Deputy Assessor O. T. Nye left for Santa Fe Wednesday morning on business before the state board of equalization, which means that the aforesaid board will not put anything over to the detriment of Lincoln county when it pokes its official nose into the tax rolls of this county.

W. S. Prager prominent citizen of Roswell, and well known in Lincoln county was here Saturday. Mr. Prager is enthusiastic over the Live Stock Association. They will have a big exposition at Roswell this fall.

Geo. B. Barber and A. J. Rolland were in Alamogordo Monday for the purpose of attending a meeting of the board of regents of the Blind asylum.

Messrs. and Mesdams Stanley Squires, John Baird and W. M. Barient, and Mrs. Arthur Rogers, returned Saturday night from a week's fishing trip on the Ruidoso, having pitched their camp near the head of the Mescalero reservation. The fishing was particularly good, so the boys say; and so was the rain and the mud. But the party had a delightful time, just the same.

Mrs. M. E. Shelton of Alamogordo arrived in Carrizozo Tuesday morning, having been called here to be with Mrs. George Spence in the capacity of a nurse. Mrs. Shelton is a practical nurse of large experience and because of her thorough understanding of the needs in a sick room, Mr. Spence called her to his wife's bedside. Mrs. Spence has suffered a relapse and her condition was, the first of the week, considered dangerous.

Frank Staplin, formerly of Farmington, N. M., was in town last Saturday, leaving for Roswell Sunday morning. Mr. Staplin is a prominent exponent of the principles of the republican party, having been in the editorial harness for many years fighting for his ideals and having represented the party from his district in the territorial legislatures on several occasions. During the first state legislature Mr. Staplin was chief clerk of the house of representatives.

Oscar Bamberger arrived at his former home here for the purpose of accepting the position of general manager of the Carrizozo Trading company's establishment. Mr. Bamberger was formerly associated with Ziegler Bros., and is well known to the people of this community, among whom he lived for four or five years. Since severing his connection with the latter firm, he has been representing the Barton Bros. Shoe company on the road. His many friends will be pleased to have Oscar with them again.

A party of young motorists from Texas, on their way to Santa Fe by way of the Agency and El Paso, collided with Doyle Murry's car near Tinnie last Sunday, and although they hit it pretty hard and jolted up the passengers considerably they only opened up the throttle and made tracks for the south. They were arrested at Alamogordo, to which point Mr. Murry, accompanied by Sheriff Cole, went Tuesday. A settlement was arranged at that point and Mr. Murry decided not to prosecute them. They were held up several days on their journey, and possibly have been taught a needed lesson in the common courtesies of the road.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING

A few month ago a young man about 17 years of age made his appearance in the vicinity of Alto, hailing from Mississippi as he claimed coming here for his health. For some time he has been employed as water carrier for the men on the pipe line works. Last Wednesday he decided to quit and left for former Lackey's residence, which was vacant, to batch and work Mr. Lackey's corn. Saturday evening about 6 o'clock a small boy in passing found the young man dead near the house, and at once notified the neighborhood. Dr. Cody of Capitan as coroner visited the scene Sunday morning, held an inquest over the remains and returned the verdict that death was caused by lightning as all the clothing as well as shoes were torn into bits and his body badly burned and bones splintered. He gave the name of Adolphus D. Stone and letters among his belongings shows he has two sisters in Mississippi and brother at west plains Missouri. He was buried at the Angus cemetery.

OUR TAX ROLLS SHOW $7,248,826 VALUATION

An Increase of Over $300,000 Shown When Compared With Last Year's Assessment

ONLY FIVE BUSHEL OF WHEAT IN THE COUNTY

Oryllo T. Nye, the deputy assessor of Lincoln county has completed the tax rolls and they have been forwarded to the state board of equalization.

The returns show an increase in taxable property over last year of over $600,000, which, in the nature of things, ought to bring with it a reduction in the levy, and in all probability will.

Probably the greatest increase is shown in the value of the cattle and sheep, the former showing an increase of $1,000,000, while the latter shows an increase of some $800,000.

An abstract of the condition of Lincoln county, as shown by the rolls completed, follows:

There are 7,845 acres of agricultural lands assessed, valued at $223,157, the improvements thereon being valued at $45,498, making a total of $277,655. Grazing lands show 135,592 acres, valued at $407,815; with improvements valued at $162,421, totaling $570,236; timber land—10 acres valued at $100; coal lands—3275 acres, value $91,907, value improvements $510, total $92,417; mineral lands—2,255 acres, value $71,107, value improvements $44,470, total $115,667; city or town lots—5922 lots, value $136,351, value improvements $161,253, total $297,604.

There are 95.77 miles of railroad in the county valued at $3,223,040, while the Pullman company pays taxes on a valuation of $17,985.

The live stock shows in good shape, the figures telling the story as follows: 4,623 horses valued at $173,830; 299 mules valued at $1,781; 32,118 head cattle valued at $1,014,160; 200,547 head sheep valued at $880,105; 17, 130 head goats valued at $57,757, all hogs valued at $3,114.

There are 755 wagons valued at $19,317 and 420 sewing machines valued at $4,094, while the valuation of the harness is placed at $9,885, the farming implements at $4,862, watches at $1,915, jewelry at $1,031, musical instruments at $5,811, household furniture at $26,816, wheat at $50, oats at $75, barley at $35; corn at $490, hay at $350, automobiles—54 of them valued at $25,540, books at $5,440, merchandise at $192,971, bank stock at $96,589, money at $44,311.

These totals, together with a few other items not listed above, brings the valuation of Lincoln county for the present year to the grand total of $7,248,826, in round numbers.

Hon. W. A. Hawkins and family of El Paso passed through Carrizozo Tuesday on their way to their summer camp on Eagle creek. They will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. and Mrs. Mitchell of Chicago and expect to remain on their outing for a month or more.

The ISOLATED CONTINENT

A ROMANCE OF THE FUTURE

By GUIDO VON HORVATH and DEAN HOARD

Copyright 1913 by W.G. CHAPMAN in the UNITED STATES and GREAT BRITAIN

SYNOPSIS.

For fifty years the continent of North America has been isolated from the rest of the world by rays of the invention of Hannibal Prudent, president of the united government. A message from Count von Werdenstein, chancellor of Germany, that he has succeeded in penetrating the rays across the ocean. Dying, he warns his daughter Astra that foreign invasion is now certain. Astra succeeds her father as president. Napoleon Edison, a former pupil of Prudent's, offers to assist Astra and hints at new discoveries which will make North America impregnable. A man giving the name of Chevalier de Leon offers Werdenstein the secret of making gold in return for European disarmament. The chevalier is made a prisoner. Countess Rosita, a spy, becomes a prisoner in the hope of discovering de Leon's secret. She falls in love with him and agrees to join him in an attempt to escape. By the use of a device he summons a curious flying machine. He escapes and sends a message to Astra, which reveals the fact that he is Napoleon Edison. He warns Astra that the consolidated fleets of Europe have sailed to invade America. He calls on her the following night and explains his plans for defense. By the use of aeroplanes made of a new substance which is indestructible he expects to annihilate the European forces. He asks Astra to reveal the secret of his flag to Werdenstein on the day of the wedding of Astra and Edison. The countess and Rosita see the count. Rosita reveals a machine, made a count and marries the countess, now princess of Schomburg-Lithow. Edison finds a new deposit of cyrnyth and builds a new fleet of airships. He accidentally discovers a liquid that will render opposing airships helpless. Santos completes a fleet for the princess. The aviators of the fleet elect her queen. She plans to master the world.

CHAPTER XXI—Continued.

This Sunday was the first real day of rest that Napoleon had enjoyed for a long time. He found perfect peace in the company of his mother and wife. Nobody knew he had returned. The surprise that swept over the members of the staff when he appeared in congress Monday morning was great.

As Napoleon arose the great hall became instantly silent. He bowed he said:

"Honorable President and Representatives, before all else I want to thank you for your kind reception." A loud "hurrah!" stopped him for a moment. Then he continued: "There have been so many changes since I went away that I can hardly express my opinion, particularly in regard to the political affairs of the present. I am very glad to see that congress realizes its duty, and that every member is prepared for action. I place my faith in its wisdom and hope that it will know its duty and do it accordingly.

