BRUTALLY MURDERED HIS WIFE

Aged Mexican Deliberately Steps out of Buggy and Shoots Wife in Back Killing her Instantly

LYNCHING OF MURDERER NARROWLY AVERTED

At 12:30 p. m. Tuesday on the main Ruidoso road about one mile below San Patricio, Jesus Morales, who was taking home a sack of flour on his back, met Ramon Vigil and wife sitting in a buggy, at the side of the road. Morales had not passed the couple more than ten steps when he heard a shot fired and saw Mrs. Vigil fall forward into the bottom of the buggy. Morales dropped his sack of flour and ran for his life. There were two other eye witnesses to the killing of Mrs. Vigil, and from their testimony it appears that Vigil who is over 75 years old, and several times a great grand father, had jumped out of the buggy, walked around behind it and deliberately shot his wife in the back. Vigil then got into the buggy, covered up the body of his wife with an old quilt, placed the body between his knees and drove a half mile down the road to the house of Juan Maes, a brother of the murdered woman, and said "I have brought your sister to you dead." The woman was shot in the middle of the back with a .45 caliber pistol, the bullet passing entirely through the body, splitting the heart in two and coming out the left breast. Death must have been instantaneous. After his arrest Vigil gave up his pistol, which had but the one empty chamber. At the preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Leopoldo Gonzales, Vigil plead guilty but assigned no cause for the deed. He later told the sheriff however that he had been drunk for three days before this time and was crazy.

Sheriff Cole started for San Patricio immediately on receipt of the news of the murder and placed Vigil under arrest. There were many verbal threats made against the life of the murderer and it is quite likely that, but for the prompt arrival of Mr. Cole on the scene, that an attempt would have been made to lynch him, as the feeling was running high against him, especially among the relatives of the murdered woman. Sheriff Cole kept a close guard over him during the night and brought him in here to jail on Wednesday morning.

It is rumored that Vigil killed a former wife several years ago in Colorado.

A. J. Swofford died Sunday afternoon at 3.30, at White Oaks after an illness of about three weeks of typhoid fever. He made many friends during his residence there and the sympathy of all is extended to the bereaved family. Interment was made in the White Oaks cemetery Monday and was attended by a delegation of Woodmen from Carrizozo, which lodge the deceased had recently joined.

The ISOLATED CONTINENT

A ROMANCE OF THE FUTURE

By GUIDO VON HORVATH and DEAN HOARD

COPYRIGHT, 1913 BY W.G. CHAPMAN IN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN

SYNOPSIS.

For fifty years the continent of North America has been isolated from the rest of the world by Z-rays, the invention of Hannibal Prudent, president of the united government. A message from Count von Werdenstein, chancellor of Germany, that he has succeeded in penetrating the rays hastens the death of Prudent. Dying, he warns his daughter Astra that foreign invasion is now certain. Astra succeeds her father as president. Napoleon Edison, a former pupil of Prudent's, offers to assist Astra and hints at new discoveries which will make North America impregnable. He gives her the name of Chevalier de Leon offers Werdenstein the secret of making gold in return for European disarmament. The chevalier is made a prisoner. Countess Rosita, a spy, becomes prisoner in the hope of discovering the secret. She falls in love with him and agrees to join him in an attempt to escape. By the use of rockets he summons a curious flying machine. He captures and sends a message to Astra which reveals the fact that he is Napoleon Edison. He warns Astra that the consolidated fleets of Europe have sailed to invade America. He calls on Astra to follow him to his laboratory and to reveal the secret of the use of aeroplanes made of a new substance which is indestructible. He expects to annihilate the European forces. He delivers a note to von Werdenstein in which he demands immediate withdrawal. He is attacked and by destroying two warships and several aeroplanes, forces von Werdenstein to agree to universal disarmament. The countess who has remained in America as a guest of Astra, receives an offer from von Werdenstein of the principality of Schomburg-Lithow in return for the secret. Edison and his assistant, Santos, go in search of new deposits of the remarkable substance, crynith. They find it on the estate of Schomburg-Lithow. The countess gets Santos into her clutches. She promises to reveal Edison's secret to von Werdenstein in return for the Schomburg-Lithow estate to her. On the day of the wedding of Astra and Edison the countess and Santos flee the country. Santos perfects a machine, is made a count and marries the princess, now princess of Schomburg-Lithow. Edison finds a new deposit of crynith and builds a new fleet of ships.

CHAPTER XIX.—Continued.

The count could not quite understand whether Napoleon meant just what he said or whether he was a more accomplished diplomat than he believed him to be.

"My main object in coming to you is another matter. I had a friend in my employment in the capacity of manager of the manufacturing of aerodromes. He is a very clever mechanical and electrical engineer, by the name of Santos Duprel. He has left me very mysteriously, and in the company of the Countess Rosiny. Of course, Duprel knew all the secrets of my aerodromes, and he could easily betray them. In fact, manufacture aerodromes on his own account. I wish I could find out his whereabouts, as I have a few words to say to him. I know that the Countess Rosiny returned to Germany, and since Duprel is with her I believed that you, through your excellent secret service, would know where he is. I heard that Duprel had some connection with the Princess Rositta of Schomburg-Lithow."

"The countess, or rather the princess, is at present on her Italian estate, at the Lago di Maggiore. No doubt she could give information in regard to the man. But I will, myself, order investigation at once."

His hesitating answer told Napoleon plainly that the count was still in doubt, that their preparations were not yet complete. He said:

"I am obliged to you for your kindness, and you may be sure that, should the time ever come when your excellency needs anything from me, you will find me ready to render you assistance."

This saluted the formal part of the visit and they talked a short time on ordinary topics. Then Napoleon invited the count to have a ride in his aerodrome.

