IRRIGATION BY PUMPING

Installation of Small Pumping plants. Scientific Article on Subject, By

F. L. BIXBY, U. S. IRRIG. ENGR.

The development of Agricultural lands by Irrigation has been more rapid in the past ten years than in any twenty years previous to 1900. There are at present over 13,000,000 acres of land being irrigated in the United States, most of which is by private enterprise. With the water yet available and a more economical use of the same there is a possibility of irrigating 7,000,000 acres more, making a grand total of 20,000,000 acres of land under irrigation. Water is already a valuable asset to the farmer and its increasing scarcity is impressing the fact upon the minds of irrigators that water must be used more sparingly. The prodigal waste of water in the past, both through use and lack is now supplanted by the desire to conserve the moisture in the soil by adequate cultivation and use less water for irrigation. The water in our streams is all, or nearly all, the property of irrigation companies, communities or private individuals. Necessity has driven the farmer to other sources of supply. A large portion of the water carried in streams seeps away as it seeks a lower level feeding large underground reservoirs. It is not lost however, as it makes possible a new phase in irrigation development, that of supplying water to crops by pumping.

The development of agricultural lands by pumping is spreading through sections heretofore thought to be permanent deserts and large areas are being reclaimed in this manner. Pumping as a successful venture is not a mere experiment although many failures have been recorded. These failures however, may be traced directly to either of two causes, viz a desire to build the plant as cheaply as possible or lack of proper preliminary investigation by an experienced engineer. Of the former it may be said, that it does not pay to buy second-hand engines and pumps because they are cheap. Good results cannot be expected with such equipment; the experience of those who have studied pumping machinery from the economical standpoint will bear this statement out. As for the employment of a competent engineer to make the proper investigations prior to installing a pumping plant, it may be said that it is money well spent and the increased output of the plant will determine the value of such services.

The subject of pumping may be discussed from various points of view. Let us look at it, however, from the standpoint of the Irrigation Farmer. There are three vital questions confronting the irrigator who contemplates the pumping of water for irrigation, viz: 1st. Is there assured underground water supply of sufficient amount? 2nd. How much water is needed to irrigate crops which he desired to raise? 3rd. Can this required amount of water be pumped at such a cost as will make it a profitable investment? The last question, you will note, not only involves the cost of water but also the cost of installing the plant. The subject falls naturally into three divisions suggested by the above questions, viz, Ground water supply, Cost of pumping and Cost of installation. These subjects are better discussed separately as bearing on each other and I will endeavor to give a clear idea of each division in the order stated.

GROUND WATER

Before any extensive plans are carried out regarding the installation of a pumping plant, the source of supply, the ground-water must be thoroughly investigated as to quality and quantity. It is impossible to lay down hard and fast rules regarding the occurrence of underground waters which will apply to all sections alike. Naturally, we would be more certain of obtaining water in a valley, having a large drainage area and through which flows a perennial stream than on the mesas or plateaus near the base of a mountain range. It has been the experience of well drillers that the underground supply of water is not generally found at a uniform depth in any section, the depth varying often within a radius of two or three hundred feet. After drilling a well it may be found that the flow is inadequate to supply the required needs. Another well may be put down a distance of 1000 feet or even less and be found to yield an abundant supply. The topography of the country and the geological formation of the sub strata have a great deal to do with the occurrence of ground water and the obtaining of the same at economical depths. In a section where it is proposed to institute pumping for irrigation it is wise to hire a professional well driller and have him put down a test well of the size thought to be suited to the need of irrigation (6" to 12"). Several interested parties should bear the expense of such a well, each paying his pro rata. As the well is put down, a log of the various depths should be carefully kept, taking samples at every foot to determine the character of the materials encountered. Thus, when the well is completed or drilled to a satisfactory depth, it will be known at what depth or depths water was found and the character of the materials in which water was found. If the water bearing strata is found in a good gravel of from 15 to 20 feet in depth very favorable conditions obtain and a good flow is almost invariably assured. Under such conditions, a flow being certain, the well may be operated as a community well or the shares of the various interested parties may be purchased by one person the well thus becoming his sole property. If the well is a failure, those interested may consider that the money was well spent and that considerable money has been saved. Someone may say at this point, "Suppose that water were encountered only at a great depth, then the well would be useless as there is a limiting depth beyond which it is unprofitable to pump from." This is all very true and the importance of sinking the well first before investing in expensive machinery is the more strongly emphasized by this query. In many

DEVELOPING COAL MINES HERE

The owners of the Willow Springs coal property four miles southeast of town have been working for several days removing the water from the shaft and putting the property in readiness for making tests. C. F. Goddard of Polly has run his traction engine up to the property and is pumping out the water. The property has been idle for the past year owing to a legal entanglement as to the title, which has been recently straightened out. G. A. Bush, Manager of the Western Clay and Gypsum Products Company at Ancho and other capitalists are in the market to buy the property should the tests prove satisfactory. This property was worked for three years and supplied Carrizozo with domestic coal during that time and there is little or no doubt of the great value of the coal deposits. The fact that the property is to resume operations will be a boon to Carrizozo's prosperity in the near future.

COLLIER-SMYTH

Sunday evening at the home of the bride Miss Thad Collier was united in marriage to Fred Smyth. The bride is the charming daughter of Mrs. Frankie Collier and is well known and has a host of friends in this community. The groom is well and favorably known, also, having been connected with the Carrizozo Trading Company for a number of years, but at present is engaged in the mercantile business at Lordsburg. The happy couple left immediately for Lordsburg, at which place they expect to reside.

