GOOD ROADS MEETING

Capitan to be scene of County Good Roads Meeting as well as Field Day of Sports.

BOND ISSUE FOR GOOD ROADS.

Tomorrow, Saturday, August 10th a good roads meeting for Lincoln County has been called to meet at Capitan, at which matters pertaining to good roads throughout Lincoln County will be discussed and final action may be taken.

"Good Roads" is one of the most important topics of the day and the matter of good roads in Lincoln County is of especial interest owing to the long distance between many of the important points in the county. Much interest is being manifested and the general public is urged to be present at the meeting Saturday. Capitan has arranged a racing tournament and day of sports also, which will furnish additional amusement to those in attendance.

The question of a bond issue of several thousand dollars will be taken up at the meeting. Under the new laws of the state the road works put into the hands of a board of three road commissioners and the former offices of district road supervisors is abolished. Each county is allowed to vote bonds for the building of roads to the limit of bringing up its bonded indebtedness to four per cent of its taxation.

Among the addresses to be delivered at the Capitan meeting will be: Interstate Highways - Rev. S. M. Johnson.

Good Roads in Lincoln Co. - Dr. J. W. Laws.
State Highway Legislation in 1912 - Hon. J. V. Tilly
Bond issues for Highways and Bridges - Geo. L. Cluck.
Meeting at one o'clock in Capitan School House.

CARRIZOZO TRADING CO.

SCHOOL NOTICE.

The Carrizozo public school will open for the fall term Monday, Sept. 2.

It is much more satisfactory in every way for all concerned when pupils enroll promptly at the beginning of the term and all who can enroll early are urgently requested to do so and to provide themselves with the books needed before the opening date. Our merchants do not wish to carry school books in stock and it is necessary to make a special order. As the number of books ordered will be sufficient only to supply the apparent immediate demand only those who make their wants in this line known can hope to be supplied early and to get full benefit from the first weeks of school work.

In order to meet pupils and patrons for consultation on any phase of school work but particularly to enroll pupils in their prepar grades and to arrange for ordering any text books needed the principal will be at his office in the school building from 10 to 12 in the forenoon and from 3 to 5 in the afternoon daily from Monday to Friday of each week beginning, Aug. 12.

It is requested that the schedule given below be observed as far as possible but those who cannot conform to it may come at any time during office hours as indicated above, preferably in the forenoon. Out of town parties wishing information by correspondence should write at the earliest possible date.

Pupils who expect to enter either of the high school classes will meet at the principal's office Monday, Aug. 12 from 2 to 4 p. m.

Those expecting to enter any of the grades below the high school as follows:

8th grade	Tuesday, Aug. 13, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Bring your last year report cards and promotion certificates.
CHAS. L. SCHRECK,
Principal.

WHIST AT MRS. SQUIERS.

Mrs. Stanley Squiers was the hostess Wednesday afternoon at a very pleasant afternoon whist party. The house was beautifully decorated with ferns and cut flowers and the refreshments very dainty and nice. Mrs. Squier proving a charming hostess. Mrs. Farley was awarded the first prize. The friends present included: Mrs. John Farley; Mrs. W. L. Gumm, Mrs. Geo. L. Ulrich, Mrs. H. B. Dawson, Mrs. Fred Jones, Mrs. W. C. McDonald, Mrs. A. J. Rolland, Mrs. T. A. Spencer, Mrs. J. B. French, Mrs. Wm. Riley, Mrs. H. S. Fairbanks, Mrs. F. J. Sager, Mrs. Frank Elliott, Mrs. F. F. Mudge, Miss Lorena Sager and Miss Margaret Chase, and Mrs. H. S. Campbell.

ALTO "ALLUSIONS"

Alto was visited by a cloud burst on the 4th, no damage done out side of washing the fields.
Mr. J. W. Stuart and family and W. W. Slack attended camp meeting last Sunday at Angus.
Will Marr and family, Mr. Garlow and family spent last Sunday, with Mrs. Tilly Crawford.
Mr. John Jones of Stephenville, Texas, surprised his brother H. F. Jones by his arrival last week. The brothers had not seen each other for fourteen years.

JICARILLA DISCOVERY

A Large Body of Ore Uncovered on Adjoining Claim to "Sally Dear"

CANADIAN EXPERTS IN-FIELD

After the report of the gold strike in last week's issue of the Outlook, of the large body of ore uncovered on the "Sally Dear" group of claims in the Jicarilla district, two prominent mining engineers from the famous Porcupine District of Canada went post haste to the locality, and when interviewed by a representative of this paper stated that they were very well pleased with the prospects there and that they had taken samples with the intention of returning to the camp next week and remaining in this district for some time.

The engineers also inspected a new discovery made this week, in the way of a large body of ore on the Revenue Claims which adjoin the "Sally Dear" group. Assays made during the week of a sampling from across the entire width of the dirt show $16.25 value in gold, with silver and copper values sufficient to make the ore average $25.00 to the ton. The ore body was struck at a depth of about eighty feet and the vein is at least eight feet in width at this depth. The large body uncovered leaves little doubt as to the immense value of the property.

Wm. Franklin, who is manager of the Revenue Company, and who made the gold strike on "The Sally Dear" group, the adjoining claims believes that the ore body is of considerable extent in various directions, every indication pointing to such a fact that the development work is being pushed on the property. The Revenue property is owned by Chicago capitalists and is not for sale, and the "Sally Dear" group which it is claimed probably contains the Mother Lode of the Jicarilla District has been optioned to California interests for $25,000.

Much interest has been displayed in the strikes at Jicarilla and considerable activity is being manifested throughout the district.

MRS. FRENCH ENTERTAINS

Mrs. J. B. French entertained delightfully on Friday afternoon at a week-end whist party. The house was feebly decorated in asparagus fern and cut flowers. Over pictures, on the mantel in reception hall and over-archways, the graceful, feecy fern mingled with sweet peas in pink and white, making the air redolent with perfume. Six games were played at whist, Mesdames T. Spencer and H. B. Hamilton cutting for first prize, a silver olive dish. Mrs. Spencer cut highest card, while Mrs. John Haley was given the fine handkerchief to compensate her as lowest score winner.

Delicious ices were served on the daintiest of china and cut-glass amid beautiful table decorations. Mrs. French's guests included: Mesdames, A. J. Rolland, H. S. Campbell, H. B. Dawson, John Farley, I. A. Spencer, W. C. McDonald, Stanley Squier, Geo. Dingwall, F. F. Mudge, Wm. Riely, E. I. Schaeffer, Frank Elliott, J. B. Garvin, W. L. Gumm, H. S. Fairbanks, H. B. Hamilton, John A. Haley, Wm. Hoeck, Henry Lacey, Fred Jones, F. J. Sager, John F. Kimbell, J. L. Lloyd, E. A. Walker, Misses Lorena Sager and Margaret Chase.

