLYROOD CASTLE

THE most venerable of Edinburgh's historical relics are those which crown the summit of the Castle Rock. Long before there was a royal palace or even a religious house of Holyrood there was a fortress here. The castle preceded even the village of mud huts which originally sprung up under its shelter, and which developed into "Edwin's burgh."

Its earliest history is lost in a cloud of legend and romance. The rock is believed to have been occupied with a fort by the aboriginal tribes prior to the invasion of the Romans.

It is reasonable, indeed, to think that a place so well fitted by nature for a fortress, commanding a wide view of the country and of the routes north and south, would commend itself from the earliest times for purposes of defense.

There is a legend connecting it with King Arthur of round table fame, although the association does not come down to us in quite so localized a form as that which connects the great sovereign of romance with the hill which bears the name of Arthur's Seat.

There are grounds for believing that the rock was a place of strength in the fifth century. And down to the time of the introduction of artillery it was impregnable to assault. It could only be taken by surprise or through treachery.

Reliable history really begins with Malcolm Canmore, who built a residence here in the eleventh century. There still exists a relic of his sainted consort, the early Norman chapel of St. Margaret, in which she passed much of her time. In the castle the queen died within a day or two after she received the tidings of the death of her husband, and her body was carried out of the sallyport on the western side and down the rocks while Donald Bane, the usurper of her son's rights, thundered at the main gate. To that same sallyport, if tradition says true, "Bonnie Dundee" climbed many centuries afterward to talk to the governor of the castle.

In the old wars between Scotland and England Edinburgh castle played a prominent part. It was captured and recaptured again and again, and many bold deeds were done by gallant Scots. It was associated closely with the fortunes of Bruce. Three times it was captured by Edward Longshanks and three times it was taken again by the Scots. Valiant deeds were done here by the Douglas and by Randolph in defense of the independence of their country.

A Brave Dundee Shipmaster.

In the reign of Edward III, the castle fell once more into the hands of the English, but it was recaptured through a brilliant and romantic stratagem devised by William Bullock and carried out by the Knight of Liddesdale, Sir Simon Fraser, and a brave shipmaster of Dundee, William Curry.

Curry, pretending to be an English wine merchant, offered to supply the governor of the castle with wine and wheat. The offer was accepted. Curry, pretending also to be afraid of the Scots, got permission to deliver his cargo early in the morning. Before it was light Douglas and a number of his followers concealed themselves in the vicinity.

At daybreak Curry, Sir Simon Fraser and a few resolute Scots, all dressed in peasant's apparel, appeared at the gate.

the drawbridge, whereupon Curry and Fraser and their men set upon him and took his keys, opened the inner gate, and placed the casks and hampers so that it could not be shut or the portcullis lowered. The sound of the horn brought Douglas and his men from the foot of the hill. The garrison by this time was alarmed, and a desperate fight took place. The Scots, however, proved victorious.

Several of the Scottish sovereigns had a residence in the castle. Even after Holyrood was built they were glad at times to take refuge in the ancient fortress. From here James II. was carried off by his mother in a chest in order to save him from a faction of the nobles who wanted the control of the kingdom. Here took place the treacherous slaughter of the two young Douglases, which gave rise to the lines:

"Edinburgh castle, town and tower,
God grant thou sink for sin;
And that even for the black dinous
Earl Douglas gat therein."

The Douglases had come to the castle by invitation, and were banqueting with the king, when suddenly the "Black Bull's Head," the signal of death, was set on the table. The king (James II.) tried to save the youths, but Livingston and Crichton, who were responsible for the plot, had them carried to the courtyard and beheaded.

With the exception of St. Margaret's chapel and the portion of the castle in which Queen Mary's rooms are situated, the buildings on the Castle Rock are subsequent to this period. All earlier buildings (other than those mentioned) were destroyed at the time of this siege.

Charles I. slept in the castle on the night before his coronation as king of the Scots in Holyrood, and from here he rode in state down the High street and the Canongate to the Chapel Royal on the morning of the ceremony. He also held his coronation banquet in the great hall of the castle.

Beheaded by Cromwell.

A few years later the castle was besieged by Cromwell. At the revolution of 1688 it held out for James. But the tables were turned in 1745, when the garrison fired on the troops of Prince Charles Edward. Although Prince Charles held state at Holyrood, the castle continued to be occupied by the government troops, and every now and again the Jacobites were reminded of the fact. Not much damage was done, but imbedded in the wall on the Castlehill is one of the last balls fired from this ancient fortress.

The Scottish regalia—the crown, the sword of state and the scepter—which were used at the coronation of the Scottish kings down to that of Charles I. in Holyrood and Charles II. at Scoles (the last coronation in Scotland) are preserved in the castle, where for many years they were hidden away until, largely through the efforts of Sir Walter Scott, they were discovered.

The Castlehill was long used for executions, and it has been estimated that about 2,000 persons were burned here for witchcraft. Among them were several persons of distinction.

At a later date the soil of the Castlehill was, by a curious legal fiction, held to be the soil of Nova Scotia. Those who were created baronets of Nova Scotia and who received grants of land there had to have "peisin" (peat) it was felt to be a rather big thing to cross the Atlantic for the purpose. The device adopted saved this. Between 1625 and 1649 over sixty baronets of Nova Scotia took "peisin" here of the lands which had been granted to them in America.

There is a tradition (Robert Louis Stevenson R.L.S. characterizes it as "a silly story") of a subterranean passage between the castle and Holyrood and of a piper who volunteered to explore it and never returned. Similar legends are common in Scotland. There is said to be a passage between the abbey and the cliffs at Arbroath; and a lost piper figures in that story, too. Secret passages are said to exist between the castle and the cathedral in St. Andrews, and also in connection with Elgin cathedral.

