COMMUNITY'S FUTURE LIES IN OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL

Andrew McCurdy, principal of the Carrizozo schools, writes most interestingly on the outlook for the coming year, at the same time reviewing some of the work which has been done. He says:

Carrizozo is most decidedly on the map educationally. The school has, within the past term grown wonderfully in efficiency and attendance, and the board of education at its meeting elected a faculty of eight teachers in order to be able to meet the requirements of an augmented attendance and improved curriculum. The spirit of progress which pervades the very atmosphere of New Mexico in general and Carrizozo in particular has found its most genial and profitable atmosphere in school improvements. The community realizes that its future lies in the public school. Business men know that their dollars and cents cannot be better placed than in an educational investment, and with careful diligence every dollar has done its work and Carrizozo has more to show for the money spent than any school in Lincoln county. We mean no insult to the accomplishments of others, but handicapped in ways not dreamed of by the general public this school has finished a year a most genuine success and with added burdens has come out with a substantial fund to begin another year's activities and an enrollment far exceeding all expectations. Pupils who have intended going to the large cities after completing the course in the rural schools of the county have heard what Carrizozo is doing educationally and have given the inevitable answer to the question, "Should I pass through Carrizozo in my search for an education?" There are adequate boarding facilities and all the conveniences of the progressive community. It is quite enough to permit of efficient study, but the quietness is not oppressive. Pupils like relaxation and activity. The modern schools provide it. Carrizozo will have a splendid football team which will begin practice immediately after the opening of school. When basket ball time comes, let the neighboring schools line up and see what they can do against a practiced team. This school will meet the needs of any pupil in the county.

To those who expect to drop out when the rural schools have been exhausted we would say that you simply can't afford to not go ahead if you expect to be considered as anything among your fellows in the coming generation. Time was—our fathers have seen it—when the half-educated man could make a pretty good stand in society and commerce. Nowadays the case is no longer so, there is a good job for the "better educated" man, but few positions to be filled by the man whose school life has been curtailed. In rare cases some peculiar native ability boosts a self-made man to a position of authority but the rule is decidedly otherwise. The United States Bureau of Education has compiled statistics of a most convincing nature. Taking every position from the President down to the most menial walks of life, our Commissioner of Education has shown that the increase of salary which added years of schooling brings, taken to the age of only forty years, pays enough increase to allow you $11.00 a day for every day you attend school. If you have a job paying you $11.00 a day perhaps you had better be short-sighted and stay with it—let your mind get along as best it can; but if you are making less—most boys do well to get $60.00 a month till after they pass the school age—hadn't you better stay with school a while longer? We cannot but see it in that light.

Someone has truly said that "Education is a preparation to complete living." To stand among your fellows you must know something about as many things as possible. The Carrizozo school has not been unmindful of this fact in the selection of its faculty for the coming year. Besides the regular high school subjects of the standard institution there will be a special teacher of music both vocal and instrumental, and a course of typewriting, shorthand and other commercial branches. You will meet here a corps of teachers who realize that their success lies in your success. If you acquire the sixteen credits required for high school graduation and are able to do so in less than four years your industry will be rewarded. Only remember that things are sometimes not what they seem and you must be, especially farsighted in this matter of your further education and your life's career.

CIVIC LEAGUE TO MEET

The Civic League will meet at the office of Mrs. W. L. Gumm in the court house, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

ROAD BOARD MEETING

The Lincoln County Road Board will meet at the court house in Carrizozo, New Mexico, August 10, 1914, in regular session to consider road matters and to transact other business to come before it. Those having bills against the Board are requested to file same with the secretary of the board, and properly itemize and certify to same before some notary public or other officer.—James W. Laws, Chairman.

PRECINCT PRIMARIES

The Primaries of the Republican Party of Precinct Fourteen will be held in the office of O. T. Nye on Monday, July 27th at 8 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of selecting four delegates to the Republican County Convention to be held in Capitan, New Mexico, August 1st, 1914. All persons affiliating with the Republican party are requested to attend this meeting.—Republican Committee.

PERMANENT WRIT OF PROHIBITION ISSUED

Supreme Court Holds no Preliminary Investigation Can be Made in the County Clerk Case

INCUMBENT CANNOT BE SUSPENDED FROM OFFICE

The state supreme court Saturday issued a writ of prohibition against Judge E. L. Medler of the third judicial district restraining him from conducting a preliminary investigation for the purpose of finding out whether or not County Clerk A. H. Harvey should be suspended. The opinion, especially as it sets forth the nature of a writ of prohibition and the powers of the district court is most interesting. It is as follows:

This is an original petition for a writ of prohibition. Relator is the county clerk of Lincoln county, and respondent is the presiding judge of the Third Judicial District Court. Relator seeks to restrain the said district judge and to prohibit him from conducting a preliminary investigation for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not relator should be suspended from his office as county clerk, pending his trial.

To the application for the writ a demurrer is interposed raising several questions, which are considered in the order presented in respondent's brief.

A permanent writ of prohibition is directed to be issued by the opinion of the court.

1 A writ of prohibition is an extraordinary writ, issued by a superior court to an inferior court to prevent the latter from exercising its jurisdiction, either by prohibiting it from assuming jurisdiction in a matter over which it has no control, or from going beyond its legitimate powers in a matter of which it has jurisdiction.

2 A court is inferior to another when it is placed under the supervisory or appellate control as such other court.

3 The writ of prohibition is not a writ of right, granted ex debito justitiae, but rather one of sound judicial direction, to be granted or withheld according to the circumstances of each particular case to be used with great caution for the furtherance of justice when none of the ordinary remedies provided by law are applicable.

4 The writ of prohibition cannot be used to correct mere irregularities or to preform the function of an appeal or writ of error.

5 If it is manifest that an appeal would afford an inadequate remedy the right of appeal does not, of itself afford sufficient ground for refusing relief by prohibition.

6 In creating a legislative department and conferring upon it the legislative power, the people must be understood to have conferred the full and complete power as it rests in, and may be exercised by, the sovereign power of any country, subject only to such restrictions as they have seen fit to impose, and to the limitations which are contained in the constitution of the United States.

7 There being no constitutional inhibition against legislative action in the matter suspending of public officers, which is properly to be considered as included within the broader term removal, the provisions of Chapter 36, of the Session laws of 1909, do not constitute a violation of the constitutional provisions of Section 2, of Article XX.

8 Section 21, of Chapter 36, S. L. 1909, confers jurisdiction upon the district courts to make preliminary investigation of matters alleged in an accusation, before the case shall be continued upon application of defendant, beyond the term of court at which the accusation is presented or if presented in vacation, beyond the first term of the court after presentation thereof.

Held: That jurisdiction to entertain preliminary investigations other than as limited and prescribed in Section 26 and 21, of the Act, does exist in the district courts and the present case not falling within either section of the Act, the district court was assuming a jurisdiction in excess of that conferred upon it by the statute and is, therefore subject to the restraint imposed by a writ of prohibition issuing out of this court.

Opinion by Justice Hanna, Chief Justice Roberts and Justice Parker concurring.

SUMMARY OF SCHOOL REPORT

Mrs. W. L. Gumm, superintendent of the Lincoln county schools, furnishes the Outlook with a summary of her report, which is as follows:

NEWS OF LOCAL AND PERSONAL INTEREST

George J. Dingwall will open a First Class Motion Picture Show in Exchange Bank hall about August 1-

A GAME OF BASEBALL ON LOCAL GROUNDS SUNDAY

Ziegler Bros. have a new and interesting advertisement in this week's Outlook. Read it.

