NOW FOR A BIGGER, BETTER AND CLEANER CARRIZOZO

CARRIZOZO THE SPOTLESS TOWN

All Residents Will Unite in General Clean-Up Asked For by Those in a Position to Demand it

LOOK OUT FOR FINE AND SIXTY LONG DAYS IN JAIL

To better safeguard the public health and to make Carrizozo the "spotless town," the indiscriminate dumping of trash within the confines of the town is going to be stopped. Complaints have been lodged in large numbers by many of our citizens and the officers of the law have decided that now is the time to take action.

The Outlook believes the uncouth condition of our town, in several spots, is the result of carelessness in a large degree. Again, we believe if we had some one on whom as a citizenry, we could depend to regularly haul the trash which is continually accumulating to an established garbage lot there would be very little cause for complaint.

For the sake of our general health and our civic pride these things must be taken care of, and the best time in the world to "start something," looking to this end is right now. It is inconceivable that any one living in Carrizozo is opposed to having a clean town—well-kept lots, streets and alleys. In the past the Civic League has kept a watchful eye on the town and have had clean-up days and this organization has done heroic work for the betterment of these conditions here. However, it is understood this band of faithful women have decided to turn this work over to the county and district officers; and finding that the statute law expects them to look after these matters, the officers are in this issue of this paper calling the attention of the public to the provisions of the act which prohibits the deposit of any filth, litter, refuse, carcass or other deleterious matter along any public road or highway or near any inhabited building. The penalty for so doing is also mentioned—a fine of not more than $50.00 and imprisonment in the county jail for not more than sixty days, or both such fine and imprisonment, according to how the court feels in the matter, should it ever become necessary for the court to enforce this law.

Until Carrizozo takes its rightful place in the class of incorporated towns and such things are by the town government provided for, it seems to us some one should constitute himself the official "garbage man" and make regular trips over town for the purpose of collecting and hauling off the refuse matter to be paid a nominal sum for his work by the people whom he serves. And the garbage lot, or dumping ground, should be established in some place where it cannot possibly become a nuisance to any one.

In endeavoring to take care of just such problems as this argues eloquently for the town incorporation now being discussed by many of our citizens. With a town government all such matters will be taken care of promptly and equitably.

WATSON COMPLIMENTED

In casting up the work cut out for them, the new state tax commission pays a deserved compliment to Dr. T. W. Watson, our county treasurer, when it says:

In other words, $400,000,000 worth of property must be on the tax rolls this year. There is that much, in the state and possibly twice as much, but the problem is, will the assessors find it and have the nerve to put it in their assessments, and then, will the collectors in each county do as well as Dr. Watson of Lincoln county has done with his 1913 tax duplicate, collecting 96 percent of it, even though only a small portion of the taxes of Lincoln county come from the railroads, which pay the bulk of taxes in such counties as Luna and Valencia, and pay them promptly."

LECTURE BY DAIRY EXPERT

Prof. R. W. Latta, a dairy expert of the New Mexico Agricultural College will lecture here at the Crystal Theater, on the advantages and profits of dairying in Lincoln County. The date set for the lectures is Wednesday, March 24. Prof. Latta will lecture both in the afternoon and evening, giving those an opportunity to attend at night who are unable to do so in the afternoon. It is hoped that a large attendance will be present as a great many of our citizens have been agitating the question of the establishment of a creamery in Carrizozo, and Prof. Latta will give out some very valuable information along that line. R. S. Trumbull, agricultural expert of the E. P. & S. W. system will also be present and speak on farming and silos in connection with dairying. Don't fail to be present.

TO RENDER PROGRAM

A very interesting program has been arranged by the members of the Junior Church and the local orchestra, and will be rendered at the Methodist church at 7:30 p. m. Friday, March 26th. This program consists of vocal solos, mixed quartets, readings, orchestral numbers, and other entertaining features and will be given for the benefit of the Junior church for its improvement of the local play ground and for the benefit of the Local Orchestra for purchase of new music and general expenses.

These causes are both worthy and the admission of 10 cents for children under the age of 12 years and of 20 cents for adults is within reach of all. Come and enjoy this entertainment. Tickets on sale at the real-estate office of Stadtman and Byron.

BROWNING-MURRAY

Tuesday afternoon at the hour of three o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Baird, in this city, occurred the marriage of Mr. Bert Browning and Miss Blanche Murray. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Ed. Massie, in the presence of a few friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Browning are among Lincoln County's most estimable young people and are well known throughout this section. The bride is the oldest daughter of H. Doyle Murray, of Tinnie, and has many friends in Carrizozo. After the ceremony the happy couple left for Deming and other points down the line where they will visit for some time, after which they will locate in El Paso where they will make their future home. The Outlook joins their many friends in extending congratulations.

TO LAS CRUCES SUNDAY

H. B. Hamilton will leave for Las Cruces Sunday to be present at the opening of the spring term of court for that county on Monday next. It is anticipated that at this term of court the bank failure cases will be taken up, and unless a change of venue is asked for by the defendant, some of them tried. It is understood that the attorney general will assist in the prosecution of Smith,

STATE TREASURER REFUSES TO PAY

Believes There is a Question as to Legality of Law Passed After Hour of Adjournment for Legislature

JUDGE HEWITT HAS IDEA EMERGENCY CLAUSE IS NIL

As an aftermath of the late legislative session, wherein the deficiency appropriation bill was passed over the governor's veto on Friday afternoon, March 15, when, according to the governor and his advisors, including the attorney general, the session had expired, Jose D. Sana has made a formal demand on the state auditor for a warrant covering his back salary. The state auditor prefers to know just where he is at before drawing these warrants, and it is not improbable that the question of what was the last legislative day of the session will be thrashed out in the courts.

