CARRIZOZO, LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1913.

PRICE $1.50 PER YEAR

CHEAP STATE LANDS

Methods of Purchasing Land From State is Simple. $3 Per Acre Minimum

THIRTY YEARS TO PAY IN

The purchase of state lands is especially becoming more popular than homesteading under the Federal law and as soon as the general public becomes familiar with the ease with which state land may be acquired the entries of land under the cumberston Homestead laws will take a second position in popularity and the title to be given land will be acquired then by the easy process provided under the state law.

To acquire state land by purchase in this vicinity a total price of $3.00 per acre must be paid. One tenth of this amount must be paid at the time of making application and the balance is paid in thirty (30) equal yearly installments and the rate of interest is fixed at four (4) per cent.

Taking as an example 160 acres of land, the usual unit under homesteading. The applicant at the time of making entry pays down $48.00, or one tenth of the total price of $480 as soon as the application to purchase is received at the state office; a receipt is issued and after the issuance of this receipt the entryman may take possession of the land and make any improvements he may see fit. No improvements are required, however, at any time, and there are no taxes on the land until deed is made.

After the acceptance of the application and the designation of the land as state land, a contract is sent to the entrymen in which he agrees to pay in the instance cited above, $14.40 a year together with 4 per cent interest from year to year on the balance due which becomes less each year as the principal is reduced. The applicant may at any time pay the full amount and at that time the Commissioner of lands will issue a patent as deed to the land.

There is no limit to the amount of land one person or firm may purchase. Some tracts now being sold contain as high as 100,000 acres. These same rules hold good as to larger tracts as are in force as to small ones.

The main advantages of this system to the average person are:

- No residence is required.
- No cultivation is required.
- No improvements required.
- Easy yearly payments with small interest on all amounts unpaid.
- No limit as to area taken.
- No technicalities with proofs etc., to comply with.
- Grazing land is not destroyed by plowing as required under Homestead laws.

The above reasons together with the simple process of acquiring the lands are figured to make state lands more popular than Homesteading soon, and will undoubtedly encourage settlement and development of the state.

The lands cannot always be purchased at $3.00 as they are placed on sale at public auction and the highest bidder gets the land and if he is not the original applicant all monies as deposited by the applicant are returned. Very little conflict is anticipated however, as there is plenty of lands on hand and the state has over 800,000 acres to dispose of in this way.

The purchase of state lands takes the right-of-way over the application to lease and if land is already designated and under lease the lease is cancelled on the subsequent October 1st, and the land placed on sale, all parties having an equal chance to purchase same.

Soon after entry has been made on a piece of land the entryman may relinquish the land and at the same time apply to lease with very little risk as to his rights to the land and his priority.

There are many details that may arise in the minds of persons interested in the new system and the Outlook will be pleased to answer all questions and give information to any who may write or call.

Applications for state land can usually be made without the person applying going further than to the nearest notary public.

The many advantages to this new system of acquiring lands appear at once to the minds of the persons who have become familiar with the laws governing homesteading and we doubt if many homesteads have been perfected at the small expense of less than $500 for 160 acres. It is not our intention to discourage homesteading, as this homestead has its advantages. But for many the state laws will provide a method that will be very popular.

WENTWORTH-BAREFOOT

On Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the home of the bride's parent, Miss Martha R. Barefoot was united in marriage to William C. Wentworth. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson, Mr. Wentworth, brother of the groom, Mr. Girard and several others. The groom came here from New Jersey and has made a number of friends. The bride is well known in Carrizozo, having lived here several years and has many friends. This is a happy young couple and we wish them a long lifetime of wedded bliss. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Haywood who was accompanied by his wife. This is the last of Mrs. Millican's family to enter the state of matrimony, but all her daughters live in the community, so will be able to be of comfort and blessing to their widowed mother.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY UNION

The ladies of the Baptist church held a reception at the residence of Mrs. H. S. Campbell on Wednesday afternoon which proved to be a most enjoyable affair, not only by the new members in whose honor it was given but also to the invited guests. The psalm selections by Mrs. Donelson were fine, followed by a solo by Mrs. Haywood, then two eloquent renditions by Mrs. Sherry. The audience was delighted by the reading of an amusing but pathetic story by Mrs. Haywood and closing address by the president followed by a few encouraging comments by the minister H. Haywood. Delightful refreshments were served. These ladies deserve the highest commendation for their untiring zeal in this missionary work during the past year.

LINCOLN COUNTY NOTES

News of Week from Around Lincoln County Briefly Told

WHITE OAKS WHIFFS

Albert Ziegler of the house of good taste, at Carrizozo was a visitor at his old haunts Tuesday of this week looking over in a sort of pathetic way the old store building where he and Jake used to hand out silks, dainties, taters and onions in a thoroughly impartial and promiscuous way.

Rev. Charles Robinson of Bowie, Texas, an evangelist, has been holding a series of meetings here for the past week trying to loosen the grip which his Satanic majesty is supposed to have on the place. The peculiar thing about it is, that in attempting to give the devil his dues he would rob him of all his earthly possessions. Quite a number of converts were made during these meetings.

Robert Fauvet one of the old timers here died at a hospital in El Paso where he had gone for treatment the latter part of the week, and was buried here Monday evening. Mr. Fauvet came to White Oaks in the early eighties and bought him a small ranch in the canyon above town and made his living by furnishing the people of this place with fresh vegetables every season. He was somewhat of a recluse but usually showed a friendly disposition toward those who treated him in like manner and had the crowning virtue of always sticking to his own affairs and leaving those of his neighbors alone. He was well looked after during his last illness by H. S. Hanner an old time friend.

