N. MEX. COPPER STATE

Much Activity in Mining over State. Tularosa Property Sold for $5,000,000

ROTHSCHILD'S INTERESTED

Thomas Lawson of Boston, he of frenzied finance fame, was a man of discernment, of good judgment, when it came to copper as an investment. He made others see the value of mining copper and tried to swing a number of good propositions. But they slipped from him for reasons which he alone may be able to explain.

He saw two big enterprises in New Mexico and held to them for a time, but to no purpose—that is, not to any great advantage to himself. He was compelled to relinquish his hold, but they came into other hands and the new owners are taking fortunes from the properties he exploited. One of these, Chino Copper, located at Rita, Grant county, this state, is in the possession of the Peacocks, MacNells and Haydens, owners of banks in Boston and Denver, but who operate from Colorado Springs, Colo. Nor is this all. The Phelps-Dodge people have as good a property located at Tyrone, Grant county, this state. The mines are not fully in the running, but will be in a short time.

The big thing in copper in New Mexico is the taking over of the copper mines at Tularosa, Otero county. Colorado Springs is also interested in the deal, but the Lewishons, representing the Rothschilds, secured the property, paying $5,000,000. It is a big low-grade proposition and is to be developed along the line that the MacNeill-Pearose group has headed Chino of Santa Rita. The mines can be worked by steam shovel. All of the above is bound to have great influence on the state.

While the state possesses the three big assets, above mentioned, it is by no means all that New Mexico can show. Two bottles of silver have yet to be developed, while there are other copper districts that have been merely discovered and only need capital to open them in order that they pour out their riches.

Iron ore is supplied the Pueblo Iron Works, while coal is shipped as far east as the Big River and west to California, from the state.

Some may call New Mexico a copper state. It is more than that. The gold and silver mines are equal in value to any state in the Union, and will be proven such upon further investigation. If the state merely possessed only indications, nothing need be said, but the quantity of the various ores is so large, operators must work in a wholesale way, and the returns will be startling to the investor.

Everything is on a large scale in New Mexico, necessitating the employ of many skilled in the knowledge of output. This large force must be fed. Here is where the farmer comes in to help out. With all these new industries in full swing, the rancher will have all he can do to supply the demand for food stuffs.

Lincoln county has within its bounds some of the greatest mineral resources yet undeveloped in the world, and it is but a matter of a short time before Lincoln county will be known the world over for its Iron, Coal, Copper and Gold.

ASSESSOR BUSY

O. T. Nye has returned from the Ruidosa where he has been assessing. The assessment of the county is about complete except for a few scattering schedules which, Mr. Nye is gathering in. In regard to the controversy with Torrance county, Mr. Nye explains that the usual custom of dividing the schedules for sheep along the line between here and Torrance county was not satisfactory to the Torrance County assessor. This agreement being in effect with Chavez County as to sheep grazing in both counties. So Mr. Nye went along the Torrance county line and visiting the sheep camps ascertained where the sheep were located on January first and found that the sheep he had assessed had been and were in the county since November. Among the sheep assessed were those belonging to the Torrance county assessor, hence the "hotter" from that individual. Mr. Nye is looking out for Lincoln county's interest in every way possible and making a careful assessment.

FIRE AT TIFFANY'S

When Dan Tiffany came in from a short drive in his Buick and ran his car into his garage in the rear of his pretty home on Saturday evening to replenish his gasoline supply, a lighted match ignited leaking gasoline and the garage was destroyed completely. The auto was saved by Mr. Tiffany who suffered some painful burns but the car was but slightly damaged. Two barrels of gasoline exploded later and the garage burned to the ground in spite of the chemical engine which arrived promptly and many citizens desirous of helping to extinguish the blaze. Besides the building a number of valuable tools were destroyed. Water from the private Tiffany tank saved the house and a neighboring barn.

BUNGLARS APPREHENDED

Sheriff Chavez with John Baked went to Ocuero Friday and brought back three young fellows who are alleged to have broken into the Ziegler store. The boys arrested were wearing clothes identified as belonging to the firm and gave their names as Roy Wilson, John Ward and Arthur Morris. At the preliminary hearing before Justos Masala they waived examination and were bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury next week and in default of $1500 bail are in jail.

E. Elmer of Elbert, Arizona, is here visiting with Rudolph Schultz and looking over the country with a view of locating. Mr. Elmer is an old time friend of Mr. Schultz, they having attended the same school for several years in Hamburg, Germany.

Mrs. A. W. Adams has received her spring and summer line of Millinery and is displaying some of the latest and most up-to-date styles in Hats, Trimmings, etc. Call and see my line before buying elsewhere.—Adv.

The home talent recital was attended by a good sized audience at the Methodist Church, last Friday evening. The program was composed of medleys and old songs, and readings of a humorous nature. The net proceeds were $23.80 and the new piano for the Church, for which the program was given, has been ordered.

THE WEEKLY ROUND-UP

News Notes from the Surrounding Towns. General and Personal Happenings

WHIFFS FROM WHITE OAKS

Even this portion of New Mexico with its rugged, frowning mountains and its blistered mesas is not without its romances. A quiet ceremony performed a few weeks ago by a Carrizozo J. P., wherein it is reported that the blooming and blushing bride answered, "You bet" and the ready groom responded "Yep" to the leading questions usually put to them on like occasions, is sufficient confirmation of this statement.

The preliminaries were all pulled off over in Texas Park beyond White Oaks. It seems the parties directly concerned owned adjoining ranches and for several years past have been mutually helping each other rounding up obstreperous steers and returning them to the home range. This work proved so congenial and their helpful arrangement so satisfactory that the young man, in the course of events got rather stuck on it. In fact he became emboldened and suggested that they apply it to their domestic economy as well. To this the girl did not so readily tumble—did not embrace the opportunity nor allow the young fellow to embrace her. But they both kept on rounding up cattle.

