Territorial and General News of the Week Briefly Told For Busy Readers

KIDNAPERS ARE SENTENCED

Will Roger of Las Vegas, whose brain evolved the inhuman plot for the abduction of little Walgo Roger the child of his own brother, and who confessed that he was the sole instigator of the most sensational crime for ten years in New Mexico, will spend not less than five nor more than twelve years in the penitentiary at Santa Fe for his crime, by the terms of sentence imposed upon Rogers Tuesday in the district court at Las Vegas by Judge Clarence J. Roberts. Joseph Wiggins, ex-convict, the accomplice and willing tool of Rogers, will atone for his share of the crime by imprisonment for at least seven and not more than twelve years. Judge Roberts said in pronouncing sentence that the additional two years were given Wiggins primarily because he refused to plead guilty, and secondly, because he was an ex-convict.

PEACE IN MEXICO

Peace in Mexico has been declared by the signing of a peace agreement between representatives of the Federal government and Francisco I. Madero. The provisions allow Madero to name thirteen governors and one half of the cabinet; calls for the resignation of Diaz which is scheduled to take place this week as well as the resignation of Vice-President Corral. Senor de la Barra suggested by Madero will be provisional President until the election of his successor. President Diaz will leave in a few days on a French cruiser for France where he will live in exil. Madero will leave Juarez for the capital in a few days by a special train and after his arrival peace terms will be perfected. Madero seems to control the insurrection movement and most of the leaders have declared their allegiance to him; he will aid in stopping the revolution at all points.

LORIMER PROBE RENEWED

Sweeping scope of renewed charges that Senator Lorimer of Illinois is not entitled to his seat is provided for in two resolutions, called by Senators Dillingham and La Follette in the senate Monday.

Senator La Follette called up his resolution and made a speech arraigning the Illinois Senator, whom he charged with personal knowledge of the spending of money in behalf of his election.

ZUMWALT IS ACQUITTED

The jury in the district court at Roswell has acquitted William Zumwalt indicted for murder in the second degree for the killing of Thomas and Edward Hall at Henna on March 26. The jury held that the killing was justifiable. Alexander Zumwalt, a brother, indicted at the same time, has not been tried.

The Ladies of the Home Mission will give their annual May Sale at the White House Restaurant building Thursday May 31st. Punch will be served.

MEMORIAL DAY PROCLAMATION

The thirtieth day of May is again drawing near. This is the day which has been adopted by the States, Territories and dependencies of the United States, as the one upon which a tribute should be paid to the memory of soldiers of the Republic who lost their lives in the defense of their country and in upholding the honor and glory of the stars and the stripes. Without these brave men who gave up their lives upon many a bloody field of battle, and in many a fight at sea, the Union would not be what it is today, the most powerful nation in the world and the one government which seeks to do what is right and for the best interests of the humanity at large. We should call to the mind our brave departed soldiers and sailors. Their heroic and patriotic conduct should ever be an inspiration to us, and inspire us to guard carefully and preserve intact the glorious heritage of a free government which our fathers gave to us

Now therefore, I, William J. Mills, Governor of the Territory of New Mexico do hereby desiguate and set apart, Tuesday May 30th, 1911, as and do hereby request that on said day business of a secular nature be suspended as far as possible, within the Territory of New Mexico, and that the people generally join with the patriotic associations in strewing flowers upon the mounds which mark the mouldering remains of our dead heroes, and in paying a tribute of respect to their memories.

And I further request that in schools patriotic exercises be held, so that love of country may be impressed upon the hearts and minds of the pupils, and they be taught that it is a duty which they owe to lay down their lives if necessary in the defense of the flag.

By the Governor William J Mills.

BASEBALL SUNDAY

There will be a game of baseball Sunday according to present arrangements played between a team made up of railroad office employes and a team composed of town enthusiasts. The office boys have challenged "all commers" and call their oponents "Mutts". The game will be started promptly at three o'clock at the ball park and there is to be no admission charged. The effect of the game Sunday it is hoped will mean the formation of a first class ball team for Carrizozo picked from the players of the town teams.

The railroad boys manager, Webb has announced that he expects to line up his team about as follows: Holmes or Grumbles, p; Peterson, c; Young, 1st b; Webb, 2nd b; Davis, 3rd b; Dingwall, ss; Gibbons l f; Rawlins, r f; McLean c f.

Manager Wm Reily has not annouced who will compose the town team but it is expected that Loughrey, VanSchoyck, Squires, Miller, B. Dingwall, and Guy, will be among those lining up.

—Frank U. Nelson, assistant to the General Manager of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. came in Sunday and went out to the property of the Economic Mining and Milling Co. east of Carrizozo Monday where he made an examination and took samples. The following day he with Art Rolland and Dr. F. S. Randles for Gibson Springs in the Capitan Mountains where he investigated iron property belong to Art Rolland and Geo Spence.

PASS THE RESOLUTION

Statehood Provision Bill Has Passed the House With Amendment String

NOW UP TO THE SENATE

The joint resolution admitting Arizona and New Mexico to immediate statehood, but withholding approval of the constitutions of both until the people have voted on proposed amendments, passed the house of representatives Tuesday by a viva voce vote.

The roll call was not demanded on the final vote.

The resolution requires Arizona to vote on an amendment removing the recall provisions as it applies to judges; and requires the people of New Mexico to vote on an amendment making the constitution of that state more easily amendable. Neither state is required to adopt the amendments proposed by congress. Whether they are approved or rejected by the proposed referendum, the constitutions of the new states will stand finally approved when the respective votes have been taken.

The resolution passed is the form proposed by the democratic majority of the committee on territories. Efforts were made by the republicans to force Arizona to vote out of its constitution the recall of judges; and to give the immediate and unqualified approval to the New Mexican constitution. Both provisions were rejected singly; and later when Mr Mann embodied them in a motion to recommit the measure they were voted down.

BAPTIST CONCERT

Last Friday evening the young people of the Baptist Church entertained a fair sized audience at Real's hall with a concert and musical. The proceeds from the entertainment went to the Baptist Church fund. Mrs. Edgar Wilson was in charge of the affair which seemed to be enjoyed by the audience who were generous with their applaus. Those participating in the affair were:

Miss Ruby Perry, Miss Mary Cox, Miss Helen Canning, Miss Ida Grumbles, Miss Nettie Reily, Miss Sybil Perry, Miss Mildred Peters, Miss Lea Kennedy, Mrs. A. J. Rolland, Mrs. E. Wilson, Mr. Ed. Wilson, Vaughn Wilson, Mr. Gibbons and Mr Gauchat.

The programme will be repeated at Fort Stanton tonight according to the present plans; those participating leaving for the Fort this morning.

—Attorney Hamilton and family went to Capitan Sunday and returned Tuesday; while there they sold their home to a Capitan party. Mr. Hamilton has rented the house formerly occupied by Mr and Mrs. Peoples in Carrizozo which the family will occupy, he has also moved his law library here from Capitan and will make his headquarters here after this.

—Ed H. Monroe will leave for the east this week in the interest of the Economic Mining & Milling Co

A MOUNTAIN RAILROAD

Proposed Railroad from Roswell to the Ruidoso Coal Fields Looks Good

WILL BEGIN SURVEY SOON

According to the Roswell Register the possibilities of a railroad from Roswell up the Hondo, thence up the Ruidosa and on to El Paso seem very good and a survey is to start in two weeks. The Register prints the following in reference to same:

"Last fall the president of the El Paso Coal Company made a hurried automobile trip to the valley, ostensibly on a fishing tour, but it is known that instead of fishing he took options on the coal beds in the White mountains west of Roswell. It is also known that the coal company has had a mining expert in the mountains at Ruidoso and vicinity, since last January, and tests have been made which has led the El Paso Coal Company to plan an outlet for this coal into the Pecos valley, and northern territory.

