This work is to be done under the direction of Wm Ferguson.

The report of the Road viewers on the road from Carrizozo to Corona, filed with this Board by the Board of County Commissioners with their recommendation of immediate work and their approval of said road, is laid over for action at the January meeting of this board owing to insufficient funds for immediate work.

The protest of Jas. O. Nabours, of Three Rivers, as to the fencing of the public road near that place is referred to the Board of County Commissioners for the immediate action.

The Board stands adjourned at 12 o'clock p. m. to the call of the chair.

Approved: J. W. Laws, Chairman.

BOOSTING THE FESTIVAL

Preparations are Being Perfected for the Biggest Time in Years

SPECIAL RATE ON RAILROAD

The various committees at work preparing for the Big Two Days' Fall Festival to be held in Carrizozo, September 26th and 27th have been continuing their work the past week. The assurance of over $600 in purses by the finance committee has made the success of the affair certain and nothing will be overlooked to make the occasion an unprecedented event in all respects.

The Ladies' Committee met this week and have outlined their plans for the Dedication of the County buildings, the date having been set for Friday evening, the 26th, and the evening will be given over exclusively to the program and ball. John A. Haley has been selected by the ladies as the Master of Ceremonies. Governor W. C. McDonald, Judge Edward L. Medler and Mrs. Wallace L. Gumm have been asked to address the people on this evening in the new court rooms. Music will be furnished by both the Carrizozo Brass band and a stringed orchestra for dancing while refreshments will be served continuously.

Appropriate exercises to commemorate the opening of the people's hall of the county will be had and the evening program is expected to be the most enjoyable of the Festival.

Added to the regular events have been Dodge Ball games which will be participated in by the girls from Corona, Capitan and Carrizozo.

The Southwestern has announced special rates on the railroad from all points to Carrizozo from Vaughn to Alamogordo. Below is a list of the rates to Carrizozo for round trip.

Alamogordo, $3 15; Corona, $2.75
Tularosa, 2.40; Torrance, 3.20
Three Rivers, 1.24; Duran, 3.80
Oscuro, .99; Vaughn, 4.70
Ancho, 1.30

The people of Carrizozo invite everyone to come and enjoy the field events with the Big Free Barbecue on Saturday and something doing every minute during the two days of the Festival.

—A. J. Johnson of Tucumcari is in Carrizozo for a few days' business trip.

—The Juries for the October 6th term of District Court will be drawn on Saturday, at the Clerk's office

—F. U. Nelson of the Colorado Fuel Company is here and will remain for two or three weeks.

—Dr. Williams is here at the Paden place and will spend a week or so practicing among his old customers in this county.

—The Court House is about finished but will possibly not have all the finishing touches, when the Commissioners meet next Monday, the 15th. This meeting of the Board is especially held to accept the building. Many of the local people have expressed admiration of the buildings.

OSCURO OBSERVINGS

Oscuro and vicinity has had some very good rains of late.

Mr. Morris is expected to return to Oscuro on or about Sept. 15.

Mrs. Dodge is expecting the return of her husband during the month.

John W. Dalton and Chas. F. Gray drove up to the county seat Saturday.

Tom McDonald has rented a house and will move in town in the course of the next two weeks.

Mrs. Pursley has gone out to Mr. Baber's ranch to teach school. She reports that she is very much pleased with her new place.

Mr. Bourne and family have moved to Oscuro in order to receive the benefit of our public schools.

Mrs. Young gives the good news that she will alter the trip east and will spend the winter in and near Oscuro.

Miss Leah Ketchen, one of Oscuro's new school teachers, arrived Saturday, and held one hour of school Monday, as a preliminary to the coming year's work.

Ernest Matthews gave a dance at Boyd's Saturday night. Refreshments were served and every one reported a very enjoyable evening. There were a large number of visitors from Three Rivers, Carrizozo and Tularosa. The music while somewhat tardy was very good.

We hope that at our next dance we can enjoy a still larger attendance than the past ones.

Mr. Organ with his two sons and daughter, Mrs. Gladys, who is one of the school staff for the coming year, drove in Sunday in their Ford from McKenny, Texas, 935 miles in 10 days through the mud. They came by way of Dalhart, Amarilla and Roswell to Carrizozo.

Mr. Organ's home is in Lebanon, Tenn. Mr. Organ is thinking of locating here as his health has been poor east and he needs a change of climate.

Miss Maud Young and Henry Drace accompanied by Mrs. Young left Oscuro Tuesday on No. 33 for Alamogordo, whereupon they journeyed to the court house and later to the Rev. Le Breton's parsonage where they were united in marriage. Mrs. Young with the couple returned Wednesday to the bride's former home town and were received by Miss Helen Jones who gave a party and dance for the newly weds, Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Drace left for the old Nabour's place in the Oscuro mountains where Mr. Drace is employed by the Hacht Cattle Co. The Outlook extends hearty congratulations and good wishes on life's journey to the young couple.

METHODIST CHURCH

(J. W. Campbell, Pastor)

Sunday school at 10 a. m.

Preaching at 11 a. m., and 7:30 p. m.

Subject for morning: "Salvation by Faith"

Evening Discourse: "The Call of the Christ"

Special music at both services. Everybody cordially invited.

SCHOOL OPEN'D MONDAY

With Fair Enrollment and Appropriate Opening Program Rendered

PRINCIPAL MAKES STATEMENT

The Carrizozo schools opened Monday last with an enrollment of 180 and there are others who will enroll later, making the enrollment 200 or more.

The opening exercises were attended by parents and patrons of the school. Mrs. W. L. Gumm, County Supt., addressed the school, her topic being, "What the Teachers Should Expect of the Patrons." Her talk was a very practical one, and was well received. Hon. J. A. Haley spoke on the subject, "What Should the Patrons Expect from the Teachers," and having had years of experience in school work he was able to offer many practical suggestions on this important phase of the school question.

The superintendent, Prof. Andrew McCurdy, asked the earliest cooperation of the other members of the faculty, and patrons of the school. The principal announced that a regular High School course would be given in the Carrizozo school and the school board has signified their intention of procuring all of the necessary equipment for the High School course.

The school opens with the brightest prospects, and there is no doubt that Carrizozo will have one of the very best schools in the state.

Parents and patrons of the school are earnestly requested to visit the school and learn from observation what is being done by the faculty for the education of the young people.

Camden is keeping pace with the march of progress educationally as well as otherwise and has this year instituted a full four-year high school course which will soon be second to none in this state.

With the beginning of this school year two extra years, Junior and Senior, were added, giving the pupils of the Carrizozo school the high school work complete and both of these added classes are represented and the close of school will see a high school graduate from the schools of our thriving little city.

Perhaps the principal and Mrs. Jewett, his able assistant will publish their daily program at some later date, as it will show at a glance that they begin work at 8:15 a. m. and continue an unbroken series of recitations throughout the day. The principal's contract calls for a maximum of four classes a day. He has nine on the program. Mrs. Jewett's hands are also level full, but we have determined to initiate the work, hoping for another teacher to relieve the situation at the earliest possible date.

Few of us realize what this new stride in school efficiency will mean to the reputation of Carrizozo, as a place to live in, but a better plan could not be formulated for the upbuilding of the community in things really worth while.

We feel sure the community as a whole will come to our aid in this extra task we have shouldered and we in turn promise to give you the best of our effort in the improvement of school work in Carrizozo.

Sincerely,
Andrew McCurdy,
Principal

SYNOPSIS.