T. M. Evans of White Oaks, interested in the Yellow Jacket mining property, was in town Thursday on business.

Welch & Titworth have just received at their Capitan store a car load of wire, bale ties, etc, which they will sell at the lowest possible prices. Place your orders promptly.

The Carrizozo Trading company, under the management of O. W. Bamberger, makes a full-page announcement of rare bargains in this week's Outlook. Look it over carefully.

H. H. Joseph, formerly a resident of this place where he was identified with our business interests, but now located in Tucumcari, was a visitor to his former field of endeavor here last Wednesday.

Mrs. M. E. Shelton of Alamogordo, who has been nursing Mrs. Geo. Spence during her indisposition, returned to her home last Sunday.

Mrs. Spence improved rapidly under her care and is now rapidly recovering her former good health.

The vacant room in the Exchange Bank building will be occupied by a motion picture show after the first of the month. The show will be conducted by Geo. J. Dingwall, the firm of Dingwall & Williams having been dissolved.

R. R. Pratt, superintendent of the Blind Institute at Alamogordo, passed through Carrizozo Sunday on his way to the eastern seaboard. He traveled alone and unframed on the outgoing voyage, but if the little birds whisper correctly, he will return to his duties this fall wearing the mantle of a Benedict and the bride will be the former music instructor in the institute Miss Ruth Woodbury.

Albert Ziegler, of the firm of Ziegler Bros, leaves tonight for Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and New York, where he will personally select the stock of fall merchandise with which to supply his trade here. He will be absent three or four weeks. This firm believes in getting into the center of the wholesale markets in person, that they may see exactly what they are buying and be thus the better enabled to cater to the wants of their patrons. With the added floor space their new addition will give them, they will be in a position to carry a much larger stock of general merchandise, and as in the past, they will continue in the future, to carry only the best grades, which they will continue to sell for the smallest possible profit—thus doing their part in reducing the high cost of living.

BASEBALL SUNDAY

Manager A. J. Rolland has arranged with Doc Ferguson's "Tigers" for a contest on the Carrizozo grounds next Sunday afternoon. This will be one of the real games of the season, as both teams will be in fighting trim after a long rest and up on their toes for the wallops.

The ISOLATED CONTINENT

A ROMANCE OF THE FUTURE

By GUIDO VON HORVATH and DEAN HOARD

COPYRIGHT, 1913 BY W.G. CHAPMAN IN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN

SYNOPSIS.

For fifty years the continent of North America has been isolated from the rest of the world by Z-rays, the invention of Hannibal Prudent, president of the United States. A message from Count von Werdenstein, chancellor of Germany, that he has succeeded in penetrating the rays hastens the death of Prudent. Dying, he warns his daughter Astra that foreign invasion is now certain. Astra succeeds her father as president. Napoleon Edison, a former pupil of Prudent's, offers to assist Astra and hints at new discoveries which will make North America impregnable. A man giving the name of Chevalier de Lech offers Werdenstein the secret of making gold in return for European disarmament. The chevalier is made a prisoner. Countess Rosina, a spy, becomes a prisoner in the hope of discovering Edison's secret. She falls in love with him and agrees to join him in an attempt to escape. By the use of rockets he summons a curious flying machine to Astra's camp and sends her message to Astra which reveals the fact that he is Napoleon Edison. He warns Astra that the consolidated fleets of Europe have sailed to invade America. He cautions Astra to the following night and asks her to return for defense. By the use of aeroplanes made of a new substance which is indestructible he expects to annihilate the European forces. He delivers a note to Werdenstein on his flagship demanding immediate withdrawal. He is attacked and by destroying two warships and several aeroplanes, forces von Werdenstein to agree to universal disarmament. The countess, who has remained in America as a guest of Astra, receives an offer from von Werdenstein of the principality of Schomburg-Lithow in return for Edison's secret. Edison and Astra enter her clutches. She promises to reveal Edison's secret as soon as von Werdenstein turns over the Schomburg-Lithow estate to her. On the day of the wedding of Astra and Edison the countess projects a machine. She made a count and marries the countess, now princess of Schomburg-Lithow. Edison finds a new deposit of cyrynth and builds a new fleet of aeroplanes. He accidentally discovers a liquid that will render opposing aeroplanes helpless. Santos completes a fleet for the princess.

CHAPTER XX.—Continued.

"What need have we of European commerce and troubles? The American continent is ours, we love it and we can live on it. The Z-ray stations have been kept in order and we can easily cut ourselves off from those warring countries. We will not be the losers." So his address ran. He sat down amid tremendous applause.

However, another orator arose and propounded opposite reasons for open ports and so determination was reached.

Astra and her mother-in-law were sitting in the library at the Crystal Palace depressed and sad. The uncertainty of Napoleon's fate caused long, sleepless nights.

Thus they had lived, day after day, hopefully and fearfully.

The life of the woman who had been the main spring of all their troubles was different. The Princess Rositta had never been happier than now. The twenty-first aerodrome was finished, and she, like a general, would drill her flying squadron personally.

"When I Opened My Eyes It Was Night and I Was on a Low Bed."

Rositta had acquired great skill in handling the aerodromes, and she would execute the capturing act very easily. She was loved by the whole crew, which was composed of men from noble families.

These men admired their leader, they were hypnotized by her charms and she handled them so that they were, as one man, ready to give their lives for her.

After a successful maneuver day Rositta gave the order to her men to gather in the large hall. The hall was the schoolroom where Santos taught them the art of aviation in theory.

There were forty men in all—young, vigorous, brave and bold. When Rositta entered, followed by her husband, a cheer rang out: "Hurrah for our princess!"

She walked to the platform, and her clear voice rang through the hall:

"Gentlemen!" The silence was intense. "I have called you together to explain the situation. The American continent has voluntarily taken from us Europeans, children of a different caste, a different race, our most cherished traditions. There is not one among you who is not a nobleman. You all know the situation and Europe's eyes rest on us. Europe is awaiting our action to restore the old order of things. We have the might! Think of these words: 'We have the might!' Therefore, we have the right! The aerodromes flotilla is my own property. Think this over and consider!

"Is it right that I—that we—should obey orders that come from powerless rulers? That we, the gallant aerial fleet, should consider those who are held to the ground? That we who have the might should obey anyone else except the one we choose?"

"Gentlemen, we were all born to be rulers, or I would not have selected you as my aviators. Gentlemen! You must select one of us for our commander, and we will rule the world!"

"Hurrah for the queen! Hurrah for the queen of the air! Hurrah for Queen Rositta!"

How sweet that sounded to the beautiful woman! A tear glistened in her eyes. She ran into their arms and kissed one after another. The last was Santos, and he was the least enthusiastic of them all.

Rositta, queen of the air! This was her election. When the enthusiasm had somewhat abated she gave them the oath of obedience, the oath that would be kept secret until the day of its world-wide proclamation. They swore to be true, obedient and brave for the queen. And she swore to be faithful and true to her little army.

"We have only one man to fear, and that man is Napoleon Edison. You all know him. Seemingly he has met with some misfortune, so he has disappeared. When he returns we will fight him and win, and then the world is ours!"

That same day while this intemperate thing was happening in Suemeg the American Eagle slowly descended to the roof of the Crystal Palace. It was dusk and no one noticed its arrival. The tall man who alighted from the machine seemed weak, but he fastened the machine, then slowly found his way downstairs. After a gentle tap on Astra's private door he entered. Mother and wife were there. Napoleon had returned at last.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Valley of Xluh.

The first raptures of the reunion were over. Words took the place of mute expressions of love. Napoleon began to tell his story:

"No one knows of my return, except my men at Clryne, and they will keep it to themselves. I did not use the 'graph, as I did not want certain people to know that I was safe—the papers would get hold of it and by morning Europe would know." He smiled. "They have tried to surprise us, and now we will surprise them." His eyes rested lovingly on the two women who were his nearest and dearest.