As time went on and each watched the melancholy waning of many moons as its lengthening shadows were thrown across the many cattle trails, which all appeared to lead to their own headquarters ranches, the lonesome pair were apparently drawn closer together until, one evening as they sat watching the same inconstant moon drop behind the western hills the young swain concluded to "but in" without any further preliminaries and undertook to lay her up a bit by gently yet firmly, throwing his arm about the only waist place in sight. The only reply this silent side partner made was to deal him a smart blow on the fore quarter of his left cheek, which after all, if the young lady had only known, was about the least vulnerable portion of his external environment and only added fuel to his flame. But the young man was game and resented not, but went away determined to bide his time, being wise to the old saw "that all things come to the fellow that never knows when he is beat." So he still kept on roping steers with a ready lariat and an impartial hand until the raged streaked and spotted cattle increased like those of Jacob of old while waiting for the old man's consent for him to marry his Rachel.

In the meantime, a gay young sprig from Sunset, Texas—that town whose locator thought there was no place west of Texas for the sun to set—came meandering and philandering into the Park and laid ardent and violent siege to the maiden's heart not to mention the cattle on a hundred hills and countless leagues of plain country. But it didn't take long for him to get the cut direct and to his him back to the border land where the sun for him no doubt always stays set, and where skies and maidens eyes are never so bright as here in New Mexico.

Others came and fell over themselves to win out with no better success, while all the time the original prompter still kept right on rounding up cattle for the pair of them, when finally the girl relented and the young fellow came to know the bliss and the burden of holding a 140 pound girl on his lap through the still watches of the night and into the grey streaks of the morning light when the meek eyed heifer having chawed her quid to a frazzle and swallowed it for the last time, and is starting on a still hunt for its replenishing.

But there still lingers a rumor around the foothills of Patos and the hidden recesses of old Carrizo that it was a shiny new gasomobile that fetched the maiden heart after all.

"At least the fellow seems to have gobbled in the persimmons, for now there are two ranches with a single herd—two bunches run as one."

NOGAL NOTES

Miss Grace Brown is in charge of the post office.

Harry Henley is at work in Carrizozo with Frank English.

Wm. Sterling contemplates moving to Ocuero next week.

Thomas Whitaker has bought the Latham place and moved here to be near the school.

March 2d was washed in with an awful snow storm in Nogal, one of the worst storms this winter.

T. W. Henley and wife have returned from a visit to their daughters, Meadames Brannum and Cooper.

L. R. Hunt, our enterprising rancher has bought an automobile and has grown much taller since the purchase.

On the 18th of January the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sterling died. The child was not quite a month old. Mr. Sterling and wife have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood in their sad bereavement. Interment was made in the Nogal cemetery on the 19th, in the presence of a large number of friends.

ANCHO NOTES

School is progressing nicely here. Mr. Strickland was in town from his well drill Monday.

Miss Belle Thompson went to Carrizozo Sunday to see her sister, Miss Lizzie Thompson, who is quite sick.

Mrs. B. H. Langerak, wife of the general manager of the Brick Co., came in from Pella, Iowa, Saturday. Mr. Langerak will be here in a few days.

S. E. Frambrough gave a birthday party in honor of his daughter, Miss Annie, Friday evening, Feb. 28. Quite a crowd of the younger set attended the party.

CAPITAN CORRESPONDENCE

Miss Harris, field worker of the Baptist W. M. A. arrived in Capitan the first of this week and will remain here until Friday.

The Lincoln County High School is progressing very nicely. The Manual Training department is making a hall tree to be placed in the County Superintendent's office at Carrizozo.

The Capitan Commercial Club had a meeting Monday night which was largely attended, there being 10 members present. $50 was raised to defray the expenses of the lectures from the State College at Mesilla Park. They will be here about March 15th, to deliver the Farmers Short Course.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

News of Interest of our Towns People and of Outsiders Visiting in our Midst

GATHERED DURING THE WEEK

Ziegler Bros. are agents for the Beacon Light, $3.50 Shoes. The best shoe made for the money.—Adv.

Those having rooms to rent during court will please notify W. J. Doering.

Rev. C. I. Walker of Socorro, former pastor of the local Baptist Church, is in Carrizozo for a few days' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Hawkins left Thursday night for Parsons, Kansas, where they will make their future home.

The Ladies' Home Mission Society of the Methodist Church will give a Spanish dinner, Saturday, March 14th. The place will be announced later.

The matter of the 640 homestead law is being considered in Washington this week by Congress. Something definite as to this worthy measure will be made public soon.

A. V. Swearingen has been to El Paso to attend the funeral of his brother Ben Swearingen who died there a few days ago. Ben was well known here.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Gillette are visiting Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Nye. Mr. Gillette has gone on to Silver City. He is sold man for the Industrial Department.

Walker Hyde arrested a boy named Jack Shield at Luna Wednesday night charging him with breaking into a box car. Mr. Hyde is now a traveling special agent instead of being stationed at Carrizozo at all times for the railroad.

Albert Ziegler has returned from the eastern markets where he purchased a splendid line of spring and summer goods for the firm of Ziegler Brothers. Mr. Ziegler finds that personal buying in the east gives the firm's customers many advantages.

Wallace L. Gumm, while in Santa Fe, the past week interviewed the State Game Warden, yesterday to arrange for stocking the Ruidosa and Bonito streams with trout in this county. Congressman Ferguson will be asked to assist in the matter. If the streams are restocked it is possible that fishing will be prohibited for at least one year.