"That will be a treat. I have been longing for a ride in one." The count evidently accepted the invitation with genuine pleasure. These two men were antagonistic, but not enemies. Their principles were different, that was all. They ascended and at Napoleon's glance Sullivan opened the door and the count was courteously ushered to the comfortable cabin. Sullivan was at the wheel and the bird flew a few thousand feet over the town, going slowly, so that the count could appreciate the easy flight. Napoleon sat by him, explaining the mechanism in simple language.

When the count alighted on his own roof he shook Napoleon's hand warmly and said: "I wish, my dear sir, that we were governed by the same ideals, as I would like you for a friend."

"The time may come when we will have the same ideals," commented Napoleon. The Eagle flew away and vanished from sight.

Napoleon spent a few hours in the capital attending to committee affairs, and the next morning left again. His knowledge of chemistry told him that there should be some natural means of removing the highly developed magnetic quality from crynith and thus enable one machine to gain control of the other. He decided to make a thorough search through all the volcanic regions of Western America before he settled down to experiment with chemical combinations. He stopped at Clryne, leaving Sullivan and visited with his mother a few minutes before he left for the South. Some irresistible power drew him toward the Garden of Eden.

He landed once more on that beautiful carpet of green.

He drank once more from the crystal lake and started on his search. The bluish smoke from a distant volcano attracted his attention. He neared the active giant, circled over it, then went toward the southeast, where a new marvel of nature called him.

Inclosed by rugged mountains like the Garden of Eden, but a hundred times larger, stretched a green, fertile valley. From the height at which he was flying it looked like an enormous basin, with a large cone of almost perfect shape looming high in the center. It was an ideal volcano, but instead of smoke steam was pouring from its mouth, and on its sides and around the base several geysers spouted hundreds of feet into the air.

The valley evidently was inhabited, as it was highly cultivated, and towns and villages were seen. Napoleon flew toward the steaming giant and circled around it, lower and lower, until, by chance, a liquid from one of the geysers touched the Eagle's wing.

The aerodromes shuddered and the two wings came together with a shock and stuck. The machine fell down, helplessly, like a crippled bird.

It had come quickly, yet Napoleon had the presence of mind to turn the tall rudder to break the fall. He did not know whether he was falling to his doom or not; still he shouted excitedly: "I have found it!"

The machine crashed into the marshy ground with terrific force. The man in it was hurled against the wall. He slid down into a motionless heap. His eyes were closed, and the right side of his head was bleeding from contact with the sharp corner of the bench.

CHAPTER XX.

Queen of the Air.

A few days after Napoleon's visit to Berlin the chancellor related to the Princess Schomburg-Lithow his conversation with the president of the peace committee.

"My dear count," remarked the beautiful Rosita disagreeably, "you are getting old; you should retire from diplomatic service altogether."

The chancellor took the rebuke as a joke. Rosita had become undisciplined lately, and said what she would.

"What do you mean by that?"

"What do I mean? Can't you see Napoleon Edison's diplomacy? Don't you realize that you gave him all the information he wanted? As I said, it is time for you to retire and give your place to one who is clever enough to take care of it."

"Our opinions differ somewhat, princess. Personally, I am rather scrupulous."

She laughed, and all at once turned into a different being. "Don't take my talk seriously. I am nervous."

"This is a hint to your friend that he may leave?"

"That thought of yours is sufficiently diplomatic. Stay, Count Duprel is coming, and he will want to talk to you."

At almost the same moment Santos entered. The little man was transformed. His sturdy, round figure had become thin. His whole being expressed the high tension under which he was working. His face looked as if he had brooded over his sorrows, and had become almost sullen. His eyes lit up, however, when they rested on Rositta. She still had the power to do with him what she would.

After greeting the Count von Werdenstein he told him that sixteen aerodromes were finished, tried and stored away, and five more were in the workshops. It was only a question of two or more months until they would be ready for action.

"There is one thing," said the count. "From a military standpoint, it would be advisable for us to watch Napoleon Edison's movements closer. We have the aerodromes and why wouldn't it be a good plan to send out one or two to spy on him?"

"What can he do?" was Rositta's scornful answer. "If he cannot get any crynith? Very likely he has been searching for a new deposit, but cannot find any."

"I only hope your supposition is true, but I fear him. What do you think, Count Duprel?"

The count only shrugged his shoulders and let Rositta answer.

"We are not afraid of him, and we will go against him." And she looked at Santos encouragingly.

"We will go against him," he repeated.

"All we need, now, is the 'casus belli,'" remarked the chancellor.

"That is simple enough. Request the peace committee to allow a standing army for European nations," said Rositta.

"We will see," said the chancellor, and started to leave. He felt doubtful of his course. He had vague, unformed fears that haunted him. But nothing happened. His American spies reported that Napoleon could not be located.

Two weeks later he received news that there was some uneasiness felt in Washington in regard to the inexplicable absence of Napoleon Edison. These reports were repeated day after day.

What did this mean? The Count von Werdenstein was unable to think of a reason for the absence, but he was not the only one who was puzzled. There were many who would have given much to know what had become of Napoleon Edison.

His absence at first had been unnoticed, as Astra felt that he would return at any hour, and turned aside the questions. But when the third week began, and still they had no word from him, she could not bear it any longer. The gray-haired mother, who suffered even more than Astra, soothed her and said she would come to the Crystal Palace at once, to be with her.

That evening Mrs. Edison arrived, and embracing the wife of her son she whispered: "Be strong and brave, my dear girl. You know just as well as I do that he will come as soon as he can. I fear he has had an accident to his aerodrome, but my heart tells me he is in no danger. Above all, we must have trust in God!"

At Astra's request the various papers treated the matter lightly.

Rositta was one who was really baffled by the lengthened absence of Napoleon. She and Santos talked about it seriously, but the little count was as puzzled as she. This disappearance had not fitted into her plans. She wanted to gain a victory over Napoleon, not over America.

