LOCAL SCHOOL CLOSE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Baccalaureate Sermon, Common and High School Graduating Exercises well Attended. Interest Shown

PROF. AND MRS. M'CURDY ENTERTAIN

The Carrizozo Public Schools closed last Friday, thus completing the most successful year in the history of the school. This year marked the first four-year high school graduation, the two extra grades having been added at the beginning of the term in September. The pupil to receive signal honor of first graduate is Miss Mildred Peters and the community is indeed gratified with the high grades she has been able to register, showing thorough and efficient work. Both community and school management have been able to cooperate in an especially gratifying manner, and this accounts in a large measure for what the faculty has been able to accomplish.

The first event of commencement week was the baccalaureate sermon delivered Sunday morning by Dr. David Ross Boyd, president of the University of New Mexico. This able man and his fitly spoken words were well suited to the auspicious occasion for educational Carrizozo. There being no other evangelical services in town that evening Dr. Boyd spoke again to a good sized audience.

Thursday night the eighth grade graduation exercises were held in the school auditorium. The programme was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. Eight pupils received the promotion certificate to the high school and specially prepared features were interspersed with musical numbers by the high school chorus, and three solo numbers. Various ones of the original thirteen had to drop out at the crucial time, but we feel assured that the favored eight will make a good showing and give a good account of themselves in the four years of high school work before them. Those receiving the honors were: Rachel Hughes, Bessie White, Mae Kennedy, Addie Johnson, Francis Goddard, Alma Roberts, Carleton Mentzer and Dorothy Goddard.

Friday night the High School graduating exercises attracted the largest audience of the week, and the ample seating arrangements failed to suffice. Rev. J. A. Armstrong of Alamogordo delivered a most inspiring baccalaureate address, and the graduating oration was especially well prepared and attractively presented. Mr. John E. Bell, clerk of the board of education, delivered the diploma with a short but pertinent speech. More music by the chorus and a couple of child numbers gave especial delight. Miss Peters was the recipient of many tokens of esteem consisting of floral offerings and elegant gifts.

Other features of the week, not directly connected with the public exercises was the dance which the Junior class tendered in honor of Miss Peters on Tuesday night. Every guest wore the school colors of crimson and gold and dainty refreshments of cream and cake were served at an appropriate hour. The music was good, the spirit of the evening most pleasant, and the Juniors deserve much credit for the splendid entertainment they gave the school's first graduate. Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. McCurdy entertained at their home in honor of Miss Peters. The chief feature of the evening were contests to tease the guests. These proved quite enjoyable events. Refreshments of grape sherbet and wafers were served. The inclement weather of the early evening prevented several guests from attending the affair. Those present were: Misses Spence, Peters, Garvin, Stevens, Brazel, Spellman; Mesdames Peters, Garvin, Smith, Norton, Blaney, Bell; Messrs. Bell, Peters, Horton, Stevens, Anderson. Mrs. Shinn of Deming assisted Mrs. McCurdy in the entertainment.

BIG GOOD ROADS MEETING JUNE 18

Commercial Club Appoints Committees to Entertain Guests, Banquet or Smoker Planned

ALL GOOD ROAD BOOSTERS INVITED

A mammoth get-together, good roads meeting will be held here June 18th and an invitation is being extended to all in Lincoln county and also all surrounding counties who are interested in good roads, to be present at that time. It is proposed to map out at this meeting comprehensive plans for the highway systems of Lincoln and adjoining counties, and if there is anything to be said for your particular section of the county or any road project that you want to put before the people, come to this meeting and bring it with you, and put it before the meeting.

Personal invitations are being sent to many outside the county, particularly in Torrance county, from which territory a large number of people are expected. These Torrance county people are coming here to join with the people of Lincoln county in putting the Gran Quiviera road on the map, and if our people turn out as well and get in touch with these boosters much may be done toward turning the tide of tourists through Lincoln and Torrance counties. The Gran Quiviera Ruins is one of the most interesting and instructive sights in the Southwest, and with the proper amount of publicity, will attract many this way. Preparations are now under way to have this end of this section of road, fogged and posted, and with the completion of the bridge over the Carrizozo Arroya north of here, which is being pushed as fast as possible, and a little work on the stretch near the ruins, it will be a highway that deserves advertisement, as it will be in first class condition all the way.

It is planned to give a smoker or banquet as an entertainment for the visitors, and the Commercial Club has appointed a committee on entertainment to take care of this feature, and the members of this committee guarantee that there will be something going on every minute.

There is also a delegation coming from the eastern part of Torrance county, Guadalupe and Quay counties in behalf of the proposed Tucumcari-El Paso automobile road to be built along the Southwestern right of way, and which will connect with our Carrizozo Alamogordo road, now under construction.

R. E. Farley of Mountain Air will be here in the interest of the Mountain Air Chautauqua, and will deliver his celebrated lecture on the ancient ruins of New Mexico, which will be illustrated by many beautiful views. The purpose of Rev. Farley's lecture, which is of course entirely free, is to familiarize New Mexicans with the work of the Chautauqua, and also for the enlargement of the institution by the sale of a few shares of stock, and his lecture will also of course have a tendency toward creating an interest in the highway from Gran Quiviera to Mountain Air.

While the people of Lincoln County are of course interested in seeing the Gran Quiviera-Mountain Air road completed, our main concern is in getting the roads of our own county in such condition that they may be fit to connect with any kind of a road that may be constructed up to the borders of the county, without showing favor to any particular route, and to this end delegations are being invited from the different sections of the surrounding counties, that each section may have a chance to advance its attractions and its plans, and that the Lincoln county people may form their own plans accordingly.

