Published Weekly in the Interest of Carrizozo, and Lincoln County

VOL. VII NO. 13

CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 27, 1912.

PRICE $1.50 PER YEAR

$10,000 TO EACH STATE

Congress Proposed to Give Each and Every State This Amount

TO IMPROVE CROP CONDITIONS

A measure of the greatest importance to New Mexico will probably come to a vote in the U. S. Senate shortly after the holidays. This is the Smith-Lever Agricultural Extension Bill. It has already passed the House, and has been favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Agriculture. The substance of this bill is that it provides an appropriation of $10,000 a year for each state for Agricultural Extension Work. There is also an additional appropriation, increasing from year to year, on condition that the state make a similar appropriation, but the first $10,000 in unconditional. The state has nothing to do but accept it. This money will be available for Farmers' Institutes, for demonstration work throughout the state for the salaries of county, or district, agricultural advisers to give assistance and advice to farmers, and for all the other varied purposes which are included under the head of Agricultural Extension.

The thinking men of the country have long seen the need of increasing the food supply in order to feed our growing population. The acreage of cultivated land in the United States has increased greatly during recent years, but the yield per acre has not increased. The acreage cannot continue to increase indefinitely. For the good of the whole country, and for the prosperity of the farmers, there must be an increase in the production per acre. The Governor of Iowa recently estimated that the work of one man, who has been at the head of the Extension Department of the Agricultural College in that state, had been worth $30,000,000 in the increased production of corn. This has been accomplished not by planting more acres, but by getting more bushels per acre. If so much wealth can be produced by the improved cultivation of one crop in one state, what will be the value of a corresponding improvement in the cultivation of all crops throughout the country? If one asked how much wheat an acre of land will produce under ordinary conditions, the answer would probably be about 20 bushels. But the actual average is only a little over 12 bushels. What is the yield of alfalfa per acre in New Mexico? The possible yield is in the neighborhood of from five to six tons. The actual yield is very much less. The practice of farming has not kept pace with the advancement in the Science of Agriculture during the past twenty years. The purpose of agricultural extension is to take to the farmer on his own farm the results of the experimental work which is being done by the Government and by the Agricultural Experiment Stations, and to make it effective in larger crops and larger profits for the farmer.

Does New Mexico need this sort of work? There is no state that needs it more. We have thousands of acres of splendid land which is being cultivated by primitive and wasteful methods, and thousands of other acres cultivated by newcomers who have not had opportunity to learn the methods which are adopted to new conditions. A farmer who is transplanted from Missouri, or Iowa, to either an irrigated farm or a dry farm in New Mexico, has to learn to meet an entirely new set of conditions. He cannot afford to do the necessary experimental work for himself, and the State cannot afford to have him fail.

The prompt passage of the Smith-Lever Agricultural Extension Bill will make it possible immediately to greatly enlarge the Agricultural Extension work, which the College has hitherto been conducting on a small scale because of inadequate funds.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

This Store will deliver goods by Parcel Post free after January 1st. Beginning January 1, our friends who are at a distance can get goods by the new Parcel Post system.

We will deliver free of charge in this County, or within 50 miles of Carrizozo, any package weighing not more than eleven pounds by mail.

You can simply drop us a line, or call us at the telephone, and your mail carrier will deliver your wants at your door. When you need anything, and it isn't convenient to come to this store all you need to do is write or telephone and we will send it on approval.

We don't mean by this that buying by mail will ever wholly take the place of coming to our store to take your selections. We would rather have you come here. The Parcel Post, however, comes to your rescue when you know exactly what you want. In all such cases you can buy with just as much satisfaction by mail or phone.

All goods that we sell are at the lowest possible prices. There is no concern in the country department stores or mail order houses that can sell reliable goods lower than we can.

We prepay the postage on everything, above $1.00 in value—Adv
ZIEGLER BROTHERS.

WEDDED ON CHRISTMAS.

Miss Margaret Reddy and D. Ivan Clove were united in marriage in Masonic Hall Christmas night at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was under the auspices of the local blue lodge. After the Masonic ceremony Rev. Evans of the M. E. church pronounced the solemn vows. The local lodge of Masons were present in a body and many invited guests were also in attendance. Both of the young people are well known here and are receiving the congratulations of their host of friends.

RACING MEET AT CAPITAN

Tomorrow there will be a one-fourth mile matched race for a good sized purse between the Sebe Gray horse and a Suffell. Races have been in progress during the week at Capitan and the holidays will end up with several large purse races on New Year's with games and a general good time.

WHAT CAN BE DONE

Fred Pfingston Clears $193.80 From One-Half Acre Orchard in Apples.

PRODUCT BROUGHT $270.00

As an example of what can be accomplished from land planted to apple orchards, our attention has been called to the returns from a one-half acre tract of land near Lincoln, owned by the railroad company and farmed under the supervision of Fred Pfingston, the railroad's official farmer. The place was formerly owned by Peter Burleson, and Mr. Pfingston in making an official report states that $193.80 was cleared from the sale of the apples from this small tract, which contains but 57 apple trees and these are not scientifically planted, but are crowded.

The cost of irrigating the land during the year was $17.50 with other expenses such as for picking and packing the crop and buying boxes amounting with the irrigating expense to a total actual cost of the production of the apples of $76.20. The crop was sold for a total amount of $270.00 or leaving almost $200.00 clear profit from one-half an acre.

Mr. Pfingston is enthusiastic over the possibilities of scientific fruit culture in this county and will recommend to the E. P. & S. W. railroad that they plant more orchards in the place of their many alfalfa fields. The farms Mr. Pfingston has charge of are enterprises acquired by the railroad when obtaining control of sufficient water for their pipe-line.

Mr. Pfingston states another example of what can be done with fruit in the way of plums. He says that 27 plum trees netted over and above all expenses and home consumption $140.00 and no one of the trees is over four inches in diameter.

These are but two of the many examples which might be mentioned of what can be done with fruit in this county, and we are indebted to W. L. Gumm for the figures.

COMMISSIONERS MEET JAN. 4

Through a misunderstanding it was announced in last issue that the Commissioners would meet in Carrizozo on December 28, 1912. The Commissioners will not meet on this date but will hold their meeting on January 4th, Saturday to appoint the Judges for the Justice of the Peace elections to be in the various precincts of the County on Monday January 12th, 1913.

The Commissioners will remain in the city and go into their regular quarterly session on January 6th, to pay off the bills of the County and transact the regular business.

Probate Court will also be in session Monday, January 6th, and thereafter for three days.

MASONIC ELECTION

Carrizozo Lodge No. 41, A. F. & A. M. on December 21, 1912, elected the following officers for 1913: Dr. T. W. Watson, W. M.; Frank A. Engleb, S. W.; Henry E. Pine, J. W.; Samuel E. Miller, Secretary; Walter C. Miller, Treasurer; Leonard B. Crawford, Tyler; J. B. Garvin, S. D.; Chas. B. Jones, J. D.; Frank W. Guiney, S. S.; I. E. Schaeffer, J. S. There will be public installation on Friday, December 27, 1912 at Masonic hall. Friends and brethren are cordially invited.

SCHOOL NOTES

F. C. Williams of Lincoln will spend the holidays at his home in Willard.

Miss Martha Barefoot is at home from the Oacuro mountains. Sickness stopped school for a time.

Miss Carrie Covington and niece, Dorothy Stevenson, are visiting in Alamogordo.

The directors of S. D. No. 18—Torres Ranch—are preparing to start their school.

Mrs. Winnie Carson is at Columbus, N. M., with her mother and her little son.

Joe West of the seventh grade, Carrizozo, went home to Cloudcroft for the holidays.

The Lincoln County School Division is just out for the month. Its circulation is steadily increasing, showing the growing interest in our schools.

President W. B. McFarland of the New Mexico Educational Association is not content with the enrollment of 710 teachers this year, but has started already to make the meeting of 1913 greater than ever.

The five months' term of the Tison school has been completed. The work of the school under the guidance of Mrs. de. Nisson was a success.

ARREST BURGLARY SUSPECT.

Al Roberts, deputy sheriff arrived this afternoon from Coyote where he had captured Felipe Hernandez who was caught with personal apparel and two revolvers stolen from the J. B. French residence here on Christmas afternoon. Hernandez was traced out past the W. ranch Wednesday night and later apprehended at Coyote station where he had formerly worked on the section. Much of the stolen goods had been destroyed or secreted. The thief took a varied collection of articles among them were corsets, underwear, sewing machine tools, toys, two revolvers, and two pairs of trousers. He will be given a preliminary hearing Saturday morning.

IMPORTANT MEETING MONDAY

The Carrizozo Commercial Club is to hold an important session Monday evening, December 30, at the old meeting place (the former Kelley store) at which time a constitution is to be submitted for consideration and other matters of the most importance to the citizens of the town are to be taken up and discussed.

The Experimental Farm committee thru Mr. Walter Stadtmann have been offered fifty apple trees free to be donated by the Washington Nursery located at Toppenish, Washington. All that will be necessary for the committee to do will be to pay the freight. The trees are thought to be especially adaptable to this climate as they are produced through irrigating.

BRAKEMAN SHOTS BOY

While passing through Corona Christmas morning at about five o'clock A. E. Cortner, a well-known brakeman, on the short division, shot at a group of boys who were throwing stones at the train and a bullet was lodged in the hip of one of the boys whose name we have been unable to learn. Cortner was arrested at Duran and brought to Carrizozo and the following day arraigned in Justice Court at Corona, where he waived preliminary examination and was bound over to await the action of the next Grand Jury under $1000, which he gave

XMAS AT THE CHURCHES

Santa Claus Appears at M. E. Church, Baptist Have Entertainment.