"It is exactly eight weeks today since I left Washington to continue my search for something that I felt convinced nature had provided for a certain use; that is, to remove the electro-magnetism of cyrynth. I found it, thanks be to Providence. The discovery nearly cost me my life, but I never was happier than the moment when my aerodrome was helplessly falling down. It is a wonder that I came out alive, but aside from a few bruises, all is well.

"I was circling around an active volcano and the wing of the Eagle was touched by the warm fluid gushing up from a geyser. The wings folded together and the Eagle was helpless. I turned the tall rudder to break its fall, and thus escaped with my life."

A silent prayer went up from the two loving women, a prayer of thanks to Him who had saved him to save America.

"I lost consciousness when the aerodrome struck the ground by being hurled into the bench. When I opened my eyes it was night and I was on a low bed. An ancient oil lamp was flickering on a table at my head. I tried to sit up, but could not. My strength was gone; even my eyelids fell down, and I had a feeling that I was falling from a great height. I felt some one come near, and a moment later I felt a cooling bandage placed on my head by deft hands. I lost consciousness again and do not know how long I lay in a stupor, but I think it must have been at least eight days.

"The first clear moment I had I found that I was in the home of some rich Indian family. Later I found that they were Aztecs—indeed, the direct descendants of the Incas. In the clear moments during my fever I saw a very beautiful Aztec girl by my bedside nursing me. She was the daughter of the high priest, to whose house I had been taken.

"It was five weeks before I recovered from the terrible fall.

As I regained my strength the old priest, named Xluhama, assisted me to a porch-like structure that stood before the house, and I beheld a wonderful picture. A few hundred yards away was the smoking volcano, and several steaming geysers were spouting water in the air. At the foot of the cone-like peak stood a great church with strange statues and reliefs painted in vivid red, blue, yellow, black green and white colors. The whole reminded me of the pictures of ancient Egypt. Xluhama's beautiful daughter came with us and brought cushions to make me a comfortable seat on the long, broad bench.

"The old priest could express his thoughts so plainly that I understood him almost as well as if we were able to converse, and when I was in doubt he took a board and made drawings in a childlike but expressive way.

"I soon realized that he considered me sent as a messenger by their god Itzcoatl. A prophecy made hundreds of years before by one of their great men told them that a deliverer would come as a bird. That reminded me of my Eagle that had, during my illness, been haunting me, as I feared it had been damaged beyond repair. In spite of all it meant to me I had not asked about it. I was led by the priest to the church, through the wide doors of which my Eagle had been carried and placed before the altar. I looked it over carefully and found that it was in good condition, except that the wings had lost their magnetism. I inspected it and found one wing coated by a pale yellow varnish—it was the wing that had been touched by the liquid from a geyser.

"It caused a perfect isolator, and if I had had the presence of mind to use my dry battery at the crucial moment I would not have had the fall; but everything turns out for the best.

"When I was able to work I succeeded in cleansing the wings, and the machine was in working order again. "Yesterday I thought I was strong enough to leave and I bade my host goodby with the promise that I would return and bring help.

"This is a short recital of my doings during the two months past, and now, my dear Astra, will you tell me all that is new here?"

Napoleon had heard a few things from Whistler in Clryne that disquieted him, and he was anxious to know the truth. That Astra could tell him best of all. So she began to relate all the important happenings while Napoleon listened attentively, making notes from time to time. Astra spoke of the European decree and all the facts that were officially communicated to her. Then she told of the newspaper rumors concerning the aerodrome fleet and the preparations for war that were supposed to be occupying the time of the European rulers.

"We have nine days at our disposal. I will be very busy for the next few days, but next Monday I will be ready to appear in the congress as the president of the international peace committee."

Early next morning Napoleon communicated with his brother workers in the peace committee, and then left the capital. He spent some hours at work designing a device to be used on the aerodromes. With six machines, equipped with men and barges, he headed for the valley of Xluh that evening.

They landed in the valley the next morning and after a peaceful negotiation with the high priest they caught a large supply of the liquid that had put the Eagle out of commission and returned to Clryne. While Napoleon analyzed the liquid his workmen made several trips between the valley and Clryne, carrying the liquid away in vast quantities.

Napoleon, after a thorough examination, sighed. "Here is something new. It puzzles me, but it solves the question of superiority in the air."

Napoleon's next move was to try out the new swallow-type machine. It was smaller than the Eagle, but the wings and the tall rudder were comparatively larger. It had not the grace of the Eagle in flight, but its speed was something unprecedented—it shot through the air like a streak.

Two more days passed. The third found every aerodrome equipped with a long tube very similar to the old style fire extinguisher. To this tube was connected a small automatic gun, which protruded through a special aperture in the body of the aerodrome. The lever controlling this gun was within easy reach of the aviator, and the gun itself was so arranged that it could be pointed in any direction.

The four aerodromes that had been sent toward the west were reporting every few hours. They had seen nothing so far that was out of the ordinary.

It was Saturday evening that the last of the aerodromes was made ready for prompt action. Turning the command of the island over to Whistler, Napoleon returned to Washington. The Swallow made the trip in two hours.

SEEMS MOST FABULOUS SUM

Fortune of the Rothschilds Estimated at Two Billion—Own Property in All Countries.

A French statistician has just completed figures which, he asserts, show the fortune of the famous house of Rothschild. The entire fortune is estimated at ten milliards of francs. A milliard is a billion, so that in dollars the Rothschild fortune equals $2,000,000,000.

Placed at 4 per cent, the Rothschild fortune would produce an annual revenue of $80,000,000. But this sum is far from being a reality, as the great part of the Rothschild riches is in property. In Lancashire they own immense thread mills, while in Germany they possess numerous coal mines with a capacity of millions of tons per annum. In Brazil the Rothschilds own immense rubber forests, and in Persia factories where the most beautiful carpets in the world are made.

In Spain there are numerous zinc and lead mines operated by the Rothschilds. In South Africa also the Rothschilds own mines. The Rothschilds, in addition, own large forests in Siberia, while in Australia entire cities are their property. They also own large quantities of real estate in different European capitals.

Coal Smoke and Health.

The medical officer of health for Manchester, England, presents evidence to show that the working life of the people of that city is shortened ten years by the acids in smoke and the carbon particles which invade the lungs. Surgeon J. W. Stoner, of the United States public health service, traces a connection between a smoky atmosphere and the drinking habits of the people. Women living in sunless, gloomy homes, attired in somber clothes, breathing a smoke-filled atmosphere, are prone to be irritable, to scold and whip their children and to nag their husbands who flee to the saloon for solace and relief. Surgeon Stoner is also of the opinion that children reared in a depressing atmosphere are dull, apathetic and even criminally inclined. The smoke problem is still important.

Rock Cannon.

When the island of Malta was under the rule of the Knights of St. John they defended their fortifications with cannon bored in the living rock. Each one of these strange weapons contained an entire barrel of powder, and as it was not possible to vary the aim of these cannon 50 were made ready, facing various directions from which the enemy might approach. When the fame of these arms of defence became known to the world the idea was taken up of transporting rocks to summits to serve the same purpose; but it was soon recognized to be impracticable, and the cannon of Malta, bored in solid rock, have passed into history as the sole weapons of the kind ever known.—Harper's Weekly.

Not Always Perhaps.

In the long run it is with a profession as with marriage; we cease to remark anything but its drawbacks.—Valerius Maximus.

OF COURSE HE GOT AWAY

Young Man Pulled Off Something Really New, and His Reward Was Adequate.

"Please, Mr. Jones, can I get off Tuesday?" said the young male employe, only more rapidly.

