ATTEMPT TO ROB BANK

Yeggmen Make Unsuccessful Attempt to Loot the Exchange Bank

BLOW VAULT AND CRACK SAFE

The vault and safe of the Exchange Bank of Carrizozo were blown Monday night but the yeggmen were unsuccessful in their attempt to obtain loot.

Entrance was forced thru a rear window by breaking the lock, and the robber or robbers proceeded to blow the vault door of the bank off. A charge of nitro glycerine was placed on the draw bar of this door and the entrance to the vault was thus obtained. Another shot of nitro glycerine was then placed in the door of the money safe within the vault and about one third of this door was blown thru the outer open vault door and out into the banking room. One explosion stopped the clock above the vault door at fi minutes to four and it is thought the yeggmen were overtaken by daylight before they had completed their job The fixtures and walls of the building were not damaged and business was successfully resumed on Wednesday, with temporary facilities A small amount of nickels and dimes left outside the safe but inside the vault were taken but this was the only thing disturbed by the robbers; the bank's legal papers and the safety deposit boxes were not molested. The robbers left behind them a Stilson wrench, a crow-bar, a pick, a wood chisel and a small bottle of whiskey.

A passerby at six o'clock in the morning claims to have heard a noise in the bank but paid no attention thinking it was the janitor. No trace of the yeggman has yet been found The night was an ideal one for such a bold job, the wind blowing a gale and the noise of the nitro glycerine explosions could not have been heard over a hundred yards away owing to the tempest outside. No one was sleeping in the offices above, but the robbers barred the outer door to the entrance above to prevent any interference from this quarter. There was a tangle of passenger trains in the railroad yards all night and escape would have been easily possible in this way. The attempted robbery was carefully planned in advance no doubt and the night was especially picked for the affair.

It is thought that the robbers worked all night on the job as shots were reported to have been heard early in the evening. The bank's safe proved to be a mighty good one

Banks outside of the larger cities do not carry a very large amount of cash on hand, the main business being transacted by checks and credits. The banks hold their cash in depositories in New York and other correspondents. Even should the robbers have been successful no loss would have been sustained by the bank or depositors, as the bank is fully insured in every manner.

THE HEART OF A HERO

The "Heart of a Hero" will be given at Reals Hall Thursday March 2nd at 8-30 P M. by local talent. Admission 35cts for adults, 25cts for children under twelve. Everybody invited —Preaching Sunday at 11 A. M. by Brother Allen and at 7-30 P. M. by Brother Nicholas, secretary of the Childrens Home Society of New Mexico. You are cordially invited.

THE WEATHER

The past week or more has witnessed some of the most severe cold weather ever known in Lincoln County The blizzard which started Saturday evening and blew continuously until Wednesday morning at sunrise, was over 85 hours in duration, the limit for any one storm, so say the old timers. Considerable snow fell at Carrizozo but the surrounding country was even more favored in this line A heavy snow fall is reported from every point, which assures a splendid year to come. Trains from the East were tied up Sunday and Monday at Dalhart and at Tucumcari and most of them were moving forty-eight hours late early in the week. Snow plows were put to work east of here and two engines were necessary on all trains on the Tucumcari divisions.

CITIZENS RESENT A LIE

Lincoln County Citizens Wire Emphatic Denials That Saloons Were Open

AFFIDAVITS OF FAIR ELECTION

The following Washington Associated Press dispatch was printed under date of February 16th.

Declaring that fraud and corruption were used in the passage of the New Mexico constitution, an appeal was made to President Taft by representatives of the Anti-Saloon league, the W. C T. U. and other interests, to use his influence against the adoption of the constitution. Those who appeared at the White House in opposition were Former Senator Henry Blair of Maryland, representing sundry citizens of New Mexico and others; S. E Nicholson, legislative superintendent of the Anti-saloon league of America; Margaret D. Ellis, legislative superintendent of the W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Emma Sheldon, president of the W. C. T. U. of this city. They presented to President Taft a brief setting forth of objections which they have found to the adoption of the proposed constitution and urged the president to prevent the new state from being admitted under such a constitution. They declared a large number of the committee which had drafted the constitution are bar tenders, saloon keepers and representatives of corporate influences which are trying to get control of the state.

Word was later received from Washington that the House Committee on Territories who are considering New Mexico's constitution had given these protestors against statehood a hearing and that the temperance workers claimed that "every saloon in every precinct in New Mexico was open, on January 21st," the date of the election of the constitution.

Just as soon as this word was received by the people throughout New Mexico an avalanche of telegrams were sent to Chairman Hamilton of the Committee on Territories, almost every citizen of New Mexico feeling insulted that such a lie dared be presented to Congress, especially in the name of temperance and the church.

County officials, peace officers and prominent citizens throughout the territory all joined in wiring emphatic denials to such base statements; both friends and foes of the constitution joining in the protests against such prevarication Many Lincoln County people wired to Washington speaking their sentiments in no mild terms. The county officials all wired a statement that the election here was absolutely fair and that the saloons were NOT open, as did many of the prominent citizens such as John H Canning, John Caley, H B Hamilton, Postmaster Wm. Reily, Al. Roberts, A H Harvey, Wm Doering, A. J. Rolland, John Bell and many others, while some other citizens did not act, feeling sure that Congress would not give credit to such misstatements

The following affidavit was signed by many and sent to Washington.

AFFIDAVIT

Territory of New Mexico. County of Lincoln.

On this 23rd day of February, A. D. 1911, before me personally appeared A. H. Harvey who, being first duly sworn according to law, upon his oath states: that he is a resident of the Carrizozo precinct in Lincoln County, and that he was present at the polling place at Carrizozo, in said County when the election to ratify the Constitution was held on January 21, 1911: that there was circulated on said day in said Precinct ballots for and against the Constitution, and the voter had no trouble in obtaining either and that the saloons in said Precinct were closed on said day while said polls were open and that said election, to the best information of this affiant was not accompanied by any fraud, bribery or intimidation

Affiant further states that the best information that he can obtain, that the saloons throughout Lincoln County were closed on the 21st. day of January 1911, while the polls were open and that ballots both for and against the Constitution were in evidence in all Precincts in the County and no bribery, fraud or intimidation accompanied said election;

A. H. Harvey.

ANDREWS IS HOPEFUL

Delegate Andrews Believes Congress will Admit New Mexico This Session

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

There is every reason to hope that New Mexico will become a state before March 4 Delegate Andrews is leaving no stone unturned to bring about this result, and in view of the fact that the constitution is exciting no criticism, the members of the House will be inclined to favor the wishes of the New Mexico delegate, who has worked so long and conscientiously to bring this Territory into the Union Mr Andrews has the warm friendship and support of the Senators from Pennsylvania and other states, and with the assistance he is able to command in both branches of Congress he will be able to accomplish his purpose, providing the ask is with in the range of human possibility and Mr. Andrews says it is!

