PAYING DEMOCRATIC BILLS

President Wants "War Loan" of $100,000,000—Remember the Tariff

At Belen last Thursday, the people of New Mexico were treated to the second political convention held this year in which there were no leaders, no bosses, no previous preparations, no states prepared—just a spontaneous and magical gathering of patriotism, justice and humanity, delightfully represented by the confite and self-sacrificing "Armageddons" of the suffering, bleeding commonwealth, each of whom hoped that they might be permitted to display the steel of their fealty to the cause of the dear people by a nomination for one of the offices within their sovereign state. And after the Alphonse and Gaston stunt had been enacted amid the simple and direct "amens" of the disinterested representatives, Francis C. Wilson of Santa Fe and John M. McTeer of Luna county, romped delightedly under the wire for the offices of congressman and corporation commissioner. And then it was that the progressive party of New Mexico began to show "the aggressive, forward, pushing, militant optimism" so sweetly sung by the wealthy young man who owns, edits and manages the Santa Fe New Mexican, the leading democratic paper of the state. There were no bosses there, and yet the report says that among those present were the Hon. Miguel Antonio Otero, Hon. George W. Prichard, Hon. Ramon Liberato Baca, while the Hon. William H. Harrison Llewellyn was only permitted to be present in spirit.

The other political gathering which partook of the qualities of sympathy and suffering for the hard-worked tax-payers, rigorously eliminating every element of the old, jaded, jaundiced boss-ridden convention "happened" at Albuquerque last month when the democratic cohorts bled profusely for the honor of our beloved state. It is possible there were no bosses at this lovefeast, although all the state officers who declare allegiance to the principles of government as propounded by W. Wilson, Litt D. H. Ferguson, Esq., and the late T. Jefferson, Gent., were on the floor of the sanctuary in sackcloths and ashes.

And at the republican state convention? Yes, they were there—the men of the hour—judges of our courts, justices of our supreme court, lawyers of reputation, big men representing successful businesses in its various ramifications, young men of energy—bosses all, if we are to take seriously the frightened cry of the democratic press of the state. This old, familiar cry of the opponents of the great constructive party of the state and nation—that it is the party of bosses and that it is living in the past—must die out in the deepest silence in the face of the actual conditions. The members of the convention body themselves dictated the platform and the candidates and no autocratic demand on the part of any of the so-called leaders forced upon the convention men or measures which were not in the fullest sympathy with the great issues of the present day. This republican convention was one of the people for the people, and by the people. It was cosmopolitan in that the old and the new were recognized. The temporary chairman Senator Catron, is a war horse of the days when the republican party was fighting for its existence and with and issue before it which was the elevation and freedom of the human race—an issue which it has never lost its hold on. The permanent chairman is a representative of the young men—the newer school with the present issues before them the issues which have been forced upon the attention of the people by the growth of the nation and the new elements which have come into our national life. The republican convention was one that gives promises of better things to come and must appeal to the patriotic sense of the electors of New Mexico. In it there was no note of discord and no attempt to dodge the vital issues of the hour.

PAYING DEMOCRATIC BILLS

The country might as well be honest with itself. President Wilson has called upon congress to levy a "war loan" of a $100,000,000 which marks the crisis in the affairs of the present democratic administration. That this great sum of money is needed to make up the deficit caused by decreased revenue due to the war in Europe no well-informed person will believe. The present financial troubles of the administration began eight months ago and have increased rapidly ever since. In order to show the exact situation prior to last August when the first effects of the war were felt The Kansas City Journal says that for five months beginning March 1st when the democratic tariff went into effect, until the last day of July, conditions were normal, and they afford an honest comparison with the same five months of the previous year under a protective tariff.

During these five months the importations from abroad to the United States amounted in value to $838,000,000. For the same period in 1913 the importations amounted to $705,900,000. This is an increase during the Wilson administration of nearly 20 per cent, and an average increase of $26,000,000 a month. For this period of the democratic tariff the exports from the United States fell off 10 per cent in comparison with the same months in 1913. This means that the increased importation and reduced exportation took a large quantity of work and wages from American workmen. For these five months the balance of trade ran against the United States, and continued to do so during all of the period. Upon this basis the general deficit to the United States treasury due to the failure of the tariff to provide sufficient revenues

Republican Nominee for Congress Makes Statement to Voters

SOMETHING ABOUT WILLIAMS

Corporation Commissioner a Worker—His Reelection is Assured

From his home at Tierra Amarilla, B. C. Hernandez, the republican candidate for representative to the Sixty-fourth Congress of the United States, makes the following statement to the residents of Lincoln county:

"I desire to announce to all of my fellow citizens that the republican state convention, held at Santa Fe, New Mexico, on the 24th day of last August, honored me with the nomination of representative to the Sixty-fourth Congress of the United States, as expressed by the unanimous voice of the delegates composing said assembly, in obedience to the will of their respective localities. I have accepted the honor thus conferred upon me, believing it is my duty, and abiding by the command of my fellow republicans, notwithstanding the fact that the exigencies of the case are both onerous and difficult.

"I subscribe to the declaration of principles and platform as enunciated and adopted by the convention and also to the platform adopted by the national convention held in Chicago in 1912.

"I feel extremely grateful for the honor conferred upon me, and it shall be my endeavor to prove worthy of it in every way possible, to the end that my candidacy shall be acceptable to the majority of the voters of the state.

"In the event of my election I will endeavor to discharge the duties of representative in a manner conducive to the development and best interests of our state, wholly eliminating the idea of partisanship, since that would not, as I view the matter, be compatible with the duties of a public servant of all the people.

"I respectfully ask my fellow citizens to consider my candidacy, giving me their united support, and I declare to you in good faith and honesty that if I am elected I shall be the faithful representative of the state of New Mexico, and will zealously defend its interests with all the energy of which I am possessed."

HUGH H. WILLIAMS

Hugh H. Williams, candidate of the republican party for member of the state corporation commission and at present a member of that body, was born in Corwin, North Wales, July 31, 1875. Four years afterward he came to America, first registering as an embryo American citizen of Utica, N. Y., where his parents located on their arrival. A few months later the family moved to Pueblo, Colorado. In 1882 another change of residence was made when the family moved to Silver City, New Mexico, and again two years later a location was made in Deming, New Mexico, where Hugh has since resided. But a short time after arriving in Deming, Williams senior left his family and went to the gold fields of California, from which place he has never returned.

The subject of this sketch was then but a little over seven years of age and in the deserted family were the mother and four other children; but Hugh showed the mettle of which he was constructed and went to work to help support the family. Of course he was deprived of the privileges of school attendance and all the education he has accumulated in the "after years, and it having been gathered in the hard school of life itself.

A mere child, he entered the employ of a mercantile establishment and there he labored for a period of four years. At the age of fifteen he was a general helper in a car painter shop and at this occupation he remained for two and one-half years.

