J. L. PORTER HELD FOR CONNELL MURDER

Bound Over to Next Grand Jury Without Bail at Preliminary Hearing in Alamogordo last Wednesday

O. M. TALLEY'S BOND IS FIXED IN SUM OF $3000

District Attorney Hamilton returned from Alamogordo Thursday morning where he conducted the preliminary hearing of J. L. Porter and O. M. Talley, held in the Otero county jail on a warrant charging them with the murder of Ralph S. Connell at Tularosa on June 17, last. The examination was conducted before Samuel Holmes, the Justice of the Peace of the Alamogordo precinct. Mr. Hamilton was assisted in the prosecution by W. C. Reid, of the firm of Reid & Hervey, of Roswell, while the interests of the defense were taken care of by Attorneys H. B. Holt of Las Cruces, and Tom Lea of El Paso.

A number of witnesses were called and examined, it appearing that the most damaging evidence given against the defendants being the testimony of Jose Duran, who claimed to have seen both Porter and Talley at the Porter ranch, where the killing occurred, just after the fatal shot was fired.

The examination lasted throughout the day, at the conclusion of which the Court committed Mr. Porter to jail without bail to await the action of the grand jury, while Mr. Talley was held, although he was granted bail in the sum of $3000. It is understood that the latter defendant had no trouble in furnishing the required bond.

Dr. McKeon of Fort Stanton was in town yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pierce, Will Doering and Albert Ziegler motored over to Roswell Sunday returning Tuesday.

Van Swearingen and Mrs. Paris were married Thursday at Tucumcari and passed through Carrizozo Friday morning on their way to Cloudercroft, where they will remain a few days before returning to their home here.

The baseball dope as served up by Boss Rolland is interesting. Carrizozo will play at Fort Stanton next Sunday and at Alamogordo the following Sunday. Then two return games will be played here on the two Sundays following. Alamogordo is in the midst of a dream since its club put one over an El Paso team, but it is a pipe dream and the wakening will come when the Carrizozo team gives them an exhibition of real baseball.

Undertaker T. E. Kelley was called to Alto Wednesday to care for the remains of Thomas J. McGee, a young man 28 years old who had been staying with O. N. West for several weeks, and who died Tuesday night at ten o'clock. Mr. McGee was a victim of the great white plague, and the dread disease had gone too far in his case for even the balsam like air of the White Mountains to check its course. The body was shipped to his home at Zolma, Mo.

The glorious Fourth has passed with sad disappointments to our young people. In the place of fire works, thunder, lightning, torrents of rain, washouts and mud predominated.

Dr. R. C. Dryden formerly Surgeon to the Coal Co here, but now of Silver City accompanied by John Rice of Parson while motoring to Fort Stanton the car became unmanageable and run of the bridge, turning the car over on them breaking the Doctor's arm and injuring both occupants. They were at once taken to the hospital at the Fort where they are still under treatment.

The report of the condition of the Exchange Bank, appearing in another column, makes mighty interesting reading for the residents of Carrizozo and the surrounding country. When a bank can show deposits to the amount of over $404,000 it is a foregone conclusion that we are residents of a thriving business center

Two or three of our motorists were called into the commissioners court this week and advised that it would be a rather wise thing to cut their imitation of Barney Oldfield; in other words, to cut down the speed at which they had been operating their cars on the streets of the city. But the aforesaid drivers promised to be good in the future.

The ISOLATED CONTINENT

A ROMANCE OF THE FUTURE

By GUIDO VON HORVATH and DEAN HOARD

COPYRIGHT, 1913 BY W.G. CHAPMAN IN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN

SYNOPSIS.

For fifty years the continent of North America has been isolated from the rest of the world by Z-rays, the invention of Humbert Prudent, president of the United States. A man giving the name of Chevalier von Werdenstein, chancellor of Germany, that he has succeeded in penetrating the rays hinders the death of Prudent. Dying, he names his daughter Astra, the forger of the invention is now certain. Astra succeeds her father as president. Napoleon Edison, a former pupil of Prudent's, offers to assist Astra and hints at new discoveries which will make North America impregnable. A man giving the name of Chevalier von Werdenstein offers the secret of making gold in return for European disarmament. The chevalier is made a prisoner in the hope of discovering the secret. Countess Rosina, a spy, becomes prisoner in the hope of discovering the secret. She falls in love with him and agrees to join him in an attempt to escape. By the use of rockets he summons a curious flying machine. He escapes and sends a message to Astra which reveals the fact that he is Napoleon Edison. He warns Astra that the consolidated fleets of Europe have sailed to invade America. He calls on Astra the following night and explains his plans for defense. By the use of aeroplanes made of a new substance which is indestructible he expects to annihilate the European forces. He delivers a note to von Werdenstein on the flagship demanding immediate withdrawal. He is attacked and, by destroying two warships and several aeroplanes, forces von Werdenstein to agree to universal disarmament. The countess, who has remained in America as a guest of Astra, receives an offer from von Werdenstein of the principality of Schomburg-Lithow in return for Edison's secret. Edison and his assistant, Santos, go in search of new deposits of the remarkable substance, clyrith. They find it on the estate of Schomburg-Lithow. The countess gets Santos into her clutches. She promises to reveal Edison's secret as soon as von Werdenstein turns over the Schomburg-Lithow estate to her. On the day of the wedding of Astra and Edison the countess and Santos flee the country. Santos perfects a machine in made of count and marries the countess, now princess of Schomburg-Lithow. Edison finds a new deposit of clyrith and builds a new fleet of aeroplanes. He accidentally discovers a liquid that will render opposing aeroplanes helpless. Santos completes the plans for the princess. The aviators of the fleet elect her queen. She plans to master the world. Werdenstein sends an ultimatum to America. He discovers the princess' real plans and is in despair. Edison's new discovery enables his fleet to overcome the fleet of the princess.

As soon as Santos realized what had happened, he turned to the door and opened it: "Come, Rositta, my wife, it will be sweet to die together."
"Idiot!" she shrieked.
He looked at her and knew. He turned to his master, who waved a friendly hand at him, and said sadly: "Napoleon, forgive me. I was blinded."
He jumped into the sound and the waters closed over him. Rositta had not even glanced at him as he fell. She stepped into his place in the doorway and had her foot on the first rung of the ladder that led to the top of the machine when he touched the water. Napoleon opened the door for her, without saying a word.