J. R. Weatherly, the coal expert and scout for this company was in this city the first of last week, and while here intimated his plans very quietly to some capitalists and bankers. He did not take the matter up with the Commercial club, and it is understood has said that the company is going to build a $2,00,000 road from Roswell to the coal bed and as the company has already decided this and is now at work on the plans he saw no reason why the matter should be given publicity; and further that the company asked no bonuses and while the city would be benefited they would be more so as his company needed the route.

The matter has just leaked out, and while the capitalists interested will not talk regarding the proposed road, it is known that surveyors will be put in the fields in two weeks. It is rumored that the El Paso Coal Company will go from Roswell up the Hondo valley; thence up the Ruidoso valley to the mountains, connecting with the El Paso & Southwestern.

The building of the road from here to the mountains has been a much cherished dream for years. It will bring $4 to $5 coal and other cheap fuel into the country which will eventually locate factories in this city".

—Frank Gurney returned from his usual trip to El Paso Tuesday and reports that he with Ira Wetmore went to the the Southwestern railroad and purchased the necessary pipe for the water system to supply a sprinkling wagon. The pipe is not new but is being rethreaded and was bought at a price that the citizens can afford to pay. The railroad assured Frank of their cooperation in the movement to sprinkle Carrizozo's streets.

—Mrs Nora Massie and Mrs. Wallace Gumm left last evening for Silver City where they will attend the Normal in session their. Prof. Schreck will also be present at this institute.

BREAD THAT WILL NOT DRY

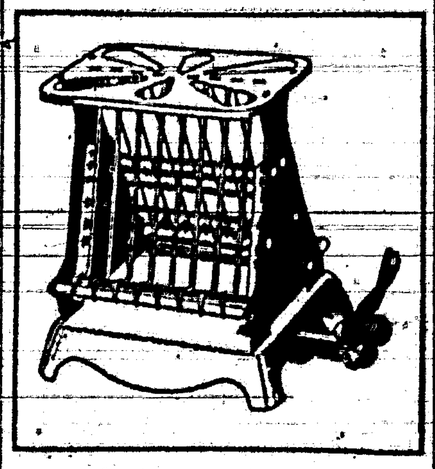
Recipe for Potato Yeast and for Wholesome Variety of the Staff of Life.

Successful Bread.—Pare and boil three good-sized potatoes in salted water; when cooked mash them and add the water they were boiled in. When luke-warm add three teaspoons of sugar, one tablespoon of salt and one tablespoon of flour. Stir well and add a cake of yeast. This should be sufficient to make one quart of yeast; if not, add luke-warm water to make the amount. Set away over night. In the morning prepare about three heaping quarts of flour, make a shallow place in the center, take one pint of yeast and make a sponge; if there is not sufficient sponge for the amount of bread wanted add luke-warm water. This amount should make four large loaves. When the sponge appears foamy, or covered with small bubbles, mix quite firm, and when raised to twice its size it is ready to form into loaves. Do not mix hard like some people do, but form the loaves with only enough handling to round them. Let rise again for about half an hour, then bake in a medium hot oven, but increase the heat as the bread rises. When next making use the same recipe as you started with, but instead of using a cake of yeast add the pint of yeast left from the last baking. You can have delicious rolls or buns by taking a piece of dough about the size required for a loaf of bread; add a tablespoon of lard and a little sugar; form into whatever shape desired, and let rise until very light. This appears like a whole lot of work, but it is not, as the yeast can be made while preparing dinner the night before by cooking a few extra potatoes and adding the water they were boiled in. After breakfast the next morning prepare the bread and it will be baked before noon, and you will have good, wholesome bread which will not dry out, as the bread made from the store yeast does.

SOMETHING NEW IN TOASTERS

Pacific El Tosto Is an Electrical Device Which Also Is a Warming Table.

"Improved" seems to be the watchword as to household electrical devices. The Pacific El Tosto here illustrated shows something new—a warming table on the top to keep the coffee pot or any other dish warm during the meal. If you wish to prepare swiveback just lay the toast upon this shelf until it is well dried through.—Popular Mechanics.



An Improved Toaster.

Russian Tea.

Put two teaspoons of tea into a fine strainer, pour half cup of boiling water through to cleanse the grounds, then turn the grounds into the scalded teapot. Pour on one pint of freshly boiling water. Keep hot five minutes. Put two cubes of sugar and one slice of lemon into the tumblers, half filled with broken ice. Pour on the tea and serve. Never let the tea leaves remain in the tea. If desired, pour it from the grounds as soon as steeped.

Gingerbread With Cream.

One-half cup sugar, one tablespoonful butter, one egg, pinch of salt; one cup good light molasses, one teaspoon ground ginger, one teaspoon baking soda, dissolved in three-fourth cup cold water, two cups flour. Bake slowly in deep pan. Can be served cut in squares, with whipped cream for dessert. Whip one-half pint cream, add two tablespoons powdered sugar (sifted) and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Serve on the warm gingerbread. Very nice with a fish dinner.

Hot Water Sponge Cake.

Three eggs well beaten with one cup of sugar. Sift one good cup of flour with one teaspoon of cream tartar and one-half teaspoon of salt. Put into a cup one-half teaspoon of soda and fill cup half full of boiling water. Add to cake and mix quickly.

Lemon Honey Filling.

For pies or tarts—One cup of granulated sugar, juice of two lemons with the grated rind, two eggs and butter size of an English walnut. Simmer over slow fire until thick.

DRY FARM SORGHUM

Two Types Do Unusually Well in Arid Regions.

Method of Preparing Seed Bed Does Not Differ Materially From That of Treating Corn—Plant Is Sensitive to Cold.

(By H. F. PATTERSON, Montana Experiment Station.)

There are two types of sorghum that do unusually well in regions of a light precipitation. The sweet or saccharine sorghum is perhaps grown more for its sugar content than for forage purposes. The non-saccharine is known primarily as a fodder sorghum. Under this group we have the milo maize and the kaffir corn. The plant is a very rank grower and furnishes considerable feed. It grows unusually well upon light soils and in hot climates. However, it will do better when grown upon the loam and when supplied with sufficient moisture.

The method of preparing the seed bed for sorghum does not differ materially from the method of preparing the seed bed for corn. If the land is to be plowed in the spring it must be turned over to a depth of about six or seven inches. The land should then be disked, harrowed once or twice, when the seed may be sown. The method of seeding and the amount of seed sown per acre will vary according to the purpose of the crop.

If it is desirable to secure a crop of seed, we usually drill the seed in at the rate of six to seven pounds per acre. The seed may be drilled either with the common grain drill or with the corn planter. Some farmers seem to have secured better results by drilling the sorghum in with the corn planter, placing the rows about three feet six inches apart and the seeds from four to eight inches apart in the row. A large amount of seed is used when the grain is broadcasted. It is customary to put in about fifteen pounds per acre. Of course, this amount will vary with the character of the soil and season. If there is any danger of any of the seeds rotting, we should make allowance for this and put on a larger amount per acre; also if some of the seeds do not germinate it will mean that more seeds must be used.

Sorghum is not sown until quite late in the season or until the soil has warmed up quite thoroughly. The plant is very tender and if the soil happens to be very wet and cold the seeds will not germinate, the young plant will not grow.

Best results have always been secured by the use of fresh seed. The seed loses its vitality very quickly and if old seed is used good results are not always obtained. The amount of seed will also vary according to the amount of moisture present in the soil. If the crop is to be grown upon irrigated land we usually add about four pounds per acre to the amount given above. Upon irrigated land the seed is also sown with a drill or with a broadcast seeder. If the sorghum is drilled in the subsequent care will be the same as that for corn, but if it is broadcasted it receives but little care until time for harvest. However, harrowing immediately after seeding and just as the grass comes through the soil has been known to give good results. This will keep down the weeds and will also aid in forming a mulch over the surface, which will preserve the moisture. Sorghum is a quick growing plant and as was mentioned before, furnishes a great deal of fodder.