In March, 1894, at the age of seventeen years, Hugh entered upon the life of a railroader, which has been his occupation ever since, the first position being that of switchman for the Southern Pacific railroad company, and five years later he was the joint yardmaster for the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe railroads, at Deming. From 1900 to 1903 Williams held positions at Lordsburg, New Mexico, and at Guthrie, Arizona, where he was transfer agent for the Arizona Copper company at the former point, and for the Phelps-Dodge company at the latter where he resigned, returning to Deming in the latter year to accept the position of yardmaster for the Santa Fe railroad company. In 1895 he was promoted to the position of freight conductor, and in 1909 he was made passenger conductor, which position he resigned in January, 1912, to take the position of state corporation commissioner, receiving a flattering vote which showed the esteem in which he was held by the New Mexico electorate.

In the allotment of terms, Williams drew the short term of two years and was chosen chairman for the term. That length of time is required to fully equip a man for the duties of this important position and for him to become thoroughly familiarized with the work.

In nominating Hugh Williams for this very important position the republican party recognized both his fitness and ability and realized the value of the experience gained in three years of service so far. He is a worker; he is honest, he is thorough; he is one of the people and is their friend, and his association with the railroads has given him a thorough insight into their needs and their value to the state. With all the phases of the relation of the corporations and the state, Williams is peculiarly well equipped to grapple. The state will gain by having an experienced member on this board who knows the ins and outs of these intricate questions, which so deeply effect the interests of the state.

Mr. Williams is Past Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias for New Mexico and present Supreme Representative of that order. He is also a member of the Order of Railroad Conductors, Division 267, San Marcial, and a member of the Masons at Deming.

GREAT JEHOSEPHAT, LOOK WHO IS HERE

Determined Line-up of Bushers in Deadly Combat

OBESITY DARES ATTENUATION

Art Rolland and John Baird to Mix it With Syl Anderson

Next Sunday is the day and 2 o'clock p. m. the hour. Then the slaughter will begin. When it will end no one knows but Allah, and he isn't allowing any interviews to creep into print.

The bull pen is the baseball park in Carrizozo, otherwise known as Amusement Park.

Oh Ichabod, my Ichabod! Well, it's a game of baseball which has been advertised as the greatest ball game of the season. And that it will be such cannot be disputed when one laments the following line-up of determined stickmen:

Substitutes: Doc Tice, Von Johnson, Ole Olesen. The umpires have not been selected, no one being found as yet who has a steel cage handy. However, some intrepid referee will doubtless be enticed into the arena for the purpose of estimating the amount of the damage and prorating the same between the physicians and undertakers.

Bill Barnett with his galvanized horn has been retained by the Slims as the official rooter. The Fats declare they need no rooters because science is mighty and will prevail.

Seriously, however, this game next Sunday will be a whirlwind of genuine fun, and as it is a benefit game for the Carrizozo Browns which club has made a most excellent showing this season, and as the price of admission is only 25 cents, everybody should attend.

Each side has made a bond binding them not to bring in more than 99 runs; so the game ought to jog through the nine innings in reasonable time.

If you want double value for the money invested, don't fail to be at the ball grounds next Sunday at 2 p. m.

LIGHTS ASSURED

Dave Jackson of the Wildcat Leasing company of White Oaks, was in town Tuesday looking after the unloading of powerful new dynamos and other electrical supplies for their plant. He advised A. C. Wingfield that the company would be in Carrizozo with their electric power by the first of the coming year.

SYNOPSIS.

Tyron Dunham, just alighted from a train, is approached by a beautiful girl who asks his protection. She is in fear of her distress. Dunham takes her to his home and in the absence of his mother and sister borrows a hat and a cloak for her. He takes her to a dinner party at the home of a friend and gives her the name of Mary Remington. Her actions stamp her as a girl of refinement and breeding. After the dinner she requests Dunham to assist her to leave the city. He puts her on a train for Chicago and supplies her with money. Dunham has become intensely interested in the girl and anxious to solve the mystery which surrounds her. Stories in the newspapers of missing girls only add to his bewilderment. Arrived in Chicago the girl buys some cheap clothing in an attempt at disguise and starts out to seek employment. She gets work as a waitress in the home of Mrs. Rhinohart. Dunham receives a package containing the borrowed hat and cloak with a note of thanks signed "Mary."

As Tryon Dunham entered the sleeper, and placed his suit-case beside him on the seat, he was reminded of the night when he had taken this train with the girl who had come to occupy a great part of his thoughts in these days.

All during the journey he planned a campaign for finding her, until he came to know in his heart that this was the real mission for which he had come to Chicago, although he intended to perform the other business thoroughly and conscientiously.

Upon his arrival in Chicago, he inserted a number of advertisements in the daily papers, having laid various plans by which she might safely communicate with him without running the risk of detection by her enemy.

Is M. R. in Chicago, will she kindly communicate with T. Dunham, General Delivery? Important.

Mrs. Bowman's friend has something of importance to say in the lady who dined with her October 8th. Kindly send address to T. D., Box 7, Inter-Ocean office.

"Mary," let me know where and when you speak with you about a matter of importance. Tryon D., Record-Herald L.

These and others appeared in the different papers, but when he began to get communications from all sorts of poor creatures, every one demanding money, and when he found himself running wild-goose chases after different Marys and M. R.s, he abandoned all hope of personal columns in the newspapers. Then he began a systematic search for music teachers and musicians, for it seemed to him that this would be her natural way of earning her living, if she was so hard pressed that this was necessary.

It was the evening of the third day after his law work was finished that with a sad heart he went toward the hotel where he had been stopping. He was obliged at last to face the fact that his search had been in vain. He had almost reached the hotel when he met a business acquaintance, who welcomed him warmly, for far and wide among legal men the firm of which Judge Blackwell was the senior member commanded respect.

"Well, well!" said the older man. "Is this you, Dunham? I thought you were booked for home two days ago. Suppose you come home to dinner with me. I've a matter I'd like to talk over with you before you leave. I shall count this a most fortunate meeting if you will."

Just because he caught at any straw to keep him longer in Chicago, Dunham accepted the invitation. Just as the cab door was swung open in front of the handsome house where he was to be a guest, two men passed slowly by, like shadows out of place, and there floated in his ears one sentence voiced in broad Irish: "She goes by th' name of Mary, ye says? All right, sorr. I'll keep a sharp lookout."

Tryon Dunham turned and caught a glimpse of silver changing hands. One man was slight and fashionably dressed, and the light that was cast from the neighboring window showed his face to be dark and handsome. The other was short and stout, and clad in a faded Prince Albert coat that begged at shoulders and elbows. He wore rubbers over his shoes, and his footsteps sounded like those of a heavy dog. The two passed around the corner, and Dunham and his host entered the house.

They were presently seated at a well appointed table, where an elaborate dinner was served. The talk was of pleasant things that go to make up the world of refinement; but the mind of the guest was troubled, and constantly kept hearing that sentence, "She goes by the name of Mary."

shot out from the back door, there was a peal of laughter, an Irish good-night, and a short man in baggy coat and rubbers shambled out and scuttled noiselessly down to the back street.

CHAPTER IX.

Dunham slept very little that night. His soul was hovering between joy and anxiety. Almost he was inclined to find some way to send her word about the man he had seen lingering about the place, and yet perhaps it was foolish. He had doubtless been to call on the cook, and there might be no connection whatever between what Dunham had heard and seen and the lonely girl.