White Oaks is just now nursing the first real miners' strike ever pulled off in the camp. The men at work for the Wild Cat company including mill men, miners, cyanidiers and teamsters knocked off Monday with a demand for shorter hours and an increase of wages all in a lump. This the company did not feel able to grant so things are at a stand still. It is reported to have all originated from a keg of beer placed on tap Sunday which kept foaming and fermenting for a day or two after it was down. To an impartial onlooker this appears to be one of the most unfortunate things that could have occurred, both for the mine owners and the employees. Conditions here are certainly different from mines operated by a rich company with millions involved. The owners in this instance are boys who grew up in the town and started in about five years ago with out means of their own. They at first did much of the work themselves and have struggled along the best they could, always keeping something going in camp. At times it was a struggle to keep their heads above water, but they kept persistently at it until now. They have a fine power plant and have lately added ten more stamps to their mill for all of which they were compelled to go deeply in debt. They but lately paid their workmen all their wages due up to the beginning of last month and were just beginning to look up towards easy street when this additional handicap was slipped over their heads. As the miners themselves, they are pretty sure to lose far more in the stoppage of all wages, and the delay and expense of securing work elsewhere than they could possibly have gained by the increase of wages demanded. A strike is something like a setting hen; at first she ruffles up her feathers without quite knowing why she does so, then she persists in spite of reason or persuasion when all the time if allowed her way she would only bring upon herself a brood of trouble and tribulation.

NEW SERVICE WATER SUIT

Summons and complaints are again being served on some six hundred defendants in the case of the United States vs. the Hondo water users, involving the water rights of all settlers along the Rufidosa, Eagle, Bonito and Hondo streams from their sources in the White Mountains to the Hondo water project in Chavez County. Service was had on the defendants once before in this matter but it was found that a revised list was necessary as many of the defendants named in the first summons or complaint were either dead or had left the country some years ago and the title to the land had passed to others who are now named as defendants.

A special assistant to the attorney general has been appointed, F. F. Trusdell, who will assist United States District Attorney Burkhardt in the preparation of the cases.

The E. P. & S. W. are interested in the suit as they own many water rights along Eagle and Bonito and are conveying their waters to Carrizozo for railroad purposes.

The original purpose of the suit is to adjudicate the water rights of all the settlers along these streams, and the government brings the suit to determine its share of water for the Hondo reclamation project in Chavez county.

It may be many months before the present action reaches a hearing since tremendous amount of work will be required in the search of old records covering the water rights involved, many of them dating back to the days prior to the American occupation of New Mexico.

MINE DISASTER AT DAWSON

What is probably the most awful calamity in the history of the state of New Mexico occurred Wednesday at Dawson when an explosion occurred in the recesses of the coal mine there and entombed over 284 miners. The work of rescue has been steadily going on and many special trains of doctors, nurses and relief supplies have been going to the scene of the catastrophe. Fifty seven men have been taken out dead and twenty three alive but all hope of rescuing any more alive has been abandoned is the latest report which is received as we go to press. Two of the Van Houten rescue crews who were at the scene have been taken out dead.

A multitude of the railroad employees at Dawson have been instructed to start digging graves.

Ramon St. John well known here and who left but a few days ago for Dawson, and Marcial Chavez a half brother of Ben Lujan who was a regular employ there are among those still unaccounted for.

The El Paso Times this morning states there are 247 believed to be dead.

Judge Edward L. Medler called Court into session on Friday morning especially to instruct the Jury Commission composed of Chas. D. Mayer, W. O. Norman and J. Baird French in their duties as Jury commissioners. The Jury commission is at work selecting the names of five hundred in this county who are eligible for jury service during the coming year. The Judge gave the commission particular instructions to get good men and to take thirty days at the work if necessary.

MINES AND NEW MEXICO

Practical Mining has Proven to be Very Profitable Where Entered Into

N. MEX. SHOULD HAVE NERVE

Here in New Mexico we have paid a great deal of attention to all matters which is proper. We have it. We have paid considerable attention to agriculture and irrigation; it is proper, we have them. We have paid very little attention of a consistent character to mining. We have had our share of the "wild cat" miner and the "wild cat" promoter, and we have become—all but a few adventurous spirits—afraid of one of our greatest resources.

The following is a portion of an advance proof from the "Mining World" for October which gives some rather interesting figures upon the profits to be made from practical mining. The entire table is not quoted, being too complicated for publication here. The editorial follows:

In no other nine-months' period in the history of American mining and metallurgy have mines and works shown as large dividend disbursements as those in the period just ended. And this too, despite the general belief that the present year has not been a profitable one as relating to mining. When 146 companies, looking to the operators of mines for their profits, can pay in nine months $78,772,632, it would seem that there has been little reason for the pessimism prevailing. Compared with the same period in 1912 there is shown an increase in the amount of dividends paid of $12,902,109, and with 1911 an increase of $17,993,232. In the 1913 period 146 companies participated, while in 1912 there was 138 and in 1911, 123. In total dividends in 1913 have to their credit disbursements amounting to no less than $896,232,192.

The copper properties, 34 in number, have had a particularly satisfactory nine months' period, despite the strike in the Lake Superior region, for dividends were paid totaling $39,270,115. This shows an increase over the same period in 1912 of $9,449,087. Since incorporation these companies have divided among shareholders $120,434,003.

The properties classed as gold-silver-lead zinc producers, too have had a fairly prosperous nine months' period, for 106 of these yielded profits sufficient to pay to shareholders $28,406,939. To date these companies have paid dividends totaling $333,007,467.

Six metallurgical companies disbursed during the period $12,095,538 and ten securities holding corporations $18,707,042.

Lincoln County is one of the many very highly mineralized districts of this state. There has been hard luck and failure in Lincoln county, just as there has been in other sections of the state. We should not lose our nerve here in the new state—we should consider what practical mining will produce in the way of dollars.

MOLLY McDONALD A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

SYNOPSIS.