This meeting promises to be the biggest thing of its kind yet attempted, the good roads movement is becoming stronger every day, and all that is now needed is to so direct the enthusiasm that has been aroused that good may result to all sections of the counties involved, and that the available funds for road-building be put to the best possible uses.

These are matters that can only be settled by free and open discussion, and it is hoped that such matters will be freely discussed at the meeting on June 18th.

Every citizen and householder in Carrizozo is urged to invite his or her particular friends throughout the county and elsewhere to attend this meeting and help make it a success, as it surely will be if we will all pull together.

The committees on entertainment are not ready to make public their plans but you can assure anyone that they will be taken care of, furnished entertainment, and given an opportunity to fully discuss the road matters of this section.

The new change made in the schedule of trains on the E. P. & S. W. railroad will work quite a hardship on the people of this county. The removal of trains No. 7 and 8 leaves us with but one daylight train, No. 3 which stops once in the county, at Carrizozo. It also makes the handling of mail at the local postoffice very inconvenient, causing an excessive amount of work. It is hoped that the change will prove temporary.

W. R. White of the Mesa has installed a new up-to-date saw mill on his timbered land on the Bonita. The machinery is on the latest pattern, beside the regular circle saws for ordinary work, Mr. White has also a planer and other machines for turning out a finished product. In fact a complete line of finished and unfinished lumber will be turned out. A phone will be put in at the mill so that orders can be planned direct to the mill. Lumber will be on the yard in less than a week.

The ISOLATED CONTINENT

A ROMANCE OF THE FUTURE

By GUIDO VON HORVATH and DEAN HOARD

COPYRIGHT, 1913 BY W.G. CHAPMAN IN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN

SYNOPSIS.

For fifty years the continent of North America had been isolated from the rest of the world by the use of Z-rays, a wonderful invention of Hannibal Prudent. The inventor had saved the country from foreign invaders and the continent had been united under one government with Prudent as president. For half a century peace and prosperity reigned over this part of the world. This story opens with President Prudent critically ill. His death is hastened by the receipt of a message from Count von Werdenstein of Germany that he has at last succeeded in penetrating the rays. Prudent's daughter, Astra, is suspected of being an American. He tells her to hurry to the island of Clryne, but dies before she can tell the location of the place. Astra is nominated for the presidency by the continental party. Napoleon Edson calls on Astra, informs her that he was a pupil of her father's, and promises to help her. He gives her a ring made of a newly discovered substance which, he says, will solve the problem of flying. Chancellor von Leon appears in Europe. He calls on von Werdenstein and offers him the secret of making gold in return for absolute disarmament and peace. The chemist is suspected of being an American. He is seized at night and carried off in an aeroplane. Astra is inaugurated as president. She receives a message from Edson, whose long silence has worried her. He has returned to his workshop on the island of Clryne and has just escaped. He announces that the confederated fleet of Europe has sailed for America. He promises to call on her the following night. Countess Rosita, a spy, becomes a prisoner in hope of securing Napoleon's secret. She falls in love with him. She agrees to join him in an attempt to escape. By the use of fireworks he summons a curious flying machine which resembles a monster eagle. He escapes and sends his message to Astra. Edson calls on Astra as promised. He tells her his plans for defense have been completed, but that he will give full details at his workshop on the island of Clryne in three hours. His plans are based on the peculiarity of the new substance, which is an artificially constructed metal and is practically indestructible. The Europeans succeed in passing the line of isolation, but find that the Americans have established a second one. Edson's fleet is summoned to von Werdenstein in his flagship demanding that the fleet be withdrawn. Edson is attacked, but by the use of some mysterious power he destroys two warships and several aeroplanes. Realizing his helplessness, Werdenstein withdraws his fleet and consents to universal disarmament. Edson's mother is ill on the island of Clryne. Countess Rosita offers to go and comfort her, hoping to discover Edson's secret. She begins to weave a net around Santos Duprel, Edson's assistant. The countess gets a letter from Werdenstein offering her the principedom of Schomburg-Lithow for Edson's secret. Edson and Santos start in search of a new deposit of clryne, their supply being almost exhausted. They find it on the estate of Schomburg-Lithow.