MESCALERO MAY OPEN

A bill has been introduced into Congress by Congressman Stephen of Texas providing for the allotment of the Mescalero Indian Reservation near here to the Indians now residents thereon. The bill provides for twenty acre tracts for each Indian and that the money derived from the sale of other lands on the reserve is to be used to build an irrigation dam on the reservation. A provision is also included for the leasing of mineral lands on the reserve.

CHURCH AFFAIRS

The pretty home of Mrs. Clarence Spence on Boulevard Drive was thrown open to the Home Mission Ladies and their friends on Thursday, where a delightful afternoon was spent.

By a previous arrangement each member was to earn one dollar previous to the meeting and then tell at the meeting in rhyme or poetry the manner in which it was earned. The recitations were the source of much amusement. The neat sum of $26 was turned in, all of which will go toward the building of the new Methodist Church. A two course luncheon was served after which the ladies were carried to their respective homes in the Reilly automobile. The next regular meeting will be Feb. 9th, at the home of Mrs. Reilly.

The Order of Eastern Star met Wednesday evening at Masonic Hall and elected officers.

THE SOCIAL WHIRL

On Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. George L. Ulrich entertained at a Louisiana Gumbo Supper, complimentary to the matrons and their husbands of the Carrizozo Whist Club. Four games of Whist preceded the repast. Mrs. W. C. McDonald and Mr. Albert Ziegler having the highest scores were rewarded by the presentation of the latest books of Wier Mitchell and Marion Crawford, respectively.

The personnel of the party included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sager, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Harvey, Mesdames W. C. McDonald, Frank Mudge, John Canning, Messrs. Ziegler, Doering, Goscher and Spencer.

The usual Wednesday meeting of the Whist Club was held at the residence of Mrs. John Canning who was hostess for the week. The first prize, a handsome handpainted tencup and saucer, was won by Mrs. John Bell, the booby, a silver manicure knife by Mrs. Art Holland. Elegant refreshments were daintily served.

Mrs. Bell will entertain the Club at her home next Wednesday afternoon.

Mesdames Mudge, Whittingham and Kambell will unite to give a valentine party to the Club on the evening of February 14th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kambell.

The young matrons are to be entertained this evening at a Mother Party by Mr. and Mrs. George L. Ulrich.

ALAMOGORDO WOULD KNOCK

The following letter was received at the local postoffice Wednesday Postmaster at Carrizozo, N. M.

Dear Sir: Is there any case of Small pox in your town? I understand from authority that the people were dying up there by the hundreds, every day is there any truth to this report? I am running a boarding house and have to guard against anything of that kind, please let me know by return mail etc.

Mrs. L. G. Phillips, Alamogordo, N. M. The letter was handed to Dr. M. G. Patten, county health officer, who has had charge of the two quarantine cases of small pox in Carrizozo and he made the following reply:

There are simply two cases of small pox here and both are convalescent. There has never been but these two cases and as the families are still under quarantine there are not likely to be any more cases from this source.

IT'S UP TO NEW MEXICO

New State Now Faces Great Opportunity. Mr. Hening Points Out the Way

NOW TO HIGHER PROSPERITY

New Mexico has literally, millions of acres of undeveloped irrigable lands.

New Mexico has resources aside from its agricultural and fruit lands of which the American people and the majority of New Mexico are entirely ignorant.

Before these resources can be developed we must have capital to back the development and people to make homes on the land.

In order to secure either the capital or the people, we must let the nation as a whole know what we have. We must tell them the wants and keep on telling them the fact until they are convinced. We must advertise and keep on advertising.

The realization of statehood, long deferred, has removed the most serious barrier to the investment of money in New Mexico. It has removed the greatest disadvantage of citizenship in the land of sunshine.

If New Mexico does not develop now in wealth and population it will be our fault and because we fail to make the proper effort to secure that to which our resource entitle us.

It is up to us, to New Mexico as a whole and to every community in the New State, to make that effort and to make it now, for the greater glory of the newest star on the flag and for the expansion of our individual pocket books.

The above is, in condensed form, the platform on which the New Mexico Bureau of Immigration has laid out to guide it in its work during the coming year, according to H. B. Hening, secretary of the bureau.

Judge John Y. Hewitt of White Oaks returned from Santa Fe Tuesday afternoon, where he had been to represent Carrizozo in the county seat case. The case was given a hearing before the Supreme Court last Monday, January 30th. Judges Pope, Wright, Parker, Abbott and Robert's sat on the case, Judges Mosheim and McEie not sitting. No decision this week.

Mounted Policeman Collier of the Territorial service and three rangers were in the city Monday scouring the vicinity in search of Howe and his two half breed sons, who had killed Railway watchman McClure at Abo, N. M. The Howes were surrounded at Fort Hancock Texas Monday evening while attempting to cross the border into Old Mexico and after killing a Custom officer the father and one son were killed and the other son captured after being wounded.

W. H. Richards of Ancho died Monday after a short attack of pneumonia. Funeral services were held Tuesday at Ancho and the local chapter of Modern Woodman attended in a body.

Mrs. Presley, sister of Mrs. J. J. Hoffman who resides two miles east of town died Sunday from pneumonia at her sister's home. Funeral services were held at Carrizozo Sunday afternoon.