"My Son, Thou shalt be a Citizen of a Happier and More Peaceful Age."
When she was in the upper machine she stood looking at Napoleon, who was awaiting her further action.
At last she said: "With you, I would go down there." Then she flushed and an exquisite little smile appeared on her face. "You devil of a man! You have won again! What do you intend to do with me?"
He looked at her sadly as he replied in a measured voice:
"I will make a queen of you."
"Oh, thanks! That is kind. I presume you have selected a very beautiful country?"
"Yes, Rositta, Rosina, a very beautiful country. You will have everything you need—it is a veritable Garden of Eden."

She looked at him in alarm, then looked toward her feet. Every one of her aerodromes had been captured. They reached land. Napoleon called up Whistler and, giving orders regarding the empty aerodrome that he was leaving on a sandbar, released it from the electric clutches of the Eagle. Then he flew up again, with Rositta sitting motionless and unseeing on the bench. Sending the Eagle toward the south, he turned on full speed.
The man who had outwitted his enemies was silent, watching the rich country run backward under him. Neither spoke on the long journey southward to the Garden of Eden.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Dawn.
A small house had been erected near the Crystal Lake. It had two rooms and kitchen, that was all; but it had been pleasantly and well furnished with everything a lone woman might want. When Napoleon assisted Rositta from the aerodrome he led her into the pleasant living-room. She followed him obediently, as if in a trance, seating herself in the chair indicated without a word.
"This is your future home, Rositta," he said, simply.
She did not reply, but sat looking out the window, at the clear lake and the steep mountain sides that overshadowed the little valley forbiddingly. A strange fire shone in her eyes. She stood up slowly and cautiously and stepped to the window. She looked out at the beautiful green-foliage and the blooming flowers for a long time, and Napoleon did not disturb her. Her actions commanded respect.

A smile appeared on her face, a smile that reminded Napoleon of his own mother; it expressed mother love, the most holy of all.
"See—see how green the grass is! How blue the sky is! How mild the air, and the water of the Lago di Maggiore is as smooth as a mirror. It beckoned to Napoleon. "Just look at that sweet little girl, see how she runs on the shore—she is after a butterfly. Don't you see her, man! Don't you see her?" She gasped these last words hoarsely and grasped Napoleon's arm. A nameless terror had his noble soul in its grip.

"Answer me, do you see her?" She began to sob. "Ah, don't say no—say you see her. She is my own little girl. She is good and not like her mother. She is good, I say! She must be good to be happy." She sobbed wildly. Turning to Napoleon she screamed: "Speak! Oh, speak to me, or I shall go mad entirely."
He took her hands in his and in a mild voice said: "Rositta, be quiet; you don't know what you are saying."
She pushed him away. A wild look came into her eyes.
"You fend! You have killed me, and I'll kill you now!" Her hand slipped into her bosom and a short gilt Venetian dagger glistened brightly. She darted forward blindly and just missed Napoleon. Her dagger struck the wall fiercely. The blade broke and fell with a sharp clink to the floor. The next moment she fainted in Napoleon's arms.

He carried her to the sofa and brought fresh water to revive her. For two long hours her soul traveled through unknown regions where there is neither time nor distance. When she opened her eyes again she was not the same youthful, vivacious Rositta. She had become old.
She did not speak for a long time, and Napoleon had the patience to await her pleasure, notwithstanding his neglected duties at Washington. At last she sat up and said weakly: "Napoleon Edison, you have won. You are strong; I am weak. The Queen Rositta is dead. The only one I ever truly loved, my little daughter, is dead, and now I can mourn the rest of my life. You may go, Napoleon. That kiss of yours on the roof at Helgoland—that kiss given as a sign—responsible for all I have done." She offered her hand. "Please go; there are many awaiting you. I want to rest in this solitude."
Napoleon took her hand. "Good-by. Should you need me, there is a special signal arrangement in the other room; use it." He left, and she watched his form disappear in the dark night. The man she had once feared, loved and hated was gone, and, it was strange, but she found all these conflicting emotions gone as well.

That was the last ever heard of the once-famous Princess Schomburg-Lithow, the ambitious Queen of the Air.

En route to Washington Napoleon talked with his men on Clyrith. Whistler told him that his instructions had been carried out to the letter and Sullivan told of the successful capture of the four aerodromes from the west.

It was ten o'clock in the morning when he sighted the capital, and Congress was in session.

The newspapers had already described the battle between the Eagle and the Princess and the capture of the whole aerodrome flotilla. Whistler had reported to the proper authorities, but no one knew what had become of the Princess Rositta.

Loud shouts filled the chamber when Napoleon came in. Representatives left their chairs and, lifting him up, carried him on their shoulders to his chair. He stood there a moment and the enthusiastic audience became silent.

"Gentlemen! Representatives of the United Republics of America!

"I have to tell you that the dangers surrounding us, caused by the designing and ambitious Princess von Schomburg-Lithow, are dissipated forever. Her fleet of aerodromes is in my possession and will be disposed of as you see fit.

"This act of force, committed by me alone, was done in the interest of peace, according to the twelfth chapter of the international peace pactum, that holds the president of the peace committee responsible for peace between nations.

"The manufacturing of aerodromes is my exclusive privilege for the next seventeen years, according to patents secured, and, since I believe this abortive attempt to crush liberty will not be repeated, I take pleasure in offering my sixty aerodromes to the United Republics of America, to be used in accordance with arrangements to be made. I will reserve the right of ownership and the engagement of aeromen for the machines."

An enthusiastic "hurrah" sounded and after quiet was restored Napoleon continued:

"The men captured on the Princess' fleet are to be returned to their respective countries and tried as conspirators against the world peace committee and I have no doubt that amicable relations will soon exist between all the nations.

"The United Republics of America is a monument to Freedom and Peace. These two conditions create satisfaction, wealth and advancement of such character that we are nearer the Almighty, who created man in his own image."

Napoleon was interrupted here by an attendant, who slipped a small envelope into his hand. It was addressed to him in his mother's well-known handwriting. He tore it open, ran through the lines and his face became radiant with happiness. He waved his hand toward the waiting audience and without another word quickly left the hall.

His erratic actions would have caused uneasiness if his face had not been so expressive of happiness. He had hardly reached the exit when the representatives cheered once again. He waved his hand in acknowledgment and dashed out.

He robed to the elevator that carried him to his aerodrome and in a few minutes he was on the roof of the Crystal Palace. He quickly descended to the apartment of Astra, his wife.

His mother awaited him outside the door; their embrace told much. A minute later the great man, the hero, the patriot, the inventor, was kneeling at the bedside of a smiling, happy mother, murmuring broken phrases of joy at her well-being.