If a forage crop is to be secured, the grain should be cut before the full blooming period is reached. But one crop is secured in a season. The binder or the mower may be used in removing the crop. The grass when cut with the mower should be allowed to cure and then should be placed in small cocks or piles. This will permit of its thorough drying and curing. The crop, if cut with the binder, is handled in much the same way as is the small grains. To secure a crop of seed we must not harvest until the grain is in the milk or early doughy stage. The plant is used almost exclusively to secure the crop of seed. The bundles are placed in shocks and allowed to dry, when they are threshed with the common threshing machine. It is not customary to allow the entire bundle to pass through the thresher, but to thrust the heads into the cylinder and then remove the other portions. This will not break up the stalks and as a result some good fodder may be obtained.

The yields from sorghum vary from ten to ninety bushels per acre, the average being about forty-five bushels. As high as 15 tons of fodder has also been secured from this crop in the arid regions.

CULTIVATION OF DRY CROPS

Main Thing Is to See That Plants Have Good Roots—No Tearing Out If Done Properly.

Professor Blount was recently quoted as advocating the advantage of cultivating grain crops in the arid regions and being laughed at by some who could not understand the philosophy of such a proposition. Professor Blount is absolutely right as I have proved by experience. Last season at Cheyenne was one of the driest on record and all crops grown on the state dry farm under my supervision were cultivated several times after they were up and had good roots—some when knee high to the team, writes Dr. V. T. Cooke in the Denver Field and Farm. The object of cultivating with the crop as high as this was more to show that such cultivation although possibly not beneficial at least did no harm.

The crops cultivated were winter wheat and winter rye in the spring. Then in due time we also cultivated spring wheat, oats, barley, emmer or spelts, Canadian field peas, stock beets, corn, millet, sorghum and potatoes. A twelve-foot three-row spring-tooth riding weeder with a lever was used. This lever enables the driver to control the depth of cultivation. A common steel drag harrow will take the place of a weeder as a cultivator provided the teeth are sharp and set slantingly. Judgment must be used on some soils as to how early this work should be begun. One can get onto the crop too soon and thus tear out considerable of the growing grain, which is entirely unnecessary.

The main thing is to see that the crops have good roots and if the work is properly done, very little if any tearing out will occur, but the work will surely get rid of thousands of weeds, as well as stimulate the crop, besides making the soil in better condition to conserve and receive moisture. We know the cultivation of corn is necessary and pays. Then why not cultivate cereals? In fact all crops grown in arid and semi-arid countries should be cultivated. Due consideration should be given the grain crop in an abnormally wet season, for cultivation under these conditions is not so extremely essential.

A great deal more importance should be attached to this cultivation than there is. The weeder gives the farmer a greater margin of time to do this work because it enables him to get onto taller grain and he can control the depth he wishes to cultivate. The weeder is of light draft and a fast team can cover a considerable area in a day. The common steel drag harrow can be used and is very effective in heavier soils.

Clay Soils Strong.

Clay soils are universally spoken of as strong soils and they will generally respond to good cultivation methods for a good many years without any apparent decline in fertility.

POULTRY NOTES.

Winter-hatched chickens are the best layers.

No expensive apparatus is required to raise geese.

Never breed from yearling turkeys; select two-year-olds.

Select your breeders now for your coming flock of chicks.

Never breed from late-hatched turkeys, if it is possible to get better.

Not only is the demand for eggs increasing, but also for chicken meat.

Much of the mortality among little chicks is due to their being fed too soon.

Instead of being overdone, the poultry business is scarcely growing fast enough.

Don't overfeed the first week of fattening. Rather feed lightly three times a day.

The food in the chick when hatched will be fully assimilated and digested in 48 hours.

All things considered, there still remains plenty of room for all in the poultry business.

Be sure that the soil is clean and pleasant that it contains food that the fowls will eat readily.

Cornmeal, meat and potatoes are three of the most valuable ingredients in the fattening bill of fare.

There are three things necessary to successful turkey raising, good stock, proper feeding and good care.

Free range chickens are never so tender for roasting as those with limited range and fed on pure feed.

If you find soft-shelled eggs it proves the hens are too fat; then feed less and make them hunt for food.

The production of eggs requires a food that is rich in nitrogen. For this purpose meat scraps and similar materials are fed.

The collecting of eggs fresh from the farm two or three times a week by the cream drawers ought to prove a profitable "side-line" for creamerymen.

Some folks are forever planning ahead and figuring how to make chickens pay, and while they are puttering along with their plans and figures the hens and their broods are

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman.

Huntington, Mass.—"I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help.

"I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I believe saved my life.

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it."—Mrs. MARI JANETTE BATES, Box 134, Huntington, Mass.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

GIBSON'S ONE GOOD POINT

In the Old Gentleman's Eyes It Outweighed Any Slight Error in Orthography.

The old man had given his son a very fair education, and had taken him into his shop. The young fellow was over-nice about a great many things, but the father made no comment. One day an order came in from a customer.

"I wish to goodness," exclaimed the son, "that Gibson would learn to spell."

"What's the matter with it?" inquired the father, cheerfully.

"Why, he spells coffee with a 'k.'"

"No—does he? I never noticed it."

"Of course you never did," said the son, pettishly. "You never notice anything like that."

"Perhaps not, my son," replied the old man, gently; "but there is one thing I do notice, which you will learn by and by, and that is that Gibson pays cash."

Poor Tom.

A very youthful and entirely unknown musical composer read some verses by the renowned Thomas Moore which he liked very much. Forthwith the buzz of inspiration circulated through his brain, and the next thing he knew he had evolved a tune which went right prettily with the words of the Irish poet. Much elated, the very youthful composer took the product to a publisher of popular songs and sang it to him. The publisher shook his head.

"The music's all right," he opined, "but the words are bum."