Major McDonald, commanding an army post near Fort Dodge, seeks a man to intercept his daughter, Molly, who is headed for the post. An Indian outbreak is threatened. "Brick" Hamlin, sergeant who has just arrived with messages to McDonald, volunteers for the mission. Molly arrives at Fort Ripley two days ahead of schedule. She decides to buy on to Fort Dodge by stage in company with "Butter Bill" Moylan, Gonzalez, a gambler, is also a passenger. Hamlin meets the stage with stories of depredations committed by the Indians. The driver deserts the stage when Indians appear. The Indians are twice repulsed. Hamlin and Molly escape in the darkness. Molly is wounded. Hamlin is much excited at finding a haversack marked C. S. A. He explains to Molly that he was in the Confederate service and dismissed in disgrace under charges of cowardice. At the close of the war he enlisted in the regular service. He says the haversack was the property of one Capt. LeFevre, who he suspects of being responsible for his disgrace. Troops appear and under escort of Lieut. Gaskins Molly starts to join her father. Hamlin leaves to rejoin his regiment. He returns to Fort Dodge after a number of fighting Indians, and finds Molly there. Shots are heard in the night. Hamlin rushes out, sees what he believes is the figure of Molly hiding in the darkness and calls over the body of Lieutenant Gaskins, who accuses Hamlin of shooting him. The sergeant is proven innocent. He sees Molly in company with Mrs. Dupont, whom he recognizes as a former sweetheart, who throw him over for LeFevre. Mrs. Dupont tells Hamlin LeFevre forced her to send him a lying note.

"Because I chance to know more than you suppose. Never mind how the information reached me; had it been less authentic you might find me now more susceptible to your presence, more choice in my language. A carefully concealed plot drove me from the Confederate service, in which you were as deeply involved as LeFevre. His double object was to advance him in rank and get me out of the way. The plan worked perfectly; I could have met and fought either object alone, but the two combined broke me utterly. I had no spirit of resistance left. Yet even then—in spite of that miserable letter—I retained faith in you. I returned home to learn the truth from your own lips, only to discover you had already gone. I was a month learning the facts; then I discovered you had married LeFevre in Richmond; I procured the affidavit of the officiating clergyman. Will you deny now?"

"No," changing her manner instantly—"what is the use? I married the man, but I was deceived, misled. There was no conspiracy in which I was concerned. I did not know where you were; from then until this afternoon I never saw or heard of you. Molly told me of her recou by a soldier named Hamlin, but I never suspected the truth until we drove by the barracks. Then I yielded to my first mad impulse and sent that note. It was felt toward me with such bit-

"Will You Deny It Now?"

ness, why did you come here? Why consent to meet me again?" "My yielding was a second impulse. At first I decided to ignore your note; then came the second consideration—Miss McDonald." "Oh," and she laughed. "At last I read the riddle. Not satisfied with saying that young lady from savages, you would also preserve her youthful innocence from the contamination of my influence. Quite noble of you, surely. Are you aware of our relationship?" "I have heard it referred to—garrisonian."

well as my intimacy in the McDonald household. And you proposed interfering, plan to drive me forth from this pleasant bird's nest. Really you amuse me, Mr. Sergeant Hamlin."

"But I have not proposed anything of that nature," the man said quietly, rising to his feet. "It is, of course, nothing to me, except that Miss McDonald has been very kind and seems a very nice girl. As I knew something of you and your past, I thought perhaps you might realize how much better it would be to retire gracefully."

"You mean that as a threat? You intend to tell her?"

"Not unless it becomes necessary; I am not proud of the story myself." Their eyes met, and there was no shadow of softness in either face. The woman's lips curled sarcastically.

"Really, you take yourself quite seriously, do you not? One might think you still Major of the Fourth Texas, and heir to the old estate on the Brazos. You talked that way to me once before, only to discover that I had claws with which to scratch. Don't make that mistake again, Mr. Sergeant Hamlin, or there will be something more serious than scratching done. I have learned how to fight in the past few years—Heaven knows I have had opportunity—and rather enjoy the excitement. How far would your word go with Molly, do you think? Or with the Major?"

"That remains to be seen." "Does it? Oh, I understand. You must still consider yourself quite the lady-killer. Well, let me tell you something—she is engaged to Lieutenant Gaskins."

His hand-grip lightened on the rail, but there was no change in the expression of his face.

"So I had heard. I presume that hardly would have been permitted to happen but for the existence of a Mr. Dupont. By the way, which one of you ladies shot the Lieutenant?"

It was a chance fire, and Hamlin was not sure of its effect, although she drew a quick breath, and her voice faltered.

"Shot—Lieutenant Gaskins?" "Certainly; you must be aware of that?"

"Oh, I know he had some altercation, and was wounded; he accused you, did he not? But why bring us into the affair?"

"Because some woman was directly concerned in it. Whoever she may be, the officers of the fort are convinced that she probably fired the shot; that the Lieutenant knows her identity, and is endeavoring to shield her from discovery."

"Why do they think that? What reason can they have for such a conclusion? Was she seen?"

"Her footprints were plainly visible, and the revolver used was a small one—a '36'—such as a woman alone would carry in this country. I have said so to no one else, but I saw her, crouching in the shadow of the barrack wall."

"You—you saw her? Recognized her?"

"Yes." "And made no attempt at arrest? Have not even mentioned the fact to others? You must have a reason?"

"I have, Mrs. Dupont, but we will not discuss it now. I merely wish you to comprehend that if it is to be war between us, I am in possession of weapons."

She had not lost control of herself, yet there was that about her hesitancy of speech, her quick breathing, which evidenced her surprise at this discovery. It told him that he had played a good hand, had found a point of weakness in her armor. The mystery of it remained unrolled, but this woman knew who had shot Gaskins; knew, and had every reason to guard the secret. He felt her eyes anxiously searching his face, and laughed a little bitterly.

"You perceive, madam," he went on, encouraged by her silence, "I am not now exactly the same unassuming youth with whom you played so easily years ago. I have learned some of life's lessons since; among them, how to fight fire with fire. It is a trick of the plains. Do you still consider it necessary for your happiness to remain the guest of the McDonalds?"

She straightened up, turning her eyes away.

"Probably not for long, but it is no threat of yours which influences me. It does not even interest me to know who shot Lieutenant Gaskins. In a vulgar little prig, only made possible by the possession of money. However, when I decide to depart, I shall probably do so without consulting your pleasure." She hesitated, her voice softening as though in change of mood. "Yet I should prefer parting with you in friendship. In asking you to meet me tonight I had no intention of quarrelling; merely yielded to an impulse of regret for the past."