Mrs. Wallace L. Gumm according to the Santa Fe papers gave a very inspiring address to the Teachers Institute in session there last week while there attending the Woman's (Panama) Exhibition Auxiliary Committee meeting of which she is a member from this county. Our school superintendent is becoming very prominent throughout the state and well deserves the compliments.

The Lincoln County Road Commission held a brief session at Carrizozo on Monday evening to elect officers for the coming year as required by the law. The same officers were re-elected to hold for the coming year. The regular meeting of the Board will be held probably the first Monday in April when bills will be paid etc. The Board suggests that the Carrizozo Commercial Club appoint a committee to take charge of the local work and who will endorse some person for supervisor here for the year. The matter of the bridge north of town will be taken up if the Carrizozo people show sufficient interest at the coming meeting according to the statement made by Board members.

WHY PAY UP?

What a splendid thing it would be if a person could run a weekly paper and pay for it to take some subscribers to pay up. As long as the paper is sent out week after week and no statement is sent out for arrears everything is lovely, your paper is fine and the contents pleasing, a compliment is often passed out. But oh, what a brute you are after sending a paper for two or three years for nothing. If you politely send in your bill and ask for what may be due or a portion of it. Not because you wish to "jinx" anyone but because of the Postal regulations and because you need the money. Then your rusty old paper is of no account; it was just taken by the subscribers to see inside the publisher; you wanted it stopped long ago. "I can borrow a copy from a neighbor or read it in the barber shop any time there is anything important I wish to see." And hundreds of other contemptible things are hurled at the "sheet" and its management. Of course if we were rich it would be different; but then we would probably not seek to try to publish a paper anyhow if that were so. We can stand the "cussing" however, under the circumstances, but what we really need is a little of the "filthy lucre" to make the mare go.

CATTLE MAN PAYS BIG TAXES

In proportion to his holdings, accepting the railroads, the cattle man probably pays a larger share of the tax burden in New Mexico than any other class. The assessors in 1913 placed a valuation of $18,443,877 on him as against only $4,479,465 the year before.

Of course, there is still many a cow, and many a steer and many a calf that does not reach the assessment roll, but the increase in one year was from 286,565 head to 570,939 head and in the sweet bye and bye, the assessors may spot the nine million and more head that the census enumerators found in 1910 within the commonwealth. Cattle have such a disagreeable habit of straying and becoming mavericks.

Grant county confesses to having the most cattle in the state, in fact one fifth of the entire number. With Chavez, Eddy and Socorro counties added, one half of the total cattle population is accounted for. Taos and Bernalillo counties have the least number and Santa Fe, Rio Arriba and Torrance also have less than 5,000, although there is a dim suspicion that a search warrant might locate enough head in those three counties to make the total exceed the 5,000 mark.

The following is the number of cattle in each county as the assessor found them in 1913 and he swears he didn't miss a one:

Grant	113,400
Chaves	59,720
Eddy	58,781
Socorro	51,604
Colfax	34,659
Union	30,830
Lincoln	29,337

Bernalillo	1,777
Taos	7,631

TWO MAPS AND TWO METHODS

In the nine foreign countries shown on the map there is a total population of 214,878,502.

More than one hundred times as many people as there are in the territory of your telephone company.

Yet all nine of these countries could be laid down in your telephone company's territory with several thousand miles to spare.

Your telephone company operates 222,572 telephones in an area of 777,705 square miles.

In these seven states there is one telephone to every eleven people.

In Europe, the government owns the telephone companies.

In the United States the telephone users, through their Public Utilities Commissions, control them.

The development shows which is the better way.

LINCOLN COUNTY NOTES

FT. STANTON NOTES

Dr. Alison Brown, we are pleased to observe, is able to be up and about his cottage.

Captain McGraw is still somewhat indisposed and is taking a few days' rest at No. 10.

Jose Alveres the Fort Stanton croquet champion, is giving daily instructions to a large number of admirers on the local grounds.

We hope in the near future to give a full report on the new B. & A. railroad which is now being built on the reservation.

Mrs. Grey of Capitan with friends came over Friday evening to attend the recital given by her relative, Miss Garrett, in Library hall.

An automobile party from Lincoln attended the "movies" in the local theater last week. The party was composed of Miss Rose Lutz, Miss Smith of Roswell, Mr. Lutz and Rev. J. H. Girma.

Another supply of "Indian Rugs" from Welch & Titsworth were placed on exhibition at 13 E this week and as usual they were soon sold to various parties on the square.

Miss Elizabeth Garrett of Las Cruces gave one of her popular musical entertainments at Library hall last Friday evening. It was without question a musical treat, and among the best ever given here.

CORONA CLIPPINGS

(Too late for last week)

John Queen is back at his ranch again.

Tom Du Bois and family expect to leave this week for Kansas City.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods came in from their ranch Monday in their auto.

Dolph Lusk returned this week from the east where he has been feeding some sheep for market.

Miss Lola Highfill, George Spence and T. E. Kelley of Carrizozo were recent visitors to Corona.

Mrs. Blair and daughter, Miss Alla, were here for the dance from Tularosa.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bougle, Floyd Snodgrass, Miss Myrtle Simpson and Roy Snodgrass were visitors here from Duran.

O. K. Ingraham has returned from Morris, Ill., where he has had a large number of sheep feeding for market.

James Beaver and family have returned after spending six months in Arkansas, which proved there was no place like Corona.

E. M. Brickley spent a few days over around Lincoln and Capitan on business. While away Mr. Hooker was in charge at the bank.