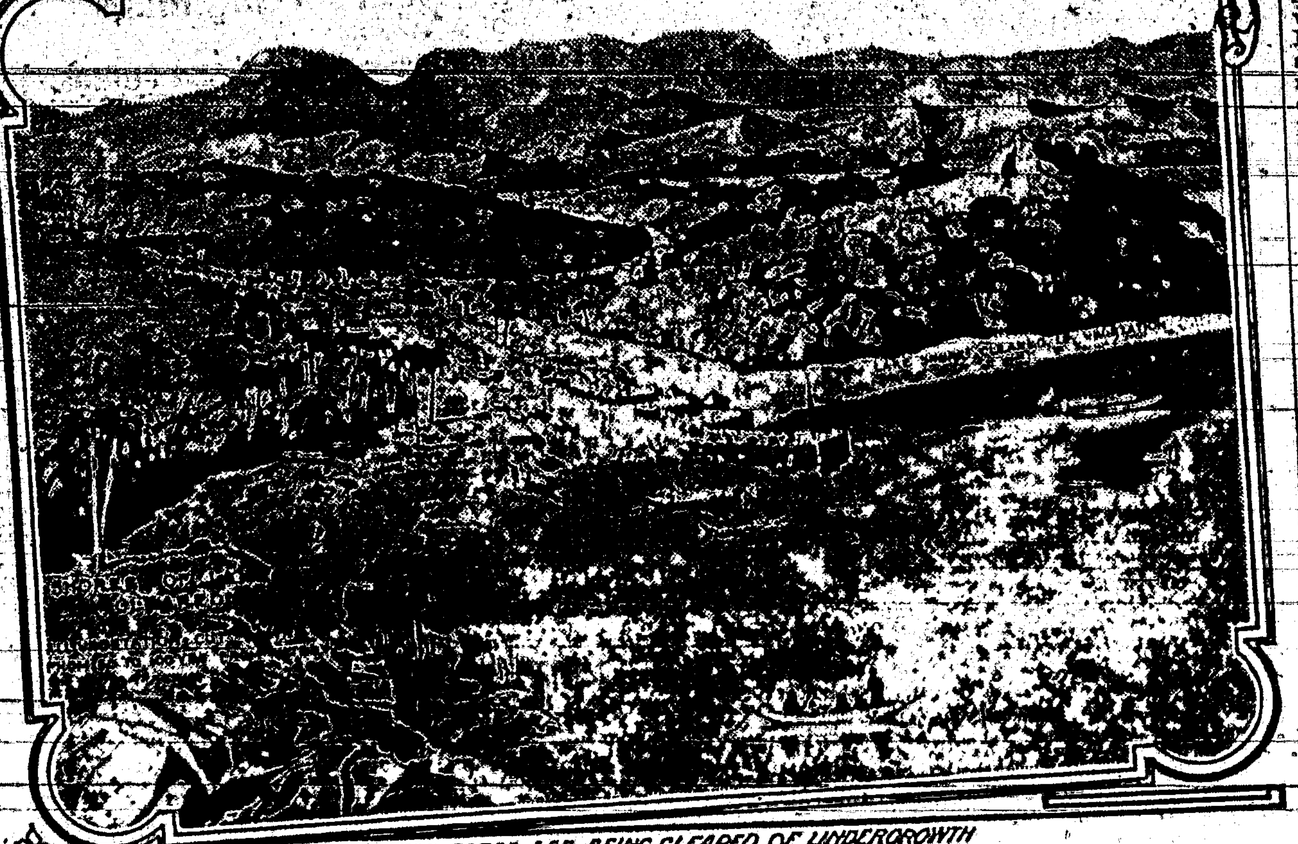
FIGHTING THE SLEEPING SICKNESS



HOW THE SLEEPING-SICKNESS AREAS ARE BEING CLEARED OF UNDERGROWTH

SEVEN years ago the important discovery was made that sleeping sickness was caused by an animal parasite, trypanosoma gambiense, which is transmitted by the bite of a variety of tsetse fly, glossina palpalis. The investigation which led to this discovery was the joint work of Castellani and Sir David Bruce and was undertaken on account of the terrible outbreak of this disease which had occurred in Uganda, particularly on the northern shores of Victoria Nyanza.

Indeed, the mortality was so great that it became imperative to undertake immediate action in order to prevent the natives from being completely wiped out. At Entebbe a laboratory was erected, and here extensive experiments were carried out which proved the guilt of the glossina palpalis up to the hilt.

The earlier work seemed to indicate that the fly merely acts as a direct transmitter of the parasite, which appeared to die out in the matter of a few days if the fly were not nourished with blood. In order to determine the exact extent of the fly distribution on the one hand and sleeping sickness on the other expeditions have been undertaken north, south, east and west, and after laborious work it would appear that the disease is much more extensive than was originally believed. The fly distribution is still greater, and roughly corresponds to equatorial Africa and extends to the tenth northern and southern parallels of latitude.

It must not, however, be imagined that the whole of this vast area is involved. On the contrary, most careful observations have revealed that the distribution of the glossina palpalis is local, its principal localization being close to water or water courses where the banks are covered with vegetation. It is rarely found more than 30 yards from such spots. The problem of preventing sleeping sickness thus appeared to be of relatively simple solution. There were two aspects to the case—first the infection of human beings by the fly, and, secondly, the infection of the fly from infected human beings.

It was considered, therefore, that the disease could be stayed if, first, the chances of exposure to the fly were diminished, and, secondly, if the fly were prevented from being infected by removing the sick from the fly area. An elaborate experiment of this kind was made on the northern shore of Lake Victoria. Along the whole lake shore, from Buddhu to the Ripon Falls, the natives were removed, the sick were segregated into camps, the holdings were evacuated and burnt, and the banana plantations were allowed to go to waste. The willing cooperation of the chiefs in this tremendous task is a complete proof of the extraordinary hold the disease has got on the native population.

In the segregation camps to which the sick had been conveyed various remedies sent out from Europe were tried, but with little success. It is conceded on all hands that the patient with definite evidence of sleeping sickness upon him is doomed. The clearing of the lake shore was made on the basis of the view that the tsetse fly does not remain infective for a long period, and it was hoped that when the infective period was over the shores of the lake could again be populated. Recent advances have shown, however, that this hope is not to be realized, and that, indeed, the prophylaxis of sleeping sickness is a much more complicated task than was originally supposed.

On the extension of sleeping sickness into German East Africa a commission of experts, headed by Robert Koch, went out and studied the disease on the spot. Towards the end of 1908 Kleine made the important discovery that after a latent interval a tsetse fly which had sucked the blood of an infected man could remain infective for a very prolonged period. In its body the trypanosomes develop in great numbers, apparently as the result of sexual congress which increases the prolongation of the infective period almost indefinitely. To what extent this period of infectivity occurs in flies which have sucked blood is not yet known.

It is also suggested that in addition to man the trypanosoma may pass its existence in the bodies of other vertebrates such as the crocodile according to Koch, and various wild herbivorous animals according to others. In the last year or two the very important doubt has also been raised as to whether glossina palpalis is the exclusive carrier of the human trypanosomes. Thus cases of sleeping sickness have occurred in the valley of the Loangwa, a tributary of the Zambesi in northeastern Rhodesia. Up to the present glossina palpalis has not been found there, the main tsetses being G. morsitans and G. fusca, which hitherto have been exculpated as carriers of trypanosoma gambiense. A new expedition is proceeding to northeast Rhodesia to investigate the subject and the whole question of possible spread of sleeping sickness in consequence of the construction of the Rhodesia-Katanga junction railway from the Broken Hill mine in northern Rhodesia to the Congo State frontier and beyond.

Down to 1902 all kinds of theories were rife as to the nature of sleeping sickness, but since this year we have witnessed the results of the combination of scientific and epidermiological observations. The cause of the disease is known—its method of propagation in part at any rate. The preventive plans hitherto undertaken are in the right direction even if not so complete as was supposed. The geographical distribution of tsetse flies and sleeping sickness is being rapidly determined. What still wants solution are the studies on the more detailed life histories of the flies and the trypanosomes and synthetic remedies for the cure of the unfortunate victims of the disease.

These studies are not merely of scientific or humane interest but of vast commercial importance in connection with the development of equatorial Africa.

Plan to Celebrate Anniversary of Treaty

On December 24, 1814, the treaty of Ghent was concluded and the war of 1812 brought to an end. That struggle had been glorious for America on the water and humiliating on the land. The battle of New Orleans was fought after peace had been made. Since that time the United States and England have lived in a peace that has been proved substantial by several incidents, notably the Wilkes affair, which, were the nations not genuinely desirous of maintaining pacific relations, might easily have brought on armed encounters.

Unquestionably the attitude of Great Britain in 1898 caused a revulsion of popular feeling in this country and relieved many minds of an inborn or heedlessly cultivated hatred and fear of her. Before that time there had been a praiseworthy effort to make school histories less bitterly partisan than they had been. This movement has made great headway since the war with Spain. Definite attempts to increase the good feeling not only between the peoples of the two countries [illegible] priate that the one hundredth anniversary of the conclusion of the treaty of Ghent should be celebrated with appropriate ceremonies. Steps toward this end have already been taken here, in England and in Canada. The enterprise has reached the point in congress of receiving the approval of the committee on foreign affairs of the house of representatives, which has introduced a resolution providing that the commission for the promotion of universal peace among nations shall submit to congress within a year a report containing a plan for the proper observance of the centenary. The record is most encouraging to the advocates of arbitration and disarmament, and in any celebration of the completion of a century of peace that may be had they will be conspicuous figures.

COST OF BEING SUCCESSFUL

Does the Average American Business Man Put Too Much Energy Into His Work?