The heavy curtain draping the window was drawn aside, permitting the light from within to flash upon them, revealing the figure of a man in uniform.

"Pardon my interruption," he explained, bowing, "but you were gone so long, Mrs. Dupont, I feared some accident."

She laughed lightly. "You are very excusable. No doubt I have been here longer than I supposed."

The officer's eyes surveyed the soldier standing erect, his hand lifted in salute. The situation puzzled him.

"Sergeant Hamlin, how are you here? On leave?"

"Yes, sir."

"Of course this is rather unusual, Captain Barrett," said the lady hastily, tapping the astonished officer lightly with her fan, "but I was once quite well acquainted with Sergeant Hamlin when he was a major of the Fourth Texas Infantry during the late war. He and my husband were intimates. Naturally I was delighted to meet him again."

The captain stared at the man's rigid figure.

"Good Lord, I never knew that, Hamlin," he exclaimed. "Glad to know it, my man. You see," he explained lamely, "we got all kinds of fellows in the ranks, and are not interested in their past history. I've had Hamlin under my command for two years now, and hanged if I knew anything about him, except that he was a good soldier. Were you ready to go, Mrs. Dupont?"

"Oh, yes; we have exhausted all our reminiscences. Goodby, Sergeant; so glad to have met you again."

She extended her ungloved hand, a single diamond glittering in the light. He accepted it silently, aware of the slight pressure of her fingers. Then the Captain assisted her through the window, and the falling curtain veiled them from view.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Another Message.

Hamlin sank back on the bench and leaned his head on his hand. Had anything been accomplished by this interview? One thing, at least—he had thoroughly demonstrated that the charm once exercised over his imagination by this beautiful woman had completely vanished. He saw her now as she was—heartless, selfish, using her spell of beauty for her own sordid ends. If there had been left a shred of romance in his memory of her, it was now completely shattered. Her coolness, her adroit changing of moods, convinced him she was playing a game. What game? Nothing in her words had revealed its nature, yet the man instinctively felt that it must involve Molly McDonald. Laboriously he reviewed, word by word, each sentence exchanged, striving to find some clue. He had pricked her in the Gaskins affair, there was no doubt of that; she knew, or at least suspected, the party being shot. She denied at first having been married to LeFevre, and yet later had been compelled to acknowledge that marriage. There then was a deliberate falsehood, which must have been told for a purpose. What purpose? Did she imagine it would make any difference with him, or did she seek to shield LeFevre from discovery? The latter reason appeared the more probable, for the man must have been in the neighborhood lately, else where did that haversack come from?

So engrossed was Hamlin with these thoughts that he hardly realized that some one had lifted the window curtain cautiously. The beam of light flashed across him, disappearing before he could lift his head to ascertain the cause. There a voice spoke, and he leaned back to listen.

"Not there; gone back to the dance likely, while we were at the bar." "Nobody out there?" this fellow growled his words.

"Some soldier asleep with his head on the rail; drunk, I reckon. Who was she with this time?"

"Barrett?"

"Who? Oh, yes, the fellow who brought in that troop of the Seventh. Lord, the old girl is getting her hooks into him early. Well, as long as Gaskins is laid up, she may as well amuse herself somewhere else. Barrett is rather a good looking, isn't he? Do you know anything about the man? Has he got any stuff?"

"Don't know," answered the gruff voice. "He's a West Pointer. Vera likes to nurse herself once in a while; that's the woman of it. Heard from Gaskins tonight?"

"Oh, he's all right," the man laughed. "That little prick frightened him though. Shut up like a clam."

"No I heard. We'll pay to keep the show going all right. As soon as he is well enough to stand down here, we'll get his hands. Spring let him shot by a cavalry sergeant, didn't he?" "And sticks to it like a mule. Must have it in for that fellow. Well, it helped our get-away."

"Yes, we're safe enough, unless Gaskins talks, and he's so in love with the McDonald girl he'll spill out big rather than have any scandal now. Wish I could get a word with Vera tonight; she ought to see him tomorrow—compassion, womanly sympathy, and all that rot, you know, helps the game. Let's drift over toward the Palace, Dan, and maybe I can give her the sign."

Hamlin caught a glimpse of their backs as they passed out—one in infantry fatigue, the other, a heavier built man, fairly well dressed in citizen's clothes. Inspired by a desire to see their features the Sergeant swung himself over the rail, and dropped lightly to the ground. In another moment he was out on the street, in front of the hotel, watching the open door. The two passed within a few feet of him, clearly revealed in the light streaming from the dance hall. The soldier lagged somewhat behind, an insignificant, rat-faced fellow, but the larger man walked straight, with squared shoulders. He wore a broad-brimmed hat pulled low over his eyes, and a black beard concealed the lower portion of his face. Hamlin followed as the two pushed their way up among the idle crowds congregated on the wooden steps, and peered in through the wide doorway. Satisfied that he would recognize both worthies when they met again, and realizing now something of the plot being operated, Hamlin edged in closer toward the sergeant who was guarding the entrance. The latter recognized him with a nod.

"Pretty busy, Masters?"

"Have been, but there will be a lull now; when they come back from supper there'll be another rush likely. Would you mind taking my job a minute while I go outside?"

"Not in the least; take your time. Let me see what the tickets look like. That's all right—say, Masters, before you go, do you know that big duffer with a black beard in the front line?"

The other gave a quick glance down the faces.

"I've seen him before; dealt fare at the Poodle Dog a while; said to be a gun-man. Never heard his name. Oh, yes, come to think about it, they called him 'Red'—Confed soldier, I reckon. Ain't seen him before for a month. Got into some kind of a shootin' scrap up at Mike Kelly's and skipped out ahead of the marshal. Why?"

"Nothing particular—looks familiar, that's all. Who's the soldier behind him—the thin-faced runt?"

"Connor. Some river-rat the recruiting officers picked up in New York; in the guard-house most of the time; driver for Major McDonald when he happens to be sober enough."