BIG TREE AT THE METHODIST

A very pleasant Christmas entertainment was given at the Methodist church Christmas Eve, the program being furnished by the children of the Sunday school department.

The program was composed of a fine selection of appropriate numbers and nicely rendered. The true Christmas spirit and good cheer were predominant at every word.

After the program Santa Claus in accustom attire appeared upon the scene and the giving of presents from the nicely decorated tree was in order, with S. L. Northlane in the role. The church was nicely decorated and candy was at hand for many of the children.

The program rendered was as follows:

- 1—Song, "Joy to the World," congregation.
- 2—Scripture Lesson.
- 3—Prayer.
- 4—Welcome, "Four Children."
- 5—Song, "Merry, Merry Christmas," chorus.
- 6—Recitation, "Christmas Night," Ella Hunt.
- 7—Recitation, "A Small Order to Santa," Dero Stevens.
- 8—Recitation, Primary Class.
- 9—Recitation, "Kris Kringle's Surprise," Gladney White.
- 10—Lullaby.
- 11—What Shall We Bring?
- 12—Recitation "How Santa Gets His News," Alma Lacey.
- 13—Recitation, "Santa Claus' Nap," Isabelle Tinnon.
- 14—Song, Jeanette Johnson, Herndon Kelly, Angela Whittingham.
- 15—Recitation, "Four Years Old," Albert Roberts.
- 16—Recitation, "What I'd Like To Do," Mary White.
- 17—Recitation, "Christmas Wishes," Lucille Krooner.
- 18—Remarks, Rev. Evans.
- 19—Song, "Farewell Christmas," chorus.
- 20—Santa Claus.

CHRISTMAS AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

On Christmas Eve a very enjoyable programme was rendered by the pupils of the Sunday school. One of the features of special interest was a song sung by four-year old Nellie Schreck in a most natural movement and clear and sweet tones. Scriptures relating the birth and mission of Christ were read, and appropriate remarks were made by the pastor and Superintendent Schreck. Candies, fruit, ice cream and cake were served; and everybody seemed to be happy, the spirit of Christmas pervading the atmosphere. The church house was beautifully decorated in Christmas colors, festooned with cedars and frosted with snow.

SLAVES GET RUBBER

Pitiful Condition of Native Indians Described in Letter.

Lured by Promise of High Wages into a Servitude From Which Only Escape is Starvation.

London.—Revelations concerning the methods of rubber gathering in Peru are made in a remarkable letter in the Times from F. H. Fawcett. It throws a searching light on the situation, showing clearly the huge profits made by the exploiters and their hideous methods of retaining the natives in their service.

Here is a summary of how the exploring company which has discovered rubber trees performs its business on returning to civilization:

"Agents, half-caste men of straw, with a knowledge of Quichua, were contracted as they still are every year, to secure labor. They are advanced money. They visit Indians on the Altiplano, tempt them with the advances of sums unheard of by the poor Indian, highly color the life and profits, make them drunk, perhaps, anyway finally obtain a paper signed, or alleged to have been signed, pledging their miserable possession of a hut, a potato patch and a llama against a contract to gather so many quintals of rubber (a quintal being 100 pounds).

"The Indian, on recovery from his debauch, is forcibly dragged away (proceedings at which the law winks) to the rubber estates.

"He has to work under half-caste task masters, often multi-murderers, and is required to transport his own food and rubber (weighing 100 pounds) over trails no reader would care to traverse free from a load."

Men, women and children are bought and sold for personal service. Parents sell daughters; the brutal appreciation of life is such that there is no security in the Peruvian forests for the possession of children.

It is a mistake, he points out, to suppose that it is only a degenerate class of Peruvian who is guilty of abuses. They are perpetuated by foreigners of various nationalities.

"Escape for an employe is very difficult from many places impossible," Fawcett says. "They do, however, get away sometimes."

"In escaping he abandons everything but life. He can stay and probably die, knowing he can never be out of debt."

"For all abuses the owners are responsible, whether they realize how their profits are gained or not. The agent on the spot is not always to blame. His livelihood is bound up in the business.

"He can, under the guise of honest

PARROT WORKS FOR CITY

"Teddy" Rescues the Workmen Who Are Paving an Alley in Chicago.

Chicago.—"Teddy" is a parrot and a "boss" of men.

City workmen are paving the alley in the rear of the bird's home, and they get neither time to loaf nor opportunity to fatten their pay envelopes by making the job last longer, for "Folly" is constantly on the job "helping" the men, except, of course, when "Folly" is talking politics.

August T. Reikhsman, 2014 Clifton avenue, letter carrier at the Lake View station, is the owner of "Teddy" and describes the martinet bird as follows:

"Come on, fellows! the bird demands. At first the men were mystified, and gazed wonderingly at "Teddy" when they received the command: "Go to work, now, boys!"

"Folly" when "Teddy" has a good eye for detail, too, her owner declares. Reikhsman is off several hours every afternoon and declares he has come home and found his pet conversing and giving orders like this: "What are you doing? Stay at it. Drop that, you boob," and terminating chattering frequently with, "That's the boy."

"Teddy" must be honest," said E. J. Glarkin, secretary of the board of local improvements. "The name does not appear on the city pay roll. This is one time the city gets the best of it."

St. Louis, Mo.—With rings on her fingers and a solid gold bracelet snugly clasping her ankle, Miss Adeline Grisman attracted the attention of hundreds of cherchegors as she walked in a drug store recently.

The cherchegors were sufficient in places the skirts and lingerie in fact such a position that the ankle and the hand-

HIT CONTRACT LABOR

Prison Heads Think Convicts Should Work for State.

Some of Subjects Should Be Trained, Others Used for Gain, Is Idea Advanced in Reports Given at Jailers' Congress.

Baltimore.—The contract system of prison labor was condemned in the report of the committee on prison labor presented at the congress of the American Prison Association in annual session here. The committee, however, recommended the system when no other means of employment could be provided, believing it preferable to idleness.

The employment of prisoners, the report maintained, should be directed entirely by the state and the products of this labor should be disposed of by the state.

The first consideration of every organization, the report continued, should be the training of the prisoner, and, after that, financial results. Every prison should be so classified that a certain group of men should at all times be provided with work on farms, roads and other outside work, and a larger portion of each prison should be employed on the state account system.

The committee believed it possible for every state having a population of two million inhabitants or more to employ all its convict population in the manufacture of articles for the use of state, and its political divisions.

James H. Leonard, superintendent of the Ohio state reformatory at Mansfield, was elected president of the association, and Dr. D. C. Peyton, Jeffersonville, Ind., vice-president. Those re-elected were: Secretary, H. H. Tranton, N. J.; financial secretary, H. H. Shifer, Columbus, Ohio; treasurer, Frederick M. Mills, New York.

Paid $679 for Love Powder.

New York.—Because her milkman sweetheart failed to return to her after she had paid $679 for "love powder" to Jane Grindle, Mary Jarris, housewife, had the love powder manufacturer arrested.

Oil Barge Woodhall, Long Believed Lost, Arrived at Trinidad, According to Message.

New York.—After battling for five months on a seemingly hopeless ocean, Capt. Edwin L. Smith of London has arrived at Trinidad with the fifty-five-foot oil barge Woodhall, from English shippers, according to word received by friends here. Smith dared to pilot the little barge on her perilous trip, which was proposed to save the expense of towing, where a dozen other London skippers feared to try it. It was expected that the trip could be made in forty days, but she met adverse weather and was the sport of the seas. In the meantime the boat had been given up as lost.

FIVE MONTHS SPORT OF SEAS

According to the report received here the captain found an American stowaway on board, who helped to deplete the meager supply of provisions. During the last few days the crew had to live on a biscuit and half a cup of fresh water a day, as they were unable to sight a ship to aid them.

As Women Play the Game.

Two Kansas City sisters were making a round of calls a few days ago. There were many to be made, and whenever there was nobody at home and cards could be left with the maid there was that much gained. One of the sisters smiled contentedly when the callers, as had happened several times that day, were informed that the prospective hostess was not at home. The other sister expressed the smile severely.

"You mustn't look so pleased when we don't find them at home," she said, as they went down the walk, "they may be watching us out of the window."

A DOCTOR'S SLEEP Found He Had to Leave Off Coffee.

Many persons do not realize that a bad stomach will cause insomnia. Coffee and tea drinking being such an ancient and respectable form of habit, few realize that the drug—caffeine—contained in coffee and tea, is one of the principal causes of dyspepsia and nervous troubles.

Without their usual portion of coffee or tea, the caffeine toppers are nervous, irritable and fretful. That's the way with a whisky drinker. He has got to have his dram "to settle his nerves"—habit.

To leave off coffee or tea is an easy matter if you want to try it, because Postum gives a gentle but natural support to the nervous system and does not contain any drug—no opium, but food. Physicians know this to be true, as one from Ga. writes:

"I have cured myself of a long-standing case of Nervous Dyspepsia by leaving off coffee and using Postum," says the doctor.

"I also enjoy refreshing sleep, to which I've been an utter stranger for 20 years."

"In treating dyspepsia in its various types, I find little trouble when I can induce patients to quit coffee and adopt Postum."

The Dr. is right and "there's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in concentrated powder form called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers—40-cup tin 25 cts., 100-cup tin 50 cts. A 5-cup trial tin mailed for grocer's name and Post-stamp for postage. Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.—Adv.

Explaining What a Snob Really Is. "Uncle Roy, what is a snob?"

"A snob, Eddie, is a person who inherits a great deal of money, goes abroad and buys himself a veneer of culture, returns home and poses as a connoisseur of something, and goes around calling his poor relations 'parvenues.' Why do you ask such a question, Eddie?"

"Because I heard Donald's big brother talking about you this afternoon, and he said you were a snob."