Major McDonald, commanding an army post near Fort Dodge, seeks a man to intercept his daughter, Molly, who is headed for the post. An Indian outbreak is threatened. "Brick" Hamlin, a scout who has just arrived with messages to McDonald, volunteers for the mission. Molly arrives at Fort Ripley two days ahead of schedule. She decides to push on to Fort Dodge by stage in company with "Butler" Hamlin. Gonzales, a gambler, is also a passenger. Hamlin meets the stage with stories of depredations committed by the Indians. The driver deserts the stage when Indians appear. The Indians are repulsed in attacks on the stage. Hamlin and Molly plan to escape in the darkness by way of a gully. Molly is wounded and Hamlin carries her. They cross a river and go into hiding. The Indians discover their escape and start pursuit, but go in the wrong direction.

CHAPTER XI.

A Remembrance of the Past.

Moylan must have had Miss McDonald in mind when he had stocked up with food at Fort Dodge, and had therefore chosen all the delicacies to be found at that frontier post. These were not extensive, consisting largely of canned goods, which, nevertheless, made a brave show, and were clearly enough not the ordinary fare of the border. Hamlin had to smile at the array, but Molly handled each article almost with reverence, tears dimming her eyes in memory.

"Ho—he bought these for me," she said softly, and looking across reproachfully at the sergeant. "It was the best he could do."

"I was not laughing at poor Moylan; only, I fear, he had a wrong conception of a girl's needs on the trail. But I reckon our combined appetites are equal to it."

"I do not feel as though I could swallow a mouthful."

"Under orders you will try. We have a hard day before us, young lady, and some tramping to do afoot. I wish I knew where that horse I turned loose last night had drifted to; in to the bluff, probably, where the grass is green. He would be of some help just now. Try this, Miss McDonald, for lack of something better. I yearn for ham and coffee, but hardly dare build a fire yet. The smoke would be seen for miles away."

"If we were across the river we could use the stage fire."

"Yes, but there is a wide river flowing between. Don't be afraid of that trip," noting the expression of her face. "It will be easy enough to cross back by daylight, now that I know where the danger spots are."

"I was not so terribly afraid last night; I hardly had time to realize what was being done, did you?"

"Well, yes; it was risky business. Awfully treacherous bottom and I was trusting to good luck."

The sergeant ate heartily, speaking occasionally so as to divert her mind, but for the most part, busily thinking and endeavoring to decide his next move. He sat facing the river, continually lifting his head to scan the opposite shore. There was probably a scouting detail somewhere near at hand, either approaching from the east, alarmed by the report of the fleeing stage crew, or else a detachment tracking Roman Nose's warriors across those plains extending into the north. The latter contingency was the more probable, judging from the Indians' flight, and his own knowledge of the small reserve force left at Dodge. Besides, ride as they might those two fleeing cowards of yesterday could hardly have yet reached that shelter of safety and might not confess the truth of their desertion even when they did arrive. A pursuing force was the only real hope for escaping the necessity of a hard tramp back over the trail. Well, the girl looked fit, and he glanced toward her appreciatively.

In spite of the sad experiences of the past night she was a pleasant spectacle, her eyes bright with excitement, her cheeks flushed under the morning sun which streaked her dark, disordered hair with red color. Here was a winsome face, with smiling lips, and frank good nature in its contour. He was surprised to note how fresh and well she looked.

"Are you tired?"

"Not very. It seems more as though I had dreamed all this than actually passed through the experience. Perhaps when I do realize, the reaction will set in. But now I am strong, and—"

"—and not at all frightened."

"Are you hungry?"

"It is hard to eat, but I am eating that way." Her hand strayed to the emptied haversack, and she turned it carelessly over, where it lay beside her on the sand. "Why, this is an old Confederate sack, isn't it? I hadn't noticed before; see, 'C. S. A.' is on the flap."

"So it is; perhaps Moylan served in the south."

"I think not. I am sure this was never his, for he bought it at Dodge. I remember he told me he would have to find something to carry our lunch in." She pushed the flap farther back, then held it up to the sunlight. "There are some other letters, but they are hardly decipherable. I cannot read the first line at all, but the second is somewhat plainer—'Fourth Texas Infantry.'"

Hamlin reached out his hand swiftly, and grasped the haversack, forgetting everything else in suddenly aroused interest. The girl, surprised, stared up into his face, as he closely studied the faded inscription, his face expressing unconcealed amazement.

"Good God!" he ejaculated breathlessly. "It was Gene's. What can this mean?"

"You—you know the soldier?"

"Knew him? Yes," speaking almost unconsciously, his incredulous eyes still on the inscription, as though fearful it might vanish. "That man was either my best friend, or my worst enemy; under heaven, I know not which. Why, it is like a miracle, the finding of this bag out here in the desert. It is the clue I have been searching after for nearly five years." He seemed to pull himself together with an effort, realizing her presence. "Excuse me, Miss McDonald, but this thing knocked me silly. I hardly knew what I was saying."

"It means much to you? To your life?"

"Everything, if I can only trace it back, and thus discover the present whereabouts of the original owner."

"Was that your regiment, then—the Fourth Texas Infantry?"

He bowed his head, now looking frankly at her.

"Would you mind telling me your rank?"

"I became Captain of 'B' Company after the fight at Chancellorsville; was served in Virginia under Massé Robert, and lost every commissioned officer in that affair." He hesitated to go on, but she prompted him by a question:

"And then what? What was it that happened? Don't be afraid to tell me."

"Nothing until the day we fought at Fisher's Hill," he said slowly. "Then I was dismissed from the service for cowardice."

"Cowardice!" repeating the word in quick protest. "Why, how could that be? Surely your courage had been sufficiently tested before?"

"Cowardice, and disobedience of orders," he repeated dully, "after I had been under fire almost night and day for three years; after I had risen from the ranks and commanded the regiment."

"And you had no defence?"

"No; at least, none I could use; this man might have saved me, but he did not, and I never knew why."

"Who was he?"

"My senior captain, detailed on Early's staff; he brought me the orders verbally I was afterwards accused of disobeying. I was temporarily in command of the regiment that day with rank as major. There was a mistake somewhere, and we were horribly cut up, and a number taken prisoners. It was my word against his, and—"

—and he lied."

She took the haversack from him, studying the scarcely legible inscription.

"E. L. F. Are those the letters?"

"Yes; they stand for Eugene Le Fevre; he was of French descent, his home is New Orleans."

"You knew him well?"

"I thought so; we were at school together and afterwards in the army."

She looked across at him again, touched by the tender echo of his voice; then leaned forward and placed one hand upon his.

"You have not spoken about this for a long while, have you?"

"No," his eyes lighting up pleasantly, "hardly thought of it except sometimes alone at night. The memory made me savage, and all my efforts to ascertain the truth have proven useless."

"That is why you withdrew?"

"Largely; there is no better place to hide one's past than in the ranks out here on the plains. I—I could not remain at home with that disgrace hanging over me."

"You must tell me all about it."

Her head lifted suddenly as she gazed out across the river, shading her eyes. "Why, what are those?" she exclaimed eagerly, "there, moving on the bluffs opposite?"

His glance swept to the northward, and he was as instantly the soldier again. Far away on the upper plateau, clearly outlined against the blue of the distant sky, appeared a number of dark figures. For a moment he believed them buffaloes, but in another instant decided instead, they were horsemen riding two by two.

"Get down lower, Miss McDonald," he commanded. "Now we can see, and not be seen. They must be cavalrymen, the way they ride, but we can take no chances."