"That is where I saw him then; driving the ladies. Knew I had seen that mug before."

Frenchman Works Short Time. Recent investigations into the hours of work by officials of the French department of navigation have brought to light a record in government employment in the shape of an official whose daily "hours of duty" amount to exactly two minutes.

This man dwells at a place on the Belgian frontier, and his arduous labor consists in fetching from one office a list of the number of barges that have entered French territory the previous 24 hours and handing the said list in at another office. If the position be a sinecure, the pay is not high, the remuneration amounting to $1.10 a week.

Improvement on Aeroplanes. Capt. W. L. Chambers' invention of a catapult device to launch hydro-aeroplanes from warships is characterized by Glenn H. Curtiss as "the most important achievement since wheels were put upon land machines." The device, only 30 feet long, enables the aeroplane to be immediately after leaving the ship's deck.

They Hadn't Been Wasted. "Oh, Mr. Broomer." The sad-eyed young poet was calling to his boarding-mistress. "Did you throw away those blank sheets I left on my table this morning?" "I did, Mr. Scribbles," came the apologetic reply; "weren't they waste paper?" "Not yet," returned the poet, sadly; "I hadn't written anything on them."

THE BEST TREATMENT FOR ITCHING SCALPS, DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura Ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura Ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

His Reformation. Uplifter—Aren't you ashamed to ask for money? Weary Willie—I got six months for taking it without asking.

Literary. Sentimental Sue—Did you have a woman come stealing gently into your life? Practical Pete—Yes. She was a lady pickpocket.

One Obstacle to Happiness. "No," declared the young man, with a touch of sadness in his voice—"It may be that some day I shall be happy, but at present it is beyond me." His companions were interested. "There is a girl I love dearly," he continued. "She would have me if I asked her, but I dare not. I really cannot marry and live on $10,000 a year."

Consternation and pity were depicted on the faces of his friends. "You can't marry on $10,000 a year?" asked one. "Why not?" "Why not?" echoed the youth. "Simply because I haven't the $10,000!"

Fishing for Fish. Many people there are who delight in just fishing for fish. Such a one was John Quincy Adams. The story was told by one of his clients, whose case was to be tried on a certain morning, that he could not get his counsel to leave his fishing boat except long enough to write a note to the judge which read: "Dear Judge—For the sake of Isaac Walton please continue my case until Friday. The smelt are biting, and I can't leave." And the judge having read the note, announced to the court: "Mr. Adams is detained on important business."—Christian Herald.

HAPPY OLD AGE Most Likely to Follow Proper Eating.

As old age advances we require less food to replace waste, and food that will not overtax the digestive organs, while supplying true nourishment. Such an ideal food is found in Grape-Nuts, made of whole wheat and barley by long baking and action of diastase in the barley which changes the starch into a most digestible sugar.

The phosphates also, placed up under the outer-coat of the wheat, are included in Grape-Nuts, but are lacking in white flour because the outer-coat of the wheat darkens the flour and is left out by the miller. These natural phosphates are necessary to the well-balanced building of muscle, brain and nerve cells.

"I have used Grape-Nuts," writes an Iowa man, "for 8 years and feel as good and am stronger than I was ten years ago." "Among my customers I meet a man every day who is well along in years and attributes his good health to Grape-Nuts and Postum which he has used for the last 5 years. He mixes Grape-Nuts with Postum and says they go fine together."

"For many years before I began to eat Grape-Nuts, I could not say that I enjoyed life or knew what it was to be able to say 'I am well.' I suffered greatly with constipation, but now my habits are as regular as ever in my life."

"Whenever I make extra effort I depend on Grape-Nuts and it just fills the bill. I can think and write a great deal easier." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pages.

Have you read the above letter? A new use appears from them. It is that of a laxative, from, and that of human interest.

LINCOLN COUNTY NOTES

FORT STANTON NOTES

James Hanna of No. 4 attended to some business matters at Capitan last Monday morning.

Chas. U. Babbs made a business trip to Capitan last Wednesday afternoon.

John Shanahan, hill nurse, has returned from an extended trip east.

Mrs. George Oliver left Sunday on the mail auto for Picacho to teach in the local school there

J. J. Hollem returned last week from Carrizozo where he had been acting as one of the Grand Jurors.

Mr. Sitton made a trip in his touring car to the Indian Agency Sunday.

Walter Scott of the Scottish quartette returned last week from a three weeks' visit in El Paso.

Edward Ralph, formerly of No. 4 but now of Nogales, Arizona, is reported quite ill at the local sanitarium in that city.

John Able left Monday morning for the Indian Agency to attend to orders given by the commanding officer.

Mrs. F. C. Smith and mother, Mrs. Bagg, accompanied by Henry O'Bannon, drove to Capitan last Tuesday afternoon.

Messrs. Giles and Delaney of No. 10 left last Monday for their homes at Toledo, Ohio, and New York respectively.

Miss Ella Peterson assistant nurse at No. 10 for the past year left Monday for her home in El Poso.

The large and beautiful apple crop at the Fort Stanton gardens is being gathered by the farm attendants. The finest apples in the state are grown in this vicinity.

The beautiful souvenir book of Fort Stanton is on sale at the Post store, and is selling rapidly. It makes a neat present to send to friends in the east.

A party from the Post visited Miss Rose Lutz at Lincoln last Thursday and report a most pleasant time. The party consisted of Miss Emma Smith, Mrs. Leach, Wm. Johnson and Chaplain Frund.

Commanding officer Dr. F. C. Smith spent the major part of last week at the Indian Agency attending to business pertaining to the herding of a large number of cattle on the Indian reservation.

The services both in the chapel and Library hall last Sunday were largely attended. Chaplain Frund expressed his pleasure in noting the interest taken by both officers and attendants.

Dr. Lanza's many friends are busy congratulating him on his engagement to be married next month. The marriage will take place at the bride's home at Nashville, Tenn.