Next day, with careful hands, the girl made herself neat and trim with a few materials she had at hand. She gathered her little hoard of money to take with her, and cast one look back over the cheerless room, with a great longing to bid it farewell forever, and go back to the world where she belonged; yet she realized that it was a quiet refuge for her from the world that she must hereafter face. Then she closed her door, went down the stairs and out into the street, like any other servant on her afternoon out, walking away to meet whatever crisis might arise. She had not dared to speculate much about the subject of the coming interview. It was likely he wanted to inquire about her comfort, and perhaps offer material aid. She would not accept it, of course, but it would be a comfort to know that some one cared. She longed inexpressibly for this interview, just because he had been kind, and because he belonged to that world from which she had come. He would keep her secret. He had true eyes. She did not notice soft, padded feet that came wobbling down the street after her, and she only drew a little further out toward the curbing when a blue-eyed, red face peered into hers as she stood waiting for the car. She did not notice the shabby man who boarded the car after she was seated.

Tryon Dunham stood in the great stone doorway, watching keenly the passing throng. He saw the girl at once as she got out of the car, but he did not notice the man in the baggy coat, who lumbered after her and watched with wondering scrutiny as Dunham came forward, lifted his hat, and took her hand respectfully. Here was an element he did not understand. He stood staring, puzzled, as they disappeared into the great building; then he planted himself in a convenient place to watch until his charge should come out again. This was perhaps a gentleman who had come to engage her to work for him. She might be thinking of changing her place. He must be on the alert.

Dunham placed two chairs in the far corner of the inner parlor, where they were practically alone, save for an occasional passer through the hall. He put the girl into the most comfortable one, and then went to draw down the shade, to shut a sharp ray of afternoon sunlight from her eyes. She sat there and looked down comfort to me if I had known where it was. I had not even missed it, because at this time of year I have very little use for it. It is my traveling hat."

He looked at her again as though the sight of her was good to him, and his gaze made her quite forget the words she had planned to say.

"I am so glad I have found you!" he went on. "You have not been out of my thoughts since I left you that night on the train. I have blamed myself over and over again for having gone then. I should have found some way to stand by you. I have not had one easy moment since I saw you last."

His tone was so intense that she could not interrupt him; she could only sit and listen in wonder, half trembling, to the low-spoken torrent of feeling that he expressed. She tried to protest, but the look in his face stopped her. He went on with an earnestness that would not be turned aside from its purpose.

"I came to Chicago that I might search for you. I could not stand the suspense any longer. I have been looking for you in every way I could think of, without openly searching, for that I dared not do lest I might jeopardize your safety. I was almost in despair when I went to dine with Mr. Phillips last evening. I felt I could not go home without knowing at least that you were safe, and now that I have found you, I cannot leave you until I know at least that you have no further need for help."

She summoned her courage now, and spoke in a voice full of feeling.

"Oh, you must not feel that way. You helped me just when I did not know what to do, and put me in the way of helping myself. I shall never cease to thank you for your kindness to an utter stranger. And now I am doing very well." She tried to smile, but the tears came unbidden instead.

"You poor child!" His tone was full of something deeper than compassion, and his eyes spoke volumes. "Do you suppose I think you are doing well when I see you wearing the garb of a menial and working for people to whom you are far superior—people who by all the rights of education and refinement ought to be in the kitchen serving you?"

"It was the safest thing I could do, and really the only thing I could get to do at once," she tried to explain. "I'm doing it better every day."

"I have no doubt. You can be an artist at serving as well as anything else, if you try. But now that is all over. I am going to take care of you. There is no use in protesting. If I may not do it in one way, I will in another. There is one question I must ask first, and I hope you will trust me enough to answer it. Is there any other—any other man who has the right to care for you, and is unable or unwilling to do it?"

She looked up at him, her large eyes still shining with tears, and shuddered slightly.

"Oh, no!" she said. "Oh, no, I thank God there is not! My dear uncle has been dead for four years, and there has never been any one else who cared since Father died."

He looked at her, a great light beginning to come into his face; but she did not understand and turned her head to hide the tears.

"Then I am going to tell you something," he said, his tone growing lower, yet clear enough for her to hear every word distinctly.

A tall, oldish girl with a discontented upper lip stalked through the hall, glanced in at the door, and sniffed significantly, but they did not see her. A short, baggy-coated man outside hovered anxiously around the building and passed the very window of that room, but the shade opposite them was down, and they did not know. The low, pleasant voice went on:

"I have come to care a great deal for you since I first saw you, and I want you to give me the right to care for you always and protect you against the whole world."

She looked up, wondering.

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I love you, and I want to make you my wife. Then I can defy the whole world if need be, and put you where you ought to be."

"Oh!" she breathed softly.

"Wait, please," he pleaded, laying his hand gently on her little, trembling one. "Don't say anything until I have finished. I know of course that this will be startling to you. You have been brought up to feel that such things must be more carefully and deliberately done. I do not want you to feel that this is the only way I can help you, either. If you are not willing to be my wife, I will find some other plan. But this is the best way, if it isn't too hard on you, for I love you as I never dreamed that I could love a woman. The only question is, whether you can put up with me until I can teach you to love me a little."

Carlyle's Caustic Tongue.

A delightful Carlyle story is told in connection with the painting of the portrait of Carlyle by Sir John Millais which was slashed by a militant suffragette in the National Portrait gallery, London.

The portrait was painted in 1877 at the home of Millais. Carlyle and his niece, who accompanied him, were both impressed with the magnificence of the furnishings and the objects of art with which it was filled.

"And does all this—er—come from a paint pot?" queried the niece. The artist replied in the affirmative. Then this characteristic comment came from Carlyle:

"Ah, well, it shows what a number of fools there are in the world."

Only three sittings were given and the picture is classed as "unfinished." Maybe that remark is the reason why it was never completed.

A man who can dispose of his troubles for a consideration is a genius.

Steward Thought Cigars Had Roosevelt's Indorsement and Therefore Must Be Good.

William H. Childs, a leader of the Progressive party, has a yacht called Joyance. It was this yacht that went out to meet Colonel Roosevelt when he came back from Spain a few weeks ago. The other day Childs had another guest aboard the Joyance. After dinner the steward, a recent recruit, brought cigars. Guest and host helped themselves and each lighted up. "My goodness," said Childs, as he drew the first whiff, "where'd you get these cigars?"

EDITORIAL COMMENT

President Wilson has been before the congress of the United States and asked for a "war levy" of $100,000,000. In the senate, Senator Simmons is endeavoring the push through the river and harbor appropriation bill, which, since it reached the upper body, has been delayed by a skillful filibuster lead by Senator Burton. It is freely predicted that this naked and shameless pork measure will be passed in practically the form in which it left the house, with Representative Ferguson, of New Mexico, voting for it.