"I Tell You, Woman, to Stand Before Me."

"Compatriots, I greet you all!" A sigh of satisfaction swept over the hall when Napoleon, after this short speech, sat down. An air of uncertainty prevailed; they had expected so much from him and had received nothing definite. The speaker at the house then opened the session.

CHAPTER XXII.

Princess Rosita Shows Her Colors. The members of the international peace committee and congress of the United Republics of America were identical in wording, and were duly cabled to all the rebelling monarchs.

Neither the peace committee nor congress gave a thought to consenting to the wishes of the decrees of the European rulers, and it is quite likely that the prompt refusal to accede to their demands was not unexpected, for the Count von Werdenstein rubbed his hands contentedly when he read the first dispatch. His first act was to call the Princess Schomburg Lithow on the 'graph. Her headquarters were in Suemeg.

Werdenstein's message found Rosita in the air. She connected the apparatus to the 'graph and bowed to the smiling count.

"Ah, good morning, count!" "Good morning, princess."

"The Americans refuse our demands," said the count bluntly. "Ah, indeed!"

"Can you come to Berlin and talk to me?"

She thought for a moment. "Is your answer ready?"

"An ultimatum? Is that what you mean?"

"An ultimatum that says distinctly that peaceful relations will be broken after a lapse of twenty-four hours and that Europe will act as she sees fit," replied Rosita with a firm click of her even teeth.

"I am going to see his majesty now and will communicate with the powers. Replies should reach me by tomorrow morning," was the count's answer.

"Then do so, my dear count, and if one of the powers should refuse it should be considered as an enemy, in league with the Americas. Tomorrow you will kindly call me up again and tell me the results. I will then arrange to meet you."

The count consented, then disconnected his instrument. He went to his majesty and had a gloomy reception. The kaiser listened to the details of the count's plans and shook his head doubtfully. In the end he consented to the ultimatum, remarking that the situation could not be much worse.

Answers consenting to the terms of the ultimatum came promptly, and authorized the count to send it out.

England, however, refused. The Island Kingdom was the only one that sent a flat refusal.

The count shrugged his shoulders indifferently. "Then we will do with out England, that is all."

Calling Rosita on the 'graph, he advised her to have her men in readiness.

"Is the ultimatum on its way?" was her eager question.

"It is ready to be sent, already in cipher."

"Then send it and in an hour an aerodrome will call for you. I want you to come to Suemeg to see my feet." Rosita shut off the current before the count could answer. His dignity was ruffled at her behavior, but since it was imperative that he see her he had to submit to her plan. When the aeroman called for him the ultimatum was on its way and he was ready to go to Suemeg.

Just before he left, however, he sat down to his desk and wrote a letter, then hurriedly folded it and, sealing it in an envelope, rang the bell for his aide de camp.

The Captain von Hochamberg entered and saluted gravely. "I have a very important mission for you, captain. Take the first train to Hamburg and thence to England. This letter contains a sealed order for you. You must be at the German consulate in Liverpool by 8:00 a. m. tomorrow. If you receive no further orders then you are to follow the instructions that you will find in this sealed letter as quickly as possible. Otherwise return it intact. Here is an order for money and a pass. Secrecy is important!" He shook hands with the captain and dismissed him.

"That makes me feel easier." He sighed and started for the elevator that took him to the waiting aerodrome.

An hour later he was in Suemeg, greeting Rosita. The man who had made her what she was had lost his value in her eyes. He could do nothing more for her, so he could be discarded or destroyed.

"I have called your honor here, to exhibit the feet I possess, and to show you what we have accomplished and what we can do." The latter words carried a peculiar accent to the chancellor's ears.

"I am quite curious to see everything, my dear princess."

"Your curiosity will soon be gratified, as I have already given orders to my men." She placed an emphasis on the "my."

The chancellor only bowed; then after a pause he said:

"I also have some orders for you, princess, from his majesty the kaiser!"

She waved her hand airily. "We can talk about it later."

The princess led him at once into the open and pointed toward twenty-one aerodromes that were stationed on the plateau, glittering in the sunshine. The uniformed aeromen stood at attention by their machines and saluted the princess and the count as they passed in old military style between the two rows of aerodromes.

The princess led the way to the machine that was decorated with the princely crown, and pulling a silver whistle from her pocket she blew it. The well-trained men jumped into their machines and sat at attention.

She blew shrill blasts on her whistle and the fleet shot up into the air as one bird.

The Count Santos Duprel was at the wheel and Rositta commanded the fleet. The second line of machines was signaled to reverse their flight and the first line followed her. After they had separated from each other a mile or so both lines turned toward the center, and the chancellor at last understood the significance of the maneuver when red pennants were hoisted on the eleven machines comprising the princess' fleet and blue on the ten opposite.

The aerodrome "Princess" made a detour and took a position on the right wing of the line; then the sham battle began.

The princess could not resist the impulse to show her prowess. Santos swung their aerodrome into the fight; they dodged and turned, each trying to gain in elevation. Finally, with a quick spring the "Princess" evaded its enemy and slid between its wings from the back and the next moment the enemy was a captive.

It was an exhilarating sport.

"I congratulate you, princess," said the count to the intoxicated Rositta.

The "Princess" carried the captive machine back to Suemeg with ease. The other machines returned, one after the other, all enthusiastic and discussing the tactics of air warfare.

After the inspection dinner was served, in which the whole squadron took part. Werdenstein greeted several of them as old acquaintances and friends of those good days when the armies held their own and when he was planning to conquer the American continent. The times had changed. Now the air men ruled—at the command of a beautiful, bold woman, whose only motive seemed to be vanity.

These gloomy forebodings were warranted sooner than he expected. Only appetizers and soup had been served.

The blood left Rositta's cheeks and it took almost a minute for her to recover her composure. Then she rose and pointing at the chancellor, said in a shrill voice:

"Take him away—back to Berlin quick or I shall forget myself and kill him!"

when Count de Korona stood up and addressed the gathering:

"The pleasure of greeting the world-famous chancellor, the iron-handed man of the German Empire, has been given me. It is a great honor for us to have you at our feast, and we, the conquerors of the air, greet you, who are considered the representative of all the European powers."

Rositta smiled sweetly at the chancellor, who was watching the speaker in amazement. After a short pause, de Korona continued:

"We greet you as such, as a representative, and I, in my comrades' names, ask your excellency to be with us in heart and drink to the elected queen of the air, who is destined to be queen of the world. Long live our beloved Queen Rositta."

The huzzas that thundered through the hall told the chancellor plainly that this was no pleasantry. His suspicions had not been without foundation. He paled and when the tumult died away he stood up, calm and determined and without a word left the hall.

This action made Rositta furious, but she did not show her indignation. "The chancellor seems to have lost his appetite," was all she said.

After the dinner was over, she gave a few curt orders and the aeromen proceeded into another hall beautifully and regally decorated. At the far end stood a magnificent throne.

Rositta retired to her own apartment, while two men went to invite the chancellor to the throneroom. They found him soberly pacing the distance between the entrance gate and the first hangar.

He followed them. Rositta sat on the throne with a glittering cyrnyth crown on her head. She was more beautiful than ever.

The Count von Werdenstein was led before her. He showed no surprise. His face was calm and his whole attitude expressed disinterest.

"I have requested that your excellency come to Suemeg, for I have a message that I want brought before the whole world."

The count looked at her steadily, and without waiting to hear her further words he said in his strong, penetrating voice:

"I tell you, woman, to stand before me. Tell me your petition standing. Then I may listen to it. Do not forget that I represent the Emperor of Germany."

Had these words not been spoken in such deadly earnestness some of the audience would have found the scene ridiculous. As it was, it was grave and embarrassing and every one stood stunned.

The blood left Rositta's cheeks and it took almost a minute for her to recover her composure. Then she rose and pointing at the chancellor, said in a shrill voice:

"Take him away—back to Berlin quick or I shall forget myself and kill him!"

ARE NOT SLAVES OF FASHION

In China a Man Can Dress as He Pleases Without Attracting Attention.

The fashions in Suchien, Kiangsu province, have a variety of such extent that every man can dress according to his individual choice and still be in correct taste and without attracting special attention from anybody else.