Among the Ancho people attending the dance here were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cooper, Mrs. Gallacher and sons, J. S. Patterson and Mr. and Mrs. Woods.

There was a big dance held in Atkinson hall in Corona Saturday evening, February 21st, in the form of a George Washington ball. The dancing started at an early hour and was participated in until the wee small hours of the morning. There were two hundred present, the out of town people coming from Carrizozo, White Oaks, Ancho, Jicarillas, Duran, Vaughn, Buchanan, Santa Rosa and Alamogordo.

THE RESIDENCE OF LORD FAIRFAX AT ALEXANDRIA, VA.

PREBYTTERIAN CHURCH AT ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

TOWN WASHINGTON LOVED

THE OLD GRANITIZED SURROUNDING OFFICES WASHINGTON'S CHURCH

WOMEN have done much at Alexandria, Va., to preserve the relics of the days of George Washington. It is not the capital of the nation, despite its name, that is richest in intimate associations with the life of the first president, but Alexandria, which stands midway between Mount Vernon and the city of Washington.

Alexandria played no small part in the formative years of Washington's youth and early manhood. A representative Virginia town, it stood then and for generations later for all that was best of colonial standards. Its people had much to do with the molding of Washington's character, and Washington richly repaid Alexandria, or Belle Haven as it was first called, by his never failing concern for its welfare and advancement.

Probably no surviving structure in Alexandria harbored Washington within its hospitable walls more frequently than the old Carlyle house, and certainly none was more directly associated with the foundation of the military side of his life. Strange as it may seem, for many years this historical landmark has been hidden away behind the battered front of Alexandria's once noted hotel, the Braddock house, occupying one corner of the inner courtyard, shut away from the public gaze and denied the outlook of the broad approach which it once enjoyed in the days of its well high baronial importance. Until a few years ago the Carlyle house was largely used as a storage place by a local dealer in colonial antiques, but a few patriotic Virginia women saved the building from further indignity, though not entirely from danger, as the old furniture found a new abiding place within the still more inflammable Braddock house, adjoining.

In 1732 John M. Carlyle imported from the Isle of Wight the stone of which the house is built, and he absorbed for part of the foundation a portion of an old fort which had been built many years before for the protection of the English traders at Hunting Creek, as the place was then known, against the Indians. The barracks of that ancient defense became the cellar of the Carlyle house, and in those cool, dark, dry retreats were stored in Washington's day the bulging oaken, oak-washed bottles, and delicious old hams for which Virginia has long been noted.

Another part of the old fort forms the plans at the rear of the house upon which the broad central hallway opens. It was upon this place, in the far away days, that the Carlyles and their guests gathered on summer evenings to discuss the questions of the time or to pass the hours chatting over a heartsome glass amid the soothing smoke of the fragrant Creeks. It was there the young people watched the moon rise over the river and took their pleasure in the doorknobs of those days.

Then, the gardens ran down to the river's bank and stretched the docks at which the trading craft were moored—loading craft that came from over the seas to barter the silks and riches of the east and the tropic abundance of the West Indies in return for the famous tobacco with which Alexandria's one big warehouse was filled. That was a period of bounteous hospitality and courtly grace.

On the right of the broad hallway is the large drawing room. In Washington's day it was finished in gold and white, and there on many occasions he took an active part in ball and festivity and led many a fair Virginian through the stately steps of the minuet and the less exacting reel. The hallway itself, if tradition be correct, is not without its sentimental interest, for it was at the foot of the beautiful staircase of solid mahogany that Washington awaited the coming of the lovely Sally Fairfax upon a particular evening and while escorting her into the ballroom offered her his heart, which she rejected.

On the opposite side of this same hall is the blue and white room, which was John Carlyle's particular retreat. Within that room Washington received his commission as a member of General Braddock's staff in 1755. What that meant to Washington we can only partly divine, but there is no doubt of its significance to us as a nation because of what it taught him of the fighting ways of the British soldier.

From the broad portico of Mount Vernon Washington saw Braddock arrive with his transports and his regiments of red coated soldiery and pass onward to Alexandria, nine miles above, coming with the splendid traditions of the king's troops and with all the martial fanfare of regulars. As a leader of the local provincial troops Washington had won for himself a creditable renown, but here were soldiers supposedly of sterner stuff and higher military capabilities.

General Braddock promptly accepted the hospitable invitation of John Carlyle and established his headquarters under the roof of that gracious host, the little blue and white room becoming the council chamber in which were planned the preparations for that memorable but ill fated campaign against the Indians. Washington's previous experience as a leader of local troops against the savages made him welcome at those conferences and his keen judgment and practical advice earned for him Braddock's admiration and the invitation to serve upon the British general's staff. It is enough to add that in the trying work that followed the British records testify that "the Virginia officers and troops behaved like men and died like soldiers," and Washington came out of the strife unscathed and ripe for the far more serious task that lay ahead of him.

The architectural student will find much to interest him and to warrant study in the Carlyle house. The old windows, the doorways, the primitive cupboards, chairboards, scones, cornices, moldings, etc., are exquisite in taste and rich in quaintness and elegance of detail. There they are as they were in Washington's time, and in common with the rest of the mansion are regarded as among the best specimens of the so-called colonial style. In February, 1788, a market was instituted in Alexandria and the citizens were justly proud of their enterprise. The market place then lay directly in front of the approach to the Carlyle house and that same mart of country produce was intimately identified with Washington's domestic life at Mount Vernon and was one other means of displaying his common sense. We of today know but little of the hardships of that colonial period, and feasting was not always as abundant as the story book would have it. Rev. Mr. Weems, that chatty chronicler of the times, tells us that Alexandria then boasted more rightly of its beauty than its means of charming the palate.