One of the members of the House Committee on Pensions told your correspondent that the efforts of Delegate Andrews of New Mexico, in behalf of the pension bill, was largely responsible for the passage of the measure through the House. "And now Mr Andrews has followed the bill over to the Senate," continued the Congressman, "where he is pushing his friends who are Members of the chamber to complete the legislation"

"Will the President sign the bill," was asked

"Andrews says he will," was the response, "and no one is in better position to know, than he."

Under the old law veterans of the civil war receive pensions as follows: Sixty-five years of age, $12 a month; seventy years, $15, seventy-five years, $20. The bill as amended will pension veterans of sixty-two years of age at $15 a month; sixty five years, $20; seventy years, $25; seventy-five years, $30.

The increased pensions in New Mexico under this bill will amount to $1,500,000 annually.

The New Mexico visitors to the Capitol are doing effective team work in their efforts to obtain approval for statehood during the remaining days of Congress. Governor Mills has had several interviews with the President, and has seen many Senators and Representatives; Alex. Read spends his days and nights talking law and statehood, and O T Toombs is pursuing that course R. H. Sims has been interviewing the Departments and Congressmen, and like D. M. Hartley has hustled in every direction where there was an opportunity to do any good. The party have been stopping at the Shoreham, where they keep in constant touch with Delegate Andrews.

Harold Hurd has been appointed receiver of land office at Roswell

"MAKE GOOD."

Make good.
Cut out "if," "could," and "should,"
And start in to saw wood.
You can still have the best
Things in life, like the rest
Of the men who've achieved
Just because they've believed
In themselves. You're deceived
If you think fortune comes
With a rattle of drums
And a fanfare of state
To hand yours on a plate.
That isn't the way
That she visits today
You must get out and rustle, and bustle, and hustle;
You need all your muscle, for you've got to tussle.
Plunge into the fight,
Hit to left and to right,
And keep crashing and smashing;
Don't let up with your striking
Till things meet your liking.
For God's sake, stop bawling—
Instead, do some mauling.
It makes the world bitter
To look at a quitter:
Fate scowls when she sees
A Grown up on his knees.
A man with his health
Is a mine jammed with wealth
Full of unexplored lodes.
Why, the freckled-back toads
Have the sense to keep jumping—
And here you are frumping!
Come now, strike your gait—
It isn't too late,
There's no such thing as fate!
Drop that fool-talk of "luck,"
Get a grip on your pluck,
And buck.
Begin
To grin,
And win.

ALTHOUGH IT HAS been reported that the automobile line from Roswell to Vaughn would resume carrying mail after April first, there is no reason why another mail line from Roswell to Carrizozo and Tularosa should not be operated to a great degree of success. A line running from Roswell to Hondo could be met by an auto running from Carrizozo each day and a car running across the Mescalero reservation from Tularosa, all meeting at Hondo Junction. Each car could then return to its headquarters every day and exchange its mails and passengers at will. There would be fourteen or fifteen postoffices tributary to such an auto route and every town along the line would be greatly benefitted by receiving their mail the same day as do the railroad towns and also receiving their daily papers the day they are printed. It would also be possible to reach most points in the county easily and return within one day. Its a step forward and everyone should get busy and boost for such an auto line. Good for Roswell, good for Tularosa and Alamogordo and good for Carrizozo Boost for it!

THE BUNCH OF PROHIBITIONISTS and W. C. T. U. representatives who went before the Congressional Committee on Territories and protested against the admittance of New Mexico until it was a prohibition state made an exhibition of themselves which will not reflect creditably on their party in the future. It is a pointed fact that none of those who went before Congress to protest were residents of New Mexico, nor could substantiate their statements. Consequently, their arguments did not bear much weight with the committee. There is invariably a knocker present but one can't always tell what kind of a package he may be "done up in."

THE AVERAGE RAINFALL

(From El Paso Herald)

The year 1910 came near being the record breaking dry year for El Paso. Only one year in the history of the weather bureau in the city, established here in 1879, 32 years ago, recorded less precipitation than 1910. That was for the entire 12 months was only 2.22 inches. For the year just closed the rainfall was 4.03. It was the driest in 20 years. In 1909 it was only 4.33, 30 hundredths of an inch more than 1910, so for two years El Paso has only had 8.36 inches, less than the average precipitation for one year. In no previous period of two years has there been so little rain.

A REAL RECORD BREAKER

In only four years since the weather bureau was established has the rainfall been below five inches These were in 1891, when it was 2.22, 1894, when it was 4.24, and in 1909 and 1910

The drouth has been about as severe throughout west Texas during the past two years as it has been in El Paso and as a result the ranges have been denuded and many cattle have died. They met the recent cold spell in very bad condition and many deaths on the plains reported The loss to livestock men will therefore be heavy.

Since 1905, there has been a gradual diminution of the rainfall in El Paso In that year, the total precipitation was 17.80 inches In 1906, it was 14.99; in 1907 it was 8.41; in 1908, it was 6.04; in 1909 it was 4.33, and in 1910, it was 4.03.

THE AVERAGE HOLDS UP

But, totaling the rainfall for nine years and dividing it, the annual average has been kept up, as scientists contend that it always does The total rainfall for the past nine years was 89.60 inches Divided by nine this gives the average annual precipitation of 9.95, inches as against 9.84 that we were entitled to each year Scientists contend that the rainfall in any community if figured for a period of nine years will always come out just about the same and thus are able to refute the arguments of many amateur weather prophets that "it is getting drier here than it used to be" or that "it is raining more here since the county began to settle up." This latter talk was frequently heard in El Paso along about 1905 and 1906, when the rainfall was heavier than for many years, but the succeeding dry years have knocked out the prophesies most effectually

AVERAGE FOR 18 YEARS

Going back another period, beginning nine years ago and running back for another nine, the average is kept up fairy well. During those nine years—between 1901 and 1893 inclusive, the total was 77.61 inches, giving an annual average of 8 70, giving almost the total for each year For the 18 years, the rainfall figures 9.82 inches for each year as against an average of 9.84.

FARM AND BEES

HANDY DEVICE FOR LIFTING

Portable Hay Derrick Is Excellent for Loading Shocks of Fodder On to Wagon in Field.

(By CHARLES G. MENTOONE.)

This is a portable hay derrick which can be used for lifting many things about the farm. It is excellent for loading shocks of fodder on to a wagon in the field.

Placed on runners, it can be hauled along the row of shocks and with its use one man can load as much corn as three can without it. It is also useful in loading hay from the stack to the wagon or from the cock to the wagon.

The center pole should be very strong, a small telegraph pole being the best for the purpose. The bottom should be made with a shoulder to fit in the hold of the cross-plank at the bottom.

If the pole is 12 feet high the bottom frame should be about six feet square. It should be made of 2x6 plank strongly bolted together. Three pulleys are used and the crane can be swung around to any position.

Four-Room Fireproof Farmhouses.