"They watched the black specks pass east to where the bluff circled in toward the river. It was from there those distant riders first observed the dim spiral of smoke still curling up from the burning stage, for they halted, bunching together, and then disappeared slowly down a gash in the side of the hill. Emerging on the lower flat they turned in the direction of the fire, spurring their horses into a swift trot. There was no longer any doubt of their being troopers, and Hamlin stood upright on the sand hummock waving his hat. They were gathered about the fire; a few dismounted beside the dead bodies, before his signal was observed. Then a field glass flashed in the sunlight, and three or four of the party rode down to the bank of the river. One of these, the glasses still held in his hand, his horse's hoofs in the water, shouted across the stream.

"Who are you over there?"

"White people," answered Hamlin, using his hands for a trumpet. "We escaped from the stage last night. I am a sergeant, Seventh Cavalry, and the lady with me is the daughter of Major McDonald at Fort Devore."

"How did you get across?"

"Waded in the dark; there is good bottom. Send a man over with a couple of horses."

The officer turned and spoke to the others grouped beside him; then raised his voice again.

"Are you sure there is no quicksand?"

"None to hurt; come straight over the end of that sand spit, and then swerve about a dozen feet to the right to keep out of a hole. The water won't go to a horse's belly. Try it, Wasson, you ought to know me."

"You're 'Brick' Hamlin, ain't you?"

"A good guess, Sam; come on."

Two troopers left their saddles, and the third man, the one answering the last call, gathered the reins in one hand, and spurred his horse confidently into the brown water. Following the sergeant's shouted directions, the three animals plunged forward, and came dripping up the low sand bank.

The rider, a sallow-faced man clad in rough corduroy, patched and colorless, leaned over and held out his hand.

"Dern yer o' skin," he said solemnly, but with a twinkle in his eyes, "ye're sure got the luck of it. Ain't see ye afore fer two years."

"That's right, Sam; down on the Cowskin, wasn't it? Who's over ther'?"

"Lieutenant Gaskins, an' some o' the Fourth Cavalry, scoutin' out o' Dodge; ben plum to ther' mountings, an' golt' home ag'in. Whut the hell (beggin' yer pardn, mam) has happened yer?"

"I'll explain when we get across," and Hamlin swung the haversack to his shoulder, and turned to the girl.

"This is Sam Wasson, Miss McDonald, a scout I have been out with before; let me help you into the saddle."

CHAPTER XII.

The Parting.

They recrossed the stream carefully, the horses restless and hard to control in the current, the men riding on either side, grasping the bit of the girl's mount. Others had joined the little squad of troopers on the bank, and welcomed her with a cheer. The lieutenant dismounted. At sight of the girl's face he whipped off his hat, and came forward.

"Miss McDonald," he said, pleasantly greeting her, "I am Lieutenant Gaskins, and I have met your father—of the Sixth Infantry, is he not? So glad to be of service, you know. You were in the stage, I understand; a most remarkable escape."

"I owe it all to Sergeant Hamlin," she replied, turning to glance toward the latter. "He bore me away unconscious in his arms. Indeed, I scarcely realized what happened. Do you know anything regarding my father?"

"Oh, yes, I can put your mind at ease as far as he is concerned. I presume you were endeavoring to reach his post when this unfortunate affair occurred."

"Yes."

"Sheridan has ordered Devore abandoned for the present, and the major's troops are to return to Dodge. He don't see much hope in the field within a week or two. But we can substitute acquaintance later; now I must straighten out this affair." He bowed again, and turned stiffly toward Hamlin, who had dismounted, his manner instantly changing. He was a short, heavily built man, cleanly shaven, with dark, arrogant eyes, and prominent chin.

"You are a sergeant of the Seventh, you said," he began brusquely. "What were you doing here?"

"My troop is stationed at Fort Union," was the quiet response. "I carried despatches to Devore, and while there was requested by Major McDonald to intercept his daughter and turn her back."

"Were you subject to Major McDonald's orders?"

"It was not an order, but a request."

"Oh, indeed; a mere pleasure excursion?"

"It has hardly turned out that way, sir, and conditions seemed to justify my action."

"That is for others to determine. When was the attack made?"

"Just before sundown last evening. The driver and guard escaped on the lead horses, and the wheelers ran away, wrecking the coach."

"There were four passengers?"

"Yes; we fought them off until after dark, although the Mexican was killed by the first fire. I don't know when the other man got his."

"Who were they?"

"Gonzales ran a high-ball game at Santa Fe; the other, Moylan, was post-sutler at Fort Mercy."

"How many Indians? Who were they?"

"About thirty; we must have killed five or six. It was hardly more than daylight when they left, and I could not tell just how many bodies they strapped on the ponies. They were a mixed bunch of young bucks, principally Arapahoes, led by Roman Nose."

"Went west, hey?"

"Yes, sir."

The lieutenant turned his gaze up the river, and then looked at Wasson, who remained seated in the saddle.

"Must be the same lot Maxwell told us about up on Pawnee Fork, Sam," he said at last. "He will be likely to cut their trail some time today. We knew a bunch had headed south, but didn't suppose they had got as far as this already. Better leave Maxwell to run them in, I suppose? Our orders are to return to Dodge."

"They haven't three hours the start," ventured Hamlin in surprise, "and cannot travel fast with so many of their ponies doubly loaded."

"That is for me to decide," staring insolently, "and I understand my duty without any advice. Is there any damage done west of here?"

"The station at the crossing is burned; two dead men there; I don't know what became of the third."

"Then it is just as I thought; those

"What the Hell (Begging Your Pardn, Ma'am) Has Happened Here?"

Yellows will turn north before they get that far, and will run straight into Maxwell. What do you say, Sam?"

The scout lolled carelessly in the saddle, his eyes on the river, his lean, brown face expressionless.

"I reckon as how I don't make no great difference what I say," he answered soberly. "Yer ain't taken no advice from me yit, fur as I remember. But if yer really want ter know, this time, my notion is them bucks will most likely hide in the bluffs till night, an' then sneak past Maxwell after it gets good an' dark. If this were was my outfit now, I'd just naturally light on to the trail fast, orders or no orders. I reckon it's Indians we run out after, an' I don't suppose the war department would send any fault if we found a few."

The blood surged into the lieutenant's face, but opposition only served to increase his obstinacy.

Have No Country.

While at supper one evening a member of the family asked: "Say, what are the Blanks?" The discussion on nationality and religion following, was wound up by the youngest son inquiring earnestly: "Papa, what country do the householders come from?"

"Simply this—I'm tired of keeping my heavy shoes on till midnight."

What One Sparrow Did.

What is perhaps the most remarkable accident that ever occurred was reported last month from Germany, according to Leslie's Magazine. A large touring car was traveling at fair speed along a boulevard lined with trees. Large flocks of sparrows were in the trees and several boys were taking chances of being arrested by the police by shooting at the birds with sling shots. One pebble, particularly well aimed, struck a sparrow on the upper wing and sent him gliding through the air directly toward the driver of the car; the bird struck him full in the face, and in the next instant things began to happen. The driver clutched at his eyes, the car lurched into the ditch, knocking down a telegraph pole, vaulted to a plowed field on the other side of the ditch and went full force into a huge haystack. Despite this wild aversa no one was even scratched except the driver, whose eyesight was damaged by the claws of the sparrow. The whole incident had taken far less time than needed to relate it.

AN OLD NURSE

Persuaded Doctor to Drink Postum.

An old faithful nurse and an experienced doctor, are a pretty strong combination in favor of Postum, instead of tea and coffee.

The doctor said:

"I began to drink Postum five years ago on the advice of an old nurse."

"During an unusually busy winter, between coffee, tea and overwork, I became a victim of insomnia. In a month after beginning Postum, in place of tea and coffee, I could eat anything and sleep as soundly as a baby."

"In three months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I now use Postum altogether instead of tea and coffee; even at bedtime with a soda cracker or some other tasty biscuit."