In this connection, it is interesting to consider the views of Hon. John Y. Hewitt, our representative in the lower house, who advances the opinion that the emergency clause, as formulated and used on a number of the bills passed by the legislature, is a weak protection and that such acts can be nullified upon test in the courts. In this regard Mr. Hewitt says:

"There has been considerable discussion of late as to the validity of some of the bills passed at the present legislature, and especially those passed without printing, or without having been read on different days, as required by Section 15 Article 4. of the constitution, which provides:

No bill except bills to provide for the public peace, health and safety, and the codification or revision of the laws, shall become a law unless it has been printed and read three different times in each house, not more than two of which readings shall be on the same day and the third of which shall be in full.

"It is urged by some that compliance with this clause of the constitution is not necessary when there is attached to the bill what is known as the "emergency clause" provided for in Section 23 of Article 4.

In those states having the same or similar constitutional provisions the courts have held that the question as to when an emergency exists, so as to make the act take effect at an earlier date than it would otherwise be in force, is one solely within the discretion of the legislature, and the courts will not disturb or question that discretion. The decisions are all based and proceed upon the hypothesis that such acts have been legally passed.

"The books are full of court decisions wherein it has been universally held that statutes are void when it is shown that the constitutional methods have not been observed and their enactment by the legislative branch. To this line of discussions there have been no exceptions so far as I have observed. No emergency or other clause or provision could cure the want of compliance with the essential provisions of the constitution.

"It is a fact known to all who have taken the trouble to inform themselves on the subject, that no bill introduced in either house of the last session can be seriously held to be or to be considered a bill to provide for the public peace, health and safety, nor are any of these bills for the codification or revision of the laws, unless the one passed adopting the compilation of Judge Mechem and others may be so considered.

"If, then, none of these pretended enactments has been for the purposes named, and if any of them have failed to meet the requirements of the constitution in the course of their passage through the legislature, all that have so failed are a nullity and the courts will so declare them whenever the question of their validity is presented for adjudication, which it probably will be; nor could any emergency clause so freely and indiscriminately applied in my opinion cure the fatal effect.

ORGANIZE SOCIAL CLUB

Last Monday evening a number of young men met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hamilton for the purpose of organizing a social club.

The evening was partly spent in cards and music. Refreshments were served, after which the boys got down to business. They have secured a club room and have thrown the doors open to any young man that wishes to become a member.

The officers elected were as follows: Louis Adams, Pres; Wayne Hamilton, Vice-Pres; Dewey Heron, Sec; Ralph Jones, Treas; Elb Jones, Supervisor; Roy Baird, Guard Con.

TAYLORS STORE BURGLARIZED

Burglars effected an entrance through the side door of the N. B. Taylor & Sons hardware store last Tuesday night and so far as the proprietors have been able to ascertain, they are out goods costing them in the neighborhood of $85.00. The thieves secured five rifles and a searchlight, and possible some other merchandise which so far has escaped the notice of the owners. Up to this writing no clue to the perpetrators has been uncovered.

TWELVE TRAMPS PINCHED

Walker Hyde, the company officer at this point, mixed a little business with his St. Patrick dance last Wednesday evening and took time to stroll out along the right-of-way and take into custody twelve tramps who was supposed to have set fire to some ties belonging to the company. Mr. Hyde is alleging the destroying of sixteen of these ties, which are valued at about a dollar each, although he believes there were more destroyed. Complaint has been filed in Justice Massie's court.

GRAND VIEW HOTEL RE-OPENS

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Morse moved down from Corona the first of the week and took charge of the Grand View Hotel which has been closed down for the past month. Since taking charge the place has been thoroughly renovated and furnished throughout, giving them a nice, inviting, home like hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Morse formerly lived here and have many friends who welcome their return to Carrizozo.

ST. PATRICKS BALL

The St. Patrick's ball given by the railroad employes at the E. P. & S. W. Club House Wednesday evening, has been pronounced the best dance ever given in the city. About 60 couples were present and dancing was continued until 1 one o'clock. Everything around the Club House was decorated in green, even the lights were lighted with green electricity and we will venture to say that if there is a green-eyed Irishman in town he was right there. Mgr. Mudge is strictly on the job in giving Irish dances.

INCORPORATION IS BEING CONSIDERED

Many Property Owners Believe Time is Propitious to Organize Town Under Provisions of the Village Act

WILL EQUITABLY SOLVE PERPLEXING PROBLEMS

To incorporate Carrizozo under the village act is the subject now being considered by a number of our residents. In view of the stand taken by the Outlook for civic improvements generally, it is probably unnecessary for us to say that we believe the town should be incorporated. It is the wise thing to do—it is the same manner in which to solve the problem of making a town out of our community.

We want and we need good sidewalks and the town lighted. We need these things and we ought to have them. We have passed the experimental stage as a community and have really arrived at the dignity of a mighty good town firmly established as a business center and as a community of home loving people. More and more are visitors and possible investors arriving in our midst for a view of the landscape, and we believe we have let them ramble down the middle of the street long enough. It would look better and there would be a desired degree of dignity if we were able to furnish them a sidewalk, even if it is not of cement, and a light at night won't do any particular harm.

The Outlook is not in favor of a town organization which will be in any way extravagant. We are not able at this time to do big things, and we do not anticipate that any board of trustees elected under the proposed incorporation act would be inclined that way. It is well known that a neighborhood with a common purpose can accomplish much for themselves with a very little actual outlay of money. This is the object in view in this matter. We hope to have the town improved by the installation of some serviceable but inexpensive sidewalks, keep up the streets to their present condition, as to some, and vastly improved as to others; to keep the rubbish out of our city limits, and generally to look after the welfare of the community as a whole, and have the community as a whole bear the slight burden of this good work.

The Outlook hopes Carrizozo will incorporate and that it will do so without delay.