According to a recent consular report, a builder of Oklahoma writes the United States bureau of manufactures that he finds it profitable to build four-room cement houses and sell them complete with cisterns, front and rear porches of cement, and outbuilding, including the ground, at $1,000, on the installment plan.

He is doing this 25 miles from a railroad station, notwithstanding heavy freight charges of 25 cents per hundredweight drayage on all cement, lumber, hardware and all other building material, except sand. The cottages in question have cement floors, steel ceilings, partition walls of hollow blocks, as well as outside walls. Although the roofs are shingled, the contractor says that the whole structure is practicaly fireproof and constitutes a very substantial building.

Protection for Apiary.

It is best to have an apiary in a place that is somewhat protected from the north wind in winter. And for convenience in working it is best to have the colonies all in rows far enough apart to allow a wheelbarrow between the rows. It is also best to face the entrance of the hive to the east.

Practical Side of Poultry.

Always keep the practical side of poultry raising in view. Have the birds of full weight and of the shape the breed calls for. Shape and size are more important than color.

The Farmhouse Kitchen.

If the farmhouses could be reconstructed along the lines of the modern city homes, even of the class that are occupied by clerks and laborers on small salaries, the life of the farm wife would be made inestimably easier.

For $150 the farm kitchen could be supplied with a water storage tank, hot water heater, porcelain lined sinks and waste pipes. The saving in drudgery and time and the increased comfort can be appreciated only by those who have worked without these conveniences.

Soil for Corn.

Corn is especially adapted to warm, deep loam soils, rich in humus, but it may be grown with more or less success on almost any kind of soil not too low in available plant food, if the water line does not come too close to the surface.

Revive Unprofitable Colony.

The disposition of an unpredictable colony to store honey may be materially increased by giving them several combs of hatching brood from an industrious hive.

WINTERING BEES OUT DOORS

Practice of Leaving Few Colonies on Stand All Winter Without Covering Is Costly.

Many bee keepers who have only a few colonies allow them to remain on the stand all winter without any protection, but they generally find in the spring that their carelessness has cost them dearly, writes Charles Perry in the Farm and Home. If it seems necessary to leave bees out of doors they may be protected as shown in the illustration. I place the hives in a row east and west, with the front to the south, and set them about a foot apart.

I fill the supers with rags, pieces of burlap and torn newspapers, finishing with a quilt of burlap. On this I place the cover. Prairie hay or straw is tightly packed about the backs, sides and tops of the hives. This material is put on 3 feet deep, and over the whole thing is stretched roofing paper, which is held in place by six pieces of 2x4's, which may be set into the ground. On warm days I place a board in front of the hives to prevent the bees from flying out.

TO INTRODUCE A QUEEN BEE

Convenience and Advantage of Pott's Cages Are Detailed—Used as Cell Protectors.

(By JOSEPH GRAY, Long Eaton, England.)

I use Pott's queen-cages, which can also be used as cell-protectors or nurseries. The difference between these and the regular Benton cages are:

1. The candy-hole is made from the end, using only a half-inch bit.

2. A half-inch hole is made through the side into the center compartment.

3. The top and side covers are of perforated metal, and cut so that they do not catch the clothing.

4. These covers are put on with a screw, which serves as a hinge, and can be tightened with one turn of the screwdriver, so that the imprisoned bees cannot force open the doors and escape, which I have seen them do when laid down temporarily.

The convenience and advantage of these cages will be readily seen in the following operations:

Go to your nucleus colony and pick up the comb with the queen; grasp it with the left hand, also hold your queen cage with the same hand, your thumb over the opened side door. Now with the right hand pick off your queen and she will easily pass through the half-inch door. A three-eighth or quarter inch is not nearly so convenient. You can cage as many bees as you wish, with seldom a sting. The covers are so cut that they will not catch the clothing and pull open on the way to the out-apiary.

Disk Manure Under.

Manures and roots of plants are especially useful in controlling soil moisture. Hence crops grow better where manures and grasses are largely used. A heavy coating of coarse manure plowed under in the spring may result unfavorably by separating the furrow slice and subsoil and causing the surface soil to become too dry. It is often better to make lighter applications of manure and to disk it into the surface rather than to plow it under.

More Pure Honey.

It would be a good thing if more families in general would adopt the plan to have more pure honey on their dining tables and less glucose molasses.

FARM NOTES

Burned lime and manure should not be mixed above ground.

No farmer can afford to be without a covered storage for manure.

If necessary to feed bees in midwinter, better feed candy.

Never feed scorched sugar in the winter, as it will kill the bees.

If you do not own a good fanning mill you are the loser thereby.

A silo 16 feet in diameter and 24 feet high will hold approximately 86 tons of silage.

It is a mistake to sow alfalfa upon land not containing the bacteria which live upon its roots.

Ammonia is a nitrogen compound and the nitrogen is the most valuable part of the manure.

If the manure can be hauled upon ground where there is no danger of its being washed away, the most economical plan is to spread it upon the land as quickly as it is produced.

REALIZED FORCE OF LOGIC

Possibly There Are Other Business Men to Whom This Story Might Apply.

When he left the house Saturday morning Burton yanked at the door as if he could pull it off its hinges. When he could not open it he started to grumble until his wife came to his assistance.

"What'n blue blazes is the matter with the door?" he grumbled, giving it another powerful yank without being able to open it.

"The trouble with you, John, dear," the wife ventured, "is that you are always down on everything—down in the mouth—down on the world. Let me try it."

With a gentle tug upward on the knob, she easily opened the door.

John was about to sputter out a sarcastic remark when the force of his wife's logic sunk into his thick skull.

"I get it," he exclaimed. "I get the lesson."

That afternoon when his wife visited his office she saw over the desk a little motto with the words: "Me for the uplift."—Youngstown Telegram.

Simplicity of Expression.

A story was told on Martin Lomasney at the Cape Cod commercial travelers' dinner by Representative Pope of Leominster: "Last session Lomasney was seen talking to someone in one of the corridors, and as I passed I heard these words: 'Shall I write him?' 'No,' said Lomasney; 'never write a thing when you can talk, and never talk when you can nod your head.'"—Boston Record.

TAFT ANGRY; CANADA SCARED

INTERNATIONAL EXCITEMENT CAUSED BY ALLUSION TO CANADIAN ANNEXATION.

"WAS ONLY FOOLING"

REMARKS MADE IN JOCULAR SPIRIT TAKEN SERIOUSLY BY FOREIGNERS.

Washington.—The semi-jocular remark which Champ Clark, the Democratic speaker-to-be, made in the House Wednesday in the debate on the Canadian reciprocity agreement, that he believed the Stars and Stripes would one day float over the entire Western hemisphere, stirred up most unexpected trouble.

President Taft took occasion to write to Representative McCall, introducer of the reciprocity bill, disclaiming and deprecating the annexation talk, and to follow it up with personal remarks even more emphatic to his visitors.