In other words, the styles this year are of personal ideals, according to a correspondent of the British China Daily Herald.

He says that every man wears what is right in his own eyes, and there are few if any, to ridicule. A panama hat goes jauntily down the street, closely followed by a fur-covered, brim hat; felt hats of scarlet and verdigris green come along with grays and browns that do the better credit for unique invention. These, with the Eskimo top capes, a few derby hats and the smart military uniforms, give the streets a plurality which was unknown in the monotonous china blue of former years.

Among the notices posted on the city gate is a fashion plate that has been exhibited for weeks. It displays two or three of the typical "western suits"—the swallow-tailed and the low-front frock for evening wear—street garb of European and American style, and many other varieties. There one also finds the plaited skirts recommended for the women, and close by them is the proud silk or stovepipe hat of felt, which has its special corner with other headgear.

German Emperor Ford of Theater, Emperor William of Germany shows his belief in the system of national theaters by contributing lavishly toward their support. As king of Prussia, William II. is the owner of the Konigliche Schauspieler, of which there are six—three in Berlin and one each at Wiesbaden, Cassel and Hanover. The Prussian ministry of the interior sets aside yearly $625,000 for the royal theaters in Berlin alone, which sum is made up to $737,500 out of the privy-purse. Even so, however, there is generally an annual deficit of above $75,000, and this the emperor makes good as well. His imperial majesty takes most interest in the Berlin opera house, which is but a stone's throw from the castle, so that he can easily run in and conduct rehearsals. It is entirely owing to his efforts that the productions here have attained their present pitch of perfection in everything that concerns mounting.

Value of Child.

The case of Jones vs. Central of Georgia railroad company before the Supreme court of Georgia was brought by a parent for damages for the death of a child two years ten months and twenty days old, alleged to be a "precocious child, capable of and did run errands for the petitioner, was strong and robust, with unusual physical powers for a child of his age, and did render service to petitioner worth $5 a month." The court holds as a matter of law that the child thus described was not so incapable of performing such valuable services that a defendant corporation would not be liable in damages for the homicide of such child if it be shown on the trial that the killing was through negligence and not justifiable.

All the Same.

"Why do they have to have money to put on a dumb show?" "Why not?" "Doesn't money talk?"

Man Without Arms Now Stenographer Baltimore.—Though both arms were severed within three inches of the shoulder, six years ago, David T. Jones of this city has mastered stenography. With the aid of rubber bands to fasten a pencil or penholder to the right arm he is able to write. Jones, who is thirty years old, was injured so severely that amputation of both arms was necessary while he was working on a steel structure. In reading, Jones' method appears somewhat laborious, for he uses his tongue to turn the pages.

GEORGE L. BICKFORD PARDONED.

North Dakota's Former Treasurer Pardoned By State Board. Bismarck, N. D.—George L. Bickford, former state treasurer, who was convicted of embezzlement of state funds, was pardoned by the State Board. He faced a sentence of from one to three years in the penitentiary, but the pardon was granted before he began to serve the sentence. At one time the total of his alleged embezzlement amounted to $60,000, but most of this amount was made good.

HOG PRICES GO LOWER.

Washington.—Farm prices for beef cattle advanced more than 3 per cent, but average quotations for hogs and sheep were lower on April 15 than on that date in 1913, according to figures prepared by the Department of Agriculture. Cattle prices for April, 1914, were $6.29 a hundred, an advance of 21c. In Michigan, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas there was no change in cattle prices from 1913 quotations, and in Wisconsin there was a decrease of 30c a hundred pounds.

State averages of prices for beef cattle showed greater variation than hog quotations. April's lowest averages were in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi, $4.30, $4.50 and $4.40, respectively, compared with $8.50 in Rhode Island, $7.00 in New Hampshire and $7.50 in New Jersey, the highest.

Other state averages were: Pennsylvania and Iowa, $7.40; Maryland, $7.20; Ohio and Kansas, $7.10; Maine, Indiana, Illinois and Nebraska, $7.00; Massachusetts, Missouri, Wyoming and Colorado, $6.90; Nevada, Washington and California, $6.80; Oregon, $6.70; Connecticut, West Virginia and South Dakota, $6.60; New Mexico and Idaho, $6.50; Delaware, Michigan and Kentucky, $6.40; Virginia and Montana, $6.30; Arizona, $6.20; Oklahoma and Utah, $6.10, and Minnesota, $6.00. In other states the price averaged below $6.00.

The average hog price to producers on April 15 was $7.80 a hundred, 14c less than that on that date last year. In all the important hog-producing states from Ohio to Kansas the decline was from 30c to 40c, but in some of the New England states and in practically all the South except Texas and Oklahoma, the prices were higher than a year ago.

Methods to Prevent Pestilences Hopelessly Out of Date.

WORK FOR THE MEDICAL MEN

Sanitation and Not Running Down of Banditti Will Be Task for U. S. If It Intervenes and Occupies Distracted Country.

Washington.—"It will cost a billion dollars to clean up Mexico," said a noted sanitary expert here. He referred to the medieval condition of the Mexican cities regarding measures for the prevention of pestilences. This work of sanitation and not the running down of banditti is the great task the United States will undertake if it intervenes in Mexico and occupies that distracted country.

But just now the medical men here are not directly concerned with the problem of rendering all Mexico a country of healthy, modern cities. They are bending every effort to assure the freedom from sickness of the thousands of boys in khaki already in the tierras calientes, or hot coast lands, and the tens of thousands who may soon land there.

Nothing could illustrate better the necessity of proper medical staffs in the field than recent reports of conditions in the Mexican federal army. The Mexican army has no medical corps that deserves the name. After a recent battle with the rebels the wounded who could not stand were piled in a heap and left to die. Those who could stand were crowded on a train bound for Mexico City. Their wounds were untreated and putrefaction set in. The poor wretches had not even water. Those complaining of their condition were taken to the doors of the coaches by the guards aboard the train and thrown off, some rolling underneath the wheels. Only the few who reached hospitals in Mexico City had a chance to survive.

The American surgeons and Red Cross workers on the field of battle, as in the fighting at Vera Cruz, treat friend and foe alike. But even before the wounded become their care, army medical men find plenty to do.

Sanitary work has really only been learned since the time of the Spanish-American war. It used to be axiomatic that disease killed more than bullets in a war. This was strikingly true of 1893.

Two years ago 18,000 American troops were encamped several months at San Antonio, Tex. There was only one case of typhoid and not a single death from that cause. In 1898, 11,000 were in camp at Jacksonville, Fla., for about the same length of time and under similar conditions. There were 8,693 cases of typhoid, and 248 poor fellows died. Nothing could better illustrate army progress in preventing disease.

The Mexicans in Vera Cruz who were familiar with conditions in their own fighting force marveled at the preparations the American troops made to war upon disease. The trim, active surgeons, the long lines of mules and wagons, the complete equipment were somewhat of a revelation. Still more did they marvel when the soldiers were put to work carting muck from the streets and straightening up in the first days of the occupation.

Each army division, which is made up of four brigades, will have four field hospitals. In each hospital are 108 beds. In the rear of the field hospitals, supposing an advance movement, will be an evacuation hospital, which will hold twice as many beds as a field hospital. Behind the evacuation hospital, fifty or one hundred miles, depending on the position, will be a base hospital.

There are five surgeons assigned to each field hospital, three to each ambulance corps, four medical officers and twenty-two members of a hospital corps to each regiment and a chief surgeon and a chief sanitary inspector to each division.

Surgeon General William C. Gorgas believes that the work of preparing the army for the field has been so effectively done that there will be little danger to the soldiers' health.

If the army were mobilized to occupy the whole of Mexico it would consist of some 120,000 regulars and twice as many volunteers. The regulars, excepting the recruits, would average one to three years of experience, which has taught them how to take care of themselves in the field.

The volunteers would not be without experience either. Many would be Spanish war veterans and others would have learned the proper sanitary measures from maneuver camps.

The responsibilities of the army sanitary officer are great. It is his duty to see that there is an adequate filtering will not do and water must be boiled. Besides water, the sanitary officer must see that there is proper disposal of sewage, that all waste food is promptly destroyed, that mosquito nettings are always used by everybody wherever there are any mosquitos, that stable manure—the common breeding ground of flies—is never allowed to accumulate, but is promptly burned, that clothes and bedding are exposed to the direct rays of the sun at frequent intervals, that care is taken not to permit the troops to eat unseasoned fruit or anything else which is liable to be infected, and generally that the rules of healthy living are observed by everybody.