In the meantime the aerodrome was rapidly nearing Clryne. Rositta had sat motionless for a short time, her mind revolving all the details of her plan. Santos sat with his hands on the wheel, eyes straight forward, watching the faint yellowish glow that marked the horizon. His heart throbbed with happiness. He felt the presence of the woman who was playing with him. "Mr. Duprel!" The dreaming man turned toward the picture of his dreams, letting the bird fly its steady, rapid course. "Will you answer me a question, Mr. Duprel?" she asked appealingly. "As many, countess, as you wish to ask." "First of all, please call me Rositta and I will call you Santos." Santos nodded. He had no more power to analyze her motives, he wanted to believe in the things that were happening. "Were you ever in love friend Santos?" She looked implacably into Santos' astonished eyes. "I never was before," he stammered. "Then you are now?" Santos suddenly felt that weakness that enveloped him in the presence of the fair countess leave him; his deep love had made him brave. "I am, countess! Hopelessly in love." His voice was pathetic, a quivering of longing and despair. "Why hopelessly, my dear Santos?" She had laid her hand on his arm, and repeated the question. "Because I dare to love you, you; in my case not hopelessly." Poor Santos trembled under the strain of the past half hour. All at once the despair, the sufferings and his untold misery were swept away in the wave of happiness caused by Rositta's arm about his short neck. He embraced the exquisite woman so ardently that she suffered, but she only replied with a sweet, sense-ensnaring smile. Santos declared: "You have no idea what power you possess over me! I am your slave. You can make of me what you will, a hero or a traitor. I am ready to die for you." It was not necessary for Santos to tell this. Rositta knew her power even better than Santos. They were nearing Clryne, and Santos tried to regain his normal composure. Rositta said gravely: "Listen to me, my dear. We must be very careful what we do. I love you and I want our love to last as long as we live. You are all alone, but I have powerful connections and still more powerful enemies who would prevent our happiness. For that reason we must plan carefully and until that happy time comes, when we can slip away to that little home of ours, we must be discreet and cautious. Do not tell of our love. I will meet you whenever I can and we will leave when the way is clear." "I am yours, my dear Rositta, but I know my happiness will betray my love." The countess gazed straight ahead, her hand still nestled in Santos'. She continued: "I have been all alone. The President, Mr. Edson and his dear mother have been very good to me, but I have longed for someone to be my very own. I have found you and now I am happy, indeed." Could Santos have seen behind that artful schemer's veil, he would have recoiled, horror-stricken. But he could only see the tender light in her eyes, and hear the loving words from her lips.

CHAPTER XVI.

A New Princess.

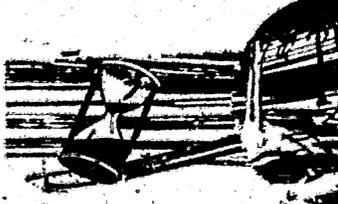

Napoleon found obstacles in the way of obtaining the property where he had discovered the desired clrynite. The German crown declared it was not for sale. He asked for a long lease, and the right to mine the Peak Suemeg, but that would conflict with the laws of Hungarian lease and rental rights. Realizing that he never would arrive at the actual working of the mine, unless he took a decided step, he paid a visit to the Count von Werdenstein personally. This time he crossed the ocean in one of the newest English liners that made the trip between New York and Liverpool in three days. Upon his arrival in Berlin he visited his friend, Herr Kalmar, before he even sought a hotel. The German was very happy to see the man with whom he had so many pleasant dealings, and readily explained the political situation in Europe. He frankly said that there was possibility of an international disturbance; the people were happy, but the nobility, and more particularly, the idle army and navy officers, were agitating the question of restoring the standing armies and aerial and naval defenses. Napoleon listened gravely to the opinions of this brave and broad-minded man who was doing all he could to enlighten the people. He knew Herr Kalmar was a perfectly trustworthy man, so he told him about his difficulties in obtaining Peak Suemeg. Herr Kalmar said: "I believe that the chancellor, notwithstanding his defeat in American waters, has retained the Kaiser's good will, and has, no doubt, delayed matters because he wanted to find out why you want the Peak Suemeg so badly. His spies are probably at work trying to ascertain the value of the Peak, so that he can utilize it for his own purposes."

Napoleon acknowledged this fact. "Then you think the powers would not hesitate to undo all I have done, that they would gladly take up arms again, and wage battle in God's beautiful, clear air?" "I certainly do!" was Herr Kalmar's emphatic answer. "That makes it all the more imperative that I carry out the pactum to the letter. I never could answer to history, if I were to break my oath." He sighed. "If war is carried into the air, if anyone should discover the secret of clrynite, and the aerodrome, I will find the means to confound them." His face expressed grim determination and Herr Kalmar respected him as a man more than a king, a man of his word.

The chancellor received Napoleon very cordially. Napoleon stated his errand, briefly. He told the count that he was anxious to gain control of the property in Hungary that had belonged to the Schomburg Lithow estates. The count was somewhat taken aback by this direct statement. He said, in his suavest manner: "May I ask what causes your anxiety in regard to that property? To be perfectly frank, I sent my best analysts there to assay that peak, hoping to find the name of the mineral that interests you, but they do not find anything extraordinary. One of them mentions a peculiar quartz formation there that somewhat resembles the mineral used in manufacturing glass, but that is all they could find." "They are right, count. I want those crystals." "I shall do my best for you, but you know how imperfect our laws are in regard to estates that fall to the crown." "Can you not make an exception in this case?" The count shook his head doubtfully. "His majesty is the only one who could, and I am sorry to say that your honor does not happen to have his sympathy."

"Of course not; he thinks I have clipped his wings!" This remark slipped out unexpectedly. He took leave of the count and looked up Herr Kalmar once more and told him many things that showed the big German he was in Napoleon's confidence. Shortly after this he left for England, and from there for New York. Count von Werdenstein did not know the true value of these crystals, but he was shrewd enough to surmise that they were connected with Napoleon's aerodromes, those wonderful

NO OLD MAIDS IN SIAM

When Girls Reach Certain Age Without Getting Married the King Presures a Spouse.

Kings of Siam apparently do not believe in the wisdom of allowing single women to drift unattached about the country. In certain districts after a girl has reached an age where her securing for herself a husband is considered doubtful she becomes a "daughter of the king." That is, the king takes upon himself the task of settling her suitably in life. His process is quite simple and to the point. He proceeds to the Siamese penitentiary and looks over the various prisoners. There is a law in Siam that any prisoner can obtain his release by marrying one of his class of girls, and, naturally enough, any prisoner whom the king picks out is not likely to be backward about consenting to the ceremony. Nor does it make any difference if he is married, for the men of that country are not restricted to one wife.