OPERETTA

The Operetta "Pauline" will be given in the High School auditorium on Friday evening, April 2d. The tuneful and rollicking melodies and attractive conversations are sure to please. This is by far the most elaborate entertainment ever attempted in Carrizozo and is bound to be appreciated by all who attend. Tickets will be placed on sale at an early date and no effort spared to make them valuable to the buyer. Remember the date, Friday evening, April 2d.

GONE TO CHICAGO

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Franklin left for a month's visit at their home in Chicago Wednesday evening. Mr. Franklin is interested in mining development in the Jicarilla district and has uncovered some excellent property. His trip east is the nature of combined business and pleasure trip.

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hayward, an ensign in the United States army on his way to Fort Harmar, meets Simon Grity, a renegade whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocities, also headed for Fort Harmar, with a message from the British general, Hamilton. Hayward guides him to the fort. At General Harmar's headquarters Hayward meets Rene D'Auvray, who professes to recognize him, although he has no recollection of ever having seen her before. Hayward volunteers to carry a message for Harmar to Sandusky, where Hamilton is stationed. The northwest Indian tribes are ready for war and are only held back by the refusal of the friendly Wyandots to join. The latter are demanding the return of Wa-pa-to-tah, a religious teacher, whom they believe to be a prisoner. Hayward's mission is to assure the Wyandots that the man is not held by the soldiers. Rene asks Hayward to let her accompany him. She tells him that she is a quarter-blood Wyandot and a missionary among the Indians. She has been in the company of her father, who she says she has seen Hayward before, but in a British uniform. Hayward refuses her request and starts for the north accompanied by a scout named Brady and a private soldier. They come on the trail of a war party and to escape from the Indians take shelter in a hut on an island. Hayward finds a murdered man in the hut. It proves to be Rene D'Auvray, a former French officer who is killed by the Wyandots "white chief." Rene appears and Hayward is puzzled by her insistence that they have met before. Rene recognizes the murdered man as her father, who was known among the Indians as Wa-pa-to-tah. Brady reports seeing a band of marauding Indians in the vicinity and with them Simon Grity. Brady's evidence convinces the girl that there is a British officer by the name of Hayward, who resembles the American. They find escape from the island off. Re-encountering around the cabin at night Hayward discovers a white man in a British uniform and leaves him for dead after a desperate fight.

The three guns spoke at once, the smoke of their discharge for an instant blotting out the scene, yet not before I saw war-bonnet crumple up beside the stump, and a warrior just behind him leap into the air with both arms flung out. I gripped the fresh gun beside me, and fired again into a huddle of fleeing figures, hearing the sharp crack of the two others, as the blue smoke blew back into my eyes. One Indian fell forward clawing at the ground; another staggered wildly, yet kept his feet. A chorus of yells rent the air, and the fleeing forms vanished into the fringe of woods.

Brady glanced about from his loop-hole, and motioned me with his hand. I crossed hurriedly to join him, again the soldier.

"What is it? Can you guess what they mean to do?"

"No, but they seem to be forming there to the right; bend down here; see, back among those trees. Ay! and your red-coat is among the devils, I've caught glimpse of him twice."

I grasped the situation in a glance. Brady moved to the next loop-hole, and knelt down. Opposite me I could distinguish an Indian or two, skulking in the tree shadows, well out of range—centries, no doubt, stationed to guard against any possibility of our escape. Yes, and there were others also along the fringe of forest to the left, although only occasionally did a half-naked form flit into view. They were forming for assault, for a swift rush forward, trusting that the suddenness of their attack would put them across that open space without great danger. They had tried stealth and failed; now they would try recklessness:

I pressed back the wooden shutter, kneeling to look out. For an instant, blinded by the bright light, I saw nothing, then, back in the edge of the timber, I could dimly distinguish the groups of savages, stripped for fighting, their naked bodies gleaming. I know little then of Indian warfare, yet it occurred to me that the representatives of each tribe were gathered together, and I watched the war-bonnets moving from group to group, as final orders were passed among them. Only once did I catch a glimpse of the red jacket, as its wearer stood at the foot of a huge tree, suddenly outlined by a ray of sun finding opening through the leaves above. As I caught view of him, he flung up one red arm, a rifle grasped in his hand, and, as if it was a signal, voice after voice whooped in savage yell, the noise blending into one fierce scream, horrible and menacing. Above even this mad volume of sound there was a shout of command, emphasized by the discharge of a dozen guns. Then out of the smoke, springing forth into the open, I saw the devils come. It was as if hell had broken out and belched them forth.

"Shawness!" roared Brady. "Give it to 'em!" and he pulled trigger. Describe what followed no man could. It was pandemonium, uproar, action, no two seconds the same. I fired twice, three times, leaping back to grasp a gun from the bench, and groping my way through smoke. My eyes smarted, perspiration streamed down my face. I heard the bark of rifles, voices calling within, wild echoing yells without. Over the barrel of my rifle I could distinguish the naked forms of savages, leaping amid the smoke wreaths, stumbling, clutching at the air with empty hands. Then all at once they disappeared, vanished as if by magic. Smoke clung to the ground, yet amid its swirls I could perceive no movement; the fierce yelling ceased. What this sudden cessation meant I could not guess, but my hand reached instinctively for powder and ball. Then another yell, louder, more deadly with ferocity, smote my ears; bullets chugged into the fogs, some one near me gave utterance to a roar of pain, and blows crashed against the barred door. I thrust my rifle forward—a tomahawk struck the protruding barrel as I pulled trigger, and I was flung backward to the floor, blood streaming from my shoulder. I could hardly breathe in the thick smoke; I could see nothing, yet out of the babel of noise I was conscious of Brady's voice yelling an order:

"The door! Barricade the door!"

I staggered to my feet and dragged the bench forward; some one gripped the table along with me, and together we hurled it on top, our bodies holding it there. I had dropped my rifle, but some one thrust another into my hand. Blood streamed down into my eyes from a cut on my forehead, blinding me so I saw nothing, yet my fingers touched a hand. Even then I felt the thrill of that contact.

