ALWAYS SAFETY FIRST

Working, Talking, Thinking and Dreaming Safety First on E. P. & S. W.

TRY TO REDUCE DEATH RATE

We print below an article from Douglas issued in regard to the Safety First movement on our El Paso & Southwestern which passes through that city. Edward L. Tinker who was here recently to the Safety First meeting held at the local club room to consider measures for Safety First on this division is now over in Douglas stirring things up there along the same line. J. Ella Harrison has to say of Safety First:

We have a distinguished visitor in town, Edward L. Tinker, Safety Supervisor. For years the markets have been flooded with Safty razors, Safty pins, Safty hooks, Safties of all sorts. But our visitor is the First Safty Man, a supervisor too. With him is Safty First in all things. He has a dog he calls Safty First. His cigarettes are marked Safty First. His cigars are marked Safty First. He has a crest on his stationery. It is a big circle outer and inner edges painted yellow, ground between is black. Out of this blackness peeps his motto, his slogan, we might say his life thought, in bright yellow letters Safty First. Now a Safty First man with all of this paraphernalia, who thinks Safty First and talks Safty First, must be attached to something—for he works hard at Safty First.

I heard of Safty First, while talking with a charming little Cochise county girl, who in the days now gone, charmed us with her skillful manipulation of the piano keys. El Paso stole her—but El Paso don't know what a splendid girl and musician she took from Cochise county. We sat chatting in the lobby of the Gadsden hotel, so named for the man who brought the strip across the southern portion of our country from Mexican government, when a tall man came in at the door, arms full of papers and things. There is the man I want you to meet—its Safty First, though I will introduce him by the name he brought out of New York with him, and the one he is known by all over the world where he has traveled, until he got into Arizona, Edward L. Tinker. If he remembers his name was Tinker, he has forgotten it, because he thinks and talks Safty First. Sure as night, he begun talking Safty First. He showed me the little crest I had heard about. There was the thing I had wondered about, the little bar reaching from side to side of the circle, about it was the yellow edges, with the black ground, inside in bright yellow letters were some mystics, known all over the southwest. They said that Safty First was working, talking, thinking and dreaming of Safty First for a purpose. The mystics were E. P. & S. W. on the little bar. Our very own El Paso and Southwestern railroad were letting Safty First talk to their men employed all over their system and right here in Douglas to think of Safty First.

In all their work for this road to think of Safty First, and do it so as not to get hurt nor to hurt any one. If they are on duty to use every precaution to see that things are put away or so adjusted the next fellow coming along won't get hurt by your carelessness.

To lookout for yourself and for your fellow man is Safty First. To lookout for the passengers who patronize your road is Safty First. It's Safty First to lookout for the poor devil who takes chances in riding on the top of a car, or on the bumpers—its up to each one to see that all is Safty First. The El Paso and Southwestern which runs into Douglas, thus helping to open up this great southwest, does not want to add a man to the 35,000 who are killed every year in the industrial work of our country. Last March they found Safty First, just the man for the work, and put him to talking to their employees about being careful, and to be sure that everything about their work was Safty First. Here in Douglas he has talked to the yard men, to the section men, telling them how the big roads in the east were so sorry to loose so many men, and how all the roads of the country were so anxious to cut down the percentage of men killed by carelessness, that they began over a year ago to show their employees that if they were always very careful to see that all was safe it would lessen the number killed. In one year the Pennsylvania road, that great system that threads the east, saved fifty per cent of their men because they were putting Safty First. Not content to get the railroad men into line as members of his Safty First Club, our Safty First man went out to the two big smelters telling the men to keep the thought of saving their lives in the mind at all times. These chance-takers were only too glad to become members of Safty First Clubs. But even this work did not satisfy Safty First. It was well to have the trainmen and the smelter men members, but what of the little kiddies. The little fellows who hopped the trains. The little fellows who never gets a ride unless they steal it. They so love to feel the motion of the train. But when Safty First told a bunch of them about the little kiddies who lost their arms and legs, showing them pictures of kiddies who had hopped trains, and slipped and fell, getting arms or legs cut off, not any bigger than themselves—and how they must be cripples all their lives, they wanted to promise him that they would not, so never again hop a train.

Why, we like our legs and arms, we want to work, and if we get them cut off, we will only be useless and suffering boys, we promise never to hop trains, so they have a Safty First Club too. Douglas is only one spot in this splendid state. Safty First means to get all the men and boys to think of Safty First, so we won't loose any of our men and boys, for we want them all, but we want them whole, not cripples.

A story is going the rounds of the papers about the funeral of the editor of a country paper about like this: The editor had worked hard to build up his community and better the conditions of his home town. He died a poor man, but his funeral was attended by a large crowd. In the procession were 672 delinquent subscribers and each of them pityingly remarked: "He was a good man, but never could make any money."

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

News of Interest of our Town People and Outsiders Visiting our Midst

GATHERED DURING WEEK

—Attorney L. R. York of Capitan was down Wednesday on business.

—Eugene F. Jones and Dr. Guido Ranniger were up from Oscura Thursday.

—Clyde Chamberlain is here from Clouderoft for a few days' visit with Bryan Tinnon.

—Milton L. Johns of Santa Rosa spent Monday and Tuesday in Carrizozo on business.

—The Editor and family left this morning for a two days' fishing trip.

—Miss Paulita Baldonado returned Thursday from Lincoln, after a week's visit with relatives and friends.

—Mrs. Georgia Lenot who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Geo. J. Dingwall in El Paso the past week will return home Sunday.

—Mrs. Fite who has been visiting her brother, Henry West, east of Carrizozo has returned to her home in Clouderoft.

—Mrs. P. W. Tapp of Alamogordo arrived Wednesday and will spend several weeks here visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Harry B. Dawson.

—Mrs. Miles B. Foreman in company with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Moore of Nogal left this week for Palomas Spring where they will spend a few weeks.

—The Road Viewers appointed by the County Commissioners to view a road from Carrizozo to Corona immediately along the right-of-way consisting of A. J. Rolland, Lee B. Chase and R. E. P. Warden left Saturday morning and made a careful log of the road and will report to the County Commissioners on Monday.

—Several automobiles filled with young Carrizozo people attended the dance at White Oaks last Friday evening. An accident was narrowly avoided in the canyon when Al. Smith, driving the little EMF met a team in the narrow part of the canyon. By driving straight into the rocks to the side a collision was avoided. The car suffered a brokoa wheel. None of the occupants were seriously injured.

OSCURO OBSERVING

Jas. Harper and family were in town this week in their machine.

Dr. Ranniger and Willie McCallum were visitors to Carrizozo Tuesday.

Allie Jackson returned Monday from Kansas City, where he had been for a couple of weeks.

Dr. Guido Ranniger is building an engine house on his claim near here.

Mrs. Fred Roberts and children has left for Alamogordo where she will visit Captain and Mrs. D. W. Roberts at their home in that city.

There will be a fine dance at the Ashfords on Saturday, August 9th. Friends and acquaintances cordially invited to attend.

Fred Roberts will drive his horses to Tularosa where he will pasture them for a short time before placing them on the El Paso market.

TOMLINSON—BAREFOOT

On Tuesday afternoon July 29th, at 5 o'clock, Mr. Alva Tomlinson and Miss Nancy B. Barefoot were married at the home of the bride's mother near Carrizozo. Only a few intimate friends of the family were present. Rev. J. W. Campbell, of Carrizozo, was the officiating minister. Immediately after the marriage, a wedding dinner was served. The bride was the recipient of several handsome wedding presents. On Wednesday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson left on train No. 33 for El Paso and other points. After their return next week, they will reside on the ranch of Mr. Tomlinson south of the city.