"Having a little tendency to Diabetes, I used a small quantity of saccharin instead of sugar, to sweeten with. I may add that today tea or coffee are never present in our house and very many patients, on my advice, have adopted Postum as their regular beverage."

"In conclusion I can assure anyone that, as a refreshing, nourishing and nerve-strengthening beverage, there is nothing equal to Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons. A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream. Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate, and here is served that way in the Bulletin. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

U. S. GRANT, JR., AND HIS BRIDE

This is a specially posed photograph of U. S. Grant, Jr., son of the great general, and his bride, formerly Mrs. America Will, taken on board the steamer just before they left San Francisco on their honeymoon trip to Australia. It is said that because of the opposition of his son to the marriage Mr. Grant in a pre-nuptial agreement decided to his bride the greater portion of his $4,000,000 estate.

DIRIGIBLES COSTLY

Great Vessel for War, but Price Is Prohibitive.

Difficulties Confronting Great Britain in Organizing an Effective Fleet of Airships—Pilots Are Very Hard to Find.

London.—For some time past it has been very difficult to make people think in anything but terms of dreadnaughts and superdreadnaughts. Now, however, the topic of thought, so to speak, is slowly but perceptibly veering, and we are beginning to think in terms of dirigibles. Almost every paper that comes to hand has an article in it pointing out the great value of the rigid airship and the necessity of building a large number of this type of aerial craft. There can be no doubt as to our need of this class of air vessel, but few persons realize the extreme costliness of building the rigid dirigible and keeping it in an efficient state. The price of a Zeppelin is about £50,000 sterling, and a hangar to hold two of these vessels costs about £80,000. Then there are repairs, gas, wages and a hundred and one other things which necessitate a large running account to meet them.

To build a fleet of forty dirigibles, which we should have to do to enable us to get on even terms with the aerial squadrons of other countries, would cost us about £2,000,000, and then hangars must be provided for all of these airships, which means the expenditure of another £2,000,000 at least.

Where these air vessels are to be built and how long they would take to construct are also matters of importance, seeing that we have not as yet turned out any really satisfactory airships of large size. Arrangements, too, have been completed in Germany whereby the same of Zeppelin and Schütte-Lanz dirigibles to foreign governments is prohibited.

Then, even supposing that we could purchase forty of these aerial cruisers in the space of a year, we should find considerable difficulty in obtaining pilots qualified to sail them. The official list published by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale shows that, up to Dec. 31, 1912, thirty-two aeronauts (balloons) and eleven airship pilots' certificates were granted to persons in Great Britain.

There is no gainsaying the fact that, as compared with any other kind of aerial craft, the rigid dirigible is the air vessel of today. In carrying capacity and radius of action, in its powers of remaining steady in the air and flying noiselessly aided by the wind, the rigid airship has no rival. It has, of course, its disadvantages—its immense bulk, which makes it a very noticeable object in the sky, and its unwieldiness, which necessitates a host of attendants to grapple with it when it leaves the earth and when it alights. The Zeppelin airships, too, are extremely heavy. The lifting capacity of Zeppelin L 1 is twenty-seven tons, but owing to its own great weight its useful load is only some seven tons.

As regards the construction of the rigid airship, in this type of air vessel the shape of its envelope is not dependent on internal gas pressure. A huge framework, made of aluminum in the case of Zeppelins, is provided with from seventeen to twenty separate gas chambers. Attached to the framework is a keel which, in addition to serving other purposes, affords communication between the two cars, the latter carrying the motors, guns, bomb dropping appliances, etc. The propellers, of which there are four, are fixed to the frame above the cars.

The bomb dropping arrangements carried by the Zeppelins are known to be accurately sighted. Quite recently the Hansa made excellent practice at comparatively small targets on the ground from a height of over 5,000 feet in the air. It is well known, too, that for attacking other air craft the Zeppelins carry five guns, probably machine guns or weapons of small caliber. Two of these guns are carried in each of the cars, and the fifth is mounted on a specially constructed platform on top of the airship's envelope.

Boy Balks at Poison Dose

Rune Away When Parent Urges Him to Swallow Bichloride of Mercury.

Cumberland, Md.—Mrs. Lydia Eury, forty-seven years old, widow of Columbus W. Eury, was taken to the Western Maryland hospital in a critical condition, having swallowed three bichloride of mercury tablets. She failed to get her four-year-old son George to join her in the suicidal attempt. It seemed to have been her intention to take the child with her.

Dependency over the separation from her children, two of whom, William, fifteen years old, and John, twelve years old, are at St. Mary's industrial school, Baltimore, is believed to have prompted the attempt at self-destruction.

Mrs. Eury's family had been broken up since the death of her husband, more than a year ago, and she was tired of life. With the son she was living at the home of J. T. Yost, 218

Race street, as housekeeper. The little boy told Pinky Eury, his uncle, that his mother endeavored to have him swallow one of the tablets, but that he refused and hid down the stairs after he had seen his mother take three.

Mrs. Eury later became very ill and admitted to Mrs. Yost that she had taken poison. Several hours elapsed before a physician arrived. He took prompt measures to counteract the poison, and, because the woman took an overdose, he thinks there is a chance for her recovery.

A VERY MUCH-TRAVELED DOG

Russian Wolfhound Has Circled the Globe With Owner Montgomery Schuyler.

New York.—One of the most traveled dogs in the world is the Russian wolfhound owned by Montgomery Schuyler, United States minister to Ecuador, South America. This dog was born in St. Petersburg and was obtained there while his now owner was attached to this country's embassy in the Muscovite capital. The dog moved from embassy to embassy and from legation to legation with Mr. Schuyler in Europe and then crossing Asia both man and dog found themselves in Japan.

From the land of the chrysanthemum the Russian dog again came east, and in America has been greatly admired from coast to coast. His name, ownership and particulars in reference to him were engraved on the dog's collar in Oriental and Occidental characters. This borzoi grows a lovely coat under all conditions of atmosphere and high temperatures. He is a beautifully made one, but lacking in the Roman face, considered so characteristic of these wolf coursing and tackling dogs. Mr. Schuyler is naturally very fond of his dog, which has borne him company over tens of thousands of leagues on continents and oceans.

ACTRESS DESIGNS HER TOMB

Sarah Bernhardt Is Busy Working on Monument That Will Embellish Her Tomb.

Paris.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt is employing her vacation by carving a monument for the embellishment of her tomb, for which she has bought a desolate island off the coast of Brittany. She is working hard on a clay sketch of the complete conception with a young Breton woman as a model. The latter is sworn to silence and the design of the monument is kept a profound secret. It is said, however, by Mme. Bernhardt's friends, to be simple yet strangely moving in ideas. The tragedienne is reported to have said a short time ago that she had a horror of intrusting the erection of the monument to anybody else.

INJURED GIRL WAS A STOIC

Not a Whimper From Her as Broken Arm Is Reset by Physician.

San Francisco.—Elizabeth Rood is only thirteen years old, but she is a real "cowgirl." She was rounding up cattle on her uncle's big ranch near Carlin, Nev., when her pony threw her into the sage brush, six miles from the ranchhouse, breaking her arm in two places.

That night she came to the St. Francis, escorted by her uncle, Jack Yore, discoverer of the famous Rip Van Winkle mine of Lone mountain.

Uncle Jack wanted the little girl to have the best medical attention and the lassie allowed the physician to reset the bones without uttering a whimper.

BABY HANGS SELF IN CRIB

Peculiar and Distressing Mishap to Little One Asleep in Its Little Bed.