"Judging the American hustler from my observations of him in his own country," Joseph Lyons, painter, novelist, dramatist and one of the greatest hustlers of England, said, "I should say that the American hustler shows a lack of adaptation of means to end, because he puts more mental, physical and nervous energy into his work at all times than it demands. [illegible] is not an economical one. He breaks down and has to be laid up for repairs too often. He tries to do everything too fast.

"He ruins his digestion by eating too fast; he plays havoc with his nerves by trying to work too fast. I hold that a man pays much more for his success than his own success is worth—no matter how many millions it represents—when it demands of him the expenditure of all his powers and leaves him no time, inclination or energy for the exercise of his faculties or talents in other directions.

"The typical American, the hustling American, never seems to be satisfied, as most Englishmen are with what might be called moderate success."

IMPORTANT THAT PUBLIC SHOULD KNOW ABOUT GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY

The testimonial I am to give you comes unsolicited. I have been suffering from lumbago for ten years and at times was unable to stand erect. A Mr. Dean of this city, saw me in my condition (bent over) and inquired the cause. I told him that I had the lumbago. He replied, "If you get what I tell you to, you need not have it." I said I would take anything for ease. He said, "You get two bottles of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and take it, and if it does not fix you O. K. I will pay for the medicine myself." I did so and am a well man. For five months I have been as well as could be. Before I took your Swamp-Root was in constant pain day and night. This may look like advertising, but it seems to me most important that the public should be made familiar with this treatment as it is the only one I know which is an absolute cure. I owe a great deal to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and am anxious that others situated as I was should know and take advantage of it. Hoping that this testimonial may be of benefit to some one, I am

Absent-Minded Bridegroom.

John Adams has always been absent minded, says the Kansas City Journal. Yesterday he went with Ida Lee of Kansas City, Mo., to Kansas City, Kan., to be married by Paul Huff, acting probate judge. When Judge Huff asked him if he would "take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife," he was looking out of the window and didn't answer.

"If you've any doubts about it we will stop right here," the bride said defiantly.

Adams protested that he had not hesitated at all, but had merely been thinking about something else. The ceremony was completed without further hitch.

DAME NATURE HINTS

When the Food Is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Modern Method.

"My books are in a very bad shape," said the high financier.

"Shall I send for an expert accountant?" inquired the confidential man.

"No. Send for an alienist."—Washington Star.

Much the Same.

Mrs. Myles—Did you ever see a man go through things like that customs inspector?

Mrs. Styles—Oh, yes; I've seen my husband go through a bureau drawer, looking for a shirt.—Yonkers Statesman.

Handsfull of Money.

Bacon—And did the lawyer take your case?

Egbert—Oh, yes; and he said he expected to have his hands full.

Bacon—And did you give him as much as that?

Egbert—As what?

Bacon—Two hands full.—Yonkers Statesman.

No Wonder.

I sang by the sad sea waves;
The waves were sad and wet.
My sweet voice rang—and as I sang
The waves were sadder yet.

Inevitable.

"Dey ain' no' use talkin' to a woman," said Charcoal Eph as he emerged from a dispute with Mrs. Charcoal. "She done bound t' git y' wid weepin' er hammah yo' wid a flatiron, buh-lieve me! Han' me de hoss liniment, Mistah Jackson!"—Baltimore Evening Sun.

Just Women.

Him—"I thought you and Ethel had had a quarrel?"

Her—"We have. I hate her!"

Him—"But I saw you kiss each other when you met yesterday."

Her—"Yes, but that's all we do. We hardly speak."

For Good Reasons.

"Why, Tommy," exclaimed the Sunday school teacher, "don't you say your prayers every night before you go to bed?"

"Not any more," replied Tommy. "I uster when I slept in a folding bed, though."—Philadelphia Record.

What She Wanted.

His Renunciation.

"I couldn't think of a thing to give up lent."

"That so?"

"Yes, and when I remarked as much in the bosom of my family my wife and daughters told me I could put in the time getting ready to give up for Easter."—Houston Post.

A Modern Bird.

We met the Early Bird and were amazed, on glacing at our watches, to discover that the hour of 7 had long since struck.

"You're not so early, after all!" we remarked, significantly.

"No," assented the Early Bird, looking very conscious all at once. "The fact is, I got the hook-worm!"—Puck.

A Moving Description.

"First they compel us to give up our money," said the vociferous agitator, "and then they compel us to put up with such little comforts as they may find it convenient to provide."

"About whom are you talking?" asked the common person, wearily, "the trusts or the street car conductors?"—Washington Star.

Small Girl Defines Leisure.

Mrs. Philip Snowden, the English suffragette, began at a dinner in New York her reply to a toast on "Marriage" with the words:

"I once asked a little girl if she knew what leisure was?

"'Yes,' she replied. 'Leisure is the place where married people repent.'"—New York Tribune.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

A smart man is one who agrees with a woman—so she thinks.

In this era of expensive living the father of ten children has a strenuous job.

Merely loving a woman doesn't satisfy her; she wants you to make love to her.

A man who insists that he's just as good as you are may not be as good at that.

How a giddy girl does enjoy making a man keep on trying to kiss her when she won't let him.

It's a good thing for a man to buck up against the proof of his own unimportance occasionally.

You wonder why you have more trouble than other people, and they wonder why you have less trouble than they do.—Chicago News.

SURPRISING how little we know about New Mexico after all Comes now Professor Tinsley and compiles statistics showing that three-quarters of a million acres of land are being successfully cultivated in New Mexico by scientific soil culture without irrigation. Professor Tinsley finds that the enormous total of seventeen million acres is susceptible of this kind of farming All this comes after two years of dry weather which drove many of the unprepared farmers back across the eastern border.

All of which impresses on us the fact that New Mexico is a pretty big place and contains quite a considerable number of acres of land; and that dry farming, so far from having been a failure, has been a big success in New Mexico and is furnishing a good living to thousands of farmers With the epochal rains of the present spring, farming without irrigation ought to become much more widespread and successful this year in New Mexico

It must be remembered, moreover, that Professor Tinley's figures are accurate and conservative

Speaking of E M. "Gene" Rhoades it might be well for some of the owners of New Mexico's Metropolitan (?) Dailies to get aquainted with New Mexicans, before commenting on them as was done some time ago by an Albuquerque editor the writings of Mr. Rhoades while dated from many years on a ranch in the San Andres Mts. east of Roswell, and is thoroughly aquainted with New Mexico and its people who a perusal of his writings indicates.

WHEN A MAN MARRIES

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

AUTHOR of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE, THE MAN IN LOWER TEN, ETC.

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends. Jimmy was rotund and looked shorter than he really was. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people steadily refused to do so, his art is considered a huge joke, except to himself, if he asked people to dinner everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Bella Knowles; they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of his divorce. The party is in full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selina, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. He neglects to tell her of his divorce. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, be Mrs. Wilson pro tem. Aunt Selina arrives and the deception works out as planned. Jim's Jap servant is taken ill. Bella, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance? Bella insists it is Jim. Kit tells her Jim is well and is in the house. Harbison steps out on the porch and discovers a man tacking a card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees the word "Smallpox" printed on it. He tells him the guests cannot leave the house until the quarantine is lifted. After the lifting of the quarantine several letters are found in the mail box undelivered, one is addressed to Henry Llewellyn, Iquique, Chile, which was written by Harbison. He describes minutely of their incarceration, also of his infatuation for Mrs. Wilson. Aunt Selina is taken ill with la grippe. Betty acts as nurse. Harbison finds Kit sulking on the roof. She tells him that Jim has been treating her outrageously. Kit starts downstairs, when suddenly she is grasped in the arms of a man who kisses her several times. She believes that Harbison did it and is humiliated. Aunt Selina tells Jimmy that her cameo breastpin and other articles of jewelry have been stolen. She accuses Betty of the theft. Jimmy tells Aunt Selina all about the strange happenings, but she persists in suspecting Betty of the theft of her valuables. Harbison demands an explanation from Kit as to her conduct towards him, she tells him of the incident on the roof, he does not deny nor confirm her accusation. One of the guests devises a way to escape from the house. They set fire to the reception room and attempt to leave the house from the rear. The guards discover the ruse and prevent them from escaping. Max finds Anne's pearl clasp pin in Jimmy's studio in a discarded coat. Jimmy is suspected of the theft, but denies the accusation. Kit finds a watch hanging to a pillar in the basement and with initials T. H. H. engraved upon it. She opens the case and finds a picture of herself that had been clipped from a newspaper. Kit shows Harbison the watch. He explains that he had been looking for it and believed it had been stolen. Harbison threatens to tar and feather Jimmy if he doesn't treat Kit more civil. A clash is averted by the interference of a guest who separates the combatants.