As far as can be learned, there is no allowance made for the inclination of the girl in question. She has fallen in her mission in life as far as she herself is concerned, and she must abide by the decision of the king.

Youthful Courtesy.

Prof. William Howard Taft of Yale had a practical illustration of personal popularity a few days ago. He was a passenger on a trolley car on his way to the golf links. It was not a "pay-as-you-enter" car, and when the conductor came within his reach the ex-president professor offered his fare, which was rejected with the remark: "That's all right; a lad on the platform paid for you, Mr. President." For a moment Mr. Taft looked puzzled, but then he smiled broadly and evidently appreciated the courtesy.

Futile Sacrifice.

Cholly—What's the matter, Frank, dear boy? Frank—Oh, Cholly, Ethel tells me she loves another. Cholly—What hard luck, after your devotion! Frank—Hard luck! Why, Cholly, in the last six months her father's dog has bitten me nine times.

Lazy.

"He was very lazy, Mr. Perkins," said old Mrs. Jones. "I must say my first husband was a very lazy man." "How lazy was he?" I asked. "Well, he was so lazy, Eli, Mr. Jones was so lazy, that he wouldn't shove a path to the front gate." "How did he get the path broken out?" I asked. "Oh, he used to lay on the lounge and pinch the baby's ear with the nippers until the neighbors came rushing in to tread down the snow."—Eli Perkins.

Countess Rositta Rosiny.

The chancellor's feelings, after he had carefully read this letter were a mingling of satisfaction and distrust. He realized that the countess had cleverly taken command, and, notwithstanding her seeming servility, she was the one to dictate and the chancellor the one to obey. He glanced up at the little man who had brought the letter. He was standing stolidly waiting.

will make humanity happier, things that will help eradicate poverty and misery." "Dear girl! I have a premonition that the days you dream of are still far off; that those intrigues in Europe are planning and scheming and that when we least expect it, trouble will begin. For that reason, I believe it best to plan our marriage now. Some of the letters over the ocean have already begun to discuss our situation with heartless cynicism." They stopped and stood silent for a moment, then Astra leaned her head on Napoleon's shoulder and tenderly and lovingly she whispered: "Your thought is my thought; I will follow wherever you lead."

Girdles of Roses.

Entire girdles of roses are the latest accessory for evening gowns. They add inches to the apparent width of the waist line. But to give a touch of color to a gown in black velvet, satin, chiffon or brocade they are invaluable, and decidedly more striking in effect than the ordinary corsage bouquet. The roses of the usual dimensions of the almost full-blown flower are made in satin or silk ribbon or in gauze thickly powdered with beads of a matching shade of yellow, pink, cream or red.

WANDERLUST COSTS $27,000.

Farmer, Seventy, on First Trip From Home, is Victim of Swindler. Buffalo—George Crestesinger, the Williamsville farmer, who reported to the police that he had been swindled out of $12,000, admitted that in all the swindler had relieved him of $27,000. Crestesinger is seventy years old. The trip to Florida, during which he met the confidence man, was the first time he had been away from home.

ODD FACTS.

Out of a total coinage of $62,800,000 produced by the Paris mint last year, $47,200,000 was in gold. A street in Lyons—the Rue de la Republique—is paved with glass. The blocks are eight inches square, and so closely fitted that water cannot pass between the interstices. The Czar of Russia probably owns a greater quality of china than any other person in the world. He has the china belonging to all the Russian rulers as far back as Catherine the Great. It is stored in the Winter palace at St. Petersburg. A novel newspaper has appeared in St. Petersburg, called the Yagabonds' Gazette. It is intended for circulation among the criminal classes, and its chief contributors are well known to the Russian police. Signed articles relating the details of famous coups are an important feature of the new journal.

RISE AND FALL OF ROYAL FAMILIES OF CHIHUAHUA

Combination of Whose Members Caused Mexican Revolt.

TERRAZAS AND CREEL LEAD

Former Began With Small Store, Entered Politics and Accumulated Land Until He Was Worth $100,000,000—Later Was a Financier.

New York.—The history of the "royal family" of Chihuahua reveals conditions that made a revolution necessary and at the same time furnished an almost melodramatic history of the rise of a popular 1861 and his fall in the estimation of his one time worshippers until he is now execrated as a villain.

Chihuahua royalty consists of the Terrazas and Creel families, their connections and descendants. Owing to intermarriages these are practically the same in both families, but as the legitimate descendants of Luis Terrazas, founder of the dynasty, number 120 royalty is not rare. Chihuahua is the largest and wealthiest of the Mexican states, and the conditions here brought about by the royal family have their counterpart in the rest of the republic.

"Old Don Luis," as he is called, was born in the city of Chihuahua in 1829, became possessed of a fortune estimated at $100,000,000 and is now in exile, while his son Luis is a prisoner in his own house.

Don Luis held a few acres less than nine millions in this state, or a territory one-third as large as New York state; cattle, horses and sheep in numbers that not even his administrator knew with accuracy, but which can only be numbered satisfactorily by the hundred thousand; banks, mines, buildings and what not.

At the death of his father Luis inherited 5,000 pesos and went into business in a small way near the public market place. The fine residence of a son, Juan Terrazas, now occupies the site of the store. With a partner, Amado Porvas, he continued in business through the '50s. Much of the success of the store, which at first was of the type called tendajon or "Cheap John," was because of the help and shrewdness of Porvas. Porvas whom his former partner became great was made administrator of his affairs.