Charley Robison and wife of Bowie, Texas, holiness evangelists, assisted by R. M. Yarbrough, singer, will begin a revival meeting at Capitan, Tuesday night, August 13th. The public is invited to come out and hear some fine singing and old fashion gospel preaching.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS:

ROOSEVELT & JOHNSON

Bull-Moose Convention Concluded Its Labors After Singing Doxology.

Singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" the delegates to the first national convention of the new Progressive party adjourned, proclaiming Theodore Roosevelt of New York as their candidate for president and Governor Hiram W. Johnson of Ohio their choice for vice-president.

For several hours during the afternoon and early evening the throng in the Coliseum had listened to a flow of oratory in nominating and seconding speeches, in which the dominant note expressed was the belief that victory would come to the new party in November.

SELLING OUT

I wish to dispose of my holdings near Carrizozo and relinquish my claim and offer all my improvements and stock at sacrifice prices for cash. The claim of 160 acres is fenced and has over 100 acres of good hay land (unpatented). A good well 33 feet deep, unlimited water, with windmill and tank attached. The garden is planted and thriving and there is a two room house among the other improvements. Fine open range adjoining. The stock includes 3 Jersey milk cows (1 fresh), 1-3 yr. old heifer of fine stock, 50 Rhode Island Red chickens, 1-2 1/2 inch wagon and fine work harness, bedding, furniture farm implements and everything on the place. Will sell any item or the whole cheap for cash. Henry Dickens, 4 miles west of Carrizozo.

JICARILLA CELEBRATION

Jicarilla is to have a racing tournament on Saturday Aug 17th, together with a basket picnic to which all are invited and the program is to include many events of interest including horse racing, goat roping and other sports.

WOODMAN CIRCLE BALL

The Woodman Circle has announced that on Monday evening Aug. 11th they will give a grand ball in the Peoples Building, for the benefit of the Harmony Grove chapter which was recently installed here. The affair promises to be an exceptionally pleasant one and a large attendance is anticipated. Refreshments will be served by the young ladies in the vacant building in the Wetmore block.

JUDGE MEDLER HERE.

Judge Edward L. Medler arrived Wednesday noon of this week having been called here to hear a habeas corpus case but which was later necessarily postponed until August 19th. Judge Medler spent the afternoon transacting business of the court after which he was entertained by the several automobile owners in the city. Announcements has been made that the juries for the October term of court will be drawn on August 19th, and that Court will surely convene, on Monday October 7th, in Carrizozo.

"Cut out this coupon and present it at the
and they will exchange it for 25 votes in the $400 Piano contest."

Gathered Smiles

ABLE TO TRANSLATE LATIN.

Long years ago an Indiana candidate for congress was making a stumpy speech. Two merchants, who had been boys together and in the same class in Latin, heard the speech. The speaker closed his peroration in full, rotund voice, with "Vox populi, vox Dei!"

Tom turned to William and remarked, "Bill, I'll bet you $5 that you don't remember enough Latin to translate that sentence."

"Make it ten," replied William, "and I'm on."

The bet was made and William translated as follows: "Vox populi, vox Dei—My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me!"

WILLING TO SHARE PENNIES

Generous Act of Street Walf That Gained Him a Friend in Great Novellet.

Charles Dickens, the creator of many delightful child characters, earned a million dollars during his lifetime with his pen, but often walked the streets of London in search of material for his books without a penny in his pocket.

One evening while doing this he was accosted by a small boy who asked him for a penny. Dickens searched his pockets, but they were empty, and as he told the boy, who was shivering in the cold.

"Poor man!" exclaimed the little fellow, "we'll go hanks together!"

Dickens stood back in the shadow of the street to see what the outcome would be. The lad continued to beg, and finally gained two pennies. He came dancing to Dickens with a jolly ring in his voice.

"Now," he said, "we'll have two hot bun's apiece."

Such a generous spirit under such trying circumstances struck Dickens so forcibly that he took the lad home with him, and there he was fed and clothed, and started on the road to a better life.

Yes, Cordella, a romantic man may be all to the good as a lover-maker, but he isn't in it with the matter-of-fact man as a family supporter.

Where He Draw the Line. An English earl, lately deceased, who had no family, was notorious for his hatred of children, and on one occasion he engaged as lodge keeper an army pensioner named McMicken. Some few months later McMicken's wife presented him with a son and heir. On learning of the occurrence his lordship rode down to the lodge in a terrible rage.

"I hear," said he to Mr. McMicken, "that your wife has a son?"

"Yes, my lord," said the man proudly.

"Well, now, look here, McMicken; when I put you here, it was to open and shut a gate, but by the Lord Harry, not to propagate."

Her Special Advantages. ### GOOD PLAN FOR DAIRY HOUSE

Demand Created by Recent Developments for Building Fulfilling Sanitary Requirements.

(By E. KELLY and K. M. PARKS.) Recent developments in dairying have caused a large demand for a dairy house which will fulfill sanitary requirements and at the same time be practical and inexpensive. For those who are striving to improve the quality of their products, such a building is an absolute necessity. Milk which is poured or strained in the barn, or allowed to stand there, is apt to be contaminated by germs and to absorb stable odors. The best practice is to remove the milk to the dairy house as soon as each cow is milked. Milk should be cooled immediately, so the dairy house should be provided with proper facilities for this purpose.

While the dairy house should be conveniently located so that the milkers do not have a long walk from the barn, it must be so placed that it is free from contaminating surroundings. It should be built on a well-drained spot, and the drainage of the dairy house itself should be carried well away from the building. If possible the ground should slope from the dairy house toward the barn, rather than from the barn toward the dairy house.

The principal purpose in building a dairy house is to provide a place where dairy products may be handled apart from everything else. To carry out this idea it is necessary to divide the interior of the building so that utensils will not have to be washed in the same room where the milk is handled. Thorough cleanliness must always be kept in mind; therefore there should be no unnecessary ledges or rough surfaces inside the building, so that it can be quickly and thoroughly cleaned. Ventilators are necessary to keep the air in the milk room fresh and free from musty and undesirable odors, and to carry off steam from the wash room. Windows are of prime importance, as they let in fresh air and sunlight, and facilitate work. In summer the doors and windows should be screened to keep out flies and other insects.

It is imperative that there should be a plentiful supply of cold, running water at the dairy house. If it is not possible to have a regular water system, the supply may be piped from an elevated tank fed by a hydraulic ram, engine, windmill or hand pump.

For the proper sterilization of utensils an abundance of steam of hot water is needed. A pall or can may be clean to the eye and yet may carry numberless germs which will hasten the souring of the milk, cause bad flavor in butter or cheese, or spread contagion. After utensils are washed clean they should be either scalded with boiling water or steamed.