Her ambitions were great, but one of the greatest was to humble Napoleon. She had figured out a devilish plan to destroy his base of supplies, Clryne. Even her husband shuddered when she told about it. He thought of the many days he had spent among the men there, and the pleasant companions that he had left behind.

A tremendous bomb was to be constructed; a bomb of such size that its explosion would cause a genuine earthquake. Great quantities of the high-grade explosives were to be placed in a large metal shell, which would be dropped on the Island of Clryne and blow it into space.

Clryne was Napoleon's laboratory; there were his aerodromes kept, and if these were destroyed, he never would be able to gain the victory. The fact that Napoleon's mother and all his mechanics were to be destroyed did not influence Rositta's plans in the least.

Seven weeks went by. The situation was the same, except that the flotilla of twenty aerodromes was ready at Suemeg and its crew was practicing maneuvers day after day. They were working on one more machine, as Rositta was superstitious, believing that the number twenty-one was her lucky one.

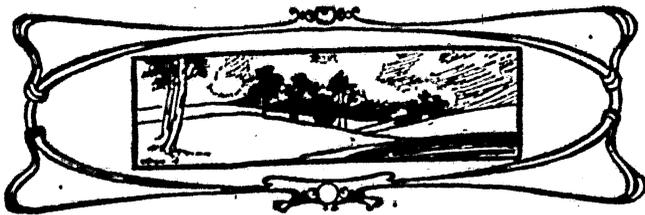

The European monarchs had all signed a decree demanding the right of restoring a standing army, and this demand had been sent to the peace committee in Washington.

This request was couched in respectful terms, but conveyed the information that in case the same was refused the European countries would act according to their own convictions. No mention was made of the aerodrome fleet, but American secret agents had discovered the existence of this fleet and a shrewd reporter on the Hourly Stylograph managed to gain the information. Whole pages advertised the fact that it was ready to swoop down upon the American continent and conquer it. Then the rival papers took it up and vivid fancies were printed; some declared that Napoleon Edison was held a prisoner, and would be compelled to join the European forces to save his life.

In the meantime the congress and the peace committee considered the European demand.

Amrosio Hale, Vice-president, delivered a great address, urging the union to isolate the American continent again.

UNUSUAL TYPE OF BRAVERY

Not Many Husbands Would Undertake to Return Wife's Hat, Even Though He Needed Money.

The bravest man in London made his appearance in a Regent street shop one day recently.

He carried an enormous bandbox which contained an enormous hat, on which the man wanted what he considered an enormous amount of money refunded. The man was pretty mad, and, while looking for someone who had the authority to negotiate the transaction, he talked loud enough for everybody to hear.

"My wife bought this hat," he said. "She doesn't need it. She has already bought three new hats."

"She paid $32 for this one. She has never worn it. It just came home last night. I can't afford to throw all that money away, and I want you to take the hat back. She wouldn't bring it down, so I undertook the job myself."

"By the side of that man Napoleon Bonaparte was a cringing coward," said the young woman, who had made the sale. "Imagine Napoleon bounding into a Parisian millinery shop with a hat that he didn't want to buy! He could not have done it."—London Tit-Bits.

"All Fevers" Walk Relieves It.

If you are the victim of indigestion and appear at your office each morning with a well-developed grouch, try running around the room on all fours like a cat just after you have taken your morning repast. This is the advice of a Paris physician, and he makes it with all seriousness. He doesn't claim it is a panacea for all sorts of indigestion, but he recommends it for relief of stagnation in the stomach—a condition where the food becomes massed and prevents a free action of the intestinal juices.

The effect of his "all-fours" treatment is to agitate the stomach, acting as a massage, and thus aiding it to discharge its contents. He has proved by a series of chemical experiments, assisted by the X-ray, that the emptying of the stomach progressed with much greater rapidity when the patient galloped around the room for five minutes in the attitude of the house cat.

Children and Tuberculosis. Germany fought the potato beetle by teaching her school children before the plague came just what it looked like, and just how hungry it would make peasant children if allowed to gain a foothold in the empire.

American educators are fighting an immeasurably greater plague in a similar way. They are teaching school children the meaning and the menace of tuberculosis. They are telling lads and lassies in a thousand schools how the white plague is spread, how it can be avoided, how when taken in time it can be cured.

When the children thus taught grow to manhood and womanhood it will be less easy to rent death-tray rooms and sell milk from tuberculous cows than it is today.

MODEL MAN NEVER SAW EVIL

Famous Twin Lived 96 Years Near New York City, But Stayed Away.

Babylon, L. I.—Samuel Muncie, ninety-six years old, one of the famous Muncie twins of Babylon, is dead, having gone through life with his brother William, hearing no evil, seeking no evil, speaking none. He never drank, chewed or smoked, never went to a theater or saw a show of any kind, except church festivals, and when he wanted amusement usually painted the barn.

Some time ago the twins became known through the country as the heartiest, oldest twins on record. Born Christmas, 1818, they lived and worked together on adjoining farms. They never quarreled and never played. Once Samuel was asked if he ever played checkers. He snorted: "No, sir, I never waste my time."

Although within almost walking distance, he never saw New York. Once he drove to Brooklyn, but found the place too bustling and noisy. That was back in 1839, and he never felt another call to wander from Babylon.

TIMBER USED IN MINES.

About One-fourth Timber Cut in Colorado Consumed by Mining.

Denver.—Approximately one-fourth of the timber cut in Colorado is consumed by the state's mining industry, says the Department of Agriculture in a bulletin issued on Rocky Mountain mine timbers. The total annual consumption of timber of Colorado for mining purposes is about 51,600,000 board feet, valued at something like $1,250,000.