The bride is a daughter of Rev. Isaac D. Barefoot, a minister of the Baptist Church, who died in Texas some years ago. She came to New Mexico from Big Springs, Texas three years ago, and has lived with her mother, Mrs. Mary L. Millican, on a ranch near Carrizozo. She is a young lady of many accomplishments and is very popular in this vicinity. Mr. Tomlinson is a native of the Lone Star State, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Tomlinson, Fluvanna, Texas. He has been a resident of New Mexico for three years, and at present is an employe of the E. P. & S. W. Railway at Carrizozo. He is one of the deserving young men of this county, is a member of the Masonic Fraternity and has many friends in Carrizozo and Lincoln County.

Those invited to the marriage were: Mrs. Mary L. Millican, Miss Martha Barefoot, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Orr, Dr. R. C. Burton and wife, Marvin Burton, William Wentworth and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Campbell.

The Outlook extends congratulations to the couple and wish them success on life's voyage

A BIG DAY FOR THE CHILDREN

On last Thursday, the Methodist Sunday School of Carrizozo, had an "Old Fashion" picnic at the Bar W. Ranch, two miles north of the city. At nine o'clock, the children were loaded on drays and the trip to the woods commenced. There were at least 130 present at the picnic grounds, and there were baskets of all sizes and shapes, that were filled with "good things" for the dinner. Besides the baskets there were gallons of ice cream that was enjoyed by the little folk.

Swings put in place early in the day were kept going until late in the afternoon. Several persons who had autos took a day off, and hauled persons back and forth from the grounds. In the grove there is a fine spring of cold water, and the splendid trees afforded shade for the crowd. Much credit is due to Mr. Tarball, who arranged the swings, cleaned the park, and by his presence helped to make the day a happy one for the children. Too much praise cannot be given the ladies of the city, who did everything possible to make the affair a success. Everybody took a day off and left care and worry at home. The shouts of laughter that were heard from the swings, the games and the foot races would convince any one that the day was a "howling" success.

CARRIZOZO 26 ANCHO 3

The Ancho Boys journeyed down last Sunday met the local team on the home grounds and went down to defeat by a score of 26 to 3. The game was easily Carrizozo's from the start and at no time during the contest did the Ancho team have an opportunity to win the game. Roy Grumbles and Nickler, Morgan Riley and Bryan Tinnon were the batteries for Carrizozo. Miley and Starley did the work for Ancho.

LINCOLN COUNTY NOTES

News of Week from Around Lincoln County Briefly Told

JICARILLA NOTES

It is reported that Tommy Montoya is seriously ill and grave doubts are entertained of ultimate recovery.

Mess. Stanley and Lyde, representing capitalists in Oklahoma City arrived in Jicarilla on the 26th. They are looking over the situation with a view of entering into the activity of the camp.

The Rev. Burnett delivered a splendid sermon at the Jicarilla school house Sunday July 27th. The meeting was largely attended and very much enjoyed by the people of this community.

A basket picnic will be held at Jicarilla on Saturday, August 10th, to which all the people of Lincoln County, are invited. A stew and bread sufficient for all will be on hand, however, bring your baskets and have a time of your life. Plenty of water free for man and beast, also good music and dancing.

Work is progressing rapidly on the Sallie Dear mine and by the time this news is published, the mill will be in full operation. The drift on the Sallie extends nearly 200 feet into the side of Juggler mountain, and the main shaft will be sunk another hundred feet in depth, the work to be commenced at once.

NOGAL NOTES

W. J. Moore and wife have left for Palomas Hot Springs.

Henry Emerson and little son have left for the Mogollon mountains.

Green Corn is about ready for market in Uncle Tom's garden.

Mrs. Flen. E. Bigham, of Capitan, and children were visitors at Nogal Sunday.

Mrs. Gertrude Dillard and children with her brother, Dewitt Forbes left Friday for Arizona.

Harry Henly and family are visiting their sisters, Mrs. Branum and Cooper this week.

Nogal was visited by a fine rain on Monday of this week and it was sure welcome.

School is progressing nicely and the Trustees contemplates a continuance all this fall and winter.

The Nogal hill road has been favored with a new dressing and is much improved.

Rev. F. W. Campbell, of Carrizozo, will occupy the pulpit at the Henley chapel in Nogal on the second Sunday in August both morning and evening. Everyone will bring their basket dinners and there will be some fine singing in the afternoon. Carrizozo folks are especially welcome.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION

An extra examination for all grades of certificates for teachers will be held in Carrizozo, August 22-23. Any person wishing to avail himself of this examination kindly communicate with, Mrs. Wallace L. Gumm, Lincoln County School Superintendent. et.

CARRIZOZO VS CAPITAN SUNDAY

Next Sunday one of the best baseball games of the season is scheduled to be played on the local grounds when the Capitan team will meet the Carrizozo Browns. The rivalry between the two teams has been keen throughout the season and Manager Rolland of the Browns expects to pull off a very interesting contest.

HANDY SOLDER OUTFIT

Kit Will Prove Profitable to All Practical Farmers.

No Investment Can Be Made That Will Pay Percentage of Profit—Best for Beginner to Make His Start With Wire.

(By E. B. TUTTLE.)

There is probably no investment the farmer can make that will pay the percentage of profit that a soldering kit will. Reduced to its lowest terms a coffer can be bought for 25 cents, acid 5 cents, solder wire 10 cents.

It will be better, however, to buy two coffers, one and one-half or three-quarter pounds each, which should not cost more than 75 cents per pair. Using two one can be heating while the other is in use.

The acid is muriatic in which dissolve a little zinc. For the beginner probably it will be found handier to use the solder in the form of a wire, though later a bar will be found to be convenient.

Having secured the outfit the first thing is to "tin" the point. To do this file the beveled surfaces down bright and heat in the stove (gas, gasoline, wood or coal) until it is hot enough to melt the solder.

Then with a small, flat stick smear the surfaces with the acid and rub the end of the solder over them.

If it does not melt freely get the coffer hotter. After tinning the point try not to get it so hot it will burn off; in case you do, however, retin by the same process.

If the tinning is not on the solder will not pick up solder nor melt it freely.

For a starter let us try a leaky pan. Sandpaper, or scrape clean around the hole and smear with acid. Take the coffer properly heated and set the point on the hole, applying the solder. Watch and see it run freely (you can tell at once if it fuses properly) and remove the coffer.

If the coffer gets cold take the other one which should also be in the fire. The work may be done equally well inside the pan.

If the hole is too large cut a small piece of tin and put over the hole, having first used the acid on both patch and pan. Put the coffer on top of the patch and when sufficiently hot run the end of the solder wire around the patch. It should melt readily. Hold down with the coffer or stick until the solder runs.

This briefly, is the problem of soldering. Other applications will be readily solved once one is familiar with the tools.

Most metals can be soldered, not, however, cast iron or aluminum. In the case of galvanized iron or zinc, use muriatic acid straight. As more skill is acquired you will be able to pick up solder on the point of the coffer when you can buy solder by the bar.

Protect From Flies.

Remember that it takes as much energy and feed to fight flies as it does to grow a calf. Then will it not pay to cut out the flies by giving the calves access to a dark stable or shed, and also apply a little "fly dope."

You may rest assured that they will grow and lay on flesh twice as fast from now on if they are afforded a means of thus protecting themselves than they otherwise could possibly do.

Technical Terms.

It is common to call all poultry chickens, but strictly speaking a chicken is a young fowl generally under six months of age, and fowl is one over that age. On the same basis a young male under one year of age or a young female of the same age are known as cockerel and pullet, respectively. They become cock and hen after that age.

Best Time to Sell.

It is generally conceded that the best time to sell chickens is from the first of January to the first of November. Every one seems to want to sell during November and December, and consequently the market is always overstocked at that time.

Sprague says if possible chickens should be marketed before the first of November, and if not they should be held until after the holiday in order that the best prices may be secured. This of course refers only to sending to an open market, and does not apply to any private custom.

Keep Good Laying Hen.