At the mother's request, with shaking hands in fear of hurting him; he raised the little, kicking boy and, as he kissed his son, he said with wet eyes:

"My son, thou shalt be a citizen of a happier and more peaceful age."

There is little more to say. That afternoon Napoleon looked through the mail that had accumulated and found Count von Werdenstein's message addressed to Astra. He carried it, together with other urgent letters, to her. She asked him to read it to her.

"Your Ladyship: My secret service agents have informed me that the Princess Schomburg Lithow is planning to overthrow the present peaceful balance that exists all over the world.

"I was reared a man of arms and I have been a believer in our glorious traditions. It has taken a long time for me to realize the blessings of Equality, Liberty and Fraternity, but I have realized them at last.

"I regret that I have not the power to crush the princess' conspiracy, for which I, personally, am to blame. On account of my inability to do this I beg your ladyship to inform your honorable husband of the contents of this letter. He is the only one who can check the uprising, and I hope this will find him prepared.

"For the future, I intend to do all I can to make the coming generation a better and more contented one. I intend to try to follow the example set by the man whom I now appreciate.

"In the hope that my warning will reach you in good time and will be of service to your ladyship, I remain, with sincere regards,

"VON WERDENSTEIN."

"I am glad that a man like the count has seen the light," was Napoleon's simple comment when he had finished reading the letter.

Astra's eyes rested lovingly on Napoleon, then wandered over to the crib in which their baby boy slept. They both felt the dawn of a happier age.

THE END.

COURTESY ALWAYS AN ASSET SAID BY THE CHORUS GIRL

Simple Trial Will Convince Anyone That It Really Pays to Be Gentle and Polite.

If you doubt the value of courtesy, just put the power of courtesy to test for a single day. When you have done this you will be ready to admit that it has dynamic power. Let us suppose that you are a housekeeper, with many things to attend to at the markets and shops. You determine, come what may, that you will be courteous. A dealer has sent you poor goods, for which he has made an exorbitant charge.

He declares that this is not true; he is rough and determined. "You maintain an attitude of perfect courtesy, wait a little, are patient—patience is one of the essentials of courtesy—state that you hope he can adjust the matter, as you would prefer to have him continue to support you.

As a rule you will gain your point with the dealer. In any event you will score within yourself more than one point in the strength saved and in self-respect maintained. More than this, you will leave definite good with each person with whom you come in contact.

That each human being is surrounded by an emanation which affects those about them is true, since it is sufficiently tangible to have been photographed. What the sun is to atmosphere is to this personal atmosphere, and to be courteous is to have and to hold and to radiate a benevolent power which will be like the power of sunshine.

Wisdom.

A wise wife soon learns to manage her husband, while a wise husband never tries to manage his wife.

Reflections of One Who Has Seen Life That is by No Means at Its Best.

It would be all right not to judge a man by his money—if there was any other way of measuring him up.

I ain't a pessimist, but—I've seen talent too many years, sticking around unregarded while tact in managing a manager gets a taxicab start and an electric light over the theater finish for me to be classed with the optimists.

Temper and temperament—what's the difference? It's temper in the chorus and temperament in the star's dressing room.

A job that means breakfast every day and dinner regular, I always been saying so, is worth all the razzle-dazzle feasting going while waiting for an engagement.

Fame—when all is told, what does it come to? The rouge from last night don't last longer than fame. By tomorrow even the callboy's forgotten your name.

When the shoe fits that's a sure sign we could wear a size smaller easily.

It's push that gets a girl a place to stand at the foot of the ladder, and it's pull that holds her finally to the top.

I heard a manager say once that the scariest sight he ever seen was a show girl before breakfast.

Between Two Loves.

An Atchison young man who owns a motor car and has been courting a girl several years has decided he can't afford to keep a car and a wife both—and up to the hour the Globe went to press he had taken no steps to dispose of his car.

Names "Disease Prevention Day." Indianapolis, Ind.—Gov. Samuel M. Ralston will name a day in October to be observed throughout Indiana as "disease prevention day." The movement was started by the Indiana Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, and when Governor Ralston heard of the plan he endorsed the proposition.

Churches Urge Ban Upon Automobile.

Frankfort, Ind.—The automobile was placed under the ban by the German Baptist church, which held its national conference on a farm near here. Only three delegates voted in favor of the use of the machine, while 300 were against it. The resolution adopted follows: "Whereas, We realize the difficulty and unpleasantness in dealing with the automobile spirit, we advise all churches not to allow their members to own or operate an automobile, auto truck, motor cycle, or any motor vehicle, at least until such a time as they become in general use or until we get more light on the subject."

EXPECT RECORD WHEAT CROP.

United States Will Produce Almost Half of World's Average. Washington.—Nine hundred million bushels of wheat—almost half of the world's wheat production, and a new record for the United States—is the prospective total yield of the farms of the country this year, the Department of Agriculture announced in its June crop report.

The enormous crop will be 137,000,000 bushels more than was ever grown before in the United States in any one year.

There also will be large yields of oats and barley, probably second in size in the history of the nation. The report shows:

Spring Wheat—Area, 17,990,000 acres; condition, 95.5 per cent; indicated yield, 14.6 bushels per acre; estimated production, 262,000,000 bushels.

Winter Wheat—Condition, 92.7; yield, 18.1; production, 638,000,000 bushels.

All Wheat—Area, 53,277,000 acres; condition, 93.7 per cent; yield, 16.9 bushels per acre; production, 900,000,000 bushels.

Oats—Area, 38,382,000 acres; condition, 89.5 per cent; yield, 31.7 bushels per acre; production, 1,216,000,000 bushels.

Barley—Area, 7,528,000 acres; condition, 95.5 per cent; yield, 37.2 bushels per acre; production, 206,000,000 bushels.

Rye—Condition, 93.6 per cent; yield, 17.2 bushels per acre.

BIG SUM FOR WORTHY CAUSE

Sales of Red Cross Christmas Seals Netted $440,000 for Fight Against Tuberculosis.

More than 44,000,000 Red Cross Christmas seals were sold last December, according to a report issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and the American Red Cross. In this way $440,000 is netted for anti-tuberculosis work in various parts of the United States.

The sale in 1913 is a gain of 4,000,000 seals over 1912, or ten per cent. It is hoped that this year the 50,000,000 mark will be reached. The seal design for 1914 has been selected and orders for the printing of 100,000,000 seals have been placed. Plans for the organization of a larger sale this year than ever before have been perfected.