OLD-FASHIONED BARBER BEST

Writer Objects, Strenuously to the "Tonsorial Artist" With His Atrocious Clothes and Talk.

Scarce a man living but at times drifts into dreaming and picturing what he might do if he had wealth. Many—far too many!—aspire to something that may contribute to the sensational headlines. Here and there is one who merely inclines toward some modest benefaction. For our own part, suddenly finding ourselves rich, we should like to devote much of it to eliminating the "tonsorial artists" from the field of barberdom; separating the tares from the wheat as it were.

The average "tonsorial artist" affects the most atrocious neckwear; dons a millionaire's vest with a millwright's trousers, and puts popular ideas of garb all at points. He talks glibly of scandal, horse races and hair restorer and eventually drives many a man to whiskers who is perfectly sane and normal otherwise. There are too many of him!

On the other hand the old fashioned "barber" knows his financial, mental and artistic limitations. He seldom feels better acquainted with you the second time over than he did the first. He assumes you know what you want better than he does and rarely forces his "extras." Mostly he is a good tradesman, cleanly and careful in his work. One of his stripes puts greater crimp in the safety razor business than all the "artistic" combined. Bless him, there is not enough of him!—Buffalo News.

Golden Opportunity.

A stranger passed through our show street the other evening and heard our popular youth and beauty in the strenuous warble of gladsome song. He was much impressed, and later, in lauding the town to ye editor, he said that he didn't know of a place on earth where there was such a golden opportunity for a good music teacher.—Hedge Corners Herald.

Conversational Topics.

Mrs. Rich-to-Do—Tell me, Maggie, what you servants find to talk about down in the kitchen.

Maggie—Oh, we mostly talks about the visitors up in the drawin' room. And, beggin' your pardon, ma'am, what do you mostly talk about upstairs?

"Oh, we talk mostly about the servants."—Life.

A "Commercial" Smile.

A London haberdasher instructs his clerks after this fashion: "Our employees are reminded that while serving customers they are expected to wear a commercial smile." The phrase is a valuable contribution to the literature of the subject. The "commercial smile" is the kind that has no heart in it.

Dead From a Thorn Thrust.

A thorn of her favorite rose puncturing her finger while she stretched forth her hand to pluck it for a friend's bouquet, caused the death of Miss Susan Reichart at Greenport, N. Y. Several doctors united in trying to cure the blood poisoning that resulted from the piercing wound, but their efforts were unavailing.

Overlooked.

We wish to make some mark in life. We turn to the distant and far away, when, indeed, the things for us, the things to make our marks upon, the things to do with, grow by, to let us into the desired happiness are the little ones lying just here about our daily path—the overlooked things next to us.—J. F. Ware.

When to Relax.

Dr. Eugenia Hancock of New York says a woman should "positively relax during the noon hour." With the children demanding lunch, the telephone ringing, the grocery boy at the back door and an Armenian lace peddler at the front, not to mention the neighbor running in to borrow the lawn mower, this is very easy, of course.

Enthusiasm Before All.

Every good and commanding movement in the annals of the world is the triumph of enthusiasm. Nothing great was ever accomplished without it.—Macaulay.

THEIR LIVES SHORT

MANY ABANDONED RAILROADS IN UNITED STATES.

Records Show 81 Steel Highways Whose Use Has Been Discontinued—Reasons Ascribed for Their Being Given Up.

Records for 1910 show that in the United States there are 81 abandoned railroads. From 18 the rails have been removed and 34 are described as "not in operation," or "operation suspended." In regard to the first class, the franchises seem to have expired by disuse, but the tracks are still in evidence; in the second class the company has pulled up stakes and quit, in the third a variety of causes may have contributed to the stopping of wheels, says the Railroad Man's Magazine.

The shutting down of the railroad may simply mean that it has outlived its usefulness. The neighborhood served by the line may have developed in a fashion that the builders hardly contemplated and with which the rails and rolling stock are incapable of dealing. Along comes capital and either gobbles up the little road altogether or puts it out of business by offering the traveling public facilities and accommodations that it cannot attempt to rival. It is really prosperity that shuts down such a road.

Then there have been roads built on the basis of the anticipated boom of a resort, a town or a section. The hope of the boomers not being realized the line goes into the discard.

Again, the initial promises of a mining district are such that a line is built for its benefit. The district doesn't pan out or goes barren after a time, and in consequence the road is abandoned.

The same is true of regions in which the natural resources are many or enticing, notably in those that yield oil. The disuse of lumber roads is inevitable also. The timber states are dotted with the remains of rusty rights of way, and almost every year adds to their number.

In many cases electricity has taken the place of steam where the line is a short one and used chiefly for passenger traffic. Sometimes where this has happened it has been found cheaper to build a new road than to tinker with the old one and so the latter is ticketed "abandoned."

One of the smallest and perhaps most unprofitable railroads in the United States was the abandoned Kentucky Northern that ran from Sincce, Ky., to a junction with the Louisville & Atlantic railroad, a distance of eight miles. It was incorporated in May 1902. From the first it proved to be a drain on the pocket-books of the stockholders. The surrounding population seems to have disliked the line. Not enough passenger tickets were sold and not enough freight was shipped to pay for the keeping of one locomotive, its lone passenger coach or its solitary flat car. In the year ended June, 1908, its operating expenses were $12,232 and its net earnings $897. About this time it was concluded that the wisest plan would be to abandon the road.

A whole group of railroads that once had their termini in Cincinnati have either had their rails taken up or are not in operation, the reason being their practical absorption by near-by large railroad interests.

RARE WOODS FOR ITS TIES

Panama Railroad Will Be Laid on Lignum Vitae and Other Most Costly Varieties.