"The neighborhood of Belle Haven was not a desert, on the contrary it was in many places a garden spot, abounding with luxuries. But its inhabitants, the wealthy, were not wise. By the successful culture of tobacco they had money. And having filled their coach houses with gilt carriages and their dining rooms with gilt glasses they began to look down upon the poorer sort and to talk about families."

"Of course it would never do for such great people to run market carts! Hence the poor Belle Havenites, though embosomed in plenty, were often in danger of gnawing their nails. And unless they could cater a lamb from some good natured 'cracker' or a loaf of chickens from the Sunday Agross were obliged to sit down with hollow faces to a half graced dinner of salt meat and journey cake."

"This was the order of the day, A. D. '53, when Washington, just married to the wealthy young widow Coates, had settled at Mount Vernon, nine miles below Belle Haven. The unpleasant situation of the families at that place soon reached his ears. To a man of his character, with too much spirit to follow a bad example when he had the power to set a good one and too much wit to look for happiness anywhere but in his own bosom, it could not long be questionable what part he had to set."

"A market cart was instantly constructed, and regularly three times a week went off to Belle Haven filled with nice roasters, kidney covered lamb and veal, green peas, fat ducks and gobblers, chickens by the basket, fresh butter, new laid eggs, vegetables and fruits of all sorts. Country gentlemen dining with their friends in town very soon remarked the welcome change in diet. 'Bless us all!' exclaimed they, 'what's the meaning of this? You invited us to family fare, and here you have given us a lord mayor's feast.' 'Yes,' replied the others, 'thank God for sending a Colonel Washington into our neighborhood.'"

"Out Off." "The world is well aware that a woman killer has forbidden his officers to dance the tango or to go to tangue parties. They say that a young lieutenant met a friend in the streets of Berlin the other day and embraced him with fervor. 'I'm dying of loneliness!' said the lieutenant. 'What!' said the friend, 'tongue in Berlin!'"

"Just that," returned the officer. "You can't go to anybody's house any more. They all dance the tango."—New York Evening Post.

HAPPY BAKE DAYS

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

The cook is happy, the other members of the family are happy—appetites sharpen, things brighten up generally. And Calumet Baking Powder is responsible for it all. For Calumet never fails. Its wonderful leavening qualities insure perfectly shorted, faultlessly raised bakings. Cannot be compared with other baking powders, which promise without performing. Even a beginner in cooking gets delightful results with this never-failing Calumet Baking Powder. Your grocer knows. Ask him.

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs"

A laxative today SAVES a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Men Fight On Their Stomachs

Napoleon so said. A man with a weak stomach is pretty sure to be a poor fighter. It is almost impossible—for anyone, man or woman, if digestion is poor, to succeed in business or socially—or to enjoy life. In tablet or liquid form.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Makes weak stomachs to strong, healthy action—helps digest the food that makes the good blood, red blood which nourishes the entire body. This vegetable remedy, to a great extent, puts the liver into activity, and the necessary of the human system so that those who spend their working hours at the desk, behind the counter, or in the home are rejuvenated into vigorous health.

The famous Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is your best friend. It is a natural and healthful food and tonic. It is the only medicine that is safe for all ages. It is the only medicine that is pure and healthful. It is the only medicine that is guaranteed to do what it says.

COMMUNITY CO-OPERATION

Natural advantages do not make a great nation. Some of the richest countries on the globe are inhabited by some of the most worthless and the most dissolute people. In semi-tropical climates where fruit ripens and falls ready to be consumed, the natives are so lazy that they won't even shake the trees to make it drop. Their few wants are easily supplied. A brush arbor will do for shelter, a lion cloth for clothing, bananas and coconuts for food. They prefer to lead lives of indolence rather than to possess themselves of the many good things they might have by small exertion.

New England is naturally one of the most bleak and barren sections of America. It was settled by English Puritans, who were industrious, frugal and thrifty. They made the most of their own resources and branched out to trade with the outside world. New England became rich and powerful and has wielded a tremendous influence on American life and manners from the beginning to the present time. Suppose the early settlers of that section had spent the time in bewailing the fate which had cast them on that rugged and inhospitable coast instead of on the fertile shores of Louisiana, or sun-kissed New Mexico. By such a course they might have easily wrecked their own lives and have bred a race of weaklings who would have soon disappeared from the view of men.

There are many towns and communities here in the southwest that fail to accomplish anything because they have not the right class of citizens. The prevailing note is one of doubt and pessimism. No enterprise can be started that is not already doomed to failure according to these gloomy prognosticators. And that is the reason most of these enterprises do fail because they are talked to death before they can be got under way. I dare say that there is not a small town in the entire southwest that could not be improved within the next year if the people would only all work together for the common good. And a majority of these same towns and communities might be absolutely made over within a few years time if there was the proper spirit of cooperation among its citizens.

You had as well quit talking about the weather and wanting to move; just get down to bed rock and go to work and make your community one of the favored spots. If you can't get the neighbors to work together for the common good, start at home and try to make that a model of comfort and convenience. That will help some, and at least convince others that you are in dead earnest about the proposition.

GREY SEALS IN THE SCILLY ISLES

By C. J. KING

YOUNG GREY SEALS

A WEEK OLD BABY

THE nursery of the gray seal is well worth seeing, but it is not exactly easy to photograph. Of course, one can see these animals, like most others, in captivity, and the way in which they are now kept in the different zoological gardens, in surroundings very like their natural haunts, lends additional interest; but, after all, it is impossible in any of these to give the feeling of unlimited space which is one of the chief characteristics of the ocean home of these amphibious beasts. Of course, the same thing applies to photographs of them; yet, for all that, there is a satisfaction in taking them at home in their wild state rather than in captivity.