A good laying hen should never be sacrificed so long as she can be used for breeding purposes and the selection of such hens for breeders would soon result in the improvement of the stock.

Bad Practitioner.

Too much feeding in a young pig is sure to cause a breaking down in the feet, and too free a use of corn is apt to produce the same result.

HOUDAN FOWL IS ECONOMIC

Not Only Is It Excellent Table Breed, but Is Also Good Layer of Eggs and Non-sitter.

Of all the French breeds the Houdan is undoubtedly the most economic. Not only is it a good table breed when judged by the quality of its flesh, but it is an excellent layer of good sized white eggs, and is a non-sitter. Newer breeds of fowls which have been introduced during recent years have rather overshadowed it, but few if any of these can lay claim to superiority over it in utility points.

No doubt the credit had much to do with the decline suffered by the Houdan, many poultry keepers not caring for crested fowls, owing to the fact that in wet weather the head ornaments got saturated and caused colds among the birds, but a little consideration for them in the way of shelter during periods of rain would have minimized any prejudice against them concerning wet crests and colds.

When the Houdan stood high in popular favor there were fewer or no scratching-sheds in existence, and they either had to face the weather when such was inclement, or idle about the interior of the roosting house, and no wonder many birds, and especially the crested ones, often got saturated with rain and caught cold and contracted roup. Today every well arranged poultry yard has its scratching-sheds or day shelters to which the fowls can resort in bad weather, and on that account the Houdan might be given a better position than it now occupies among utility poultry.

The crest of the Houdan is an advantage rather than a disadvantage, inasmuch as it guards the head of the bird against the severest frost during the winter time, and thus it improves the fowl as a winter layer. Rightly bred, fed and sheltered the Houdan is a good winter egg producer.

TO DESTROY NOXIOUS WEEDS

Success of Rotation of Cultivated Crops Depends Entirely Upon Persistence of Cultivation.

A good system of rotation, that includes cultivated crops, offers the best means of combating the common weeds; but its success is almost entirely dependent upon the manner and persistency with which the soil is cultivated. To insure reasonable success, the disk and the harrow should be used frequently while the weeds are still small, and the crops while growing should be given frequent cultivation.

Fortunately, the same tillage operations that are used in putting the soil in a condition to receive and conserve rainfall, to prepare the seed-bed and to liberate plant food, are likewise useful in combating weeds.

Valuable Weed Eradicator.

Probably no animal is so valuable as a weed eradicator as the sheep. They not only eat a large variety of weeds and grasses, but they masticate so thoroughly that almost all the seeds are destroyed or digested, and do not sprout from the manure.

To Avoid the Runt Pig.

Runt pigs stand a poor show at the feeding trough with a bunch of their husky brothers and sisters. As they are crowded out of place naturally they do not get enough to eat to keep them growing, and they stay runt.

A trough arranged with V-shaped partitions set strongly in the trough would give the little fellows an equal show with the big ones, and the weaker ones would get their share of food. A handy man can make such a trough arrangement in an hour or so, and even the growth of his pigs would more than pay for his trouble.

Dehorning Calves.

It is all right to dehorn calves as soon as the button starts, either with caustic potash or any of the prepared dehorning compounds.

How to Discard.

If the sow is in the habit of losing her litter, it is the height of folly to continue breeding her, as she has some inherited ailment.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN

ENJOYABLE PARTIES THAT MAY BE EARLY ARRANGED.

Much Liked Affair Has Toys as Its Chief Motif—Brown Paper and Fairy Entertainments Never Grow Stale.

Many hostesses are harassed by the thought of having to provide "something quite new"—something which, without being excessively elaborate and provide a pleasant surprise for both young and old.

For children and grown-ups a toy party is a very enjoyable affair. Each guest is asked to bring with them a toy. It may be homemade or bought, but anyway the cost must not exceed a sum fixed by the hostess.

The toys are all arranged on a table and each guest votes for the most original and the most unoriginal—barring always their own contribution. The donors of the two respective toys receiving most votes each gets a prize, and the whole of the toys are sent to a hospital or some poor children in the name of the whole party.

A brown paper party is also good fun. The guests all wear costumes contrived from brown paper. With a little skill some wonderfully good dresses can be arranged. B'fer rabbit, Eskimo, red Indian, prairie girl, cowboy—there are a few of the most obvious suggestions.

For children a fairy party is very attractive. The room should be cleared of ordinary furniture and transformed into a fairy palace. Some painted cardboard, tree branches, tin-ware, flowers and twinkling lights skillfully arranged will effect a most realistic transformation.

The invitations should be sent out in the names of the fairies, and the little guests should come as fairies of every clime, and—if liked—characters of well known fairy-tales.

In similar way it is possible to give a witch party in a magic cave or a Dutch party in a Dutch interior, while forethought will suggest other ideas equally attractive and easy to carry through successfully.

When presents are given at a children's party the following novel idea will be found an attractive method of distribution: Cut a cake into slices and on the outside of each slice fasten a present with the name of the intended recipient on a little flag stuck in the top of each piece. Place the slices in position again and tie the cake around with a broad ribbon to keep it in shape.

PARASOLS TO SUIT THE HAT

Season's Styles Especially Designed With a View to Millinery Just Now Most Popular.

Parasols are made this year to accommodate the modish small hat on the top of the head, and the big shade hat which will not be discarded. The steep sided parasol illustrated is hardly larger than the hat the large parasol is meant to shade.

The little parasol of black and white stripes is especially suitable to carry with the street frock. Black and white parasols can be carried with white, black and white or any color combination.

The big parasol with blunt tip is suggestive of the paper sunshade of Japan. The square, light handle and the rose fastened smartly on the edge of the parasol are interesting features.

This sort of sunshade will be carried a great deal at the seashore. It gives protection, which the smaller parasols do not give, to the hairless head.

New Effects in Waists.

Plain and fancy crepe waists have the body of the waist and the sleeves made of the plain material, while the trimmings are of the fancy weave. Another combination is white crepe and colored voile, the voile supplying the trimming effects of the waist. Organza and marquisettes in new open patterns are used with plain voiles.

The lace neck ruffe, standing upright at the back and falling softly away from the neck at the front, is a favored fashion in neckwear.

ARRANGING REAL REST ROOM

Apartment That Will Be Appreciated at All Times by the Women of the Household.

There are many women who go through life without a dressing room, but there are few who do not long for one. And even when the limited space of a house makes it impossible for the women of the household to have individual boudoirs, there is often one upstairs room which could be made into a sitting room or dressing room for their collective use.

It could be supplied with a comfortable couch, where breakfast or other meals could be taken by any one tired or ill, with comfortable chairs for lounging and resting, with good light and a book shelf for magazines and books, with a writing table or desk, with a well stocked work table, a sewing machine, if it is to be used also as a sewing room, and a pier glass.

It could hardly be equipped with a row of dressing tables, one for each daughter or cousin or aunt or mother, who used it, as these would make it crowded, so the actual dressing would still have to be done in bedrooms. But it would prove a haven where its collective owners could go for help and advice, to see whether their dresses were on as they should be, to "get hooked up," to rest and read and get away from the tediousness of the bedroom when illness kept them upstairs.

WALKING SUIT.

Suit of pink charmeuse veiled completely by alternating black and white lace, which is fastened in front by straight bows in the color of the underskirt.

ODDITY IN NEW SUNSHADE

Long Handles of Velvet Give Distinctive Appearance to the Parasols Introduced From France.

One of the oddities in the new French sunshades is that they have handles of velvet. These are exceedingly long, after the manner of those used in the Directorate days, and therefore the velvet is quite conspicuous. If it is in a different color from the parasol itself. Vivid colors are omitted, but black and white is used a great deal.

The sunshade itself is not small; on the contrary it is quite large, for these accessories are evidently intended to really keep the sun from the head; although the majority of women will use them folded, more as an ornamental staff than anything else.