The Panama Railroad will lay its tracks over the rarest and most valuable cabinet woods. The road is now being relocated incidental to the construction of the canal over part of the old line and it has become necessary to replace the old soft wood. Eight thousand hardwood ties have just been received at Colon from Colombia. Most of these ties are hewn from Guaiacum, or lignum vitae, but there are also many of polvillo, cor-teza and balsamo.

These hard woods should last indefinitely even in the tropical climate of the Isthmus, but they can be laid and railed only by the use of special machinery which bores holes for the screw bolts and chisels out faces to form the rail seats.

Do not dare to live without some intuition toward which you

ALL FAVOR RAILROAD BONDS

Figures Show How Highly They Are Considered as a Judicious Investment.

The annual report just issued by the Connecticut insurance commission, giving the assets and form of investment of the life insurance companies doing business in that state, supplies impressive evidence of the "indirect" railroad stockholder and bondholder. The returns of twenty-eight companies inside and outside the state give total assets amounting to the great sum of $2,990,291,000. Of that amount $1,432,114,000 is invested in "stocks and bonds."

Unfortunately the proportion in railway stocks and bonds is not summarized, but a glance at the separate investments, as grouped but not added, shows that they form a very large part. As an illustration, one old and conservative Connecticut company has sixty-five investments in railway stocks and bonds as compared with but seventeen investments in stocks and bonds of other corporations.

Out of Harvard university's total investments of $19,060,268 there is $5,453,059 in steam railway bonds, $1,549,880 in street railway bonds and $1,927,338 in railway stocks—$8,930,277, or nearly one-half the total investment. Or, again, in a more specific and limited case, take recent returns of the Massachusetts savings banks, showing that out of three issues alone of the New York, New Haven and Hartford those banks hold $22,492,000, or about 28 per cent.—Railway Age Gazette.

PARASOL STOPPED A TRAIN

It Was Red and the Engineer Not Unnaturally Thought It Was a Signal.

A curious incident has come to light in connection with the stopping of a London train on the Caledonian main line near Rockliffe station, a few miles north of Carlisle, says the Railroad Employee. The train was running at full speed when the engineer observed a red object by the side of the line which he regarded as a danger signal. The train was accordingly pulled up, when it was found that the object in question was a red parasol carried by a woman who, wishing to cross the line at a level crossing, was awaiting the passing of the express.

A case as singular happened a number of years ago on the Old Colony railroad near the North Easton station, says former Superintendent J. H. French of that system. Coming from Stoughton, the Fall River line boat train approaches North Easton upon a considerable grade, passing the station by a curve, then under a low highway bridge on to straight track again.

One dark night the train came to an emergency stop at North Easton station, and upon investigation the cause proved to be the tiny red glass of a bicycle lamp resting against the side while its owner watched the approach of the train.

Decomposition of Buildings.

Two British scientists, Church and Rideal, claim that the decomposition of stone buildings under the influence of city atmosphere is due mainly to the presence of sulphurous acid in the air. They also state that no less than 500,000 tons of this gaseous acid is discharged into London's atmosphere every year, mainly as one of the combustion products of illuminating gas.

Under the action of carbon particles in the smoke, which make the walls dirty, this acid condenses, and uniting with the limestone, forms a sulphate of lime. When part of the surface material of St. Paul's cathedral was subjected to chemical analysis, it was found to contain no trace of the original carbonate of lime, but on the other hand showed a sulphate of lime content of 73.8 per cent.—Popular Mechanics.

Imitation Mahogany.

More than half of the 40,000,000 feet of "mahogany" consumed every year in this country is not mahogany. There are a score of imitation woods, but one chief one. The so-called Colombian mahogany, according to a monograph just issued by the forest service, belongs to the monkey-pod family, Lecythidaceae, otherwise known as Carinifera pyriformis. Its grain and color resembles the wood of mahogany, and its straight cylindrical trunk, averaging three feet in diameter, and with a clear length of fifty feet, admirably adapts it for lumbering. The cabinetmakers like it as well as the true mahogany. Why not call it by its graceful name, Carinifera?

Work and Prayer.

Work with all your might; but trust not in the least in your work. Pray with all your might for the blessing of God; but work, at the same time, with all diligence, with all patience, with all perseverance. Pray, then, and work. Work and pray, and you shall prevail.—Proverbs.

FOR PROBATE CLERK

(Advertisement)
S. W. Perry announces in this issue of the Outlook as a candidate for the office of Probate Clerk, Ex-Officio Recorder and District Court Clerk, for Lincoln County subject to the action of the Democratic Nominating convention which will meet at Lincoln next Wednesday, October the 19th. Mr. Perry has been a resident of Carrizozo for the past five years having been in charge of the Foxworth-Galtbraith lumber yard the entire time; he came here from Texas and has been prominently identified with the up-building of the community and has shown especial interest in the erection of churches in this country and is a deacon in the Baptist church at this time. The office which he seeks requires a man of ability and integrity and we have no hesitancy in saying that Mr. Perry is an honest, capable citizen of which the democratic party might be proud to put on their county ticket.

CAPTAN SUNDAY SCHOOL

We were glad to have the Rev. Walker with us Friday, Saturday and Sunday. He gave us four good sermons which were appreciated by fairly good sized audiences. The Sunday school here is still progressing Mrs. Haynie taught a part of one of the classes which had grown too large for one teacher Mrs. J. L. Bryan has the other section. Mrs. S. W. Hale has consented to teach one class which makes our teaching staff, four. The adult class will hold its monthly social Friday night, Oct. 13 in the Sunday school room. It is expected that we will have a short program, business meeting and all around good time. Refreshments will be served and ever member of the class is invited and urged to be present also any others who are interested.