Reason for Inquiry.

The following after-dinner story was related by Dr. Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin college, before the Chicago Congregational club banquet:

"I was standing out in front of one of the big exposition buildings at the St. Louis Fair, when a man came out of the building much the worse for liquor.

"What's the name of this here building?" he asked, as he reeled away.

"I told him the name of the building."

"Thanks," he said, "I was just in it, and I wanted to check it off."

Famous PALAIS ROYAL Doomed

WHAT place is that. I have never been through it before. They were passing through the Palais Royal as short cut. The speaker was a New Yorker who visits Paris every year and stays two months each time because, although he leaves New York fully determined to study other European capitals each year, the charm of Paris holds him captive and he grudges the few days he has to give to London to obtain a new outfit of clothes. Yes, this student and lover of

THE BOURSE

Paris had never seen the Palais Royal because it is living Paris that occupies all his interest and the Palais Royal belongs to the past.

An attempt was made this year to bring about the resurrection of the palace by moving the bourse to a new building to be erected in its gardens. The bourse has grown too small for the transactions carried on there. When it was constructed the amount of securities in France was about $2,000,000,000 and the total had grown to $18,000,000,000 in 1899, when two new wings were added to the building. The amount has increased in the last thirteen years to $24,000,000,000 and seems likely to continue to increase, and the corporation of stock brokers complains that the operations of its members are hampered for want of space.

A plan was drawn up to build a new stock exchange in the gardens of the Palais Royal, now only used by a few children as a playground. Several small, dingy streets (Montpensier, Beaupalais and Radziwill) were to be swept away to give better access to it and two new avenues were to be built, one from the Avenue de l'Opera and one between the Council of State offices and the Palais Royal. The president of the stockbrokers' corporation approved of the scheme and for a time it seemed as if it was certain to be put into execution. But the city council voted it down, being unwilling to surrender an open space and not wishing to make a radical change in a building with which so much of the country's history is wrapped up.

"This Palais Royal," said the leader of the opposition to the project, "is to Paris almost what St. Mark's square is to Venice."

But although the plan is for the present scotched, it is not killed, and it is possible that the powerful interests at work in its favor will overcome the sentimental objections of its opponents.

The Palais Royal, now deserted and melancholy, was for hundreds of years the center of Parisian gaiety, business, fashion, gallantry and life. Its history recalls in its origin that of Hampton court, built by Cardinal Wolsey. It was commenced in 1629 by Cardinal Richelieu, who bought the old Rambouillet mansion for $19,000, and the fields and marshes then surrounding it, spending in all some $200,000. On this site he built a palace so splendid that, fearing that the king, Louis XIII, would accuse him of being too luxurious, he made a present of it to the king three years before the building was finished.

Louis' widow, Queen Anne of Austria, took up her residence there on his death with her two sons, Louis XIV and the Duke of Anjou. The little king, then four years old, played in the gardens, where a miniature fort was built for him, with ramparts, bastions, moats and redoubts, all complete.

Henrietta of France, made a widow by the execution of her husband, Charles I of England, lived in the palace, and later Philip of Orleans, when regent of France during the minority of Louis XV, occupied it. In the eighteenth century the northern side was the scene of dealings in stocks. In Law's wonderful schemes—a forecast of the future that may await the palace.

In 1789 the gardens were a favorite meeting place for the revolutionists, and Camille Desmoulin preached the revolt, standing on a table, on the spot where his status now is placed. With the directory the palace, deserted by politicians, became the haunt of gaiety again. Pastry cooks and wine sellers occupied the shops and galleries held sway there. Under the consulate and first empire the palace was full of gambling houses, as readers of Balzac's "Pau de Chagrin" will remember. Lansquenet and baccarat were played from morning to night, until Louis Philippe closed the gambling houses.

This act was a deathblow to the gaiety centered at the Palais Royal. For years it was noted for good and cheap restaurants, but now even that trade has gone and cheap jewelry shops, postcard sellers and second-hand dealers carry on the only business that exists there. One corner only retains full life. The Palais Royal theater, celebrated for its farces, of a type peculiar to itself, still brings people to the district.

FOR THE GIRL WHO WORKS

Hints From an English Source That Will Banish Pasty Faces of Tollers.

Why is it that nine out of every ten girl workers one meets are pasty faced? Waitresses, typists, servants, teachers, mill hands, shop girls—one and all have the yellow white tinge of a dead complexion, says a writer in London Tribune.

Woman commercial travelers are the only section with comparatively rosy cheeks. This may have something to do with the exercise for women working in this branch of industry have a lot of walking to do. And never was a more beneficial beautifier than a sharp walk, however short.

But perhaps another reason for the unwonted bloom of the "road woman" is the fact that during her peregrinations she usually stays at hotels, where the food is good. Good food is an essential to beauty. She knows, too, that shirking meals is detrimental to good looks; that she could never get about as she does on a bath and cup-of-tea lunch, which is too often indulged in by the young typist. Even the country girl would lose her inherited "roses" on a pastry diet.

A plate of ham or tongue, a crisp roll and butter, and a glass of water would prove just as appetizing, and infinitely more digestible. Biting into the hard roll crust does the teeth, to begin with, any amount of good; and sipping the water after, not during, the meal, is the wisest precaution to be taken by the girl who values her appearance. Coffee and tea are, besides being incongruous in the middle of the day, exceedingly hurtful beverages for the lunch hour.

If economy must be studied, both the bachelor girl and the girl who possesses a home should make it a golden rule to have a substantial breakfast. Above all, the meal should not be eaten rapidly, and never taken in bed, if the consumer has to rise immediately afterward. For apart from the fact that directly on rousing from sleep the digestive organs are not wide awake, as it were, sudden action after a meal spells disaster to the digestive system altogether.

If possible, rise early enough to allow of reading the morning paper for, say, a quarter of an hour before sitting down to breakfast, or take a turn round the yard.

A very good breakfast for every season of the year consists of a small plate of porridge, some bacon or an egg, toast and butter and marmalade, and fruit of some description, stewed or otherwise. And just because it is hot, do not do away with everything except the fruit. A fruit breakfast may be very nice in warm weather, but it's no groundwork for a day's work. A glass of water at breakfast is also extremely good. But those who could not do without their tea or coffee, let them take them by all means. But on no account bolt them down hot; rather drink them cold than boiling.

The girls of today look so old—that is, the girls who have to work for their living.

And it is simply because they will not look after themselves. Sitting in stuffy classrooms and offices, before whirring machinery, they seem to have no energy left to do anything toward keeping fit when at length they have "done for the day." But there is such a ridiculously simple little exercise which takes only three or four minutes every night and morning, which will make all the difference in the world to the tired girl worker. She has only to stand at her open bedroom window, hands on hips, and draw in deep, long breaths slowly, and as slowly let them out again.

And the wonderful change it makes! Dull eyes become bright, sallow cheeks take on a rich carmine, round shoulders disappear, as do ugly hollows. And the effect on the mind is just as marvelous. This little breathing exercise breeds a cheery optimism in place of a dreary pessimism. And all because the sluggish blood of the sedentary girl worker is getting what it so badly needs—more oxygen.

Another pleasant little aid to beauty is the eating of an apple last thing before retiring at night. The effect of such a remedy on the complexion is well nigh miraculous.

New Commission.

"I'm used to stopping at the store every Saturday afternoon to get shoes for the kids," said the man from whom we overheard things. "I don't have to be reminded of that any more. And I get hats at regular intervals, too, whether I'm told to or not—I know how long hats last. But I ran across a new angle today. Just before I started home I telephoned to my wife and asked her if she wanted anything."

"Let's see," says she. "Yes, we're all out of tea, and I wish you'd stop and get some. While you're there, you might as well get a set of china, too. Yes, we've got some, but the cook says there's not enough to last the week out!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Colorado.

Senator L. A. Van Tilborg and associates, leasing on the 700-foot level of the Trilby mine at Cripple Creek, have opened a new body of medium grade ore which has an average width of about six feet.

A temporary injunction was granted in District Court at Colorado Springs, restraining the treasurer and commissioners of Teller county from selling the Portland and several other large mining properties for taxes of 1912.

A valuable strike is reported in the No. 1 shaft of the Dante mine, Bull Hill, by Dooner & Company, leasees, at Cripple Creek. They have opened a new body of ore in a drift which has exposed a cross vein carrying an ore shoot said to be eight feet wide, grab samples from which assay up to smelting values. A carload a week is being sent out.

An expert chemist at sixteen years of age, a radium manufacturer at eighteen years of age, and the probable discoverer of a new chemical element at less than twenty years of age, Ernest Herrmann, a high school boy of Grand Junction, is causing a sensation in the scientific world by the ease with which his youthful mind grasps and solves problems which have puzzled scientists for years.

Despite a blinding snowstorm, a large delegation of Boulder merchants went on an excursion trip to inspect the new $100,000 cyaniding mill of the United States Gold Corporation at Sugar Loaf. The mill has a 200-ton capacity daily, and is the best equipped cyaniding plant in the state. Recent tests made at the new mill demonstrated that the vast bodies of low-grade ore in this district can be successfully mined and milled at $1 per ton.

A rich gold strike has recently been made on the west slope of the Sangre de Cristo range, two miles east of Cerro, New Mexico, in Taos county. The strike was made in the Black Prince No. 2, a property of a group of four claims owned by the Hardin Hines Gold Mining Company, a corporation formed by Alamosa people. Black Prince No. 2 consists of a tunnel 160 feet in length. Recently a cross-cut tunnel was started from the breach of the tunnel and in a couple of days' work a vein of ore five feet in width was encountered, showing free gold scattered through the rock.

A sample of the ore was sent to Pueblo to be assayed. The assay return showed the following: Gold, $7,023.71 and forty-two ounces silver per ton. This new mining district is sixty miles south of Alamosa.