"It's only Jim," I whispered. "I—I don't want to hear any more."

But she clutched me firmly, and the next thing we heard was another creak, and louder and—

"Get up! Get up off your knees this instant!" Bella was saying frantically. "Some one might come in."

"Don't send me away," Jim said in a smothered voice. Every one in the house is asleep, and "I love you, dear."

Aunt Selina swallowed hard in the darkness.

"You have no right to make love to me," Bella. "It's—it's highly improper, under the circumstances."

And then Jim: "You swallow a camel and stick at a gnat. Why did you meet me here, if you didn't expect me to make love to you? I've stood for a lot, Bella, but this foolishness will have to end. Either you love me—or you don't. I'm desperate." He drew a long, forlorn breath. "Poor old Jim!" This was Bella. A pause. Then—"Let my hand alone!" Also Bella.

"It is my hand!"—Jim's most fatuous tone. "There is where you wore my ring. There's the mark still." Sounds of Jim kissing Bella's ring finger. "What did you do with it? Throw it away?" More sounds.

Aunt Selina crossed the library swiftly, and again I followed. Bella was sitting in a low chair by the fire, looking at the logs, in the most exquisite negligee of pink chiffon and ribbon. Jim was on his knees, staring at her adoringly, and holding both her hands.

"I'll tell you a secret," Bella was saying, looking as coy as she knew how—which was considerable. "I—I still wear it, on a chain around my neck."

On a chain around her neck! Bella, who is decolette whenever it is allowable, and more than is proper!

That was the limit of Aunt Selina's endurance. Still holding me, she stepped through the doorway and into the firelight, a fearful figure.

Jim saw her first. He went quite white and struggled to get up, smiling a sickly smile. Bella, after her first surprise, was superbly indifferent. She glanced at us, raised her eyebrows, and then, looked at the clock.

"Others victims of insomnia!" she said. "Won't you come in? Jim, pull a chair by the fire for your aunt."

Aunt Selina opened her mouth and shut it with a fish, before she could speak.

"I demand that that woman leave the house!" she said hoarsely.

Bella leaned back and yawned.

"What's the matter with her?" she asked wearily.

Jim said, pulling himself together as best he could. "Look here, Aunt Selina, you know she can't go out, and what's more, I—don't want her to go."

"You—what?" Aunt Selina screeched, taking a step forward. "You have the audacity to say such a thing to me!"

Bella leaned over and gave the fire log a punch.

"I was just saying that he shouldn't say such things to me, either," she remarked pleasantly. "I'm afraid you'll take cold, Miss Caruthers. Wouldn't you like a hot sherry flip?"

Aunt Selina gasped. Then she sat down heavily on one of the carved teakwood chairs.

"He said he loved you; I heard him," she said weakly. "He—he was going to put his arm around you!"

"Habit!" Jim put in, trying to smile. "You see, Aunt Selina, it's—well, it's a habit I got into some time ago, and I—my arm does it without my thinking about it."

"Habit!" Aunt Selina repeated, her voice thick with passion. Then she turned to me. "Go to your room at once!" she said in her most awful tone. "Go to your room and leave this—this shocking affair to me."

But if she had reached her limit, so had I. If Jim chose to ruin himself, it was not my fault. Any one with common sense would have known at least to close the door before he went down on his knees, no matter to whom. So when Aunt Selina turned on me and pointed in the direction of the staircase, I did not move.

"I am perfectly wide awake," I said coldly. "I shall go to bed when I am entirely ready, and not before. And as for Jim's conduct, I do not know much about the conventions in such cases, but if he wishes to embrace Miss Knowles, and she wants him to, the situation is interesting, but hardly novel."

Aunt Selina rose slowly and drew the folds of her dressing gown around her, away from the contamination of my touch.

"Do you know what you are saying?" she demanded hoarsely.

"I do." I was quite white and stiff from my knees up, but below I was wavery. I glanced at Jim for moral support, but he was looking idolatrously at Bella. As for her, quite suddenly she had dropped her mask of indifference. Her face was strained and anxious, and there were deep circles I had not seen before, under her eyes. And it was Bella who finally threw herself into the breach—the family breach.

"It is all my fault, Miss Caruthers," she said, stepping between Aunt Selina and myself. "I have been a blind and wicked woman, and I have almost wrecked two lives."

Two! What of mine?

"You see," she struggled on, against the glint in Aunt Selina's eyes. "I—I did not realize how much I cared, until it was too late. I did so many things that were cruel and wrong—oh, Jim, Jim!!"

She turned and buried her head on his shoulder and cried; real tears. I could hardly believe that it was Bella. And Jim put both his arms around her and almost cried, too, and looked nauseatingly happy with the eye he turned to Bella, and scared to death out of the one he kept on Aunt Selina.

She turned on me, as of course I knew she would.

"That," she said, pointing at Jim and Bella, "that shameful picture is due to your own indifference. I am not blind; I have seen how you rejected all his loving advances." Bella drew away from Jim, but he jerked her back. "If anything in the world would reconcile me to divorce, it is this unbelievable situation. James, are you shameless?"

But James was and didn't care who knew it. And as there was nothing else to do, and no one else to do it, I stood very straight against the doorframe, and told the whole miserable story from the very beginning. I told how Del and Jim had persuaded me, and how I had weakened and found it was too late, and how Bella had come in that night, when she had no business to come, and had sat down in the basement kitchen on my hands and almost turned me into a raving maniac. As I went on I became fluent: My sense of injury grew on me. I made it perfectly clear that I hated them all, and that when people got divorces they ought to know their own minds and stay divorced. And at that a great light broke on Aunt Selina, who hadn't understood until that minute.

In view of her principles, she might have been expected to turn on Jim and Bella, and disinherit them, and cast them out of her house, but she did not! She turned on me in the most terrible way, and asked me how I dared to come between husband and wife, because divorce or no divorce, whom God hath joined together, and so on. And when Jim picked up his courage in both hands and tried to interfere, she pushed him back with one hand while she pointed the other at me and called me a Jezebel.

CHAPTER XIX.

The Harbison Man.

She talked for an hour, having got between me and the door, and she scolded Jim and Bella thoroughly. But they did not hear it, being occupied with each other, sitting side by side meekly on the divan with Jim holding Bella's hand under a cushion. She said they would have to be very good to make up for all the deception, but it was perfectly clear that it was a relief to her to find that I didn't belong to her permanently, and as I have said before, she was crazy about Bella.

I sat back in a chair and grew comfortably drowsy in the monotony of her voice. It was a name that brought me to myself with a jerk.

"Mr. Harbison!" Aunt Selina was saying. "Then bring him down at once, James. I want no more deception. There is no use cleaning a house and leaving a dirty corner."

"It will not be necessary for me to stay and see it swept," I said, mustering the rags she had left of my self-respect, and trying to pass her. But she planted herself squarely before me.

"You can not stir up a dust like this, young woman, and leave other people to sneeze in it," she said grimly. And I stayed.