Yellow fever, tropical malaria, Mexican typhus, typhoid and dysentery are the diseases most to be expected in a Mexican campaign. To combat the first named Surgeon General Gorgas already has sent down three medical officers trained under him at Panama. There they are in command of the experienced, yellow fever expert, Colonel Henry P. Birmingham. Outside of Vera Cruz yellow fever will probably not be encountered.

In case of extended operations in Mexico Major General Leonard Wood would be in command. He entered the service as a medical man. "The Fighting Doctor," as he is dubbed, can be relied upon to pay special attention to sanitation.

If the United States were to take over that billion dollar sanitary campaign in Mexico, Dr. Rupert Blue, surgeon general of the United States public health and marine hospital service, would undoubtedly figure. His corps rushes to any part of the United States where a dangerous epidemic breaks out. He is the man who stamped out bubonic plague in San Francisco by dyeing rats vermilion and yellow and green and by these brilliant messengers tracing the spread of the Asiatic scourge about the city.

TWO DEAD IN PISTOL DUEL

Two Kentucky Youths Quarrel Over Divorced Woman and Kill Each Other.

Louisville, Ky.—Quarrelling over Mrs. Daisy Adams, divorcee, with whom both were infatuated, Hubbard Minard, seventeen, son of J. B. Minard, county attorney of Leslie county, and Joseph Hensley, aged eighteen, member of another prominent Leslie county family, fought a pistol duel on Coons creek, four miles from Hyden, and killed each other. Minard accompanied Mrs. Adams to a neighborhood gathering, when, according to report, he was met by Hensley, a quarrel ensued and both drew revolvers with tragic result.

IN SEPARATE WAISTS

MOST PICTURESQUE STYLES ARE OFFERED.

Essentially Feminine, and the Materials of Which They May Be Made Are Practically Innumerable.—The Kimono Shoulder.

By MARY DEAN.

Separate waists are a feature of the smart wardrobe this season—not the shirtwaist type, but a picturesque blouse. Not even the plainest and most severe models could possibly be called shirtwaists, for they have no semblance whatever to the masculine style of chest, but rather go to the other extreme, and are very feminine.

The materials used for their development are almost innumerable—cottons, silks and linens sharing alike in popularity; but the soft sheer and clinging weaves are given the preference. Printed and embroidered figured goods, both in silk and cotton, are lovely when combined with plain fabrics, the plain material usually forming the vest and collar and cuffs. The popularity and desirability of the crepe weaves of silk and cotton are too well established to dwell upon. The fact that cottons of this class do not require ironing, places them at the top of the list of materials for warm weather wear.

Linens are more used for blouses this season than they have been for a long time. The soft, fine French weaves are the ones selected, and they are charming in the vivid colorings now in vogue. Smart high rolling collars of the same weave of white linen usually complete blouses of this style, which are especially intended for street and business wear.

Even for these linen waists, which as waists go today are of rather severe type, the V neck and three-quarter length sleeves hold good. This year Mrs. Grundy has either forgotten to speak or her warnings of propriety are not heeded, for the most conserva-

GRACEFUL NEGLIGEE

This is a pretty negligee combining neatness, daintiness and grace. The blouse portion was of cream shadow lace over cream net. The revers and sleeves are finished with lace edging and a little double ruche of lace is held at the back of the neck by a strand of pale blue and pink chiffon roses. These same little flowers combined with green silk cord are used as frogs across the front and catch up the sleeves. The skirt portion is of plaited pink crepe de chine. The girdle of pink satin ribbon is looped in a bow at the front.

Pearl Rose.

A single flower worn at the waist proved such an attractive fancy that in London and Paris designers have perpetuated the dainty custom by introducing a jewel rose. A rose made of pearls is very pretty indeed, and, though the material is strange, the effect is good. It is a big blossom and the pearls are used in different sizes and tints.

MEDICI COLLAR

No costume is complete without some sort of collar and the dress, the blouse or the coat, be it ever so simple, is bare looking enough as far as style goes, if this accessory is omitted. These collars may be bought in the shops ready made and ready wired, or may be put together quickly from pieces of lace, or organdie, of batiste machine embroidery and fitted into a band to be basted to the garment. Here is one in the flaring Medici effect that frames the face becomingly and can be wired with collar wires or with fine millinery wires.

Even dressers dare this style of blouse for wear on all occasions.

A charming little linen blouse is shown in the new shade of tango red, the linen being of the sheerest weave, and it is made perfectly plain, save for groups of tiny pintucks across the shoulders, which gave the necessary fullness to the blouse.

There is a high standing Medici collar, vest and turnback cuffs of sheer white linen, with homstitched edges. A black velvet ribbon encircled the neck and is tied in a bowknot below the V opening.

Most attractive little organdie blouses are also made upon the same lines, and come in all the delicate tints—pink, blue, lavender and green; and they all have collar and cuffs of white, with homstitched or picot edges.

Of course, the kimono shoulder is the rule, whether the whole sleeve is cut in one with the waist, or whether the shoulder is draped and a short square sleeve is set in.

Chenille Marquisette.

WEAR A KISS-ME-QUICK CURL

Any Kind of Fluffiness That May Be Desired, Is the Order of the Day.

"And every tendril of her hair is curled about my heart," sang the poet, but if the tendrils today curl about men's hearts there must be a great many hearts, for it is a season of curls—temple curls, cheek curls, little bobbing curls at the nape of the neck, and alluring little ringlets fluffing out under the hat brim.

First in favor are the flat stiff curls that now adorn the cheek or the temple of the up-to-date woman. These curls can be made with care—and brilliantine—from one's own hair, but the hairdressers who are, of course, up to the minute in such affairs, are supplying these curls in any shade, and these false ones have the advantage of having a sort of mullage on one side so they can be patted down—like a false mustache, and these are always in one place, no matter how hard the wind may blow!

The popularity of the high coiffure, sweeping away from the brow, has in the natural sequence of events brought about the temple curls, for there are but few women who have a forehead sufficiently low and beautiful to wear their hair in this fashion.

These temple curls are no more than fluffy little curls that tumble with seeming abandon down over the eyes, softening the lines and lending a delightful girlish effect to the coiffure even of the older woman.

The return of the knot high on the head is in the same way responsible for the curls at the nape of the neck. These are held in place by the new wide combs which are set at an angle at the back, breaking the line of the hair from the throat to the high knot.

DAMAGED STATUES IN BERLIN

Retired French Army Officer Broke Marble From "Sieges Allee" Monuments.

Berlin.—Serious acts of vandalism have been perpetrated in the famous "Sieges Allee" here. Four statues were badly damaged and the beaks of several of the marble eagles which form the arms of the benches in the "Allee" were found to have been broken off.

A man who, at about the time of the outrage, was seen to step over the chain surrounding one of the statues was arrested in connection with the affair, and in his pockets were found a stone of considerable size and a strong knife.

The prisoner gave his name as Antoine Astier, a pensioned staff surgeon of the French marine. His age is given as forty-one.

The statues which Astier damaged were those of Frederick the Great, the Elector Joachim Friedrich, the Elector Joachim II and Margrave Heinrich II. Astier claims to possess a Raphael and pure water supply. All divisions which go to the front will be equipped with the Darnell filter invented by Major Carl R. Darnell of the medical corps, who is now in the Philippine Islands. In many places in Mexico

$295 KISS ENDS ROMANCE

Placing That Price on Carcase, New York Justice Denies Rejected Sultor's Demands.

New York.—A shattered romance had its termination in the Sixth district municipal court, Brooklyn, when Joseph A. Dunn of 409 Ashford street, lost an action against Miss Beatrice Probst of 92 St. Mark's place for $295. He places that value on the presents he gave her in his courtship of one year. The action followed her alleged refusal to become Mrs. Dunn, and Justice Alexander Rosenthal held that one kiss from the girl was ample payment for the presents.

Mr. Dunn said that he asked the young woman to be his wife. When she refused he asked for the return of his presents, and there was a second refusal.