Already the picturesque women who arrive at a full knowledge of their physical possibilities and limitations and who, therefore, dress with individuality, are securing the longest handled parasols and using them as a means of posturing a la Tosca—you remember the way all the Toscas of the stage have stood with two fingers resting on the knob of a long ivory staff twined with roses.

The new cotton dresses, trimmed with vividly tinted embroidery, are particularly successful.

Field "Dodder."

the rose fastened smartly on the edge of the parasol are interesting features.

BAD ROADS DID IT

A farmer old, as you've been told
With a team of horses strong
Drove down the road with a heavy load,
While singing his merry song.
But his mirth in song was not so long
For his horses gave a leap
As he ran amuck in the mud he stuck
Clear up to his axles deep.
Bad roads did it!

And a wheelman gay went out one day
For a joyful morning spin.
With the weather bright, his heart was light
As he left the country inn.
But he went not far when he felt a jar
Which started his troubles and cares
He was laid up ill, while the doctor's bill
Came in with the one for repairs.
Bad roads did it!

In an automobile of wood and steel
A millionaire prim and neat
Went out for a ride by the river's side
In style that was hard to beat.
But, alas, he found that the broken ground
Had smashed a wheel of his automobile.
What he said we cannot relate.
Bad roads did it!
—Harry Filard in Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Developing the brain is said to make weak bodies. If this is true there should be a tremendous number of physically perfect people.

It is not usually wise to do things on the spur of the moment, but we do not wish to advise too severely against such kinds of action for fear of keeping some folks from doing anything.

If perchance, a copy of this paper should fall into the hands of any who are in search of a new location—a place where you can live out your allotted number of years without the fear of pestilence or famine, we say, like one of old, "Come thou with us and we will do you good," with emphasis on the "do."

Don't be a chump. Give your trade to the merchant who keeps starn the year round. Buy of the man who stands at your side at the tax collector's counter. Buy of the man who is a factor in the town you live in, who helps to make a market for the things you have to sell. Buy of the home merchant that advertises in the local newspapers.

CORONA CLIPPINGS

WHITE OAKS WHIFFS

The dance given by the ladies' club at their new quarters here last Friday night was a very pleasant affair, so say all who attend, and there will be more to follow.

N. S. Wilson arrived a few days ago in this cool mountain resort from off the burning sands of Arizona and will do assay work for the cyanide plant at the Wild Cat mill.

John Y. Hewitt came over to his office Wednesday evening, the first time in five weeks or more. His friends gave him the glad hand so heartily that he was soon compelled to slip back to his room at the Watson residence.

Miss L. Grace Nicholas, who taught school here last year up to the holidays and resign to accept the position of musical instructor in the State Blind Asylum at Gooding, Idaho, is enjoying her vacation here, stopping at the home of Mrs. John A. Brown. She is engaged for this work another year but rumor has not yet hinted at any other engagements.

A. H. Hudspeth, who now keeps his automobile eye focused for government offenders came in a few days ago to transact a little pressing business left over from the old firm of Hewitt & Hudspeth. His old partner, John Y. Hewitt, not having sufficiently recovered from his aches and pains to hold down the office alone.

The baseball boys haven't yet got through telling how it was done down at Fort Stanton last Sunday. The score—2 to 4 in favor of the local team shows that there was some ball playing by both sides. The best part of it was that it was civil and clean all the way through. Even the umpire was not put through the usual barbecue stunt so common during games of late. A return game by these two teams would be quite an attraction for the town securing it.

Ed Reid, of San Antonio, New Mexico, has been stopping for a few days the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Queen. Mr. Reid formerly was connected with the Hilton Mercantile Company at San Antonio, and used to look after the shipment of freight from there over the Oscura mountains to White Oaks before the advent of the railroad up through the Carrizozo flats. He is now water-witching with a gasoline engine and drill over a large region of country hereabouts. A young son of Frank Lloyd former superintendent of the North Homestead mine under Sigafus and Bird, accompanied Mr. Reid. The young man was born in White Oaks but has not seen the place since childhood.

Miss Frida Eckman, after a two weeks visit, the guest of Mrs. Lee H. Rudiselle left here Monday evening for Carrizozo. Miss Eckman has been holding down a very responsible position in the county recorder's office at El Paso for a year or more and is taking her annual vacation. She will resume her duties there next Monday. While here a large, gray Wolf broke into the sheepfold during the absence of the former shepherd and gobbled up an innocent little lamb, but he appeared to be a very tame kind of Wolf, bent on amusement rather than gore and after sporting for a season allowed the lamb to skip back to the fold unmolested.

Harry Williams died at his home here last Friday. He had been away for several months for treatment but found no relief and came back home when he passed away a short time afterward. Harry had been a great sufferer for years and death came as a relief.

Mrs. Williams wishes your correspondent to express her heartfelt gratitude to the people of White Oaks for their brotherly kindness and timely aid during the illness of and after the death of her husband, without which she feels that she could not borne her great affliction. She will always treasure these acts of kindness in grateful remembrance.

PARSONS PICKINGS

Mr. B. R. Robinson has gone to Three Rivers on business.

Richard and Roy Copeland spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Luster Greer is spending a few days visiting in Carrizozo.

Miss Helen Pfingsten was a Sunday visitor to Parsons.

Mrs. W. G. Wells has gone to Angus on an extensive visit with friends.

Mrs. Luther Jennings and children were the guests of Mrs. T. J. Grafton and family Sunday.

Mrs. Gid Thorpe, recently of Angus, who has been visiting Miss Emma Grafton, has returned home.

Mao and Jack Brazil are here from their ranch visiting the Jennings boys.

Gid Thorpe spent the week end here as a guest at the Grafton home. He returned with Mrs. Thorpe to Angus Sunday.

Luther Jennings has returned from the San Andres where he has been visiting G. B. Greer for the past week.

A good shower which fell here Monday was much appreciated by the people here whose crops were suffering for the want of rain.

Tommie Jennings has returned from the San Andres mountains when he has been with Luster Greer.

Wilfred Dupuis, W. G. Wells and Sam Howell are doing some assessment work on the Turkey Creek property.

Mr. Ed. Kellar and daughter, Miss Hilda Kellar passed through town one day this week and stopped long enough to say "How'dy do."

FORT STANTON NOTES

Oscar Brockwell, our laundry expert, is on the sick list.

Miss Palmer of White Oaks attended the game at the Fort and is 'some' rooter for the home team.

Several machines loaded with enthusiasts accompanied the White Oaks team here Sunday.

Lee Luttrell and J. Richards gave a well attended dance in the hall Saturday evening.

Miss Evelne Kensingler of Roswell and Miss Edith Coe have been visiting Miss Ethel Phillips during the past week.

Angus McMasters has received his typewriter and is now ready for public business as a stenographer.

Sunday saw the best base ball game of the season between Fort Stanton and White Oaks which was won by the Oaks by a score of 4 to 2. The game was featured by the clever base running of Norman and Richards both of whom stole home. The game was a pitchers' battle between Grover Hightower and Willie Gallacher, Hightower striking out 16 men and not passing a single man while Gallacher struck out 10 and allowing one to walk to first.

AN ATTRACTIVE WINDOW.

In the window of Kelley & Sons is a strikingly attractive display that is drawing the attention of many passersby. A fine showing of Remington U M C arms and ammunition is flanked on either side by life-sized reproductions of the familiar Remington U M C bear cubs, and the cubs are armed to the teeth with Remington U M C guns which they hold in their paws. These clever little cubs, so faithfully reproduced in Kelley's windows, are famous in all civilized countries through the medium of Remington U M C advertising. They were recently exhibited in real life at the Madison Square Garden Sportmen's Show, New York City, where their playful pranks amused the thousands who attended the big indoor meet.