THE EDITOR'S CREED

I believe in the stuff I am handing out, in the firm I am working for, and in my ability to get results. I believe that honest stuff can be passed out to honest men by honest methods. I believe in working, not weeping, in boosting, not knocking; and in the pleasure of my job. I believe that a man gets what he goes after, that one deed done today is worth two deeds tomorrow, and that no man is down and out until he has lost faith in himself. I believe in today and the work I am doing, in tomorrow and the work I hope to do, and in the sure reward which the future holds. I believe in courtesy, in kindness, in generosity, in good cheer, in friendship and in honest competition. I believe there is something doing, somewhere, for every man ready to do it. I believe I'm ready RIGHT NOW. - Elbert Hubbard

THIS WEEK we are publishing a scientific article on IRRIGATION by Pumping, believing that irrigation by the small pumping plant is the salvation of the farmers of this immediate vicinity. That there is an abundance of water beneath the surface here, and at a shallow depth, is a known fact, the proposition before the people is to get it to the surface. The article published in this issue treats in a scientific way on this point and all interested in the reclamation of the Southwest will do well to read it. The government, through the Agricultural Experimental Station at Las Cruces, has very kindly offered to assist the farmers of this vicinity and its up to the people to get closer to the department and derive the benefits of their research on the questions which must be solved. President Garrison of the New Mexico Agricultural College recently issued a statement as follows:

"Farmers are invited to write freely to the college in regard to any difficulties and problems that arise in their work and they will receive advise and assistance as can be given by mail."

"While it is impossible at present for us to keep a field expert constantly in the field, we can from time to time send experts to attend local and county associations of farmers, to lecture at farmers institutes and to give advise in regard to soils and crops. The Bulletins published by the Experimental Station will be sent free to any address on request. It is urged that the farmers of New Mexico make a careful study of these bulletins."

"We wish to urge the people of New Mexico to use the College and Experimental Station. It is essentially an institution intended to be used. It does not exist for decorative purposes. While it is distinctly an educational institution, we wish the people to think of it as a piece of useful equipment just as a plough or a barn; there may be ways, not mentioned, in which the institution can serve you or your community. If so do not hesitate to let us know."

Irrigation is strictly a scientific proposition and the aid of this institution should be a great benefit to the people of New Mexico. The address of the college is "Agricultural College, Agricultural College P. O., New Mexico."

IT HAS TAKEN a week to find out on which side Roosevelt county had arrayed itself. It proves to be the fourth of the twenty-six counties that voted against the constitution. However, all four did not together give 500 majority against the fundamental law and three of them are rampant Democratic counties while the fourth has been on the fence, so, these many years! Yet, if any four counties need the development and the capital that statehood and a safe and sane state government will bring, it is the four that voted against the constitution. - NEW MEXICAN

RECIPROCITY ARRANGEMENT

PROBLEMS LAID BEFORE AMERICAN CONGRESS AND CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

TAFT SENDS MESSAGE

URGES PROMPT PASSAGE OF TREATY BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES.

Washington.—Within less than ten months after the initiation by President Taft of negotiations with the Canadian government, there was laid simultaneously before the American Congress at Washington and the Canadian Parliament at Ottawa, a reciprocity arrangement which, if approved, will do much, in the opinion of the negotiators, to enlarge trade between the United States and Canada.

The arrangements do not take the form of a treaty, and considerable time will be saved in the closing of the agreement, which can be made effective by a simple majority vote in each of the two legislatures.

The animating purpose of Secretary Knox appeared to have been to procure a reduction of the "high cost of living" by greatly enlarging the free list so far as it relates to food-stuffs coming from Canada.

On the other hand, he procured a notable abatement of duties on a number of American products consumed in Canada. Prominent among these is bituminous coal, which is now exported to Canada to the value of several million dollars annually. There is also a much better opening for American farm machinery and implements.

No less than 91 per cent of the Canadian goods imported into the United States will benefit by considerable reductions of duties.

The intention of the commissioners to remove all duties on printing paper and wood pulp was effected so far as the Dominion government could do it outside the limitations existing in the laws of the Canadian provincial governments imposing export duty on wood cut on crown lands in Canada; but the American duty will lie only on the comparatively small proportion of Canadian pulp or wood cut on such crown lands.

The agreement, to become effective, must be shaped as a law amendatory of the existing tariff acts in the United States and in Canada, and it will require sharp work to accomplish this in the brief period remaining in the present session of Congress.

Urging the prompt passage of a reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada, President Taft's special message said:

"Identity of interest of the two peoples, linked together by race, language, political institutions and geographical proximity, are the chief reasons for such reciprocity." The President says he feels it is "the wish of the American people that this country enter into a more intimate and cordial relationship with Canada."

"We have reached a stage in our own development that calls for a statesmanlike and broad view of our future trade status and its requirements," he said. "While equivalency should be sought in an arrangement of this character, an exact balance of financial gain is neither imperative nor attainable," he said.

Boycott Case Dismissed.

Washington.—The "boycott" case of the Ducks Stove & Range Company of St. Louis against the American Federation of Labor came to a dramatic close in the Supreme Court of the United States, which decided it was a question it would not hear. The court proceeded to hear arguments on the "contempt" case which arose out of the "boycott" case.

Insurgents Are Victorious.

New Fruit Association.

Santa Fe.—The Lakewood Truck and Fruit Growers' Association of Lakewood, Eddy county, have filed incorporation papers with capital of $10,000.