"Which of your relatives is dead?" inquired the boss.

"Not any, sir," replied the lad with a politeness which exists only in fiction.

"Which of your teeth are you going to have pulled?"

"Not any, sir," replied the lad, etc. "Which of your sisters is getting married?"

"Not any, sir," etc.

"The fact is," continued the youth, "I would like to go to the ball game, and, my desire being genuine, I would not hazard any chances by trying to pull a rotten old excuse on a foxy business man. Thank you, sir."

Many a man who strives to emulate the busy bee only succeeds in getting stung.

MRS. LYON'S AGES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. Augustus Lyon, Terre Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the greatest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking relief from many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

SOME CHICK DISEASES

HEAD LICE IN PARTICULAR ARE SOURCE OF MUCH TROUBLE.

Dust Hen With Insect Powder, Spray Coops With Disinfectant and Rub Ointment on Chick's Head and Under Wings.

Lice, head lice in particular, while not a disease in themselves, are a fertile source of trouble and disease. They are generally found where the chicks are hatched by hens, the little fellows appearing droopy, pale, and with some diarrhea, due to weakness. Dust the hen with a good lice killer, spray the coops with disinfectant and rub a little lice ointment on the chick's head, under the wings and around the vent.

While not so prevalent as sometimes supposed, "white diarrhea" is a real menace, and here prevention is the best remedy. Breed from strong, healthy parent stock and avoid the long, scrawny, crow headed hen, for disease is transmitted through the egg. Keep the incubator dark, feed good nourishing food, separate suspected chicks at once and disinfect thoroughly. If trouble is expected use a white diarrhea remedy in the drinking water for the first ten days.

Bowel trouble, due to improper feeding, is often mistaken for white diarrhea. Don't feed chicks until 48 hours old, but give fine grit and fresh water from the start. Let the first feed be finely crumbled boiled egg, breadcrumbs or a prepared baby chick food, given dry, or moistened with sweet or sour milk. Do not overfeed, but feed often. Later give a little bit of fine grains, such as pinhead oats, cracked wheat or chick size cracked corn, scattered in the litter to induce exercise. Beef scrap should not be given until chicks are at least a week old. Scald the drinking vessels frequently, give plenty of greens after the first five days and keep the chicks exercising and there will never be any bowel trouble among the birds.

Leg weakness, frequently comes from lack of exercise. Chicks appear healthy, have good appetites, are bright, but have no use of their legs. Give them every opportunity to exercise, but do not allow them to become chilled. Bottom heat in a brooder will cause this trouble. The heat should always descend on a chick's back, never upward. Lack of bone forming materials in the food, such as bone or shell meal, also causes leg weakness, and every properly compounded chick food contains these ingredients, so, if it doesn't, either add them or get one that does.

To sum all up, if vigorous, quick growing chicks are wanted breed from only the strongest and best of stock, disinfect freely, clean up regularly, feed the best of food, give lots of good fresh water and use common sense.

REMEDY FOR THE WOODCHUCK

Among Other Methods of Extermination Suggested is That of a Man With a Good Rifle.

(By M. W. WILLIAMS, Minnesota.) The woodchuck, or "ground hog" is so destructive to gardens in some counties in this section, that a few remedial measures may be of interest. White muslin strips may be tied to the pea vine supports about a foot above the ground, at intervals of about a foot in the row, to keep the animal away. Cotton or oakum may be wrapped around a stone soaked in carbon bisulphide, and the mass rolled into the hole as far as possible. In order that the fumes may have the fullest possible effect, close the hole as tightly as possible. A good marksman with a rifle, stationed where he can secure a good view of the infested field, may prove effective.

Hens Need Clean Nests.

During the summer season nests should be examined once a week, at least, and if dirty or lousy they ought to be cleaned at once. Burn the old contents of the boxes and put in fresh material. In order to avoid broken eggs, an abundance of nesting material must be kept in the boxes at all times. In order to facilitate the cleaning of building and nests, the latter should be so arranged that they can easily be removed for cleaning and disinfecting. If they are nailed fast to the walls of the building the work of cleaning probably will be neglected.

Yearling Tree Preferred.

A yearling tree is preferred by many to older trees. They are thought to be easier to transplant than two-year-old trees.

Proper Pruning.

When pruning, have a reason for every cut made and cut close to the limb or trunk. Leave no stubs.

China is said to be the original home of the San Jose scale.

VALUE OF PLOW AND HARROW

In Purchasing Implements for the Farm Their Construction Should Be Carefully Studied.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

The value of a plow or other farm implement consists of its doing the thing we want it to do. The plow with a light draft simply turns and cuts the furrow with the least resistance, resulting in very smooth work to look upon, but its effect upon the soil is not nearly so valuable as that of the plow that runs harder and gives more resistance to the soil and breaks it up finer. The plow that has a harder draft goes through the soil and not only breaks it up and turns a furrow, but in the process it grinds and pulverizes it into smaller particles. The more thoroughly the soil is broken up, the more the plant food is made available and plant food is what we are after. In purchasing plows we want to study their construction with this in mind.

The same applies to the selection of the harrow. The harrow that has an easy draft cannot do as good work as one that moves more soil and runs deeper. A harrow should do smooth work and incorporate the vegetable matter and fertilizers with the soil in a uniform manner.

The function of the harrow is to still further reduce and refine soil particles, because in every process of refinement we are getting at the plant food which is still so abundant in our soil.

On the average farm where there are various types of soil, a disk harrow, a spring tooth harrow and a smoothing harrow are practical necessities. It is worse than folly for farmers to spend for commercial fertilizers or chemical plant foods until they have first made use of that which is so plentiful in their own soil at the present time.

I am a firm friend of fertilizers but I do not believe in buying them until we have made use of every method of getting at the plant food already contained in our soils.

GROWING RUSSIAN CABBAGE

Conspicuous Because It Requires Two Weeks' Less Time to Mature Than Other Varieties.

Among the maturing varieties of cabbage the Voiga, a comparatively new sort in America, is conspicuous because it requires about two weeks' less time than other varieties of this class to mature, says Farm and Fireside. Concerning it the late G. L. Allen, whose book on cabbage, cauliflower and allied plants is the acknowledged authority, writes: "This new Russian variety is of the greatest uniformity. In a field of several acres frequently not a single plant shows any variation from a true and valuable type. In some respects it is a vegetable wonder, as the heads are about equal in size and shape, weighing from 12 to 15 pounds each, round as a ball, the largest measuring about 12 inches in diameter either way. Unlike most varieties, the heads are perfectly solid, and the stem does not run up into the head; the flesh is exceedingly firm, tender and white. In respect to hardness, we have never seen a type which would favorably compare."

Airing the Incubator.

One may air the eggs in an incubator in two ways. One method is to air some every day at the night turning, or in the morning, should the temperature be found a trifle high, and the other way is to turn the eggs slowly to inhale fresh air and to confine the real cooling to one or two periods when eggs have been incubated 15 and 17 days and to cool them down until the shells are actually cold. The best hatches are often the result of such cooling, especially in warm weather.

Feed Calves in Stanchions.

Calves should be fed in a stanchion so constructed as to prevent them from sucking each others' ears after they have drunk their milk. The feeding of grain by placing a little before them after every meal of milk will also discourage the desire to suck the ears of the calf in the next stanchion.

Popular Cow.

The cow that can turn out a good beef calf as well as a fair yield of milk is becoming more and more popular with the western farmer accustomed to growing beef.

Study Poultry.

Study your poultry. There is lots of individuality about them, and in their feeding, selection of roosting places, nest and other ways they show preferences which it often pays to humor.

Good Horses Wanted.