Mr. Dunn said he derived much pleasure from the company of Miss

The rains again defeated the Carrizozo-Fort Stanton baseball game last Sunday, but the players and the fans took to it very kindly. Even the sport enthusiasts believe with the Hoosier Poet that "when it rains I'm for rain." Really, folks, there isn't much use to kick against the pricks.

Well, Elfege Baca, who wants to be a United States senator, has become mixed up in a $25,000 libel suit with Eduardo Otero, who, like wise has become involved in a libel suit with Baca for a like amount. And Judge Mann, an Andrews admirer, is counsel for Otero, while the patient "Bull" is quietly boring for oil—and the rains continue to make glad the stockmen of the great Sunshine State.

It might not be a bad idea for the Albuquerque Journal to slip a tip to its Santa Fe correspondent that there will be no state senators elected this fall. As much as the people of Santa Fe county may want Hon. Chas. Catron to represent them in the senate next January, it is nearly a cinch he cannot do it unless Senator Pankey has resigned or refuses to act. And, likewise, there will probably be no opposition to Senator Mabry serving out his term of office. Wake up, Paul.

J. Wight Giddings, the erstwhile republican editor of the progressive New Mexican, which position he passed up a few months ago for reasons known to a number of people, is mentioned as a possible candidate for the house on the republican ticket in Santa Fe county this fall. The republicans of that representative district could depend upon it that, if elected, Mr. Giddings would be a wide-awake representative of his constituency's interests. The Outlook would like to see Mr. Giddings' name on the republican ticket there this fall. He would be elected, and he would reflect credit on the new house of representatives.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. McKeon entertained in honor of their guest, Mrs. Weil of El Paso, Wednesday evening. Music for the occasion being furnished by the Officers, Club Orchestra. All those present report a very pleasant evening.

Mr. Belk, manager of the Mesalero baseball team came down Saturday afternoon for a game with Fort Stanton Sunday afternoon, and while the Indians looked good to quite a number of our boys before the game, the Stanton boys seemed to have on their batting clothes and as the score of 24-5 in favor of the Stanton team had them out classed. Since the game a few of the very enthusiastic fans have been trying to figure out how it happened and have about reached the conclusion that Manager Lech is there with the goods. Mr. Lech expects to take the Fort Stanton team to Mesalero for a game with the Indians Sunday July 19th and is trying to arrange for a game with Cloudercroft while on this trip. Winning the game Sunday seems to have put a little ginger into our team and we hope to repeat last Sunday's performance. Quite a number of our most enthusiastic fans are arranging to accompany the team and give them the necessary backing.

BANK YOUR MONEY

Mary, my good, honest men have worked hard and piled up a little fortune, and then all at once LOST all they had by just ONE foolish investment.

The following appeared recently in the newspapers about a very prominent man who died:

"Despite his marvelous financial career in and around Chicago, which caused him at one time to be rated as a millionaire, he died a BANKRUPT. Most of his great fortune melted in disastrous speculations."

IN NEED OF ITS TEACHINGS

Able Seaman Had Not Read "Little Book,"—But Evidently It Might Have Done Him Good.

The chaplain of one of our cruisers had a knack of presenting small Bibles, neatly tied in a parcel, to men on the upper deck. That it contained a Bible he carefully refrained from mentioning, merely saying, "Here is a little book you'll like." He gave one to Able Seaman Spikes. One day, a week later, he approached Spikes as the latter was smoking on the upper deck. "How do you like the little book, Spikes?" Spikes' mind flew to his ditty-box, in which the little parcel, still intact, reposed. He slowly removed his pipe. "Very interesting, sir—very." "Glad to hear that you have started reading it," said the parson. "Started, sir? Why, I've finished it (Spikes had no idea what the book was); don't take me long to read a book, sir, especially a good book. But there, sir, it ended like all the others—got married and lived happy ever after."

SCALY PSORIASIS ON LIMBS

Troop H, 6th U. S. Cavalry, Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis.—"I was troubled with psoriasis for nearly two years. Portions of my arms and limbs were affected mostly with it. It appeared in scaly form, breaking out in very small dots and gradually grew larger and white scales formed when about the size of an ordinary match-head. The looks of it was horrible, which made it very unpleasant for me. It itched a little at times. "I tried several treatments which cured me for a month, but it always broke out again. One day a friend saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper and I sent for a sample. They helped me, so I purchased two more boxes of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap and they completely cured me. It took three months for Cuticura Soap and Ointment to complete my cure." (Signed) Walter Mahony, Oct. 22, 1912. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin-Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Mexico.

"These Mexicans, for all their boasted Spanish politeness, are a laugh. Why, a New York subway guard could give a Mexican cards and spades in the politeness game and beat him hands down." The speaker was Yngve Lungstrom, the noted railway engineer of Denver. He continued: "In a block once in the traffic of the City of Mexico my cabby shrieked at the man ahead of us: "I had a beard like yours once, but when I found what it made me look like, Santa Maria, I cut it off." "Yes," answered the other cabby, "and I had a face like yours once, and when I found I couldn't cut it off, by the holy St. Christopher, I raised a beard."

Gave Him the Idea.

The sweet young thing sat in the stern of the boat, unmindful of the agonies of the inexperienced oarsman, who tugged and blistered himself at the paddles. "What do you suppose we'll have for supper in camp?" she mused sweetly. "Floating island, I think," panted the young man grimly. "That same island has passed me, going up stream, three times since I've been trying to make it to the landing."

Well Posted.

Maid—Where shall I put this copy of "Pilgrim's Progress?" Young Bride (arranging her library)—Why, that goes with the books on travel.

The reputation of many a man is so bad that it might be a good thing for him to lose it entirely.

Magicians Sit Down to Dinner.

The Magicians' club, which is composed of all the most celebrated trick-makers on the English stage, recently held its first annual dinner, followed by an entertainment, at the Hotel Cecil in London. It was a marvellous evening. The dinner itself was shrouded with magic effects difficult of discernment, but one got an impression of new potatoes that turned into forks, and of waiters folding up the thick soup and putting it neatly into their breast pockets. After dinner wonder grew. After speeches real journalists conjured with words, and then Mr. S. C. Maurice dazzled one with kaleidoscopic card-turns, a trio sang a quartette, the Zomahs told the secrets of all the watches and other concealed articles in the room, and then Mr. Houdini—Mr. Houdini took a bag and took an egg, and smiled, and the world seemed a simple understandable place. When Mr. Houdini had finished with the bag and the egg, the solid ground had faded beneath one's feet.

No Insult.

Some time back, when Sir Herbert Tree was taking the waters at Marienbad he was accosted by a perfect stranger. "Begging your pardon, sir," said the latter, "but aren't you Beerbohm Tree, the actor?" "No, certainly not," replied Sir Herbert unblushingly. "I'm very sorry," said the other, "but I thought you were. You look so much like the pictures I have seen of him."

I Can assure you that you are mistaken,

"Well, I didn't mean to insult you, sir," observed the stranger, "but I did think you looked like him." If you are going to kick at all it is perhaps just as well to do it with both feet. As a general rule when a man marries his stenographer he ceases to dictate to her.

RICH MAN'S PEARL

By J. S. WOODHOUSE.

Like a golden link to bind in happy union the democratic and aristocratic extremes of the social chain, the little one-story yellow cottage of Magnus Hertz occupied a geographically harmonious position between the minor and major keys of a thriving municipal life.

From under this modest little roof a man—because of his broad shoulders, his long, lank body, and his sinewy arms—went down the hill, pierced the smoky counterpane that almost hid the lowlands, and worked among the giant engines where there was heat and dirt and foul air.

And the woman, because of her natural charms of beauty and grace of manner, went up the hill to mingle with those of the social set.

They had married because of an ardent love for each other, but gold is a rare metal that cannot resist a strain with the tenacity of the more vulgar iron or steel or brass, and the opposite weights were beginning to pull hard on this fragile link of love.

Her intercourse with the more genteel had served to magnify in her eyes the crudity of her husband's manners, and by gentle remonstrances at first she had undertaken to correct them.

Her esthetic sense had developed to the point that it grated harshly on her nerves to see him drink his soup from the bowl.