Establishing Water Works.

Clayton.—Recently the city trustees held a meeting for the purpose of considering the bids for the bond issue of $50,000 recently voted upon and carried by the people of Clayton for the purpose of establishing water works.

A Most Cruel Murder.

Santa Fe.—At Pecosago, in southern Taos county, some distance from the nearest railroad and telegraph station, Isajas Robal, a young man prominent locally, was murdered, a knife being stuck through his skull and breaking, the broken piece remaining in the brain.

New Broom Factory.

Carlsbad.—During the past season J. Boyd Allen raised thirty acres of broom corn, but that is not all. He has secured the services of an expert broom maker and has established a first class broom manufacturing plant near the Sister's school property west of town.

Irrigation Consolidation.

Las Vegas.—Every indication now point to the merger of the French Land & Irrigation Company, the Maxwell Land Company, the Eagle Nest Irrigation project and the Springer Ditch Company, all big irrigation projects in themselves, negotiations for which were begun several weeks ago.

Court Decides Case.

Santa Fe.—The territorial Supreme Court decided in favor of the Puritan Manufacturing Company in its suit against Toti & Gradi, of Albuquerque. Although only a claim of $200 was involved over a shipment of jewelry made to defendant, the case had been twice before the Supreme Court and has been in the courts several years.

Merger of Mining Properties.

Silver City.—It is reported that the big mining deal pending for some time past and contemplating a merger of the big Copper Gulf, National and Mangus copper companies has gone through and the final negotiations have been concluded in Chicago. The charter of the new company which now will control immensely valuable properties in the Burro mountains, will be filed soon. A report from the mining camp of Tyrone in the Burro mountains, confirms this report and it is announced that the new company will immediately put a large force of men to work in the Chemung mine which has been shut down for several months past.

Statehood Majority.

Santa Fe.—As all of the 1,200 precincts of the territory report directly to Territorial Secretary Jaffa here, the official vote of New Mexico on the constitution, will not be known for several days. The unofficial returns confirm the majority of 17,000 for the constitution predicted Saturday night. The Republican leaders claim that the official majority will reach 20,000 out of a total vote of 42,000, while the opposition claims the majority will not be more than 15,000 out of a vote of 38,000. Out of twenty-six counties only two voted against the constitution, and some of the largest majorities came from Democratic counties.

Statehood Special.

Albuquerque.—A statehood special, covered with statehood banners and filled with several hundred representative men of New Mexico, with the governor and his staff, will carry the certified returns of the statehood election to Washington, according to plans now being perfected.

It is proposed to load the train also with boosting literature regarding New Mexico's resources, make stop-overs and speeches at the principal cities en route, and put the new state and her possibilities into every newspaper in the East.

The proposal has met with the enthusiastic support of leaders of both political parties and of the territorial officers, and it is believed the arrival of the big delegation in Washington to report to the President the overwhelming majority for statehood and submit the certified election returns will be the occasion of a big demonstration by the friends of statehood.

"But, doctor, be reasonable. I have to eat some time."

NURSE TELLS OF SKIN CURES

"I have seen the Cuticura Remedies used with best results during the past twenty years. In my work as a nurse, many skin disease cases came under my observation, and in every instance, I always recommended the Cuticura Remedies as they always gave entire satisfaction. One case in particular was that of a lady friend of mine who, when a child, was afflicted with eczema which covered her face and hands entirely, breaking out at intervals with severer torture. She could not go to school as the disfigurement looked terrible. I told her to get at once a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the use of only one set she was perfectly well."

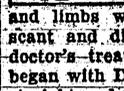

"A grown lady friend was afflicted with salt rheum in one of her thumbs, and she was cured by the Cuticura Remedies. Still another lady had dry salt rheum in both palms of her hands every fall of the year. They used to be so painful she could scarcely wet her hands until she began to use the Cuticura Remedies which cured her. I have also seen them cure children of ringworm. The children's faces would be all circles and rings around the cheeks, and the neck, and after treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment they were completely cured. My husband had rheumatism on his arm and I used the Cuticura Ointment. It made his arm as limber and nice, whereas it was quite stiff before I began to apply the Ointment."

"Last May I had an ingrowing toe nail which was very painful, as the side of the nail was edging right down in the side of my toe. I cut the nail out of the cavity it made, and of course applied the Cuticura Ointment to the part affected. It soothed it and in less than ten nights it was all healed through constant use of the Ointment. Ten days ago I had my left hand and wrist burned with boiling lard, and Cuticura Ointment has completely cured them. I have just recommended the Cuticura Remedies to another friend, and she is pleased with the results and is recovering nicely. I will gladly furnish the names of the people referred to above if anybody doubts what I say." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Hederson, 77 Highland Ave., Malden, Mass., Oct. 1, 1910

WEAK BACKS MADE STRONG.

Backache in most cases is kidney-ache, and usually accompanied by irregularities of the urine. To remove the pain and weakness, you must cure the kidneys. Do so with Doan's Kidney Pills. J. E. Dunlap, Kennel, Mo., says: "My condition was terrible. I was in bed for six weeks and could not move owing to intense pain in my back. My feet and limbs were swollen and urine scant and distressing. After taking doctor's treatments without relief, I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. They straightened me up in a hurry. Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Fame came to the man.
"I will have a five-cent cigar named for you," she said, sweetly.
Fate followed on her heels.
"I'll make you smoke the cigar!" hissed Fate.
Hastily the man turned down the byway to obscurity—Life.