James Egan, local assistant post master, is in full charge during the absence of post master Joseph Gentry, who is at his home in Tennessee on a vacation. Captain Van Zant is assisting Mr. Egan.

Mrs. Dr. McKeon of No. 2 leaves Thursday for El Paso where she will meet her husband who is on his way here from New York. After a week's stay in El Paso they will return to the Post.

The Number four quartette is becoming more popular each week. Their singing during the services last Sunday evening was splendid. We expect something special from them in the near future.

On Sunday noon last a telegram was received at the Fort announcing the sad news of the death of Doctor W. W. Markoe at Charleston, New Hampshire. Dr. Markoe was one of the oldest members of the Fort Stanton medical staff, having served here for nine years. He leaves a wife and two small children. Chaplain Frund announced during the services Sunday evening that a special memorial service would be held in Library hall next Sunday evening, at 7:30 for Dr. Markoe.

CAPITAN HIGH SCHOOL

I feel sure that the people of Lincoln County desire to know how their County High School is progressing. It is progressing. It is surpassing all expectations, and the people of the county should be proud of the fact. The school opened, I believe, with ten High School students. We now have fifteen, with prospects of seven or eight more within the near future. Before the close of the school year, we are confident of twenty students in the High School. This is a good showing. Many pessimists around over the county predicted two or three students. Even one or two of the Capitan citizens made this prediction.

Mr. Jas. V. Tully of Glencoe, our representative from this county to the state legislature was in town last week and purchased some lots on which he contemplates building a residence to which he can move his family for school. Fred Pfingsten is also contemplating the erection of a residence here for the like purpose. We have had many other inquiries concerning the prospects for the future of Capitan and the Lincoln County High school located here. We are glad that in each instance we have been able to give encouraging views. We believe that the thinking people of the county have their eyes on Capitan as a place where they can move to educate their children.

I have never met a more enthusiastic "bunch" than the High School "bunch." They will not only make a showing this season in their educational accomplishments, but in the athletic field as well. In fact we believe that we have the best basket ball teams, a girls' team and a boys' team, in the county, and we expect them to make a showing this season. Of course, they are not to give too much time to sports, but the rules will require each student to make a certain grade in his studies before he can belong to the basket ball team.

L. R. YORK.

BIG TENT SHOW COMING

Burk's big "Uncle Tom's Cabin Company" will exhibit at Carrizozo, Saturday, October 25. This is the first time that the public have had an opportunity of seeing the "New Version" of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the greatest dramatization of this popular play ever written. Mrs. Stowe's Historical play has ever been a favorite with the women and children, and they always go to see it whenever an opportunity presents itself. Burk's Big "Uncle Tom's Cabin Co." has the distinction of being the largest organization of its kind on the road. They carry a special train of their own cars to transport their People, Horses, Ponies, Donkeys, Dogs, Chariots, and other paraphernalia necessary to present the only Grand Spectacular Production of this, the most successful drama ever written. The characters of Uncle Tom, Eliza, Little Eva and Marks are all ably presented by a competent cast, and the large Contingent of Singers and Dancers, Blood Hounds, etc., give a realistic and sensational naturalism to the performance. The scenic and mechanical effects are good, and the picturesque transformation scene forms a fitting finish to the whole. So carry the news and tell your neighbors.

NOTICE OF CONTEST
Department of the Interior
United States Land Office Roswell, N. M.
October 8, 1913
To Thomas J. Givins, of Carrizozo, N. M., Contestee.
You are hereby notified that Jose Lopez, who gives Carrizozo, New Mexico, as his post office address, did on September 17, 1913, file in this office his duly corroborated application to contest and secure the cancellation of your Homestead, Entry No. 1019863 made August 28th, 1909 for S1NW1 and N1SW1, Section 31, Township 7 S, Range 11 E, N. M. P. Meridian, and as grounds for his contest he alleges that said Thomas J. Givins has wholly abandoned said above described land and claim and has been absent therefrom for more than two years, last past; that he is not now residing upon the same;
You are, therefore, further notified that the said allegations will be taken by this office as having been confessed by you, and your said entry will be cancelled thereunder without your further right to be heard therein; either before this office or on appeal, if you fail to file in this office within twenty days after the FOURTH publication of this notice, as shown below, your answer, under oath, specifically meeting and responding to these allegations of contest, or if you fail within that time to file in this office due proof that you have served a copy of your answer on the said contestant either in person or by registered mail. If this service is made by the delivery of a copy of your answer to the contestant in person, proof of such service must be either the said contestant's written acknowledgment of his receipt of the copy, showing the date of its receipt, or the affidavit of the person by whom the delivery was made stating when and where the copy was delivered; if made by registered mail, proof of such service must consist of the affidavit of the person by whom the copy was mailed stating when and the post office to which it was mailed, and this affidavit must be accompanied by the postmaster's receipt for the letter.
You should state in your answer the name of the post office to which you desire future notices to be sent to you.

Gathered Smiles

HE'S SPOTTED DEAR.

Two young ladies were examining the exhibits at the zoo last Sunday. "Oh, what a beautiful spotted deer!" The other woman bowed her head and wept.

"Why, what is the matter with you?" "I don't know how it hurts my feelings to have you talk about spotted deer. I once had a spotted deer."

"You had?"

"Yes; my dear was a tram-car conductor, and we were going to get married, but the company spotted him, and my dear had to resign his position, and ever since I have had to cry whenever I hear anybody talking about a spotted deer."

A Dark Hint.

Somebody was talking to a newly-married couple who were spending their honeymoon at Scarborough. "You must not leave Scarborough till you've seen the cemetery," he said; "it's well worth a visit!"

They said they would go, but they forgot about it until too late. Then the young wife reproached her husband. "George," she said, "you haven't taken me to the cemetery yet."

"Well, dear," was the reply, "that is a pleasure I must defer until some time in the future."—Pearson's.

"The Plot of the Show."

Jones—Well, Smithy, how did you like the show last night?

Smith—Oh, fair.

Jones—What was the plot?

Smith—Don't know. Think it was between the author and the manager to get two dollars out of the audience.—Life.