New York state led the country last year with a sale of over 10,500,000 seals, or one for each man, woman and child in the state. Of this number, more than 6,825,000 were sold outside of New York city. Ohio came next with a sale of 2,800,000, Wisconsin third with 2,700,000, and Illinois fourth with 2,600,000. Hawaii sold the most seals per capita, the total sale being somewhat over two for each inhabitant. Rhode Island came second with a sale of two per person.

Beginning with a sale of 13,500 in 1908, in six seasons the revenue which these little holiday seals have brought to the anti-tuberculosis campaign has more than tripled, an aggregate for the period of over $1,800,000 or 180,000,000 seals.

ERUPTION DISFIGURED FACE

Lock Box 35, Maurice, Ia.—"In the spring of 1911 our little daughter, age five years, had a breaking out on her lip and part of her cheek that we took for ringworm. It resembled a large ringworm, only it differed in that it was covered with watery blisters that itched and burned terribly, made worse by her scratching it. Then the blisters would break through and let out a watery substance. She was very cross and fretful while she had it and had very little rest at night. When the eruption was at its worst the teacher of the school sent her home and would not allow her to attend until the disfigurement of her face was gone.

"I wrote and received a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which we used according to directions, and they gave instant relief, so we bought some more. It gradually grew better. We kept on using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in three or four months the child was entirely cured." (Signed) Mr. Henry Prins, Oct. 22, 1912.

Don't Poison Baby. FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which is poisonous doses produce stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without your or your physician know of what it is composed. After an inspection of the criminal docket of Lincoln County, one is indignantly imbued with the opinion that some of our residents have been real wild and bad and had no more respect for their ancestry than a chicken born in an incubator.

The Princeton schoolmaster, who has given out an interview in which he admits that he is rather diminutive for the chair in which he is now endeavoring to preserve his equilibrium and is somewhat perturbed over the multiplying angles from which criticism and caricature how with righteous but irritating persistence at his pseudo statesmanship, blandly acknowledges that he is not absolutely certain where he is at. In the language of the Reverend Baltimore Criddle, he "feels hisself itchin' an' don't know exactly whar to scratch; dat's what makes him so fidgety."

Some little time ago the town board of Alamogordo appointed Mrs. Garrett a police officer. The new appointee took the ordinances supposed to be in force to her home and read them over. Then she went up into the silent precincts of the pretty little city and invited one of the prominent business men to go with her to the police court and explain to His Honor why he was riding his bicycle on the sidewalk, contrary to the ordinance in such case made and provided, and then hailed the mayor of the burg into the judicial atmosphere for ignoring a city statute which prohibited the harboring of little piggies within the fire limits. Policewoman Garrett, of course, is a new peace officer and probably does not understand her duties—or, at least, does not consider them in just the same light in which they have been held by some of Alamogordo's business men and city officials.

10,000 FOR RACING AT STATE FAIR

At its meeting in Albuquerque Saturday and Sunday the state fair commission authorized a total of more than ten thousand dollars for racing at the fair October 5 to 10. This will include the best horse racing the western circuit can afford, automobile racing, a New Mexico Marathon with a big purse attached, an automobile road race, a motor cycle road race; in fact every kind of a race that can be pulled off. The sensational auto polo is to be introduced at the fair this year; and the manager has been authorized to complete a contract with Lincoln Beachy now America's most famous airman for daily flights.

FORT STANTON

W. G. Scott is in El Paso on a month's vacation visiting friends. Dr. Littlejohn is in El Paso on a short visit.

Dr. Belsford arrived on the 2d and will be placed on the hospital staff as an assistant.

Dr. Smith was over to Carrizozo Sunday and met Mrs. Simpson, and son, who are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Smith.

Dr. Cooper our dentist left this week for Santa Fe where he will take the state board examination for license to practice in New Mexico.

After the picture show on Tuesday evening Mr. Ferguson furnished us a good selection of the late dance records and all danced to the music of our old friend Victrola. After the dance a lunch was served at 33 by Messrs. Cannon and Nichols. Among those present were: Dr. and Mrs. Smith, Dr. and Mrs. KeKeon, Dr. and Mrs. Kowl, Mrs. Bragg, Mrs. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Leech, C. C. Cannon and R. B. Nichols.

Elaborate preparations were made by the amusement association for a great old time but Jupiter Pluvius had to "but in" about 10:30 and partially spoil it all. Owing to the rain there was no baseball game much to the great disappointment of all present. The races that were pulled off in the afternoon were very good especially the foot races indulged in by the fair sex and should any one remark of the slowness of the Lincoln County girls you might just say that they are away off. The dance that night was well attended and highly enjoyed by all who were so fortunate as to be present. It was the opinion of all present that had it not have been for the rain the amusement association would have pulled off the most enjoyable occasion ever perpetrated at Fort Stanton and even with its great drawback many had the time of their lives.

GLENCOE

(Too late for last week)

Frank Banting of Roswell is visiting at the Frank Coe ranch.

Miss Louise Holland, who until recently has been attending the University of New Mexico, and who is one of the amiable young ladies for which Roswell is noted, is now visiting at the Frank Coe ranch.

The box supper which was given at the Glencoe school house on the evening of June 26, was a pronounced success, both socially and financially. The ladies accompanied by their escorts began to arrive about eight o'clock. In almost every instance each lady carried a box or basket which was appropriately decorated and of course filled with carefully prepared delicious foods. Music was furnished by Will and Wilbur Coe and was ably rendered throughout the evening. The dancing program started off promptly to the inspiring strains of the stringed instruments. The majority of the thirty-five ladies and gentlemen present indulged in dancing until near mid-night. Upon announcement of intermission by B. J. Bonnell who acted as auctioneer, the disposal of the boxes proceeded. The spirited bidding was made especially interesting by the rivalry manifested among competitive bidders for certain boxes. No box brought less than $1.00. After all boxes and baskets were sold, the proceeds of the sale were announced which amounted to a little over $35.00. The money will be placed in the school house fund for the purpose of making repairs and improvements. The arrangements of this party were under the direction of Mrs. B. J. Bonnell and Misses Edith and Mina Coe. The floor management was under the direction of Roy Coe. After everybody present had abundantly satisfied their appetite, dancing was resumed and continued until 1 o'clock a. m., when those who had not departed earlier danced the Home Waltz.