I live in a district in which these animals breed, and yet, though I have tried for years to procure photographic records of the young seals in the nursery, I have only just succeeded in getting a really good series. To begin with, the haunts of the parents are always outlying and somewhat inaccessible rocks, where the ocean swell heaves itself almost ceaselessly and makes landing difficult. Then, again, the season of the year at which young seals are born is confined to a very limited period, which happens to coincide with the autumnal Equinox, and, consequently, with the equinoctial gales. This, of course, tends to make landing still more difficult, if not impossible. All this means that only once perhaps in several years do things so shape themselves that one can get a favorable opportunity of working among these marine animals. This year, however, circumstances have so arranged themselves that on the second attempt it was possible to land and photograph the young quite comfortably.

On Friday, October 4, we started for the Western Isles, and landed upon a rock which, as a rule, is selected by one or two mothers as a nursery for their young—but after a thorough search we had to give it up as hopeless, and what made matters worse was that our anchor, during our stay on shore, had become fixed in some manner among the rocks on the bottom, and had to be abandoned by cutting through the chain cable after about two hours' ineffectual attempts to release it. We then proceeded to another rock and landed. Scarcely had we done so before we heard the cry of a young seal right in our track and just above high-water mark, and I took several photographs of it. We found no more, however, on this rock, and proceeded to a third, and here we found four, all close together. The old seals had selected a most accommodating nursery, where a sloping platform of huge rock slabs shelved down at a very gradual angle towards the sea, and where the young could bask in the sun during the greater part of the day. These youngsters varied in age from what appeared to be but a few hours to about a week or eight days, and we were probably only just in time to get a shot at the biggest one, for they take to the water very soon after they are a week old. The adult seals give very little opportunity for observation, and less for photographing. They are very fond of basking in the sun on a rock out of the wind, where they will lie for hours, until their fur becomes quite dry and looks like that of a rough sheep. The rocks on which they lie and bask are such that they can float on to them at half-ebb, and immediately dive off in ones they hear the least noise which differs from that made by the murmur of the sea. Sometimes a single seal will occupy such a rock, while at others several will congregate together. I have seen considerable numbers, perhaps ten or a dozen; but a boatman told me that he once saw at least fifty, which when they were disturbed, came with a rush down over the rocks into the sea, compelling him and his mate to each other, hissing and snarling in a most ferocious manner. The fur of the young seal is beautifully soft and silky, shining in the sun like white satin, but it soon becomes coarse. It would be interesting if one could watch seals in the same way that one watches and photographs birds, in a hiding tent or a shed, such as Dr. Heatherley and I used for the peregrine falcons; but I am afraid that it is impracticable. The difficulties I mentioned at starting concerning landing, equinoctial gales, etc., make it a bit too risky, to say nothing of the long, cold nights which one would have to spend without any artificial heat. In May the nights are short and the hours of sunshine long, but in October things are different, so that I fear the actual watching and photographing of the adult seal in his ocean haunts will not be accomplished just yet.

A Century Ago.

On the eve of the New Year, 100 years ago, London experienced one of the worst fogs in her history. The fog enveloped not only the city of London, but a large part of England as well. For many years afterward it was referred to as the "fatal fog." For five days London was in complete darkness. Electric lights, of course, were unknown at that time, while gas had only recently been introduced in the great British metropolis for street-lighting purposes. The primitive gaslights, however, were totally unable to penetrate the thick and heavy cloud of fog and smoke that hung like a pall over the city. Business was necessarily suspended and the people had to forego their customary occupations. Some of those who ventured from their homes became lost and in their wanderings fell into the Thames and were drowned. Many others were seriously injured by collisions in the streets.

Byron's Anti-Fat Diet.

As we all know, one man's food is another man's poison—and certainly the poet Byron's anti-fat diet would add layers of flesh to some of us. A story is told by some one who once acted as the poet's host at dinner. The meal was served and Byron refused dish after dish, asking for biscuits and soda water. But, as the host says, "neither meat, fish nor wine would he touch, and of biscuits and soda water, which he asked for, there had been unluckily no provision."

Then Byron chose, as the least likely to make him fat, potatoes and dressed them with vinegar. And of potatoes—the present-day fat man's bugaboo—he made a good dinner.

HAD ARRIVED AT DESTINATION

After Old Gentleman Spoke, Further Figuring Was in the Nature of Wasted Time.

"I've figured the whole thing out, father," said Mabel. "The car, to begin with, will cost $5,000, which at six per cent, is $300 a year. If we charge ten per cent. off for depreciation it will come to $450 more. A good chauffeur can be had for $125 a month, or $1,500 a year. I have allowed ten dollars a month for repairs. The chauffeur's uniform and furs will come to about $200. Now let's see what it comes to: Three hundred plus five hundred—"

"Don't bother, my dear; I know what it comes to," said the old gentleman.
"What?" asked the girl.
"My dear," said the father, impressively, "it comes to a standstill, right here and now."

Taking No Chances.
"Captain," said a wealthy passenger who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several watertight compartments."
"Yes, sir," was the reply.
"Certain," the passenger went on, decidedly, "I want one of those compartments—I don't care what it costs."

Quite Frenchy.
"Your friend is always chaffing, isn't he?"
"Yes, indeed; he is quite a chauffeur."

It doesn't pay to spend all your time trying to prove that luck is against you.

METHODS USED IN THE PROTECTION OF FORESTS OF U. S. FROM FIRES

Great Progress Has Been Made in the Work—Organized Plans Obtain in the National Reserves, While the States of the Union Have Systematized Method of Preserving Their Forests From This Scourge.