Phoenixville, Pa.—Strangled to death in her crib, where she had been placed to sleep but a few minutes before, the ten-months-old daughter of John Hallman of this place was found by her father.

The child had literally hanged herself. The small body, with the feet a few inches above the floor, was found hanging by the neck between the bars of the crib.

In some unaccountable way the child had forced her small body through its bed, a wedge of bed-cov- ering preventing the head from following hens. Mr. Maynard has a pond near his home, where the hens swim about with all the grace and abandon of ordinary ducks.

About a week ago the hens were feeding about the edge of the pond and had found a rich crop of bugs and water insects. At least one hen saw some fat bugs on a lily pad, near shore, and after wading out a short distance made a dive for them. Mr. Maynard expected to see biddy go under, but she swam about like a life-saver. The other hens did not enjoy her monopoly of the bug market, and one after another they darted in and seemed to enjoy the situation. The hens now go to the pond often for a feast of water insects.

Tree Found Underground.

Sacramento.—A redwood tree, in a fair state of preservation, was discovered sixty feet beneath the surface on the Wright & Kimbrough tract in Colonial Heights by a gang of well borers. How the tree got there is the question that is puzzling the discoverers, and what kept it in such good condition is also a matter of conjecture.

Misunderstood.

She was a plump widow, with two charming daughters. She had been a "relic" just a year, and was beginning to wear her "weeds" lightly. All the same, when the new curate called upon her she sighed:

"Ah! I feel the loss of my poor dear husband very much. I never have any appetite for anything now."

The curate was all sympathy and, in the endeavor to cheer her by pointing out what a comfort to her her daughters must be, replied:

"I can quite understand that, but you are soled in—"

"S-r-r-r!" interrupted the indignant lady. "Allow me to inform you that I am not laced at all."

Regular Attendant.

"Is your father a regular attendant at church?"

"Yes, he goes once a year, whether he thinks he needs it or not."

Explanation.

"How was it that Jonesby could afford to buy a yacht?"

"Maybe his wife got it in one of these bargain sales."

Constant Menace to Public Health.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis estimates that there are over a million consumptives in the United States, of whom probably at least one-third are unable to provide for themselves the necessary treatment at home. Most of these cases are a menace to the health of their families and associates, and should be in special hospitals. At the present time, however, even if every case were known, it would not be possible to provide accommodations for more than one in eight or ten. The removal of these foci of infection demands more and better hospital and sanatorium provision.

Natural Instinct.

"Poor Billy has had a case of puppy love."

"Evidently that accounts for his following his inamorata around like a dog."

Differs With Him.

"What do you think about that man's claim that he has invented daylight?"

"I think it's moonshine."

FT. STANTON NOTES.

Owing to the heavy rains, the mail auto has been delayed several times in past week.

C. C. Cannon says the recent rains are splendid for his crop, especially on his ranch near Lincoln.

Mrs. Doctor McKeon of No. 2 spent the week in El Paso, shopping and visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lovett leave soon on an extended trip to their old home near St. Louis. Miss Mildred will accompany them.

A. Sharp, of New York, left for El Paso Thursday after a very pleasant visit with his school boy friend, Thomas Keough of No. 4.

Each train day brings in quite a number of patients from the various large marine stations of the United States.

Richard Johnson the popular hill nurse is one of the busy men of the station, and is highly appreciated by all.

Chief Engineer Sitton surprised us all by coming in from Roswell the other afternoon in his new Ford which he purchased in that city.

The bugle call for attention at the lowering of the flag each evening is given by Chas. U. Babbs, the Ft. Stanton cornetist.

The Sherman Turtle serum is being given out to quite a number of the patients, and much interest is manifested as to the actual results expected later.

Master Alva Sitton, son of Chief Sitton, of License avenue, spent a few days last week in Roswell the guest of relatives.

The continual rains made Fort Stanton a most picturesque spot, the many sweet pea gardens and the beautiful lawns at Nos 1, 2, 3, 3 and 13, add much happiness to the residents.

The Lutz auto party from Lincoln took in the "Movies" at Library Hall last Monday evening. After the show they were entertained at No. 4.

Doctor Brown of Easy avenue is still confined to his room, but reports from the physicians in charge are that he will soon be out again, which is most pleasant news to his many friends.

Dr. Keiller of Texas University, of Galveston, spent part of the summer at Ft. Stanton, and is at present at Parsons. We expect a short visit from him before he leaves for his post of duty.

The singing last Sunday evening at the services held in Library Hall was exceptionally fine. Mrs. C. F. Smith the choir leader makes all enjoy the devotional hymns. Mrs. A. E. Lovett the organist as well, shows proficiency at the keys.

Major Thomas, who has added so much to the social world here during the summer, returned Monday from a week's visit with friends in El Paso. We hope to have the Major on our programme at the big fall entertainment in Library Hall.

Mrs. Hollem's physical condition as last reported from the hospital in Chicago is that she is improving, and will undergo a very important operation as soon as the doctors there announce her being in the proper condition for same. We all hope for a successful operation and her speedy return to her many friends.

The opening of the Non-Sectarian services in Library Hall took place last Sunday evening with Chaplain Frund presiding. The Hall was crowded and the service consisting of a special programme most interesting. The Chaplain announced special programmes for each Sunday evening, and congratulated the large audience upon the turnout. Illustrated lectures are on the list for the winter season.

SOMETHING DOING AT OSCURO

To the Editor:—
The weekly visits of the Outlook are very greatly appreciated while I am here in Chicago. We are organizing a company of real wide awake business men for the developing oil, gas and artesian water. We hope to have organization completed by the middle of this month. We expect to buy our drilling outfit this week and hope to have it on the ground early in October.
Mr. E. G. Raffety with some of the company will be going down this month to look over the situation.
Chicago is having some extremely hot weather. People frequently ask me if it is not very hot in New Mexico. I tell them nothing to compare with Chicago.
You may hear from me again if this does not find its way to the waste basket. J. W. Pursley.

GLENCOE GLEAMINGS

(Too late for last week)

The grass is only fair in this country but stock are looking good and will make out on the abundant supply of alfalfa.
Frank B. Coe and family are to spend the winter in Los Angeles, California. The younger children will be in school in the coast city.
Glencoe country is very prosperous this year; the best hay, grain and alfalfa crop in the history of the stream is recorded, and the farmers are well pleased.
The auto mail line from Roswell to Tularosa thru this country is again being talked of much, as Washington has agreed to take up the matter again for consideration.
Westgard the National Highway road logger etc., passed thru here last Sunday on schedule time and stated that it was assured that the all Southern route would pass this way.

A number of the farmers here are putting in fish traps at the head of their irrigation ditches as required by the laws and if successful in preserving the fish and keeping them from washing down the ditch all the farmers will install them.

Several Glencoe farmers have sold their apple crop to outside buyers at very gratifying prices. The price given was in many instances $2.00 for the entire product which is considerably higher than usual.

WORKING THE PARCEL POST

(Contributed)

The newspapers announced that $26,000,000 a year has been slashed off express rates and that sixteen per cent of gross income has been lost by a recent interstate commerce commission order and by an extension of the scope of the parcel post.

It is inferred that this money will go either into the treasury of the United States or into the pockets of the people. One is filled with wonder at the complacent attitude of the big interests at this attempt on the part of the government to favor the people against the corporations. Practically no opposition has developed, aside from a mild protest on the part of the officials of the express companies.

There is a reason for this, and here it is: The contract between the express companies and the railroad provides that the railroads shall receive one-half of the gross income of the express companies as pay for the work of transportation. The amount per pound of express carried varies according to the different classifications. For instance: The express company will carry one hundred pounds of the Appeal a distance of three hundred miles for $1. The railroad receives fifty cents from the express company for its part of the performance. For transporting the same package through the mails, I pay the United States government $1. The government pays the railroad $8 for carrying this package.