In the beginning she had tried to induce him to go with her into this newly discovered world. But he just laughed, lighted his corn-cob pipe, and sat contentedly down by the fire after a day of hard toil to enjoy a pleasant relaxation.

It required a most remarkable incident to arrest the development of this rapidly widening domestic breach.

The catastrophe was precipitated by her vanity, coupled with a pronounced conceit.

The pretty compliments, the kind attentions, and the suggestions of wealth due such beauty, continuously showered upon her by men superior to her husband in both income and intellect, were attributed by her to no ulterior motives, but accepted with an audacious conviction that they were the truth.

She had nourished her vanity so far that she believed the diamond brooch, proposed by an ardent admirer as an enhancement to the beauty of her neck, might conscientiously be accepted by her without moral turpitude.

But one thing withheld the too eager hand from this and many other proffered gifts—the jealousy of her husband; a sentiment, she convinced herself, due only to his ignorance.

It must be conceded that Mrs. Hertz, regardless of the many indiscretions of which she might be guilty, was—when the question resolved itself to the one-element measure adopted by moralists today—virtuous.

But to sacrifice ambition within one's grasp to gratify the shortcomings of another is a concession that would wear on nerves even less feminine than those of Mrs. Hertz, and accordingly she soon found herself trying to evolve a method of harmonizing the difficulty that oppressed her on one side, and the temptation that lured her on the other.

How to accept from some admirer the wealth that would buy the dresses and jewels she would have and how to make her husband gracefully accept the situation was a problem that would readily have confounded a less pretentious person.

Even she might have been compelled to bow beneath the weight of this problem had there not crossed her social horizon Horace Duval, who, as a distinguished visitor from the East, attracted considerable feminine attention, but who chose in turn to center his on the beaming Mrs. Hertz.

Ostensibly he was an importer of African furs and very wealthy, but with a ripening acquaintance he confided to Mrs. Hertz that in reality he was an eastern fisher of pearls. To her curious eyes he exhibited some of the most beautiful specimens upon which she had ever looked.

One of exceptional size and beauty which appealed to her feminine fancy he frankly admitted was worth one thousand dollars. It became between them quite the chief topic of conversation, largely because a woman loves to reveal in a secret.

It was at Mrs. Lancaster's ball his attentions reached the height of their manifestations, and he suggested he would love to shower jewels upon a woman of such magnificent beauty.

So while Magnus Hertz sat in his little cottage home trying to figure how he could make his meager income cover his rapidly increasing expenses, Horace Duval whispered in the wife's ear that he would gladly give her the big pearl if she feared not the husband's scruples.

That peculiar machination of intellect that formulates intricate plans within the twinkling of an eye and has been charged by some with being the devil himself, here entered with alacrity the woman's mind, and she accepted the gift that was pressed firmly into her hand, while the giver extracted permission to call at her home the next afternoon.

It was an ingenious scheme that had entered the pretty head of this ambitious young woman!

It was with mingled feelings of astonishment, gratification and hope that Magnus Hertz the next evening saw his wife bring to the table a steaming tureen of oyster soup. And seeing his wife's face beam with a patronizing smile, he accepted this as an offering of peace and notice that hostilities had ceased.

"I was reading in the paper some time ago," she naively suggested, "of a man who found in his oyster soup a pearl worth several hundred dollars. Wouldn't it be fine if we could have such good fortune?"

"No such luck for us," was the frank opinion expressed between two spoonfuls of soup.

"Ah, but think," she urged, "what it would mean! You could take a vacation. You haven't had a day off excepting Sunday for five years."

In a meditative way he slowly skimmed the crackers from the surface and chewed them with a deliberation that extracted every flavor of the soup for the gratification of his taste, unconscious of the fortune that might lay in the dregs. Mentally she had counted the spoonfuls. He had eaten 12 already. It seemed there might be a thousand more in the bowl!

"And then," she continued, "I might have some new dresses and an opera cloak."

He commenced to eat faster while she chattered on in an incoherent way, scarcely knowing what she said.

Then, suddenly, when but a few spoonfuls remained in the bottom, he thought of an incident at the shops, which he deliberately stopped to relate. It was something about the work of the men.

She lost her self-restraint and interrupted him abruptly:

"There's plenty more soup, Magnus, when you've finished that."

Before she could realize the effect of her words he had quickly grasped the bowl with a movement of gratification, raised it to his lips, and downed the rest with a single gulp.

Anxiously she looked into his face, confidently awaiting some exclamation of wonder or surprise. He interpreted the strange inquiry of her eyes as a rebuke for his greed, and blurted:

"Well, you said there was more, didn't you?"

She sank in a heap upon her chair. The glutton had swallowed the pearl!

Through her dizzy brain rushed the mocking recollection that she had, confident of her scheme's success, already ordered the desired new dresses and opera coat.

Then came the conviction that her husband's uncouth manners were the cause of her failure, and, fearing to tell the truth, she rose in haughty indignation, resolved to have revenge in a trade on his vulgarity.

"Such manners—"

Her sentence was cut short by a loud knock at the door, one that waited for no answer, and husband and wife turned suddenly to look into the faces of several officers.

"I beg your pardon," cynically explained the leader, "but a notorious pearl thief, masquerading under the name of Horace Duval, whom we tracked as the thief of the rare Cargan collection, has been arrested and has confessed. He has returned all the jewels but one pearl, the finest of them all, which he says he gave to Mrs. Hertz. If you will kindly return it we will trouble you no further."

Color rushed suddenly into the woman's face. Now the husband's jealousy and ire rose in turn. The storm so suddenly calmed in her now raged in his breast, but it was stayed by her prompt reply:

"I have no such pearl."

"You will pardon us for seeming to doubt your word, madam, but our instructions are to make a thorough search."

The officers departed with apologies, after leaving a wild confusion of furniture, rugs, linen and pictures. In the middle of it all, on the parlor floor, sat Mrs. Hertz, humiliated and dazed.

She was first startled to consciousness when her husband, who posed himself before her with arms akimbo, exclaimed:

"I have a feeling within me—"

"Oh, Magnus," she shrieked as she jumped to her feet and looked wildly into his face. "What is it? What—?"

"I say," repeated the husband, "I have a feeling within me that, after this experience, the airs of these society stragglers will not so belittle your husband's manners."

"You're right, Magnus," she sighed with relief, as she wound her arms about his neck and let her head sink on the shoulder of his rough working shirt. "There is more true value in you than in any man who eats his soup with a spoon!"

SANDWICHES THAT ARE FINE

With a Little Preparation They May Be Made Choice Morsels Fit for Any Afternoon Tea.

An ingenious woman who prides herself on her sandwiches bakes the bread in round tin cans from which she has removed vegetables. When she wants an especially small and dainty sandwich she uses large-sized baking powder cans. The slices from the round loaves make dainty sandwiches.

To make perfumed butter sandwiches, both the bread and butter must be scented. The butter pats, wrapped in thin cheesecloth, or the thinnest of cotton, are put in a china bowl lined with blossoms of flowers. More blossoms are then heaped over the butter. Then the cover is put on securely, that it may be airtight, and the bowl is put in a cool place. The loaves of bread are also treated in the same fashion.

Take crisp new potatoes, slice evenly, and spread over them finely minced celery and mayonnaise dressing. Place this mixture between triangles of homemade bread.

Prepare a French dressing and dip into it slices of cucumber peeled. Lay these between slices of thin white bread, buttered. Prepare these sandwiches only a short while before they are to be eaten or they will become soggy.

A sweet pepper sandwich is a delicate bit to serve for luncheon, and is made by spreading between slices of bread a filling made of peppers and Neuchatel or cream cheese. Chop the peppers very fine and mix them with cheese and a few drops of olive oil or with a little rich sweet cream. Use in the proportion of one-third pepper to two-thirds cheese.

Use thin slices of wheat bread, buttered, cut in heart shape. Between each two slices place a layer of Neuchatel cheese mixed to a paste with equal quantities of cream and salad dressing, and cover with chopped olives.

Take the left-over bit of potato salad, add to it some minced cold boiled ham, and spread it between slices of buttered bread.

Lettuces with a layer of horseradish on either side and placed on well buttered bread makes an excellent sandwich.

To Destroy Ants.