In the late '50s Terrazas went into politics and in it found his real occupation. He is said to have resembled the late Mark Hanna in his appearance and manner. He soon became jefe politico, then governor, and unflattering stories are told of his manipulation of the mint for Chihuahua, then coined money. And he then began getting together the vast estate of which he was possessed.

In 1884 he was the grand seigneur of the district and on March 25 with his levies drove out the sympathizers of Maximilian. This notable victory enabled President Juarez to make Chihuahua his capital and return from what almost amounted to exile on the northern frontier. He was so delighted that he immediately created Terrazas general. Among other notables who served under Terrazas in this battle was Felix Diaz.

This event marks the highest point that Terrazas reached, not in wealth indeed, but in the estimation of his people. Universally popular, fairly worshiped by the people, he was one of the great men of the country, and oddly enough, was a leader of that popular party of which the Constitutional party which has exiled him is the descendant. After this period in 1880 commenced his association with his nephew and son-in-law, Enrique Creel; half Mexican and half gringo, who in the popular estimation is the blacker villain of the two.

Ruben Creel, father of Henry C. Creel, or as he is better known, Enrique C., was American consul here and remained in the country. He and Don Luis married sisters, Pas Cullity and Caroline Cullity, daughters of a family prominent in this locality and now extremely wealthy. Creel's marriage took place in 1852. The connection between the two families was further strengthened when the younger Creel married one of Terrazas' daughters.

In 1884, after the stormy term of Gen. Manuel Gomez as president of the republic, Diaz was elected constitutionally for the second time, and immediately the centralization of power and the long period of material development of Mexico began. As under the Diaz regime governors of states were practically autocrats in their country. As long as they did not displease the president it was easy for the Terrazas-Creel combination to take advantage of the growth of the country.

They succeeded each other as governor, and while Terrazas' ambition in politics seems to have stopped there Creel became minister to Washington and, it was said, desired to be Diaz's successor. But whatever were his political ambitions, they interfered not at all with the process of building up a great fortune. He is reported to have been far from rich when he married the daughter of Terrazas and what his wealth amounts to now is a matter of conjecture merely.

Chihuahua has never been properly surveyed unless the German engineers working for Terrazas surveyed it in its entirety. In fact there are still large areas where it is highly probable that no man with the possible exception of some Indian band has been since the Spanish conquest. This fact, together with the law that there must be definite titles to land, facilitated one means of getting land.

In some cases haciendas were bought and the contiguous lands claimed under the title deed. The possessors of these lands had small chance to prove their claims in court against the accurate surveys of the members of the royal family. Or an even simpler process was to fence in lands and lay claim to them. Here again the able lawyers and actual survey were convincing in court even had the judiciary been unflinching, and whatever the facts of the matter were, the people believe so strongly that the courts were not impartial that many of the legal profession have thought it safer to leave the country for the present.

There are also many stories of threats and violence used to remove the possessors from desirable pieces of land, but these are impossible to substantiate satisfactorily at present.

At one time a law, perfectly reasonable on its face, was passed that all titles to land must be registered publicly within a definite time. Land to which the title was not registered became available for public entry. As was to be expected, many of the poor proprietors neglected to do this or never heard of the necessity, and those in authority were in the best position to take advantage of their omissions.

The real downfall of Luis Terrazas and his family came in the latter part of 1913, when the present revolution began to gain strength. Gen. Pancho Villa is the worst foe of royalty in Chihuahua. When the present rebels occupied Chihuahua they seized the Terrazas and their properties and Villa announced that he would restore the land to the peons. Gen. Luis Terrazas fled to El Paso with other prominent citizens of Chihuahua.

Villa seized Luis Terrazas, Jr., and held him prisoner in Chihuahua, demanding $500,000 ransom. He threatened to kill the son of the old general if the money wasn't paid.

With his estate confiscated, Gen. Luis Terrazas didn't have money enough to meet Villa's demand. Even with the aid of friends he found it impossible to scrape together enough of his former $100,000,000 to free his son.

He appealed to the United States state department and Secretary Bryan took a hand. He forced Villa to spare Luis Terrazas, Jr., and Bryan's appeal to Carranza got the prisoner his freedom. But "freedom" only means that he can stay in Chihuahua under guard.

Villa has killed many of the Terrazas family agents and relatives. General Terrazas' lawyer was shot to death after he paid $15,000 for his freedom. Gen. Luis Terrazas, now more than four-score, announced recently that he would start a ranch in Texas and try to regain his lost fortune.

MAY CURE CRIPPLES

Grafting of Nerves May Accomplish This Result.

London Surgeon Shows Brain Cells Can Be Given Two Separate Functions—Makes Experiments on Foreleg of Dog.

London, England.—The Times reports one result of important nerve grafting experiments recently by Prof. Robert Kennedy of Glasgow, proving conclusively that a brain cell may be taught to perform two separate functions.

Each nerve communicates with a particular set of brain cells which control its activities. It was supposed that these cells were able to perform only the function allotted to them by nature.

Doctor Kennedy made experiments on the foreleg of a dog. He severed all the nerves connecting with the muscles below the joint and then connected all these muscles to the group of nerves controlling flexion or bending.

The dog was for some time unable to direct or co-ordinate its movements. Gradually, however, about the ninety-third day, this power returned and was regained completely by the one hundred and twenty-third day.