The news that Mr. Clark's allusions had created excitement in Canada and in England occasioned great surprise and considerable amusement at the capitol. The man most surprised of all was Mr. Clark himself.

Mr. Clark's entire speech on reciprocity was delivered in a half humorous, half taunting vein. The House was in a gale of laughter most of the time.

This humorous exchange reflected the spirit of the debate during the time Mr. Clark was on his feet, and no one gave serious consideration to his remarks regarding the possible annexation of Canada.

They regarded his statements in the nature of a compliment to the Canadian people, in that he would be glad to see the friendship that exists at present between the Canadians and the people of the United States so ripen in the future that all might come day be under one flag.

There was a further touch of facetiousness to the debate when one of the Republicans asked Mr. Clark if he would like to be the first President of the magnificent union he was creating, and he replied, amid a burst of laughter, that he certainly would.

The excitement abroad was attributed at the capitol in part to the fact that several English and Canadian newspaper correspondents were in the press gallery following the debate when Mr. Clark spoke.

His remarks may have appealed to them as the most important feature of the story and have been cabled accordingly.

In "skeletonizing" his remarks for cable purposes, the semi-humorous character of the debate probably was entirely lost sight of.

Friends of the reciprocity measure were inclined to take the view that opponents of the agreement had simply seized upon what was regarded here as an entirely personal and harmless statement to make capital against the ratification of the agreement.

A declaration similar to that made by Mr. Clark was contained in the opening speech last Monday in favor of the reciprocity bill in the House, delivered by Representative Hill of Connecticut, a member of the ways and means committee, and a member of the administration party.

The White House is said to regard the remarks of Mr. Clark as most unfortunate and the President has made it known that he would like to have it understood throughout the world that his administration had no thought whatever of annexation when the reciprocity agreement was arranged.

Fight Ahead for Senate.

Washington.—As the result of many conferences in cloakrooms and other places in the Capitol, the friends of the resolution for direct election of senators determined upon a decided move forward. Senator Borah voiced his purpose in a formal notice that he soon would ask the Senate to sit until a vote should be reached.

STATE NEWS

OF INTEREST TO ALL NEW MEXICO PEOPLE

Twelve Chinamen Deported.

Socorro.—The twelve Chinamen who were arrested at San Marcial recently were given a hearing here before E. H. Sweet, United States commissioner, and were ordered deported because they had no papers indicating a right to be in the United States.

Attempt to Raise Assessments.

Santa Fe.—Territorial Auditor Sargent has completed the distribution of 35,000 assessment schedules. An effort will be made by the twenty-six county assessors to bring up the assessed valuation from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000 this year. In the past the assessment has been only on a 20 per cent basis.

Elephant Butte Dam.

Las Cruces.—The Elephant Butte dam will do more than simply furnish irrigation waters for the Mesilla and El Paso valleys. It will furnish power for operating an electric line to extend from Febens, Tex., on the south, to the Elephant Butte damsite on the north, to connect El Paso with both of the big valleys above Dona Ana county.

Albuquerque Car Service.

Albuquerque.—Street cars on the new Highland extension of the Albuquerque Traction Company, which doubles the trackage of the system, are running for the first time and regular service will now be maintained. This is one of the biggest city improvements for a decade and throngs of people cheered the first car as it passed through the east side of the city, which has long been without transit facilities.

Albuquecque-Farmington Line.

Albuquerque.—A party of Farmington and San Juan county boosters is expected in this city after an overland trip for the purpose of inspecting feasible routes for a direct railroad line between Albuquerque and Farmington. The party is headed by Walter M. Danburg and it means business. The Commercial Club and citizens of Albuquerque will meet the Farmington men half way in the project suggested by the latter, that Farmington and Albuquerque co-operate to finance and put through their own railroad.

Kit Carson's House.

Santa Fe.—The Manuel Montoya place, adjoining the old Kit Carson house, has been purchased by the Masonic fraternity and this, with the Carson house purchased a few months since, gives them splendid property for carrying out the plans which they have in view, which are on quite an extensive scale. The plans are to restore the Kit Carson house to its original appearance and condition and to establish therein a Carson museum, which will, of course, include the relics and the curios pertaining to that stirring and important time in New Mexico history.

Scenic Highway Sure Thing.

Albuquerque.—The commissioners of Bernalillo county have appropriated $6,000 out of the general road fund for the construction of the Camino Real, or scenic highway, through this county north to the Sandoval county line, where it will connect with the splendid highway already built from Santa Fe south, thus connecting the capital and chief city of New Mexico by one of the finest public roads in the southwest. The territorial roads commission appropriated $4,000, thus making $10,000 to be spent at once on road improvement in this county. The building of this highway north will be one of the most important public enterprises ever undertaken here.

Water Rights Approved.

Santa Fe.—Territorial Engineer Miller approved water rights appropriations for a number of irrigation and power projects, which included the following: Farmers' Development Company, of Springer, Colfax county, to reclaim 10,000 acres from seepage of works already constructed; Cleveland & Weatherhead, of Mogollon, Socorro county, for waters of Silver creek, to furnish power for mines and mills; Upton Brothers, of Solano, Mora county, for five second feet of Cinta and Barro creeks; Claude Stockton, of Raton, for waters of Raton arroyo; W. M. Fyles et al., of Roswell, for ten second feet from Salt and Spring creeks, to reclaim 1,500 acres; Isabella L. Thompson, of Silver City, for 324 acre feet from stone corral draw.

The Saratoga mine, Idaho Springs district, is shipping three cars of ore per week.

The old Pioneer mill at Dumont is now running on ore from the Syndicate mine.

A prospector on the Sangre range, near Moffat, has found gold ore worth a dollar a pound.

From the Dillon shaft of the Granite Company, Cripple Creek, Howbert & Price are shipping about three cars a week of smelting ore.

A Mining Association, Milling & Sampling Company, which will soon begin work on a 75-ton reduction mill at the mouth of Boulder canon.

A body of ore two feet wide and carrying 275 to 350 ounces silver per ton, has just been uncovered in the Scepter mine, on Democrat mountain.

In January, including ore shipped from the Upper Granite, the total output from the properties of the Granite Company, Cripple Creek, was fifty-five cars.

The Mendota, Georgetown, is showing a two-foot vein of solid galena which has been opened for a distance of fifty feet, with the size and value of the ore body still holding.

Operations are being carried on at the 500 foot level west of the shaft in the Clay county mine, in Lake district in both drifting and stoping. The main shaft is 700 feet in depth.

The discovery of a two-foot vein of rich ore in the tunnel of the Scepter mine on Democrat mountain, 1,900 feet in from the portal, is the most important incident in the Georgetown section for many months.

A rich discovery has just been made in the Astor mine at Georgetown, by Ira Clapper, a leaser on the 240-foot level, where a streak of ore four to eight inches wide has been uncovered that runs 700 to 800 ounces silver per ton.