The warm, damp days always bring ants. The only way to get rid of these insects is to destroy their nests. But it is often difficult to locate them. A good plan is to place little mounds of coarse ground sugar around. The ants will each take up a grain and make their nest with it, so should be watched. When the nest is found, drench it with kerosene or a strong solution of carbolic acid. Ants dislike the smell of camphor. This scattered around will keep them away, but as they are usually around food, camphor is scarcely practical, because of its strong odor, which the foods may absorb. In such a case try sprinkling with red pepper.

Angel Toast.

A delicious and wholesome food for the children and to serve with afternoon tea is angel toast. Here is a recipe:

Cut bread into thin slices, butter evenly and well and cover plentifully with sugar (brown sugar being preferable). Toast until brown in a medium oven. The top will be covered with a delicious sort of caramel or candy. This is nice for the children's tea.

When Roasting Fowl.

In roasting any bird place the breast in the pan first when put in the oven: By so doing the juice will run out of the back into the breast, making it more juicy instead of the juices from the white meat settling in the backbone, as happens when a bird is placed back down in the pan.

When Packing Linen.

When putting linen articles away for any length of time, to prevent them turning yellow, rinse until all the starch is removed, then dry and fold them away in blue paper. This also prevents the linen from cracking.

About Scrubbing Brushes.

When finished with your scrubbing brushes, if they are put to dry with the bristles downward, they will last twice as long. When turned the other way, the water soaks into the wood and rots the bristles.

Separating Honey.

To obtain strained honey by separating the honey from the wax as it comes in the frame, place the frame in a bowl in the oven just warm enough to melt the honey and wax; then remove the frame and let the honey stand until cold, when the wax may be skimmed off the top without any trouble.

Even when a girl loves a man for his money she is too modest to mention it.

IDEAS FOR HOME BUILDERS

WM. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1221 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

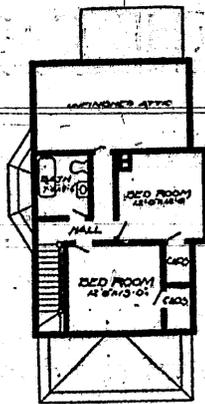

The design here illustrated shows a house that costs very little more to build than a one-story cottage. There are only two bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs, besides a big storeroom; while the downstairs is perfectly arranged for comfort and convenience.

There is a great advantage in having the chimney in the center of the house. You never have trouble with a roof leaking around a chimney that is built through the peak, but the amount of expressive profanity wasted on chimneys near the eaves is tremendous. When the water races down the roof, it seems to prefer an outlet around the chimney. It runs down towards the ground easier than it does at the eaves; at least a great many men feel that way at times.

Theoretically it is easy to steer the water around the chimney; but theory don't always cover the whole question. Sometimes snow banks up against the chimney, which melts a little bit every day, and at night freezes into an ice bank, and this changes the situation around the chimney considerably. After a while by the back, which may extend up three or four inches above the window sill without being conspicuous from the outside. It depends, of course, a good deal on the window seat itself and the way in which it is made.

As a general thing it is better to have the whole thing movable.

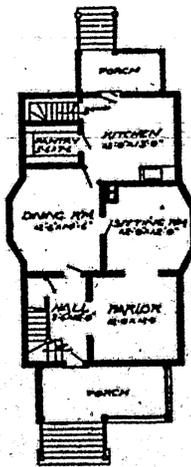

Second Floor Plan.

cheap frame is made to fit the window, and this frame is seated with loose cushions. The ends and back are covered with tufted material to match the cushions. This tufting should reach up the back and turn over on the window side and extend the rains come, sometimes in a hurry; and before the ice bank has time to get out of the way, somebody down below gets a bath and some expensive decorations are spoiled. It is not every house plan that will permit placing the chimney in the peak of the roof, but that style of plan is to be preferred when all other things are right for it.

This is not a large house; it is 26 feet wide and 32 feet long, exclusive of porches; and it is supposed to stand out alone where it gets light and air on every side so the sun may penetrate into every corner.

There is an opportunity to fit up a very cozy sitting room, which may be used separately or in connection with the parlor, as desired. A window seat to fit in the bay, reaching clear across the three windows, looks well, and, if properly made, is very comfortable. Windows seats are used in the winter more than in summer; and they should be built accordingly. There is more or less draft or at least cold air coming in around a window in the winter. For this reason the window seat should be protected down as far as the window stool. The ends of the window seat may be higher than the sides, but not necessarily so, as both shape and design must conform to the other furniture in the room to a certain extent. It is more difficult to fit the tufted covering when the ends are higher than the sides, but it often gives the finished work a much better appearance.

The front of the window seat is covered with material the same as the cushions and back, and it may be put on smooth or plaited. A smooth finish is best because it does not collect dust; often, however, the plaited form looks better.

Sometimes drawers for magazines and books are considered in the covering. Sometimes the seat is made to lift up. There are as many styles in window seats as in any other articles of furniture; but they are different from the fact that each one is made to fit a certain niche where it is expected to remain.

A window seat is never complete without plenty of pillows. The square down pillows with fancy covers that are seen in every home, are not only comfortable, but highly decorative. Some of these pillows are made too nice to use, which is a great mistake. It is much better to have washable covers that may be easily removed. Of course every woman likes to have something of this kind as neat and elaborate as possible; but, as a general thing, pillows should be made to use as well as to look at.

A seat big enough to fit this window should have seven or eight pillows piled up at the ends, and scattered along the side on top of the tufted back. Some seats are made with a wide rail on top of the back, especially to hold pillows. In such cases the tufting should be made in different parts, with a division at each corner and a cord run along to mark the upper corner borders.

This little house may be built, under favorable circumstances, for about $1,500, without heating apparatus or plumbing.

PITIALE CONDITION OF ARNOLD HAUSER

Arnold Hauser, Former Cardinal Star.

Arnold Hauser, the crack Cardinal shortstop, is confined in a private sanitarium at Chicago, and not much hope is held out for his recovery. He has been afflicted with religious mania, and breaks out violently every day or so. When rational he is apparently as well as he ever was, but his physician stated to Manager Huggins that he is much discouraged about his case. Hauser's bad knee, which laid him up for a time, has entirely recovered, and he is perfectly sound physically, but little hope is extended of his getting out of the sanitarium this season, if at all. It is one of the saddest cases in baseball. Hauser's trouble dates from the time when he lost his mother and his baby.

BIG FACTOR IN CUB GAMES

Was Outfielder Is Playing Sensational Game and Batting Hard for Chicago Nationals.

It must make Fred Clarke's heart sore when he picks up the papers each day and reads of the deeds of Tommy Leach. Leach is one of the main cogs in the Cub machine and the sensational batting and all-around work of the midget is causing no end of talk among the fans.

Besides being the leading batter on the Cub team Leach's ability to play center field is helping the Cubs win many games and without his services the Cubs would be a sorry team. All of this is brought to the attention because of the fact that Fred Clarke, the shrewd Pittsburgh leader, thought Tommy was all in and passed the veteran player on to the Cubs at a good price last year. It is a safe bet that Clarke is playing he ever made this deal.

Leach is playing a wonderful game for the Cubs. The fans in the stands, the real critics, are showing their esteem for this player daily. Leach is one of the few Cub idols who is given a hand on nearly all his appearances at the plate.

Strikes Out Twenty Men.

Royce, pitching for Hamilton college, which defeated the University of Rochester by 8 to 3, struck out twenty of the Rochester team.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Chicago Federals as well as the Cubs now have a pitcher named Cheney.

Milton Stock, the youngster playing with the Giants this spring and showing so well, is a Chicago boy.

The Browns will have to look after their honors this year or the Naps will grab the cellar championship.

Manager Frank Chance of the Yankees declares that in Truesdale he has the real find of the season.

Otis Doc Crandall is blazing a wide trail in the Federal league these days. The Doc is now a regular pitcher.

The veteran George Nill, second baseman, has been signed by the Ottawa club, of the Canadian league.

Jerry Denny, the old-time third baseman, is coaching the ball team of the Bridgeport, Conn., high school.

George Hughes appears to be making a hit as manager at Grand Rapids, judging from the newspaper comment.

Ollie Pickering, American league veteran, and former manager of the Paducah club, has signed with Owensboro.