CLASS MEETING

The executive committee of the Philathea Class of the Baptist Sunday School met at the home of Miss Spellman on Tuesday evening and appointed the following committee: Volunteer Committee; Misses Kate Channell, Olivia Kennedy Kittie Riley. Social Committee; Misses Gladys Estes, Sibel Perry, Gussie Kahler. Missionary Committee; Misses Martha Barefoot, Emma Oswald, Minnie Daniel. Athletic Director; Miss Kittie Riley. Musical Director; Miss Ruby Perry.

POLLY PALAVERINGS

Polly is still flourishing—new buildings going up and improvements being made in various ways. A new windmill on the J. C. Jensen place. M. W. Beagles has baled quite a lot of hay and it is rumored he will soon begin work on a comfortable adobe home. Fred Funk is engaged on some improvements on the ranch. Mr. Goddard and Mr. Christopher have been engaged the past week in assisting Mr. Harkey in shearing goats.

DANCE AT CAPITAN

Announcement is made that there will be a dance at the school house in Capitan, on Hollow's evening October 31st. The affair of course will be a Masque Ball and masques may be purchased from the Capitan Mercantile Company by those not already supplied.

PARSONS PICKUPS

On the night of October 7th one-half inch of ice formed here on the standing water, which looks like winter to us up here.

Mr. and Mrs. Doc Roberts were on the Bonito one day last week.

Miss Nellie Copeland is here visiting Miss Emma Grafton.

School opened at Parsons last Monday in charge of Miss Emma Grafton.

SOLDIERS AND CIVILIANS MADE NON-SINKABLE

KEPT AFLOAT BY THEIR CLOTHES

BERLIN.—A remarkable demonstration was given the other day in the Spree, near here, of a new fabric designed to make clothing so buoyant that it will keep its wearer afloat in the water. The composition of the invention which brings about this result is a well-guarded secret. To don a garment lined with it is to become unsinkable. On the occasion mentioned, infantrymen, in full marching kit, clad in uniforms lined with the material, which rendered the clothing neither heavier nor thicker than usual, threw themselves into the water, and not only did not sink, but were able to "march" in the water and to fire. At the same time, coffee was served to a party in the water, waiter and guests being clad in the special fabric. It is reported that recently the inventor, wearing his suit, jumped into the water before the Kaiser's steamer to demonstrate the value of his device, and that the police arrested him for impropriety.

DEVOUR PIGS' FEET

City of Chicago Eats 40,000,000 Every Year.

Big Demand for Pickled Product in Windy City—Lovers of Delicacy Are Men of Brawn and Muscle.

Chicago.—Chicagoans eat annually about 40,000,000 pigs' feet.

This was the estimate made today by packers and retail meat dealers. Incidentally it was announced that the pigs' feet season is in progress. Within a few days retail meat dealers expect a big demand for the article and are laying in big stocks.

Chicago is said to consume more pigs' feet annually than any other city in the country. The demand is largest in the foreign colonies, but a large number of Americans also are fond of the product. The Germans and Scandinavians are said to be the largest consumers, many of those nationalities doing their own pickling and eating the meat at all times of the year.

This year nearly 5,000,000 hogs have been received at the Union stock yards and most of the feet have been sold to dealers in Chicago and vicinity.

"Pigs' feet nearly always find a ready market," said a representative of the Swift Packing company. "The big demand is in the winter. Thousands of fresh pigs' feet are sold by retail dealers to families who pickle them. The packing companies also pickle large quantities of them throughout the year and in the fall and winter find a ready market."

"Yes, there is always a demand for pigs' feet among the Scandinavians," said Charles Erickson, meat dealer, 3313 Sheffield avenue. "Most of my customers prefer to pickle them themselves and buy large quantities of the fresh article late in the season."

nationalities, especially the Germans. Like oysters, pigs' feet have their regular season. This continues throughout the fall, winter and spring, but there are many who eat them during the summer months as well.

Pigs' feet as a health and flesh producing food was commended in many quarters.

"It is a notable fact that most of the lovers of pigs' feet are among the men of brawn and muscle," said Andrew Benson, 3314 North Clark street. "There is little or no demand for the article among the wealthy class, but the man who toils all day in the shop or open air is, as a rule, fond of pigs' feet."

Bank of England Is Sinking

Financially a Gibraltar of Money, but a Little Too Heavy for Earth—Repairs Begin at Once.

London.—The phrase "As safe as the Bank of England" is rather shaken in its meaning by news of a subsidence of the foundations of the famous old building in the city.

The clerks in the private drawing office—which is situated at the Princess street corner of the Bank of England and communicates with the bill office—were startled recently by a loud report coming apparently from the roof of the building.

Careful examination by experts failed to disclose any defect in the roof and the authorities, therefore, decided thoroughly to inspect the foundations of the building. It was found that the foundations were sinking.

BELSHAZZAR CALLED A PIKER

University Professor Says Supposed King Was Only Deputy—Says Daniel Made Many Errors.

Chicago.—Belshazzar of Babylon was not a king. The famous host who feasted a thousand of his lords in state has been weighed in the balance of higher criticism and has lost his royal crown.

Prof. Herbert L. Willett of the University of Chicago Divinity school reduced the ancient hero's rank in a lecture on "The Appeal to the Supernatural" the other day in Haskell hall.

Far from being a king and sole owner of the golden vessels in the Babylonian palace, Belshazzar was merely a deputy, the professor declared, and only a kind of deputy—at that.

The writer of the book of Daniel erred in many historical facts, Professor Willett told the students. The story of Belshazzar's feast and the handwriting on the wall was given as but one example of inaccuracy.

GATHERED SMILES

A SCARY HORSE.