Farm sales so far this year show farmers are no longer wanting the poorer classes of horses. Good horses sell about as high as ever, but roadster stock meets no demand.

EAT CHEESE

Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, intends that his memory shall live. It will—for various reasons.

He will be remembered as the man who told a nation of ninety millions that the nation must submit to England—to assist him in delicate negotiations. He will be remembered as the man whose solution of the trust question is found in destroying modern money saving economical methods. He will be remembered as the first president convinced that the high cost of living, and similar problems, can be solved by teaching the people to eat cheese—substituting the mouse diet or the Chinese diet for that to which the people of the country have been accustomed. To our honored president's cheese and mouse theories we call your attention this week. Briefly, his plan can be put in these words:

Is porterhouse steak too dear? Eat cheese. Are eggs meat and butter too dear? Eat rice.

Don't inquire about higher wages or greater prosperity; school yourselves to eat less, teach your stomach to like cheese more than beefsteak, rice better than eggs or milk or butter.

"One of the best ways to reduce the expense of your food is to substitute cheese for meat in your diet"

If you will write to the president or his secretary of agriculture and ask for information about the high cost of living and how to eat cheese he will send you without charge a little government booklet called "Bulletin No. 487." Send for a copy and see how President Wilson plans to care for the workers—by teaching them how to live like mice. If you have been chopping up meat in your stew or hash, stop; listen to Woodrow Wilson; grate up a cupful of cheese instead and save money.

Henry the Fourth, of France, wished that every peasant might have a hen cooking in the pot; but that was French extravagance. Mr. Wilson knows a better way. He wishes that every American peasant might have a cupful of grated cheese in his stomach. Ten cents' worth of cheese, dearly beloved, according to Mr. Wilson's statistics, gives 886 calories; while the same amount of porterhouse steak gives only 444 calories. Learn that by heart and stop talking of better times or higher wages and eat cheese.

Mr. Wilson will learn before very long that Americans who pay a president $75,000 a year, with a white house to live in and plenty of beefsteak thrown in, expect some better advice than "eat cheese and live cheaply."

"Save money; sing God save the King; eat cheese; repudiate your Monroe doctrine; let England boss the canal American money built," sounds very well in England but not so well over here. Poor little light headed Mary Antoinette, told that her French people lacked bread wondered why they did not eat cake. But she never issued a booklet, at the expense of her breadless subjects, teaching them to eat cheese.

Mr. Wilson before long will probably learn that he has mixed up the wrong kind of a political welsch rabbit for the American people's taste.

The money that goes into Canadian grain and potatoes, Mexican cattle, Argentine beef, pork and corn, Australian wool and mutton New Zealand butter and cheese, Chinese and Siberian eggs—all this money, we say, goes out of the hands of the American farmer and into the hands of the farmers of these other countries. The money goes away and it goes away to stay. Were it to remain at home, it would go into better homes and barns, better and more agricultural implements, more pianos and automobiles, better roads and schools. And because of this, it would mean more work for more men in the factories, who in turn would consume more of the products of the farm. A dollar shipped out of the country that might be kept here, with reasonable foresight, is an unnecessary break in the endless chain of Prosperity that runs from the farm to the factory, from the factory to the office and store, and thence back again to the farm.

CALL FOR REPUBLICAN CONVENTION OF LINCOLN CO.

Pursuant to the order of the State Central Committee which met in Santa Fe, New Mexico, June 27th A. D., 1914, calling for a Delegate Convention of the Republican Party of the State of New Mexico to meet in the city of Santa Fe, New Mexico, on the twenty fourth day of August, A. D., 1914, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for representative from New Mexico in the Sixty Fourth Congress of the United States; a candidate for member of the State Corporation Commission; of considering and acting upon the resolution adopted in December, 1913, by the Republican National Committee as a proposed basis for the call for the National Convention in 1916 and of transacting such other business as may come before the Convention.

The Chairman on this 13th day of July, A. D., 1914, hereby calls a Convention of the Republican Party of the County of Lincoln to be held in the city of Capitan on Saturday the first day of August, 1914, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of electing eight delegates to represent the county of Lincoln at the State Convention to be held in Santa Fe, New Mexico, on August 24th, 1914; to nominate a candidate for representative to represent the 16th Legislature District in the State Legislature and to transact any other business that may come before the Convention.

The precinct chairman of the various precincts of the county are requested and directed to issue a call for the holding of precinct primaries on Monday, July 27th, 1914.

The basis of representation from each precinct will be one delegate for each ten votes or fraction of 5 or over cast for the republican candidate for Governor in the election held November 7th, 1911.

Upon which basis the representation of the said county convention shall be as follows:

Deborah L. McMillan, Plaintiff vs.
John H. McMillan, Defendant No. 2241
Action for Divorce

In the District Court of the Third Judicial District of the State of New Mexico, within and for the County of Lincoln.

To John H. McMillan, the above named defendant:

You are hereby notified that the above named plaintiff has commenced suit against you in the District Court of Lincoln County, the same being entitled Deborah L. McMillan vs. John H. McMillan and numbered 2241, on the docket of said Court.

The general objects of suit are that the bond of matrimony heretofore and now existing between the said John H. McMillan, the defendant, and the said above named plaintiff, Deborah L. McMillan, be permanently dissolved on the grounds of desertion and abandonment, and for the adjudication of certain property rights, and that unless you, the said John H. McMillan, defendant, enter, or cause to be entered, your appearance in said above styled and numbered cause, on or before the 1st day of August, A. D., 1914, deo pro confesso, and default of judgment will be rendered and entered against you in said cause.

Plaintiff's attorney in said cause is H. B. Hamilton, whose post office address is Carrizozo, New Mexico.

Dated Carrizozo, New Mexico, this 10th day of June, 1914.

FIRST LINER THROUGH PANAMA CANAL

The Panama railroad steamship Allianca, first ocean vessel to pass through the Panama canal, in the Gatun locks. This was a test ordered by Governor Goochals and was eminently satisfactory.

WILL SHOW BRITISH

American to Tell-England How to Run Railroad.

Henry Worth Thornton, Picked by English Directors to Take Charge of Great Eastern Road, Will Demonstrate U. S. Methods.

New York.—"Your best chance of success," said Henry W. Thornton, "comes when you are in your shirt-sleeves."

Thornton is the young American railroad man who was recently picked out to take charge of the Great Eastern railroad in England.

The member of the board of directors who did the picking tactfully added to his declaration that Thornton is the best young railroad man in America for such a position, the cause being that English railroad men have run to seed.

"They do not grow," said the director, wagging his head like a mechanical bear. "They do not expand. Their field of vision is limited."

However that may be—and English railroads resolved themselves into a lodge of sorrow when they read it and then began to gather bricks for Thornton—the American youngster has been growing and expanding ever since he got into railroading.

After he had graduated in football and engineering at the University of Pennsylvania he applied for a job to John C. Sims, then secretary of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. He had a letter of introduction from a man of influence.

"Hum," said Sims, when he read the letter. "This gets you a job; but it don't hold the job for you, young man. I'll carry you on the salary list for two years. But if by that time you haven't been promoted, salt won't save you. I wouldn't have that sort of a man on the right of way."

Thornton was on his third promotion at the end of two years. He has been moving upward ever since, but he has never gained a step by flattery, back-bending or lying, if the opinion of the men who have been nearest to him is to be taken at par.

On the other hand, he hasn't hesitated to fuss with his superior officers, and fussing with the official family of the Pennsylvania railroad is commonly reputed to be as dangerous an occupation as biting the tip of a stroke of lightning.

Henry Worth Thornton.

On one occasion a baggageman on his division had climbed on to the tender, where he had no business to be, just before the engine rolled into the ditch. The baggageman was killed, leaving a destitute family.