FLIES—DANGEROUS TO HAVE IN THE HOUSE

It Has Become Known in Recent Years That Flies Are Transmitters of Diseases, and Therefore, Are Dangerous to Mankind—Such Diseases as Typhoid, Tuberculosis, Cholera Infantum, and Many Others Are Spread By Flies.

ONE of the most common and widely distributed of household pests is the common fly. This insect, which has been given but little consideration until recently now attracts wide attention on account of the fact that it is a conveyor of all sorts of diseases. Besides carrying germs of typhoid fever, dysentery, cholera, and numerous other dreaded diseases, it is possible that it may also carry smallpox, leprosy, plague, erysipelas, and other germs.

The best fly preventive is to prevent fly breeding. The second best is to keep things so clean as to prevent fly feeding. The third best thing is to defend oneself against the flies that have come. Sometimes it will be possible to screen them away. This works well enough with dwellings. The few flies that get into a well screened house can be swatted, or caught with paper, or killed with poison.

Where the doors are opening constantly, screens are sometimes of little service and sometimes none at all. Under these circumstances, what is to be done?

Usually it will be possible to protect the food supply with cases, screens, or mosquito bar. Anything kept in the icebox will be protected. Flies suddenly entering an atmosphere of 60 will escape if they can. If not, they slow up. At about 48 they lose their ability to fly. At 27, five degrees below freezing, most of them die.

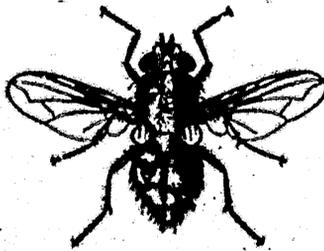

The best method of ridding a dairy barn, milk house, or store of flies will depend on the number present and on other considerations. When flies are abundant the use of fly traps is the most effective method.

Sticky fly paper has some advantages and some disadvantages. A few saucers containing a mixture of one pint of water, one tablespoonful of formaldehyde (commonly known as formalin), and one tablespoonful of sugar will be efficacious, if not much water is exposed in the room.

The proposers recommend that pieces of bread saturated with this solution be placed in plates and these exposed in places inaccessible to children and domestic animals.

When the place is not being used it should be darkened, whereupon fly paper, fly traps, or fly poison, placed near an undarkened window, will be doubly effective.

The Connecticut experiment station has made some tests to determine how thickly populated with germs are flies from different places. To begin with, our old enemy, the blue bottle fly, is not much of an enemy after all. In addition to being so shy as to be harmless, he is not thickly populated. He only carries 300,000 germ passengers. Swill barrel flies average about Cluster Fly.

3,000,000, pig pen flies about 1,000,000, and dwelling house flies nearly 500,000.

Swill barrel flies, pig pen flies, and dwelling house flies are the same species of insect. The only difference is in the degree of dirtiness. It is the difference between a man before and after his bath.

The fly is a most voracious eater. We have heard that he is a most appalling breeder, but his gastronomic ability has not had much notice. A satiated housefly, preening himself on a piece of pie, weighs nearly twice as much as when he began to eat. When fed plenty of moist food he deposits a fly speck every five minutes. He will eat anything as well as everything. Because sputum is from a case of consumption or excretions are from a case of typhoid is no reason why they do not appeal to the fly's palate. Being fond of filth, as well as of clean food; being fond of dirty places, naturally they have many germ diseases of their own.

There are epidemics affecting flies as well as epidemics affected by flies. But what matters it if a few millions are killed by germs when so many millions can quickly breed? Nothing with the feeding and breeding power of a fly is at any great disadvantage from germs. It is the human being that expects to produce but a few of its kind that must fight off the enemies to keep the race alive.

Flies are of no consequence except as they affect the food. They do not start any disease. They serve to carry them from one place to another. One farmer may get typhoid in his milk and then spread typhoid to a hundred farmers' milk by emptying it into a common vat. From this common vat 500 consumers may obtain their milk. Thus typhoid may be spread all over a town. But about the only chance for solid food like bread, meat, and sugar to spread typhoid is through the help of flies. A man's water faucet taps the same pipe as that of another man, a man's milk bottle is filled from the same can as another's—but the only link between two men's bread is our enemy, the fly. If the one has a communicable disease, the fly, forgetting all about quarantine, travels with his groceries must not be exposed. In some states, laws covering this point are enforced. In others they are a dead letter. What's the use of fly posters and widely heralded fly campaigns if the law relating to fly food is not enforced?

It is advised that housewives sprinkle a solution of one part of formaldehyde to ten parts of water in their garbage containers during the warm months, to kill not only odors, but flies and vermin.

When Rosenau discovered that stable flies could carry infantile paralysis, the interest in this fly increased materially. The farmers already know of the harm from this fly. In addition to spreading infantile paralysis, Jennings and King of the bureau of entomology say it may spread poliomyelitis. The diseases of domestic animals spread by it are anthrax, swamp fever, glanders, septicemia, surra, soums, and, maybe, round worm.

In addition, biting flies worry stock so much that they cannot work efficiently. Animals get thin and milk cows sometimes go off 40 to 60 per cent in the amount of milk produced.

F. C. Bishopp of the United States bureau of entomology, tells us that the stable fly breeds largely in straw. Old strawstacks in the fields are the worst offenders. Bishopp's advice is to burn these stacks or else to spread the straw, and plow it in deep. When a heavy rain falls on freshly threshed straw conditions for fly breeding are at their worst. Manure containing straw is another breeding place of importance.

To keep the flies off, Bishopp advises a mixture of fish oil (one gallon), oil of pine tar (two ounces), oil of pennyroyal (two ounces), and kerosene (one-half a pint).

The fish-oil mixture, if faithfully applied, will serve as a repellent against flies as long as it retains its effectiveness.

Indian Ingenuity.

In his preface to "Antarctic Days," Sir Ernest Shackleton tells an amusing little story of northern Canada.

A government geologist, with infinite labor, had collected some very interesting geological specimens in a region far beyond civilization. Most of the collecting was done on the barren ground 280 miles northeast of the Great Bear lake. The scientific man and the porters of the party carried the rocks on their backs to the Great Bear lake, paddled 200 miles across the lake, and alternately paddled and portaged 1,500 miles up the Mackenzie, Slave and Athabasca rivers.

The last portage was half a mile long at the Grand Rapids of the Athabasca, and it was done by Indian employes of the Hudson's Bay company. The Indians were ingenious men, and they still tell with pride how they saved much labor by emptying all the heavy bags and boxes at the lower end of the rapids, and filling them again at the upper end with rocks of similar weight. By this means they saved half a mile of difficult carrying. The substitution was found out a year later in Ottawa.