The possible applications of the discovery are wide. For example, the nerves of a withered or useless limb, the function of which has been lost because of some injury to or disease of the brain, if connected to the nerve trunk leading to a healthy part of that organ might again receive and convey stimuli. In that case the degenerated and flabby muscles would again regain power and the infirmity would be cured.

We would be surprised if we knew what our neighbors think of us—if they ever give us a thought.

MAN IN PERU NOT ANCIENT

Hrdlicka Expedition of National Museum of Peru Disproves Theory of Great Antiquity.

Washington.—The expedition of Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the National Museum to Peru has largely disproved the theories regarding the extreme antiquity of man in that region, according to Doctor Hrdlicka's report.

Not a trace suggesting anything older than the pre-Columbian Indian was found anywhere, and neither the coast nor the mountain population, so far as studied, can be regarded as very ancient in the regions they inhabited. No signs indicated that any group occupied any of the sites for even as long as twenty centuries; nor does it seem that any of these people developed their culture, except in some particulars, in these places.

ECZEMA ON BACK AND CHEST

Pierson, N. Dakota.—"The eczema started on my scalp. It finally went on to the back of my neck, then on to my back, arms and chest. It broke out in pimples first and then seemed to run together in some places, making a sore about the size of a dime. At times the itching and burning were so intense that it seemed unbearable. The more I scratched it the worse it became, and there would be a slight discharge from it, especially on my scalp, so as to make my hair matted and sticky close to the scalp. The hair was dry, lifeless and thin. My hair was falling so terribly that I had begun to despair of ever finding relief. My clothing irritated the eruption on my back. The affected parts were almost a solid scab.

"I had been bothered with eczema for about a year and a half. Then I began using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used them daily for two months and I was cured." (Signed) Miss Mildred Dennis, Apr. 30, 1913.

AN ITEM OF INTEREST

Next Wednesday evening will be the first service of the District conference that is to be held here during the remainder of the week and including Sunday, June 7th. The pastor in charge of each work the Sunday school Supts., president of Epworth League, and local preachers, are members of this conference. There will be present pastor and will have good preaching, and lectures. This is in the Albuquerque district, over which Rev. G. H. Givan is the presiding elder and the chairman of the conference.

Well, you say "what must I do to make a success of it?" Come to the services. All are open to the public and each and every one urged to attend. It has been invited here by the pastor and the Ladies Missionary Society for your special benefit. We will be sorely disappointed unless you attend.

You will please open up your hearts and homes and give those who come into our town as visitors a hearty welcome. By so doing you will enjoy the conference and send our visitors away with a pleasant memory of our town, all of which I am sure you will do.

LEST YOU FORGET

The pastor of the Methodist Church has returned from his visit to the General conference in Oklahoma City. He reports a great trip. There have been great rains all over the Southwest and crop conditions are promising everywhere. High waters along the Canadian river have done considerable damage to the bottom farms, and washed out bridges here and there on many railroad lines and some country roads.

There will be services both morning and evening as usual. There were services last Sunday but very few knew about it. During our absence we are pleased to learn that Dr. Boyd of the State University preached both morning and evening. Our church is open to all things that are good, both here and that might come our way. Come, let us make this church our church. Let us turn every talent into good channels, and make the church the best place in amusement and religion that may be had. There are some things that must not be in there at all; but there are many other things that are wholesome and clean, and we have plenty of it possible in our town, good high grade music and songs, impersonations and readings. With us there are many who have gifts in these lines. I hope to be your partner in every good work. I am at your service.

RIDING in the GERMAN ARMY

SERGEANT OF THE CROWN PRINCE'S DEATH'S HEAD HUSSARS

YOUNG VOLUNTEER OF THE CROWN PRINCE'S REGIMENT

THE whole trend of military teaching, its aims and efforts, may be summed up in the one word—"forward." This is the word of encouragement given to the raw recruit who, perchance for the first time in his life and with a sinking heart, mounts the well-broken, wary steed that is to be his "master" in more ways than one. The accomplished rider facing the obstacles of the race course, the squadron sweeping over the exercise ground, an unbroken line of glittering lance and helmet, the hunters galloping joyously across autumnal stubble fields in the track of the hounds, one and all have the same motto. Not long ago, indeed in our fathers' time, military riding was a fairly tame affair. The riding school played the chief part and the objects aimed at were a thoroughly correct seat and a perfectly "made" horse. No one would have dared to put horse and rider to the hard tests up-to-date riding science demands of them. It would have been looked upon as madness to take the obstacles we face coolly today. The much-talked-of, much-abused distance ride—Vienna-Berlin—was the turning point. Whatever may be said against it, it effectually showed what horse and rider were capable of, and from that time enthusiasm and strenuous labor went hand in hand and accomplished great things, as our illustrations show.

Renewed care was devoted to the breeding of horses in Germany. The East Prussian, well adapted for cavalry use, provides the greater part of the remounts; very hardy, strong and enduring, this breed has much of the thoroughbred in it, and makes an ideal saddle horse. When, in the recent wars in Southwest Africa, the Germans imported various breeds of horses for field service, among them a good many Argentines, the East Prussian had most endurance and was the most serviceable. Mecklenburg, Hannover and Holstein produce strong, useful animals of the hunter type, that are often sold under the name of "Englander," although they have never been across the water.

After purchase by a military commission the remounts are sent to depots, in which the young horses remain for one year. An annual contingent of about seventeen remounts from four to five years old is allotted to each squadron. After eighteen months' schooling these are ranged in the ranks, but as German horses are, as a rule, late in developing, they are not put to any exceptionally hard work before their seventh year. At the end of three years these horses, under the best riders, form the "B" division, that is looked upon as the show squadron of the regiment.