The Lee mine on Alboo mountain at Dumont is being opened after an idleness of eight years. J. W. Smith is in charge of a crew of five men and smelting ore worth from $52 to $70 ton is being mined in the first level east.

After much dead work A. F. Brown has opened a good shoot about fifty feet from the surface on the Orpha May, Cripple Creek. Good assays were taken from the vein, which runs to surface and was followed from the grass roots.

An important find has been made in the Hoosac tunnel, Idaho Springs, where in several rounds of shots, the ore streak in the Hoosac lateral east widened from a few inches to nearly two feet. Assays indicate the ore will average more than $35 a ton for the solid copper-iron streak.

New Mexico.

Twenty-six thousand ounces of gold and silver bullion were shipped from the Socorro, Mogollon, during January from an unusually low tonnage.

HEREDITY
Can Be Overcome in Cases.

The influence of heredity cannot, of course, be successfully disputed, but it can be minimized or entirely overcome in some cases by correct food and drink. A Conn. lady says:

"For years while I was a coffee drinker I suffered from bilious attacks of great severity, from which I used to emerge as white as a ghost and very weak. Our family physician gave me various prescriptions for improving the digestion and stimulating the liver, which I tried faithfully, but without perceptible result.

"He was acquainted with my family history for several generations back, and once when I visited him he said: 'If you have inherited one of those torpid livers you may always suffer more or less from its inaction. We can't dodge our inheritance, you know.'

"I was not so strong a believer in heredity as he was, however, and, beginning to think for myself, I concluded to stop drinking coffee, and see what effect that would have. I feared it would be a severe trial to give it up, but when I took Postum and had it well made, it completely filled my need for a hot beverage and I grew very fond of it.

"I have used Postum for three years, using no medicine. During all that time I have had absolutely none of the bilious attacks that I used to suffer from, and I have been entirely free from the pain and debilitating effects that used to result from them.

"The change in surely truly great, and I am compelled to give Postum the exclusive credit for it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

HOMESTEADERS INTERESTED

Homesteaders throughout New Mexico are largely interested in the new decision rendered in Colorado affecting the proof of right to title for land taken up under the desert act. The decision was rendered on suit brought by a Colorado homesteader, Alonzo B Cope of Durango, who attempted to prove up and was refused title because part of his land was not irrigated. The decision is couched in the following words: "Water in arid regions is valuable commercially, and its waste by the irrigation of lands unprepared for any agricultural use should not be required as a mere matter of proof that lands can be watered from the system constructed." Homesteaders can now rest assured that titles will be issued when it is shown that though the land is not all directly under irrigation, there is water developed so to do. The decision is very important to New Mexico settlers, as the law has always seemed to read that all the land had to be irrigated before final title could be issued.

GROW PEANUTS

Quite a bit of interest has been shown in the production of peanuts throughout the southern states during the last year or so. While it is true that Virginia and some parts of North Carolina have raised paying crops of peanuts for many years, yet only recently did this crop receive widespread attention in the south. During the past year, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana have given more thought to the culture of this plant than in all the history of the south.

Not only is the peanut attracting attention in the U. S. but also abroad as England has spent over $3,000,000 in propagating the plant in India and Africa. As a result, she has produced a peanut that is the richest and has more oil content than any peanut in the world.

Up to the present time, the peanut has been used mainly as a food product. Outside of Virginia there are but few peanut factories. These factories take the peanuts just as they come from the threshing machines and reclean them, taking out all dirt, stems and sticks. This recleaned product is sold to the peanut roaster in the larger cities. Great quantities of shelled peanuts are sold to candy makers and manufacturing druggists

In the past few years the peanut has been utilized in almost innumerable ways. Many factories have sprung up that make butter from it, this being a very palatable and nutritious form of food. Large sanatariums have found that excellent bread, soups etc. can be made from it that take the place of the meat diets. A recent method has been found to make a valuable concentrated food from it for use in the army.

And yet, the greatest field for the peanut has not been mentioned. Peanut oil surpasses all vegetable oils before the public to day, even olive oil. It is quickly taking the place of olive oil in the preserving of sardines and the manufacture of butterine. As a cooking fat it is the cheapest on the market because it goes twice as far as anything else and fully meets the requirements of the culinary department. It is also used in making white soap, lard compounds, cosmetics, face bleach, powder, etc

Furthermore, the residue or oil cake that is left after the oil has been taken out is an excellent food for cattle. The forage makes good hay for stock and usually sells at $15 per ton.

The present market price for New Mexico is near $8 per 100 lbs. Of course, this price cannot be commanded by the product just from the field but the producer could, without a doubt realize $5.00 per 100 lbs A good yield would be 1500 lbs. per acre, yet all lands are not capable of producing that much but the average New Mexican soil should produce near that figure 1500 lbs at $5 per 100 brings $75 and one ton of hay which an acre will easily produce, at $15 amount to $90 The total expenses per acre would not exceed $15, thus leaving a net profit of $75 per acre.

The soil best suited to the peanut is a sandy loam From all appearances, the soil of the Carrizozo Valley meets all requirements of this plant: the soil has the right composition, the summer is warm and sunshiny and the season is amply early, planting time being from the middle of April to the middle of June.

Any one interested in the production of peanuts should write the Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C., for Farmers Bulletin No. 356 on Peanut Culture.

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

Nothing is ever completed in the advertising world.

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads 'round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

It's just business, that's all, to

WESTERN

A general rain has fallen in Nebraska and western Kansas. This was the first rain of consequence in five months.

Fire destroyed the garage of the Atchison Motor Company, Atchison, Kan., with a loss of $50,000. Twenty autos burned.

The gasoline schooner Oshkosh was wrecked on the south spit of the Columbia river, Portland, Ore., and seven lives were lost.

Overcome by an irresistible desire to shoot something, John Cash, a street vender from Denver, shot and killed Frank Harris, at Los Angeles.

Declaring persons guilty of small thefts are unknown to the authorities, citizens of Fort Lupton, Colo., are planning a vigilance committee to drive thieves out of town.

The most brutal and revolting crime ever committed in Nevada has been perpetrated in northern Washoe county, four men being butchered, their bodies being stripped and piled in a heap in the snow and left for beasts to prey upon.

The summer hotel at Moclips, Wash., containing 325 rooms, one-half of which was washed into the sea, probably will have to be abandoned, as a large part of the remaining wing is hanging over the water and may fall with high tide.

David Leahy, private secretary to Gov. Stubbs, was summoned before the bar of the state Senate of Kansas to give his authority for statements made in a newspaper article written by him that "political crookedness is rampant in the Legislature."

The power salmon sloop W. 1832, which is the number of the fishing license issued to the boat by the state of Washington, was found bottom up in Admiralty Inlet on the west coast of Whidby Island. All who were in the sloop when it was struck by last Sunday's furious storm must have perished.