Wyoming.

A. E. Wilson and B. H. Hopkins, two Denver young men, cleaned up a cool million within the last thirty days in the Casper oil fields. The money was made in Mid-West Oil stock, the company operating a big oil refinery at Casper, with headquarters in Denver.

William Sturgis of Cheyenne, has a force of men at work at the old Green Mountain Boy copper mine east of Moorhead, and is confident that he will strike some of the rich metal which he found years ago. At that time this mine gave promise of being one of the richest in the world and many thousands of dollars' worth of ore was shipped from it.

New Mexico.

The Treasure Mining and Reduction Company has selected R. P. Barnes as its agent, vice H. M. Root.

Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the state corporation commission by the Lyon Mining Company, capitalized at $500,000, divided into 50,000 shares at $10.

Red River, Tazewell county, is fast coming to the front, and as spring approaches this busy town will take on the aspect of a full fledged mining camp.

Arizona.

The Red Rover mine north of Phoenix continues to ship high-grade ore. John Lawler recently returned from Hillside mine, Eureka district, and confirms the report of activity in the Dagdad camp.

A rich gold strike is reported to have been made in some placer claims on the northeast slope of the Huachuca mountains.

Greeks Occupy Kastoria.
Athens.—A Greek division has occupied Kastoria, twenty-five miles south of Monastir. The Turkish garrison retired without offering resistance.

Powers May Avert European War.
London.—The tension in the Balkan crisis is sensibly relieved by the news that the peace plenipotentiaries are continuing their negotiations, that Russia and Austria have begun working together and that Great Britain and Germany are working actively to secure a peaceful settlement between Austria and Serbia.

Ritchie Champlin on Wolgast Foul.
San Francisco.—Wobbling on leaden legs, his eyes glazed and his body reeling, Ad Wolgast, conqueror of Battling Nelson, fouled Willie Ritchie twice in the sixteenth round of their fight at Daly City. With the wave of referee Griffin's hand, which disqualified Wolgast, the lightweight championship of the world passed for the first time in Queensberry history into the keeping of a California boy.

Spark Fires Whiskers, Burns to Death.
Middletown, N. Y.—A spark from the pipe of John E. Gilson, a farmer who was smoking, ignited his long whiskers. The flames spread to his clothing and he was buried to death.

Crop of Apples is 45,000,000 Barrels.
Spokane, Wash.—According to a statement made by President R. E. Strahorn of the fruit growers' association, the apple crop of the United States fell from 70,000,000 barrels in 1890 to 22,000,000 in 1899, but has steadily increased. The production this year, he said, is estimated at 45,000,000 barrels.

Servians Occupy Port of Durazzo.
London.—The Servians, ignoring the proclamation of Albanian independence, have occupied the port of Durazzo, without resistance. Thus the conflict is now raised in acute form between Austria and Servia and it remains to be seen whether the Austrian government will take any direct action or will be content to leave the question to the after-the-war settlement.

PAY CHECKS GROW LARGER.
As Living Cost Increases, in Colorado Labor Bureau Report.

Denver.—A comparative wage scale report for Colorado has been completed by the State labor Bureau, showing changes in earnings of various tradesmen in the last ten years. With the exception of bankers, barbers, boiler makers and cigar makers, whose wages have decreased in the last decade, other labor is paid on a higher scale now than in 1901-02. The list, as compiled by Statistician Croskey, is as follows:

THE COMING LEGISLATURE.

With the regular session of the New Mexico legislature scheduled to convene on Tuesday, January 14, the politicians and people of the state generally are speculating as to its probable lineup between the Republicans, who control, the Democrats and the "Progressives."

FALL'S ELECTION DISPUTED

There are those who dispute the legality of Senator Fall's second election on the grounds that the United States statute governing such elections was not complied with. Again the senator's friends scoff at the charges of illegality in the election and declare it is all talk, with no prospect of his being compelled to fight for another election to carry him over until 1915. His term automatically expires March 4, 1913, unless his second election holds good, which is probable.

COUNTY SALARIES QUESTION.

Next to the Fall matter, the county salaries legislation will furnish the lawmakers with a problem for solution. Since the first state election and the formal taking of office of the county officials more than a year ago, these officeholders have been working without compensation. Until recently they had been paying their own office help out of their own pockets, borrowing money for this purpose. Recently in some of the counties, the commissioners gave them partial release by allowing them certain sums to pay their deputies, but giving the officials themselves no money. A county salaries bill was passed at the last session, but, because of certain classifications regarded as discriminatory and unfair, Gov. McDonald vetoed the bill. Since then the county officers have held a convention, adopted a scale of salaries satisfactory to them and organized to push a bill framed to suit them at the approaching session. This bill classifies the counties and provides a scale of salaries for the various offices in lieu of the old fee system under the territorial regime, which made county office-holding in New Mexico a veritable bonanza in the larger counties such as Bernalillo, San Miguel, Colfax, Chavez, Grant, Dona Ana and Santa Fe.

INCOME TAX MEASURE.

The ratification by the New Mexico legislature of the income tax amendment to the federal constitution is a foregone conclusion soon after the legislature meets. With its ratification by New Mexico, it will make a total of 35 states to ratify the amendment, or one less than the number necessary to make it effective. The Democrats, Progressives and Republicans in their state conventions held in August and September, endorsed the income tax amendment, and pledged to use their efforts to secure its ratification, in their respective platforms.

Other matters which are to be given consideration early in the session will be the formal adoption of resolutions, making effective the language clause amendment to the state constitution, repealing that section requiring all state officers to be able to read, write and speak the English language without the aid of an interpreter, and the $500,000 bond issue to start a system of good roads in the state, both of which amendments were carried by an overwhelming majority at the election held November 5.

MANY STATE NEEDS.

The first session of the state legislature did little in the way of legislation of an important nature and since statehood has been in operation a year now, the many needs of the state not heretofore realized have been brought to light.

A determined effort will be made to secure a large appropriation for the bureau of immigration, which failed to be taken care of in the last session. An appropriation of from $50,000 to $100,000 for this department is to be asked. Another large appropriation will be sought for the proper representation of the state at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915, and at the Panama-California exposition at San Diego the same year. In each instance, large sums will be asked for. The San Francisco show is favored for the biggest display and it is possible an appropriation as high as $100,000 for representation at this exposition may be made. The result of action on these matters depends wholly on whether the legislature works in harmony as between the three parties, more particularly whether the senatorial squabble is to embroil its members.

REPUBLICANS WILL RETAIN OFFICE

According to the information that comes from Washington—the Democratic members of the U. S. senate have entered into a compromise measure with the republicans under the terms of which they are to confirm the Taft appointments being made to office in states represented by republicans in the U. S. senate, with the understanding that the appointments made in the states represented by Democratic U. S. senators shall be turned down and left open to appointments by President Wilson.

The effect of this compromise is that republican senators like New Mexico will be permitted to retain their offices until the expiration of their term of appointment.

It is not the "long winded" articles or the most pages or the "space killing" dope in a newspaper, that appeals to the people, nor what is said but the manner of expression that is most appreciated by the reading public of today. A half dozen lines truthfully told about a subject is more valued than two hundred words on the same subject, if imagination plays the more prominent part, therefore, do not judge a paper by its size or the amount of "stuh" it contains. Clovis News

the names of all our people shows that the Christmas spirit was in our midst

Mrs. Lyles, who went to the hospital at El Paso has undergone an operation and is now improving rapidly with prospects of being able to return home soon.

On Sunday the 22, Mr. Hart
Calbaugh and Miss Esther Clancy were quietly married by Judge

Mrs. Ranpiger is the happy possessor of a fine new carriage presented to her as a Christmas greeting from E. F. Jones and family.

Dan and Zella Mayes who are attending school in Alamogordo are spending their Christmas vacation with their parents.

Mr. Anderson and son, Paul, came up from El Paso Saturday and left Sunday for their home in Chicago

School closed Friday for a week's vacation. A nice little program was rendered after which the children were treated by the teacher to cake and candy, then Mrs. Blaney, as hostess, served cake and coffee to parents and friends.

CAPITAN MURMURS.

A number of homesteads have recently been located near Capitan by people from the east who are pleased with the soil and climate.

Road supervisor George Smith has a large force of men and teams at work on the road to White Oaks reducing the steep grade on the hill just north of town, this is a much needed improvement that will be greatly appreciated by people having to travel over that road.

Grand Chancellor W. D. Fawcett, of Roswell visited Myrtle Lodge
No 19, K. of P. last week and attended a session of the lodge last Saturday night; he was accompanied by Mr. Rose of Roswell who is an enthusiastic night. A large number of local knights were present and a good time was had Myrtle Lodge, at one time the banner lodge of New Mexico, is increasing its membership quite rapidly again.

TOM'S GREAT VICTORY

Not a Question of Mere Dollars and Cents in This Love Affair.

By WINSTON CLIFFORD.

"Father will never consent to our marriage," Majorie lamented tearfully.

"Why not?" Tom asked, kissing the pretty, pouting lips.

"Because he'll say that you can't support me," she cried. "And I'll never be happy with anyone else."

"Of course you won't, for I don't intend to give you a chance to try it," Tom laughed, and caught her again in his arms. "Come, I want to kiss you again to celebrate," he said quietly, taking toll of her lips again.

"Celebrate what?" Majorie asked, smiling, but not seeming to object to the process in the least.

"The anniversary of our engagement," Tom remarked. "It is now 10 o'clock. At exactly 9 o'clock you promised to marry me, so our engagement is an hour old," was Tom's explanation.

"We'll never get father's consent."

"Marry me without it," Tom suggested.

Majorie shook her head. "No, I love father too well," she said slowly. "We'll have to think of something else."