Lodgepole pine, or white pine as it is sometimes called locally, is the timber most used, with Engelmann or white spruce next. Douglas fir, the so-called red spruce of the Rocky Mountain region, was once the favorite wood for mines, but its growing scarcity has brought the two other woods into prominence.

Fire-killed lodgepole pine and Engelmann spruce, of which there is a great quantity in the Rocky Mountains, ought to give satisfactory service in mines, says the department, provided it is free from decay. Beams cut from timber standing dead for about thirty years showed a strength, when tested by the department, intermediate between that of green and of air-dried material cut from live timber. Drying increases the strength and stiffness of the wood, but decreases its toughness.

Attention is called by the department to the possibility of using preservative treatments to prevent decay of timber when set in the mines. As a general rule such treatment if properly applied, will work for economy in the long run.

CARRIZOZO VICTORIOUS

Sunday's baseball game was won again by Carrizozo and Stanton once more met defeat by the Browns.

The feature of the game was Dolan's superb pitching, having Stanton at his mercy at all times.

Not a man did he walk nor was he ever in a hole and Stanton was never able to get more than two men over bases in one inning.

Dolan served them such a mixture of curves and change of pace that his opponents were in a puzzle all the time they were facing him, and he was given very good support, there only being three errors chalked up against Carrizozo.

But Tex Loughrey put the climax on Stanton's hopes when he made that awful clout in the ninth inning for a homer. But take the game as a whole it was one of the fastest ever pulled off in Carrizozo and was anybody's game till the last. Stanton put up a good clean game and started the scoring with one on the second and one on the third while Carrizozo was not able to score until the fifth when they put two over Stanton, got two more in the sixth which ended their scoring. Carrizozo got one in the seventh, one in the eighth, and one in the ninth.

Game by innings: Carrizozo took the field, P. Hightower flew out to Lee, Brockway struck out. G. Hightower put a hot one to Dingwall who made a nice stop catching him at first. Carrizozo, Riely grounded to 3d unable to beat the throw. Dawson flew out to 2d, Nickel grounding to same place, out at first. Second inning: W. Norman hit safe over first, stole second. H. Norman struck out. Gallacher hit for a single, scoring Norman, Lane struck out. Carrizozo. Dolan flew out to right, Lee hit a slow one to 2d, beating the throw, then stole second. Van Schoyok safe at first on error Lee caught off second. Dingwall struck out. No hits or runs.

Third inning, Ft. Stanton: Howard struck out, P. Hightower hit safe to rf for a single. Brockway and P. Hightower both struck out, giving Hightower 3 strike-outs.

Fourth inning, W. Norman struck out, Van Schoyok failed to hold the ball, Norman safe on a wild throw. H. Norman, Gallacher and Lane all struck out. Carrizozo. Dawson hit to 3d beating the throw to first, Nickel flied out to 3d, Dolan struck out, no runs, no hits, no errors, one strike out. Fort Stanton.

Fifth inning: Coe and Howard struck out, P. Hightower flied out to Lee. No runs, no hits, no errors, two strike outs. Carrizozo.—Lee hit safe to center for a single, Van Schoyok struck out, Dingwall hit to center scoring Lee, Dingwall taking 2d on the throw, Loughrey to first for getting in the way of one of Grover's fast ones. Riely struck out, Norman failed to hold it to first on error by Norman, Dingwall scoring on the throw to first, out trying to steal. Two hits, two runs.

Sixth inning: Fort Stanton.—G. Hightower hit a grounder to Riely who was unable to handle it. Norman hit to right for two bases scoring Hightower, Norman stole 3d scoring on a wild pitch by Dolan. This seemed to make Dolan mad and he proceeded to tighten up by striking out the next three men up. Two runs, 1 hit, 1 error, 3 strike outs. Carrizozo.—Dawson hit to 2d for a single, Nickel flied out to 3d for the second time, Dolan struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors, 1 strike out.

Seventh inning: Fort Stanton.—Coe struck out, Dolan playing with Howard forced him to hit in field, he laid a slow one down to Riely who cut him off at first, Coe hit a slow one to Grumbles who caught him at first. No runs, no hits, no errors, one strike out.

Carrizozo.—Lee out at first by Gallacher, Van Schoyok struck out, Dingwall hit for a single, Grumbles hit for 2 bases scoring Dingwall, Grumbles taking 3d on the throw, Loughrey struck out, two hits, two runs, no errors.

Eighth inning: Fort Stanton.—W. Brockway hit to short who could not handle it in time to catch him at first, but Van Schoyok and Dingwall caught him at second, G. Hightower struck out, Norman flied out to Riely. No runs, no hits, one error. Carrizozo.—Reily safe at first on an infield hit, Dawson to first on a single, Reily taking 2d, Nickel got a fielder's choice in right Reily taking 3d, Dawson being forced out at second, Dolan hit to right, Reily out at home trying to beat the throw, Lee hit to center for a single, Nickel scoring from 2d, Van Schoyok flied out to left.

Ninth inning: H. Norman hit to 3d beating the throw stole 2d, tried to steal 3d, out by Grumbles. Gallacher and Lane both struck out, this ending Fort Stanton's hopes. No runs, no hits, no errors, two strike outs. Carrizozo.—Dingwall flied out to lf, Grumbles safe at first on an error by Gallacher. Now comes the sad part, Loughrey landed on the first one for a homer which settled it with only one down.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY

NOGAL

The Richardson boys and Arch Coslow have moved over to the Bonito. They have a contract to cut-saw logs for W. R. White.

The new county road from the Billie Lea place to the Bonito is nearly completed and is quite a help to the surrounding country.

The skeletons unearthed on the Rio Bonito on the Crockett place were placed there prior to 1882, so says Uncle Tom Henley who was living on the Bonito at that date.