Western members of the Senate, representing sheep and wool growing states, are considerably concerned over that part of the proposed reciprocity treaty with Canada which provide for free admission into the United States of Canadian sheep. The President, in transmitting the proposed treaty to Congress, called attention to the fact that Canada raises comparatively few wool sheep and that her textile manufacturers are unimportant. The Western senators familiar with the sheep and wool growing business are apprehensive that with the stimulus which will be given to the growth of the industry in Canada by removing the duty on the admission of sheep into the United States, the raising of sheep there will increase at the expense of the industry in this country.

FOREIGN.

Baron Albert S. Rothschild, head of the Austrian branch of the Rothschild house, is dead at Vienna. He was born in 1844.

In a collision near Courville, France, on the western section of the state railroad, ten workers are known to have perished.

Strained to the breaking point are relations between Russia and China, and Russia has notified Great Britain, France and Germany of her intention of making a military display on the Chinese frontier.

Plague has caused a total of 300 deaths at Chefoo, China, and over 1,000 in the province of Shantung in which Chefoo is situated, according to a cablegram received by the state department in Washington.

Unless Russia finds some way to check the increase in cholera ravages, the disease threatens to become more calamitous than all the other national perils combined. Figures compiled by the health authorities show the following number of deaths from the disease in the past four years: 1907, 6,428; 1908, 15,543; 1909, 10,505; 1910, 101,902.

SPORT.

Frank Work, the veteran sportsman, who for nearly seventy years has been known throughout the country as an owner and breeder of fast horses, celebrated his ninety-second birthday at his home in New York.

WASHINGTON.

In the court room of the United States Court of Customs Appeals, the recently established Commerce Court held its first public session.

The Senate committee on interstate commerce, after a spirited contest, decided to give additional hearings on the House bill to prevent speculation in cotton futures.

Dr. Edwin Powell, a noted surgeon of the Civil War and who was in charge of clinical surgery at Rush college in Chicago for several years, died in Washington of heart disease.

President Taft's reciprocity agreement with Canada was ratified in the House through the support of an almost solid Democratic vote. The McCall bill, carrying the agreement into effect, was passed, 221 to 92.

Postmaster General Hitchcock, in asking Congress for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the establishment of 500 additional postal savings banks, declares the forty-eight banks already established have proven entirely successful.

As the result of many conferences the friends of the resolution for direct election of senators determined upon a decided move forward. Senator Borah voiced his purpose in a formal notice that he soon would ask the Senate to sit until a vote should be reached.

The semi-jocular remark which Champ Clark, the Democratic speaker-to-be, made in the House recently in the debate on the Canadian reciprocity agreement, that he believed the Stars and Stripes would one day float over the entire Western hemisphere, stirred up most unexpected trouble and may be the end of the reciprocity program.

Secretary Dickinson has given notice to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the California & Atlantic Steamship Company of the termination of the existing arrangement whereby those carriers are allowed 70 per cent of the total freight charge on goods transported between New York and San Francisco via the Panama railroad.

The McCall bill carrying into effect the Canadian reciprocity agreement reached the floor of the House and probably will be passed before adjournment immediately. When the voting began it became apparent that the lines were being tightly drawn between those favoring and those opposing the trade agreement. As finally corrected, the vote to take up the bill was 197 to 120. The bill will be passed, it is said, by even a large majority.

Washington.—Representative Bennet of New York, one of the Republicans who voted against Canadian reciprocity, has introduced in the House a resolution requesting the President to enter into negotiations with the British government looking to the annexation of Canada by the United States. The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

CURED HER BABY OF ECZEMA

"I can't tell in words how happy the word 'Cuticura' sounds to me, for it cured my baby of itching, torturing eczema. It first came when she was between three and four weeks old appearing on her head. I used everything imaginable and had one doctor's bill after another, but nothing cured it. Then the eczema broke out so badly behind her ear that I really thought her ear would come off. For months I doctored it but to no avail. Then it began at her nose and he eyes were nothing but sores. I had to keep her in a dark room for two weeks. The doctor did no good, so I stopped him coming.

"For about two weeks I had used Cuticura Soap for her every day, then I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use that. In a week there was a marked improvement. In all I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and my baby was cured of the sores. This was last November; now her hair is growing out nicely and she has not a scar on her. I can not praise Cuticura enough, I can take my child anywhere and people are amazed to see her without a sore. From the time she was four weeks old until she was three years she was never without the terrible eruption, but now, thanks to Cuticura, I have a well child." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Householder, 2004 Wilhelm St., Baltimore, Md., May 10, 1910.

WHEN A MAN MARRIES

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE "THE MAN IN LOWER TEN," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends. Jimmy was rotund and looked shorter than he really was. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people steadily refused to do so, his art is considered a huge joke, except to himself, if he asked people to dinner everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Bella Knowles; they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of his divorce. The party is in full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selina, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. Jimmy gets his funds from Aunt Selina and after he marries she doubles his allowance. He neglects to tell her of his divorce. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence; he tries to devise some way so that his aunt will not learn that he has no longer a wife. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, be Mrs. Wilson pro tem. Aunt Selina arrives and the deception works out as planned. Jim's Jap servant is taken ill. Bella, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance. Bella insists it's Jim. Kit tells her Jim is well and is in the house. Bella tells Kit it wasn't Jim she wanted to see, but Takahira, the Jap servant. Harbison steps out on the porch and discovers a man tacking a card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees the word "Smallpox" printed on it. The guests suddenly realize their predicament, the women shed tears, the men consider it a good joke. Harbison pleads with Kit to tell him the real situation of things. She finally tells him of Bella's incarceration in the basement. The all important question arises as to who is to prepare the meals and perform the other household duties. Harbison finally solves the matter. He writes out slips containing the various departments of his or her duties.

CHAPTER VII. (Continued.)

Well, it ended by Jim's graciously permitting Bella to remain—there being nothing else to do—and by his magnanimously agreeing to keep her real identity from Aunt Selina and Mr. Harbison, and to break the news of her presence to Anne and the rest. It created a sensation, beside which Anne's pearls faded away, although they came to the front again soon enough.

Jim broke the news at once, gathering everybody but Harbison and Aunt Selina in the upper hall. He was palpitatingly nervous, but he tried to carry it off with a high hand.

"It's unfortunate," he said, looking around the circle of faces, each one frozen with amazement, and just a suspicion, perhaps, of incredulity. "It's particularly unfortunate for her. You all know how high-strung she is, and if the papers should get hold of it—well, we'll all have to make it as easy as we can for her."

With Jim's eye on them, they all swallowed the butler story without a gulp. But Anne was indignant.

"It's like Bella," she snapped. "Well, she has made her bed and she can lie on it. I'm sure I shan't make it for her. But if you want to know my opinion, Mr. Harbison may be a fool, but you can't ram two Bellas, both nee Knowles, down Miss Caruthers' throat with a stick."

We had not thought of that before and every one looked blank. Finally, however, Jim said Bella's middle name was Constantia, and we decided to call her that. But it turned out afterward that nobody could remember it in a hurry, and generally when we wanted to attract her attention, we walked across the room and touched her on the shoulder. It was quicker and safer.