"What?" Tom asked. "I'm no Napoleon of finance who with a single dollar can meet and defeat your honored sire, as the stories would call him, on Wall street. In the first place, he doesn't move along that thoroughfare himself, and in the second, I know about as much about frenzied finance as you."

"Father takes such good care of himself that I fear there's no chance of your saving his life," Majorie put in sadly.

Majorie Can't Marry Any Man Who Has Nothing More Than You.

"To say nothing of it being a somewhat difficult task for a light-weight like me to pull off the rescue stunt with prospective father-in-law's 250 pounds," Tom grinned.

"Don't make fun," Majorie pleaded, for it was a serious matter.

"All right, dearest, I'll try and see what he says right now," and before Majorie could remonstrate he went into the house, for the two had been out on the veranda, and guided by the light under which Mr. Graham was reading his evening paper, soon put the case before him.

"So you want to marry my daughter?" was the quick question.

"I do, sir," Tom replied. "She's dear and sweet enough to make everyone want to do that."

Mr. Graham shook his head. "No, Tom," he said decidedly. "Majorie can't marry any man who has nothing more than you, with my consent. Of course she can go ahead if she wants to without it, but I don't think she will," and no amount of pleading would change him. He and his wife had married on a very small salary, and he always felt that her early death was caused by the hardships she went through before he was earning enough to take care of her properly.

Majorie fretted, but to no purpose. Occasionally she saw Tom, but always felt she was wronging her father in doing so. Tom worked and saved, but seemed to make no progress in his suit.

Mr. Graham was unhappy, too. He liked Tom, but felt that his daughter was worthy of someone who had already made his mark in the world, and so would not give his consent.

"I'd gladly share a crust with you, dear," she told Tom on one of the occasions when they met.

"I guess I could buy two of those," he said doggedly. It was hard to be called a pinner, when he was earning a fair salary, was not dissipated, and was working day and night to attain his cherished object.

"I didn't mean that, dear," she sobbed, clinging to him.

"I know, sweetheart," he said sadly. "I guess it's just another phase of the high cost of living, and once more he set himself to solve the problem of how to overcome the opposition of his father-in-law to be.

Matters were in this very unsatisfactory state when Mr. Graham was invited to be one of the speakers at a banquet given a visiting dignitary. He was surprised to find Tom at the same table with himself; in fact, to find him there at all, but he did not know that Tom was a friend of the son of the man who had originated the banquet, which would have explained his presence.

The affair passed off agreeably, the great personage departed, and some of the visitors drifted into the lobby of the hotel, Mr. Graham among them. After receiving congratulations upon his well chosen speech, which was one of the best of the evening, his attention was attracted towards a somewhat noisy group over in one corner, and seeing Tom among them he sauntered in their direction. If he had gone deeply into the reason, it would have been that he was trying to find full justification for his attitude toward the young man.

As he came up, one of the number, the son of Tom's employer, was saying tauntingly:

"Afraid to drink, are you?"

Mr. Graham remembered that he had noticed that Tom's wine glasses had been turned down during the banquet.

"No," Tom said quietly, and Mr. Graham realized that Tom was not contributing to the noisy conversation of the group.

"Then what makes you a spiff sport?" continued the young man, who had evidently been drinking too much.

"Me? Oh, I don't drink because I don't care for it, that's all. The next day headache seems too high a price to pay for a somewhat questionable pleasure the night before," and he laughed easily, then added:

"Come on, Bob; let's go home."

"You're afraid to drink. I dare you to take a drink, just one to show you know how," and the tone was so taunting that Mr. Graham fully expected to see Tom turn with his friend into the cafe; but that young man only laughed again, and throwing his arm about the shoulder of his tempter, said quietly:

"You're coming with me," and managed to get him away from the convivial crowd.

Mr. Graham jammed his hat down on his head, and went home. For a full hour he studied over the matter, with the result that the next evening he sent for Tom. When that astonished but delighted young man arrived, he told him briefly:

"Take my girl. I'm satisfied. A man who can control himself—man always control others. I need you in my business."

"I need him too, father," Majorie whispered delightedly.

With his arm about Majorie, Tom shook Mr. Graham by the hand. "I guess we all need each other," he said happily.

Story-Telling in the Home.

There are several characteristic ways of using the story-telling treat in a family, and any one of them which suits the habits and needs of your particular household is the one for you to adopt. One of my most charming friends, a man of great practical ability and much dignity in his everyday pursuits, has formed the lovable habit of telling original stories to his little daughter every morning, in the short but blissful cozy period which comes between her awakening and the more belated rising of her mother. Wrapped in his warm dressing-gown, and speaking in a dramatic and carefully guarded voice, he spends that twenty minutes by his little daughter's bedside every morning in the busy year. And the result is one of the loveliest and most harmonious relations I have ever seen between a father and a little girl. The child's head is filled with helpful fancies, and with happily turned and humorously illustrated moral lessons; her mind is stored with unusual bits of information; and her language has developed in a quaint and sweet aptitude for distinctive phrases.—Home Progress Magazine.

Frenchman's Song Collection.

No French president can during his tenure of office escape being "blagued"—ragged; we might translate it—sometimes rather ferociously. Of this ragging M. Fallieres has certainly had his full share. It appears that he takes it all in the best spirit. He has even collected all the songs that have been written about him, and in the evening after dinner he sometimes asks one of his intimate friends to sing selections from the fat volume they make. He is said to derive a good deal of quiet amusement from a study of the faces of his orderly officers when the song is more than weakly personal and outspoken.

DAINTIES FOR COOKY BOX

Cakes and Similiar Confections That Will Gladden the Hearts of the Small People.

H O Cakes.—One cup of sugar, one cup of oats, one egg beaten with the sugar, vanilla to taste, handful of raisins. Drop on greased pan about a teaspoon of the mixture. Bake in a slow oven.

Berkshire Cookies.—One cup of molasses, one teaspoon of soda dissolved in half a cup of cold water, a dessert-spoon of salt, one teaspoon of melted butter, one teaspoon of ginger, flour enough to roll the thickness of an inch. Bake in a quick oven for about ten minutes.

Chocolate Wafers.—One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, three cups of flour, four eggs, two cups of grated chocolate, one teaspoon of soda, one teaspoon of cream of tartar, a little salt. Roll quite thin and bake in a hot oven.

Crystal Cakes.—One cup of butter, one cup of sugar, three cups of corn-starch, one cup of flour, one heaping teaspoon of baking powder, two eggs, white of one egg, one teaspoon of grated nutmeg. Beat the butter and sugar to a cream, add the eggs, well beaten, then sift in the flour, corn-starch, baking powder and nutmeg. Mix into a nice dough. If too dry add a very little milk. Divide into small pieces, pat them flat, brush them over with the beaten white of an egg and sprinkle over with granulated sugar. Place apart on buttered pans and bake in a moderately warm oven until done.

BLEACHING LINEN IN HOUSE

Good Substitute for Sun and Grass, Which Is, of Course, the Best Way of Doing It.

The very best and safest plan for bleaching unbleached linen and cotton is the good old method used in our grandmothers' days of wetting the material thoroughly and spreading it on the clean grass in the full sun that it may do the work. The material is made wet again each time it becomes dry, and after a few days it will have become soft and fine in texture and of a beautiful snowy white, simply through nature's agents. But if time, space and a propitious season are lacking, the best way is to soak the material for over night in a rinsing water containing javelle water, an ordinary washing fluid, which, judiciously used, does not materially weaken the fibers of clothing while bleaching it very nicely. About a cupful with the rinsing water for each tub is ordinarily used and the clothing is left in the rinsing water for a longer or shorter time, according to its state.

For your unbleached linens and cottons you might use two cupfuls of javelle to the tub and let them soak several hours or even over night. Then rinse thoroughly, hang, and expose while quite wet to the sun and air. It will probably not be necessary to repeat the treatment, and each repeated washing will whiten them more and more.

To Dry-Clean Curtains.

To dry-clean lace curtains at home, shake curtains thoroughly to remove dust; fold a clean sheet once across, spread it upon the floor and place the curtains upon it. Mix together corn meal and powdered borax, one teaspoonful of borax to one pint of corn meal. Sprinkle generously over first curtain, lay another curtain upon it, proceed as before and continue until you have sprinkled the mixture on all the curtains to be cleaned.

When all are done and there is a last layer of the mixture on top, begin at the end of the sheet and roll up tightly. Lay away the bundle for ten days, at the end of which time, if removed and carefully shaken, the curtains will be found beautifully cleaned. If there are wrinkles they may be pressed out with a hot iron.

Almond Cookies.

One egg, one tablespoon powdered sugar, one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of butter. Mix at once. Strips on pan with knife very thin. Cut the strips of almond; sprinkle on top of cookies. Cut out with form cutter. Bake in moderate oven.

Fruit Salad.

Soak prunes over night and cook until tender. Drain the juice from them and cut the fruit into shreds. Arrange on a lettuce leaf, sprinkle with pease meats and cover with cream dressing.

Practical Frenchwomen.

The Frenchwoman makes a point of understanding the business either of her husband or her employer, and is seldom content to be a mere clerk or typewriter. It is maintained that the reason woman's influence is more potent in France than in England is because of the Frenchwoman's greater capacity in a practical way.

The Exception.

Some people expect one to believe in their veracity except when they deprecate themselves.

SMILES

ONE HE DIDN'T CONVERT.

A candidate for congress had been making a speech in one of the towns of his district where he was not well known personally, and in the evening while waiting for a train he strayed into a butcher's shop, and, without saying who he was, began to pump the butcher to find out how he stood.

"Did you hear that speech this afternoon?" he inquired, after some general talk.

"Yes," replied the butcher, "I was there."