The dairy house should be so built that labor is economized to the greatest extent. To do this the building must be arranged so that unnecessary steps will be avoided.

CARE OF MILK IN THE HOME

Frequently Contains Bacteria In Such Large Numbers It Is Not Safe for the Children.

Milk delivered in the cities in the summer months frequently contains bacteria in such large numbers that it is not a safe food for children, especially for infants whose food consists entirely of milk. When it is impossible to obtain milk entirely free from suspicion, it is advisable to pasteurize the milk.

Pasteurization should be done in such a way that disease-producing bacteria as well as those likely to produce intestinal disturbances are destroyed without injuring the flavor or the nutritive value of the milk. This may be accomplished in the home by the use of a simple improvised outfit.

Milk is most conveniently pasteurized in the bottles in which it is delivered. To do this use a small pall with a perforated false bottom. An inverted pie tin with a few holes punched in it will answer for this purpose. This will raise the bottles from the bottom of the pall, thus allowing a free circulation of the water and preventing bumping of the bottles.

Punch a hole through the cap of one of the bottles and insert a thermometer—a good one with the scale etched on the glass should be used. Set the bottles of milk in the pall and fill the pall with water nearly to the level of the milk. Put the pall on the stove or over a gas flame and heat it until the thermometer in the milk shows not less than 145 degrees nor more than 155 degrees. The bottles should then be removed and allowed to stand from 20 to 30 minutes.

The punctured cap should be replaced with a new one or the bottle covered with an inverted cup. After 30 minutes the milk should be cooled as quickly as possible. Set the bottles first in warm water, to avoid breaking by sudden change in temperature. Replace this water slowly with cold water. After cooling the milk should be kept at the lowest available temperature.

This method may be employed to retard the souring of milk or cream for ordinary purposes.

Silo and the Dairy.

The careful farmer who gives his personal attention to the making and feeding of silage and is not satisfied with the result is yet to be heard from. The silo seems to be edging mightily near the cornerstones of successful dairying.

WORK OF PRAIRIE ANT

Interesting Description of Industrious Insect.

Cannot Tolerate Presence of Vegetation Near Their Mounds and Workers Cut It Away by Use of Well-Adapted Mandibles.

(By GEORGE A. DEAN.)

In crossing the prairies of a large part of the western states, the traveler's attention is frequently drawn to the gravel-covered mounds that skirt the railways and wagon roads. Located in the center of cleared circular areas, they stand out prominently, breaking the grassy surface. These mounds dot the slopes of ravines, the banks of streams, and nooks and flats between cliffs and ridges.

They occur along traveled roads and sidewalks, in corrals, and in doorways. They are present in fields of wheat and alfalfa, in spite of the plowing and disking. They possessed the prairie before the farmer came, and they remain in spite of his operations. The ant whose industry has made these mounds, with their clean-swept doorways, clings tenaciously to the house which it has built, and, so often as the roof is destroyed, laboriously rebuilds it.

The nests are of various sizes and heights, ranging from nine to twenty-four inches. The clearing surrounding the mound is level, absolutely devoid of vegetation, and usually has the mound exactly in the center. The size of the clearing ranges from nine to twenty feet and in one instance extended for forty-five feet.

The ants cannot tolerate the presence of vegetation near their mounds and the workers clear it away by use of their well-adapted mandibles. They doubtless find that vegetation is an obstacle to their going and coming; but it affords concealment to their enemies; retains moisture after a rain, thus favoring the growth of injurious fungi; that its roots penetrate the chambers of their nests and, decaying, form passageways for the entrance of water.

The two upper insects are workers; left lower is a fertile female or queen and right lower is a male.

In many of the mounds the ants go and come through one opening; in others they have two or three such passageways, and in one exceptionally large mound the occupants had eight openings.

The interior of the mound is honey-combed with chambers and galleries. The chambers vary from one to three inches in diameter and from one-half to one inch in height. The connecting galleries have a uniform diameter of about three-eighths of an inch. Sealed and unsealed storerooms filled with seeds occur throughout the nest. Larvae, pupae, and young ants occupy many of the chambers.

Seeds of various kinds are carried by the workers into the nest. The hills are torn off, carried out and dumped at the side of the clearing, and the plump, sound seeds stored away in the storerooms.

The mound-building prairie ant shows three distinct classes of individuals—the queens (sterile females), males and workers (sterile females). Queens and males form a comparatively small portion of the colony, while the workers in a nest have been known to number 10,000.

Although these ants are larger than most species and have two of the most formidable weapons known among insects—large, pointed mandibles and most efficient stings—they are not quarrelsome, and fight only in self-defense. So peaceably inclined are they that other species of ants are allowed to come into their clearings and throw up their tiny crescent-shaped mounds of earth, and even to attack and chase such thoughtless "mound builders" as happen to pass too near them. Indeed, they carry this peaceful disposition to a point where they permit the common termite and some species of ants to live with them in the chambers of their nests and, to partake of their stored food.

The ant colonies are too scattering to materially decrease the yield of any crop; they are chiefly troublesome as an obstacle to harvesting.

To attempt to mow through or over them would choke the machinery and ruin the cutting edge of the sickle. Should a driver have such trouble in pairing over a mound it would be most unwise for him to stop and try to adjust his machinery, for such a disturbance would bring the ants forth in angry swarms, each individual eager to do her utmost to repel the invader. Every one that succeeded in getting man or beast would seize clothing, hair or skin between her mandibles, curve her abdomen downward and deliver a thrust quite as painful in result as the sting of a bumblebee or yellow-jacket.

NEEDED SUPPLY OF MOISTURE

Never Does Season Pass But That Short Droughty Period Is Experienced—Value of Stirring.

(By C. P. BULL, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

The season for cultivation of the soil, to remedy the mechanical condition, to control the moisture supply and to kill weeds, is now on. It would seem as though little would need to be said about cultivation for the control of the moisture supply in the soil, but there is never a season passes, but that a short droughty period is experienced. Experiments at University farm show conclusively the value of stirring the surface soil during dry times.

Strange as it may seem, the stirring of the soil is also a good thing when the soil is too moist. In the former case, cultivation breaks the capillarity and prevents the escape of the moisture through evaporation. In the latter case, it opens up the soil that is stirred, and permits a freer circulation of the air, and in this way dries out the surface area, thus controlling, to a certain extent, the moisture supply. Cultivation for conserving moisture should be relatively shallow; the depth being more or less in accordance with the severity of the drought. A deeper "dust blanket" should be maintained during a severe drought than during the short and mild droughty periods. In the "dry-land farming" sections, that is, in regions of fifteen inches or less rainfall, dust mulch of three to four inches is advised. Under the average Minnesota conditions, a one-inch dust mulch will generally suffice.