This nation will therefore, have presented to it the spectacle of the democratic majority in congress voting in one chamber new tax law as requested by the president last Friday, for the purpose of raising money to overcome a deficit, while in the other house it approves a wasteful and extravagant appropriation bill, loaded with pork, and considered passable only on the ground that among its numerous indefensible paragraphs provision is made for a few essential projects, says the New York Sun

And these contradictory actions are to be taken by a political party which in 1912 declared: "We denounce the profligate waste of the money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation through the lavish appropriations of recent republican congresses, which have kept taxes high and reduced the purchasing power of the people's toil. We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which befits a democratic government and a reduction in the number of useless offices, the salaries of which drain the substance of the people"

Elected to office on that comprehensive pledge to practice economy the democratic party today designs an increase in taxes to cure a situation of which it has full knowledge, because it made it with its free-trade fallacy, and at the same moment it proposes to put on the statute book a law which has already been pitilessly exposed as an example of the very "profligate waste" that two years ago was so bitterly denounced. What will any democratic candidate for congress say in answer to a citizen who, in his campaign, reads to him those two sentences from the democratic platform of 1912 and demands from him how that pledge has been observed?

Can the Hon. H. B. Ferguson side step in this instance, also?

Our democratic friends who have democratic newspapers in which to vent their anxiety over the result of the approaching congressional election in New Mexico, are diligently repeating the good old dope about B. C. Hernandez, the republican candidate, being unfit for the place because he has had no experience. In this regard it is quite refreshing to quote from the editorial columns of the Roswell Record, a rather reliable mouthpiece of the New Mexico democracy in which it expresses its opinion of the nominee of its party for congressional honors. In its issue of August 19, prior to the nomination of Mr. Hernandez, it says, "Mr. Ferguson has made some most egregious blunders in matters of party policy, and while they have been mistakes wholly of the head they have arisen because he did not understand conditions in the various localities and refused to take the advice of the people who did understand them and whom, from a lifetime of personal knowledge, he knew that he could trust. He was compelled to meet these problems alone from the very sincere desire of several of the leaders that he should make all the enemies that he could in advance of the senatorial campaign, a trap which he has almost invariably fallen into.

It would seem from the above that some men can be a member of congress a good many years and still be unable to do anything for their constituency, because they don't know how and are too stubborn to accept advice. And it would also appear from the foregoing bonnet from the democratic organ of the democratic Peas Valley that the democratic party of the state has a few "leaders" who are pulling a few strings for what might be called self aggrandizement.

But it shows mighty plainly that despite his congressional experience H. B. Ferguson is a weak, vacillating representative, who might make a passably fair probate clerk in one of the counties of the state in which the railroad has not yet penetrated—but not in the halls of congress.

It is a darn sight easier to make excuses than to make good.

A SPONTANEOUS AND MAGICAL GATHERING

would amount to about $100,000,000 a year—a significant figure in view of the fact that this is the amount asked for by the president in his plea for "war taxes."

If there had been no European war practically the same deficit would have been encountered, but in all probability the administration would not have had the assurance to put such a system of special taxation into effect as is now proposed. The war is merely an excuse. It is a subterfuge eagerly accepted by the administration to fool the people and cover up the real causes of the government's financial embarrassment. President Wilson in his message to congress was very careful to state that "during the month of August" there was a falling off in government revenues. He made no reference to the fact that August was no exception to all the other months during which the country has had the new tariff. "I need not tell you," says the president, "to what this falling off is due. It is due in chief part, not to the reductions recently made in the customs duties, but to the great decrease in importations." That is for the month of August. The war had effect only in August. Again, the president is suddenly solicitous for the business of the country. He says the treasury could get along for awhile "but at what cost to the business of the community?" Certain financial arrangements might be made to get the money, he argues, but "it might become necessary at a time which could not be controlled or determined by the convenience of the business of the country."

Do the president and his friends imagine that the sensible people of this nation can be fooled by this sort of sophistry? Surely they cannot place such faith in the credulity of intelligent Americans. Where are the blessings of a low tariff when the people must make up the deficit by paying extra for gasoline, beer, soda water, theater tickets, chewing gum, etc.? For it must be remembered that the estimated deficit in governmental revenues is not based on the imports and exports of the month of August, but on those of the five months previous to the outbreak of the European war. The democratic tariff without either issuing bonds or levying special taxes would have bankrupted our government, war or no war. The last low tariff under the Cleveland administration had exactly the same effect only in that case instead of special taxes the administration issued more bonds. President Wilson is more fortunate than President Cleveland, for he has the war in Europe to hide behind. The new internal revenue taxes are to make up the natural and inevitable deficit of a democratic tariff, and the European struggle makes it convenient to refer to as a "war tax."

REMEMBER THE TARIFF

Just at this time, when the almost total cessation of imports from Europe has cut our tariff revenues down to a minimum, there may be a tendency on the part of the average voter to forget that tariff is the chief issue of the coming congressional elections. Europe will not always remain at war. There will come a time, perhaps not many months hence, when imports will resume their flow, and then the tariff will be a vital issue again—even more so in some respects than it has been in any period of our history.

The reason is not far to seek. We have grounds for expecting that American industry is approaching a stage of development that it has never heretofore reached. Its mighty competitors beyond the waters are paralyzed. The raw materials which are ordinarily used by those competitors will come to the United States, and at prices lower than those which prevailed while there was stronger competition in buying. The demand for American products will be larger than ever before, both at home and abroad. All these considerations will make for an unparalleled expansion of the industries of the United States.

In times such as these there is little need for a protective tariff. While tariff only equalizes competition the war has wiped competition out. But when Europe begins again to practice the arts of peace, there will be on one hand more cheap labor than at any period of the past fifty years. The broken soldier whose savings have been swept away by the war will go to work at any wage he can get. The necessity of rebuilding their vast industries will make the European nations fight harder than ever for trade will induce them to make concessions that would not have been asked before the outbreak of the war. And it is at that time the American manufacturer is going to need, as he has never needed before, the protecting arm of the government. If American business is to keep its foothold if American labor is to continue in employment, the end of the European war must find home industries protected by the wisest and strongest tariff law that ever found its way to the statute books.

That law must necessarily be enacted by the next congress. In all probability the succeeding congress will arrive too late. The time for the voter to consider the problem is now. American business along manufacturing lines is about to achieve new fields of expansion. No experimental democratic administration with tariff tinkering tendencies should be permitted to defeat the opportunity of a century.

MEETS SUDDEN DEATH

Wm. Brockway Thrown From Horse and Killed Last Sunday

Fort Stanton, was shocked last Sunday morning by the news that William Brockway, who had set out the day before for the cow camp at Mesalero Agency, had been thrown from his horse and killed. "Bill" Brockway, as he was known to every one in this part of the country, where he was born and raised was the son of F. W. Brockway, the Post carpenter, and was one of the most popular and best-liked young men in this section. He was employed as a "bron," or cowboy, at this station and his sudden taking off recalls an incident of recent occurrence as showing the stuff he was made of. A few weeks ago expert farmer Weber, while returning from the Mesalero cow camp with a Fort Stanton outfit, sustained a broken leg when his horse bolted between two close set trees. He continued with the party to the Fort, but the injury rendered him helpless in the saddle, as he was obliged to ride with the broken leg hooked around the pommel. While in this helpless position he was charged at by a maddened steer, and would undoubtedly have sustained serious injury had not "Bill" Brockway, who was with the party, forced his horse in between Mr. Weber and the oncoming steer. Brockway did this at imminent risk to himself, and to the tenderfoot it sounds very much like heroism; but to "Bill" it seemed strange that his action should have been considered as anything out of the ordinary or that anybody should have thought it necessary to thank him for it. He was a cowboy, and it was all in the day's work. The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Catholic church at Lincoln, Rev. Father Girma officiating, and interment was made in the Lincoln cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation of the sympathy and help rendered us by our friends in the loss of our darling son and brother. We wish especially to thank the people of Fort Stanton, in particular the commanding officer Dr. F. C. Smith.