Constipation causes and seriously aggravates many diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Peppermint Cure. Tiny sugar-coated granules.

Some turn their backs on ordinary principles to gaze at heavenly prospects.

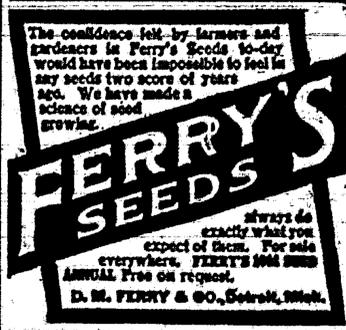

FILES CURED IN 3 TO 14 DAYS
Four grains of Peppermint Cure in 1/2 cup of water, 3 or 4 times a day, will cure any case of Constipation, Headache or Protruding Piles in 3 to 14 days. 6c.

Constipation

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Ferrys Seeds, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Ferrys Seeds I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you, I am free from all that this morning. You can see this in the health of suffering humanity." E. P. Fisher, Roseton, Ill.

sections it is unnecessary to sink test wells as successful pumping plants are already in operation. In the Mesilla Valley there seems to be an underground water supply sufficient for almost any number of pumping plants. Some wells yield more than others as the gravel strata are found at varying depths and varying in character. The greatest difficulty encountered is the handling of quicksand. Where the quicksand occurs with a coarse gravel a good well is almost always certain as the quicksand can be pumped from the gravel leaving open spaces in the gravel thru which water will flow more rapidly, giving the well a larger supply than when there is only quicksand. One should not desire too coarse a gravel as difficulty is found in sinking the casing or in removing large boulders from the well. In case the first stratum of water-bearing gravel encountered does not give large enough flow, the well will either have to be enlarged or sunk deeper with the view to striking a second or third stratum. Water found at lower depths will often rise thus adding to the total supply of the well and giving the desired amount. Where two or three strata are encountered, perforated sections of pipe, preferably standard well strainer, of the same diameter as the standard well casing are inserted between couplings and lowered to their respective depths. The first casing put down when the well is drilled is then pulled up leaving the strainers exposed and free from dirt and sand. It is not best to have the strainer of the same length as the depth of the water-bearing stratum as the water level is generally drawn down by the pump so that the strainer may not be utilizing its full length or it may destroy the suction of the pump to a certain extent in which case the efficiency of the pumping plant would be lowered. As an example it may be stated that for a gravel bed 20 feet in depth a 12 foot strainer should be used or even less and the strainer extended to the bottom of the bed so that there will be a depth of gravel above the top of the strainer. One of the best strainers in use in this section is the Porcher Strainer. This strainer works admirably and should be used where the depth is not too great. In the deeper wells where there would be a liability of the strainer being pulled apart other types of strainers are used. The Porcher Strainer is adapted to this section of the southwest and will answer very satisfactorily for most wells. The Porcher Strainer is a heavy galvanized tube of varying length according to the depth of the water bearing stratum. This strainer is riveted to the bottom of the standard casing and lowered inside of the first casing put down. This latter casing is then pulled up leaving the strainer exposed. For wells over forty feet in depth it is not practical to attempt to pull up the casing as there is a danger of crushing or pulling the casing apart. On the edge of the Artesian basin near Roswell and Artesia many wells have been sunk to a depth of 1000 feet, the water rising to within 25 or 30 feet from the surface of the ground. These wells give abundant supply for pumping and a great many wells are being utilized in this manner. Some of the flowing wells in that section cease to flow during the period from June to August and this temporary cessation is tided over by installing a pumping plant to insure a water supply for crops during this inactivity. Of course there are numerous wells which maintain a nearly steady flow throughout the irrigating season and such measures are not necessary.

THE COST OF PUMPING FOR IRRIGATION.

The first question confronting the irrigator who wishes to pump water is: How much water is needed? In order to determine this it is necessary to know the acreage to be watered, crop or crops to be raised, nature of the soil and the peculiarities of the climate; in other words the period and amount of rainfall. Say that a man wishes to irrigate alfalfa. Experience shows that it takes between 40 and 48 inches of water for the season, 5 or 6 inch irrigations depending upon the soil. If it takes an hour and a half to irrigate an acre it will require a head of at least two and one-half cubic feet per second to accomplish this or at the rate of 1100 gallons per minute.

The next factor figuring in the cost of pumping, is the height thru which the water is to be lifted. This is the factor which determines whether pumping will be profitable or not, as the cost of fuel has been found to vary almost directly with the lift. For example: A man lifting water 50 feet will pay twice as much for fuel as one lifting water 25 feet. The total cost of pumping does not vary directly but increases rapidly with the increased lift, hence the kinds of crops which can be raised are limited by the market value which they will bring as against the cost of lifting water to mature these crops. There are other items besides fuel to be considered also. These are included in maintenance and operation charges and may be classified as follows:

1. Cost of fuel during the pumping season.
2. Cost of lubricating oil during the pumping season.
3. Cost of attendance.
4. Interest on investment at the prevailing rate.
5. Depreciation and repairs. (About 10 per cent per annum)

COST OF FUEL

As the gasoline engine seems to be the most popular type of prime mover let us consider its fuel consumption. The usual fuel consumption guaranteed by the manufacturer is one pint of gasoline per horse power per hour as a rule and one-half pint may be considered to be a very economical consumption under actual working condition. At 16c. per gallon a very cheap power is produced.