I sat, very small, on a chair in a corner. I felt like Jezebel, or whatever her name was, and now the Harbison man was coming, and he was going to see me stripped of my pretensions to domesticity and of a husband who neglected me. He was going to see me branded a living lie, and he would hate me because I had put him in a ridiculous position. He was just the sort to resent being ridiculous.

Jim brought him down in a dressing gown and a state of bewilderment. It was plain that the memory of the afternoon still rankled, for he was very short with Jim and inclined to resent the whole thing. The clock in the hall chimed half after three as they came down the stairs, and I heard Mr. Harbison stumble over something in the darkness and say that if it was a joke, he wasn't in the humor for it. To which Jim retorted that it wasn't anything resembling a joke, and for heaven's sake not to walk on his feet: He couldn't get around the furniture any faster.

At the door of the den Mr. Harbison stopped, blinking in the light. Then, when he saw us, he tried to back himself and his dishabille out into the obscurity of the library. But Aunt Selina was to quick for him.

"Come in," she called, "I want you, young man. It seems that there are only two fools in the house, and you are one."

He straightened at that and looked bewildered, but he tried to smile.

"I thought I was the only one," he said. "Is it possible that there is another?"

"I am the other," she announced. I think she expected him to say "Impossible," but, whatever he was, he was never banal.

"Is that so?" he asked politely, trying to be interested and to understand at the same time. He had not seen me. He was gazing fixedly at Bella, languishing on the divan and watching him with lowered lids, and he had given Jim a side glance of contempt. But now he saw me and he colored under his tan. His neck blushed furiously, being much whiter than his face. He kept his eyes on mine, and I knew that he was mutely asking forgiveness. But the thought of what was coming paralyzed me. My eyes were glued to his as they had been that first evening when he had called me "Mrs. Wilson," and after an instant he looked away, and his face was set and hard.

"It seems that we have all been playing a little comedy, Mr. Harbison," Aunt Selina began, nasally sarcastic. "Or, rather, you and I have been the audience. The rest have played."

"I—I don't think I understand," he said slowly. "I have seen very little comedy."

"It was not well planned," Aunt Selina retorted tartly. "The idea was good, but the young person who was playing the part of Mrs. Wilson—overacted."

"Oh, come, Aunt Selina," Jim protested, "Kit was coaxed and cajoled into this thing. Give me fits if you like; I deserve all I get; But let Kit alone—she did it for me."

Bella looked over at me and smiled nastily.

"I would stop doing things for Jim, Kit," she said. "It is so unprofitable."

But Mr. Harbison harked back to Aunt Selina's speech.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Screwed Up Their Courage.

It was the hour of family confidences. Mr. Buggins had finished his evening papers, and in slippers and dressing gown was toasting his toes before the asbestos fire log, while the wife of his bosom was putting a few stitches in the table cover she was doing for Aunt Mary, and which she hoped to have finished by Christmas.

"I did something today that I've been screwing up my courage to do for a long time," said Mrs. Buggins.

"Yes?" said Mr. Buggins, mildly interested. "What was it?"

"You know that odious Mrs. Bjones?" replied Mrs. Buggins. "Well, I paid her a call that I have owed for nearly a year."

"My dear, I can sympathize with you," said Mr. Buggins. "Today, by a strange coincidence I paid that odious Mr. Bjones a bill I had owed him for quite as long."

Object to Selling Eggs by Weight.

Chicago commission men object strenuously, according to the Tribune, to a proposal to sell eggs by weight. "From time immemorial," says one of their spokesmen, "eggs have been collected, bought, sold and shipped by the dozen. The farmer has marketed them, the shipper has shipped them and the markets of the world have priced and quoted them by the dozen, and there is a natural and inherent reason for this. The egg is a unit of substantial uniformity."

Not Perfect.

A horse dealer was showing a horse to a prospective buyer. After running him back and forward for a few minutes, he stopped and said to the buyer: "What do you think of his coat? Isn't he a dandy?"

The buyer, noticing that the horse had the heaves, replied: "Yes, I like his coat, all right, but I don't like his pants."—Tit-Bits.

Quite True.

"What do you think that madcap Gladys said when I persuaded her to read Dante's 'Inferno' to improve her taste?"

"What was it?"

"That it was such a pity there were no postcards in those days, for pictures of Dante's journey would have been such hot stuff."

Merely a Suspicion.

"If so many noblemen who come over here are broke, how do they manage to get across the water?"

"Don't know, I'm sure, but I've seen waiters on board trans-Atlantic liners who had quite an air."

Tit for Tat.

"What did Scribit say when Miss Kasper asked him how he found the outskirts of literature?"

"He wished to know how she found the suburbs of society."

He Saw Wood.

The tramp who was told to say nothing and saw wood the next morning knocked at another door but said nothing because he saw wood.

Marriage and Liberty

Liberty comes in such different ways! For women it comes most often through marriage.

Nine women in ten have more space after they are married for the exercise of their wills than they had before; therefore we can all see more clearly what they really are. The most tyrannical husband cannot rob a woman of her authority over her children and her household. The good woman is better; the bad woman is harder; the

Usually a married woman has a more strongly marked character than her unmarried sister. Her friends find it more easy to call up her mental face; they are more sure how she will act in given circumstances. Marriage is almost always fraught with some surprises to the student of character. These surprises are loosely described as changes; but change in character is so rare an occurrence,

"ECZEMA ITCHED SO I COULDN'T STAND IT."

"I suffered with eczema on my neck for about six months, beginning by little pimples breaking out. I kept scratching till the blood came. It kept getting worse, I couldn't sleep nights any more. It kept itching for about a month, then I went to a doctor and got some liquid to take. It seemed as if I was going to get better. The itching stopped for about three days, but when it started again was even worse than before. The eczema itched so badly I couldn't stand it any more. I went to a doctor and he gave me some medicine, but it didn't do any good. We have been having Cuticura Remedies in the house, so I decided to try them. I had been using Cuticura Soap, so I got me a box of Cuticura Ointment, and washed off the affected part with Cuticura Soap three times a day, and then put the Cuticura Ointment on. The first day I put it on, it relieved me of itching so I could sleep all that night. It took about a week, then I could see the scab come off. I kept the treatment up for three weeks, and my eczema was cured.

"My brother got his face burned with gunpowder, and he used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The people all thought he would have scars, but you can't see that he ever had his face burned. It was simply awful to look at before the Cuticura Remedies. (Soap and Ointment) cured it." (Signed) Miss Elizabeth Gehrki, Forrest City, Ark., Oct. 16, 1910.

SCRUB HOG IS UNPROFITABLE

Can Consume More Valuable Feed and Give Less in Return Than Any Other Farm Animal.

(By W. G. WESTCOTT.)

Possibly there is no other farm animal that can offer as poor an excuse for his existence as the scrub hog. He is an unprofitable animal any way you take him.

As an economical pork-producer he is a failure. Even his ability to shift for himself does not recommend him to the people within the limit of his range, as he has the reputation of preying upon neighboring cornfields when food is scarce.

His build naturally adapts him to his manner of living, since he is long-legged, narrow in the chest, has a long, narrow snout. This adapts him to his manner of living. With the scrub hog it is "root, hog, or die," hence the long snout. His narrow body aids him in getting through small fence-cracks and if he fails to find a place large enough to go through the fence, he can soon dig under with his long snout.

There is no standard of excellence for the scrub hog, since he may possess almost any form except a beautiful one; he may be of any color.

He has the reputation of being able to stand all kinds of rough treatment and still survive.

He is regarded as being able to resist disease better than the improved breeds of hogs. We very much doubt whether this quality attributed to the scrub hog is true, since we have noticed that hog cholera takes the scrub as well as the well bred hog.

One thing is sure that the scrub hog can consume more valuable feed and give less in return than any other animal that we know of.