STENOGRAPHERS LUNCH IN GRAVEYARD

PANAMA'S BIG GUN

Largest Piece of Ordnance in World Nearing Completion.

Has a Velocity of 2,250 Feet a Second, and is Discharged by 665 Pounds of Powder—Tremendous Instrument of Peace.

Washington.—When its breech locking device has been perfected at Watervliet arsenal, the great 16-inch gun, the biggest piece of ordnance in the world, which was recently shipped from the Sandy Hook proving grounds, will be virtually ready for service in the Panama canal fortifications.

The carriage of this great gun is under construction at the Watervliet (Mass.) arsenal. It probably will be taken back to Sandy Hook for tests after being mounted, and will not be shipped to Panama before next spring.

A conception may be obtained of the tremendous power of this gun, destined to protect the Pacific entrance to the Panama canal, from the fact that it is 50 feet long, weighs 143 tons, and fires a projectile about six feet long. The projectile weighs a ton and is discharged by 665 pounds of powder. It requires eight men to carry the powder charge.

This gun has a maximum range of from 23 to 23 miles, or half the distance between New York city and West Point. The elevation permitted by its carriage will enable the gun to fire a projectile about 11 miles across the Pacific ocean. It has sufficient power, theoretically, to pierce two feet of the best armor at the muzzle. At 11 miles the gun is calculated to pierce a 12-inch armor plate, or any side armor afloat.

When a shell leaves the gun it is revolving around its axis at about 4,000 revolutions a minute, and develops a pressure of 38,000 pounds to the square inch. The pressure to the rear on the gun and forward on the projectile amounts to 7,000,000 pounds. The projectile's velocity of 2,250 feet a second gives a muzzle energy of more than 84,000 foot tons—that is, an energy capacity of raising 42 tons one foot every second.

Army ordnance officers believe this gun will be a tremendous instrument of peace when it is in position on the Panama canal.

Family of Felines Attack Police When Attempt is Made to Remove Corpse—Father Was at One Time Cashier of a Bank.

Philadelphia.—The body of an aged woman, attired in a dirt-stained wrapper, lying within a circle of cats, was found by two special policemen when they entered an unkempt, dust-covered front room at 640 North Sixteenth street in answer to an anonymous telephone call.

The cats were the only living beings in the house, and the policemen were forced to battle with them before they could move the body of the dead woman. Investigation showed that she was Miss Sarah Lippincott Starr, sev-

Robbers Ask Postmaster to Keep No More Pennies as They Weigh Too Much.

Branchville, N. J.—When Postmaster William P. Elliott arrived at the post office one morning recently he found the interior in disorder and the following sign painted on the back of a calendar hung over the safe: "Have a heart! What's this place—a kid's toy bank? Wise up! Never keep pennies; they weigh too much."

A hurried investigation showed that the safe had been robbed of about two dollars, all in pennies, which had been left in a drawer at night, after all the silver and bills had been taken home by the postmaster. In a drawer above the one where the pennies were left was $8 worth of stamps, but these were left undisturbed. The robbers gained entrance by forcing the lock on the front door.

16-YEAR-OLD BOY SAVES TWO

Milton Smith Risks His Life to Rescue Men From Drowning at Coplay, Pa.

Coplay, Pa.—Sixteen-year-old Milton Smith of this place proved himself a hero when he saved two men from drowning in the Lehigh river and just missed reaching Raymond Nolf, eighteen years old, who was drowned. Levi Stauffer and William Klopinger were the rescued men. All four, following their day's work at a bakery, went in swimming in the river. As they were wading about, the quartette suddenly stepped into a deep hole, forming a bridge pier. Stauffer and Klopinger made an effort to rescue Nolf and would have been drowned if Smith had not been near. After helping Stauffer and Klopinger to shore, Smith went after Nolf, but he had sunk and his body could not be located.

SUFFRAGETTE WINS A POINT

Shovels Grain With Laborers in Order to Get Their Signatures to Petition.

Elden, O.—Miss Elizabeth Strauss, nineteen years old, suffragist, and one of the most strenuous petition circulators in Ohio, asked a group of laborers who were perspirationally shoveling grain into a box car to sign the "votes for women" paper. "Women ought not to vote, 'lessen they do the same work as men does," one of the workers said, and the others enty years old, who, with her sister, Victoria, and a horde of cats, had occupied the house for the last 12 years. Shortly after midnight Miss Victoria Starr, who is sixty-eight years old, came upon her sister lying at full length near the cellar door on the first floor. She did not disturb her for several hours because she thought she was sleeping.

Later when she knew her sister to be dead, she notified her nephew, whose name, she says, is Walter Jordan. He called the policemen of the Twentieth and Buttonwood station.

Miss Victoria was out when the policemen called.

Police Surgeon John H. Egan found that the left arm was discolored and swollen from an infected scratch on the hand. Miss Victoria then returned and explained that her sister had pricked herself three days before with a needle but had refused to have medical aid.

"We never had a doctor in our lives and we weren't going to begin with them," said the sister.

"We were a couple of regular old maids," she said occupationally, "but

RED ARMY TROUSERS TO GO

French Soldiers Will Be Clothed in Gray-Blue—Take Seven Years to Make Change.

Paris.—The death warrant for the French "soldiers' red trousers was signed in the chamber of deputies. In the future the army of the republic will go to war clothed in a neutral shade of gray-blue, which, it is asserted, will make the wearers invisible to the enemy at 500 yards, instead of, as at present, being plainly discernible at 1,500 yards. The change is expected to take seven years.

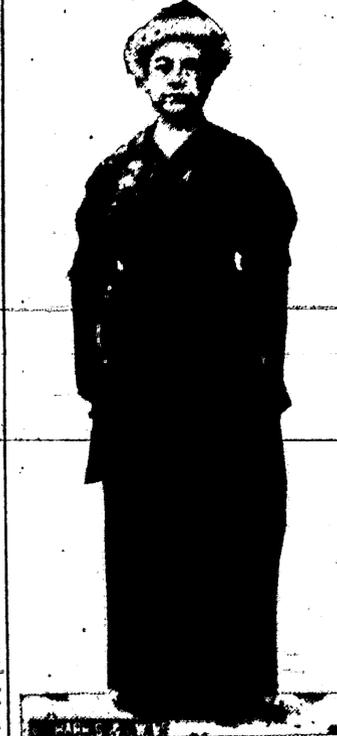

M. Messimy, the minister of war, in urging the necessity for the measure, was supported in his argument by citing the example of the British army, which adopted khaki in the Transvaal, and the experience of the war in the Balkans.