The recruits enter the regiment in late autumn. Their teaching is so far advanced in spring that they are able to be incorporated in the squadron. Officers and non-commissioned officers share the arduous task of riding instructors. In March the school teaching practically comes to an end with the "Besichtigung," and the regiment then enjoys the greater freedom of the exercise ground. As soon as the young cavalry ensign has attained the much-desired grade of lieutenant he is sent to one of the riding schools at Paderborn or Soltau for a year, to be initiated into the difficult art of horsemanship. In all regiments the officers up to the grade of captain participate during the winter in a daily riding lesson. The teaching used to lie in the major's hands, but instructions now allow of this difficult post being confided to the most capable officer. The first hour is devoted to the riding of chargers, the second to horses in the officers' possession, which must, however, be able to satisfy all the demands of military duty. Every cavalry and artillery lieutenant is entitled to a charger, which after four years' service becomes his own property. They are chosen from remounts that have been two years in the army. In the riding lesson horse and rider each take their share of the schooling. Although they do not carry the weapon, the young officers are specially trained in the use of the lance, so as to be able instructors to the soldiers. Special attention is devoted to riding over obstacles. "High school" riding and racing are encouraged as far as possible, and very great stress is laid on cross-country riding and hunting. All regiments practise the latter in the autumn after the maneuvers have come to an end, and it is carried on as long as the severe German winters permit. All the officers participate under the colonel's lead, for it is looked upon as part of the military duty, as a good school for the young and good practice for their elders, increasing the ability of all to meet the stern demands of war. A great many of the cavalry regiments keep a pack of hounds. In South Germany the lion of the country only permits of drag hunts, but in the North deer and especially wild boar are coursed, the most favored localities being the Schar and Hanover. This latter place is the home of the Great Military Riding Institute, and the hunting there has attained some celebrity. Almost all cavalry and many field artillery officers go through a course of two years' instruction there. There are also special courses for non-commissioned officers. The teaching is most thorough, and aims at the highest grade of perfection. Long-distance rides form another branch of the military service. No horses under eight years may participate; in no case is their endurance to be tried to the utmost, the condition of the horse at the end of the trial being one of the chief points called to account. The great competition of the year is the "Kaiserpreisritt" for which the emperor offers prizes to each army corps and the riding institute at Hanover. To attain its definite possession, however, the competitor must win the prize twice. This article would be incomplete without touching on the jumping competitions and riding tournaments and are held in many of the larger towns throughout the empire, and in which officers participate freely. A few years ago these were taken in hand by the "Kartell für Reit und Fahrport," and the good influence of this organization, which is built up on great lines, extends not only to the army, but also to horse breeding generally in Germany. The competitions are open to (a) horses in private possession and officers' chargers; (b) horses belonging to the army ridden by non-commissioned officers; (c) horses that are the property of dealers or of studs. There are special tournaments for riding horses, high-school horses, competitions in cross-country, record and team jumping, tests of obedience and usefulness, competitions with special reference to the rider's ability, long-distance rides and—as the latest innovation—cross-country riding over a distance of twenty kilometers, points being given for the way obstacles are taken as well as for pace. In many ways the results obtained are really excellent; good horses and good riders are the rule, the teams of non-commissioned officers coming in for a fair share of the latter.

The high standard asked from horses and riders in the competitions may be seen in the accompanying illustrations of well-known German sportsmen. Special interest attaches to the pictures of the Leib-Hussar regiment (Death's Head), which up to a recent date stood under the command of H. R. H. the crown prince of Germany. Under this most able and enthusiastic horseman the regiment, in which only Prussian grays are ridden and which recruits in the horse-breeding centers of this province, was enabled to attain a rare grade of perfection.

When all the circumstances are taken into consideration, I think it is safe to say that the Germans devote more time to the breaking of horses and schooling and handling them than other nations, and that this is specially notable in the army. As early as 1888 the lance was taken into use as a general weapon for the cavalry, and it is a sure test of good riding that each soldier in the ranks is master of this weapon. In any large assembly of equestrians the number of "well-made" horses is apparent, although riding is not practised so extensively as over the water. Generally a good deal of importance is attached to school riding and the handling of mounts; while riding in the formal fashion of the school tends also to insure the animal's perfect obedience in the field.

A new riding regulation for the German army was issued in 1912 to supplant the old one of 1882. This excellent book, entering thoroughly into the matter, does away with many antiquated notions, and gives more freedom to the teacher. To go into details would carry us too far. Suffice it to say that, although a high standard of excellence is aimed at in school riding and a perfectly "made" horse is required, far more stress is now laid on cross-country riding, jumping and hunting than formerly. The program is summed up in the opening words: "To meet the demands of war, the rider must have his horse under perfect control, and the horse must be obedient, agile and enduring."

Desert State Church.
What extensive proportions the leave the state church movement has attained in Germany were disclosed for the first time at the meeting of the Berlin synod last week. The movement is supported by free thinkers like Ernst Haackel, Prof. Drews, and energetically by the Social Democratic party. It was stated at the synod meeting that matters had reached a point where even the reichstag no longer contains a Protestant majority, as considerably more than half the imperial parliament consists of Roman Catholics, Jews, and Socialist free thinkers, who have renounced all church allegiance. During 1913 a total of 12,731 people were induced to desert the state evangelical church, and for the last six years the number aggregates more than 50,000.