Crude oil is a fuel which seems to offer great possibilities as a cheap source of power, the difficulty being of using it with entire success in an internal combustion engine. A crude oil engine tested at Deming N. M., had a fuel consumption of 1.8 pints of oil per hour per horsepower delivered at four and one-half cents per gallon. There is no doubt, however, but what crude oil is coming fuel to be used in connection with pumping plants owing to its cheapness.

The steam engine as a source of power is more reliable than the gasoline or crude oil engine but unless coal is very cheap the cost of operation is excessive; that is, unless coal can be obtained at less than $2.50 per ton, steam cannot be compared with 16c gasoline.

LUBRICATING OIL

It is difficult to state what is a reasonable use of lubricating oil as it varies so decidedly with the operator. For the purpose of estimating it may be assumed that for a centrifugal pumping plant, the best grade of lubricating oil will cost about .05 cent per hour per rated horsepower of the plant.

NEGLECTED GOLD, GOT VERY WEAK

A Bad Cough. Tried Many Remedies. Restored by Peruna.

Mrs. A. S. Rucker, R. F. D. 2, Brentwood, Tenn., writes: "I wish to tell you what Peruna has done for me. I was very sick and so weak I could scarcely be up. I was alarmed at my condition. I had a bad cough for some time and I tried several cough medicines, but grew worse all the time. I knew if I did not get relief I would soon go into consumption. So I decided to try Peruna. I had confidence in it before I took it and I found it was just the medicine I needed, for in a short time my cough ceased and my strength returned. I have enjoyed better health since taking it than I had for several years previous. When I see any one weak and run down, especially with a cough, I advise them to take Peruna. CHEATED FOR YEARS.
Prejudice Will Cheat Us Often if We Let It.

You will be astonished to find how largely you are influenced in every way by unreasoning prejudice. In many cases you will also find that the prejudice has swindled you, or rather, made you swindle yourself. A case in illustration:
"I have been a constant user of Grape-Nuts for nearly three years," says a correspondent, "and I am happy to say that I am well pleased with the result of the experiment, for such it has been.
"Seeing your advertisement in almost all of the periodicals, for a long time I looked upon it as a hoax. But after years of suffering with gaseous and bitter eructations from my stomach, together with more or less loss of appetite and flesh, I concluded to try Grape-Nuts food for a little time and note the result.
"I found it delicious, and it was not long till I began to experience the beneficial effects. My stomach remained its normal state, the eructations and bitterness ceased and I have gained all my lost weight back.
"I am so well satisfied with the result that so long as I may live and regard my reason Grape-Nuts shall constitute quite a portion of my daily food."

Faint?

Have you weak heart, dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals? Or do you experience pain over the heart, shortness of breath on going up stairs and the many distressing symptoms which indicate poor circulation and bad blood? A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test of over 40 years of cures is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The red blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous debility, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alternative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by taking Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed for excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all "just as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

WHEN A MAN MARRIES

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
AUTHOR OF "THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE"
"THE MAN IN LOWER TEN," ETC.

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson of Jimmy was called by his friends as Jimmy was round and looked shorter than he really was. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people steadily refused to do so. His art is considered a huge joke, except to himself. He asked people to dinner and everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Bella Knowles; they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of the divorce. Those who attend the party are Miss Katharine McNair, who every one calls Kit, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Brown, the Misses Mercer, Maxwell Reed and a Mr. Thomas Harbison, a South American in civilian clothes. The party is a full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selma, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. Jimmy gets his funds from Aunt Selma and after he marries she doubts she will allow him to go to the house of his divorcee, as she is opposed to it. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence, he tries to devise some way so that his aunt will not learn that he has a longer wife. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, but Mrs. Wilson pro tem, Kit refuses, but is finally prevailed upon to set the party. Aunt Selma arrives and the deception works out as planned, as she had never seen Jimmy's wife. Jimmy's servant is taken ill, his face is covered with spots. Bella, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance. Bella tells Kit that it is her husband, Jim, and she is in the house. Bella tells Kit it wasn't Jim she wanted to see, but Takakira, the Japanese servant, as she wished to secure his services. Harbison steps out on the door and discovers the double card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees the word "Smallpox" printed on it. The man tells him he is taking him to the house under quarantine and that the guests will have to remain in the house until after the quarantine is lifted.

"No one would think that, Bella," I soothed her. "Everybody knows you loathe him—Jim, too." She looked at me over the edge of her cup.

"I'll run along now," she said, "since Takakira isn't here. And if Jim has any sense at all, he'll clear out every maid in the house. I never saw such a kitchen in all my life. Well, lead the way, Kit. I suppose they are deep in bridge, or roulette, or something."

She was fixing her veil, and I saw I would have to tell her. Personally, I would much rather have told her the house was on fire.

"Wait a minute, Bella," I said. "You see, something queer has happened. You know this is the anniversary—well, you know what it is—and Jim was awfully drunk. So we thought we would come—"

"What are you driving at?" she demanded. "You are sea-green, Kit. What's the matter? You needn't think I mind because Jim has a jollification to celebrate his divorce."

"It—it was Takakira—in the ambulance," I blurted. "Smallpox! We—Bella, we are shut in, quarantined."