During the earlier period of growth, plants need much better soil-culture than during the latter periods of growth, for the roots are not numerous and do not draw from a very large area. For this reason, it is very important that the conditions be as near perfect as possible, that the plants may develop normally and rapidly in their earlier periods of growth.

Frequent cultivations, as well as the proper kind of cultivations are very important. In droughty periods a cultivation of the cornfield or potato field should be made at least once a week. The tillage question is not a difficult one to answer, if due consideration is given to the scientific principles underlying the conditions, which make it necessary to do one thing or the other. A study of the soil, the amount of moisture, the amount of rainfall and the kind of crop, will generally indicate the method to be followed.

Springs in Their Brains.

Two Frenchmen, in visiting an art gallery, stopped to admire a painting by an American. The artist happened to be in the gallery and in broken English one of the Frenchmen asked: "How did monsieur ever catch such a wonderful picture?"

"O," replied the artist, with a far-away look, "that painting was an offspring of my brain."

The other Frenchman was greatly interested and asked his friend what that American had said.

"I can hardly explain," whispered the first Frenchman excitedly; "he said the picture was one spring off of his brain. How can any wonder say the Americans act queerly when they have springs on their brains?"

SKIN ERUPTION ON CHEEK

Kingsley, Mich.—"Last May my thirteen-month-old baby had a sore come on her cheek. It started in four or five small pimples and in two or three hours' time spread to the size of a silver dollar. It spread to her eye. Then water would run from the pimples and wherever that touched it caused more sores until nearly all one cheek and up her nostrils were one solid sore. She was very fretful. She certainly was a terrible looking child, and nothing seemed to be of any use.

"Then I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. She tried to rub off everything we put on so that we would sit and hold her hands for two hours at a time, trying to give the medicine a chance to help her, but after I washed it with Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment they seemed to soothe her and she did not try to rub them off. It was only a few days before her face was all healed up, and there has been no return of the trouble since. We thought that baby's face would surely be scarred, but it is not." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. Cleland, Jan. 5, 1912. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

Hope Eternal. Every new day and night of joy or sorrow is a new ground, a new consecration, for the love that is nourished by memories as well as hopes.—George Eliot.

DAIRY NOTES

Keep your cream test around 30 per cent.

Good fences and good pasture are a fine combination.

Foamy butter is a sign that the cream was too sour.

The more the study, the greater the success in dairying.

Soaking the churn in brine occasionally will help keep it sweet.

Fix it so your fresh cows will not see or hear their calves if you can.

There is truth in the argument that milk should be aerated before it is cooled.

The best milk flow cannot be maintained without a variety of feeds for the cow.

To thoroughly clean milk utensils they first should be rinsed with cold water, to remove all particles of milk.

Fly time means milking after dusk, having a darkened milking shed, the use of some fly repeller, or else a fight with flies and cows.

In these days of fresh green grass, don't fail to keep plenty of salt before the cows.

Individual excellence is the only safe guide to be depended upon in selecting cows to build up a good herd.

The best dairy appliances in the world are of little use to us if we do not learn how to use them to the best possible advantage.

Do not turn the cows on the lush grass long at a time; neither is it well to shut off their grain as soon as grass comes. Taper off slowly.

One advantage of succulent feed is the fact that it not only provides the cow with more moisture, but at the same time is more appetizing.

Do not allow the cows to dry up during the latter part of the summer as this necessitates keeping them through winter, giving a smaller flow of milk than they should.

Supplements to Breeding. It is not breeding alone that is going to determine the future usefulness of the cow, but it must be supported by liberal feeding, daily care and careful observation.

DAIRY NOTES.

The cow's salt box should never be empty, summer or winter.

Each season a grass lot should be held in reserve for the dairy cows.

More milk per acre as well as per cow is the successful cow farmer's slogan.

After all has been said and done, there is no butter like good farm-made butter.

How did you build and arrange that milk house you think is the best in the township?

When a cow has been dry for some time be gentle with her when she freshens again.

Plantings of sweet corn are now in order to help piece out short pastures in August.

In keeping cows never be without clover. It is one of the foods essential to good dairying.

The greatest aid in the prevention of scouring and care of all dairy products is temperature.

A herd of good dairy cows is the best insurance against hard times or a slump in prosperity.

The strong cow is the one that will raise a calf every year and produce a large quantity of milk.

If the cream in the churn foams up and runs over, the churn is too full or the cream is improperly ripened.

Turn separator with a steady and uniform speed, and wash down with skim milk or water at end of separation.

It has been found that the milking qualities of a cow depend almost as much on her sire's mother as on her own mother.

Keep your calves in clean, separate pens for about four weeks, and then if the weather permits, turn them out with the herd, and they will not suck the cows.

Commercial Eggs.

We want more commercial egg farms in this country, and there is good money in the business if properly conducted. The demand for fresh eggs is growing every day, and will continue to grow. To meet the present demand it would be necessary to increase the egg production of the country at least 100 per cent.

SPIRIT.

In every town you find some men who always croak and growl; their chief amusement seems to be to snarl and whine and howl. Of course they do not prosper well—such people seldom do—and so they strive to make themselves and all their neighbors blue. If strangers come these men endeavor to get them off alone, and while they speak doleful, tell them how the town is dead and passed away; and hasn't any enterprise that half begins to pay; how real estate is very low and taxes very high, and every improvement scheme is sure to wane and die. The good book says a day will come when all must pass away and away for wings and golden harp this tenement of clay, the earth will burn with fervent heat, the sun go out in gloom, and every living, breathing thing shall find a real tomb. When the time comes the croaker who drives against his town—and tries to drive good men away and breaks their efforts down—will be declared a victim for a special dose of flame—ten thousand years and he will be roasting just the same. Meantime the energetic man who labors for his town, always works to build it up instead of tearing down, will ride from earth to heaven in a Pullman palace car and will dwell in peace forever where the first-class angels are.

CAPTAN MURMURS

A. J. Gilmore was in town from his Ruidoso ranch during the week.

Lee H. York, clerk to the Supervisor of the National Forest, will with his family take a fortnight's vacation within a few days.

Representative J. W. Mullens of Roswell, accompanied by a couple of young friends, spent a day in Capitan enroute to the "Tall Pine" of the Sierra Blancas; they returned Monday.

Mr. George L. Bradford postmaster at Dawson, with Mrs. Bradford and children are visiting at George Smith's this week; the two families left Wednesday for an outing on the upper Ruidoso.

Mr. Walter C. Fawcett and family of Roswell are visiting friends in Capitan this week; Mr. Fawcett is Vice Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of the Grand Domain of New Mexico, and in conjunction with Grand Chancellor G. L. Bradford, made an official visit to Myrtle Lodge No. 19, of Capitan.