Jack Enzenroth, the former University of Michigan catcher, is showing up well behind the bat for the St. Louis Browns.

James Breton, now a member of the University of Illinois varsity nine, is to join the Chicago Americans at the close of the college year.

American league teams coming to New York used to count on three out of four, but now it's "If we get an even break in New York."

The fans of St. Louis call their new team the Sloufeda, which sounds almost as bad as some of the things they used to call the Cardinals and the Browns.

Jack Graney has a bull terrier named Larry as mascot for the Cleveland club. Larry may be a good dog, but as a mascot his best trick seems to be "playing dead."

ATTENTION TO CHICKS

WARM BROODER AND PROPER RATION ARE ESSENTIAL.

Eggs Should Be From Carefully Selected Stock, Well Fed and Housed to Produce Sturdy Stock—What to Feed.

(By DR. SANBORN, Holden, Mass. Copyright, 1914.)

There is less fuss in rearing of chicks than a few years ago. A warm brooder, some fine litter, cracked grain and grit, with perhaps a mash containing ground grain and animal food, and you should raise 90 per cent of the chicks.

Every chick deserves to be well hatched, of sturdy ancestry and properly reared. The eggs should be from carefully selected stock, well housed and fed, to produce chicks that stand adverse conditions. The hen or incubator should do its part well, as many a slip is made between the laying of the egg and the hatching of the chick.

I prefer the lamp heated brooder to either the hen or the heatless brooder, for while some hens do good brooding and in some seasons you can raise good chicks with the fireless brooder, yet for easy, successful brooding of 50 chicks my preference is for the heated brooder.

The chicks, when dry, are taken from the hen or machine and transferred to the well warmed brooder. I prefer it should be fully as warm under the hover as was the incubator, then, if too hot, the chicks can be spread out into the less warm part of the brooder floor, or if, at any hour the temperature drops the chicks can retire to a warmer place under the hover.

What to Feed Them.

At the start the chicks get cool water to drink and only the food that is in the barn waste is used to cover the brooder floor. Really they need no food, and what they find in the waste is plenty. When a few days old they need light feeding of cracked wheat, good fish or beef scrap (personally I have found nothing better than a good grade of fish scrap) added at eight days of age and finely cracked, dry corn at ten to twelve days. It is important that all chick feed be sound, sweet and clean. Avoid musty corn, scrap that is fit only for fertilizer, and stale drinking water. Unless there is some grit in the barn waste that is used for brooder floor it should be supplied. Chicks need a warm place to retire to when cold, an open room to get out into and exercise, as well as a grass run to range over when two weeks old. Close confinement to hot brooders tends to give leg weakness. As the chicks grow in age the heat of the brooder can be reduced to about 80 degrees. Too many chicks are hatched that are doomed to die because from weak stock or incubated wrongly, but the blame is usually laid on the brooder. Yearling hens make the best of breeders.

VALUABLE HINT FOR FARMER

Droppings From 1,000 Fowls, If Properly Cared For Will Return Profit of $300 Yearly.

The poultryman or farmer can materially add to the profits of his business by properly caring for the droppings of his fowls. For example, it is shown that the droppings from 1,000 fowls if preserved without needless loss are worth at least $300 per annum, and this estimate is based on the assumption that less than half of the droppings, or only 20 pounds per hen per year, can be collected.

According to the Maine station, the droppings should be collected daily, and mixed with substances which will (1) prevent loss of nitrogen, (2) add sufficient potash and phosphoric acid

OVERFLOW FOR BARREL-TANK

Pipe Can Be Removed If Desired and Water Level Changed by Taking Out One of Corks.

Deeming it unnecessary to add an overflow to a barrel section which I had fitted up for a tank and not caring to remove any of the attached pipes, I slipped a piece of rubber tubing over the end of a piece of pipe to make a better-balanced fertilizer, and (3) improve the mechanical condition of the manure so that it can be applied to the land with a manure spreader.

This can be done as follows: To each 30 pounds of the manure add 10 pounds of sawdust, good dried loam, or peat, 16 pounds of acid phosphate, and 8 pounds of kainit. Such a mixture will contain about 1.25 per cent of nitrogen, 4.5 per cent of phosphoric acid, and 2 per cent of potash, which, used at the rate of 2 tons per acre would furnish 50 pound of nitrogen, 185 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 80 pounds of potash, and at the present price of fertilizing ingredients is worth about $10 per ton. The mixture would furnish a well-balanced stable fertilizer, which, although not fine enough to work well in drills, can be successfully applied with a manure spreader. The treated manure should be well sheltered until time to apply to the land—that is, shortly before plowing.

USEFUL TOOL FOR PLANTING

Utah Man Invents Inexpensive Implement Which Can Be Easily and Quickly Manipulated.

The Scientific American in describing a planting implement, invented by N. P. Jensen of Ephraim, Utah, says: The invention has reference more particularly to implements which comprise means for receiving the plant and then setting it into the desired place in the ground. The object is to provide an inexpensive planting implement which can be easily and quickly manipulated, which will set the plant in any desired position in the ground without injury to the plant. This implement is also intended for pressing the soil uniformly about the plant set in the ground.

PRACTICAL NOTES OF HORSE

Heavy Draft Mares Will Grow Colt Every Year—Flaxseed Jelly Will Work Wonders.

The horse has a smaller stomach than the cow.

Heavy draft mares will grow a grade draft colt every year that will sell readily at from $75 to $200 when three years old. These same mares when bred to a light horse will breed colts that will bring from $75 to $100.

A half pint of flaxseed jelly, once or twice a day, added to the ration, will work wonders in a horse's condition. The jelly is made by pouring boiling water on whole flaxseed and allowing it to jelly.

Scratches in horses will never occur when the mud has been allowed to dry and then brushed off without the application of water.

A remedy for scratches is oxide of zinc, one dram; vaseline, one ounce. Never apply water to the legs.

Hay to Cows.

In the morning before they go to pasture, give the cows a good feeding of hay.

so as to make a water-tight fit, and inserted it in the outlet in the manner shown, writes James M. Kane of Doylestown, Pa., in Popular Mechanics. Holes were drilled in the pipe at intervals and plugged with corks. The water can be made to overflow at any height by removing a cork in the pipe at that level. The rubber tubing can be discarded and the pipe threaded to fit into the waste nut at the bottom.

Care of Incubator.

During the warm weather do not allow the incubator to go above 103 degrees, and after the tenth day see that the eggs are well cooled once a day. May is apt to be a dry month in comparison with earlier in the spring, so see to the moisture. Well-incubated chicks are the ones that thrive.

Cattle Scarcity.

A world-wide cattle scarcity exists and if American consumers are to enjoy anything like an adequate supply of the qualified article the domestic market has afforded for 25 years past, it must be produced within the United States.

Why She Was Interested. John D. Wells of the Buffalo News does platform work. Once at Sherwood, N. Y., he was pleased to notice an old lady who never took her eyes from his face. Afterward she said: "I was mighty interested—" "Yes, I was so glad you seemed to be enjoying my lecture." "Oh, sir, it wasn't anything you said, but I was wondering if you were any relation to the Wellases in Jamestown."

But Sister, Didn't Hear It. "He comes up to our house nearly every night." "What is it that is so attractive up there?" "Nothing attractive, he just comes to see my sister."

If a man has a habit of getting hot under the collar he should quit wearing collars.

You will discover that most men are all right, if you only take the trouble to ask them.

WOMAN COULD HARDLY STAND

Because of Terrible Backache. Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I suffered from displacement and inflammation, and had such pains in my sides, and terrible backache so that I could hardly stand. I took six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I can do any amount of work, sleep good, eat good, and don't have a bit of trouble. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman."—Mrs. HARRY FISHER, 1642 Juniata Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Woman's Case. Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had a displacement, bearing down, and backache, until I could hardly stand and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. I give you permission to publish my name and I speak of your Vegetable Compound to many of my friends."—Mrs. ABRIL LAWSON, 126 Lippitt St., Providence, R. I.

Danger Signals to Women are what one physician called backache, headache, nervousness, and the blues. In many cases they are symptoms of some female derangement or an inflammatory, ulcerative condition, which may be overcome by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of American women willingly testify to its virtue.