M. Lasles, an ex-cavalry officer, aroused the patriotic fervor of the deputies by saying that the French soldiers, whether they dressed in blue, red or gray, would always fight well.

visiting Washington on her way home from Newport, where she was a guest of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. In an interview she expressed herself as agreeing with the president that equal suffrage is a states rights matter and declared that southern women are not opposed to suffrage as has been said.

Minister's Son Pleads Guilty.

Los Angeles.—John F. Gray, said to be the son of a Pasadena minister, pleaded guilty to stealing a gold watch from the body of Harry Baker after an automobile had plunged over a cliff resulting in the deaths of Baker and three companions. According to the police Gray committed the robbery while Baker was dying.

nice ones," she added quickly. And then she leaped into the present tense as if her sister were still alive. "We love animals, all kinds, birds, dogs, horses, snakes, but especially cats; O, I love 'em, that is, four-legged ones. But I don't like two-legged ones," she mumbled reflectively, and shook her head decisively. "I like rats, too. Those in the cellar get many a scrap from me. Sure I feed 'em, but I have trouble keeping the cats away. Well, I'm all alone now, except for the cats, but I'll scrape along, although money is scarce."

Miss Victoria Starr is now the last of the five children of Samuel Starr, who was the cashier, 25 years ago, of the Bank of the Northern Liberties. The body of her sister, Sarah, was removed to the morgue. Doctor Egan said the death was due to natural causes.

Kaiser's Summer Diet.

Berlin.—Sea fish, strawberries and cherries make an ideal summer diet, according to the Kaiser, who says he lives almost entirely on that diet during the warm weather.

HIS IDEA OF MUSIC'S USE.

He was a lover of music who had just been to hear one of the great operas, and he was expatiating upon its beauties to an unresponsive friend, whom he observed to yawn. The music lover was hurt.

"Look here, John," he protested. "Don't you think music is of some practical benefit in life?"

"Oh, yes," said the unresponsive one. "Why, judging from the portraits I have seen of eminent musicians, especially pianists, I should say that music is great to keep the hair from falling out."—Kansas City Star.

Going Too Far.

"Jane, I don't mind buying you presents on your birthdays."

"I'm glad to hear you say that."

"And I'm willing to remember you on Christmas and Easter, and our own wedding anniversary."

"That's nice of you."

"But when you hint that I ought to remember also the anniversaries of your weddings to your two former husbands I think that's going too far."

Dramatic Values.

Uncle Eben (visiting in the city)—No-siree! We'd be sure to get stung. I tell ye it's a living impossibility for any gal to kick ten times as high as that 25-cent show we saw last night.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

"Won't you consider becoming a life partner of mine?"

"How much capital can you put in?"

The Rare Sort.
Some chaps are cheerful all the while, No matter what they're doing; And some there are who'll even smile When they know trouble's brewing.

Innuendo.
"Is dem you all's chickens?"
"Cohase dey's. my all's chickens. Whose chickens did you s'pose dey was?"

"I wass' s'posed nuffin' about 'em. But I will say dat it's mighty lucky dat a chicken won' come a runnin' an' a waggin' its tail when its regular owner whistles, same as a dog."

An Added Study.

"Don't you think you could learn to like me?"

"I might," said the girl, "but don't expect too much progress from me at first. Just now I am also learning to like grand opera, the maxixe and cavaliar."

Those Dear Girls.

Peggy—Oh, I don't know, dear. If you really love him be happy for a little while longer.

Great Relief to Him.

A Timid Traveler.

"What was the matter?"
"She sat up every night for fear the ship would hit an iceberg."

THE USUAL COURSE.

"Decided on where you would go this summer?"

"Why, we got together last night and talked it over. I mentioned my preference, my son had his and my daughter hers. We wrangled over it quite briskly for an hour or more. Finally, when we were pretty much exhausted, my wife looked up in her quiet way and said she had decided on the place two months ago.

"Whereupon we adjourned without date."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE ISSUES.

"What are the issues of the campaign?"

"Well, we haven't issued anything yet, but a loud call for money."

Objects of Sympathy.

A Sense of Peril.

"Lady," said Blodding Pete, "dat's a mighty cross lookin' dog you've got."

"Well, I'm on me way. I was goin' to offer to do a little work. But I'll bet dat was once a nice, good-natured dog. I ain't goin' to take chances on hangin' around an' havin' me disposition spoiled."

Not Impatient.

"Did it ever occur to you that it would be a good idea for you to study Spanish?"

"No," replied the official; "I prefer to depend on the services of a translator. There's no use of increasing facilities for the communication of unpleasant news."

Unjust Reproof.

Mr. Jangle (irritably)—Apparently, you make no use whatever of the household hints I give you from day to day.

Mrs. Jangle—Wrong as usual, James! Why, the last batch I sent to the Efficient Home Monthly netted me $3.50.—Puck.

A Reversal.

WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. B. BOS CAMP, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

Tons of Roots and Herbs are used annually in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is known from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

For forty years this famous root and herb medicine has been pre-eminently successful in controlling the diseases of women. Merit alone could have stood this test of time.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The Trouble.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the well-known suffragist, recently refused to marry a young woman who wanted the phrase "to obey" used in her wedding ceremony. Doctor Shaw believes that the vow to obey, made by the modern woman of culture and action, is both impossible and degrading. "But don't think," said Doctor Shaw the other day in Philadelphia—"don't think I'm a cynic as regards marriage. Oh, no! If you're looking for cynics, go to the other camp, the camp of the ants and reactionaries."

"I heard an ant say the other day: 'The trouble with marriage is that a woman believes all a man says to her before the wedding, and nothing he says after it.'"

He Was Celebrating.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," observed the Sunday school teacher, severely, to the small girl who had but too obviously omitted to wash her face that morning. "Look at your little brother; see how nice and clean he is."

The small girl sniffed. "Well," she replied, "it's his birthday."

3. The room occupied by a tuberculosis patient shall have at least one outside window.
4. No person suffering from pulmonary or other communicable form of tuberculosis shall handle food designed for the use of others except when necessary in the performance of household duties, unless the food be wrapped in such a way as to protect it from contamination or unless some necessary subsequent process of preparation such as cooking will sterilize it and prevent its carrying infection to the consumer.
5. The manufacturing of any kind of goods for commercial purposes or the performance of any work known as "shop work" in the home of any person suffering from pulmonary or other communicable form of tuberculosis, is prohibited, unless the product is such as can be sterilized, and unless sterilization is done in strict accordance with the requirements of the local board of health.

GETTING THE MATTER RIGHT

Little Story of Colonel Goethals That May Explain How It Is He Gets Things Done.

The repeal of the much-argued-about Panama canal tools brings to mind an excellent story of Colonel Goethals, the moving spirit in the construction of the great canal.

One morning a rather slygety subordinate came in to the colonel's office. "I got your letter, colonel," he began, "and I came to—"

He got no further, for the colonel, with uplifted eyebrows, cut in: "Letter? Letter? There must be some mistake. I have written you no letter!"