"What did you think of it?"

"Pshaw!" said the honest butcher. "I've made a better speech than that a hundred times, trying to sell 15 cents' worth of soup bones."

The candidate concealed his identity.

Reasserting an Indignity.

"Josiah, what was all that racket in the front hall about?"

"I was kickin' an agent out; that's all."

"What for?"

"Invaltin' of me."

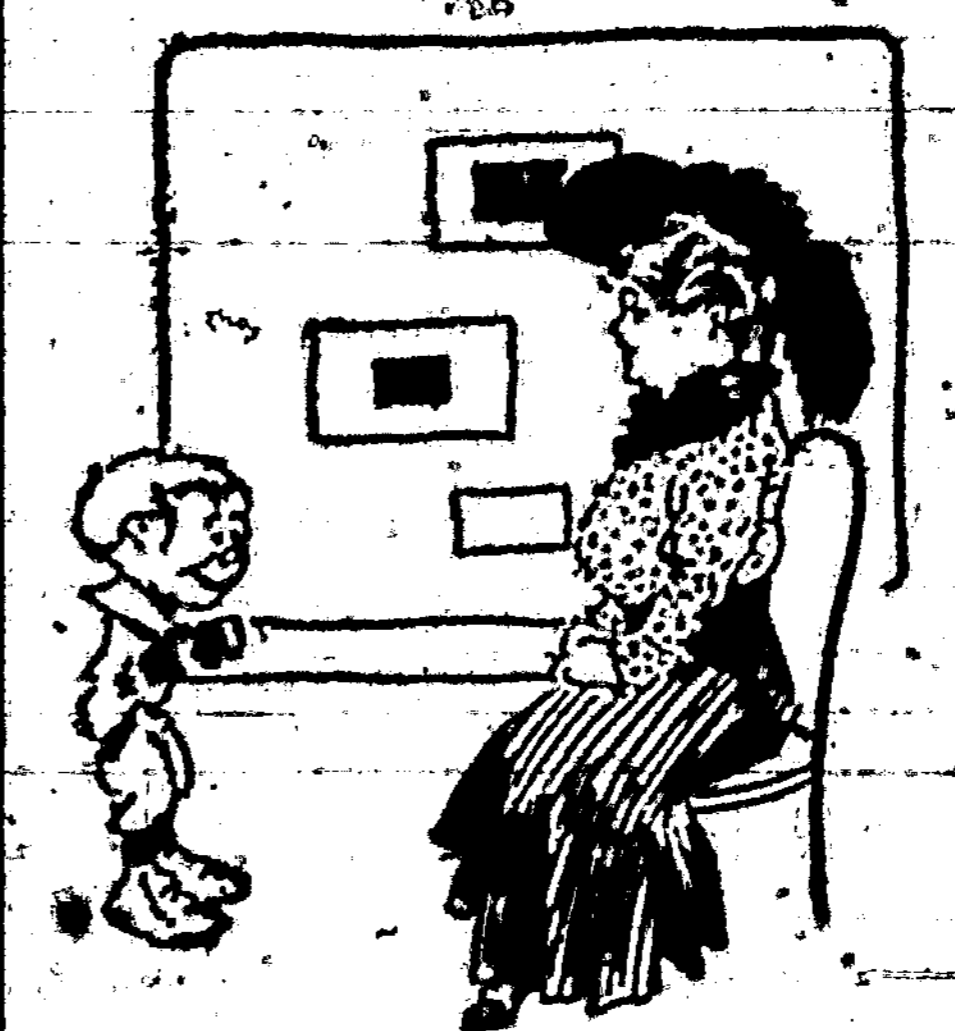

"How?"

"Mandy, you know, an' everybody knows that my motto has always been 'No north, no south, no east, an' no west,' an' that chap knowed it as well as anybody—so why should he—"

"Yes, yes, Josiah, but how did he insult you?"

"He wanted to know if he couldn't sell me a sectional bookcase!"

ENVY.

Tommy—My brother Will has got scarlet fever.

Visitor—You have my sympathy. I suppose you're sorry for him.

Tommy—Sorry for him nothing! Why, he won't be able to go to school for two months.

Market Glutted.

Talk is rather cheap; and why? Because, you understand, there's nearly always a supply exceeding the demand.

Man With the Motor.

"Women do not especially admire handsome men."

"That is true," replied Miss Cayenne. "As I sat on the piazza I saw a number of good-looking, well-dressed youths cut out by a man whom automobile goggles rendered entirely unprepossessing."

Coming Out.

"New gown, eh?"

"Yes, I got this to wear at Mabel's coming out party; what do you think of it?"

"Mabel's coming out party?"

"Yes."

"I think if Mabel comes out any farther than you come out of that gown someone will telephone for the police."

The Birthday Present.

Big Tim Sullivan was being congratulated by a New York reporter on the superb charity of this annual dinner to 7,000 Bowery men.

"Well," said Mr. Sullivan, modestly, "I confess it's at least a charity that pleases its recipients. It's not like the young woman's birthday present to her beau."

"A young woman, having landed a young man at last, thought she'd give him a birthday present. So she went into a cigar store and said:

"Give me five cents' worth of your very best cigars, please."

High Finance.

"What do you charge for a glass of milk?"

"Ten pfennigs."

"Can I go with you into the shed and have it straight from the cow?"

"Yes, but that will be 15 pfennigs."

Quite the Reverse.

Mrs. Goodsole—How did you happen to go to the dogs?

Everett Wreat—I didn't lady! De dogs always come to me if I'm not careful.

GAVE POP AWAY.

New Preacher—Well, Tommy, we had a fine dinner; it must have cost your papa a great deal.

Tommy—I guess it did. I heard him tell maw that he'd have to eat free lunch for two weeks to catch up even.

Nothing to Brag About.

There was a man in our town who would not advertise. But since he many pockets picked, perhaps his course was wise.

On Palham Road.

They were motoring indolently through the Bronx. Twilight had set down upon the land. The sudden roaring of wild beasts from the distant zoo caused the fair one to start.

"Oh, Jack!" she cried, nestling closer, "where would you go if you saw a dozen lions bounding along after us?"

"If I saw a dozen lions bounding along after me," grinned the heartless wretch, "I'd go to a Sanatorium."—Judge.

Bobby's Bad Break.

Klozeman (out eating)—Why do you look at me so intently, little man?

Bobby—I was looking to see if you was black.

K.—Black! Why should you think I was black?

B.—Cause I heard pa say you was awfully niggardly.

A Real Treat.

"Did you enjoy the opera?"

"Extremely. The girl who was with me knew the domestic history of every society leader who was there."

HE KNEW.

Willie—Father is the captain of our ship at home and mother's the first mate.

Sunday School Teacher—What are you?

Willie—I guess I'm the compass—they're always boxing me.

A Football Subject.

"Well, young man, ready for college?"

"Yep."

"What important subjects will you take up this fall?"

"The first thing is the matter of the forward pass."

Obolous.

"I suppose, Mrs. Comeup, as you aspire to our set, you have a good family line?"

"Of course, we have. How else do you suppose we could hang out our washing?"

Retort Courteous.

He—I never saw such a woman! You're always looking out for something cheap.

She—Yes, unfortunately. That's how I came to marry you.

The Material Difference.

"My friend is a strong man. He has a hand of iron in a velvet glove."

"That's nothing. I've got a friend with brass knuckles in a handy pocket."

MACHINE, NOT A GIRL

Rosy Hears That Her Sweet-heart Is Crazy About a Typewriter.

By MILDRED HOUSTON HEMINGWAY.

"Then you do love me," he whispered, as he held her in his arms and tried to reach her lips with his.

Rosy made no audible reply, but gave a little sigh of satisfaction and cuddled closer in the encircling arms.

"You'll never let anything come between us?" he pleaded, this time succeeding in turning the pretty face to his, and preventing any reply by covering the little mouth. At last, however, Hugh managed to gain from the beautiful young girl her confession of love, and then the two began planning for an early marriage. This was Tuesday night.

Wednesday morning a cloud arose on the horizon of their love. Rosy was sitting at her work around the house, when Kathryn Steward ran up the steps. Kathryn had been married three months, and Rosy was extremely anxious to confide her engagement to her friend, so she ran to open the door. Before their greetings were fairly over she began to pave the way for her confession.

"Hugh was here last night," she smiled.

"Hugh who?" Kathryn asked, although she knew as well as Rosy.

"Hugh Howard."

"Well, what of it?" Kathryn asked, going over to the mantel and arranging her hair before the glass.

"Why, I—well—he was here," Rosy faltered.

Kathryn turned. "You don't mean to say that you are interested in him?"

"Well, What of it?" Kathryn Asked she said. There was real concern in her voice.

"What makes you say that?" Rosy cried, her eyes filling with tears.

Kathryn forgot her hair, and took her friend in her arms. "I'll tell you," she said, softly.

"Rich knows Hugh very well indeed, and he told me the other night that he was crazy about a typewriter. Those were his very words. Said he could talk of nothing but that typewriter, and you aren't a typewriter, are you?" and Kathryn kissed her little friend.

Poor little Rosy began to cry. Perhaps, if left to herself, she might have sent for Hugh and asked for an explanation, but under Kathryn's persuasive direction she wrote him the following notes:

"I am going to ask you to forget what happened last night, to treat it as though it never occurred. Do not try to see me, for I never want to meet you again. Rose Parsons."

"And now you are coming to our summer cottage with me," Kathryn said decidedly, and before Rosy recovered her breath, Kathryn had explained to Mrs. Parsons, packed Rosy's suitcase, and borne her away.