In both instances the service rendered by the railroad is identical.

COAL WITHDRAWALS

The following withdrawals of Lincoln County lands have been made by order of the President, as Coal lands.
New Mexico Meridian: T. 11 S. R. 13 E., Sec. 2, W. 1; Secs. 3 and 4 all; Sec. 5 E., Secs. 9 and 10 all; Sec. 11, NW 1/4, Secs. 15 and 16, all; Sec. 17, E. 1/2; Secs. 20 and 21, all; Sec. 22, W. 1/2; Sec. 27, W. 1/2; Secs. 28 to 33, inclusive; Sec. 34, W. 1/2.

From the express company the railroad collects fifty cents; from the government the railroad collects $8. You can now understand why the big interests are making no uproar over this extension of the principle of paternalism.

In order that you may better understand what it means to the railroads to take the express business from the express companies and hand it over to the government I append herewith the following figures, giving a comparison of the rates charged by the railroads for carrying mail and express. These figures were prepared by Prof. Henry C. Adams, statistician of the United States postal commission. The rates given are for carrying one ton mail from New York to Chicago a distance of one thousand miles:

One ton of mail $71.39
One ton of express 25.00

It will be seen from their figures that if all of the express business was turned over to the parcel post the railroads would receive the difference on every ton of matter carried between $71.39 and $25. While I have not the tonnage carried per year by the express companies, it is safe to estimate that on the charges already made, the railroads will receive a net profit of $50,000,000 per year over and above what they are now getting.

If you are not satisfied with my conclusions, write to the chairman of the house committee on post roads, Washington, D. C. Ask him if it is a fact that the railroads charge the government more per pound for carrying the parcel post packages than they charge the express companies for the same service. You may also find some amusement in submitting the same inquiry to the congressman in your district. In this way we may unravel the facts of what appears to be the most colossal steal of the century. You may not get the facts, but you will at least let the folks in congress know that you are keeping your eyes on Washington.

The operation of the parcel post under capitalism is merely another illustration of the fact, now becoming somewhat generally recognized, that every supposed advantage for the people becomes merely another source of revenue for the corporations.

Perhaps the reader will infer that the Appeal, is opposed to the government going into the express business, but we are not. The principal is in line with the teachings of the Socialist party. That the railroads today are the beneficiaries of the parcel post is no fault of the parcel post. When the people of this country awaken to the facts they will be forced to the conclusion that if they are to get any real benefit from the operation by the government of public utilities there must be no stopping half way along the line. To make the parcel post of real service, the railroads must likewise be owned and operated by the people themselves. This will necessarily make the taking over of the coal mines and the iron industries imperative. There must be left no place along the line of social service where private interest can hold up the people. When that time comes, we will be well along on our way to the goal of the Socialists—the Co-operative Commonwealth.

GOOD telephone service depends largely upon mutual courtesy. The telephone is more useful to those who talk as if face to face, for civility removes difficulties and facilitates the promptest possible connections.

As in other intercourse, it often happens that two or more people wish to talk with the same person at the same time. Without courtesy confusion is inevitable, and the confusion is greater when the people cannot see each other.

The operators must be patient and polite under all circumstances, but they will do better work if they meet patience and politeness on the part of the telephone users.

The Bell Telephone Service enters intimately into the social and business life of each individual. The best results come through the practice of mutual courtesy.

GOOD JOKES

No Job for Him.

The spring had brought out the usual crop of listless wanderers. "Want help, do you?" said the prosperous looking party who had been applied to for assistance by one of these. "You're a husky looking beggar, I must say. Why don't you work?" "My business ain't any good at dis season," said Rusty. "What is your business?" said the prosperous looking party. "I'm a professional tobogganist," said Rusty.—Harper's Weekly.

Between Harriet and Moll.

"Cholly kissed me, and I screamed." "Then what?" "He kissed me a second time, and I hollered again." "Then what?" "Cholly said, 'you're attractin' attention to yourself,' and then he kissed me again." "There's few knows what a girl's got to go up against with some of these persistent fellers."

A Clear Case.

Clarence—As I undahstand it, me boy, old Gotrox first told you that you could have his daughter, and then went back on his word? Willy—That's just 'bout th' size of it, bah jove! Clarence—Then, deuce take it, old chap, I should just sue him for non-support, that's all!—Puck.

Defending Him.

"Daughter," called the father from his position at the top of the stairs at the well-known hour of 11:55 p. m., "doesn't that young man know how to say good-night?" "Does he?" echoed the young lady in the darkened hall; "well, I should say he does."—Ladies' Home Journal.

FATAL DEFECT.

First Sport—Think Bruisom will ever become a great pugilist? Second Sport—No; he's tongue-tied.

At Work.

The poet sits with pen and ink. He looks sedate and wise. And when he writes a line or two He swats as many flies.

Breaking It Gently.

A young man, an only son, married against the wishes of his parents. A short time afterward, in telling a friend how to break the news to them, he said: "Tell them first I am dead; and then gently work up to the climax."—Lippincott's.

The Sights.

"Did you see the sights at the seashore?" asked one girl. "No," answered the other. "I went into the water. I was one of them."

Hard to Interest.

"My husband doesn't care for sight-seeing." "Then nothing interested him on your trip?" "Only the spot where Washington threw a dollar across the Potomac. He spent several hours looking for the dollar, and was quite happy for a while, but even that ended in disappointment at last."

Virtue's Reward.

Her Dotting Pa—I thought you'd be more pleased with your commencement gown, when it cost so much money, Marjorie? Marjorie—Why, papa, I won't get half as much attention as the girl who made her own dress at a cost of $5.50.—Puck.

Disputed.

"Did you dance any at the party, Mamie?" "No, but I had such a compliment from one of the gentlemen. He told somebody I made such a nice mural decoration." "And you never knew he was calling you a wallflower?"

ALIBI PERFECT.

"And you say you are innocent of the charge of stealing a rooster from Mr. Jones?" asked an Arkansas judge of a meek-looking prisoner. "Yes, sir; and I can prove it." "How can you prove it?" "I can prove that I didn't steal Mr. Jones' rooster, judge, because I stole two hens from Mr. Graston the same night, and Jones lives five miles from Graston's." "The proof is conclusive," said the judge. "Discharge the prisoner."—National Food Magazine.

FOLLOWING FATHER.

First Trust Magnate—Hear your boy is studying law. Is he going to practice it?

Second Trust Magnate (absently)—No; I reckon he'll evade it.

Eating or Sleeping.

A man is often like a horse. We've heard some people say; But surely both are happy when It's time to hit the hay.

And James Went.

The teacher was trying to break James of saying, "I have went," but the task seemed hopeless. So, as a last resort, she had him stay after school and write twenty times on the blackboard, "I have gone home."

While the child was occupied the teacher left the room, and was still absent when James finished the task. And to acquaint her with the fact he wrote:

"Dear Teach—I have wrote what you told me, and have went home."—National Food Magazine.

Coming to a Halt.

Two Irishmen were among a class that was being drilled in marching tactics. One was new at the business, and turning to his companion asked him the meaning of the command "Halt!"

"Why," said Mike, "when he says 'Halt,' you just bring the foot that's on the ground to the side av the foot that's in the air, an' remain motionless."

Third Generation.

"Fifty years ago her grandfather came over in the steerage with a pack on his back."

"Well, what of it?" "Nothing, except this paper I am reading says she departed for Europe this morning with 42 steamer trunks, three maids and tickets calling for the white-and-gold suite."