China's Telegraph Lines.

The Chinese government, which owns the country's telegraph system, has extended it until more than 25,000 miles of land lines and about 1,000 miles of cables are now in use.

WITH OLD TRUTH IN MERCY

Author's Opinion of Why Women Use "Fact" Instead of Being Too Plainly-Outspoken.

"I call a woman sincere," Marlow began after giving me a cigar and lighting one himself. "I call a woman sincere when she volunteers a statement resembling remotely in form what she really thinks ought to be said if it were not for the necessity to spare the stupid sensitiveness of men. The woman's rougher, simpler, more upright judgment embraces the whole truth, which their tact, their mistrust of masculine idealism, ever prevents them from speaking in its entirety. And their tact is unerring. We could not stand women speaking the truth. We could not bear it. It would cause infinite misery and bring about most awful disturbances in this rather mediocre but still idealistic fool's paradise in which each of us lives his own little life—the unit in the great sum of existence. And they know it. They are merciful."—From "Chance," by Joseph Conrad.

Not Dependent on Hired Help. James Thompson, manager of the largest hotel in Cleveland, Ohio, was born in a little village in that state.

Not long ago Thompson's father, who still lives in the village where James was born, was approached by an old woman, a lifelong friend of the family. In the course of the conversation she asked:

"By the way, what's become of little Jimmie, your son?"

"Oh," replied the father, "he's in Cleveland, getting along nicely. He's manager of the biggest hotel in that city."

The old lady shook her head dubiously.

"Well," she said, "I hope Jimmie's strong enough to stand the work; but I'm afraid hotel work is too hard for him—lifting so many trunks around. Is Jimmie married yet?"

"Yes," replied the father, "he's been married for some time."

The old woman sighed happily. "Well," she commented, "he isn't dependent on hired help to do the cooking then."

When a girl is a belle she naturally wants to be tolled so.

Irrascible Senator Simply Changed Tactics When Shown the Error. Was His.

One of our western senators, who possesses a rather irascible temper, has a habit on days when everything seems to go wrong of scolding the clerks employed by his committee.

Not long ago, during a session of the senate, the western solon had expressed a desire that one of the clerks prepare a tabulated statement of certain trade statistics of the United States. The statement was accordingly prepared and laid before the teaty senator, who glanced at it with an air that boded trouble. In a moment he looked up and exclaimed:

"See here, Morton, this won't do. Why didn't you prepare this statement on the typewriter? These figures are disgraceful. Any twelve-year-old-school boy could do better than that. See that three? It looks for all the world like a five! No one would take it for anything else. Just look at it!"

"I beg your pardon, senator," replied the clerk apologetically. "The fact is, it is a five."

"A five!" roared the senator. "You idiot! It looks like a three!"

STORIES OF U. S. FLEET ON DUTY AT THE PORT OF VERA CRUZ

Vera Cruz, Mexico.—Months before the landing of the American naval forces at Vera Cruz and the capture of the Mexican port plans had been worked out for the occupation of the city. They contemplated resistance by the Mexicans and were not merely plans for peaceful patrolling of streets and administration of civil duties.

Five months ago the battleship New Jersey was sent to Vera Cruz and her officers were detailed immediately for a military survey of the city. Outwardly the groups of young officers who were ashore daily were merely sightseeing, riding or walking through the quaint old city and having the best of times. Actually, the city was as carefully charted as if it were a coast of dangerous reefs and shoals. The spots along its waterfront were selected where the men of the sea should land whenever hostilities might start. The straight streets which might be swept by the deadly hail of bullets from machine guns were marked.

Streets Very Crooked.

In a seventeenth century Spanish city such as this straight streets are the exception. Many streets are curved and more have jogs every few blocks, so that the street appears to end abruptly until the end is reached, when it is seen to continue a hundred feet or so to the right or left.

The buildings whose commanding roofs would sweep these streets were listed. The dozen or more high parapeted stone and plaster towers which overlooked various parts of the city were known even to the location of stairways, so that no time might be lost in reaching their commanding turrets. The flat roofs were charted like steps. They were to be occupied in successive series, all the time advancing over the housetops until the city was swept and secured.

The developments of the day showed that the precautions were wisely taken. The capture of Vera Cruz in the warless war was a fight over the housetops. Behind the roof parapets and from the high towers the Mexican snipers fought like defenders of a beleaguered medieval castle. Each city block of the gray stone city made a separate castle. Had their defense been as determined and as united as the attack of the men from the ships the story of American death and bloodshed would have been far more bitter. American foresight knew more about their own city than they did themselves. It struck straight for the high spots.

Fighting Sobers Jackies.

To probably more than half the bluejackets and marines the first two days of fighting in Vera Cruz was a sudden awakening that life in the navy is not all pomp, parade, travel and play. Many had never seen a fellow being cold in death, much less a man killed, or been under fire before. It was a changed body of young men that came back to the ships. Shore expeditions before had been for display or pleasure. This had been grim business, in which comrades of the other happy shores had died, where the blood lust of revenge had run high, and in a twinkling they had changed from carefree boys to hardened men.

In the Plaza d' Cathedral the hospital corps gathered up the mangled remains of a Mexican defender. A three-inch shell had torn away both legs. The close fire of a machine gun had chopped the body as if with knives. Across the plaza to the ears of an officer to whom war had ceased to be play came the ribald chatter. "Carry the body down the street!" he directed the hospital orderlies. It was lifted on a stretcher. The men with the red cross on their sleeves started at a brisk pace. Curiously the nearest boys stepped forward to look. With a shudder they drew back. The words froze on their lips. It was as if some invisible hand of ice had stilled their heart beats. Along the line moved the human wreckage of their bullets. It was death's muffer. One glance sufficed. Each sailor boy looked straight ahead. Thoughts flew to homes far away as war's realities were realized. The lesson had been learned.

Tension at Snapping Point.

In the weeks the fleet was assembling at Vera Cruz awaiting word from Washington or a chance which might unloose the flood of war, tension was at the snapping point. It was the vigilance of a stranger in the enemy's country. The island prison-fortress, San Juan del Ulus, lay grim and menacing. The Americans knew four torpedo tubes opened from the sides. Each night the harbor was dragged for mines or wires. Every moment the tubes were watched. The Maine disaster had not been forgotten.