A man in upper New York state, who was desirous of purchasing a horse for the use of his wife, recently entered into negotiations with a veteran horse dealer.

"Now, I'm not so particular about speed," said the prospective purchaser, "but I must have a gentle horse."

"Here is one that I'll warrant to be perfectly safe," said the dealer, indicating a sad looking steed near by.

"Are you sure he is not afraid of anything?" insisted the man.

The dealer assumed an air of deep reflection. "Well," he said, "there's one thing he has always appeared to be afraid of ever since I got him. It seems as if he's scared to death for fear some one might say 'whoa!' and he not hear it."—Lippincott's.

HIS PREFERENCE.

Rosalind.—You may kiss me on the forehead.
Orlando.—And get a bang in the month. Oh! no. But I must say I like your cheek.

Revised.
Pease porridge hot,
Pease porridge cold;
Pease porridge in a can
No one knows how old.

Independence of Mother-in-Law.
"Well, Binksey," said Jiggers, generally, "did you celebrate the Fourth of July in fitting manner?"

"You bet I did," said Binksey, with a swelling chest.

"What did you do?" asked Jiggers.

"I read the Declaration of Independence to my mother-in-law," said Binksey.

"Phoo-ew!" whistled Jiggers. "You are a brave man, aren't you?"

"Oh, not so very," said Binksey. "I did it over the long-distance wire."—Harper's Weekly.

Can't See Out.

"Do you know it's a fact that few women are in the habit of looking ahead?"

"I hadn't thought much about the matter. How do you account for it?"

"Well, at the present time their failure to look ahead may be due to the kind of hats they are wearing."

His Suffragette Wife.

"Does your wife insist on being allowed to vote?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "She is not content with having the last word in a political argument. She must go to the polls and put in a postscript."—Red Hen.

There Yet.

"Brink, you spend about half your time tinkering with that motor boat. What is there about it that's so attractive?"

"The $750 I put into it, old chap."

Makes the Diagnosis Easy.

"Doctor, I suffer dreadfully from rheumatism in my knee."

"Well, there's some satisfaction in that."

"Some satisfaction?"

"Yes; it shows, you know, that it's a real case of rheumatism."

GREATLY EXAGGERATED.

She had been at the seaside and in the country for the holidays, and her industrious fiance had been working and waiting for her during the long, long days. Now she had returned and he had been hearing many things of her, and was sore displeased.

"They tell me," he said, painfully, "that you flirted desperately with no fewer than six men."

Her cheeks flushed and her eyes blazed. "Who told you that?" she asked, angrily.

"Several people. It has become common talk."

Her anger gave way to sobs. "Oh, Frank," she pleaded, as she flung herself on his neck, "it isn't true—it isn't true."

A great load was lifted from his heart. "No, Frank," she went on, "it isn't true; there were only four."

A Girl's Way.

"Why do you keep asking me to be your wife. You surely wouldn't want me to marry you if I didn't love you."

"No, I don't want you to marry me if you don't love me; but I can't help thinking the practice I'm getting in asking you may some time come in handy. Now I'm going to give you another chance to turn me down."

"Oh, well, if you're determined to have me I suppose I may as well say yes."

A Community of Interests.

There were only two lawyers in the village.

"Sir," said the lady client, "your bill for services is outrageous! I shall take legal advice before paying it."

"I tell you frankly, ma'am, there's no use your going to the other lawyer, ma'am," said the able attorney. "We always share whatever we get."

In Plain Words.

Father to his daughter, whom he sees whispering to her mother)—Elsie, how often have I told you not to do that? Speak out if you want anything.

Elsie.—Well, father, I wanted to know why the woman near me has such a red nose.—Eloquente Blatter.

"ONE TOUCH OF NATURE," ETC.

Luna Parker.—Say, pard, there's lots of poetry about the moon, ain't there? Dusty Rhodes—Gush! Bosh! Dere's no po'ry in anythin' wot so offen gits down to its last quarter.

His Excuse.

Immortal in our present plight,
For each man who is fuddled,
Pleads when he staggers home at night,
'Tis 'cause the water's muddled.

Couldn't Help Himself.

"Here comes our modern Diogenes! Well, have you found an honest man?"

"Yes—in jail."
"Queer place, wasn't it to find one?"

"No; he had to be honest there."

Vary Plain.

"And you think this hat becomes me?" asked the customer.

"Yes, I do, madam," replied the milliner.

"But it's very plain."

"Yes; it just suits your face, madam."

Obliging.

Her Dad.—No, sir; I won't have my daughter tied for life to a stupid fool. Her Suitor.—Then don't you think you'd better let me take her off your hands.—Pathfinder.

Logic.

Customer.—Sir, just look at these goods just out of the wash! And you told me when I bought them the colors were fast. Just look how they've run! Clerk.—I spoke truly, madam. How can anything be fast that doesn't even run?

The GIRL OF MY DREAMS

A NOVELIZATION OF THE PLAY BY
WILBUR D. NESBIT AND OTTO HAUERBACH
NOVELIZED BY WILBUR D. NESBIT

CHAPTER I

Harry Swifton hummed a song to himself and threw a little more speed into his roadster.

He had every reason to be happy. Long regarded as a settled bachelor, though young enough to be the sort of chap all the girls were setting their caps for, he felt that this was to be the really great day of his life. Lucy Medders and her father were coming to visit him; his sister Carolyn was coming home from boarding school especially to play the hostess, the home had been made spick and span for the occasion, the sun was shining, the little birds were singing in the trees of the park, his roadster was running smoothly and—well, he hadn't a care in the world.

As he took corners in the driveways without slackening speed he murmured:

"Good little buzz wagon! You're the cupid that started all this."

In memory, he could see again that day of the summer before when in the same machine he was whizzing along a country road. Something happened, the machine skidded, with the usual result.