She didn't faint. She just sat down and stared at me, and I stared back at her. Then a miserable alarm clock on the table suddenly went off like an explosion, and Bella began to laugh. I knew what that was—hysteria. She always had attacks like that when things went wrong. I was quite despairing by that time; I hoped they would all bear her and come downstairs and take her up and put her to bed like a Christian, so she could giggle her soul out. But after a bit she quieted down and began to cry softly, and I knew the worst was over. I gave her a shake, and she was so angry that she got over it altogether.

"Kit, you are horrid," she choked. "Don't you see what a position I am in? I am not going upstairs to face Anne and the rest of them. You can just put me in the coal cellar."

"Isn't there a window you could get through?" I asked desperately. "Looking the door doesn't shut up a whole house."

Bella's courage revived at that, and she said yes, there were windows, plenty of them, only she didn't see how she could get out. And I said she would have to get out, because I was playing Bella in the performance, and I didn't care to have an understudy. Then the situation dawned on her, and she sat down and laughed herself weak in the knees. Of course she wanted to stay, then, and see the fun out. But I was firm; she would have to go, and I told her so. Things were complicated enough without her.

Well, we looked funny, no doubt. Bella in a Russian pony automobile seat over the black satin she had worn at the Cleveland's dinner, and I in a cream lace, the skirt gathered up from the kitchen floor, with Bella's white peleries around my bare shoulders, and disks and overturned chairs everywhere.

Bella knew more about the lower regions of her expanse than I would have thought. She opened a door in a corner and led the way through a narrow hall past the refrigerating compartment to a huge, ornate closet, and a furnace in the chimney, and a half-dozen electric lights making it really brilliant.

"Get a chair," Bella said over her shoulder, excitedly. "I can get out easily here, through the coal hole. Imagine my—"

But it was my turn to grip Bella. From behind the furnace were coming the most terrible sounds, rasping noises that fairly frayed the silk of my nerves. We stood petrified for an instant. Then Bella laughed. "They are not all gone," she said carefully. "Some one is asleep there."

We tiptoed to where we could see around the furnace, and, sure enough, some one was asleep there. Only, it was not one of the servants; it was a portly policeman, with a newspaper and an empty plate on the floor on one side, and a champagne bottle on the other. He had slid down in his chair, with his chin on his brass buttons, and his helmet had rolled a dozen feet away. Bella had to clap her mouth.

"Fairly caught!" she whispered. "Bartor Resartus, the arrester arrested. Oh, Jim and his flawless service!"

But after we got over our surprise, we saw the situation was serious. The policeman was threatening to awaken. Once he stopped snoring—to yawn noisily, and we beat a hasty retreat. Bella switched off the lights in a hurry and locked the door behind us. We hardly breathed until we were back in the kitchen again, and everything quiet. And then Jimmy called "my name from above somewhere."

We stood Petrified for an Instant.

"I am going to call him down, Bella," I said firmly. "Let him help you out. I'm sure I don't see why I should have all this when the two of you—"

"Oh, no, no! Surely, Kit, you wouldn't be so cruel!" she whispered pleadingly. "You know what he would think. He—oh, Kit, let them all get settled for the night, and then come down, like a dear, and help me out. I know loads of ways—honestly I do."

"If I leave you here," I debated, "what about the policeman?"

"Never mind him!"—frantically. "Listen! There's Jim up in the pantry. Run, for the sake of heaven!"

So I ran. At the top of the stairs I met Jimmy, very crumpled, as if shirt-front and dejected as to face.

"I've been hunting everywhere for you," he said dimly. "I thought you had added to the general merriment by falling downstairs and breaking your neck."

I went past him with my chin up. Now that I had time to think about it, I was furiously angry with him.

"Kit!" he called after me appealingly, but I would not hear. Then he adopted different tactics. He took advantage of my catching my foot in the lace of my gown to pass me, and to stand with his back against the door.

the first place, for all you are down on me, is it my fault? Honestly, now, is it my fault?"

I refused to speak. "I was coming home to be miserable alone," he went on, "and—oh, I know you meant well, Kit; but you asked all these crazy people here."

"Perhaps you will give me credit for some things," I said wearily. "I did not give Takakira smallpox for instance, and—if you will permit me to mention the fact—Aunt Selma is not my Aunt Selma."

"That's what I wanted to speak to you about," Jimmy went on wretchedly, trying not to look at me. "You see, when they are rowing so about who would get the breakfast—I never saw such a lot of people; half of them never touch breakfast, but of course now they want all kinds of things—when they were talking, Aunt Selma said she knew you would get it, being the hostess, and responsible, besides knowing where things are kept." He had fixed his eyes on the orchids, and he looked shrunken, actually shrunken.

"I thought," he finished, "you might give me a few pointers now, and I could come down in the morning, and—and fuss up something, coffee and soon. I would say you did it! Oh, hang it all, Kit, why don't you say something?"

"What do you want me to say?" I demanded. "That I love to cook, and of course I'll fix trays and carry them up in the morning to Anne Brown and Lella Mercer and the rest, and that I will have the shaving water ready—"

"I know what I'm going to do," Jimmy said, with a sudden resolution. "Aunt Selma and her money can go to blazes. I am going right upstairs and tell her the truth, tell her who you are, what I am, and all the rest of it." He opened the door,

"Would you mind letting my hand go?" I felt sure Belle could hear.

"Oh, come now, Kit," he implored, "we've always got along so well. It's a shame to let a thing like this make us bad friends. Aren't you ever going to forgive me?"