"You, Rene! Go back! For God's sake, go back!" I sobbed breathlessly. Just an instant she grasped me, clung to me, her head pressing against my sleeve.

"Yes, monsieur!"

Then she was gone; I reached out for her, but she was no longer there. Tomahawks crashed into the wood of the door; there was a sound of splintering. Brady ripped out an oath, a wild yell of triumph echoed without. Through a nearby loop-hole some savage thrust his gun, and fired blindly, the sudden flash lighting the murk. In the instant red glow I caught a glimpse of the interior—of a body lying before the fireplace, of Schultz still on his knees, rifle in hand, of Brady gripping an ax, his head bare, a ghastly wound on the side of his face. Then the smoke hid all.

Something crashed against the door, shaking the whole cabin; again and again the blow fell, the tough wood bursting asunder, the stout bar bending, yet snapping back once more as the sockets held. Amid the din of shouts, the crash of wood, my eyes met Brady's.

"You're hurt?"

"Ay!" spitting out blood before he could answer. "Jaw shot."

The door crashed in, the great butt of a tree coming with it, and half blocking the passage. All that remained was instantly filled with savage figures. Into the mass of them I fired my last shot, the flame of discharge, searing the hideous faces. Then I was hurled to the right, shoulder to shoulder with Schultz, gripping my gun barrel with both hands, swinging it like a flail. I crushed the skull of a savage, drove the butt into the face of another; saw the flash of a tomahawk, held up for an instant the soldier's reeling body, only to throw it aside; smashed the red hand held out to grip him as he went down; drew back a step in search of more room, and, with one mighty sweep of my weapon cleared a circle before me. God! It was ghastly, inhuman, devilish! Those behind pushed and yelled; there was no escape! I saw painted faces, naked shoulders; wild eyes glared hatred into mine; tomahawk and knife flashed. The butt of my gun smashed, I gripped the iron, my teeth clinched, and blood on fire. I had no sense of fear left, no consciousness of peril. I wanted to strike, to kill, to bruise those hideous faces, to batter them into pulp. The rage of conflict seized me; there swept over me the ferocity of the insane.

I gave back, compelled by the mere force of numbers hurled against me, yet kept clear a space no savage left unhurt. I felt in my arms the strength of a dozen men; and not the grip of a red hand reached me. The fiends snarled and struggled, but the fierce swing of the iron bar crushed them back. It was twilight where I stood at bay, the narrow opening, almost choked out by those struggling figures striving to enter, to me, was a mere blotch, an inferno of movement and sound. Through a dim, red haze, where blood dripped before my eyes, I had glimpses of uplifted arms, of distorted faces, of glittering weapons. Once there was a gun shot, the sudden flash flaring into my eyes, twice tomahawks, turning in the air, grazed my cheek; a knife, desperately hurled from out the ruck, struck the iron, slashing my arm as it fell. I felt no pain, no weakness; I was going to die, but it would not be alone. I rushed forward; treading on bodies, battering at shoulders and heads, I heard yells, shrieks, groans, cries of horror and agony. The frenzied war-whoop rang in my ears; an order roared out over the babel. I have no recollection of being touched, yet some force hurled me back. I stumbled over the bodies, yet somehow kept my feet. I was breathless, weak, reeling upon my legs, everything before my eyes shrouded in mist. Yet the instinct to fight remained; I knew nothing else.

Suddenly I became aware that Brady and I were together, that we were foot to foot, his deadly ax rising and falling as though he was a woodsman in the forest. Out of the mad din in my ear came the sound of his voice in broken, breathless sentences.

"Good boy! Good boy! Ay! That was a blow. Stand to it, lad; they'll tell of this fight on the border. Oh, you will, you painted devil—that finished you! Do you see Red-Coat back there, Hayward? Ay! I'd like one swipe at him, but the coward keeps safe. Strike lower man! They're creeping in on us. That's the kind. Ah! I thought so; they're taking us from behind—quick, lad, back to the wall!"

I got there; God only knows how—but I was alone, I felt the force of the rush that struck him down; it had lifted me bodily and hurled me against the logs. Yet I kept my feet, kept my grip on the twisted iron, and struck blindly. The whole cabin seemed jammed with red devils; they piled on me, jerked the bar from my grasp. Once, twice, I sent clenched fist against painted faces; then it was over with. I never saw nor felt the blow that floored me; I went down into darkness, and they trampled me under foot.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Help of Mademoiselle.

The sound of a voice speaking, apparently far off, was the first thing of which I was dimly conscious. The language was French, and, for what seemed a long time, no word sounded familiar. My mind was blank of any distinct impression, although there appeared to float before me, in recollection of some former existence, the face of mademoiselle. Her wonderful eyes were gravely smiling through a strange mist that appeared to hide all else in its circling folds. I could not get away from their silent pleading, their invitation. Then somehow that speaking voice became here, and I picked out a word here and there, detached, meaningless, and yet recognizable. I struggled to arouse myself to her actual presence.

The struggle must have been physical as well as mental, for I became conscious of pain, a sharp pang shooting through my body, as if a knife had been twisted in a deep wound. The agony brought me wide awake, my eyes open, staring about, yet scarcely realizing where dream and reality met.

"Monsieur," the voice was a whisper at my ear; I could even feel her soft breath on my cheek. My eyes instantly opened, and looked into her face as she bent above me. "Do not move, do not speak aloud—but listen. I knew you were not dead; I found you first and kept them away, but there is no time now for me to explain. Are you badly hurt?"

"I cannot tell, mademoiselle—those heavy bodies will not let me move."

She glanced about swiftly, as if in fear of being seen; then released my limbs, dragging the two dead Indians aside. I felt cramped, lifeless below the waist, yet as the blood began to circulate I knew there was no serious injury. She stared into my face as I worked the numbed muscles, and her eyes told me that she was frightened.