When Harry came to his senses he was lying on an old-fashioned hair sofa, in an old-fashioned Quaker home—but he thought he was in heaven.

Above him bent a Quaker damsel, demurely beautiful and distractingly calm. She was bathing his brow with a cloth wrung out of cold water to which some camphor had been added.

"Do these feel better?" she asked, in the softest of tones.

"It depends," he managed to say. "If you're going to stop this because I'm better, I'm going to have a relapse."

Then into the room came a stalwart old Quaker.

"Has the young man recovered, Lucy?" he asked.

"Yes, father," she said. Harry sat up, with an effort.

"I don't know how to thank you, sir," he said. "It was lucky that I went into the ditch right in front of your house."

With the word "lucky" he looked meaningfully at Lucy, but that self-possessed maiden did not seem to catch his double meaning.

The result of the accident is not hard to guess. Harry found himself so bumped and bruised that it took a fortnight for him to be well enough to return to his home. And in that fortnight he and Lucy became so well acquainted that it then became necessary for him to run up to see her a mere matter of a hundred miles—once every week. And now he had induced her father to bring her to visit him and his sister.

He reviewed in his mind the events of the days since the accident. Pleasant thoughts, those, for a young man. They take his mind off the immediate surroundings, however.

Automatically he whirled around another corner—then began doing things with the brake, but too late.

Twenty yards before him approached another auto. In it sat a couple oblivious to their danger. There was a smash and a crash, a shriek and a yell. And then the three people picked themselves up.

The man in the other auto leaped to his feet first and shook his fists at Harry. The lady gathered her hair into a coil again and exclaimed:

"My hat! My beautiful hat!"

Harry followed the direction of her glance, and saw the object of her dismay. A handsome hat of yellow straw, adorned with large red flowers, was hopelessly entangled in the steering gear of his machine.

He extricated it—or what he could of it—and offered it to her. But with a tearful exclamation of despair she refused it.

"Scoundrel!" shouted her friend. "Vy do you go running around killing peoples, und ruining their hats?"

"My dear count!" cried the lady. "Not so loud!"

But the count was not to be calmed. In spite of Harry's efforts to explain matters, he continued his staccato expressions of wrath and vengeance, until, giving up the idea of straightening matters out, Harry popped into his own machine, skilfully ran past the other auto, and resumed his homeward ride. In a moment the count and the lady were in their seat again, the count wheeled his machine about, and the pursuit began. By some deft turnings and twistings Harry managed to evade them and at last reached home.

He dashed into the house, eager to change his clothes and be ready to go to the station to meet Mr. Medders and Lucy. "Pigeon" Williams met him, Pigeon, as he was affectionately called, was a young man who tried his best to be a chum of Harry—for the reason that he was unusually attracted by Harry's sister Carolyn. It was natural that Pigeon should be at Swifton's that morning. He wanted to help Harry have things ready to entertain Lucy and her father, and besides he thought it would cheer Carolyn up to see one of her old friends on her own arrival.

"Is Carolyn here?" Harry asked, as he came in.

"Sure," replied Pigeon. "She got here half an hour ago—mad as the dickens because you didn't meet her at the train. Why didn't you? If I'd known you weren't going to, of course I could have gone."

"I meant to," Harry replied. "But I had a bit of a smash-up in the park."

"Smash-up? Again?"

"Nothing that amounted to much. Head-on bump into one of these run-about things—run about a day—and then blow up. German dignitary in it, with a dashing brunette. No wonder he couldn't see me coming. He had to look at her."

"Didn't hurt them?"

"No. Just knocked the breath out of all of us. And her hat fell off, and my machine chewed it up. Look."

Harry dug into his pocket and produced the brim of the lady's hat, with a trailing string of red poppies. Pigeon laughed.

"Keep it for a souvenir?" he asked.

"Don't know. The German fellow got mad, and I came away in such a hurry I forgot what I was doing. Stuck the thing in my pocket absent-mindedly, I guess."

"He got mad! No wonder. I think he's real peevy. When I made my get-away he got his old cook stove into action and tried to follow me. But I escaped."

Harry went into his room and Pigeon sat down.

"How's Carolyn looking?" Harry called to him.

"Fine and dandy. Say, Harry, Pigeon went on, mellowly, "the fellows have it in for you."

"In for me! Why?" asked Harry, in muffled tones, tugging at a collar button.

"They say you're a quitter. You used to be strong for stag parties, and all that, and now you don't care for anything but the country—and a country girl."

"That so?" Harry said, coming out. "Well, let 'em say what they please. I'm for the country—that's where you go for pure air, green fields, natural flowers, and natural girls. Pigeon, I'm through with all this bachelor stuff. No more of the stag suppers and poker parties for yours truly. I'm ready to quit and be good—if my plans work."

"I think you're dead right, Harry," Pigeon replied, solemnly. "Judging from my own experience. There's nothing in this bachelor life."

"Your experience? Here, Mothuse-lah! Take a cigar. Why, you're not even old enough to use a safety razor, boy!"

Pigeon blushed boyishly and felt of his tender mustache with an embarrassedly guilty expression.

"You're always rubbing it in on a fellow," he complained.

CHAPTER II

Harry laughed sarcastically, and in the midst of his laugh Carolyn dashed into the room. A jolly, romping girl, just at the age when a girl doesn't know whether to keep on being a girl or to consider herself a woman, she paused for a moment at sight of Pigeon, then lost her formality and ran to Harry to greet him.

"Isn't she some girl, though?" Harry cried to Pigeon, with his arms around his sister. "Have to keep my eyes on you, from now on, young lady! You're getting to be too big and pretty."