The name decided, we went downstairs in a line to welcome Bella, to try to make her feel at home, and to forget her deplorable situation. Laila had worked herself into a really sympathetic frame of mind.

"Poor dear," she said, on the way down. "Now don't grin, anybody, just be cordial and glad to see her. I hope she doesn't cry! You know the spells she takes."

We stopped outside the door, and everybody tried to look cheerful and sympathetic and not grinny—which was as hard as looking as if we had had a cup of tea—and then Jim threw the door open and we filed in.

Bella was comfortably reading by the fire. She had her feet up on a stool and a pillow behind her head. She did not even look at us for a minute; then she merely glanced up as she turned a page.

"Dear me," she said mockingly, "what a lot of frumps you all are! I had hoped it was some one with my breakfast."

Then she went on reading. As Laila said afterward, that kind of person ought to be divorced.

Aunt Selina came down just then and I left everybody trying to explain Bella's presence to her, and fled to the kitchen. The Harbison man appeared while I was sitting hopelessly in front of the gas range, and showed me about it.

"I don't know that I ever saw one," he said cheerfully, "but I know the principle. It's the same as the one on the flame, with [illegible] the kettle on; we'll all take tea.' Look at that, Mrs. Wilson. I didn't fight bacilli with boiled water at Chickamauga for nothing."

And then he let out the policeman and brought him into the kitchen. He was a large man, and his face was a curious mixture of amazement, alarm and dignity. No doubt we did look queer, still in parts of our evening clothes and I in the white silk lace petticoat that belonged under my gown, with a yellow and black pajama coat of Jimmy's as a sort of breakfast jacket.

"This is Officer Flannigan," Mr. Harbison said. "I explained our unfortunate position earlier in the morning, and he is prepared to accept our hospitality. Flannigan, every person in this house has got to work, as I also explained to you. You are appointed dish-washer and scullery maid."

The policeman looked dazed. Then, slowly, like dawn over a sleeping lake, a light of comprehension grew in his face.

"Sure," he said, laying his helmet on the table. "I'll be glad to be doing anything I can to help. Me and Mrs. Wilson—we used to be friends. It's many the time I've opened the carriage door for her, and she with her head in the air, and for all that, the pleasant smile. When any one around her was having a party and wanted a special officer, it was Mrs. Wilson that always said, 'Get Flannigan, Officer Timothy Flannigan. He's your man.'"

My heart had been going lower and lower. So he knew Bella, and he knew I was not Bella, although he had not grasped the fact that I was usurping her place. And the odious Harbison man sat on the table and swung his feet.

"I wonder if you know," he said, looking around him, "how good it is to see a white woman so perfectly at home in a civilized kitchen again, after two years of food cooked by a filthy Indian squaw over a portable sheet-iron stove!"

So perfectly at home! I stood in the middle of the room and stared around at the copper things hanging up and the rows of blue and white crockery, and the dozens and hundreds of complicated-looking utensils, whose names I had never even heard, and I was dazed. I tried with some show of authority to instruct Flannigan about gathering up the soiled things, and, after listening in puzzled silence for a minute, he stripped off his blue coat with a tolerant smile.

"Lave 'em to me, miss," he said. The "miss" passed unnoticed. "I may'n't give 'em a Turkish bath, which is what you are describin', but I'll get the grease off all right. I always clean up while the missus is in bed with a young 'un."

He rolled up his sleeves, found a apron shocked [illegible] hung behind the door, and tied it around his [illegible] appealed to him as he did so, and stopping now and again for a deep-throated chuckle.

"I'm thinkin'," he said once, stopping with a dish in the air, "what a deuce of a noise there will be when the vaccination doctor comes around this mornin'. In a week every one of us will be nursin' a sore arm or walkin' on one leg, beggin' your pardon, miss. The last time the force was vaccinated, I asked to be done behind me ear; I needed me legs and I needed me arms, but didn't need me head much!"

He threw his head back and laughed. Mr. Harbison laughed too. Oh, we were very cheerful! And that awful stove stared at me, and the kettle began to hum, and Aunt Selina sent down word that she was not well, and would like some omelet on her tray. Omelet!

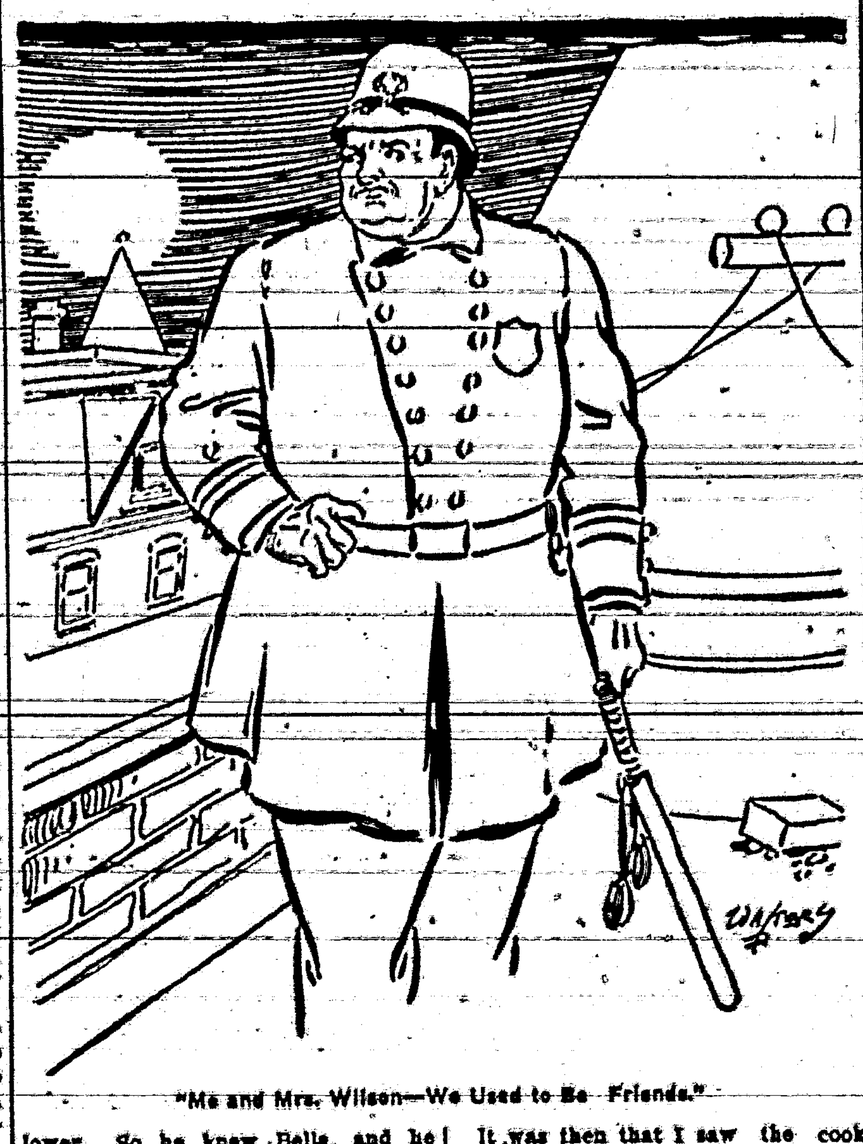
I knew that it was made of eggs, but that was the extent of my knowledge. I muttered an excuse and ran upstairs to Anne, but she was still sniffing over her necklace, and said she didn't know anything about omelets and didn't care. Food would choke her. Neither of the Mercer girls knew either, and Bella, who was still reading in the den, absolutely declined to help.