There was a good attendance of the local Knights and a very delightful and instructive special session was held Tuesday night and a regular session of the lodge will be held next Saturday night at which it is hoped these prominent and popular Grand Lodge officers will be present. Myrtle Lodge extends a cordial invitation to all members and visiting Knights.

Our fellow townsman, George Smith, is being pushed by his friends for the position of Road Supervisor for the third district, his candidacy is meeting with the approval of all who are interested in the betterment of our roads, knowing that should he receive the appointment he will devote all his energies to the work.

Dr. Paden, county health officer accompanied by Deputy Sheriff A. T. Roberts passed thru Capitan Tuesday morning enroute to Las Pinos, at which place several cases of small-pox are reported to exist. Isolated cases of this loathsome disease have existed in different parts of the county since court adjourned in Carrizozo in June, from which place it was carried by persons who were exposed to the disease there. A rigid enforcement of the law and regulations thereunder for the prevention of the spread of contagious diseases would no doubt save some lives and much money to the county and the people, but there is an element of society that requires the vigorous methods of the Constable of Richardson precinct, referred to in last week's paper, before the proper enforcement of the law in such cases can be accomplished.

Antonio Montoya of Richardson was in town a few days ago having the wound on his head, inflicted by the Constable's gun, treated, the wound of itself was not a dangerous nature, but infection had set in making medical treatment necessary. Montoya's son, who had the small pox is reported to be recovering his health rapidly and no other cases are reported from that neighborhood.

Constable Ferman Escobar of Richardson, brought in a sick man from Billing, sheep ranch north of Richardson last Saturday, Dr. Scott prescribed the required treatment for the patient.

Mr. L. J. Mundell and family left during the week for Magdalena going by wagon over the old route from White Oaks to Carthage and San Antonio on the Rio Grande. Mr. Mundell who is a ranger in the Forest Service, has been transferred to the Dail Reserve in Socorro County.

John K. Coleman of the Forest Service has been furloughed for an indefinite time. Mr. Coleman will make Capitan headquarters for the present.

Mrs. C. C. Belknap of Osuro is having a few days visit with Mr. Belknap, who is employed as agent for the Railroad Company here.

Mr. Jess Dawson, member of the committee having in charge the arrangements for the race meeting, and upon whom most of the work has fallen, has been quite busy getting the track in condition for the races next Saturday.

Don't fail to come to Capitan next Saturday and have a pleasant time. There will be a meeting of the County Good Roads association in the forenoon and a number of horse races and other entertainments in the afternoon, the hotel is making preparation to entertain a large number of guests and a large gathering is expected.

There will be no ball game at Capitan Saturday owing to the inability of the committee to get two teams for the occasion; interest in the national game seems to have died out for the time being, not a town in the County seems to have a complete team organized.

W. E. McDaniel, formerly agent for the railroad at this place is helping his father on the farm this season, they have the Albro place rented and Mac says that crops look bully.

CAMP MEETING.

Rev. Charlie Robison, a holiness preacher from Texas assisted by his wife, is holding a protracted meeting at Angus. R. M. Yarbrough conducts the singing. Bro. Robison is an able and interesting speaker, and has made a very favorable impression on his hearers. The special songs by Bro. Robison and wife are a very attractive feature of the meeting.

The attendance has been good, especially on Sunday, when a large crowd was on the grounds. The meeting will last over next Sunday, Aug. 11, and possibly longer if the interest justifies.

Bro. Robison and wife will remain in this region for several weeks, and expect to conduct Gospel meetings at different places, which will be announced later.

Ben Robinson of Parsons was doing some surveying for Monroe Harper last week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Yorbro and daughter Mollie, spent several days at Salinas.

OSCURO OBSERVINGS

Mrs. Tom Lea who has been visiting Mrs. M. Calfee returned to her home in El Paso Sunday.

Last Thursday Evening a number of friends gathered at the home of E F Jones to help him while away the hours of his birthday. After Mr. Jones recovered from the surprise the company indulged in whist. Excellent refreshments were served. A splendid time was enjoyed by all and each regretted that birthdays come but once a year.

Dr. Blaney spent several days the first of the week in Tularosa.

Mr. Pitt of the Hachita Ranch was in town Friday getting supplies.

Messrs. Price and Fleming representatives of the Standard Oil Co., spent a day in Oscurro last week.

Mrs. J. H. Boyd visited friends in Carrizozo last Friday.

Carol Belknap who has been suffering from an affliction of the jawbone is much improved.

Mrs. R. E. Blaney attended the regular meeting of Cornet Chapter Wednesday evening at Carrizozo and remained to visit friends a few days.

CHAPTER I.

The Wreck of the Taxicab. The young woman in the taxicab scuffling frantically down the dark street, clung to the arm of the young man alongside, as if she were terrified at the lawbreaking, neck-risking speed. But evidently some greater fear goaded her, for she gasped:

"Can't he go a little faster?" "Can't you go a little faster?" The young man alongside howled as he thrust his head and shoulders through the window in the door.

But the self-created taxi-gate swept his voice aft, and the taut chauffeur perked his ear in vain to catch the vaulting syllables.

"What's that?" he roared. "Can't you go a little faster?"

The indignant charioteer simply had to shoot one barbed glare of reproach into that passenger. He turned his head and growled:

"Say, do youse want to lose me me license?"

For just one instant he turned his head. One instant was just enough. The unguarded taxicab seized the opportunity, bolted from the track, and hung, as it were, its arms drunkenly around a perfectly respectable lamp-post attending strictly to its business on the curb. There ensued a condensed Fourth of July. Sparks flew, tires exploded, metal ripped, two wheels spun in air and one wheel, neatly severed at the axle, went rolling down the sidewalk half a block before it leaned against a tree and rested.

A dozen or more miracles coincided to save the passengers from injury. The young man found himself standing on the pavement with the unblazed door still around his neck. The young woman's arms were round his neck. Her head was on his shoulder. It had roared there often enough, but never before in the street under a lamppost. The chauffeur found himself in the road, walking about on all fours, like a bewildered quadruped.

Evidently some overpowering need for speed possessed the young woman, for even now she did not scream, she did not faint, she did not murmur, "Where am I?" She simply said:

"What time is it, honey?"

And the young man, not realizing how befuddled he really was, or how his hand trembled, fetched out his watch and held it under the glow of the lamppost, which was now bent over in a convenient but disreputable attitude.

"A quarter to ten, sweetheart. Plenty of time for the train."

"But the minister, honey! What about the minister?"

The consideration of this riddle was interrupted by a muffled hubbub of yelps, whimpers and canine hysterics. Immediately the young woman forgot ministers, collisions, train-schedules—everything. She showed her first sign of panic.