"Oh, yes, colonel," replied the man. "I've got it here. It's about the work down at Miraflores. Now, you see—"

Again the colonel cut in. "Oh, I see! But you misled me. You spoke of my letter. You meant, of course, my orders."

The colonel's blue eyes stared coldly at the argumentative man, who, suddenly feeling that the conversation was at an end, "faded away."—London Answers.

GOATS PAY MORTGAGES

THEY CLEAN UP UNDERBRUSH AND DESTROY WEEDS.

Animals Are Naturally Browsers and Relish Noxious Plants in Preference to Luxuriant Pasturage Meat Is Nicely Flavored.

(By GEORGE H. DACY, Copyright, 1914.) Angora goats are profitable wage earners. They clean up underbrush, destroy weeds, yield profitable meat and mohair and improve soil fertility on a minimum of feed and care. They are also naturally browsers and relish underbrush and weeds in preference to luxuriant pasturage. Without feed other than what they rustle, grade Angoras will produce from three to six pounds of mohair per animal each year, which sells on the market at from 35 to 60 cents per pound. Well cared for pure breeds often yield as high as ten or twelve pounds of mohair to a shearing, while fleeces of special luster and over fifteen or eighteen inches in length sometimes bring as high as $5 or $6 per pound.

The meat of the Angora is tender, well marbled and nicely flavored, and many consumers eat goat meat and imagine that they are consuming lamb or mutton. On the grade fat Angoras sell for from four to six and a half cents a pound. The manure of the goat rivals that of sheep as a tonic for alling soils.

Angoras are first aids to farmers who desire to inexpensively subdue wild land. Twenty-five or thirty goats pastured on 100 acres of bush land will effect wonders in a couple of years toward reclaiming the idle land. It is best to rotate the goats from one small field to another so that the animals are constantly gaining in live weight and at the same time killing out the undesirable growth. Angoras will stand on their hind legs and browse all the leaves and twigs within their reach. They uniformly graze over a field so that when they are through with the task of cleaning the land the field is in shape for plowing.

Grade Angoras range in price according to age, weight and condition. Farmers can usually buy good cross-bred flocks at from $2.50 to $5 per animal. Pure bred bucks cost from $10 to $50 apiece, while full blooded does sell for from $8 to $20 per animal. The utility of the Angora hinges around his ability to perform valuable work at cut price costs. Goats abhor wet or swamp land as well as inclement weather. The animals are reliable barometers inasmuch as they invariably scent the approaching storm and head for shelter.

Millions of acres of brush land that today are loading could be brought into profitable use if the landowners would but keep flocks of goats as land cleaners. The winter care of goats is similar to that of sheep. An open shed facing the south, provided with plenty of bedding and perfectly dry, will provide ample protection, while oats, roots and hay will supply sustenance.

Spray apparatus and materials are now absolutely necessary to successful fruit growing.

Pruning Grape Vines.

Go over the grape vines and remove the weakest main canes and laterals, reserving only the strongest for next year's fruiting. Pinch off the ends of the laterals bearing fruit.

Best Market for Strawberries.

Home markets for strawberries usually prove more satisfactory than those at a distance, although a fancy brand of berries will often bring more in a large market than in a small one.

Rations for Poultry.

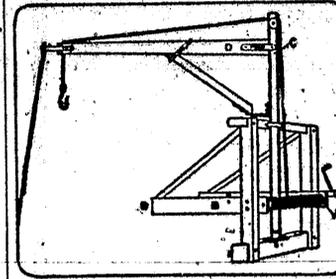

Too few of our farmers produce the rations consumed by their poultry, or the sort of feed they produce is not adapted to best results with their flocks, which is practically the same thing.

Charcoal, one of the prime essentials to successful poultrying, often is missing on the farm, and if bought, usually comes high. Burning old chunks, cobs, etc., and smothering down the flames with damp cobs or rotten chunks of wood, will produce one's own charcoal abundantly and cheaply for poultry.

MAKING CORN SHOCK LOADER

Saves Farmer as Much Lifting as Hay Carrier Does in Haying Time—Dimensions of Device.

In response to a query Monros R. Jenkins of Wayne county, New York, gives the dimensions and framework of a corn shock loader in the National Stockman and Farmer as follows: The timber is of basswood with the exception of the turning post, which may be of oak or ash. If the framework is made of hardwood it may be of smaller dimensions and still be strong enough. The bolts used are of half-inch iron, and of the length indicated in the drawing. The pieces marked B are bolted to the inside of rack bed pieces, far enough back to allow the crank of the windlass to turn without hitting the rack.

The windlass should have a catch which will be found useful to hold the moving parts when going to and from the field.

When load is on, let down the swinging arm by unhooking top end of brace. Hook roller hook to front ladder cross piece, then draw windlass up tight and catch. This binds the load while going to the barn.

A little practice will enable the man on the load to tell just when to have the shock lowered as he pulls it over.

My corn ties are about five feet long and have wire fasteners. By taking out standard this frame can be taken apart and stored away in 20 minutes, when done using for the season. We think it saves as much lifting as the hay carrier does in haying time.

KEEP WORK HORSES IN BARN

Animals Do Better When Kept in Stable at Night Instead of Being Turned into Pasture.

Horses that are working hard will not do as well when turned out to pasture at night as when kept in and fed regularly on dry feed. They are not as apt to rest as well in the pasture as in a good barn, and the green feed they get at night may result in digestive disturbances, colic and scours. Grass-fed horses cannot stand as hard work as the dry-fed horse, for the dry feeds are the ones which build the muscle for the horse.

Along later in the fall the fall pasture will not hurt, especially for the young colts and the brood mares.

If you must feed corn to the work horses give them something else in the grain ration. Corn alone is not a good feed, as it is too fattening. A combination of corn, bran and a little oil meal makes an ideal summer ration for horses if you are short on oats. A 1,000-pound horse would require about ten pounds of corn and three pounds of bran with a little oil meal per day. This will be equivalent to fourteen pounds of oats.

Well Informed on Hogs.

The man whose sow raises two litters a year has learned something about the hog business, and if he succeeds in saving eight out of ten, he has learned about all there is to know in this line.

Feeding Corn to Horses.

For young horses there is no feed which excels oats, but for work horses corn may be substituted in part or even entirely and give good results, says a writer in Digest. Corn is used to a large extent throughout the corn belt and it is especially suited for the production of energy. In sections where flint corn is grown, horses find difficulty in eating it without previous grinding.

Best Soil for Alfalfa.

Alfalfa seems to do best on sandy loam soils that have a good supply of plant food and are well drained, though it has been known to have grown in a heavy clay soil. It will do well on any soil that will produce wheat or corn.

The field designed for alfalfa should be selected with the view of leaving it for several years. The plant seems to reach its prime in four years and can, as a rule, be left in a field profitably for seven or eight years. No difficulty is experienced in getting alfalfa out of the field, if it is so desired, if a field of it is plowed in midsummer and kept well cultivated.

WORTHY HIGH PLACE

ARTICHOKE AN IMPORTANT ITEM ON THE MENU.

Large Number of Dishes That Are Easy to Prepare, and Delicious—Should Be No Problem to the Home Cook.