The box supper which was given by the school children Saturday night was a success. A dialogue by four little girls called "Domestic Happiness" was well rendered, also a seven verse poem on the "Truett Boys," by Ivan Richardson was well received. At the conclusion of the program the fancy boxes were brought out and auctioned off by Uncle Tom Henley, all of which sold well. Next a box of candy was awarded to Miss Lola Greer as the handsomest young lady in the audience. Quite a number of our people competed for the peanuts to be given to the ugliest man in the crowd. L. R. Hust and Fred Wheatly were the most successful candidates. Mr. Wheatly won it, it was supposed, on account of his red head, the pound of nuts bringing the sum of seven dollars. The proceeds totalled twenty-two dollars and eighty-five cents all to be applied for carpenter tools for the boys in their work shop adjoining the school room. The question asked by many was, where did all these people come from. At a late hour a telephone message was received from Mrs. Gumm that she couldn't come on account of the inclemency of the weather. We regreted very much the disappointment.

JICARILLA

Cherries are about ripe in the orchard of A. H. Norton.

Marion Brookin has gone to the lower end of the county on a round up for cattle.

Mr. Corbett who spent about a year here died a short time ago in El Paso, dropy being the cause.

There was a picnic of the Sunday school children of Ancho held at the school house of this place. It was largely attended.

Max Gubera has returned from El Paso where he spent a week on business and to get a specialist to treat his little girl's eyes.

Miss Maberly has returned from the north end of the Capitans where she is homesteading and is now spending a short time with S. B. Frambrough and family.

JICARILLA

(Too late for last week)

Mrs. Fair of Oklahoma, mother of C. R. Pitts, is here on a visit to her son and daughter-in-law.

J. D. Hugo has returned east after spending a week in camp looking over the various claims.

Mrs. Burnett of Ancho has moved her goats to the east side of Jacks Peak where they have taken up a ranch.

There is some prospects of having a picnic out here on the Fourth of July. There is no better place for one in Lincoln County.

Luis Smith, a veteran of the civil war has disappeared from his cabin and has been gone since the 5th of

May. He is supposed to have gone insane. He was last seen on the Macho headed south.

MEEK

Howard Bland recently returned from a visit to Roswell.

Miss Bart Shields spent Friday with Miss Nell Raines.

Howard Bland and Paul Ferguson spent several days in Roswell.

Mr. Walworth was a visitor the past week.

Mrs. Taylor from the Block ranch visited at the Raines home Friday.

L. M. Waggoner, wife and son and C. N. Noon and wife spent the week end at Pine Lodge.

Albert Duchman and wife will soon leave Meek as he has sold his ranch to Mr. King of Texas.

Miss Lea and Mr. Pierce of Roswell were Sunday visitors at Pine Lodge.

Everyone is looking forward to the barbecue and dance at Pine Lodge, July 3d.

Miss Katherine Morgan of Little Rock, Ark, is a guest at the Hotel Eagle.

Forest Supervisor Kinney of Capitan was a visitor at the Block ranch ranger station.

Miss Esda H. Ward and Lillian Canady of Morris, Illinois, are spending the summer at Pine Lodge.

SPORT IN ALBANIA

THE announcement that Prince William of Wied occupies the throne of Albania will give birth to some hope of sufficient tranquility being restored to allow of shooting there again; at any rate, in that part of the country which is opposite Corfu. For two years this capital hunting ground has been closed to sportsmen while human warfare raged all around it, but no fighting has taken place over the 20 or 30 miles of seacoast which offer the best and most gettable shooting, so the game has had a good rest; and, what is more, has probably been driven down from the disturbed regions into this quieter haven. It is easy to pass two or even three months in shooting the coverts round the harbors which are opposite Corfu, and four of these are such snug little anchorages that even an open boat would be perfectly secure. Cutters, small but well found, can be hired at Corfu, and are in every way adequate for this trip. The sea journey from Corfu to the farthest harbor is not more than 18 miles, and to the nearest about eight, so, as the little cutters sail well and the water is smooth, great pleasure is added to the trip from a sailing point of view. The scenery rather resembles Scotland; deep water and good holding are found all along, and, in fact, the little inlets are so snug and well masked by the mountains that a 500-ton yacht, can lay just inside and be quite hidden. About this time of the year the snow comes down on the mountain tops and drives the woodcock to the warmer coverts on the coast, and very numerous they are; in fact, I should think it would puzzle anyone to find better woodcock shooting, go where they would! The marshes also teem with snipe, and some thousand duck, teal and the like flight in from the sea before stormy weather. Even the best shots, however, get but small bags at this game, fascinating as it is, for the "flight" last only 30 to 40 minutes, and the surrounding land is so high that it is impossible to see the birds against it at dusk, while by waiting till they are right overhead, the chances are they see the sportsman first and soar up out of shot. Flocks of pelicans pay occasional visits to Barranto marsh, but I have never seen flamingo.