"Give me $1,000 for the widow and kids," Thornton asked of headquarters. "Not a nickel," said headquarters coldly. "It was the baggageman's fault that he was killed."

"Maybe," said Thornton, with the big jaw setting. "But meanwhile a young widow and three boys are in danger of starvation. I'm going to put her on my payroll at $45 a month, and when her name comes off mine comes with it."

She's still there, so far as any one knows. Perhaps that incident helps explain why Thornton was selected to take charge of the Great Eastern, for the position of general manager on an English railroad is equivalent to that of president of the United States.

The Great Eastern handles a greater commuting traffic than any other road in England, and its short haul business, during the summer resort season, is perhaps the greatest in the world.

But, according to the commuting public of England, its directing heads assay heavily in pure bone. Ticket sales are never stopped, no matter how badly the line may be blocked. Trains are held in smoke-filled tunnels, rather than permit a step aside from routine procedure.

"Any one can handle engines and cars and tunnels," said a railroad man, "but Thornton is a wonder at handling men. That's why England took him."

He must not only teach the railroad using public of England to love the Great Eastern, which entails a complete reversal of all the laws of human nature, but must also win the loyal support of the Great Eastern's employes.

In a way, American railroaders and their methods will go on trial with Thornton in England. This may not seem fair, but it is the fact.

HAMEL WISHED A QUIET END

Rather in Solitude of Sea Than in Crowd, He Told Friend Before His Disappearance.

London.—A writer in the Aeroplane, in discussing Gustavo Hamel's disappearance, says:

"It is a peculiar fact that only a few days before his disappearance, Hamel, in discussing the Atlantic flight with some friends, said that if his machine came down in mid-Atlantic—and was not picked up he would prefer such an end to being killed in an aerodrome or an exhibition flight, with all the fuss and sensation among the crowd.

"Somewhere at the back of his mind I think he had some idea of the dignity of dying in the solitude of the sea to being killed in the act of amusing a mob of sightseers, and he was right.

"That he should have gone in what was to him the trivial feat of crossing the channel is the irony of fate, but it came somewhere near being such an end as he desired."

Husband's Acts Start Trouble.

New York.—Alleging that her husband branded her cheek with a lighted cigar and bit her hands, Mrs. Jeanne Van Tongelen, who has been wed 19 years, has sued for a separation.

Bolt Starts Automobile Sprinkler.

Chicago.—A bolt of lightning entered the Haymarket theater by the pipes of the automatic sprinkler and started a deluge of water throughout the building, an hour before the evening performance was to have started.

Fright Causes Death.

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—Mrs. William Dawson, fifty-eight, fell from a second-story window, escaped physical injury, but died of fright.

Society Has New Fad.

St. Louis.—Bronze statuettes of their children represent the latest fad in local society.

Was Hero of 200 Duels

Labretesque, Modern D'Artagnan, Dead in Paris—Fights Whole Town Council.

Paris.—Labretesque is dead, and with his death a figure that belonged to old French romance has passed away. For Labretesque was Cyrano de Bergerac and d'Artagnan rolled into one, and set down on the Paris boulevards, where he kept tight for years the flame of chivalry, gallantry and picturesque swashbuckling.

Though his clothes were the prosaic garb of modernity, his spirit belonged to the days of cloak and ruff, when men drew swords on a quarrel and spitted their opponents deftly. He was the hero of 200 duels.

Tall and broad, with a brown face, he swaggered along the boulevards a few years ago, ready to pick a quarrel with anyone whose presence was obnoxious to him and ask for satisfaction at the point of the sword. His manner was grandiloquent and authoritative.

When he lifted his slouch hat with a medieval flourish you could almost see a cloak and sword behind his lounge suit. He rolled his name grandly as he delivered his challenge to those who were lackluster enough to merit his anger. "Labretesque," he would say.

He achieved an instant notoriety when he came to Paris, for he began his career by fighting the whole town council of Algiers, and finished up with his famous duel with Max Régis, the mayor.

ANGRY MAN USES DYNAMITE

Blows Up Girl's House and Others When She Refuses to Come to the Front Door.

Halifax, N. S.—Because Miss Myrtle Robinson, a young woman to whom Thomas Rully of Halifax was paying attention, would not respond to his appeal to come to the front door of her home he exploded a stick of dynamite on the sidewalk.

The explosion blew in the front of the house and smashed the windows in two blocks.

The dynamite had a time fuse, so that Rully was able to get out of danger. No one was badly hurt, but the damage to property is considerable. Rully was captured an hour after the explosion and put in jail, charged with attempted murder.

ROOSTER MAKES MAN FLEE

Injures Postmaster of Minnesota Town, but Pays Penalty at Next Dinner.

Houston, Minn.—Postmaster Frank Schoula of Houston, Minn., was injured so severely by a rooster that he went under the care of a physician. Schoula was in his henhouse when the bird flew into his face, tearing him with his sharp spurs and striking him on the face, neck, arms, and legs. Schoula fled and called a physician to dress his wounds. Later the rooster was captured while asleep and furnished the family a chicken dinner.

REPUBLICAN INGRATITUDE.

The Interviewer—It was your father, wasn't it, who conducted the negotiations that ended so favorably for the nation?

The Interviewed—Yes.

"And how did the government reward him?"

"With a medal."

"Let me see. Your uncle was the eminent engineer who built the English railway?"

"Yes."

"And how did they recognize his services?"

"The English government gave him a $5,000 pension and a title."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Unsuspected Danger.

"Seems to me," observed Mrs. Skittles, "that girls today are reading altogether too much of this here sex literature."

"That's a fact," agreed Mr. Skittles. "Them kind of books give them nothing but a lot of theoretical ideas."

Owner Not Superstitious.

"Will you look over this deed of my property?" asked the man entering the lawyer's office.

"What! On Friday?" replied the superstitious lawyer.

"Sure; the better the day, the better the deed."

IN EVIDENCE.

Hook—I suppose you will observe the Fourth of July.

Cook—Observe it! Of course, I will. I don't expect to be able to notice anything else.

The Summer Bore.

Oh, once again we hear the man who thinks his earthly lot it is to shout and do the best he can to tell us all how hot it is!

Very Much So.

"Why don't you hold your hat in your hand when you address ladies on the street?"

"Because, as you may notice, I easily take cold, as I have very little hair."

"That, sir, is but a bald excuse."

Pity for It.

Cassidy—Phew are yez going in that new suit?

Casey—O'm going to ask old man Flannigan for his daughter's hand.

Cassidy—The devil. Ut seems a pity to ruin a new suit that way.—Punch.

High Resolve.

"So you have resolved to follow the example of George Washington, eh, my lad? I suppose you mean in always telling the truth?"

"No, sir; in marrying a rich widow."

A Gentleman Farmer.

"I don't like to see the pigs crowding. The single feed box makes for bad manners and the little pigs get crowded out."

"Very likely, my dear. I'll install individual troughs."

Our Sapient Servants.

Caller—Is your mistress in?

Maid—Did you see her at the window as you came up the walk, ma'am?

Caller—No.

Maid—Well, she said if you hadn't seen her to say that she was out.

His Line.

"That astronomer ought not to have made such a fuss about his fall down our stairway."

"He says he hurt himself."

"Perhaps he did, but think of all the stars he must have seen."

A Call Down.

"No," said the young orator, with a fervid shout, "I make it my boast that I wear no man's collar."

"Then," muttered his room-mate, "what are you always borrowing mine for?"

POSTPONED.

Stockton Bonds—Didn't you say that your aunt was to be buried today?

Office Boy—She was, but on account of wet grounds the funeral won't take place till tomorrow.