"We are alone here?"

"Yes, for the moment," breathlessly. "It is your only chance; I have prayed and schemed to get to you. We mustn't lose an instant. Can you move, monsieur? Can you even crawl a dozen feet?"

"Where—where do you want me to go?" I asked faintly, inspired to effort by the firm, eager grip of her hand. "Tell me; I'll try."

"There—just to the left of the fireplace. It is the one chance, monsieur. They will be back, those fiends, they will burn the cabin. Mon Dieu! Try! Try!"

I got to my knees once more, the plea of her voice yielding strength and determination. At whatever cost I would make the effort to please her. With teeth clenched tight, I fixed my eyes on the spot indicated and started. Terrible was the effort!

But I made it inch by inch. I shall never know how the deed was accomplished—only that she helped, and I fought on. I had to; she asked me; there were tears in her eyes. No matter if it did hurt, if I was blind, if I reeled on hands and knees like a man drunk—I must go there. I had not the faintest thought of why she urged me on, of what hope animated her. And when I finally gave out, helpless to advance another inch, my face came down hard on a slab of stone beside the chimney. She uttered a low sob of despair, and left me an instant.

"I—I am so sorry, monsieur," she faltered. "But you must hold out—you must!"

"Is it any farther? What do you want me to do?"

"No, no—only you will need strength; it will only take a minute now. See, monsieur."

She gripped the flat stone against which I had fallen, prying it with the broken blade of an Indian knife that lay on the floor, until her fingers found hold, and ended it up against the chimney. A narrow black opening was exposed. I stared down with lack-luster eyes, startled, but unable to realize the purpose. Driven by fear she wasted no time in either explanation or urging. Doubtless my face told its own story, and made her desperate. With a strength I had not supposed her slender body possessed, she dragged me about, until my feet dangled helplessly in the opening.

"Now push yourself down, monsieur! I say you must! It is not far, not more than four feet—it is not to hurt, no, no. You will come easy to the bottom. Good! That is the way. See, I will hold tight to you like this."

Helped by her, yet exercising all my remaining strength, and now comprehending her plan, I sank slowly into the hole, but so numb were my limbs, that, the instant the girl released her grasp, I sank limply to the bottom, resting there, leaning against the side wall, looking eagerly up at her face framed above me in the narrow opening.

"You are safe, monsieur? You are not hurt?" she asked in trembling anxiety.

I murmured a word or two, for I had exhausted all my strength. She must have accepted this as reassurance, for she lifted her head, and glanced swiftly above. Then she reached down to me the pannikin of water.

"I cannot wait longer," she whispered. "Some one will come. Here; take this, monsieur; put it down carefully—ah! that was fine. Wash out your wounds and the blood from your face. It will be dark, but fear nothing. I will come again to you soon."

"Where does this tunnel lead?" I asked, as her hand grasped the stone slab.

"To the cave cellar at the rear; where we first met—but you must wait for me to come, monsieur."

I saw the shadow of the stone descending, shutting out the light.

"Just one question more, mademoiselle, I managed to articulate. "Is Brady dead?"

I could dimly perceive the outline of her face.

"No, monsieur, he is a prisoner."

Slowly I made effort to explore my wound. This was most painful, as my rough shirt was held to my flesh by congealed blood, and had to be torn away. I possessed no knife, but stuck to the work manfully, my teeth clinched, my face beaded with perspiration, until I separated the last shred, and could explore the wound with my fingers. It proved deep and ragged enough, but had penetrated nothing vital. If I could stanch the flow of blood, and bind it up so as to prevent its being reopened, there should be no serious result. I went at this as best I could in the dark, and, by sense of touch, groaning at the pain, I swabbed out the wound until it practically ceased to bleed, and then bound it up with a silk handkerchief and a strip torn from my shirt.

Resetting a Shoulder.

A dislocated shoulder may be replaced with scarcely any pain by the following procedure, according to Dr. Julius Caesar of Leicester, England:

Dress the patient of his coat and waistcoat. Place him on the ground in a sitting posture. Grasp the wrist of the dislocated arm and have a third person grasp the wrist of the other arm. Raise both arms simultaneously over the head, taking care to keep them parallel, and extending them upward till the patient is just raised from the ground. At this point a click is heard and felt. This is the sound of the arm bone going back into its socket.

There are some dislocated shoulders that cannot be reduced this way, but they are the rare exceptions.

Training the Young Cow.

Two Washington youngsters were visiting their father's country place in Virginia when one of them observed:

"Marie, I don't see how cows can eat grass. Do you?"

Marie gave the question appropriate consideration and then replied:

"I suppose it's like this: When the cows are young the mother cow keeps saying to her children: 'If you don't eat grass you shan't have any milk.'"

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs"

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Face to Face.

Suddenly they found themselves, just as our story opens, face to face in the ditch.

"You!" he whispered, strong emotion almost disguising the clothes on his breast.

It was some moments before either could speak for hiccoughs.

Then he stuttered softly, "You!"

"You!" she mumbled.

They leaned toward each other, as though the end of their noses were magnets, instead of rosy headlights.

Then he bawled, "You!"

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Adv.

One Weakness.

"Marvelous!"

"If he stays out late, and his wife asks him what he's been doing he says that he has been drinking liquor and playing poker."

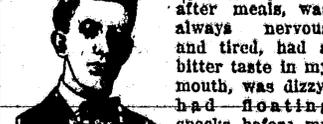

"Incredible! What does he say when asked about the salary he gets?"

"Oh, he's like other men in that respect. He doubles the figure."

A GRATEFUL ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

GAS, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles sour gassy stomachs in Five minutes—Time It!

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it. Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach troubles has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any dealer and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Adv.