"Never," I said promptly. "When I once get away, I don't want ever to see you again. I was never so humiliated in my life. I loathe you!"

Then I turned around, and, of course, there was Aunt Selma with her eyes protruding until you could have knocked them off with a stick, and beside her, very red and uncomfortable, Mr. Harbison!

"Bella!" she said in a shocked voice, "is that the way you speak to your husband! It is high time I came here, I think, and took a hand in this affair."

"Oh, never mind, Aunt Selma," Jim said, with a sheepish grin. "Kit—Bella is tired and nervous. This is a—deuce of a situation. No—er—servants, and all that."

But Aunt Selma did mind, and showed it. She pulled the unlucky Harbison man through the door and closed it, and then stood glaring at both of us.

"Every little quarrel is an apple knocked from the tree of love," she announced oratorically.

"This was a very little quarrel," Jim said, edging toward the door; "a—green apple, Aunt Selma, a colicky little green apple." But she was not to be diverted.

"Bella," she said severely, "you said you loathed him. You didn't mean that."

"But I do!" I cried hysterically. "There isn't any word to tell how I—how I detest him."

Then I swept past them all and flew to Bella's dressing room and locked myself in. Aunt Selma knocked until she was tired, then gave up and went to bed.

That was the night Anne Brown's pearl collar was stolen! (TO BE CONTINUED.)

ARE NOT REAL ENGAGEMENTS

Young Ensign Explained His Affairs With Ten Other Girls Were "Sham Skirmishes."

Apparently love is not always blind, nor do the ears after much whispering of undying love and all that always become deaf—at least, not if there is any sincerity in the plea made by a winsome young woman beneath one of the weeping willow trees on the campus at the Philadelphia navy yard. Beside her, with his protecting arms around her, was a young ensign. He was a handsome young fellow and one that might easily be guilty of all that she accused him.

He had paused for a moment in a description of the paradise that awaited the young wife of an officer in the service of his country; he had painted the brilliant future in store for himself and which must have looked very "good" to her; their faces had gradually approached until they were very, very close, when suddenly the lass with the dusky hair and the melting eyes sat upright.

"No," she said, "I don't think a ought to believe you at all. What about those ten girls you were engaged to last year?"

"Ah," said he, "those, dear, were not engagements; they were just, ah—er, sham skirmishes, you see."—Philadelphia Times.

BAD BREAK.

"Beautiful girl!" cried the impulsive young man on the shadowy deck of the lake steamer.

"Nonsense!" laughed the pretty maid. "Beauty is but skin deep." "Ah," would that thou wert a hippopotamus."

"Sir!" The lapping of the waves grew fainter. It seemed as though he was sitting on an iceberg, so frigid were the surroundings.

"That is, I mean—well, you know a hippo's skin—fudge! A hippo's skin is thick, densely thick, and it's beauty is skin deep and you had the skin of a hippo, why—er—you'd be that much more beautiful. Do I make myself plain, Miss Evangelina?"

"Yes, sir, you make yourself out to be the plainest dunce I ever saw. I shall never speak to you again." And the moon man wept.

Compensation.

Congressman Dan Anthony of Leavenworth, Kan., a nephew of the late Susan B. Anthony, has a ten-year-old son who looks at the practical side of things every time. Not long ago his father had to go to Washington. When the day of departure arrived Mrs. Anthony said to the boy:

"Son, aren't we going to be lonely when papa goes away?"

"Yes," replied the boy; "but we'll have a lot more cream for our oatmeal."

Hidden Counter Test.

She (after the clerk had shown her nearly all the ribbons)—I was just looking for a friend. Clerk—Well, madam, there's one more roll up there; maybe she's in that.

RHEUMATISM

I want every chronic rheumatic to throw away all medicines, all liniments, all plasters, and give MUNCHON'S RHEUMATISM REMEDY a trial. No matter what your doctor may say, no matter what your friends may say, no matter how prejudiced you may be against all advertised remedies, go at once to your druggist and get a bottle of the MUNCHON'S RHEUMATISM REMEDY. If it fails to give satisfaction, I will refund your money. Remember, this remedy contains no salicylic acid, opium, cocaine, morphine or other harmful drugs. It is put up under the guarantee of the Pure Food and Drug Act.

For sale by all druggists. Price, 25c.

Easy.

"Does it cost much to clothe a family?" asked the economical man. "Not mine," replied Mr. Sirius Barker. "My only daughter is a barefoot dancer and my only son is a marathion runner."

IT IS A MISTAKE

Many have the idea that anything will sell if advertised strong enough. This is a great mistake. True, a few sales might be made by advertising an absolutely worthless article but it is only the article that is bought again and again that pays. An example of the big success of a worthy article is the enormous sale that has grown up for Cascarets Candy Cathartic. This wonderful record is the result of great marketing successfully made known through persistent advertising and the month-to-month recommendation given Cascarets by its friends and users.

Like all great successes, trade rates prey on the unsuspecting public, by marketing fake tablets similar in appearance to Cascarets. Care should always be exercised in purchasing well advertised goods, especially an article that has a national sale like Cascarets. Do not allow a substitute to be palmed off on you.

COULDN'T BE VERY WELL.

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad fix," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga. "I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings. I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui. Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out. Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition. In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the up-grade instead of the down—and by and by you will arrive at the north pole of perfect health. Get a bottle at your druggists' today.