"Snootleums! Get snootleums!" They groped about in the topsyturvy taxicab, rummaged among a jumble of suitcases, handbags, umbrellas and minor impediments, and fished out a small dogbasket with an inverted dog inside. Snootleums was ridiculous in any position, but as he slid full foreward from the wicker basket, he resembled nothing so much as a heap of tangled yarn tumbling out of a workbasket. He was an indignant skein, and had much to say before he consented to tangle under his mistress' chin.

About this time the chauffeur came prancing into view. He was too deeply shocked to emit any language of the garage. He was too deeply shocked to achieve any comment more brilliant than:

"That does not look much like it ever was a taxicab, does it?"

The young man shrugged his shoulders, and started up and down the long street for another. The young woman looked sorrowfully at the wreck, and queried:

"Do you think you can make it go?"

The chauffeur glanced her way, more in pity for her whole sex than in scorn for this sex type, as he murmured:

"Make it go? It'll take a steam-winch a week to unwrap it from that lamp-post."

The young man apologized. "I oughtn't to have yelled at you."

He was evidently a very nice young man. Not to be outdone in courtesy, the chauffeur retorted:

"I hadn't ought to have turned me head."

The young woman thought, "What a nice chauffeur!" but she gasped: "Great heavens, you're hurt!"

"It's nuttin' but a scratch on me tumb."

"Lend me a clean handkercher, Harry."

The young man whipped out his reserve supply, and in a trice it was a bandage on the chauffeur's hand. The chauffeur decided that the young woman was even nicer than the young man. But he could not settle on a way to say it. So he said nothing, and grinned sheepishly as he said it.

"The young man named Harry was wondering how they were to proceed. He had already studied the region with dismay, when the girl resolved:

"We'll have to take another taxi, Harry."

"Yes, Marjorie, but we can't take it till we get it."

"You might wait here all night without ketchin' a glimpse of one," the chauffeur ventured. "I come this way because you wanted me to take a short cut."

"It's the longest short cut I ever saw," the young man sighed, as he gazed this way and that.

The place of their shipwreck was so deserted that not even a crowd had gathered. The racket of the collision had not brought a single policeman. They were in a dead world of granite warehouses, wholesale stores and factories, all locked and forbidding, and full of silent gloom.

In the daytime this was a big trade-artery of Chicago, and all day long it was thunderous with trucks and commerce. At night it was Pompeii, so utterly abandoned that the night watchmen rarely slept outside, and no footpad found it worth while to set up shop.

The three castaways stared every which way, and every which way was peace. The ghost of a pedestrian or tyo hurried by in the far distance. A cat or two went furiously in search of warfare or romance. The lamp-found the handbags and suitcases, umbrellas and other equipment. He ran to the corner to call after the owners. They were as absent of body as they had been absent of mind.

He remembered the street-number they had given him as their destination. He waited till at last a yawning policeman sauntered that way like a lonely beach patrol, and left him in charge while he went to telephone his garage for a wagon and a wrecking crew.

It was close on midnight before he reached the number his fare had given him. It was a parsonage leaning against a church. He rang the bell and finally produced from an upper window a nightshirt topped by a frowny head. He explained the situation, and his possession of certain properties belonging to parties unknown, except by their first names. The clergyman drowsily murmured:

"Oh, yes. I remember. The young man was Lieutenant Henry Mallory, and he said he would stop here with a young lady, and get married on the way to the train. But they never turned up."

"Lieutenant Mallory, eh? Where could I reach him?"

"He said he was leaving tonight for the Philippines."

"The Philippines! Well, I'll be—"

The minister closed the window just in time.

CHAPTER II.

The Early Birds and the Worm. In the enormous barn of the railroad station stood many strings of cars, as if a gigantic young Gulliver stabled his toys there and invisibly amused himself; now whisking this one away, now backing that other in.

Some of the trains were noble equipages, fitted to glide across the whole map with cargoes of Lilliputian millionaires and their Lilliputian ladies. Others were humble and shabby-linked-up day-coaches and dingy smoking-cars, packed with workers, like ants.

Cars are more vehicles, but locomotives have souls. The express engines roll in or stalk out with grandeur and ease. They are like emperors. They seem to look with scorn at the suburban engines snorting and grunting and shaking the arched roof with their pebbled choo-choo as they puff from shop to cottage and back.

The trainmen take their cue from the behavior of their locomotives. The conductor of a transcontinental node to the conductor of a shuttle-train with less cordiality than to a brakeman of his own. The engineers of the Limiteds look like senators in overalls. They are far-traveled men, leading a mighty life of adventure. They are pilots of land-ships across land-oceans. They have a right to a certain condescension of manner.

But no one feels or shows so much arrogance as the sleeping car porters. They cannot pronounce "supercilious," but they can be it. Their disdain for the entire crew of any train that carries merely day-coaches or half-baked chair-cars, is expressed as only a darkey in a uniform can express disdain for poor white trash.

Of all the haughty porters that ever curled a lip, the haughtiest by far was the dusky attendant in the San Francisco sleeper on the Trans-American Limited. His was the train of trains in that whole system. His car the car of cars. His passengers the surpassengers of all.

His train stood now waiting to set forth upon a voyage of two thousand miles, a journey across seven imperial states, a journey that should end only at that margin where the continent dips and vanishes under the breakers of the Pacific ocean.

At the head of his car, with his little box-step waiting for the foot of the first arrival, the porter stood, his head swelling under his cap, his breast swelling beneath his blue blouse, with its brass buttons like reflections of his own eyes. His name was Ellsworth Jefferson, but he was called anything from "Porter-tur" to "Pawiah," and he usually did not come when he was called.

Tonight he was wondering perhaps what passengers, with what dispositions, would fall to his lot. Perhaps he was wondering what his Chicago sweetheart would be doing in the eight days before his return. Perhaps he was wondering what his San Francisco sweetheart had been doing in the five days since he left her, and how she would pass the three days that must intervene before he reached her again.

He had Othello's ebou color. Did he have Othello's green eye?

Whatever his thoughts, he chatted gaily enough with his neighbor and colleague of the Portland sleeper.

Suddenly he stopped in the midst of a soaring chuckle.

"Lordy, man, looky what's a-comin'!"

The Portland porter turned to gaze. "I got my fingers crossed."

"I hope you git him."

"I hope I don't."

"He'll work you hard and cuss you out, and he won't give you even a Much Obliged."

"That's right. He ain't got a ushar to carry his things. And he's got enough to fill a yan."

The oncomer was plainly of English origin. It takes all sorts of people to make up the British Empire, and there is no sort lacking—glorious or pretty, or sour or sweet. But this was the type of English globe-trotter that makes himself as unpopular among foreigners as he is among his own people. He is almost as unendurable as the Americans abroad who twang their banjo brag through Europe, and berate France and Italy for their innocence of buckwheat cakes.

The two porters regarded Mr. Harold Wedgwood with dread, as he bore down on them. He was almost lost in the plethora of his own luggage. He asked for the San Francisco sleeper, and the Portland porter had to turn away to smother his surging relief.