As the cruel letter slipped from her fingers into the mail box Rosy gave a little sob, and might have written another to recall it, if she had not accidentally come across Hugh on the way to the depot. He did not see her as he was walking beside a remarkably pretty girl, and the two were laughing and talking in an animated manner, although there was nothing lovable in their attitude. Still, to Rosy, this was proof positive of his perjury.

Just as Hugh was thinking with joyful anticipation of the evening, he received Rosy's letter, and could scarcely believe his eyes as he read the few words her epistle contained.

TRY TO DO TOO MUCH

ERROR MOST WOMEN MAKE WHEN HOUSE CLEANING.

To Lay Out a System and Do the Work One Room at a Time is Better Than Upsetting the Whole House.

Winter, with its attendant duties in household affairs, means that the woman who has system in her plans will accomplish more work and have more satisfactory results than the erratic, makeshift housekeeper, who cleans because she is expected to do so, and whose work speaks for her incompetence.

House cleaning should not be a matter to be feared, and it decidedly should not disrupt the home and verify the "eating from the mantelpiece" joke.

The first rule is to plan the time to be given to the work and to do one room at a time. This will insure thoroughness, and will allow a part of the day for rest, so that a wreck of a woman need not greet the home-comers at night. Most women are enthusiastic, and when one room is cleaned feel that they might as well go through the suite. This is the error for which they pay later on.

The easiest way when cleaning the furniture which has been covered is to remove the linen coverings and place in a tub of water to which naphtha or borax has been added. While these additions are doing the washing for you the furniture should be taken out of doors and thoroughly brushed with a stiff brush. If the covering be durable, a beating with a rattan beater should be given.

The woodwork should be wiped off with warm water and a chambré. Paints should be cleaned, and you have no idea what an extra coat of enamel on white paint or varnish on other wood will do.

Wallpaper can be cleaned by wiping it with breadcrumbs. Art gum or kneaded rubber will do this work, as also will bread dough that has not much lard in it.

Carpets or rugs after a thorough cleaning can be brightened by wiping over the surface with water, to which ammonia has been added.

Gas globes are also brightened by a bath in soapuds and ammonia.

The curtains and other hangings are easily cleaned, and the furniture moved back. Just a hint: Change the arrangement of the chairs, and the room will seem to take a new life and an added attraction.

Then rest! One room at a time, remember. Perhaps it will take two weeks. What of it? Does not a good temper, a rested body, the knowledge of work well and thoroughly done warrant "making haste slowly"?

Try the slow and sure method this year.

For Curtain Stretchers.
Any woman who is in need of curtain stretchers and has a set of quilting frames on hand, can make them in the following way: Buy some fine wire nails one-inch size, and put a row of them along one edge of your frames as far apart as the scallops of your curtains. Then secure your frames at the corners and stretch your curtains on the small nails. After all your curtains are done, remove the nails, as they are liable to rust if left in, and it is very easy to tack nails in the old holes when next you want to use them.

Homely Hint.
Wax candles which have become dusty or soiled can be made perfectly white by rubbing them with a clean piece of flannel dipped in spirits of wine.

Appetizer Claridge.
Heat thin slices of smoked sturgeon in butter, in skillet. Serve on small slices of buttered toast.

Devilled Kidneys.
One teaspoon mustard, one salt-spoon salt, pinch of pepper, three tablespoons of oil, one teaspoon of vinegar. Mix all together; dip sliced kidneys in it and broil. After broiled dust cayenne pepper over them.

Not Locality.
"You say the man was chased by his enemies through several states. What state was he in when you saw him after their attack?"
"I should say he was in a state of collapse."

Valuable Stamp Collection.
How stamp collecting has become specialized is instanced by the sale in Paris some time ago of a collection of Swiss stamps for about $40,000.

Killed by Kick of Ostrich.
An ostrich attacked a shepherd of Stoltslake, Orange River Colony, a few days ago, and kicked him so severely that he died a few hours later.

Anient and Modern.
Even Alexander the Great had Tyro troubles.—Harvard Lectures.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Blissful, the sad, the fallen, the strength for the strife, the world's highway is cumbered to-day.

They mate up the stem of life. But the virtue that conquers passion, and the sorrow that hides in a smile, it is these that are worth the homage of earth.

For we find them but once in a while. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.
When grinding bread or cracker crumbs through the meat chopper, tie a paper bag over it; it prevents the crumbs from scattering. When the bag is full empty it into a dish and proceed as before.

Here is the way one busy mother writes to her three children away from home: By using a piece of impression paper she makes three copies of her letter, as she will say the same thing to each. Then if she wants to add a little personal note at the end of each, she does so. In this manner they all get a letter at one sitting.

A good idea for one who likes to write interesting letters is to make notes on the envelopes of unanswered letters, jotting down things from day to day that will be interesting, then when the time comes for the leisure to answer the letter, the suggestions will help, as one is so apt to often leave out the most important item of all.

A window shade which can be rolled up or down makes a good door for pantry shelves that have not been provided with doors.

Glass cut to fit a shelf, especially in a medicine closet, is a great convenience, as it is so easily kept clean. For a large dresser one may have an elaborately embroidered or trimmed cover under the glass.

To keep curtains from swinging in the wind, sew a small weight in the corner of each hem.

To keep rugs from slipping on a polished floor, sew strips of rubber on the under side of each hem.

In cleaning white enamel paint, use milk and ammonia. This mixture will not turn the enamel yellow.

COMPANY DISHES.
A most appetizing salad is the following: Rub the inside of a salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic. Put into the bowl a half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of red pepper and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Stir well, then add six tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Beat until thick. Crumble into the dressing enough Roquefort cheese to make a tablespoonful, then pour it over crisp lettuce. Serve very cold.

Baked Eggplant With Cheese.—Cut the egg plant into slices a half-inch thick, and let stand under a weight for an hour or more. Dip the pieces in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in crumbs and fry in deep fat. Make a white sauce and put the slices of egg plant in a baking dish, alternating with the white sauce and grated cheese. Use plenty of sauce and cover the top with cheese. Bake until brown.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Mushrooms.—Cut the tops from eight tomatoes and remove the seeds and soft part; then allow some of the juice to drain off, and dust the inside with salt and pepper. Add a very little onion juice and mix with the juice of the tomato. Add this juice to half a pound of fresh mushrooms, and cook slowly with a little butter. Season and fill the tomato cups with the mixture. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake.

Fried Cauliflower.—Boil cauliflower until nearly done, then drain. Separate the yolks from the whites of two eggs and mix two tablespoonfuls of flour with a little water and a dash of salt. Beat the whites until stiff and add the yolks and flour. Dip the pieces of cauliflower in the egg mixture and fry in a deep fat, draining when done. Sprinkle with salt and serve hot.

Paranip Fritters.—These are delicious. Grate enough boiled paranip to make a pint, add two beaten eggs, a pint of flour and a pint of milk, two tablespoonfuls of baking powder and a teaspoonful of salt. Fry in deep fat.

HE burden that I bear may be more.
For all I bear it silently, and slay
Sometimes to laugh and listen at a door
Where joy keeps holiday.

HE burden that I bear may be more.
For all I bear it silently, and slay
Sometimes to laugh and listen at a door
Where joy keeps holiday.

SERVING A DINNER.
Serving a dinner, like manners, cannot be done without daily practice to have things run smoothly. If the maid who serves you is allowed to do it in a careless, slipshod manner when no guests are present, she will blunder and become nervous from too much to remember when guests are present.

The daily habit of doing things as nicely as possible can always be "read by those who run."

As there is a vast majority of people who have no maid, or who hire one for an occasion, if she is well taught will follow directions easily. A maid must keep her head, move quietly and quickly, see the need and anticipate the request. A good waitress is an artist as well as a mind reader.

A long, elaborate dinner with an untrained waitress is exceedingly tiresome and no amount of wit or repartee will make it anything but a bore.

In serving, do not overload the plate. At a large dinner no one will ask for a second helping. It is always considered a tribute to the cook to ask for a second helping if such has been provided, when few guests are present.

The dishes "outside the subject," otherwise "hors d'oeuvres," come with the soup, and may be placed before the dinner is announced, which is the usual custom. These consist of such things as olives, radishes, celery and such accessories. Radishes are usually removed with the soup, but salted nuts are passed during the entire meal.

Foods that are hot should be served on hot plates, and cold foods on well chilled plates. This is something that is often entirely neglected and will spoil an otherwise delightful meal.

Those who will accept carelessly cooked and ill-served meals daily need not look for good service in time of many guests.

NOTICE OF CONTEST
 Department of the Interior,
 U. S. Land Office

Roswell, N. M., December 9, 1912.
 To E. Deschand of Oscura, N. M., Con-testee:

You are hereby notified that Tom N. Moody, who gives Oscura, N. M. as his post-office address, did on November 22, 1912, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your H. E. Serial No. 014200, made February 29, 1908, for S. E. Section 10, Twp. 9 E., Range 9 E., N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that E. Deschand is not known to any person in this vicinity, and that he has not been a resident upon said land for three years last past. There is no house on the claim nor any indication of any settlement in any manner or form.

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken by this office as having been confessed by you, and your said entry will be canceled thereunto without your further right to be heard therein, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of it is notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically meeting and responding to these allegations of contest, or if you fail within that time to file in this office due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail. If this service is made by the delivery of a copy of your answer to the contestant in person, proof of such service must be either the said contestant's written acknowledgment of his receipt of the copy, showing the date of its receipt, or the affidavit of the person by whom the delivery was made stating when and where the copy was delivered; if made by registered mail, proof of such service must consist of the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed stating when and the post office to which it was mailed, and this affidavit must be accompanied by the postmaster's receipt for the letter.

You should state in your answer the name of the post office to which you desire future notices to be sent to you.

Do you know there are almost as many Studebaker inspections as there are processes of manufacture—nothing is left to chance.