There is a lesson for the student of history in the exhibit of modern arms and ammunition presided over by the watchful cubs. It is a far cry from the first crude "Remington" rifle hammered out on Eliphalet Remington's anvil at Ilion, N. Y., in 1816 to the Remington U M C Autoloading Rifle, for instance, which lets go five one-ton-blow shots at the command of the trigger finger and is said by authorities to be "the best hunting weapon ever produced." Then, too, a century ago, the lead ball pouch and the powder horn were the generally accepted ammunition equipment today, the "speed shell" and the highly perfected metallic cartridge, constituting a family of seven to eight thousand different styles and "loads" are offered in connection with the twentieth century arm. It will pay any citizen to look in at the new guns and the shell and cartridges that are shown with them.—Adv.

NOTICE OF CONTEST

Department of the Interior,
United States Land Office.

Las Cruces, N. M.

July 23, 1913.

To John T. Beckman of Osuro, N. M. Contestee:

You are hereby notified that Charles F. Grey who gives Osuro, N. M., as his post-office address, did on July 23, 1913, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your homestead Entry No. 03521, Serial No. 03521 made Sept. 4, 1909, for NW 1/4 Section 1, Township 10-S, Range 8 E, N. M. P. Meridian, and all grounds for his contest he alleges that said Jones T. Beckman did about the month of September 1912, leave this claim, and had not up to the present time been on the place, nor has any one else lived on the place for the last year, nor has there been any improvements put on the land for the past year, and no land put in cultivation.

You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken by this office as having been confessed by you, and your said entry will be canceled thereunder without your further right to be heard therein, either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the fourth publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically meeting and responding to these allegations of contest, or if you fail within that time to file in this office due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on said contestant either in person or by registered mail. If this service is made by the delivery of a copy of your answer to the contestant in person, proof of such service must be either the said contestant's written acknowledgment of his receipt of the copy, showing the date of its receipt, or the affidavit of the person by whom the delivery was made stating when and where the copy was delivered; if made by registered mail, proof of such service must consist of the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed stating when and the post office to which it was mailed, and this affidavit must be accompanied by the postmaster's receipt for the letter.

You should state in your answer the name of the post office to which you desire future notices to be sent to you.

BIBLE STUDY ON LESSONS LEARNED BY JOSEPH'S BRETHREN.

Genesis 44—June 1.

"Confess therefore your sins one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed."—James 5:16. R. V.

TODAY'S lesson shows that Joseph's experiences, mixed with faith, worked out for him a grand character, wholly obedient to God. But by a different process, Joseph's brethren were exercised by remorse, and became more sympathetic, more brotherly-kind, more loyal to their father Jacob. Like's experiences are intended, under Divine supervision, to be corrective and helpful. Confidence in God, however, is necessary as a basis for any such blessing.

After the feast in which Joseph had given Benjamin five portions, the brethren departed for home, well pleased with their experiences. Joseph, however, desired to test their sympathy for their father and their loving interest in Benjamin. Therefore he caused his silver cup to be placed in Benjamin's sack of wheat. After the brethren had gotten fairly started homeward, Joseph sent servants to demand his cup.

The brethren professed their innocence, and declared that if the cup were found in their possession, they would willingly become slaves. The search was made, and the cup found. In great distress the company wended its way back to the palace.

Again Joseph was austere and reproved them, that they might have opportunity to abandon Benjamin. Protesting innocence, they declared their willingness to become Joseph's slaves. But he answered that only the guilty one—Benjamin—should become his slave, and that the rest should return home, and continue to enjoy the favors of Egypt. This proposition he knew would test them. Had they the same heartlessness that they had exhibited when they sold him into slavery?

Then Judah, who had pledged himself that Benjamin should return in safety, made an eloquent appeal, and entreated that he be accepted as a slave in Benjamin's stead. He ended with the question, "How shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest I see the evil that shall befall my father."

The evidence of a change of heart was satisfactory to Joseph, and is to us all. Those who love righteousness rejoice in righteousness, as those who love sin rejoice in it. When we perceive so marked a change in those men, we rejoice, not only for their sakes, but also at the general lesson furnished. The conviction is borne in upon us that much of the sin, the meanness, the cruelty of today may be attributed to inherited weaknesses and immature experience. We say, "How great a change would probably be effected by a broader, deeper knowledge of ourselves and others!"

And do not life's daily experiences tend to give us the broadening of sympathies, and thus character-development? Doubtless there are exceptions to every rule, but it is our conviction that a sufficiency of the likeness of God remains in every member of our race to permit him at times to appreciate the good, the noble, the pure. It is because he is surrounded by sin and selfishness that these godlike sentiments are so rarely brought into exercise.

When Will Men Profit?

Some will say, "Admitting that life's trials teach men the shiftness of sin and the wisdom of righteousness, where would be the profit of such instruction if only the saintly, who walk in Jesus' footsteps under a covenant of self-sacrifice, are to share in the Kingdom? How will the remainder of the race profit by their experiences, if death ends all hope?"

The answer is that we have made a mistake respecting the teachings of the Bible. The Scriptures nowhere say that all hope of salvation ends when we fall asleep in death. So far as the Church is concerned, it is true that death ends their probation. But this is not true concerning the world. The Church alone is now on trial. The world's trial time will be in the next Age.

Christ's Reign will be the great thousand-year Day, in which will be determined the worthiness or unworthiness of everlasting life of all humanity. These sound words will eventually be perfected, and granted the Divine blessing of everlasting life. All men found unworthy will be condemned as such for life, and sent to the Second Day.

SYNOPSIS.

Major McDonald, commanding an army post near Fort Dodge, sends a man to intercept his daughter, Molly, who is headed for the post. An Indian outbreak is threatened. "Brick" Hamlin, a sergeant who had just arrived with messengers to McDonald, volunteers for the mission and starts alone. Molly arrives at Fort Hopley two days ahead of schedule.

"Good Lord, miss," he exclaimed swiftly. "Do yer mean to say yer's goin' to make that trip alone?"
"Oh, not to Santa Fe; only as far as the stage station at the Arkansas crossing," she exclaimed hastily. "I am going to join my father; he commands a post on the Cimarron—Major McDonald."

"Well, I'll be damned," said the man slowly, so surprised that he forgot himself. "Dabber in the wilderness; what, in Heaven's name, ever induced yer dad to let yer come on such a fool trip? Isn't thar no one to meet yer here, or at Dodge?"

"I—I don't know," she confessed. "Father was going to come, or else send one of his officers, but I have seen no one. I am here two days earlier than was expected, and—I haven't heard from my father since last month. See, this is his last letter; won't yer read it, please, and tell me what I ought to do?"

The man took the letter, and read the three pages carefully, and then turned back to note the date, before handing the sheets across the table.

"The Major sure made his instructions plain enough," he said slowly. "And yer haven't heard from him since, or seen any one he sent to meet yer?"

The girl shook her head slowly. "Well, that ain't to be wondered at, either," he went on. "Things has changed some out yere since that letter was wrote. I reckon yer know we're havin' a bit o' Injun trouble, an' yer dad is shore to be pretty busy out thar on the Cimarron."

"I—I do not think I do. I have seen no papers since leaving St. Louis. Is the situation really serious? Is it unsafe for me to go farther?"

The man rubbed his chin, as though undecided what was best to say. But the girl's face was full of character, and he answered frankly.

"It's serious 'nough, I reckon, an' I certainly wish I was safe through to Fort Marcy, but I don't know no reason now why yer couldn't finish up your trip all right. I was out to the fort last evenin' gettin' the latest news, an' thar hasn't been no trouble to speak of east of old Bent's Fort. Between thar and Union, thar's a bunch o' Mescalero Apaches raisin' thunder. One lot got as far as the Caches, an' burned a wagon train, but werd run back into the moun'tns. Troops are out along both sides the Valley, an' thar ain't been no stage hold up, nor station attacked along the Arkansas. I reckon yer dad'll have an escort waitin' at the crossin'."