Practical View of It.
During a political campaign a certain orator spoke to a great gathering of country people in an Alabama town. He deluged his hearers with a flood of oratory. He was impassioned, he was impressive, he was grand. The thunderous applause of the crowd told him so. He thrilled with the consciousness of his power over the minds of men. And, being in this state of mind, he stood in the midst of the assemblage, after speaking, and listened to the comments of the audience. "What do you think of his speech?" asked one old farmer, stroking a fierce-looking military mustache. "Well," replied another old fellow, running his fingers through his ample whiskers, "I kinder reckon that six hours' rain would have done us a sight more good."

Early Supplied.
"Pa, the doctor at the hospital said that he would have to have a lot of cuticle to cure Mamie's burns."
"Well, tell him to telephone to the nearest drugist for all he wants and charge it in the bill."

SMILES

TAKING THE COUNT. DID NOT IMPROVE WITH AGE.

A doctor in an Iowa town had been very busy for several days, and was worn out and sleepy when he got to bed one morning about two o'clock. Just as he dropped off a summons came from a house half a mile away. The lady of the house, the call said, was dying of a heart difficulty. The sleepy doctor got into his clothes somehow and went to the house, where the patient—a very stout woman—was in bed, breathing stentoriously. The doctor could find nothing especially wrong, but the woman was panicky. "Cough!" he ordered. She could not. Then he put his ear over her heart and said: "Count slowly."

Next thing he knew he woke to hear the woman counting faintly: "Ten thousand and forty-seven—ten thousand and forty-eight."—Saturday Evening Post.

Tess—Why of course you can't kiss me. I've only known you for a week. Ted—I was afraid you wouldn't allow it if you knew me better.

His Humility.
Abner Appledry—Jay Green ain't got no more pride and independence about him than a rabbit!
Aaron Alred—Say he hasn't?
Abner Appledry—Nah! Whenever he takes a ride on the cars he never stamps up and down the aisles or stands out on the back platform, to show everybody that he knows his rights, but just sits still in his seat like he was in church!—Puck.

Dangerous.
Should I propose to Dinah Smith, I confess that I'd be frightened; for in her answer she might use Dynamite of Dinah mightn't!

Following Instructions.
"I don't quite understand that portrait," said Mr. Walleston.
"I painted it according to your wife's instructions," replied the artist.
"But it makes me look as if I were asleep!"
"Yes. She insisted that I should modify the facial expression so as to avoid that of a man who is eagerly pursuing money."

HE LEARNED HIS VALUE.
A tourist in Scotland came to a wide ferry. It was stormy and the wind was constantly increasing. The Scotch ferryman agreed to take the tourist across, but told him to wait until he had first taken a cow across. When he had returned and started across with the traveler the latter became curious.
"Will you tell me why you took the cow across and made me wait?" he asked.
"Well, now," explained the ferryman, "you see, the cow wud be valuable, and I feared th' wind wud increase so th' boat might upset on th' second trip!"—Youth's Companion.

THE REASON.

Mrs. Highminded—I'm completely disgusted and I want to get a divorce.
Lawyer—What has your husband been doing?
Mrs. Highminded—Nothing.

Easy.
The easiest philanthropy
This world will ever view
Is telling how things ought to be
An' what folks ought to do.

Turn About.
"One of our prominent musical comedy producers declares that he will not require any actress to wear a costume which could not appear in a drawing-room."
"Dame Fashion ought to return the compliment and not require any society woman to wear a costume which would not be allowed on the stage."

Not the Same.
"Pop!"
"Yes, my boy."
"Are there many wooden legs made in Oregon?"
"Why, I don't know, my son."
"Well, this paper says Oregon has a great many feet of standing timber."

Can't Keep Up.
Church—How's your boy getting on in college?
Gotham—He's getting some pretty hard knocks, I understand.
"What's he studying now?"
"Skating."

A Vociferous Vocation.
Smith—I saw my first tango yesterday.
Brown—Well, what's your opinion of it?
Smith—A sort of a hip, hip, hurdy dance.

Dismal Diagnosis.
"How is your motor car doing?"
"Pretty badly. Everything about it is out of order except the horn. And that very appropriately sounds like a shriek of pain."

Pat's Plight.
"Mrs. O'Rooney," said Father McMurphy, "why do I never see Patrick at church now?"
Mrs. O'Rooney shook her head sadly.
"Is it socialism?"
"Worse than that, your reverence."
"Is it atheism?"
"Worse, your reverence."
"What is it, then?"
"Rheumatism."—London Tit-Bits.

A Novice.
"They told me to use a live frog for bait," said the stranger, "but I've been here all day and haven't had a bite yet."
"I reckon not, suh," said the old Georgia darkey. "De frog has swimmid ter a log wid yo' hook an' line, an' is settin' cross-log on the log a-lookin' at you!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Winning His Way.
"There's a young man who deserves a great deal of credit."
"For why?"
"Notwithstanding the fact that his father is a millionaire steel manufacturer he entered the shops at the bottom and spent three weeks working his way to the top."—Courier-Journal.

When Women Rule.
The newly-elected presidentess was talking to one of her henchwomen.
"Now, Gerlie, how would you like to be ambassador to China? They may bestow the peacock feather upon you there."
"I don't know about that. Where do they bestow ostrich plumes?"

AND THE SENTENCE.

Depositor—Will the cashier be away long?
Paying Teller—It depends entirely on the judge.

Big Business.
"Big Business" makes another start. They say it will reverse. And struggle to be big of heart. As well as big of purse.