Mistaken Diagnosis—Doctors Guess Wrong Again

About five years ago I wrote to you that I had been a terrible sufferer from kidney and bladder troubles, and that my physician informed me that my left kidney was in such condition that there was no hope for my recovery. I was advised to try your Swamp-Root as a last resort, and after taking four fifty-cent size bottles, I passed a gravel stone which weighed ten grains. I afterwards forwarded you this gravel stone. Have had no return of any trouble since that time and cannot say too much in favor of your wonderful preparation, Swamp-Root, which cures, after physicians fail.

Very truly yours,

F. H. HORNE,

Roseboro, N. C.

You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. WILL WORK NO HARDSHIPS

In advocating the incorporation of Carrizozo under the village act, the Outlook feels perfectly safe in saying that it will work no hardship on any one within the territory of the incorporation. The law fixes the limit of taxation which is very small. This will fall on all according to what they own—every one will be called on to contribute equitably, and even the "plutoocrat" will not miss the infinitesimally light contribution he will be called on to make, while the small holder will hardly be scratched. No one need to worry over cement walks and paved streets. We would like to have them, but we know we cannot get them at this time. Incorporation means simply that we will all contribute our share to well kept streets, cheap but serviceable sidewalks, street lights and a clean town. Isn't it worth it?

ONLY HEARSAY

It is all hearsay so far as the Outlook is concerned, but the rumor comes to us that there is one property owner in Carrizozo who does not want the town incorporated. If this is true, we are mildly surprised as the report also says this enterprising and industrious individual wants the streets kept up, wants sidewalks built and wants the town electrically lighted. But he does not want to contribute anything to the accomplishment of the result. Thus, the leech seems to be in our midst—the whoest who in the whole "Who's Who."

"My message is to keep your eyes on 1916", says Prof. W. H. Taft. What's the matter with keeping them on 1915, especially in Carrizozo. Things are going to happen here this year and 1916 will see a better town in every particular, made so by "doing things" in 1915

It is time right now to determine whether vacant lots hereabouts shall be devoted to spring vegetables or baseball or left to produce the traditional crops of tin cans, dead dogs and unearned increment.

Bringing American sailors as prisoners of war to an American port is enough to make the proud eagle bird, this nation's noble emblem, go out behind the woodshed and scratch for worms.

NOTICE

To Whom It May Concern:

In view of the fact that numerous complaints have been made to this office concerning the throwing of trash, filth and other refuse in and around the Town of Carrizozo, and for the benefit of the general public, I take this occasion to call attention to the provisions of Chapter 19 of the Laws of 1912, which provides in substance that it shall be unlawful for any person to place or deposit any filth, litter, refuse, carcass or other matter or thing, on, along or near any road or highway so that the same is or may become offensive or nauseous to persons being or traveling over, through or upon said road or highway, or near to any inhabited building so that the same is or may become offensive to persons in or about said building or the premises adjacent thereto and any one found to be guilty of so doing shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of from $5.00 to $50.00, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding sixty days, or both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Any person violating this act will be promptly prosecuted.

NEWSPAPERS WIDELY READ

Old Circus Manager Finds Them Better Today for Advertising Purposes Than Billboards.

"The billboards don't tell a story any more," said an old circus manager recently. "They were good when they were a novelty, and for that matter have uses yet, because there are exceptions to every rule, and a rule that won't bend will break. "The newspapers create an atmosphere. You get right close to a man, and with his pocket and home. It's like being introduced to some one and taking him out to lunch to get better acquainted. "In the circus world we have to get immediate results from our advertising. In most places we play only a day. It is too late to tell people what a good show we had after we have left town. There was a time when billboards told them this because the circus was practically alone in the field of great pictorial displays, but nowadays everything on the billboards is 'circused,' so we lose our 'punch.' Hundreds of men read the papers now where one read twenty or thirty years ago. They look to the newspapers to entertain, to instruct, to advise and direct. Births, deaths, marriages, prize fights, weather predictions, sermons. Wall street reports, near philosophy, the latest music for the 'turkey trot. Where do you go to find it? Just in the columns of the daily papers, of course, and I don't think I was wrong when I figured out that ninety per cent. of the people would look in the same place for information regarding the coming of the circus."

I object to the term "advertising expense." Right advertising is not an expense and never was. It is an investment, a business endowment policy, which, almost from the start can be made to pay its own premiums and a large profit, besides accumulating a fund that guarantees the advertiser every dollar of his investment.—George Dyer.

Best Time to Impress Public. "If business men," says a Chicago writer, "lie down during the summer months, saying to themselves nothing can be accomplished in the heated season, they are taking a fatal view of business—fatal because neglect of any chance to add to the volume of their trade is a lost opportunity. The fault is their own. "Such business men forget one powerful factor in advertising—the opportunity of the public to read advertisements. "No period of the year affords such an opportunity as does the heated season. People ensconced in comfortable spots, feeling too indolent to engage in any active pursuit, turn to reading matter for a means of enjoyment, recreation and time-passing. "In such a time, when business cares are laid aside temporarily, the mind is in the most receptive mood of any period of the year. Impressions made by reading are strongest and strong, pungent advertising forces itself on the attention in a way to fix the impressions gained indelibly on the mind."

Advertising as an Asset. "Advertising as an Indestructible Asset" was the subject of the address given by Robert Frothingham before the members of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Ad. club the other day. Human demands are created by some form of publicity, he said, and the one and only way to secure this publicity is through advertising. Another fact that the captains of industry have just discovered is that advertising forms a bond of sympathy between the advertiser and the public, according to Mr. Frothingham, and this bond of sympathy is becoming more and more essential in the business of the present day. Where there is ample and friendly advertising, there will never be an awakening of public distrust, concluded Mr. Frothingham.

HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT

TO STUDY ROAD CONDITIONS

Detailed studies of local road building systems in 100 counties are now being carried on by the department of agriculture in co-operation with the state highway departments and local road authorities.