"Of course he will; what I am most afraid of is that I might miss him or his messenger on the route."

"Not likely; there's only two stages a week each way, an' they have regular meeting points."

She sat quiet, eyes lowered to the table, thinking. She liked the man, and trusted him; he seemed kindly deferential. Finally she looked up.

"When do you go?"
"Today. I was goin' to wait 'bout here a week longer, but an' gittin' skeered they might quit runnin' their coaches. To tell the truth, miss, it looks some to me like thar was a big Injun war comin', an' I'd like ter git home whar I belong afore it breaks loose."

"Will you take me with you?"
He listened to her words, his hands clasping and unclasping on the table.

"Sure, if yer bound ter go. I'll do the best I kin fer yer, an' I reckon thar sooner yer start the better chance yer'll have a' gittin' through safe." He hesitated. "If we should git bad news at Dodge, is there anybody thar, at the fort, you could stop with?"

"Colonel Carrer."
"He's not thar now; been transferred to Wallace, but I reckon, say a' these army people would look after yer. Ye've really made up yer mind to try it, then?"

"Yes, yes; I positively cannot stay here. I shall go as far as Dodge at least. If—if we are going to travel together, I ought to know your name."
"Here yer head," with a laugh. "I forgot all 'bout that—It's William, miss; William Moylan; 'Sutler Bill' they call me mostly, west o' the river. Let's go out an' see 'bout that stage."

As he rounded the table, Molly rose to her feet, and held out her hand.

"I am so glad I spoke to you, Mr. Moylan," she said simply. "I am not at all afraid now. If you will wait until I get my hat, I'll be down in a minute."

"Sutler Bill" stood in the narrow hall watching her run swiftly upstairs, twirling his hat in his hands, his good-natured face flushed. Once he glanced in the direction of the bar-room, wiping his lips with his cut, and his feet shuffled. But he resisted the temptation, and was still there when Miss McDonald came down.

CHAPTER IV.

The Attack.

Slightly more than sixty miles, as the route ran, stretched between old Fort Dodge and the ford crossing the Arkansas leading down to the Cimarron; another sixty miles distant, across a desert of alkali and sand, lay Dove. The main Santa Fe trail, broad and deeply rutted by the innumerable wheels of early spring caravans, followed the general course of the river, occasionally touching the higher level plains, but mostly keeping close beneath the protection of the northern bluffs, or else skirting the edge of the water. Night or day the route was easily followed, and, in other years, the traveler was seldom far long out of sight of tolling wagons. Now scarcely a wheel turned in all that lonely distance.

The west-bound stage left the station at Deer Creek at four o'clock in the afternoon with no intimation of danger ahead. Its occupants had eaten dinner in company with those of the east-bound coach, eighteen miles down the river at Canon Bluff, and the in-coming driver had reported an open road, and no unusual trouble. No Indian signs had been observed, not even signal fires during the night, and the conductor, who had come straight from Santa Fe, reported that troops from Fort Union had driven the only known bunch of raiders back from the neighborhood of the trail, and had them already safely corralled in the mountains. This report, seemingly authentic and official, served to relax the nerves, and the west-bound driver sang to himself as he guided the four horses forward, while the conductor, a sawed-off gun planted between his knees, nodded drowsily. Inside there were but three passengers, jerking back and forth, as the wheels struck the deep ruts of the trail, occasionally exchanging a word or two, but usually staring gloomily forth at the monotonous scene. Miss McDonald and Moylan occupied the back seat, some baggage wedged tightly between to keep them more secure on the slippery cushion, while facing them, and clinging to his support with both hands, was a pock-marked Mexican, with rather villainous face and ornate dress, and excessively polite manners. He had joined the little party at Dodge, smiling happily at sight of Miss Molly's face when she unveiled, although his small knowledge of English prevented any extended contact at all.

"The Major sure made his instructions plain enough," he said.

west of Deer Creek, the horses still moving with spirit, the driver's foot on the brake, when the stage took a sudden plunge down a sloping bank where the valley perceptibly narrowed. To the left, beyond a flat expanse of brown, sun-scorched grass, flowed the widely-spreading waters of the Arkansas, barely covering the treacherous sandy bottom, and from the other side came the more distant gleam of alkali plains; to the right arose the bluffs, here both steep and rugged, completely shutting off the view, barren of vegetation except for a few scattered patches of grass. Suddenly a man rode out of a rift in the bank, directly in front, and held up his hand. Surprised, startled, the driver instantaneously clamped on his brake, and brought his horses to a quick stop; the conductor, nearly flung from his seat, yanked his gun forward.

"None of that now," called out the man in saddle quickly, both hands uplifted to show their emptiness. "This is no hold-up. I've got news." He spurred his pony forward slowly, the animal seemingly barely able to move, and swung out of the saddle beside the front wheel, staggering a bit as though his limbs were cramped as his feet felt the ground.

"I'm from Fort Union," he said, "Seventh Cavalry, sent through by way of Cimarron Springs. There is hell to pay west of here; the stations at Arkansas Crossing and Low Water were burned last night."

"The devil you say," burst out the driver hoarsely, his startled eyes sweeping the horizon. "Injuns?"

"Sure, plenty of 'em, but I haven't seen any bucks myself. As soon as I discovered what had happened at the Crossing I struck out on to the plateau, and came around that way to warn those fellows at Low Water. But when I got sight of that station from off the bluffs yonder it had been wiped out. Then I thought about this stage going west today, and came on to meet you. Must have ridden a hundred an' twenty miles since yesterday; the mustang is all in."

Moylan stuck his head out the nearest window.

"Look like they had much of a fight at the Crossing?" he asked.

"Not much; more like a night raid; two whites killed, and scalped. The third man either was taken away, or his body got burnt in the building. Horses all gone."

"What tribe?"
"Arápaehoes, from the way they scalped; that's what made it so serious—if those Northern Indians have broken loose there is going to be war this time for sure."

The men on the box looked at each other questioningly.

"I don't see no use tryin' to go on, Jake, do you?" asked the driver soberly. "Even if we do git through, thar ain't no hosses to be had."

The other shook his head, rubbing his gun-stock.

"Most likely those same red devils are layin' for us now somewhere between yere an' Low Water; whar the trail runs in between them two big rocks, most probable," he concluded. "Not havin' no har' to lose, I'm fer goin' back."

With an oath of relief, the driver released his brake and skillfully swung the leaders around, the coach groaning as it took the sharp turn. The man on the ground caught a swiftly passing glimpse of the young woman's face within, and strode hurriedly forward as the coach started.

"Hold on there, pardner," he commanded sternly. "This poor bronc won't travel another mile. There's plenty of room for me inside, and I'll turn the tired devil loose. Hold on, I say!"

The driver once again slapped on the brake, growling and reluctant, his anxious eyes searching the trail in both directions. Hamlin quietly uncinched his saddle, flinging it to the coach roof; the brittle followed, and then, with a slap on the haunch of the released animal, he strode to the stage door, thrust his Henry rifle within, and took the vacant seat beside Gonzales. With a sudden crack of the driver's whip the four horses leaped forward, and the coach careened on the slope of the trail, causing the passengers to clutch wildly to keep from being precipitated into a mass on the floor. As the traces straightened, Miss Molly, clinging desperately to a strap, caught her first fair glance at the new-comer. His hat was tilted back, the light revealing lines of weariness and a setting of the gray, powdery dust of the alkali desert, but beneath it appeared the brown, sun-scorched skin, while the gray eyes looking straight at her, were resolute and smiling. His rough shirt, open at the throat, might have been the product of any sutler's cotter; he wore no jacket, and the broad yellow stripe down the leg of the faded blue trousers alone proclaimed him a soldier. He smiled across at her, and she lowered her eyes, while his glance wandered on toward the others.