Besides bird-shooting, there is good sport for the rifle. The country teems with wild boar, and in a lesser degree deer come out of one covert. The local shepherds form up, as beaters; from six to eight are enough to drive the coverts properly, but the more the merrier, and two francs a day is all they ask; the head beater, who places the guns and knows the run of the game, wants, of course, a little more. They are a wonderfully pleasant race to deal with, and in all the years I have known the country I have never heard of their giving any trouble to Englishmen. They fight freely among themselves, no doubt, and still more freely against the Turks, who ride rough shod over them and take their sheep and mules without so much as "by your leave." But the sylvan shepherd, as found in this particular region, is in every way a good fellow and entirely reliable if well treated. The only danger lies in getting mixed up in some local affray, as we did once, when the bullets flew freely over our heads, the Turks looting off merrily, as is their little way! Obviously, alas! our sporting rifles must be a sore temptation to them. I have had one of these ragged individuals come and sit down close to me while waiting for the beaters, and beg to be allowed to handle my rifle. Needless to say, I have never been quite so confiding! Flintlocks were used by the Turkish soldiers who patrolled this coast until three years ago; four-foot barrels richly caparisoned with brass, firing huge spherical bullets, implements better suited to adorn a museum than to protect life in an unenlightened country. The treatment these guns received, however, was not conducive to their shooting straight, as I once saw one of these Turks bang his gun down on the rock and jump on it, as a punishment for missing a hare! The "beashes" on the barrel bore witness to this being no unusual transaction. These representatives of law and order have by now been requisitioned on active service, and a good job, too, as they merely exported the wherewithal to support their useless lives out of the Albanian shepherds, until the latter got out of all patience, and within my personal experience three of these wretched Turks were murdered. The shepherds look to their dogs for protection as much as anything, and train them accordingly, so it is well to keep a good look-out for these brutes. Considering that they are as big as wolves—in fact, practically indistinguishable from them—it is no laughing matter when they set upon you three or four strong. But for sport such as there is in Albania, you must expect to take a few risks, and as it is obtainable from the fastness of your own yacht, with all the conveniences of civilization close at hand, this country must be reckoned as offering very exceptional facilities for sportsmen.—B. S. Hughes.

RAISE BEANS ON DRY FARM

Thousands of Acres of Land in Semi-Arid Southwest Adapted to Crop—Its Food Value.

It is the year 1917. A lady is shopping in a large city grocery store. "Have you any canned baked beans?" she asks the salesman. "The best made, and two cents cheaper, too," he replies, producing a can. The striking label on the can catches the lady's eye immediately and she takes it for a closer examination. "Arizona baked beans," she reads over a picturesque lithograph of an Indian dressed in full regalia. "Grown by the Papago Indians in Arizona for hundreds of years—a real American product." "This isn't the old Boston brand that I have been buying, but I will try it," she says. Two days later she orders a dozen cans.

This scene multiplied several thousand fold will take place in many parts of the United States in 1917, if the predictions of Prof. C. E. Freeman, plant breeder of the Arizona Agricultural Experiment Station, are realized. Thousands of acres of dry-farming land are adapted to the profitable production of this native bean which promises to become one of the staple crops of Arizona. The farmers of the semi-arid Southwest will not realize the full worth of the Tepary bean until its excellent food value is more widely known. Being a dry-land bean it naturally is somewhat harder, heavier and requires a little longer to cook than the ordinary pink bean. On the other hand, in cooking, it swells more so that in the end it is just as light and mealy as the navy. A given weight of teparies will produce 40 per cent more cooked beans than the same weight of either Michigan or New York grown product. Two pounds of teparies will therefore go about as far as three pounds of other sorts in filling cans or hungry mouths. This more than offsets the slightly greater length of time required to soak them.

GOOD TILLAGE IN ORCHARDS

It Will Maintain Sufficient Supply of Moisture and Will Make Plant Food Available.

(By C. L. Lewis, Oregon Experiment Station.)

Some of the reasons for tillage in an orchard are: To maintain a sufficient supply of moisture and to make available the plant food there is in the soil; so that trees can obtain this food; by pulverizing the soil a much greater feeding area is presented for the rootlets of the trees; by pulverizing this soil deeply in the spring of the year we also get additional root-holding area for the plants. Tillage also has considerable to do with the moisture content of the orchard soils. By the spring plowing and harrowing of the ground we are apt to have less extremes of temperature, the ground is apt to become warmer, and is placed in such condition that the roots can begin their activity and top growth begins early. For this reason at times one should not practise too early tillage with fruits that are apt to be caught by frosts. The stone fruits especially should not be given too early tillage.

Tillage in the spring of the year increases the water-holding capacity of the soil. It places the soil in such condition that it can catch the spring rains and hold them for tree growth. Later on in the summer the frequent shallow cultivations will check the rapid evaporation of moisture from the soil.

Tillage promotes aeration; it places the available element in such condition that the trees can use it. It aids in hastening decomposition of all humus and organic matter there is in the soil and tends to set plant foods of all kinds free so that they will dissolve and in that form or solution can enter the roots of the trees.

Advantage of Pit Silo.
The round pit silo has many advantages for the dry-land farmer. Every one can afford it. It costs, with cemented walls, about one-tenth as much as a silo of the same capacity built above ground. Built without cement, it costs labor only. It does not blow down. The silage never freezes and it comes warm from the silo. A cutter costs less because no blower is needed, and it takes less power to run a cutter for a pit silo because the green material falls down instead of having to be elevated.

Keeping Live Stock.
A beginner on western prairie should be careful to keep the kind of stock that will make the best use of the wild feed and easiest grown fodder. Sheep and cattle will beat hogs at this, and generally sheep will beat cattle, as they make better use of weeds and grasses found growing than any other animal.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, headaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicine had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JORIE HAM, R. TO LOCATE NEW ALASKAN RAILROADS

Left to right are: Lt. Frederic Mears and William C. Mearns. These two men have just been appointed by President Wilson as members of the Alaskan engineering committee, which is to have charge of the location of the new government railroads in Alaska. Lieutenant Mearns was the chief engineer of the Panama railroad and was suggested for this new work by Colonel Goddard, and Mr. Mearns was formerly the chief engineer for the Northwestern Pacific railroad in California. He is the man who located and built many of the most difficult stretches of mountain railroad for the Santa Fe and the Southern Pacific. The two engineers are shown in the photograph poring over a map of Alaska in the interior department at Washington. They are ordered to proceed at once to Alaska to begin their task.

Improved Method of Farming.

Great interest is taken in France just now in a new method by which the yield of crops per acre is enormously increased. In one test case the increase of wheat has been three times above that grown in similar soil in the same neighborhood. The remarkable value of the method is indicated by the statement that it has made twenty grains of wheat produce 700,000 in one year.