Washington.—The first measure necessary for the successful practice of forestry is protection from forest fires. As long as there is any considerable risk from fire, forest owners have little incentive to make provision for natural reproduction, to plant trees, to make improvement cuttings, or to do their work looking to continued forest production.

In many localities great progress has lately been made in forest protection. Organized fire protection has been established in the national forests and in most of the state forest reservations. A number of states have begun to develop systematic fire protection on private lands through the organization of estate fire wardens. In some instances private owners have formed co-operative associations for fire protection and employ a regular force of rangers for patrol during the fire season. The most conspicuous and successful associations are those formed by certain lumber companies in Idaho and Washington.

Reproduction in the forests of this country has been more influenced by fire than by any other one factor.

Hollow Tree, the Result of Fires.

The present composition, form, density, and yield of a great many stands are due to the influence of fires on reproduction.

Repeated fires prevent reproduction by destroying the seed and killing the seedlings. This is well illustrated in certain areas of the south, where long-leaf pine is not reproducing itself—not because there is a lack of seed or because the conditions for germination are unfavorable, but because the annual fires kill the young trees.

Fires may influence reproduction through their effect on the soil and the soil cover. Frequently after fires the ground is occupied by heavy brush or by grass, which impedes or in some cases prevents the reproduction of valuable trees. Many of the grass parks in the western mountains are the result of fire. A grass vegetation has replaced the forest. The running wild of burned areas to a heavy growth of brush is a common occurrence after fires in many of our eastern forests, as, for example, in Pennsylvania.

In some sections of the country forest fires have always been of such common occurrence that there is a popular notion that they can not be prevented. The risk from fires can never be entirely eliminated, for in the forest there is always inflammable material which is very easily ignited. They may, however, be largely prevented, and under efficient organization their damage may be kept down to a very small amount.

Broadly speaking, a fire line is a cleared strip in the forest used as an aid in the protection from fire. It may be a road, a trail, a river or stream, a line cleared especially for a fire break, or a plowed furrow. The purpose of fire lines is to check or stop fires and to facilitate fighting them. A small surface fire may be stopped entirely by a road or even a path. Some surface fires are easily checked in their progress by narrow fire lines; others can be stopped only by very wide lines. Crown fires and surface fires of unusual severity will readily leap across even very wide fire lines. Fire lines, therefore, should not be built with the idea that they will always stop fires. They are intended to serve primarily as an aid, and often are an indispensable aid, in controlling fires and preventing their spread. Even when they do not actually stop or check a fire they serve as vantage points from which the fighting crew may work. Their establishment usually makes the woods accessible, so that a crew can get to a fire or near it quickly with appliances for fighting it. An ordinary dirt road ranks as one of the best of all fire lines. The wider the road the more effective it is. A forest well-out up with roads in, therefore, much more easily protected than one with few or no roads. In Europe every well-organized forest has a thoroughly planned network of roads. These are located primarily with reference to the problem of logging, but they serve also as a network of fire lines, and special lines are cleared to supplement them where necessary. Every part of the forest is readily accessible not only for patrolling for fire during the danger season, but for the quick transportation of fire-fighting appliances. In case a fire should start in this forest and be discovered within a reasonable time it would be easy to confine it to a small area.

We can not expect to have such a well-organized system of roads and fire lines in our forests for a long time, but much can be done in the way of utilizing the more or less temporary roads that are used in logging and afterwards abandoned.

One of the great difficulties in extensive forest districts is to secure the necessary help in fighting fires. The telephone is the greatest aid in fire patrol. It enables the man who discovers a fire to call for help and to give directions as to the number of men and the equipment needed. By the use of the telephone on the national forests millions of dollars have doubtless already been saved. The forest service has since 1906 built 4,750 miles of telephone line, and it is extending the lines as rapidly as congress furnishes the funds for the work.

ETHEL SMITH IS MARRIED

Tells Parents Sacrifice of Billy Rugh and Former Romance Are Forgotten.

Chicago.—Miss Ethel Smith of Gary, Ind., for whom Billy Rugh, a crippled newsboy, who was not acquainted with her, gave up his life, is the principal figure in a new romance. She eloped to Chicago with Leon M. Cline, a clerk in a cigar store in Gary. They obtained a license and were married by a justice of the peace. This romance marked the close of another— one which was in full bloom when the explosion of a gasoline tank on a motorcycle owned by Ray Robert burned her body so severely that her life was despaired of for some time. She was saved only by extensive grafting of skin taken from the amputated crippled leg of Billy Rugh, who died soon afterward of pneumonia and the shock of the operation. Her marriage did not please her parents when she told them. She came out of a hospital only Christmas day after a second operation. Her explanation is that the accident, the tragedy of Billy and Robert are to be of the past and forgotten.

MAN DIGS FOR $85,000 CACHE

Had the Gold in Dutch Oven in 1833, but Fire Destroyed the Landmarks.

Kellogg, Idaho.—Edward Cornelius, an old resident of Murray, has been working on the Kellogg sewer, apparently for 35 a day, but in reality, he says, he has been working to locate $85,000 which he buried in a Dutch oven, and which he has never been able to find.

In 1833 he and his partner left Montana for the new gold country around Murray. They loaded their packhorses, he says, with $85,000 in gold, all in 330 gold pieces, planning to use this money to buy up all available placer country, which was reported to be unusually rich.

They came down the Prospect Creek trail and over the Mullan road, down to what is now Kellogg.

They there heard that the country for which they were headed was not as rich as first reported, and as the country was full of gold hunters and was wild and rough, they decided to cache their gold, Cornelius says, and go into the Murray country to investigate before making any bargains to buy the placer ground.