The purpose of this study is to discover the points of excellence and defects in existing local methods of building and maintaining roads which will aid the state authorities to put local road management on a systematized basis. The co-operating state authorities have been asked to designate counties that present typical and exceptional features as to topography, character of road materials, methods of construction and maintenance, administrative organization, methods of road financing and traffic conditions. From these lists 100 counties will be selected, and in these counties the division of road economics will make intensive studies.

This investigation is prompted by the fact that there is at present very little knowledge as to the most effective and economical methods by which a county can develop its roads. At present the methods of financing local road improvements vary from calling on farmers for a certain number of days labor in lieu of a road tax, or the use of county prisoners in road construction, to bond issues or maintenance of roads from dramshop license funds.

The department will study all of these systems with the view to determining what system or combination of systems works best in actual practice. There is, however, at present no standard system of keeping accounts for road building and maintenance, and as a result, while some counties know to a penny the purpose for which money was spent, others have no definite check or reporting system. Among various counties with the same conditions, cost for excavation or other labor is anything but uniform, and many counties, because of the absence of definite knowledge, fail to use local and cheap materials and construct roads which are unnecessarily expensive for their purpose, or which will wear out before the bond issues are redeemed. The investigation will include a careful study of the use of convict labor in road construction.

In connection with the scientific study, the department's highway engineers will advise freely with local officials as to improvements, and thus give each county visited the advantage of direct co-operation, engineering supervision and assistance. These investigations, it is believed, will yield important economic data bearing especially on the benefits and burdens of road improvement and showing the extent to which financial outlay under given typical conditions is justifiable.

The heads of state highway departments are manifesting great interest and are co-operating cordially in this work. These data when obtained will be published and thus made accessible to all county and state road officials.

REGRETS LEAVING COUNTY

Lexington, Okla., Mar 10, 1915
To Editor Carrizozo Outlook
Carrizozo, New Mexico.

I saw an article in your paper on taxing mortgages.

Now I believe that mortgages should be taxed just the same as other property. I will try in my awkward way to show you why John and Jim comes to town each with $5000. John decides to put his money in real estate and live stock; Jim puts his in mortgages and notes drawing interest. Each of these men invest the same amount of money. If mortgages were not taxed the one that bought real estate and stock will pay taxes in your county on five thousand dollars and the one that bought mortgages would pay no taxes at all. Would this be a fair law to tax one and not the other?

Now you see loan companies of other states as well as yours, could invest thousands of dollars in your state in mortgages and notes and not have to contribute one cent to help keep up the expenses of your state. As a general rule money that is borrowed on mortgages is spent for making a crop on land or the running expenses of raising live stock, waiting for the calves or lambs to get large enough to sell, or until the sheep is shorn and the wool is sold. Therefore, it does not enhance the value of the property only in a very few cases, so if the mortgages were not taxed there would be but very little of this mortgage money taxed through the borrower, as it does not make the borrowers taxes any higher and it is only justice to the borrower that the mortgage holder should help to keep up the state, town and county that he has invested his money in. For if he had put his money in real estate and other property he would have had to pay taxes, so why not pay on his investment if it is mortgages.

The last time I wrote to the Outlook it was owned and edited by Lee Rudiwello, it was the White Oaks Outlook. I advised my many friends in that county then to write for single statehood, it was at the time they were trying to make one state out of New Mexico and Arizona.

I lived in Lincoln county, N. M. about thirty years. I established the Postoffice of Alto, New Mexico, and owned that place for five years and I have regretted many times the day I sold out and left that county.

W. H. WALKER

BENEFIT OF IMPROVED ROAD

Among Many Other Things It Attracts Investors Looking for Advantageous Locations.

A long stretch of improved road is one of the best advertisements a state can have. It attracts a class of tourists who are able and willing to pay for entertainment. It brings investors who are looking for advantageous locations. It includes agricultural investigation and consequent immigration and investment, not only along the line of the road, but in other accessible sections. It changes, by the sheer force of publicity, backward localities into progressive ones; enhances values, and brings into general notice resources which had only been known locally; or, if known, not appreciated.

The advantages which such stretches of main roads cause to accrue are advantages which affect the entire state, as well as the localities themselves. It should, therefore, be assumed as a principle that such main roads should be built, in whole or in part, by the state; that their management and maintenance should be in the hands of the state authorities.

ADVERTISING IS LIKE TEACHING

"Advertising," writes a man who has thoroughly studied the subject, "is a broad term. A great deal of advertising is merely published, for the sake of giving information and not with any indefinite idea of creating a favorable attitude in the public mind. A person may obtain information from books on any subject, but the teacher would not encourage this as the best method of developing the mind, or securing an education. The successful method, adopted by the teacher, as evolved by some of the world's greatest thinkers, is based on the fact, that our memory retains those things, which are repeated again and again. Such things as the multiplication table and spelling, become so firmly fixed in the mind, as to be almost instinctive. Advertising, to be successful, must accept this same psychological fact, as its basis.

"Let us consider, for example, how one is taught to speak German. Suppose you devote two hours, each day for a year, to this study, you would unquestionably acquire some knowledge of the language; but, if you merely devote an hour or two a week, the same period, little would be accomplished; or if you devote two hours, each day, for three or four months, then stop three or four months, begin again for a similar period and discontinue your study again, your mind would retain comparatively little, by following such a plan. Follow the latter plan in advertising and the public will know little about your school. Follow the former plan and, at the end of the year, they will have a fair knowledge of what you offer. Suppose you keep up studying German, two hours each day, for a period of three years. At the end of that time you will have acquired such a knowledge of the language, that it will be really a part of yourself. Keep up an advertising campaign, persistently, for three years, and the knowledge of your institution will be as much a part of the mental make-up of the regular readers of the newspaper, in which you advertise, as the German language would be of your own, after consistent study. If you continue to devote some time, each day, year after year, to speaking, or reading German, you will retain what you have acquired and strengthen your ability as a German student. Keep up your advertising, year after year, and you will gain the cumulative effect.