The method consists in preparing seed beds in widely spaced lines on very mellow land; then at the end of two months dividing the tufts springing from each grain, replanting each of these rooted shoots thus detached, and finally in hoeing and earthing up these new plants many times in such manner as to provoke at all the points brought into intimate contact with the earth the growth of numerous adventitious shoots, each of which bears an ear.

Dangerous Jewelry.

All bracelets and rings have been barred from West Virginia factories by the state labor commissioner, I. V. Barton. He declares that jewelry worn on the hands of working girls has caused more accidents in the factories of West Virginia than almost any other thing.

"Bracelets, especially of the chain variety, not light fitting, invariably drag a hand or arm into some fast whirling machine, and rings are also apt to catch," he says.

Relative Values.

SMILES

Art.

"My imitations of Bernhardt, Irving and Coquelin didn't go very well," complained the performer who was playing in the town hall.

"Well, none of us ever saw Bernhardt or Irving or that other feller," said the sympathetic old janitor, "and, besides, you suffer somewhat by comparison. There was a feller here last week who gave a fine imitation of a hen who has laid an egg."

Jill—I know it.

Her Explanation.

"Your voice," said the captious musical director, "leaves much to be desired."

"That's why I get so many encores," replied the flip young thing.

Animal Language.

"And does he understand?"

"Well, when I speak to you, don't you understand?"—Le Rire, (Paris).

The Test.

Wife—Now, George, you have been drinking with Erastus Richardson again.

Husband—Ain't seen Rassus Rissosn for a week, and I ain't been drinking.

Wife—That'll do, so just shut up.

CONFESSED.

"Once again my orders have been disobeyed," said the master in a certain public school sternly. "Who is the miscreant?" Not a soul answered and a tragic silence prevailed. "This matter shall be settled once and for all," he went on in the same icy manner, "and if none will tell, every boy in the class shall be thrashed."

Every boy, therefore, was duly thrashed, but not one would breathe the culprit's name, until suddenly as the last boy was about to receive his share of punishment, the cane was withheld. Fixing a keen look on the lad, the master said: "Now, if you tell me who did this action I will not punish you."

"All right, sir. I did it," came the hesitating reply.—London Tit-Bits.

SEED TEST APPARATUS

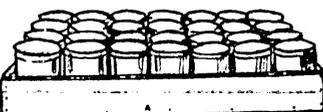

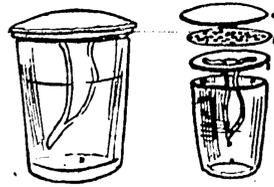

GERMINATION OF GRASS AND OTHER SMALL SEEDS.

Excellent Results May Be Obtained by Use of Plain, Ordinary Jelly Tumbler—Water Is Secured by Using Candle Wick.

(By H. GARMAN.)

For germinating blue-grass and numerous other small seeds, excellent results may be obtained by an ordinary plain glass jelly tumbler, on the top of which is placed a candle-drip glass. This in turn is covered with a disk of blue blotting paper bearing the seeds, and this again covered with a plain three-inch watch glass. Water in the tumbler is brought up to the blotting paper, on which the seeds are placed, by a piece of candle wick; the two extremities of which are passed through the round opening in the bottom of the candle glass and spread out on its upper surface beneath the blotting paper. By filling the tumbler two-thirds full of water when starting the test, no further attention is required, beyond counting and removing the germinating seeds, until the end of the test. Twenty-eight of these tumblers with their complements of seeds may be placed side by side in a wooden tray and placed in a warm place.

The advantages of this method of handling the seeds are the following: (1) The whole tray may be carried about conveniently without slopping the water over its edges, as is likely to be the case when water for all the tests is contained in a metal tray. (2) Each test is completely independent, and can be removed to a table or desk at any time for inspection, without dragging the candle wick out of the water. (3) The glassware may be sterilized in an autoclav, in case molds have appeared and seem likely to make trouble. (4) The watch glasses are sufficiently low to permit one to see just what a lot of seeds are doing, and give no trouble by drawing up an excess of moisture.

Setting of Fruit.

A rain during the blooming season may decrease the setting of fruit in several ways: by preventing the pollen from reaching the stigma, both because it is too wet to fly and because pollen-carrying insects are absent; by destroying the vitality of the pollen; by injuring the stigma; by preventing fertilization or germination of the pollen because of low temperature.

Low in Protein.

Silage is very low in protein. In fact, it is lower in protein than oat straw. It is valued because it is succulent and aids in the digestion of other foods.

Green Manuring Crops.

A large number of crops are used for green manuring. Among the leguminous crops are sweet clover, alfalfa, cow peas and soy beans. They are all very efficient, and the one to use is the one that will grow best in the locality. Cow peas or soy beans may be planted after the grain crop has been harvested. These crops should be turned under in the fall, when in a succulent condition.

Assists the Cow.

A practise followed by several agricultural colleges and many successful dairymen is to withhold grain from cows for the first month of each season they are on grass. This gives the cows' digestive systems a rest and is also economy.

Raising Hogs.

No man should attempt to raise hogs without adequate fencing of yards and pastures. An animal of any kind, but especially a hog, can make himself an intolerable nuisance if not confined within proper bounds.

GREEN MANURE IS VALUABLE

Farmer Must Use Judgment in Selecting the Most Economical Crop for This Purpose.

(By HENRY FULMER, Idaho Experiment Station.)

The benefit derived from incorporating green crops in soil as manure was noticed by the Romans.

The value of green manure is twofold. Green clover, when turned in the soil, adds nitrogen directly to the land. Later, when the clover is being decomposed, the carbohydrates which the decaying plant contains serves as a source of energy for the class of soil bacteria that are able to gather free nitrogen, independent of a host plant, from the air into their cells in a form that will be later used by growing plants. Owing to the ease and quickness in which these green crops may be decomposed, the stimulation of the independent free nitrogen fixing bacteria is brought about much sooner than will dry material that is coarse and difficult to decompose.