"I'm not too big!" pouted Carolyn. "Not a bit—and you couldn't be too

eral replied. "They left me by way of Reno long ago. I'm not a bam dit sorry."

Harry laughed again, for when the general became excited it was his habit to get his words twisted, sometimes with ludicrous effect.

The general regarded Harry's amusement with calm disapproval.

"My boy," he said, dropping his hand on Harry's shoulder, "let me give you one bit of good advice—not legal. When you marry for the third time—"

"But I haven't married my first yet," Harry protested.

"You will, however. And when you marry for the third time, don't marry a young, beautiful woman."

"Don't?"

"No. Don't. Half the time she's have you making a fam-dool-of-yourself."

Having delivered himself of this sage observation, the general stalked to the door, turned and bade Harry farewell, and started out, to bump against a wood-begone person, who was coming in at the same moment.

"I—I beg your pardon, humbly!" exclaimed the newcomer, in a thin, high, weepy voice.

"Broom!" stammered the general, brushing by him.

The newcomer glided in. His long, dank hair hung down to his collar, his white, thin hands plucked with melancholy grace at the roycroft tie he was wearing, and his eyes, which were set deep in his head, gleamed weirdly.

"Alas!" he said. "It is you!"

"You're a good guesser, Primmer," Harry said, grasping his hand. "I'm glad you could come to see us."

Socrates Primmer, a distant cousin of Lucy, and a school teacher who considered himself a poet, had accepted Harry's offhand invitation to come and visit him at the same time as Lucy and her father were to come. Harry had not dreamed that Primmer would come, for he knew Primmer had long considered himself a sultor for the hand of the demure Quakeress. Nevertheless, here he was, and in the hand that was not adjusting his neck-tie was held a large hatbox, labeled, "Mlle. Daphne."

How Oyster Islands Are Formed.

Oyster islands, similar to those formed of coral, are found in several parts of the world. The islands in Newport river and Beaufort Harbor, North Carolina, says a writer in the Century Path Magazine, have been discovered to have as base a reef to which the spawn were attached and above this layer—upon layer of oysters, vegetable growth, and debris brought by the action of the waves and winds, all of which finally grows high enough to rise above the surface of the water. This growth is exactly analogous to that of the coral islands of the Pacific.

The islands near the mouth of the River Tagus in Portugal are said to have been built up in this way also. Here, where there is such a quantity of oysters that 100 million a year would scarcely be missed if they were removed, the expanse of water just beyond the river's mouth is dotted with oyster islands. As in the case of the coral reefs, which on the seaward side may be covered with living, growing coral, live oysters thrive in the same waters where the accumulation of dead generations has served to form the islands.

WHEAT ON DRY FARM

Influence of Combined Harvester on Value of Crop.

Results Obtained by Utah Experiment Station Indicate That Machine Does Not Affect Quality of Flour Produced.

By DR. ROBERT STEWART, Chemical Laboratory, Utah Experiment Station. This question has recently been studied by the chemical department of the Utah experiment station. The introduction of the combined harvester into the dry farming operation of the intermountain west has resulted in a reduction of the cost of operation on the larger dry farms. The claim was soon made by the millers of certain sections of the state that wheat cut with the harvester could not be converted into flour of good quality.

In studying this question, samples of Turkey and Kofod wheat cut with the harvester in 1909 and 1910, together with samples of the same wheat cut with the binder and stacked, were obtained. The wheat was milled in our experimental flour mill and the yield of bran, shorts and flour recorded. The bran, shorts and flour were submitted to chemical analysis and the flour was made into bread under standard conditions. The results obtained are reported in bulletin No. 113 of the Utah experiment station and indicate clearly that the combined harvester does not have influence, either unfavorable or favorable, upon the milling, chemical or baking qualities of the flour produced.

The yield of flour obtained from the Turkey variety cut with the harvester in 1910 was 72.65 per cent. of the wheat while the yield of flour obtained from the wheat cut with the binder and stacked was 72.77 per cent. The yield of flour obtained from the Kofod wheat cut with the harvester in 1910 was 72.17 per cent., while the yield of flour produced from the wheat cut with the binder stacked was 72.12 per cent. It is thus readily seen that with respect to the yield of the flour the method of harvesting has no influence whatever. It is interesting to note, however, that a greater percentage of high grade flour may be obtained from the Turkey variety of wheat. About eighty per cent. of the flour produced from the Turkey wheat would be classed as a high grade flour, while only about forty per cent. of the flour produced from the Kofod would be classed as high grade.

In case of the chemical composition of the flour obtained, no conclusion can be safely drawn regarding the influence of the harvester. In case of the Turkey variety of wheat, the flour produced from the wheat which had been stacked is slightly higher than that of the flour produced from wheat cut with harvester. In case of the Kofod variety of wheat, however, this is not true. The Kofod wheat cut with the harvester in 1910 has a slightly lower protein content than the same wheat cut the same year with the binder and stacked. However, the wheat cut with the harvester in 1909 has a higher protein content than that cut with the binder and stacked. The chemical composition of the bran and shorts indicate only that these mill products are rich in protein and would probably be good cattle feed.

The volume of the loaf produced from the Turkey variety cut with the harvester was 1,666 cc. and 1,653 cc. in 1909 and 1910, respectively, while the volume of loaf of the bread made from the flour produced from the Turkey which has been cut with the binder and stacked was 1,667 cc. In case of the Kofod variety, these numbers become 1,576 cc. and 1,468 cc., respectively, for 1909 and 1910, and 1,394 cc. for the wheat which had been stacked. The flour was all treated under uniform standard conditions and it is thus seen that if any influence can be ascribed to the harvester at all it must be a favorable influence. While the investigation did not show any influence of the harvester on the bread-making value of the flour produced, it did demonstrate the value of Turkey Red wheat for flour production. The Turkey Red wheat produces a uniform flour of high grade which has the strength to produce a loaf of bread of good volume. The flour produced from new Turkey Red wheat seemed to make a good bread as flour produced from old Turkey Red wheat, while the flour produced from new Kofod wheat produced a loaf of bread very much inferior in quality and yet the year-old Kofod wheat produced a good flour. Actual photographs of the bread made are given in the original publication.