But the ways of cooking the artichoke are legion. Some of these are genuine "creations" of celebrated chefs and are too elaborate for the practical housewife. Others are simple enough to be within the reach of any home cook, and the dishes that can be made from artichokes are so varied and delicious that we are glad to give some of the simpler of these recipes. Try them and see if you have not gained a delightful addition to your bill of fare.

Artichokes Hollandaise.—Boil artichokes in salted water. Drain; serve on platter garnished with parsley and lemon. Serve hollandaise sauce separate.

Artichokes in Combination Salads.—An infinity of combination salads may be made with the artichoke as the principal ingredient; artichoke hearts, with lettuce, chicory or escarotte and a few asparagus points, or with a little cauliflower, string beans, carrots and two or three anchovies; or chopped chicken and celery and peas or stoned olives and sardines boned, skinned, etc.; all are palatable if good dressing is used and everything well chilled.

Artichokes With Mayonnaise.—Boil the artichokes 20 minutes in well salted water. Serve hot, or thoroughly chilled, with mayonnaise. If it is desired that the artichoke should be of a bright green color when cooked, add one-half cup of vinegar to the boiling water when the artichokes are placed in it.

Artichokes Scrambled With Eggs.—Cut in very small pieces the artichokes from which have been removed the stem, points and hard outer leaves. Cook slowly in olive oil or butter. Season to taste; when cooked, break in eggs; mix all together. Cook and serve.

Artichokes (Popular Style).—Remove one-half an inch from the sharp points of the leaves. Cut the stalks close. Wash in vinegar and cold water to draw out any insects that may be there. Drain and lay artichokes in a pot of boiling salted water; boil gently until you can draw a leaf easily, but do not cook too much. Drain upside down till dry. Serve hot with sauce hollandaise or cold with plain french dressing, tartar sauce or mayonnaise. The time for boiling will take from 25 minutes to one hour, according to the size and age of the artichoke.

Artichoke Hearts With Cream Sauce.—Remove the hard outer leaves and the pointed ends of the artichokes, leaving only the tender parts; parboil these; cut each in four pieces; put them in a casserole with butter, pepper, salt, a little flour, cream or milk, and boil all together until the sauce is perfectly blended and reduced to the quantity needed to serve properly.—The Delineator.

Bar-le-Duc.

The very choice preserve known as bar-le-duc is made from the large cherry currants. Remove the seeds, using for this purpose a quill or darning needle, taking them out from the stem end. To three pounds of these prepared currants allow four pounds and one-half of sugar and one cupful of water. Make a sirup of the sugar and water, stirring until the sugar is dissolved and the sirup makes a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Add the currants, bring to the boiling point, take from the fire, turn into hot, sterilized glasses and seal like jelly.

Russian Chicken.

The Russians have a delicious dish of stewed chicken which calls for a fat chicken, mushrooms, onion, cauliflower and one cupful of fresh or French canned peas. The chicken should be cut up as for fricasseeing, then stewed in boiling water, to which the raw vegetables have been added, the onions being added whole. Cook slowly till tender. Drain off the gravy and thicken with flour and cream, place the chicken on a platter surrounded with the cooked vegetables and covered with the gravy.

To Keep Marshmallows.

To keep marshmallows fresh for an indefinite length of time place them in a glass jar used for canning. Put in a slice of bread about one inch thick and seal tightly. When bread is very dry put in a fresh piece.

To Prevent Cake From Falling.

A little of the measure of flour worked into the creamed sugar and butter before the milk is added will often prevent the slight fall when cake needs five minutes more of oven heat.

TO BE A BIG EVENT

Field Days This Year to be on October Second and Third

A large number of our citizens who are interested in arranging for a Field Day in Carrizozo this year met at the office of O. T. Nye last Wednesday evening and set the ball rolling for what promises to be one of the greatest festal occasions ever had in the place. A. J. Rolland, president of the Commercial club, presided, and G. O. Nickel acted as secretary. Only the preliminaries were discussed and committees appointed, whose duties it will be to gather information in their various departments and report back to the meeting which will be held in Mr. Nye's office Saturday evening. The committee appointed to recommend members for the various Field Day committees, made the following recommendations to the meeting, which were promptly adopted: To solicit funds: S. L. Squire, Ed Kelly, H. B. Dawson, W. W. Sadtman. Racing committee: Frank Gray, Joe Adams, Ed Harris, J. H. Cole; Baseball: G. T. McQuillen, P. M. Johnson, Wm. Humphrey; Reception: Civic League and Commercial Club, Advertising: O. T. Nye, O. W. Bamberger; Baseball: W. P. Dolan, G. O. Nickel, Fred Dawson; Basketball: Prof. McCurdy, W. L. Gumm, John Bell; Dance: Lewis Adams, E. K. Jones, Wayne Hamilton; Program: F. J. Sager, Albert Ziegler, G. B. Barber.

The days decided upon are Friday and Saturday, October 2 and 3.

Interesting purses will be hung up for the various events, and an advertising campaign will be inaugurated which will bring an immense crowd of people to Carrizozo on those days, and they will see that there is a mething doing all the time.

Lincoln county's field day at Carrizozo this year is going to be a record-breaking event.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

To County Superintendents and Principals.

Commissioner Claxton has called my attention to the fact that our great national anthem "Star Spangled Banner" was written on September 14th, 1814, and suggests that a very fitting way of celebrating the centenary of the birth of this great song, which is now our national hymn, would be to have it sung in all the schools of the United States at noon on September 14th of this year. I urge you to give immediately as wide publicity as possible, and to arrange an appropriate program for September 14th, either at 9 o'clock or noon, and let it be understood in your county or community that all citizens are cordially invited to join in this simple but important celebration. Let every boy and girl experience the thrill which was felt by Francis Scott Key when in the gray dawn of the morning he saw in the dimly lighted distance "that our flag was still there" to inspire and encourage, but let us all hope that no such occasion will ever come to our nation again, and that all our energies and resources be henceforth devoted to the arts of peace.

Alvan N. White, State Superintendent.

The above is direct and inspiring and needs no further comment. I trust all principals and teachers will make this day one long to be remembered by the pupils—one in which they dedicated their best energies to loyal, intelligent citizenship in which the "greater victories of peace" may be the guiding star.

MRS. W. L. GUMM, Supt. of Lincoln County schools

For Carrizozo the song will be sung under the stars and stripes in front of the school building at high noon next Monday. The public is urged to take part from 11:50 to 12:00 m.

SCHOOL OPENS

School opened in Carrizozo Monday, but only a part of the day was used in the work of enrollment, the formal opening taking place Tuesday morning. A program consisting of music and inspiring talks in the auditorium was succeeded by the initial work of recitations in the respected rooms. Every teacher is on duty and full of enthusiasm for a successful year. The enrollment has increased materially over that of any previous year. Especially in the high school has the increase been substantial. The board of trustees have found it necessary to place a rush order for six more high school seats and desks, the thirty new ones proving insufficient to seat those already enrolled and several more expected within the next few days. This institution deserves every support you can as a visitor any time whatsoever—you will do well to know more about what is being done in your midst.