Here is shown one of the many wheel inspections that insure every Studebaker wheel being perfect. Before oil or paint is applied—before there is set, the wood material and construction must pass the watchful eye of the inspector.

You should see the Studebaker—the wagon that has passed successfully a score of inspections. Come in and let us show you.

HINGED SYSTEM OF PERCHES

Attractive to Practical Man Whose Quarters Are Limited—Folds Up Against Side of House.

In cases where quarters are somewhat limited and houses necessarily small or where the saving of time and labor is a consideration, the hinged perch shown in the accompanying illustration possesses an attraction to the practical man. As will be seen, it is so constructed that Hinged Perches.

It can be folded back against the side of the house out of the way during the daytime, thus facilitating the cleaning of the interior and for spraying to destroy insect life. Its construction is simple and fully explained in the illustration.

VENTILATION FOR HEN HOUSE

Force Draft Ventilator Built Like Revolving Stove Pipe Chimney—Top Is Illustrated.

Poultry houses are often unsatisfactory solely because they are badly ventilated. Of course, it is out of the question always to tear them down and build anew or to install the King system of ventilation, so some form of ventilation may be the best device to adopt. In the illustration is shown a force draft ventilator built like a revolving stove pipe chimney top. The wing with the arrow on top turns the top to the opening, a, always facing the wind. Some of the wind passes through this opening and out of the top at b. It thus creates a draft up the flue, c, and thus ventilates the poultry house below. The principle is the same as that used in the atomizer.

Feed Well as Feed.

Feed meal is not quite so good a feeding stuff as the average gluten feed. It contains about 1 per cent. less protein, 3 per cent. less fat and nearly three times as much fiber.

Acid Phosphate in Henhouse.

The best practice is to use acid phosphate or fosta freely in the henhouse. You can put the manure into order for drilling by thorough exposure to drying air and then pounding up and running through a coarse sieve. It is deficient in phosphoric acid, which the soil usually needs, and at least 50 pounds of a good grade of acid phosphate should be added to each 100 pounds of the dry manure. Four or five hundred pounds per acre may be the most profitable amount for your use.

Range for Chicks.

An old orchard well set in clover is an ideal range for chicks. Keep a net or tin can fastened to brood crops, which should be kept well covered with crushed corn and wheat. This will prevent chicks at any time from getting off the water they need.

Prevent the Bad Habit.

For hens that have learned to eat their own eggs a shell filled with cayenne, black or red pepper will help to break up the unfortunate habit.

PROPER CARE FOR GUINEAS

Winch Eggs Must Have Shelter and Food Same as Other Poultry—Great Danger From Pains.

(By A. J. LEGG.) The young guinea is about as tender a bird as we ever had to look after. They are of a wild nature and if one is lost from the hen in the grass it is almost useless to look for it.

The best plan is to let the hen suck it back to her brood. We usually keep the young guinea shut up for a few days after they are hatched and feed them some bread crumbs, coarse corn meal and occasionally a hard-boiled egg.

They are given water and also sweet milk to drink. After they leave the hen's call, if the day is warm and sunny, they are given free roughage. They gather bugs and worms so they need but little feeding.

The great danger is from the hard rains. If the hen does not seek shelter, the young guinea are very likely to get drowned.

We have seen young guinea so nearly drowned in a hard rain that it looked useless to bother with them, but after they were warmed up and dried they did not show any bad effects from their drowning.

After the guinea are feathered out they need but little care as they are fully able to shift for themselves, until the winter cuts off their supply of food.

In winter they must have a shelter and food the same as other poultry, but should not be let out when there is snow on the ground else they will fly into the tops of trees or alight on the tops of buildings and refuse to come down.

TROUGH FOR CHICKEN FEED

Portable Device Keeps Half-Grown Birds Out of Food and Allows Little Ones to Eat.

To keep half-grown chickens out of their feed and make it available to the smaller ones of the flock a handy portable trough may be made as shown in the illustration. It is seven inches wide and the slit across the top by which it may be carried is three inches wide, and about three inches higher than the edge of the trough. It would overbalance any chicken trying to stand in the feed.

Portable Trough.

POULTRY NOTES

A neglected cold may turn into roup.

The comb is the chicken's health indicator.

Good development before beginning to lay, is best for the pullet.

For fattening a wet mash is good, but at other times let the mash be dry.

The old hens, especially those older than two years, should be fattened and sold.

The nearer square you build a poultry house, the less the cost of construction.

Begin right for the winter season by keeping nothing but healthy laying hens.

If you have only a few bushels of corn to shell for the poultry use the zinc washboard.

The pullets which are undersized, have standard disqualification or a weak constitution, should be fattened and go to market with the cockerels.

Well managed poultry is preferable to farm crops in that poultry will produce an income at all times of the year.

Capon are quiet, grow more per pound of feed than cockerels, grow longer and bring a better price per pound.

Once a day is sufficient for chickens to be fed a mash. The remainder of the day dry grain is considered better.

The best way of disposing of surplus late hatched cockerels (too late to be sold for broilers) is as capons.

In every variety of farming, planning ahead of time is necessary, and perhaps most so in poultry husbandry.

For the geese a low shed open to the south is about all that is needed, as geese seem impervious to cold weather.

No hen is going to lay winter eggs if her system is run down, her molt not over, and she is made to scratch her own living.

Get rid of some of the roosters that are worrying the hens to no good purpose. They are deadlocks and eat up the profits of the flock.

MADE HIM SOMEWHAT TIRED

Moss Had Good Reason for Wishing to Be Rid of His Company of Sam Jackson.

"I want all account o' dat yaller gal, Seliny," explained Moss, talking with difficulty through the bandages that swathed his face.

"I goes out walking wid her and along comes dat Sam Jackson, what she's been keeping company with. Widout saying a word dat man comes over and busts me in de mouf. No sooner did I get up dan, bam! He lands on my leg year and over I goes agaln."

"After that he hit me in this year and then in the other one; and stomped on me while I was down. When I got up and began to run he followed, kicking me every yuther step."

"I never got so tired of a cullud man in all my life!"

WOMEN SHOULD NEVER USE HARSH PHYSICS

Women are especially susceptible to constipation and their more delicate organisms rebel at the violence of cathartics and purgatives. Drastic medicines like salts, mineral waters, pills and powders may afford temporary relief, but their violent action on the stomach and bowels tends to upset the entire system.

A mild laxative is far preferable and more effective. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin prescribed by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, and sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is ideal for women, being gentle in action, positive in effect and pleasant to the taste. A spoonful of Syrup Pepsin at night will bring natural relief next morning and, used regularly for a brief period, will so strengthen and tone the muscles of the stomach and bowels that there will be little, if any, further need for medicine.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be procured in any drug store. Your name and address on a postal to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 West St., Monticello, Ill., will bring a free trial bottle by return mail. Adv.

King George Superstitious.

An incident which occurred while the king was out shooting recently over the Hon. John Ward's preserves at Woolley shows that the monarch shares with many other persons the superstition about the number thirteen. The eight guns were joined at luncheon by five women of the party staying at Chilton, and the king, noticing the unlucky number would not sit down until Donald Harding, the acting agent upon the estate, was called in to make the number up to fourteen.—New York Herald.

Wireless Map.

A novelty in the way of maps has just been issued by the German imperial postoffice, which has compiled a chart showing the principal wireless telegraph stations in the world. The object is to advertise the facilities now afforded in Germany for "drahtlose" telegraphy. German stations are of course given special prominence on the map, and in this connection it is interesting to note that the station at Neuen is claimed to be the most powerful in existence, its range being 2,100 miles. This is two hundred miles more than that of Eiffel tower.

FOLEY'S HONEY and TAR For Coughs and Colds

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is searched by the scientific method for new and better things. In the past century, and among the by no means least important discoveries in medicine is that of French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, etc. There is no doubt, in fact, as to the value of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, etc. It is desirable to call attention to these questionable remedies that were formerly the only relief of these ailments. It is of course impossible to tell where all we should like to tell these in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many cures with almost any ailment, should send addressed envelope for FOLEY'S book by Dr. J. C. Foley, Co., 1145 Broadway, New York, N. Y. The book is free, and will be sent to you if you will send a stamped envelope for it. Readers of this paper desiring to buy advertising space in its columns should look upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

Every invalid woman is invited to consult our Staff of Physicians, Surgeons and Specialists, at the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., by letter or personally at my expense.—R. V. PIERCE, M. D.

I Invite Suffering Women

There is every reason why women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unskilled persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the delicate female organism. There is every reason why she should write or personally consult an experienced specialist.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For "run-down," debilitated women of all occupations is unequalled as a restorative tonic. As a soothing and strengthening nerve "Favorite Prescription" allays and subdues nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, and other distressing symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the feminine organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is devised and put up by a physician of vast experience in the treatment of women's maladies. Its ingredients have the indorsement of leading physicians in all schools of practice.

The Favorite Prescription has been sold by dealers in medicine in its liquid form for over 40 years. Now it can also be obtained in tablet form—50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce for trial box.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pills invigorates the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

Send 50 one-cent stamps to pay cost of wrapping and mailing, or on a free copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Advice, 1000 pages, cloth-bound, Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

"It Helped Me So Much."
Mrs. F. W. Stone, of Buffalo, Pa., says "I was a sufferer from the Favorite Prescription for many years. I had been told that it was a good thing, but I was too skeptical to try it. I finally decided to give it a trial, and I am glad to say that it has helped me so much. I feel better than I have in many years, and I am able to do my work again. I am sure that it will help many other women who are suffering from the same troubles as I was. I have been taking your Favorite Prescription and it has helped me so much. I feel better than I have in many years, and I am able to do my work again. I am sure that it will help many other women who are suffering from the same troubles as I was."