Sorry He Spoke.

"Scientists state that seafaring people should always keep chocolate handy," remarked the pedantic youth. "Chocolate contains many heat units, and is valuable in time of emergency." "How nice," responded the girl. "Better take a two-pound box when we go rowing this afternoon."

ENVY.

The Feminist—Ah, dog, I wish I didn't have nothin' to worry me 'cep' kids, like you.

Fancy Shot.

A marksman held was William Tell. One of the stars. We nearly always rang the bell. And won the stars.

SPRAY IS NECESSARY

Many Troubles Which Contest Fruit Grower's Success.

No Other Insect Has Caused So Much Legislation as San Jose Scale—Spread Rapidly in East Despite Precautions.

(By J. G. SANDERS.)

Past and gone are those days when large crops of perfect fruit, uninjured by curculio, codling moth or scab.

Dead White Birch Trees. These were killed on the Campus of the University of Wisconsin by the Bronze Birch-Borer.

could be harvested without thought of sprays and spray pumps, of lead arsenate or paris green, of lime-sulfur and bordeaux mixture, and of other treatments for the troubles which contest the modern fruit grower's success.

In the early days young orchards required but little care after planting other than occasional cultivation, until in due time the perfect unblemished fruit was gathered. A gradual change has taken place with the introduction and dissemination of new insect pests and plant diseases, until now spray apparatus and materials are absolutely necessary.

These changing conditions have taught us a strong lesson of the possibility of even more disastrous introductions of pests. There are still many serious pests in foreign lands which have not become established in our country, but doubtless will be sooner or later if systems of rigid inspection of imported plant material are not soon inaugurated.

The awakening of the entomologists and the public in general to the danger of introducing serious insect pests and fungus diseases, was caused more largely by the introduction of the San Jose scale than any other one factor. No other insect has caused so much state and national legislation as the San Jose scale (a harmless insect in its native country in central China), which infests a wide range of fruit trees as well as many ornamentals. The damage caused by this tiny insect was early recognized by entomologists and means were sought to prevent its spread. But before adequate means of control were discovered, it had gained a foothold in many sections of some of our eastern states, and in spite of all precautions has gradually spread.

Work of Brown Birch-Borer.—1. Infested limb showing raised ridges. 2. Bark removed to show galleries of boring larvae. 3. Larva hibernating in a cell bored in the solid wood.

What is true of fruit trees is also true of shade trees. Take, for instance, the injury to our beautiful birch trees by insects. Such a general destruction of birch trees in ornamental plantings has occurred in the past four or five years throughout some sections, that the attention of a great many people has been attracted to the loss.

The small white larva of the bronze birch-borer burrows just beneath the bark, eating its way irregularly around the trunk and limbs of the tree in the sap-bearing layers, leaving winding galleries of castings and cutting off the flow of sap beyond the point attacked. On the younger branches these winding galleries are revealed by the corresponding ridges on the exterior of the limb.

No adequate remedy has been found to combat this pest. It is always advisable to cut out and burn all infested limbs very early each year before the adults emerge.

Until this serious infestation passes over, it is not advisable to plant any birches, for loss of the tree is almost sure to result.

PROTECTS THE DRAIN MOUTH

Entrance Can Be Kept From Being Closed by Building Cement Wall.—Wires Keep Cattle Away.

The bank at the mouth of a drain should be kept from caving and closing it. This can be done with a cement wall, or a stone and brick wall serves the same purpose. Any injury to the mouth of the tile whereby the Tulip Bulbs Should Be Lifted, Divided and Reset Every Third Year—How to Pot Lily.

(By L. M. BENNINGTON.)

Tulips increase by bulblets which issue from the side of the larger bulbs. Under certain conditions, too, the larger bulbs split up into smaller ones. In a well-drained, sunny bed the bulbs will live and increase from year to year, but should be lifted, divided and reset every third year, as the clumps become too much crowded to thrive and bloom.

In potting lilies, set the bulbs two inches or more beneath the soil. The larger the pot, the larger will be the plant. Auratum, Speciosum, Longifolium and Brownii are all suitable for pot culture. After potting, water and set in a dark closet or cellar, keeping the soil moist until roots form and the tops start, when the roots may be brought to a cool window, say in January or February, if early started.

The lilies named are not suitable for winter blooming, but will bloom in the spring if treated as suggested. The Amazon lily (Eucharis) may be similarly cared for, but requires more heat, as it comes from a warm country.

Improving Hog Industry.

When farmers realize the possibilities of exclusive pork growing as a specialized branch of the animal industry, and evolve systems of farm management adapted to the business, it will become attractive to business farmers, and herds of well-bred hogs will become common in many localities where few good hogs are now seen.

A large litter of pigs, is such a drain on her system that it creates an appetite that will require generous feeding for the good of the sow, pigs and the man who contemplates getting quick returns from them.

Hogs for Breeding.

For breeding purposes avoid hogs with long legs and snouts, shallow bodies, narrow heads, contracted heart girths and long pasterns combined with a small bone. Also avoid hogs that are too plump and chubby in appearance. The breeding animal should have plenty of size and a massive appearance. A very fat hog is a bad risk, for there is danger of his breeding facilities being impaired.

Clean the Vegetables.

Vegetables should never be taken to market covered with dirt. It pays to rinse them, as clean food always attracts customers.

Fatten Quickly.

The best exercise market birds get the quicker they will fatten.

A baby that isn't boss around the house doesn't amount to much.

Don't be misled. Ask for Red Cross Bag Blue. Makes beautiful white clothes. At all good grocers. Adv.

Adage Revised.

"Children should be seen and not heard." "Especially when consuming soup."

Exception.

"Nothing ever comes of pipe dreams." "Oh, yes, there does, if one strikes oil."

Appropriate Hospitality.

"What would you give an old sea dog to drink?" "I think I would offer him his choice of port."

He Meant Leonard.

Leonard W. Smith, a plumber's supply dealer in Passaic, left home Thursday evening, telling his wife he would be delayed returning. About one o'clock yesterday morning a man entered the house. Mrs. Smith thought it was her husband, but when she got no answer to her call she left her bed to investigate.

"What are you doing here?" she demanded. "Oh, go to sleep—I'm Charley," was the answer. "And then 'Charley' fled with $10 worth of silverware.—New York American.

Just—Her Husband.

A woman mounted the step of a car, carrying an umbrella like a reversed saber.

The conductor touched her lightly, saying: "Excuse me, madam, but you are likely to put out the eye of the man behind you."

"He's my husband," she snapped, with the tone of full proprietorship.

Such a Foolish Question.

"My wife lost her purse with $15 in it today," said a sad-looking man.

"While going to town or coming home?" inquired a sympathizer.

"Didn't I say it had some money in it?" answered the sad-looking man, and every one knew when she lost it.

Queer Struggle.

"There is one extremely odd thing which happens often in summer."

"What is it?" "That there should be such a hot time over the price of ice."

Alone for the Nonce.

Prue—And when Percy proposed— he was quite beside himself, I'll wager.

Phyllis—I don't remember, but if he was it was the first time during the courtship.

Same Thing.

Yeast—They say a fish never does stop growing.

Chimney-sweep—Well, it hasn't anything on a fish story, at that.—Yonkers Gazette.

He Should Worry.

"The man who is habitually calm is often very exasperating."

"Yes, particularly when he refuses to become excited over our latest hard luck story."

Missing.

"Calls himself an old sea dog, eh?"

"Yes, but nobody has ever been able to locate his bark."