The gold was hidden in the flat which extends from the Kellogg depot to the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills. Cornelius and his partner remained in the Murray country for a year, and on their return to dig up their money and quit the country they found a fire had swept the district and eliminated every landmark. The pair searched for days and finally gave it up.

On several occasions Cornelius has returned and made a hunt without result. It was when he learned that the sewer excavation would extend through the ground in which he buried his money 30 years ago that he came to Kellogg, took up his pick and shovel, and kept his eyes open. The work along this section is completed, and Cornelius is ready to return to Murray without having found the treasure.

A Doctor's First Question Is

"How are Your Bowels?" A Simple Remedy that Guarantees Good Bowel Action.

LIEUT. G. W. VAUGHAN

Trace the origin of the commoner ill of life and almost invariably you will find that constipation was the cause. It is not to be expected that a mass of fermented food can remain in the system beyond its time without vitiating the blood and affecting the nerves and muscles. It congests the entire body.

The results are colds, fevers, piles, headaches, and nervousness, with its accompanying indigestion and sleeplessness. There is only one thing to do, and that is to remove the trouble; and when nature seems unable to do it, outside aid is necessary. You will find the best of all outside aids a remedy that many thousands are now using for this very purpose, called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Many hundreds of letters are received by Dr. Caldwell telling of the good results obtained, and among the enthusiastic letters is one from Lieut. G. W. Vaughan, of 623 W. North St., Decatur, Ill. He is 72 and has had a bad liver and stomach since he came out of the army. He says he tried about everything, but never succeeded in getting permanent relief until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. He is never without a bottle in the house, and he is never without good health.

It has untold advantages over pills, salts and the various coarse cathartics and purgatives, for while these do but temporary good, Syrup Pepsin cures permanently. The effect of its action is to train the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work naturally again, and in a short time all forms of medicine can be dispensed with. It can be bought without inconvenience at any nearby drug store for fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being regularly bought by those who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 203 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Four-Footed Poultry. A certain old man in the Wynchops settlement, named Hickley, was exceedingly fond of "big words." He was riding his horse over the country one bright spring day, apparently intent on some important business.

Whenever he met anybody, he gravely asked: "Have you seen anything of any stray poultry today? I've lost mine, and am hunting it." When they told him "No," he would proceed on his way.

After spending several hours in what seemed to be a vain search, he at last rode up to the door of a farmhouse and called: "Hello!" A lady came to the door, and donning his hat very politely, the old man inquired if she had "noticed any stray poultry round?"

After a moment's thought, the woman told him she had seen no chickens. "Oh," he replied, "it's my hogs that I've lost—not my chickens."—Youth's Companion.

Not Altogether Lost. In the Shakespearean days actors were classed as rogues and outlaws. Will West, the portly comedian of "The Doll Girl," thinks that player folk are bad enough, but not as black as they are painted. He tells this story of Dick Burge, the English pugilist and actor, who was indicted in connection with the $500,000 Liverpool bank robbery.

Burge was on the witness stand. "I understand," said the judge, "that you are an actor." Burge blushed, swallowed convulsively and hesitated. "No, your honor," he stammered; "only a thief."

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomachache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

CLEARING CHURCH DEBT

Through the kind assistance of Fred W. Jones, Agent, we received for the debt and a few necessary improvements on the Baptist Church house the sum of $250 from President Douglas and his associates in the head offices of the E. P. & S. W., which we fully appreciate. On account of an apparent tightness of money right after the Christmas holidays we waited two months before approaching the business men on the subject. From the Gerrat recital we raised $20 and the members of the church themselves contributed over a hundred dollars. A like sum, including work donated and a few pledges to be paid in the near future, was cheerfully given by other citizens. With sincere gratitude we chronicle the fact that in nearly every single instance on this errand we met with a splendid spirit and a full co-operation. To show how heartily the Carrizozo people generally came to our assistance in this undertaking, one business man on coming to pay his contribution of $10 asked: "Will that be enough?" And, in a family of our members where we had not expected quite so much, $10 was promptly paid down on a careful consideration of the needs of the church. We do not mistake the desire nor fail to appreciate the efforts of all these to see the church properly equipped for its work. But the church and congregation will shoulder this expense themselves.

On last Lord's day, in addition to the above, the church voted the painting of the house, and is seriously considering the matter of enlarging the house to provide Sunday school rooms and other requisites, seeing we are so crowded in this phase of the work.

On behalf of the church we desire to take this means of thanking those citizens who, though they may belong to no church themselves, have so signally expressed their appreciation of the efforts made by the Baptists of Carrizozo to preach the gospel in this town and community. We regret that in past years a not altogether kind spirit has existed among all Christians of the town, and desire to state that we are not here for rivalry or for antagonism. We are here to "strive earnestly" to bring the lost to the Saviour, to teach and practice the principles of the Scriptures, including civil and religious liberty for every individual.

We "Owe no man anything, but to love one another," and "Our neighbor as ourselves," and pray that the Holy Spirit shall so lead and help us that we shall rightly express in word and in deed the gospel of God's dear Son, the Saviour of mankind. That thus this church shall prove an asset in the kingdom of God and a blessing to the community in which by His grace we find ourselves.

In accordance with the custom of Baptists the world over, after the last note representing the debt on the building is paid, the house will be publicly dedicated for use in the advancement of the principles of the kingdom as set forth in the Bible. This will be done on Sunday next, March 8th. Visiting preachers will be present, the note will be burned, and the keys turned over to the trustees. Special singing is arranged, and we trust every citizen who can, will be present at these services.

HERBERT HAYWOOD, Pastor.