If during a dry spell, the green manure is added in very great quantities, excessive evaporation may result. Experiments have shown that the acid produced in the soil from this kind of manuring is not great enough to prevent nitrification.

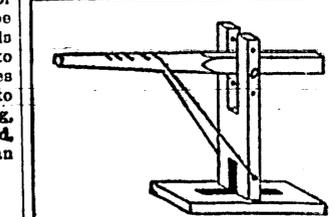

The farmer must use judgment in selecting the most economical crop for this purpose in his particular section. The one giving a luxuriant growth of leaves and costing but little to grow is desirable. A nonleguminous plant is as valuable in stimulating the free nitrogen fixing organisms, pound for pound as the plants of the leguminous family. The fact that a plant is not from the legume family does not keep it from being of value as manure. This form of manuring bids fair to receive a great deal more of attention in the near future.

EASY TO MAKE WAGON JACK

Convenient Device for Use in Greasing Farm Vehicles—Illustration Shows Details.

Do you enjoy greasing the farm wagon, and does it get greased as often as it should? Here is a good jack to use for the work, writes W. J. Harrington, Jr., of Cameron, N. C., in Progressive Farmer. It is easily made and will be found very handy. Take a piece of two-inch plank, six inches wide and two and one-half feet long. Set this into another piece eight inches wide and two feet long, which is to rest on the ground for the base. It would be well to put a brace on each side of the upright piece.

Saw out a piece two inches wide from the top about half way down the upright plank; make a lever four feet long to go in this slot; have two or three holes edgewise through the upper part of the upright, a hole through the lever and a loose pin so you can adjust the jack for high or low wagons. You could fasten a block on top of the lever to be used for the rear axle.

Fasten a short chain to the base and have a hook on the lower side of the lever, or use a bent iron rod as shown in the illustration.

Hardest of Ducks.

The Pekin is conceded to be the hardest variety of the duck family.

Clean Poultry House.

One day's work will put the biggest of the ordinary farm chicken houses in first-class shape. The work should be started early in the morning, and hurried along so the whole job, including the whitewashing, may be completed on the same day. The poles and perches should be whitewashed early enough in the day that they will be thoroughly dry before dark. The house will have to be left open for a few hours after the walls are coated in order to let the excess of dampness escape.

Splendid Varieties.

The White-Holland, the Narragansett and the Black are all splendid varieties, though smaller than the Bronze turkey. For markets that require small birds these are more suitable.

Training the Bull.

To keep a bull good-natured he should be raised with the other stock, allowed to run in a paddock where he can see the rest of the herd. Treated thus he seldom becomes cross.

Deliberate Lie.

In Mr. Arnold Haultain's new biography of Goldwin Smith there is a funny story of the late duke of Cambridge. It is pretty well known that in his old age his royal highness developed a habit of thinking aloud that was sometimes rather awkward for those near him. He was particularly inclined to this when in church, and it was quite a common thing to hear a gruff, loud comment issue from his pew when everybody else was silent. On one occasion he was present at the marriage of some princess or other to an impecunious German prince of whom the duke apparently did not approve. The ceremony was proceeding smoothly, and the bridegroom repeated the words: "With all my worldly goods I thee endow." Suddenly the duke rapped out: "Rubbish! Why, the boots he's standing in ain't paid for yet!"

ERUPTION SPREAD ON FACE

810 East Elm St., Streator, Ill.—"A running sore broke out above my right eye, which spread over my entire face. It started as a small pimple. I scratched it open and the contents of this small pimple ran down my face. Wherever this ran a new sore appeared. They itched and burned terribly. I couldn't touch my face it burned so. It disfigured my face terribly and I couldn't be seen for everyone was afraid of it. It looked like a disease of some kind; it was all red and a heavy white crust on it. Everybody kept out of my way, afraid it would spread. I lost rest at night and I couldn't bear to have anything touch my face, not even the pillow. I had to lie on the back of the head. I was always glad when morning came so I could get up. It was extremely painful.

Honest.

A story is told on a young man who was married recently to the daughter of a wealthy merchant. The bridegroom did not have a cent, but he made up for lack of wealth in honesty. He was so very honest that he would not even prevaricate in the marriage ceremony.

He was repeating what the minister read: "With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

"With all thy worldly goods I mo endow," repeated the young man. Maybe it was a slip of the tongue, still it would be hard for honesty to go much further.—New York Times.

The Mischief of It.

Irving Bacheller, at the one hundred and eighth annual dinner of the New England society, said of literary refinement:

"There is another unfortunate class of writers whose point of view is too refined, too lofty, for the general public to understand. It is the fate of these poor chaps to starve in garrets. "A case, you see, of the prophet who is without honor in his own country—and the mischief of it is with such prophets that they never have the money to go abroad."

Never Had So Much.

DID THE WORK

Grew Strong on Right Food.

You can't grow strong by merely exercising. You must have food—the kind you can digest and assimilate.

Unless the food you eat is digested it adds to the burden the digestive organs have naturally to carry. This often means a nervous breakdown. "About a year ago," writes a Mass. lady, "I had quite a serious nervous breakdown caused, as I believed, by overwork and worry. I also suffered untold misery from dyspepsia.

"First I gave up my position, then I tried to find a remedy for my troubles, something that would make me well and strong, something to rest my tired stomach and build up my worn-out nerves and brain.

"I tried one kind of medicine after another, but nothing seemed to help me.

"Finally a friend suggested change of food and recommended Grape-Nuts. With little or no faith in it, I tried a package. That was eight months ago and I have never been without it since.

"Grape-Nuts did the work. It helped me grow strong and well. Grape-Nuts put new life into me, built up my whole system and made another woman of me!"