Horrible Confession.

Although the songbirds in their glee make up a gay and tuneful troupe, the birds that I delight to see are yonder in the chicken coop.

Plan That Failed.

Rosemary—Marcella thought she would save money by doing her own shopping.

Thornton—Did the scheme work out?

Rosemary—Not exactly; she saved money on what she bought, all right; but she spent six dollars for taxicab fare.

Brain Fog.

"They say Solomon was the wisest man," said the new clerk in the drug store.

"Do you doubt it?"

"Oh, no. But I can't find anything that described him as compelled to know everything from the meaning of an abbreviated Latin prescription to the contents of the latest fancy drink at a soda fountain."

"Safety First."

The suburban car was waiting at a turnout for the car going in the opposite direction to come along. "It's shameful," complained an impatient woman passenger, "to have to be stopped here like this."

"Well, ma'am," said the conductor calmly, "if you want to finish your trip in an ambulance, we can go on and collide with the other car."—Boston Transcript.

Chinese Wisdom.

"We were going to marry our daughter to Li when we learned that he was spending all his money at that rascal Wang's, the man who runs the gambling-house."

"What did you do then?"

"We married her to Wang."—La Lire.

Not Sure.

"Which do you admire more," inquired the young belle, "black eyes or blue?"

"Well, really," replied the young fellow slowly, "the light is so dim here I can't say just now."—National Monthly.

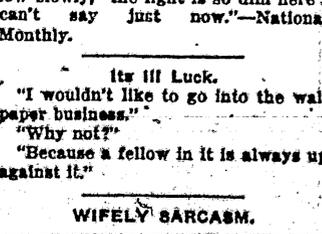

Its Ill Luck.

"I wouldn't like to go into the wall paper business."

"Why not?"

"Because a fellow in it is always up against it."

WIFELY SARCASM.

Hubby—Shall I get the children's drawworks for the Fourth?

Wifey—Yes, if you think the children will enjoy them as much as you will.

His Brand of Religion. "Brother Philander," said I to our head deacon the other day, "I have been watching Brother Sly for a while and I am free to confess that I can't quite understand his brand of religion. He seems different some days than others." "Yes," replied Old Philander with one of his knowing smiles, "I know what you mean. I will tell you about Sly and his religion. Now, on Sunday he doesn't allow the neighbors to interfere with his devotions. On week days he doesn't allow his devotions or his religion to interfere in his dealings with his neighbors. I might put it a little plainer. The Lord is safe all the time. The neighbors are safe only on Sunday." Good Cause for Alarm

Deaths from kidney diseases have increased 73% in twenty years. People overdo nowadays in so many ways that the constant filtering of poisoned blood weakens the kidneys. Beware of fatal Bright's disease. When backache or urinary ills suggest weak kidneys, use Doan's Kidney Pills, drink water freely and reduce the diet. Avoid coffee, tea and liquor. Doan's Kidney Pills command confidence, for no other remedy is so widely used of so generally successful.

A Colorado Case. "I had attacks of kidney trouble for five years," says F. N. Conrad, Prop. cigar store, 1415 First St., Boulder, Colo. "Often I was so bad with pain in my back, I could hardly get around. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I decided to try them. They acted just as represented and relieved me in a short time. Since then I have used them occasionally and have always had good results. I will never fail to recommend them."

MILITANT "REIGN OF TERROR"

MRS. DRUMMOND ARRESTED IN BOND PARK

THE "Reign of Terror" of the militant suffragettes of Great Britain has now been in progress for slightly more than one year. The record of its first twelve months shows that Mrs. Johns chose the name well. On the night of April 3, 1913, this woman, one of the most aggressive of the leaders, speaking in Glasgow, borrowed from the French Revolution that appellation with which to christen the new frenzy of militancy, come to life that day. She added that the militancy of the past would be "the merest pin pricks compared to what will happen at once all over the country."

On the same day, in London, officers of the Women's Social and Political Union turned to the Boer war for a phrase, and declared that what was to be done "would stagger humanity." Yet another leader announced that "human life, we have resolved, will be respected no longer."

Throughout the army of the militants, in short, there flamed fresh fury on that day.

The reason was that Mrs. Pankhurst was then sentenced to penal servitude for three years for inciting the destruction of the country house of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George. The suffragettes rioted in Old Bailey after Justice Sir Charles Lush pronounced sentence, and then went from the court to begin their reign of terror.

The initial act of the militants was the defacing that afternoon in the Manchester art gallery of five paintings by Leighton and other famous artists. The initial act of the authorities, in preparation for the reign, was the issuance of a general warning by Scotland Yard to owners and tenants of property, and the taking of unusual precautions by the police throughout the United Kingdom.

Since then, according to the published records, not a day, and for days in sequence scarcely an hour, has passed without militant damage being done to person or to property, or without danger or fear or inconvenience being caused to some of the public.

The activities of the militants have ranged from throwing pepper on Premier Asquith and a dead cat at Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, to burning the Midland railway sheds at Bradford with a loss of $500,000, and attempting to blow up part of the Bank of England. They have endangered hundreds of lives; they have done direct property damage and caused indirect losses to the extent of millions of dollars.

The militants, in their campaigns have used fire, bombs, mines, hatchets, hammers, revolvers, pokers, knives, bludgeons, stones, tar, paint, riding switches, horse whips, dog whips, umbrellas, foul smelling chemicals, corrosive chemicals, barbed wire entanglements for police, besides using as weapons their fists, nails, teeth and feet.

The militants have burned wholly or partly, country mansions in charge of servants, who escaped only by being awakened by the flames; castles, including Ballinrain, Alberuchle and Lisburn; unoccupied country houses, some owned by peers and members of parliament; railway stations, railway sheds, railway cars, churches, factories, timber yards, hayricks, exhibition buildings, conservatories, race track grandstands, cricket grandstands, football grandstands, furniture, organs, tapestries, paintings, boat houses, racing shells, a Carnegie library, town corporation structures, college and school buildings (including a Cambridge laboratory), and an empty hospital.

They have attempted to burn the Royal academy, buildings at Harrow school, aeroplane sheds of the army flying corps, and a historic church. They have plotted, according to the Daily Mirror, to burn London by simultaneously firing all the big timber yards and cutting the telegraph and telephone wires surrounding.

They have with bombs destroyed or damaged shops, railway stations, railway cars, churches, country houses, conservatories, the Royal observatory at Edinburgh, the Liverpool cotton exchange and the Trade hall at Manchester. They have destroyed with a bomb an empty car attached to an express train, endangering passengers in other cars, and they are charged with having tried to wreck an express by obstructing the track.

They have placed bombs which failed to work or were found before exploding in streets, shops, tube stations, castles, a public library, a tennis club, a theater, St. Paul's cathedral and the football pavilion at Cambridge.

They have sent bombs through the mails, addressed to Reginald McKenna, home secretary, and other prominent men, one of the bombs badly injuring the hand of a mail sorter; they have exploded mines in attempts to blow up Holloway prison, and to breach a canal to cause a flood; they have plotted to blow up houses of members of parliament; they have scattered dummy bombs broadcast, both to advertise their movement and to terrorize. At one time the London papers declared that "every day brings its bomb," and instructions on the art of handling unexploded bombs safely were printed daily.

They have pummeled Premier Asquith, dog-whipped Lord Weardale, horsewhipped Holloway prison physicians, hurled apples in court at Justice Lord Balveeen, thrown hammers at a judge in Old Bailey, scattered flour over Thomas McKinnon Wood, secretary for Scotland, and over John Redmond, and have painted Redmond's statue green; they have covered the earl of Derby's statue with tar; they have harassed cabinet ministers at meetings; they have plotted to kidnap Chancellor Lloyd George, Justice Lush (who sentenced Mrs. Pankhurst) and the children of Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty; they have threatened Home Secretary McKenna with death, and are categorically charged with having tried to throw over the cliffs into the sea the late Sir Henry Curtis Bennett, a judge who had sentenced many suffragettes.