AS EXPLAINED.

Jack—He made his money in automobiles and football.

Orme—He doesn't look like a sporting man.

Jack—No; he's a doctor.

After Vacation.

The dame was rather willow before she went away. The salt air made her willows; Gained forty pounds, they say.

Wounds Like It.

"Jim Jones since he went to college indulges in such vesquidalian language."

"Dear me! What a depraved young man he must be!"

Our Langwidge.

"I am inclined to let Jones down easy," said the boss.

"Why?" asked the manager.

"Because he is hard up," replied the boss.

Gentleman Farmer.

"I hear Wombat is a gentleman farmer now."

"Right up to the notch, too. Put a sweater dress on all his scarecrows every day at dusk."

Breaking the News.

"I hear you are going to retire from politics," said the ward worker.

"I haven't said any such thing," replied the man with an ooze.

"I know you haven't. I heard it from the boss of our organization."

Right Up in Front.

"That fellow's always in the spot light."

"What's he done now?"

"Haven't you heard? He's a personal friend of an insidious lobbyist."

Swifts True.

"Love may have its drawbacks, but it has one big advantage over most of the good things of life."

"What is that?"

"One can keep it and return it at the same time."

Upgrading.

"My Green's youngest son," said the townshaver, "won't do a thing if he can't get his hands on the top of the ladder. I've already had to be on my toes to get a promotion."

THE IDEA.

Blinks—He's a pretty good boat builder, but he's very slow.

Jinks—Slow, eh?

Blinks—Well, I should say. If he had had the job of building the Ark we wouldn't have had the flood yet.

Fishing Facts.

The rainbow trout, I find, are wary; They scorn my bait, inviting. I wish the "skeeters" were as chary of biting.

Putting Him to the Test.

Deacon Woolerton (smilingly)—I s'pose yo' 'ink it's de Lord's will fo' yo' to leave dis charge an' take de one wid de biggah salary!

Parson Shouter—Look 'ere, B'r'er Woolerton, of one man offers yo' $10 fo' dat mule, an' anodder offers yo' $20, would dere be any question in yo' mind which offer it wuz de Lord's will fo' yo' to accept?—Puck.

Sanctum Amenities.

Rivers (frowning over a page of his manuscript)—Say, I don't want to use that old expression, "he was on needles and pins." Give me some synonym for it.

Brooks (with a piercing glance)—Synonym for "needles and pins"? You must think I'm what they call a word sharp!

As the Styles Change.

"Isn't it funny how the literary styles change? For instance, suppose Artemus Ward could come back. Just about where do you reckon he'd break into the game again?"

"Well, to be honest with you, I'd like to have a taste of Artemus trying his hand at some of the sport-page poetry."

Sure Loss.

Mrs. Johnson—Jes' hide yo'uah money in a Bible, Mis' Jackson. Nobody evah looks in a Bible, you know.

Mrs. Jackson (with a gasp)—Oh Lawd! I'd loset it shuah! Mah ole man's very religious, an' reads de Bible twice a day.—Puck.

Wisdom.

"This is a foolish world," remarked the Cheerful Idiot.

"What's the matter now?" asked the Hoop.

"Why, we spend half our lives trying to save time and the other half trying to kill time," replied the Cheerful Idiot.

Not So New.

"What's this osteopathy?"

"It is a new practice and consists of the manipulation of bones."

"New nothing! I saw that in the end of minstrel shows years ago."

Her Nature.

"The dove of peace has to be a diplomat."

"Why?"

"Doesn't she massage everything with a coup?"

PAT AND THE FROGS.

Pat—Did you ever catch frogs?

Pat—Oh, yes, I did.

Pat—What did you do with 'em?

Pat—Bogey, of course, 'em with a stick.

PRETTY CRAPE HATS

DESIGNERS HAVE DONE THEIR BEST WITH THIS MATERIAL.

Really Lovely Effects Produced for Those Who Favor That Material as a Foundation for Their Millinery.

A few seasons ago there began to be touches of white used in the body of hats made of black crape. The beauty of this fabric was thrown into prominence by this combination and it has been making a steady progress in the consideration of designs ever since.

During the last three seasons entire hats of white crape, or hats of white with some black crape introduced, have been featured in all displays of fine mourning headwear.

Lovely effects have been wrought out in this fabric. Flowers and foliage made of it are exquisite. The finest examples of mourning hats either in black or white are decorated with ornaments made of crape. These work-room made ornaments are the delight of the designers of mourning hats because effects are possible in crape which cannot be obtained with other fabrics.

It has become a matter of choice as to color and we may expect to see white crape replacing black for summer hats, while white will be employed in facings and trimmings on black crape for winter wear.

The shapes now in vogue, rather small and along conservative lines, give a wide choice to the maker of crape hats. The models shown are fair samples of turbans which one may see developed in all-white crape, all black or in black and white combined in varying proportions.

Besides white, pale gray and blue-lavender tones promise to add further variety to our mourning headwear. These colors are shown in the new English crape and have been taken up by New York designers, to whom must be conceded the distinction of making the most beautiful of mourning hat. Even Paris is second to them.

MAKE LAWN A BEAUTY SPOT

Now the Time to Give It Attention That It May Flourish Next Year.

If your lawn is larger than you can care for properly, plan to have it of suitable size next year, by filling in with hardy, thrifty growers that will take care of themselves.

Don't neglect to drop a few seeds of perennials in the bare places this month for bloomers next year. Seedlings cost but little, while plants are expensive. Many beautiful things can be raised from a mixed seed package of perennials.

Now is a good time to plan changes in the border and the flower garden, as one can see the mistakes made in planting the tall growers in front of the low ones; in growing ill-matched plants and mixing inharmonious combinations of colors. Keep a note book and pencil in hand.

In arranging the home lot, whether for fruit, shade or ornament, plant the tallest growers well to the rear, grading down to the lowest, or screening things, letting the rows run east to west, that all may have the sunshine. They can thus be seen to the best advantage, and prove a joy to the beholder.