One night in December, across the moonlit waters came the steady thump of the air compressors working in the fort's torpedo magazines. On the battleship Rhode Island the big gongs which sound only the call to general quarters changed forth. The ship's searchlights illuminated the fort as if at noonday. Enough guns found the range to blow the island and fort out of the sea. The thump of the air compressors stopped. San Juan del Ulus hasn't found a torpedo yet.

During the fighting the cruiser Prairie, lying outside the breakwater, was directly in front of one of the torpedo tubes. While her guns on the shore side were turned on the naval academy one of her eight-inch pieces on the fort side was trained on the torpedo tubes. The fort commandante had been warned that his first move to open the torpedo sluice gates would be the signal to fire a deadly fulminate shell into the ancient fort. The line to raise the sluice gate hung slack.

A picturesque grove of six coconut palms stands on the sea promontory of the same fort. Coming into the harbor their waving tops stand clear against the colorless skyline. As the ship's launches come closer a gibbet—a single upright with a projecting arm, from which a now unused noose still dangles—also shows against the sky.

Serve In Army or Be Hung.

Back of the gibbet is a rectangular inclosure. Into this open air "bull pen" under the broiling sun were from one hundred and fifty to two hundred prisoners. Some were army deserters, others prisoners of war and more mere conscripts plucked up in the streets and sabanas. All were invited to enlist in the federal army. To impress them with the merits of the invitation each morning, one who had obstinately refused it was elevated on the gibbet. In the evening he was tossed over the sea wall to the sharks. The argument is said to have been effective in convincing most of the prisoners that their patriotic duty was to join Huerta's army.

Everything seemed quiet one night along one of the streets being patrolled by marines from the New Jersey, when suddenly a black form with arms waving shot across the narrow areaway. The machine gun crew down the street saw it and let loose with a roar and the bullets hummed down the street. A minute later it shot back with the same defiant waving of arms. The excited machine gun crew let loose again, but apparently with the same futile result. Lieut. C. D. Barrett, with a couple of his marines, stole down the street. If the uncanny apparition dodging back and forth through the hail of bullets was human it was the strongest man they had ever seen. "It's only a coat," concluded the lieutenant. "And it's on a rope and a man is working it back and forth across the street."

Coat Makes Last Trip.

A minute later the coat started to flap across the street again. The machine gun two blocks away barked at it in vain. The arm appeared for half an inch. Half a dozen marines let go with their rifles. That was the troublesome coat's last trip. No traces of blood were found, but the woodwork of the door was bored as if by augers.

"Probably some native trying to become a hero to his seniors by getting his coat full of bullet holes," was the lieutenant's explanation of the strange performance.

Those who form their ideas of the navy from comic operas may believe there was such a ridiculous person as the "admiral of the king's navy," made famous in song. Perhaps there was, but more likely the famous English composer created a fictitious person from mistakes, real or imaginary, of many admirals. Admirals make mistakes. So do captains; also many other dignified, stern visaged officers of our own immaculate American navy.

Captain Boards Wrong Ship.

Late one night when the fleet was off Vera Cruz a certain captain stepped into his launch and started for his ship. His thoughts were on the day's work and the plans for the next, and as his boat came to a stop off a gangway he stepped on the landing and mounted the stairs of the battleship's deck.

"Tell the boat to cast off," he said to the officer who saluted him at the top of the ladder.

The officer of the deck did so. He knew it was not his captain, but discipline laid down its rules. The captain strolled across the afterdeck.

The commander—a commander is next in rank to a captain on a battleship, is on duty 24 hours a day and fanks with a major in the army—met him, saluted and passed on. That seemed strange to the captain. He looked around. It was just like his ship, but something seemed strange. "What ship is this?" he asked.

"The —, sir," replied the commander, facing about at attention. "I thought it was my ship," said the captain.

"Drat that coxswain, why did he put me off at this ship?" demanded the captain from the officer of the deck, which also was not according to rules. The captain descended the gangway. The ship's boat drew up to receive him. The coxswain looked up to the deck for his orders.

"Proceed to the — with a passenger and return to ship," ordered the officer of the deck.

"Ay, ay, sir," replied the coxswain. The bell rang and the boat was off.

DOUBLES BIG GOULD ESTATE

Under Management of George J. Father's Holdings Have Been Increased Doublefold.

New York.—Under the management of George J. Gould the estate of the late Jay Gould is said to have been more than doubled in value since the death of the widow of the latter. Personal fortunes of the Goulds have increased proportionately.

Criticism directed to previous Gould management of their railroads find no basis for repetition against George J. Gould. Edwin, Howard and Helen Gould are co-trustees in charge of the estate.

At one time George J. Gould, with the aid of the estate's funds, loaned the Missouri Pacific as high as $20,000,000 to hold off receivership. This was in 1894. Since that date the estates funds have saved various properties time and again.

EXCELLENT FOR SHEEP TO DESTROY CANADA THISTLE

ALFALFA ALMOST INDISPENSABLE TO LIVE STOCK GROWER.

From Comparative Obscurity It Has Come Into Prominence During Last Ten or Fifteen Years for Breeding Animals.

(By R. J. KINZLER.)

The use of alfalfa cannot be too strongly urged with sheep, either the breeding or fattening stock. As the method of farming has become more intensified and the open range grows less each year, an acre of alfalfa must be made to take the place of many acres of range pasture.

Sheep, being ruminants, are able to handle a much more bulky feed than horses. A breeding flock of sheep can be carried through the winter season very successfully with but little grain in addition to alfalfa hay. Ordinarily the first cutting of alfalfa is not as good for sheep as the second and third cuttings, as it is usually coarse and stemmy, and sheep do not eat these stems readily.

It is about as safe to pasture old sheep on alfalfa as it is cattle. They thrive on it, and make excellent gains; but sheep bloat easily and there is likely to be a little loss from this source. Lambs can be pastured on alfalfa with but little danger of bloat, and the way they grow on alfalfa is a delight to the shepherd. They should never be put on the pasture, when they are empty and hungry, and it is always well to allow them access to some dry feed and keep them off the alfalfa until the dew is off; also on damp days. A mixture of alfalfa and brome-grass or alfalfa and orchard grass is a safer pasture than alfalfa alone.

A flock of ewes and lambs can be grazed for a short time each day on alfalfa with but little danger of any loss. If a lamb-creep can be arranged from the sheep corral to an alfalfa pasture, the lambs will soon learn what it is intended for and will do far better on it than if confined to a dry yard. Newly seeded alfalfa can be pastured with less danger of bloat than an old field, and the packing of the ground by the sheep passing over it is frequently a great benefit to the alfalfa.