BIG JOBS REQUIRE BIG MEN

DR. THOMAS DIXON CARTER

THE position of general manager of the biggest railroad in the country, or the biggest manufacturing plant, or the biggest mercantile establishment, would sink into insignificance when compared to any of a score of positions in the government service at Washington that have just been filled by the new administration. These big jobs, nearly every one of which has to do with the well-being of millions of the people and carries with it greater responsibility than all civil life can parallel, pay, on the average, $5,000 a year. Quite naturally a five-thousand-dollar man is not big enough for such a job. So the appointive power throws out the dragnet for men big enough for the given task who place public service above profit, or who regard the distinction of a federal office as compensation, or who are men of parts despite the fact that they may not have yet gained such financial standing as to make a hundred dollars a week look unattractive. Have a look at some of these jobs, says W. A. DuPuy, in the Philadelphia Record.

CATO SELLS

considerable proportions in that it has as its object no less a thing than an improvement of the conditions under which dwell all those people of the farms who furnish the food supply for themselves and the 60 per cent who dwell in the cities as well.

REAR ADMIRAL VICTOR BLUE

This new activity in the department of agriculture is known as the rural organization service. It has as its directors Dr. T. N. Carver, professor of economics at Harvard. Dr. Carver is the nation's recognized best authority upon the subject of rural economics. He has written a number of books upon this subject which are regarded as standard. He takes up his present work upon an indefinite leave of absence from Harvard.

UNCLE SAM'S REAL ESTATE OFFICE.

This is a new commission of the general land office, who is a man who has 683,000,000 acres of land for sale. Sales of land are now running on pretty smoothly and amount to about $10,000,000 a year. There have been better years and there have been worse. There was the banner year of the sales through this office away back in 1836, when the land-hungry Anglo-Saxons had reached that choice tier of states including Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Mississippi and Alabama, and were buying fast.

THE GOLD GUARDIAN.

John Burke, three times governor of the great state of North Dakota, is the guardian of the greatest aggregation of actual money that has ever been gotten together in the history of the world. He is the new treasurer of the United States, and this government is the possessor of more wealth than any other institution since Adam.

AN EXECUTIVE HERE.

Rear Admiral Victor Blue, under appointment by the new secretary of the navy, sits at the head of the premier branch of the navy department—the bureau of navigation. Some months ago this young naval officer held the rank of commander and was in service on the Pacific, being chief of staff of the Pacific fleet. Then he was called to Washington for service on the general board, and before long he found himself the head of that bureau which has offices immediately adjoining the secretary with the rank of rear admiral and authority to officiate as acting secretary when Mr. Daniels and Mr. Roosevelt are out of Washington.

SYSTEM DOWN TO A SCIENCE

Absent-Minded Art Show Director Compelled to Unwind a Lot of His Own Red Taps.

John Purroy Mitchell, the new customs collector for New York, praised system at a dinner.

"There's nothing like system," he said. "System will accomplish the impossible."

"The director of a recent art show was a fine chap for system. One day he arrived at the show without his pass and the gatekeeper, a stranger, held him up."

"I have no pass nor ticket," said the system exponent, "but I am the director of the show."

"You'll have to produce your ticket, sir."

"But I tell you I'm the director—high mucky-muck—boss."

"I can't help it, sir; I'm forbidden to let—"

"Yes, I know," said the director impatiently, "but my good fellow, as the director, I give you permission to let me pass."

THE RIGHT SOAP FOR BABY'S SKIN

In the care of baby's skin and hair, Cuticura Soap is the mother's favorite. Not only is it unrivaled in purity and refreshing fragrance, but its gentle emollient properties are usually sufficient to allay minor irritations, remove redness, roughness and chafing, soothe sensitive conditions, and promote skin and hair health generally. Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it is most valuable in the treatment of eczemas, rashes and itching, burning infantile eruptions. Cuticura Soap wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of ordinary soap and making its use most economical.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

She Was Founded.

Violet Jennie was a little girl who originated in a founding asylum. A visitor who had a habit of visiting took a great fancy to V. J. This visitor had a girl of her own whose name was Frances, and permission was asked for V. J. to take tea with Frances.

Frances was having a birthday that day. So Violet (for short) wanted to be very nice, but she felt that she had an advantage over Frances, since not every girl can be an inmate of a founding hospital. Violet Jennie tried not to patronize Frances, but she could hardly help it.

"This is your birthday, Jan't it?" she said sweetly. "So you were born?"

"Why, of course. Everybody is born."

"In your set, I suppose. That's what makes it so common to be born. I wasn't, you know—I was founded!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Epigrams on Youth.

Lillian Russell in a toast on "Youth" at a luncheon in Pittsburgh scattered epigrams like pearls.

"In the end," she said, "in our struggle to keep young, we are all, alas! defeated. The scene of our defeat is marked with a white stone."

"We fight against time, but time fights twenty-four hours a day."

"More people fall in the attempt to become centenarians than in any other business."

"Look," twittered the new man, "Isn't this just a lovely waistcoat? I made it myself out of one of her old hobble skirts. Ain't I saving?"

And the other new man gazed at the garment in voluble admiration.

In the Natural History Class.

"Now," asked the teacher, "who can tell me what an oyster is?"

Silence for a moment, while small brows were knit in strained effort at remembrance. Then little Tommy's facial muscles relaxed and eagerly he raised his hand.

"I know!" he triumphantly announced. "An oyster is a fish hull like a nut."—Everybody's Magazine.

Plea for Kitchen.

The kitchen should be the refinery, the laboratory, the factory of the home, and the pivotal point about which the activities of the home revolve. Costs should be considered thoughtfully; no scrap of food should be used again in various ways. By buying staple food supplies in large quantities from 15 to 30 per cent can be saved. Any one wishing to do so may economize in this way. Housewives must not look upon their art as more drudgery; they must bring education, intelligence, and concentration into practice. They should learn, as manufacturers have, that the best results are to be obtained in a workshop that is well lighted, properly ventilated, and comfortably large, suitably furnished, and sanitary in all its equipments.—Leslie's.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Cascoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 20 years—the genuine Cascoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Cascoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Fathers who have used Cascoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the malicious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

Genuine Cascoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

COMMISSIONERS PROCEEDINGS

(September 1st, 1913)

Board met at two o'clock p. m. Present: Hon. Melvin Franks Chairman; R. A. Duran, Member; W. M. Ferguson, Member; A. T. Roberts, Deputy Sheriff; A. H. Harvey, County Clerk.

In the matter of the contract Pauly Jail Building Company, for the construction and placing of jail cells at Carrizozo, N. M.

The contracting company by their construction superintendent, Mr. Frank J. Link, submits to the Board that their contract has been complied with and that jail cells are properly in place and asks for a settlement on said contract.

The Board having considered said construction and being sufficiently advised in the premises orders that work as completed be accepted and the matter of payment is laid over until the next meeting of the Board, for advice.

In the matter of monthly estimates of supervising Architect Otto Goetz for the month of August, 1913, it is shown to the Board that the amount of work during said month was in amount $791.00 of which amount 80 per cent is now due to the Contractor and payable and the Board thereupon orders that the following amounts be paid and warrants were drawn for same: Ben Bechtel, Contractor.....$681 80 Otto Goetz, Architect.....110 00

The bill of Otto Goetz for $121 39 is allowed for the sum of $110.00 only. Whereupon Otto Goetz at the time gives notice of his protest against said rejection.

In the matter of the lighting plant for Carrizozo Court House, W. J. Doering is authorized to install Coleman Lighting System comprising eight lights and three standard lamps in accordance with estimate furnished and filed with the Clerk of this Board.

And now the Board stands adjourned until Monday, September 16th, 1913, at nine o'clock a. m.