"Don't seem to be very crowded today," he began, generally addressing Moylan. "Not an extremely popular route at present, I reckon. Mindin' pardner?"

"No; post-trader at Fort Marcy." "Oh, that's it," he eyebrows lifting slightly. "The Indian business is a bad job for you then." His eyes fell on his seatmate. "Well, if this isn't little Gonzales!—You've got a good way from home."

"Si, señor!" returned the Mexican brokenly. "I tink I not remem."

"No, I reckon not. I'm not one of your class; cards and I never did agree. I shot up your game once down at Union; night Hassinger was killed. Remember now, don't you?"

"Si, señor," spreading his hands. "It was mos' unfortunate."
"Would have been more so, if the boys had got hold of you—Saint Annel but that fellow on the box is driving some."

The thud of the horses' feet under the lash, coupled with the reckless lurching of the coach, ended all further attempt at conversation, and the four passengers held on grimly, and stared out of the windows, as if expecting every instant that some accident would hurl them headlong. The frightened driver was apparently sparing neither whip nor tongue, the galloping teams jerking the stage after them in a mad race up the trail.

Hamlin thrust his head out of the nearest window, but a sudden lurch hurled him back, the coach taking a sharp curve on two wheels, and coming down level once again with a bump which brought the whole four together. The little Mexican started to scream out a Spanish oath, but Hamlin gripped his throat before it was half uttered, while Moylan pressed the girl back into her seat, bracing himself to hold her firm.

"What the devil—" he began angrily, and then the careening coach stopped as suddenly as though it had struck the bank, again tearing loose their handhold on the seats and flinging them headlong. They heard the creaking clasp of the brakes, the dancing of frightened horses, a perfect volley of oaths, the crunch of feet as men leaped from the top to the ground; then, all at once, the stage lurched forward, swerving sharply to the left, and struck out across the flat directly toward the bluff.

"There is Hell to Pay West of Here."

Hamlin struggled to the nearest window, and, grasping the sill to hold himself upright, leaned out. He caught a momentary glimpse of two men riding swiftly up the trail; the box above was empty, the wheelers alone remained in harness, and they were running uncontrolled.

"By God!" he muttered. "Those two damn cowards have cut loose and left us!"

Even as the unrestrained words leaped from his lips he realized the only hope—the reins still dangled, caught securely in the brake lever. Inch by inch, foot by foot, he wiggled out; Moylan, comprehending, caught his legs, holding him steady against the mad pitching. His fingers gripped the iron top rail, and, exerting all his strength, he slowly pulled his body up, until he fell forward into the driver's seat. Swift as he had been, the action was not quickly enough conceived to avert disaster. He had the reins in his grip when the swinging pole struck the steep side of the bluff, snapping off with a sharp crack, and flinging down the frightened animals, the wheels crashing against them, as the coach came to a sudden halt. Hamlin hung on grimly, swung forward to the footrail by the force of the shock, his body bruised and aching. One horse lay motionless, head under, apparently instantly killed; his mate struggled to his feet, tore frantically loose from the traces, and went flying madly down the slope, the broken harness dangling at his heels. The sergeant sat up and stared about, sweeping the blood from a slight gash out of his eyes. Then he came to himself with a gasp—understanding instantly what it all meant, why those men had cut loose the horses and ridden away, why the wheelers had plunged forward in that mad run-away race—between the bluff and the river a swarm of Indians were leaping their ponies, spreading out like the atoms of a fan.

CAVALRY CAPTURED A FLEET

"Horse-Marines" Figured in Incident of War for the Independence of South America.

The Llanero of South America lives on horseback; trades buys and sells on horseback; and during the war with Spain, the Llaneros contributed much toward achieving the independence of both Venezuela and New Granada. In "Up the Orinoco and Down the Magdalena," Mr. H. J. Mozans tells of an occasion when it was necessary for Bolivar's army to cross the Apure, in order to engage Morillo. But Bolivar had no boats, and the Apure at this point was wide and deep.

The Spanish flotilla was guarding the river at the point opposite to the patriot forces. Bolivar was in despair. Turning to Paer, he said, "I would give the world to have the Spanish flotilla; without it I can never cross the river."

"It shall be yours in an hour," replied Paer.

Selecting three hundred of his Llanero lancers, all distinguished for strength and bravery, he said, pointing to the gubboats, "We must have these fishermen or die. Let those follow who please." At once spurring his horse, he dashed into the river and swam toward the flotilla. The Llaneros followed him with their lances in their hands, now encouraging their horses by swimming beside them and patting their backs, now shouting to scare away the crocodiles, of which there were hundreds in the river. At last they reached the other side, and sprang from their horses' backs on board the boats, headed by their leader. To the astonishment of every one who beheld it, they actually captured the entire flotilla.—Youth's Companion.

Old Love and New Rug. Here's the overheard conversation that made the day seem more spring-like:

"Those people next door to us have been married a long time, haven't they?"

"Perhaps they have. But their honeymoon isn't over yet."

"How do you figure that out?"

"Well, it was awfully sloppy last night. But when he came home she made him step inside and kiss her before she told him to go back on the porch and wipe his feet."

"Well, honey, would you—"
"No, I wouldn't! We've got a new rug!"

Really First Sunday School.

It is often stated that Robert Raikes was the founder of the first Sunday school in Gloucester, England, in 1780. The fact is that the first Sunday school was established by Ludwig Hoecker in 1740 at Ephrata, Lancaster county, Pennsylvania. This was 40 years before the work of Mr. Raikes. Mr. Hoecker's school was for the religious instruction of the children of the neighborhood. Among other methods employed he wrote Bible verses upon cards, which the children committed to memory. Later he had the cards printed. Mr. Hoecker died in 1792, after a long and useful career.—Christian Herald.

Reassented. "Did you get a fright when you were married?"
"Sir, do you mean to insult my wife?"

A lock that should never be bolted is wedlock.

CURE FOOD

They Thrive on Grape-Nuts.

Healthy babies don't cry and the well-nourished baby that is fed on Grape-Nuts is never a crying baby. Many babies who cannot take any other food relish the perfect food, Grape-Nuts, and get well.

"My baby was given up by three doctors who said that the condensed milk on which I had fed her had ruined the child's stomach. One of the doctors told me that the only thing to do would be to try Grape-Nuts, so I got some and prepared it as follows: I soaked 1½ tablespoons in one pint of cold water for half an hour, then I strained off the liquid and mixed 1½ teaspoonsful of this strained Grape-Nuts juice with six teaspoonsful of rich milk, put in a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warmed it and gave it to baby every two hours.

"In this simple, easy way I saved baby's life and have built her up to a strong, healthy child, rosy and laughing. The food must certainly be perfect to have such a wonderful effect as this. I can truthfully say I think it is the best food in the world to raise delicate babies on and is also a delicious healthful food for grown-ups as we have discovered in our family." Grape-Nuts is equally valuable to the strong, healthy man or woman. It stands for the true theory of health. "There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Well-Willie," in page.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are interesting, true, and full of human interest.

Welcome to Our City.

"Do you like the English writers of travel essays?" asked the man, who had nearly run out of conversational topics.

"No," answered the patriotic girl; "they all abuse America. Do you like them?"

"Yes, I am enthusiastic about them."
 "But you are a Chicago man, and they all roast Chicago?"
 "I know. But they seem to think that Chicago is America, and they devote the most of their space to roasting Chicago. Why shouldn't we like them?"

Dangerous Doctor.

A person who was recently called into court for the purpose of proving the correctness of a doctor's bill was asked by the lawyer whether the "doctor did not make several visits after the patient was out of danger?"

"No," replied the witness. "I considered the patient in danger as long as the doctor continued to visit."

One of His Studies.

Church—How is your boy getting along in college?

Gotham—All right.
 "What's the studying?"
 "Geography, I guess. He wrote for money today. He said he wanted to learn the town."