Ellsworth Jefferson's heart sank. He made a feeble effort at self-protection. The Pullman conductor, not being present at the moment, he inquired:

"Have you got yo' ticket?"

"Of course."

"Could I see it?"

"Of course not. Too much trouble to fish it out."

The porter was fading. "Do you remember yo' number?"

"Of course. Take these." He began to pile things on the porter like a mountain unloading an avalanche. The porter stumbled as he clambered up the steps, and squeezed through the strait path of the corridor into the slender aisle. He turned again and again to question the invader, but he was motioned and bumped down the car, till he was halted with a "This will do."

The Englishman selected section three for his own. The porter ventured: "Are you sho' this is yo' number?"

"Of course I'm shaw. How dare you question my—"

"I wasn't questionin' you, boss. I was just astin' you."

CAMERA HERO SAVED TRAIN

Spilled Films an Ill Reward for Act That Deserved Better Things of Fortune.

The slave of the camera was doing in the smoking car when a half dozen shots rang out in the night air.

The train stalled. There were more shots.

"Train robbers!" shrieked a pallid passenger as he crawled under the seat.

The camera man grasped his black box and tripod, and, running to the car platform, sprang off into the darkness.

The robbers, most of them, were grouped about the express car. There was much money in the express safe. The company said not over $17, but it must have been thousands. Anyway, the robbers were determined to get it, whatever it was. They had done a lot of wild shooting and several persons had been hurt. Now they had shoved a stick of dynamite into the car and were just about to ignite the fuse.

Suddenly a blinding glare filled the air with dazzling fire.

With a wild shriek the robbers fled to the woods.

The flashlight of the camera man had saved the train.

When they found him he was crouched before a train hand's lantern, weeping bitterly.

"Something went wrong with the dum thing," he moaned. "The film's spoiled!"

RECORD PRICE FOR QUAIL

Brig. Gen. Clarence H. Edwards, chief of the insular bureau of the war department, has returned from a quail hunt in North Carolina, and the friends to whom he sent birds are elated over having eaten the highest-priced game on record.

"They cost me $21.25 each," said General Edwards, when he came back, "and I hope my friends enjoyed them. As a result of my hunting trip I am gazing at the time; for while climbing over rail fences in North Carolina I lost my watch, which was worth more than all the quail in that state. I didn't figure in the value of the watch as an expense of the hunting trip, but just added up the regular expenses and divided them by the number of birds.

"I love to hunt, but I believe in future I will get a furlough for some good shot in the army and send him out to do my hunting for me."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

City's Wise Investment. Not wait two years ago did Hot Springs do any advertising. Then the two railroads entering the town contributed $18,000 and the city $15,000 for this purpose. The effect was immediate. The patronage was increased twenty thousand. That is to say, the new business cost 75 cents a person to the city. As visitors usually spend $100 a week and remain as a rule for three weeks, the money was a wise investment.

One always thinks there is a lot of money to be made in any kind of business that he isn't in.

When in need of a good laxative give Gardol Tea a trial and be convinced of its merits. It is made entirely from pure herbs.

Strictly Up to Date. Alice—How oddly some men propose.

Kate—I could say so. A gentleman asked me last week if I felt favorably disposed to a unification of interests.

Willing to Oblige. A story comes from a town where firms advertise to sell fish direct to small purchasers. The glowing advertisements asked for the sending of half a dollar with a list of the varieties of fish preferred. One letter read:

"I want two salmon, a dozen whiting, a dozen fresh herring, some flounders, and if you have them you can add a lobster."

The next day the lady received a letter, which ran:

"Dear Madam: Please send another dime and we will forward the fisherman."—Dallas News.

Her Unfortunate Error. A literary lady at a society dinner was given a seat next to a noted scientist whose views were very materialistic, and at some remark he made on the origin of mankind, the lady found her temper tried beyond all bearing, so that she retorted: "I really don't care what you say. I believe in the Bible, and there we are told that Adam was the father of all living."

"I really think you are mistaken," he said with a smile, and so the subject dropped.

A few days later the lady, writing to a bosom friend, told her of the occurrence and added: "I am too mortified; for I have looked the matter up and it only says that Eve was the mother of all living; and so I don't know whether to write to the professor or not."

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine So Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day.

A lady changed from her old way of eating Grape-Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop on potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloated feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhoea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well, and says she don't think she could do without it.

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts."

DIGGING UP A BURIED CITY

High Spirit in Ostia, the Newport of Old Rome

AFTER being buried under sand for fifteen centuries, the remains of Ostia, the Newport of the ancient Romans, have now been largely unearthed. This year's American visitors to the Eternal City will find them almost as interesting to visit as Pompeii itself. Ostia is older, too, than either Pompeii or Herculaneum, older than Rome itself, whose seaport, as well as fashionable watering place, the long-buried city used to be.

The work of unearthing Ostia has now been going on for some years. Of late, thanks to the interest that has been taken in it by King Victor Emmanuel and the parliament—the latter having just voted $150,000 toward new excavations—it has made rapid headway. The two principal streets of the city, as well as its splendid theater, having been brought to light. This ancient town, the greatest center of commerce and of amusement of Roman times, with its splendid buildings and magnificent monuments, has been buried since the fall of the Roman Empire in a grave of mingled sand, stones and rubbish, which in places is 20 and even 30 feet deep.

The upper ten of Rome had their summer homes at Ostia, which is only thirteen miles from the capital, and used to go there in April and stay until September, during all of which time there was a lot doing. The Matronae, or May festival, was celebrated at Ostia with great pomp by the emperor and his court, who drove all the way from Rome in their gorgeous state coaches, followed, say the records, by the notables, which means the 400 of the day, and the matrones, which may mean the chaperones, though they had little use of these in those rapid days, and accompanied by crowds of people cheering to Castor and Pollux, the presiding divinities of the place. These festivals lasted several weeks, during which there were constant libations, which is Roman for rounds of drinks, and sacrifices to Bacchus and Venus, the gods of wine and love.

Plutarch, Livy and Cicero speak of Ostia as having been a "place of delight" and "the favorite town of emperors and nobility for several hundred years." Nero had a special fondness for the Roman Newport, which is another way of saying that there was a warm time in the old town on more than one night, judging by the imperial soddier's liking for splendid orgies. That the goddess of love enjoyed a special popularity among the Ostienses, as the inhabitants of the city were called, is shown by the large number of statues of Venus, including one particularly fine one, which have been discovered there. There is evidence, too, of the cronstae, the reporters of that time, that the life in the season at Ostia was, in the words of Bill Nye, a "continuous round of torchlight processions and Mardi Gras."