As a roughage for fattening sheep alfalfa hay has no equal, and cases of bloat from the hay are exceedingly rare. It can be fed either whole or cut, and fed with grain. Many prefer this method of feeding, claiming that there is less waste by it. In feeding experiments nothing has been found for roughage that equals alfalfa for fattening sheep. In an experiment at the Kansas station, alfalfa and prairie hay were compared as roughages. In the test the grain ration was corn and cottonseed meal for both lots. Those receiving alfalfa hay made an average daily gain of .336 pounds per head, while the lot on prairie hay made only .188 pounds per head daily, the alfalfa lot making almost twice as great gains. The alfalfa seemed to give the lambs a better appetite and they were always ready for their grain, and as soon as their grain was cleaned up they were ready for the alfalfa.

Control of Onion Maggot.

No entirely effective method of controlling the onion maggot has as yet been discovered, according to the Massachusetts experiment station.

Successful as Breeders.

To be successful as breeders it is necessary that we be good judges of dairy animals, have an ideal type in mind and always in our selections and mating keep working toward our ideal.

Protect the Birds.

Protect and shelter the birds as much as possible. A few wind breaks or thickets of brush on the farm give the birds a nesting place and they pay for it by catching many injurious insects.

Eradicating Weeds.

Getting a weed in time saves more than nine. An average plant of wild mustard, for instance, will produce 15,000 seeds in a season. Don't let them go to seed.

Cold Rains Injurious.

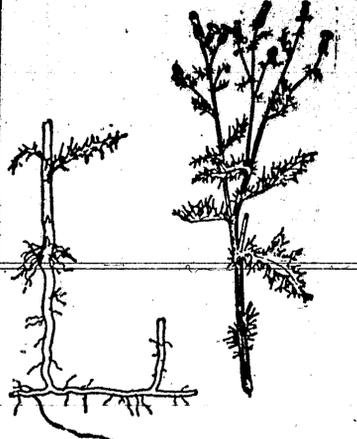

The cold rain will stop the milk flow if the cows have to stand all day without shelter.

Tools and Implements.

Well-kept tools and implements reduce labor and increase pleasure.

First Step in Eradication of This Weed Is to Prevent All Plants From Going to Seed.

The Canada thistle is a perennial which ranges from one to three feet in height. The flower heads are rose-purple in color. A white feathery tuft of hair is attached to the mature seed which aids in its distribution. The plant flowers from June to September, but usually matures in July. The first step in the eradication of this weed is to prevent all plants from going to seed. It is often necessary to go into grain fields with a scythe and cut this weed out to prevent it from seeding before the main crop is out. Plow the land as soon as the crop of grain is removed. Then reseed in the fall, leaving all roots possible exposed. A three-year rotation of barley, clover, corn or other cultivated crop should be practised.

HEARD OVER THE FARM PHONE

Profitable Practice to Sell or Ship Eggs Every Day—Pure Food Gives the Best Flavor.

Fresh eggs are all the cry from the folks down town these days. All right, too. We don't like to eat old, stale eggs ourselves. For this and other reasons it is a fine thing to ship or sell every day if possible.

Down cellar is a good place to keep the eggs if you are compelled to hold them a few days. Fix up a little rack with slats to lay them on so the air may circulate about them all the time. This will help to keep the flavor good.

There are those who claim that they can tell what kind of food has been given a hen to eat, just by the taste of the egg. This is getting down to a pretty fine point, but it is no doubt a fact that good, clean, pure feed does give an egg a better flavor than that which is half spoiled, or entirely so. You cannot blame your neighbor for not keeping up his share of the line fence if you do not keep up yours.

The woman who finds garden work too exhaustive may transform it into a healthful exercise by giving it her time in the early morning or twilight hours.

It is worth while to know what your hired man talks about when he is alone with the boys. A good man can do them a deal of good; and a bad one—well, you had better let him go just as quickly as you can, before you lose your boy body and soul. The average farmer makes a mistake when he breeds trotting horses or other breeds not adapted to his business.

Restoring Fertility.

Fertility may be restored to worn-out land by saving all animal manures and putting them onto the land; by making use of all crop residues, that is, putting back into the soil everything not used for feed; by turning under green manures and catch crops.

Working for Independence.

Give more attention to the orchard, the garden, the poultry and the farm animals, and it will not be necessary to worry so much over the general crops. With fruits, vegetables, poultry, eggs, milk, butter, pork and other articles of food raised on the farm for the family table it will not require very large crops to make you independent on the farm.

Fencing Pastures.

If there is a permanent pasture on the farm it rarely pays to fence the individual fields of cultivated crops, but if the fields are pastured in rotation it may pay to fence them.

Start a Milk Record.

Are you sure your cows are all paying for their board? Start a milk record and find out.

More Weeds Tomorrow.

Weeds today mean more weeds tomorrow.

In the fields a big team makes haste by the width of the furrow or swath they cut.

CURIOUS IDEAS OF TRADING

Papuan Village of Unfriendly Natives Offer Human Bones to Make a Trade.

Sydney, N. S. W.—Judge Murray, administrator of Papua, has just returned from an extended trip along the Fly river and its tributaries. He found a district near Lake Murray partly settled, with houses built around trees, on the blockhouse principle, with loopholes for arrows. The natives were unfriendly.

At a village on the lake the chief formed a disciplined body into military formation, and at a signal they manned canoes and did other evolutions with great precision.

The expedition secured specimens of the cuirass made of rattan, which the warriors wear as an arrowproof armor. The cuirass fits from the neck, and covers the trunk of the body completely, leaving only the head, arms and legs exposed to arrows.

The natives have curious ideas of trading. If they desired a tomahawk they would offer a human jawbone or skull, or a stuffed head.

"Million Dollar Baby" Fishes Necklace Out of Sand After Others Give Up-Hope.

Philadelphia.—Vincent Beal Walsh McLean—the "hundred million dollar baby"—son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean of Washington, demonstrated that he was a better sleuth than a dozen or more society folk, when he recovered for his mother a $16,000 necklace which she lost at the Devon-horse show. Mrs. McLean had left her box for a stroll. At the end of the board walk she continued walking on the sand covered portion of the track. The necklace fell from her throat. Unable herself to find it, she sent for the bodyguard who accompanies her little son on all occasions. The boy came with him. With a number of her friends the search was continued. When hope of recovering the treasure had almost been given up Vincent uttered a childish cry, "Here 'tis," and fished from the sand the string of gems. Mrs. McLean was overjoyed.