HER ONE REGRET.

The Bride—Oh! darling, our honeymoon was just the loveliest ever.
 The Groom—It certainly was, dear-est.

The Bride—And I have only one regret—I may never have the pleasure of going through another.

Breakers Ahead.

"Pa, what is a sinking fund?"
 "You are too young to understand such things," replied the worried parent. "Wait until you have a bank account, and then you will know."

Musical.

"I don't believe the story, do you?"
 "What story?"
 "About Mrs. Youngbird. They say she went into a butcher's shop the other day and, seeing a side of spare-ribs on the counter, she remarked: 'Why, I didn't know you kept xylophones here.'"

Sea Clothing.

Beacon—I see the bureau of manufacturing in Washington has received samples of a cloth made in England from a species of seaweed found in the southern sea.

Egbert—Why can't it be used for making sheath skirts for mermaids or some outlandish suit for lobsters?

Wanted to Be Director.

"Are you for direct primaries?" demanded the reporter.
 "I am if I can direct them," promptly replied the boss.

None Left.

"It is said that the latest dictograph is able to pick voices out of a chorus."
 "It has evidently already been used on this chorus."

Town Row.

"What's the wrangle about in Plunkville?"
 "Some of the community want to maintain mud holes and swell their private fortunes by hauling automobiles out. Others want to improve the highways, pinch 'em for speeding, and apply the proceeds to public works of all kinds."

Driven to It.

"Seems to me the children do nothing at school now but cut out paper dolls and make mud pies."
 "Well, the map of the world is changing daily, so until things are settled they can't study history or geography. These simplified spellers have put spelling up in the air. So, what are the children to do?"

POOR BOY.

Julia—Jack has a careworn, unhappy look this year that he didn't have last year. He looks as though he had married.

Jano—Yes; I married him.

Village Sage.

Upon a tub before a store
 Loaded old Diogenes,
 He daily exuded lore
 And stole the grocer's cheese.

Due Notice.

Germany is being blamed for the story of a factory notice now going the rounds. Prominently displayed near all the live wires, it reads:
 "To touch these wires means instant death. Anyone failing to respect this warning will be prosecuted and fined."

No one has, up to the present, had to be prosecuted.

Those "Burning Sands."

Foots Light—Isn't that desert scene on the drop curtain natural?
 Miss Sao Broitte—No, I don't think it is.
 "Why not?"
 "Because the curtain is made of asbestos, and the sands of a desert are usually burning."

A Hobbled Sportman.

"Three Finger Sam says he can beat you playing poker with one hand tied."
 "Sam's apologizing. After seeing Sam handle a pack of cards, the boys in Crimson Gulch won't play cards with him except on their precise conditions."

Letting Well Enough Alone.

"I am going to make that boy stop whistling!" said the nervous man.
 "Don't. If you knew the words of that song you'd be thankful to let him whistle it instead of singing it."

Proper Combination.

Mrs. Youngbride (to grover)—Shall I open an account, or do you prefer to have me pay for what I get?
 Grocer—Both, madam.

AT THE SEASHORE.

She—His brother was arrested for having two wives.
 He—I see; he had won too many.

A Visiting Girl.

WORKS ON SCHEDULE

WOMAN'S EXCELLENT ARRANGEMENT FOR THE "DOG DAYS."

Cooking for the Week, by Her Method Practically Confined to One Day Means Ease and Rest for the Other Six.

Following is the way one house-mother arranges the meat courses in her home during the "dog days." She is blessed, fortunately, with a family that values her highly enough to insist on easy work in hot weather.

She uses her coal stove only once a week, on Saturday, when she does all her baking. On other days she uses the fireless cooker for the preparation of vegetables and other foodstuffs which do not require quick cooking or much heat. She uses an oil stove for making coffee and tea, and cooking such vegetables and other foodstuffs as require but short time.

On Saturday she bakes enough cake, bread and pie to last through most of the week to come, and she also roasts a big piece of meat. On Sunday the roast is served cold, with a special acid jelly of chill sauce. On Monday the meat is chopped fine and molded in aspic jelly, which is made from a stock prepared by boiling the bones of the roast. On Tuesday meat enough for two days is cooked in the fireless cooker, and what is left over by Wednesday is turned into a loaf of pressed beef. On Thursday chops or cutlets are used, and on Friday fish is served.

Two pies, each of a different variety, and often a pudding are baked on Saturday. One of the pies is used for Saturday's dinner, and the pudding or an ice is served on Sunday. The other pie is reserved for Monday or Tuesday. On the other days the desserts are jellies, Bavarian cream or chilled desserts, or something that requires no hot fire to prepare. Two loaves of cake are also baked on Saturday, one that is of the kind that improves with keeping a few days. While the oven is being used the top of the stove is put to a good purpose.

A whole ham and a beef tongue are boiled on Saturday to use throughout the week at luncheons. Enough boiled salad dressing to last through the week is prepared and placed in the refrigerator. If Saturday happens to be a mercury record-breaker the baking is done on Monday or Tuesday. With plenty of fruits, vegetables, cheese, eggs, salad and herbs an excellent table is set throughout the summer.

Of course it requires some hard work and much judgment and executive ability to do the bulk of the week's cooking on one day, but the housewife has an excellent rest for the other six days. There is little or no heat from the kitchen during the week, and much oil and coal are saved—an item worth considering.

Rhubarb Preserved in Cold Water.

Wash, skin and cut rhubarb in inch pieces and fill jars full. Put under cold water faucet and fill to overflowing, being sure the rubber is well wet all round. Cover and seal. Some of the wire fasteners on my jars are quite loose, but I have used them and have not lost any fruit, because of wetting the rubbers all round, that is, fill to overflowing and allow the juice to run all round the rubber; it acts as a glue to the cover, which sticks fast, and I always have to pry mine off.—Exchange.

Corn Cakes.

Add to one-half can of corn one egg. Season with salt and pepper, add bread crumbs until batter is fairly thick; then let stand 20 minutes. This mixture must be thick enough when dropped by the tablespoon. Won't run much. So if you think batter needs more crumbs add them. Fry in small cakes in bacon fat until brown and crisp on both sides. Serve with bacon for breakfast.

Artificial Porch Pillows.

Natural-colored burlap makes serviceable covers for porch pillows. To decorate, cut inch-wide strips of bright silk (possibly from discarded neckties or hair ribbons which have been washed), thread in a tape needle and darn in half-inch stitches through the loosely woven burlap a bold design of interlaced squares or triangles, or a swastika. A half dozen covers can be made in an afternoon, and they are very effective when piled in a porch lettee or Gloucester hammock on the piazza of the summer bungalow.

Split-Pea Soup.

Two cups peas (split and dried). Pour in a kettle with four quarts of water, one-half pound lean salt pork, one onion, one stalk celery and salt and pepper to taste. Boil three or four hours and rub through a sieve. Serve hot.

To Brighten Paint.

Varnished paint can be kept bright by soaking in water for some time a bag filled with fax seed and then using it with a cloth to clean the paint.

John Sent a Proxy.
 We are having such a carnival of crime in Cleveland nowadays (according to certain papers) that a lady doesn't go to the door to meet the postman unless she is armed to the teeth. It is told of a Lakewood woman that she heard a slight noise, or thought she did the other night and said to her husband:
 "Oh, John! There are burglars in the house!"
 "Well, see what they want," grunted John, only half awake.
 "But you must go down!"
 "No, you go down. No gentlemanly burglar would dare strike a lady!"

Exception.
 One evening the guests were all seated around the table earnestly talking on an important topic. Little Frank came running in shouting: "Papa, papa!"
 "Hush, Frank, little children should be seen and not heard."
 Frank subsided into silence and pensively sucked his finger. Later his father said: "Well son, what did you want to say before?"
 "Just that the bathtub was overflowing."