"I don't know, and I wouldn't tell you if I did. You can get yourself out, as you got yourself in," she said nastily. "The simplest thing, if you don't mind my suggesting it, is to poison the coffee and kill the lot of us. Only, if you decide to do it, let me know; I want to live just long enough to see Jimmy Wilson writhe!"

Bella is the kind of person who gets on one's nerves. She finds a grievance and hugs it; she does ridiculous things and blames other people. And she flirts.

I went down-stairs despondently, and found that Mr. Harbison had discovered some eggs and was standing helplessly staring at them.

"Omelet—eggs. Eggs — omelet. That's the extent of my knowledge," he said, when I entered. "You'll have to come to my assistance."



"Me and Mrs. Wilson—We Used to Be Friends."

It was then that I saw the cook book. It was lying on a shelf beside the clock, and while Mr. Harbison had his back turned I got it down. It was quite clear that the domestic type of woman was his ideal; and I did not care to outrage his belief in me. So I took the cook book into the pantry and read the recipe over three times. When I came back I knew it by heart, although I did not understand it.

"I will tell you how," I said with a great deal of dignity, "and since you want to help, you may make it yourself."

He was delighted.

"Fine!" he said. "Suppose you give me the idea first. Then we'll go over it slowly, bit by bit. We'll make a big fluffy omelet, and if the others aren't around, we'll eat it ourselves."

"Well," I said, trying to remember exactly, "you take two eggs—"

"Two!" he repeated. "Two eggs for ten people!"

"Don't interrupt me," I said irritably. "If—if two isn't enough we can make several omelets, one after the other."

He looked at me with admiration.

"Who else but you would have thought of that!" he remarked. "Well, here are two eggs. What next?"

"Separate them," I said easily. No, I didn't know what it meant. I hoped the [illegible]

"Separate them!" he said. "Why, they aren't fastened together!" Then he laughed. "Oh, yes, of course!" When I looked he had put one at each end of the table. "Afraid they'll quarrel, I suppose," he said. "Well, now they're separated."

"Then beat."

"First separate, then beat!" he repeated. "The author of that cook book must have had a mean disposition. What's next? Hang them?" He looked up at me with his boyish smile.

"Separate and beat," I repeated. If I lost a word of that recipe I was gone. It was like saying the alphabet: I had to go to the beginning every time, mentally.

"Well," he reflected, "you can't beat an egg, no matter how cruel you may be, unless you break it first." He picked up an egg and looked at it. "Separate!" he reflected. "Ah—the white from the—whatever you cooking experts call it—the yellow part."

"Exactly!" I exclaimed, light breaking on me. "Of course, I knew you would find out." Then back to the recipe—"beat until well mixed; then fold in the whites."

"Fold?" he questioned. "It looks pretty thin to fold, doesn't it? I—upon my word, I never heard of folding an egg. Are you—but of course you know. Please come and show me how."

WOMEN HAVE STRONGER EYES

Records Show That the Gentle Sex Have Better Sight Than the Men.

Expert opthalmologists, such as have records of thousands of cases of more or less defective vision, agree that the eye of the woman is no more near sighted, and no more far sighted, than that of man. Physically the two sexes are on exactly the same level throughout the whole structural condition of their eyes.

But there are records—disputed, it is true, as being incomplete—which show that men are twenty times as liable to color blindness as women; the averages show two women out of every thousand color blind, where there are forty men found wanting on that score. The critics of those records contend that men, being examined far more numerously for color blindness by reason of their callings, are much more liable to have the defect revealed.

A Dog and a Bum.

In a vacant lot at the corner of Eleventh and Larimer streets was an old, white dog that wasn't well. He crawled over near a billboard and lay down. Lots of people saw him, but nobody paid any attention to him until a tramplish-looking fellow came along. He was "Hard Times" personified. He went over and petted the dog.

"What's the matter, old boy?" he asked. "Sick?"

The dog seemed to appreciate the uncouth one's attentions. The man petted him a little more.

"Wall, I'll get you a drink," he said.

He went to a saloon near by and returned with a tin basin full of water. The dog lapped up some of the water and the man poured the rest on the animal's head. In a couple of minutes more the dog arose and slowly walked away, wagging his tail. He was much better.

Just an old dog—just an old bum—that's all.—Denver Times.

Girl Messengers for Postoffices.

Arrangements for the employment of girls instead of boys as indoor messengers in the general postoffice and in some of the principal provincial postoffices are being completed, and it is anticipated that the experiment will be made on January 1 at the latest. At St. Martin's-le-Grand it is hoped to employ the girls mainly in the telephone and telegraph departments, where women form a considerable proportion of the staff. The wage to be paid to the girl messengers will be one shilling less than that of the boys.—London Times.

Things He Had Missed.

"I never spent money as freely as you do," said the young man's father. "Neither did I play football nor engage in other hazardous amusements."

"It's too bad," was the thoughtless reply, "but I don't see why you should tell me your troubles."

SAVED FROM DANGEROUS OPERATION—NEIGHBOR ADVISED WHAT TO DO FOR BLADDER TROUBLE

I too wish to add my testimonial to the thousands you no doubt have, and will tell you what your great medicine did for me.

Several months ago I was taken very sick with bladder trouble, had intense pains and suffered greatly, at times I could not stand on my feet or sit in a chair and often was forced to cry out with pain.

I consulted two doctors who gave me different kinds of medicine, which did me no good. It seemed as though the more of their medicine I took, the worse I became. The doctors seemed to be greatly puzzled over my case and after holding a consultation, I was told that I had a severe case of inflammation of the bladder and an operation was very necessary.

I was being prepared to be taken to the hospital, when a neighbor came to my house and said, "Why don't you try a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root?" I was willing to try anything to get relief from my suffering. My wife bought a bottle of your medicine which I began taking and soon noticed a change for the better. I continued taking it and got better right along, my appetite returned and I was able to resume work.

I have used several bottles of Swamp-Root and know that if I had not taken it, I would have been operated on, and perhaps never recovered. I never fail to tell my friends about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root as I know it will save many people from suffering and perhaps, as in my case, a dangerous operation.

Yours gratefully,