They have rioted Sunday after Sunday in Trafalgar square or Hyde park and have marched, now shrieking, now singing "The March of the Women," to Downing street in attempts to besiege Premier Asquith's official residence. These riots have meant serious affrays with the police and many arrests.

They have ruined or injured thousands of letters in hundreds of mail boxes throughout the British Isles by the use of corrosive fluids; court proceedings showed that in ten weeks in London alone they destroyed or damaged 8,445 mail packets in 655 boxes.

They have smashed tens of thousands of windows in cities and towns all over the kingdom, including the windows of police stations.

They have slashed famous paintings and smashed curios in museums; they have torn up public flower beds, felled putting greens on golf courses, wrecked furniture in newspaper offices, caused disturbances in the house of commons, punctured hundreds of automobile tires, fired a huge Crimean war cannon at night and frightened the whole city of Blackburn, ruined library books by cutting the leaves, stamped hotel bedding with "Votes for Women," thrown chemicals of foul odor at town councillors, wrecked taxicab interiors, interrupted meetings of learned societies and political parties, and daubed white paint over much of the interior of Birmingham cathedral. They have plotted to damage light-houses and to attack every theater and music hall in London simultaneously by scattering a pungent powder over the audiences to cause sneezing and skin burning.

They have interrupted many services in Westminster abbey, St. Paul's cathedral, York minster, Glasgow cathedral, and other churches by chanting "God Save Mrs. Pankhurst," and before being ejected they have sometimes fought, shirked and lain on the floor kicking. They have defaced tapestries and paintings during the progress of elaborate receptions in the West end of London, some of them given by peeresses, so that frightened hostesses had to engage numerous detectives as guards.

They have scattered suffragette leaflets upon the king and queen, and have harangued the royal pair in theaters and on the street; they have attempted to mob the royal carriage; they have caused discord in Buckingham palace, the queen becoming furiously angry with ladies-in-waiting who espoused the militant cause, among the resignations from the court entourage being that of Lady Shaftesbury; they have obtained the private telephone number of the king and have got him on the wire, to his exasperation; they have caused cards for court presentations to be changed in form, and have made extra precautions on court days necessary.

They have hurt the London season and the tourist trade and thus inflicted extensive loss of business upon shops and hotels; they have caused large sums to be spent for guards for country estates, historic castles, railroad stations and tunnels, churches, museums, shops, municipal buildings, and Shakespeare's memorials; they have caused the regatta at Henley and the golf championships at St. Andrews to be "as if they were in a state of siege," so the cables said, because of the numerous guards; they have caused wholesale closing of public buildings in London and other places, including Windsor castle, Tower of London (jewel room), Hampton court palace, British museum, and cathedrals, museums and art galleries generally; they have forced each cabinet minister to have three detectives as constant guards, and they have made the police "nerve racked," again in the words of the cables.

PROBLEM FOR THE MAIDENS

In Hot Weather Will They Have to Come to Costume Somewhat Resembling Eve's?

Jerome S. McWade, the wealthy Duluth connoisseur, said at a recent dinner:

"I spent the winter on the Riviera. The winter fashions were really shocking—shocking, that is to Comstock minds. Nothing shocks me.

"But in the evening at the Nice Country club dances young girls would wear sleeveless gowns that left the back quite bare from the waist up. They could say truly—ha, ha, ha!—that they hadn't a stitch on their backs, eh? And in the afternoon at the dances young girls would wear gowns that were either slashed to the knee, or else that were—a still subtler device—transparent to the knees, permitting the slim and silken limb to gleam through a panel of lace or tulle.

"A western millionaire at the Negresco, in Nice, on seeing his three daughters in gowns of this radical type, gave a loud laugh one day last winter and said:

"By jingo, girls, what will you leave off when the hot weather comes?"—New York Tribune.

Tough on the Bears. Some time ago Walter Shaw, known as one of Gardner's most persistent wags, wrote a letter to the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It was deplorable, he said, the way the government men in charge of the Yellowstone park treated the wild animals. Their cruelty was absolutely barbaric. Just to cite one instance, he said, these scoundrels did not give the poor bears anything to eat during the entire winter, when the whole park is blanketed with snow.

The society immediately started an investigation, beginning at the office of the secretary of the interior. Such cruelty must be stopped. It pressed its investigation until some friendly naturalist told them that bears hibernate all winter.

Terrible to Contemplate.

A distinguished member of the English bar was once sojourning at a farm in the West of Scotland. One morning the farmer asked him to go out and have a shot or two at the rabbits, which were very plentiful. The learned lawyer went, and he blazed away for a whole afternoon, but without singeing the hair of a rabbit. The farmer and the would-be sportsman returned home, the former silent and disappointed. At last an idea struck him.

"Mr. S—," he exclaimed, clapping his companion on the back, "supposin' one o' thae rabbits had turned on ye, what wud ye hao done?"

Naturally. Sonny—Pa, what's a hazzard? Pa—It is a man who has an impediment of his intellect.

It's all right to decorate an old house with paint, but a cynical old face—well, that's different.

HER MOTHER-IN-LAW Proved a Wise, Good Friend.

A young woman out in Ia. found a wise, good friend in her mother-in-law, jokes notwithstanding. She writes: "I was greatly troubled with my stomach, complexion was blotchy and yellow. After meals I often suffered sharp pains and would have to lie down. My mother often told me it was the coffee I drank at meals. But when I'd quit coffee I'd have a severe headache.

"While visiting my mother-in-law I remarked that she always made such good coffee, and asked her to tell me how. She laughed and told me it was easy to make good 'coffee' when you use Postum.

"I began to use Postum as soon as I got home, and now we have the same good 'coffee' (Postum) every day, and I have no more trouble. Indigestion is a thing of the past, and my complexion has cleared up beautifully.

"My grandmother suffered a great deal with her stomach. Her doctor told her to leave off coffee. She then took tea but that was just as bad. "She finally was induced to try Postum which she has used for over a year. She traveled during the winter over the greater part of Iowa, visiting, something she had not been able to do for years. She says she owes her present good health to Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins. The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

"There's a Reason" for Postum. —sold by Grocers.

METHODIST CHURCH

(J. W. Hendrix, Pastor)

Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. Preaching both morning and evening by the pastor. Subject for the morning, "Source and Need of Leadership." Last Sunday evening the services were rained out and we hope to give this coming Sunday evening the third of the fourth sermon lectures on "Social and Economic Justice." We intend to steer clear of any political party, in fact it is not politics we are after. We are endeavoring to treat this live subject from a thoroughly Christian point of view. We feel that this subject is within the province of the pulpit, provided it is treated in harmony with Christian ethics. You are invited to come. Good music at every service our motto. Services will close with the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

BAPTIST CHURCH

(Herbert Haywood Pastor)

Bible school at 10:00 a. m. Preaching services at 11 in the morning, and at 7:45, p. m. On account of sickness the pastor was not able to be out last Sunday, but he hopes to preach this Sunday on the subjects, "The Gospel and the Conscience, and The Gospel for the Heart." Midweek service Wednesday nights at 7:45. You are cordially invited to all of the services. God is your best friend, and the Gospel tells you so. We want you to know it; come and find it out, in God's appointed way. Col. Continental Oil Stone moved quietly about the city the first of the week, renewing acquaintances and making it impossible for the users of his wares to forget that he handles only the best at perfectly unobtainable prices.