It is pretty hard to say how many years before the foundation of Rome Ostia was in existence and flourishing, as the seaport of Latium. Virgil says that Aeneas, escaping from the burning Troy, stopped with his fellows at the mouths of the Tiber, where he founded the New Troy, afterwards called by the simpler name of Ostia. This poetical account is not wholly supported by historical investigations, however. But there is no doubt that Ancus Marcius, who lived some 400 years before the birth of Christ, established himself at Ostia after having defeated several Latin towns.

It was the foundation of Rome and its rapid development that caused an equally rapid and marvelous development of the port of Ostia. This, owing to the short distance from the city, was often called the port of Rome, and it provided for the city the greatest part of the many requisites for its existence. From the corn of Egypt and Sicily to the marbles of Greece and Asia Minor, from the wines of Falernus and of Naples to the gold of Africa and Spain, everything brought to Rome was landed at Ostia and thence by the Tiber was shipped to the capital. Ostia followed Rome in its splendor and its magnitude; when the Roman empire was at its zenith Ostia was also at the maximum of its glory. Not only was it a commercial center, but a military base for war expeditions. Claudius, the emperor, sailed from Ostia to the conquest of Britain.

Excavations at Ostia had never been successfully and scientifically carried out until a few years ago. The world owes to Professor Lanciani, the Italian archaeologist, the first scientific research of the ruins of the town. This savant was also the first to draw the attention of the Italian government to the treasures which the sands of Ostia were concealing. Some authorities on archaeology almost discouraged Professor Lanciani in his first attempts, but a short work was quite sufficient to prove what an important page of history Ostia would disclose to the world if its ruins were brought to light.

The excavations at Ostia have now uncovered the two main thoroughfares of the town, the "decumanus" and the "cardo," which, according to Roman topography, marked the first foundations of the city. The decumanus, the street leading to the sea, was flanked by porticoes leading to shops or private houses. Some of the porticoes have been found in excellent condition and most of the walls are also well preserved. These walls are, as usual in Roman architecture, rather thick, thus showing that the heat must have been considerable in the town, especially as almost every house bears traces of an open space, or veranda which opens toward the sea and is sheltered from the sun's rays.

The theater, which lies close to the decumanus, still bears its original form and some of its columns, its statues and its mosaics are beautifully preserved. The capitals of the columns are of remarkable workmanship and judging by their height and by the size of the statues which adorned the entrance of the theater the latter must have been an exceedingly large building to hold several thousand people. It was founded by Agrippa and restored by Caracalla at the end of the fourth century. In this theater was found a large statue of Venus which is now at the Lateran Museum in Rome, while another, the Venus of the Sea, has been found buried underneath the stage.

A great part of the decumanus has yet to be unearthed, the greatest and perhaps the most interesting part, as this is the portion approaching the sea, where the famous port is supposed to have been in existence. Professor Vaglieri—who, in succession to Lanciani, is now in charge of the excavations—thinks that he may not only come across the walls of the port and its docks, but that he may also find the remains of ancient ships and at any rate archaeological material of the greatest importance for the reconstruction of this old port.

WHERE DO COMETS COME FROM TO US?

By GEORGE C. COMSTOCK,
Professor of Astronomy, University of Wisconsin.

The popular interest in comets is doubtless due to their transitory character, associated with the common belief that they are rare and unusual appearances. Great comets certainly are unusual and not more than once or twice in a lifetime are there to be seen such types as the beautiful comet of 1812, which was visible in broad daylight, and whose tail was long enough to bridge the space between earth and sun. But little comets are plentiful as great ones are rare—as numerous as fishes in the sea—was Kepler's phrases three centuries ago—and with the systematic use of the telescope in searching for comets, their number has grown, until now there is scarce a night in the year upon which one or more of these bodies may not be seen. But their stay is brief and within a few weeks, or at most a few months, they are gone, "never to reappear," as is often said of them. It is well known, however, that some of them do come back after a time, as Halley's comet only two years ago, and there are more than half a hundred others which appear and disappear, time after time, upon schedules well known and regular.

Nevertheless the great majority of comets do disappear and have not come back, and astronomers are divided in opinion as to whether they ever will return.

When a comet is discovered it is the business of the astronomer to find, as promptly as may be, the path it is pursuing, whether it is oval or shaped, and here he encounters the real difficulties of the problem. He must rely upon observations made while the comet is visible, and this period is so short compared with the time taken to move over the whole orbit, that it is almost impossible to decide from the little section of the orbit covered by observations whether it belongs to the one type or the other.

Whether the orbits be prevailing of one kind or the other, it is clear that they are of very different sizes, some of them approaching so close to the sun that the comet is literally made more than red hot as it sweeps past, while in other cases the comet at its nearest approach to the sun is far outside the orbit of the earth. From a statistical study of these orbits, it appears probable that those comets that are discovered and observed from the earth constitute only a small fraction of the total number that enter or belong to the solar system. To be discovered at all, a comet either must be unusually big and bright or it must come near the earth, and with due reference to these conditions and to the average number of comets that are found year by year, it appears that for every comet that ever comes in side the orbit of the earth there must be some 45 or 50 that never come so near the sun and which must therefore in great part remain undiscovered. An even more striking conclusion along these lines is that if we count the orbit of the most distant planet, Neptune, as fixing the boundary of the solar system, there are at all times present within this spherical domain several thousand comets, the average number being a trifle under 4,000, but of these thousand there are visible from the earth at any one time hardly more than one or two. It must not be inferred, however, that comets are less numerous near the earth than elsewhere, for quite the contrary is true, the number of comets per billion cubic miles of space is greater near the sun and diminished somewhat rapidly to the outermost confines of the system and it is only the immense expanse of the solar system beyond the earth's orbit that makes the total number of comets so great. It is this same great space available for them to move in that makes the chance of collision between comets and planets so extremely small. There is no known instance of a head-on collision between such bodies, or of the falling of a comet into the sun, although the mathematical chapter of accidents contemplates as probable, the occurrence of about one such event as the latter is every century.

MORE HOSPITALS ARE NEEDED

Situation Improved, but Further Work is Needed to Stamp Out Tuberculosis.

Only four states, Mississippi, Nevada, Utah and Wyoming, have no beds whatever in special hospitals or wards for consumptives. Eight years ago when the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis was organized there were 26 states in which no hospital or sanatorium provision for consumptives existed, and the entire number of beds in the United States was only 10,000. "While these figures would indicate a remarkable growth in anti-tuberculosis activity," says Dr. Livingston Farrand, executive secretary of the National association, in commenting on the subject, there are still practically ten indigent consumptives for every one of the 30,000 beds, including those for pay patients. In other words, we have from 250,000 to 300,000 consumptives in this country too poor to provide hospital care for themselves. If tuberculosis is ever going to be stamped out in the United States, more hospital provision for these foci of infection must be provided.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?