A farmer who owns a herd of scrub hogs seldom needs any other corn-crib than his hogs.

He never gets rich selling pork, and in fact if he depended upon his hogs to make him money to buy better bred hogs he would never own better ones.

The scrub hog usually keeps his owner so poor that he is not able to buy better stock. In fact, this is the excuse usually given for his existence. Poor farming and scrub hogs are usually found associated together.

They are near and dear companions. Both make a rapid retreat before a progressive spirit and there is not a better evidence of the general progressiveness of a people than the absence of the scrub hog from a community.

Cows in Winter.

There is no best grain for cows in winter to increase flow of milk and keep them in good condition, for no single grain will make a balanced ration. Oats comes the nearest to it. A mixture of cornmeal, wheat bran, ground oats and either gluten, cotton-seed or linseed meal cannot be surpassed.

Cost and Profit in Hogs.

The experiment station at Grand Rapids, Mich., has been experimenting with the cost of producing bacon hogs of the York breed. Pigs are farrowed in March or April and turned into clover pasture when six or eight weeks old, with a little shorts and milk as a supplementary ration. In September barley and peas are added and for two months the hogs are fed all they will eat, reaching prime condition about November 1, at 130 to 150 pounds. Hogs so produced have been selling in the local market at 8½c per pound and, according to Superintendent McGuire, the cost of production is 4½c.

Rough Handling Live Stock.

Packers claim they sustain considerable losses in the aggregate through skin bruised meats due to rough handling of meat animals in transit. A packer writes to the National Provisioner about this abuse, claiming it is due chiefly to rough handling at the various stockyards, unloading, yarding and reloading. He even called attention of the humane society to the evil, but says nothing is accomplished from that source.

FOR FEEDING YOUNG CATTLE

Modern Barn Is Built Throughout on Concrete Wall Averaging About Two Feet in Height.

The ground floor plan of a barn, shown in the illustration, was originally intended for feeding young cattle; it is built throughout on a concrete wall averaging about two feet in height; the gates shut across the 20-foot shed so as to divide it when necessary, writes H. G. S. Todd of Plymouth county, Iowa, in the Breeder's Gazette. Hay is taken in through the center driveway; the feed room is floored with concrete and has grain and feed bins overhead; the grain feeds to the mill and is elevated to a bin over the scales. There are two-inch pipes set on the inside concrete wall about 12 inches apart and hay is thrown from the top of the mow into a rack built on the braces, where it slides down so that the cattle can reach through to it.

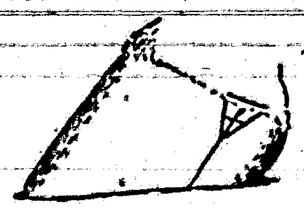
The arrangement is quite convenient for the purpose intended. The chute at the east end is used to castrate, vaccinate and mark calves and ring bulls. The stanchion opens with a lever about 2 feet wide enough for anything to pass through, and closes to 6 inches. There is a door at the side of the stanchion for vaccinating and another side door at the rear for castrating. This is much the handiest contrivance I have ever seen.

CARING FOR HORSE'S HOOFS

Place to Stop Movement of Crack Is Where New Horn Is Being Formed at Coronary Band.

The proper place to stop the movement of a cracked hoof is at the top of the crack where the new horn is being formed at the coronary band, says the American Blacksmith. The thing to do is to cut a groove down through the horn on each side of the crack and about five-eighths to three-fourths of an inch from it, at the top, and coming to a point about one-half inch down the hoof. This will form a V-shaped line with the crack in the middle, as shown in the sketch. Clamp



Treating a Cracked Hoof.

the V-shaped part of the hoof about half way up and draw a hot iron deeply across the top of the V, just above the horn.

Any flat, ordinary or bar shoe will do, if the bottom of the hoof is properly leveled. A clamp or two may be put in below the V. If the horn is kept at work, it will not grow together again. The object is to keep the part where the new horn is being formed from moving, and by practically isolating it from the other part of the hoof, nature is given a chance to do the work under most favorable circumstances.

Feeding Rye.

Rye in early summer is a good feed, but will not solve the feed question. It should be followed quickly with a mixture of wheat and other crops in succession.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Sunshine is good for the pigs. Keep them in it.

A crooked pig never seems to make good growth.

The hogs should not be allowed to become lousy.

It is perfectly feasible to use green oats for silage.

Feed the brood sow well so her pigs do not pull her down in flesh.

Whey is worth about one-half as much as skimmilk for pig feeding.

Pigs will begin to eat at four weeks old, and sooner if sow is a poor suckler.

Keep the pigs active and clean and the growth will be quick and profitable.

The shoats should not be kept in the same enclosure with the brood sows.

Don't let the little pigs hump over a high trough. It gives them crooked backs.

OF COURSE.

The Magistrate—You say you didn't know the pistol was loaded, yet the dealer who sold it to you says you did not pay for it.

Prisoner—What's that got to do with it?

The Magistrate—Well, if you didn't pay for it, then the dealer must have charged it for you.

Avoid the Cheap and "Big Can" Baking Powders.

The cheap baking powders have but one recommendation: they certainly give the purchaser plenty of powder for his money but it's not all baking powder; the bulk is made up of cheap materials that have no leavening power. These powders are so carelessly made from inferior materials that they will not make light, wholesome food. Further, these cheap baking powders have a very small percentage of leavening gas; therefore it takes from two to three times as much of such powder to raise the cake or biscuit as it does of Calumet Baking Powder. Therefore, in the long run, the actual cost to the consumer of the cheap powders is more than Calumet would be.

Why not buy a perfectly wholesome baking powder like Calumet, that is at the same time moderate in price and one which can be relied upon? Calumet gives the cook the least trouble.

It Came Too Easy.

Cashier—I'm sorry, madam, but I can't honor this check. Your husband's account is overdrawn.

COOK OUTDID THE SCHOLAR

Maybe Sign Was Not All Good Latin, but She Translated It Without Difficulty.

Jack returned home from college, where he had won high honors as a student of ancient languages, but he pleaded ignorance one day when his young sister asked him to translate a sign she had seen of an optician's which read thus: "Con sultu sabo utyo urey es."

Jack struggled manfully with it for several minutes and gave it up.

"There are some words in it that are Latin. The others aren't, anyhow. It doesn't make sense."

"That is what I said," replied his sister. "But cook translates it without any trouble. She says it means 'Consult us about your eyes.'"

Household Remedy

Taken in the Spring for Years.

Ralph Rust, Willis, Mich., writes: "Hood's Sarsaparilla has been a household remedy in our home as long as I can remember. I have taken it in the spring for several years. It has no equal for cleansing the blood and expelling the humors that accumulate during the winter. Being a farmer and exposed to bad weather, my system is often affected, and I often take Hood's Sarsaparilla with good results."

Hood's Sarsaparilla is Peculiar to Itself. There is no "just as good."

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

WHITE OAKS WHIFFS

BY SAN DE

The men of the White Oaks leasing Company are doing a little mining on the curb for a week or two pending returns from the U S. Mint.

The Wild Cat Boys were unfortunate in loosing their smoke stacks while being fanned by a New Mexico zephyr last week and they too are laying off pending repairs.

Consequently there are more men of elegant leisure about town that at any time for a year or two past. During the interval, the late court proceedings at Carrizozo; the advantage of the kind of statehood we are now enjoying and the recall provision in the Arizona Constitution are being ably discussed from about all the pine cushioned seats in town.

Miss Bertha and Paul Mayer, Jr. returned from the Agricultural college at Mesilla Park Monday evening, feeling somewhat elated over the fact that they had completed the grind at that institution and can now take up the more active affairs of life and do a few stunts on their own responsibility just to see how it feels to be turned loose on themselves. These young people have made a fine record at college and are now securing the congratulation of their friends.