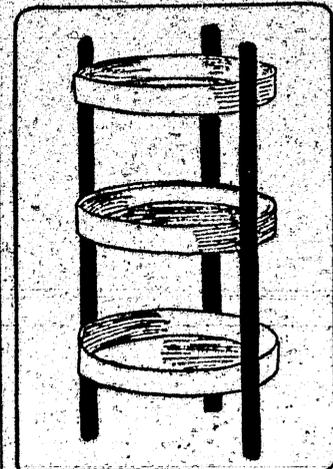

Kerchief's Secret.

To purchase handkerchiefs break up a quarter of an ounce of coin rest, and tie up in a piece of muslin. Wash with the handkerchiefs for a quarter of an hour, using about three pints of water to a quarter ounce of coin rest. When dry iron carefully and wash. When dry iron carefully and wash. When dry iron carefully and wash.

CONVENIENT STAND FOR CAKE

May Be Put Together at Nominal Cost, Though It Is Expensive to Purchase.

For afternoon or informal tea, a stand is most essential, and though they are expensive articles to buy, they can easily be made at home at a very nominal cost. Very few materials will be required. Just three bamboo sticks of equal length or three round-like sticks of white wood, and three round Japanese trays of equal size. Instead of the trays, three wooden round box lids would do. They must be the same size. Japanese trays can be bought so cheaply, and they are so prettily got up that no further decoration is necessary, but if box lids are used, they will require to be stained or poked; this latter is an excellent method of decorating if the worker happens to possess a poker machine. Otherwise, the lids can easily be stained any color desired, and afterwards varnished with white hard spirit varnish. To make the stand, three rods about 20 inches in length are needed, bore holes in these with a hot skewer, four inches from the top, five inches from the bottom, and another exactly half way between the two; the holes must go right through, and must be exactly in the same position on each rod, or the stand will not be level.

Make three holes in each tray in the same way so that they will exactly correspond with the holes in the rods. The trays are then fastened to the rods with strong copper wire. If this is done neatly it will hardly show; if it does, it may be concealed by rosettes of ribbon. A stand of this kind is most useful and strong; it is excellent for use for tea out of doors, when one might hesitate in taking out an expensive stand; in fact, would be found a most useful addition to any household, and the amount of decoration spent upon it will, of course, depend upon where it is to be used, and the coloring of it upon the color scheme of its surroundings.

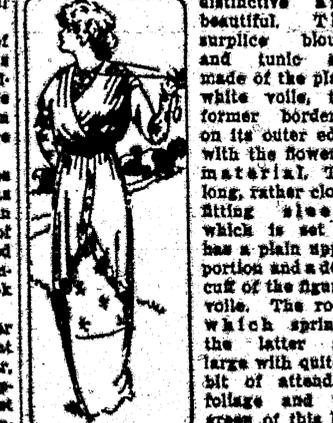

Rugs for the Nursery.

Grass fiber rugs, with borders of fancied animals, done in soft red, yellow, brown and green, which show attractively against the light gray-green of the fiber, are sold for nursery mats or for rugs for children's rooms. They are so light, so easily cleaned and so durable that they are ideal for use in a room where children live.

TASTY COMBINATION IS THIS

Use of Flowered and Plain Cotton Velle Gives Distinction to Simple Frock.

A fascinating use of flowered and plain cotton velle in combination has made this frock distinctive and beautiful. The surplice blouse and tunic are made of the plain white velle, the former bordered on its outer edge with the flowered material. The long, rather close-fitting sleeve which is set in has a plain upper portion and a deep cuff of the figured velle. The roses which sprinkle the latter are large with quite a bit of attendant foliage and the green of this has been repeated in the velvet girdle. A novel feature of the underskirt is the band of figured velle set in at the knee.

Gathered Skirts. All smart skirts now are gathered at the back of the waistline, and the pleats, closely fitting skirt—at this point—is distinctly out of the running. Of course, the fulcrum is between the waistline and hip only, for where the hips the garment must cling closely to the figure.

Some candidates can't distinguish between a dust storm and a landslide.

No oculist can do anything for the blindness of self-love.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children's Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Sore Throat, and all the ailments of the throat, is a most valuable remedy.

Its Proper Designation. "Is that what you call a dirigible?" "No, it ain't. It's whatcher call a 'blloon'."

Red Cross Bar Blue makes the laundress happy; makes clothes whiter than snow. All good grocers. Adv.

Industry Denied. "Your husband says he has to sit at a desk all day."

"Yes," replied the energetic woman; "but most of the time he keeps his feet on the desk."

Not an Improvement. Bacon—And has your neighbor done anything to improve the neighborhood?

Egbert—I should say not. He's just bought his son a cornet.

Already Done. "Are you trying to make a fool of me?" "No; I wouldn't try to improve on nature's work."

Which? "Here's an account of a girl hugged by a bear."

"Did it happen at a mountain resort or in Wall street?"

Coaching-Tour. "Why do you always invite the driver of the coach to drink with you?" "To be sure the coach won't start without me."

Literary Helpers. Knicker—What books have helped you most?

Poicker—The ones I didn't read; they saved my time.

A coating of unslaked lime was used to thaw out the frozen ground for an excavation operation in Iowa recently. The innovation was entirely successful.

Paw Knows Everything. Willie—Paw, when a baby gets sick, why do they call the doctor?

Paw—To cure it, my son.

Willie—Well, why don't they send for the curate instead of the doctor?

Paw—You go to bed, Willie.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Sluething. "I asked her if her husband smoked," said the woman with an inquiring mind; "and what do you think! She said she didn't know!"

"I don't see what difference it makes to you."

"Oh, I don't care whether he smokes. I wanted to find out if he kisses her."

—Washington Star.

Reminding Him. "The engagement was broken. "And so it is all over," spoke a sympathetic friend.

"Yes," answered the ex-fiance; "she said she would never have anything to do with me again."

"Then why this distraught mien, seeing that the damsel appealed not unto thee?"

"She writes to me every day asking me to try to forget her."