The millers of the intermountain west still insist that the harvester has a detrimental influence on the value of the wheat. This claim may be justified when the wheat is stored in larger quantities as was done with the wheat cut with the header or binder and stacked. It is quite probable that wheat cut with the harvester must receive different storage treatment. It may be that wheat cut with the harvester and stored in lots of 30,000 bushels will not produce good flour, but this cannot be charged against the harvester, but is a special storage proposition which merits investigation.

INCREASE YIELD PER ACRE

Quantity of Water Required to Produce Grain Becomes Smaller as Fertility is Improved.

One of the most important recent discoveries in the handling of crops and especially of grain is that in reference to the relation of soil fertility and moisture. Experiments have brought proof that the quantity of water required to produce a bushel of grain becomes smaller as the fertility of the soil increases. It requires twice as much water to produce a bushel of grain on an infertile soil as it does on fertile soil in good tilth, says the Kansas Farmer. Tests showing this result have been made both in Europe and America. In every case the more fertile soil, either through tillage or the use of manure or of commercial fertilizers, the less the amount of water necessary for the production of each bushel of grain.

The greater portion of the plant food in the soil is inert until by deep plowing, thorough tillage and early preparation it is made available to the plants. Such treatment holds moisture deeper in the soil, the air and the water work on the inert earth and the moisture helps dissolve the plant food, increasing the number and action of bacteria in the soil, these bacteria manufacturing plant food from the earth particles.

A wheat grower who gives his fields the minimum amount of tillage, only disk his land, does little toward making the fertility available and 2,000 pounds of water or more may be required in his fields for each pound of wheat harvested. The grower who follows the plan of shallow plowing secures some increase in fertility, but not enough to use the moisture to the best advantage.

Early preparation of land, deep plowing and constant cultivation until it is in good tilth, with spring harrowing, makes the soil so fertile that only about one-half as much moisture is required to produce a bushel of grain as it required with slight preparation. Intensive tillage secures double the service from the rainfall.

Commercial fertilizers and manure, after becoming thoroughly incorporated in the soil, have the same effect. Rotation with legumes and summer fallowing similarly increase the grain producing effect of the rainfall. This is the surest way to double or triple the yield per acre.

His Future Expenditures.

Among the most frequent requests that go to the United States senate are those asking some prominent member to give money to charity organizations, hospitals and other philanthropic undertakings. One day a charity worker asked Senator Flint of California, who is not a wealthy man, to give a large sum of money for a free ward in one of the hospitals.

"I am sorry that I cannot comply with your request," said the senator gravely, "but, judging from the number of similar demands that have been made upon me in the past, I have decided that I can promote a greater charity. The vast amount of money spent on hospitals in this town convinces me that thousands of people are going to die and be buried without flowers. Hereafter, I shall devote my spare money exclusively to sending flowers to the dead."—The Sun-Magazine.

Social Distinction.

In some parts of the south the farkers are still addicted to the old-style country dance in a big hall, with the farkers, banjoists and other musicians on the platform at one end.

At one such dance held not long ago in an Alabama town, when the farkers had duly resigned their bows and taken their places on the platform the floor manager rose. "Oit you' partners fo' de nex' dance," he yelled. "All you ladies an' gentlemen dat wears shoes an' stockin's, take you' places in de middle of de room. All you ladies an' gentlemen dat wears shoes an' no stockin's, take you' place immediately behin' dem. An' you' barefooted crowd, you jes' jig it round in de corners."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Twice Convicted.

Another lawyer's story arrives. We are told that a man was charged with picking a pocket the other day and that when arraigned he pleaded "guilty." The case went to the jury, however, and the verdict was "not guilty." And the court spoke as follows:

"You don't leave this court without a stain on your character. By your own confession you are a thief. By the verdict of the jury, you are a liar."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

New Idea in Judicial Lore.

The suggestion of a French judge, who presided at a breach of promise suit, has aroused the interest of American men and women. The suggestion is that when young people become engaged an agreement to marry should be drawn up with a clause providing damages if it is broken.

A LADY LECTURER Feeds Nerves and Brains Scientifically.

A lady lecturer, writes from Philadelphia concerning the use of right food and how she is enabled to withstand the strain and wear and tear of her arduous occupation. She says:

"Through improper food, imperfectly digested, my health was completely wrecked, and I attribute my recovery entirely to the regular use of Grape-Nuts food. It has, I assure you, proven an inestimable boon to me."

"Almost immediately after beginning the use of Grape-Nuts I found a gratifying change in my condition. The terrible weakness that formerly prostrated me after a few hours of work, was perceptibly lessened and is now only a memory—it never returns."

"Ten days after beginning on Grape-Nuts I experienced a wonderful increase in mental vigor and physical energy, and continued use has entirely freed me from the miserable insomnia and nervousness from which I used to suffer so much."

"I find Grape-Nuts very palatable and would not be without the crisp, delicious food for even a day on any consideration. Indeed, I always carry it with me on my lecture tours."

In the senate of the United States there are 61 lawyers, five bankers, eight business men, four farmers, three journalists, two mine operators, two manufacturers, one author, one doctor and four members whose callings are not given. ### "WHY SHOULD I USE CUTICURA SOAP?"

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a water, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 23 L, Boston, for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two page book on the skin and hair.