"Suppose a student does study German, each day for a year. Does he know it all? Can he stop? No; he has only begun. Suppose the advertiser advertises, daily for a year. He may accomplish little, the first few months, but at the end of the year, he sees fair results. Can he stop? No; he has hardly begun. It may take a German student several years to really master the language and it may take you, as an advertiser, just as long to make your institution thoroughly well known. Suppose the student stops his practice in speaking and reading German. Gradually he will lose the knowledge, that he has acquired, while by devoting some time each day, he could have retained his knowledge. Let an advertiser stop advertising and it is surprising, how soon the public loses sight of him.

"There is both an art of teaching and a science underlying it. Both, to be successful, must influence the human mind. Much can be accomplished in teaching, by appealing to the emotional side. It is likewise true, that in advertising, it is possible to play upon the feelings of the reader. In both, however, it is necessary to take into consideration, how knowledge is acquired. Things, which are done over and over again, finally become, apparently automatic. The advertiser must present his case in a variety of ways, but must depend upon exactly the same method.

"The most important things to be remembered, in order to make a success of advertising, is that it takes time and constant repetition to secure results of real value. No lasting good can be accomplished in either teaching, or advertising, in any other way. Frequent repetition, extending over a considerable time, is absolutely necessary, and this frequent repetition can only be accomplished by newspaper advertising.

"Any kind of an announcement, a circular, a hand-bill, or a telephone message will give information. That, however, is not essentially advertising. If you want to make your name a household word, you must do it by the same method that the teacher uses,—frequent repetition."

It Finished Him.
There was a man who hustled not—
To look he trusted;
He would not advertise a dot—
And so he rusted,
And likewise busted.

ADVERTISING TO GET RESULTS

The Right Kind Certain to Bring an Increase of Business for the Merchant.

Advertising is simple to some people and very difficult and complicated to others. The former class never spends a dollar on printing ink without the assurance of good returns. The other class sometimes spends thousands of dollars without the slightest result.

Is it a mystery? Not at all. A thoroughly experienced person can tell beforehand whether an advertising campaign will pay. It is not easy to say just what form of advertisement will give the best results, but it is easy enough to select the method of advertising which will give such results.

There is a right way and a wrong way of conducting an advertising campaign, and good advertisements and good mediums may prove worthless if the advertiser has chosen the wrong way.

Speaking generally, the mail-order system is one of the wrong ways, although it may pay individuals. It is merely a substitute, a temporary substitute, for the true and tried old system of retailing merchandise. Take the case of the retail grocer who sells a private blend of tea and who is trying to build a big demand through the mails. He may ultimately create a fair business by mail, but it should be obvious even to himself that a far wider outlet awaits a similar article pushed through the usual trade channels.

Mail order business is an unnatural business and is not likely to be a permanent feature of the country's commerce.

The magic of advertising? That's right. The magician's wand cannot do the expected job with one wave, however, nor can it work its wonders through a single class of mediums.

The public must be reached, and each of these branches of the advertising job must receive proper treatment. If one is neglected in the least there will be disappointment. The retailer's advertising task is, as a rule, much simpler than the manufacturer's, except, of course, when he wishes to push his own private brands into general distributive channels.

HAD ROSEATE DREAMS

His Feet Were on the Road to Success

Chicago.—Joseph Macaluso died in a Chicago hospital a few days ago, and he died without understanding the world. Several months ago Macaluso sat in his squalid home in the metropolis of the lakes, trembling with the bitterness that filled his heart. He was dying then, and he cried out to a visitor: "Why should they do this to me? Why should I suffer like this? My children have nothing to eat and I have nothing to eat, and we are cold and I—I am dead soon. Why?"

The man who couldn't understand wasn't railing against poverty.

Hoped to Make a Fortune.
 Macaluso had come to America with a wife and dreams of a fortune. He had worked and succeeded, saving a little of the money he made each month, investing it in a store. He was a laborer with ambitions. Things were looking rosy.

"America—I tell you there is no country like it," Macaluso used to say.

Then one day two men with United States badges came and arrested him. He was wanted in Italy for the murder of a boy. Macaluso, unable to believe what had happened, pleaded and fought in vain. He was extradited.

Lay in Prison for a Year.

They tore him from his home and family and left them to shift for themselves. While Macaluso was being carried across the sea his wife spent the savings of the happy years. While Macaluso was being detained in an Italian dungeon awaiting trial his wife sold the furniture they had bought in the happy years.

For one year Macaluso waited in a dark cell, his skin growing yellow, his eyes black and lustrous with the fever that was eating into his strength. For a year his wife washed clothes, scrubbed floors and each week sold another piece of furniture.

Came and Arrested Him.

The Victim of a Mistake.
 Then Macaluso went on trial. It was a mistake. The Italian government had made a mistake; the American government had made a mistake. They begged Macaluso's pardon, but wouldn't pay his fare back across the ocean.

Charity raised the money, and Joe came home. He found his wife and his little girl, Angelina, living in a squalid rear flat. They were destitute. They had spent everything.

Joe, pale and trembling, couldn't get work. He grew worse in health deeper and deeper the bitterness of his life sank into him and finally Joe was taken to the hospital. His lips, thin as the edge of paper and as colorless, trembled in a remembered prayer as he was dying.

His wife and family were unable even to raise the money to bury him. They, too, do not understand.

Anyhow, He Tried.

The dinner was given by a colored man named Ebenezer White, and the guest of the evening was George Washington Green, chief deacon of the little church that White occasionally attended.

Grace, of course, was eloquently said, and at its conclusion Mr. White began to carve the chicken. Then Deacon Green became facetious.

"Brudder White," he smilingly remarked, "do dat nex'-do' neighbor ob you'n keep chickens?"

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS WHEN BLADDER BOTHERS

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids—Splendid for the System.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

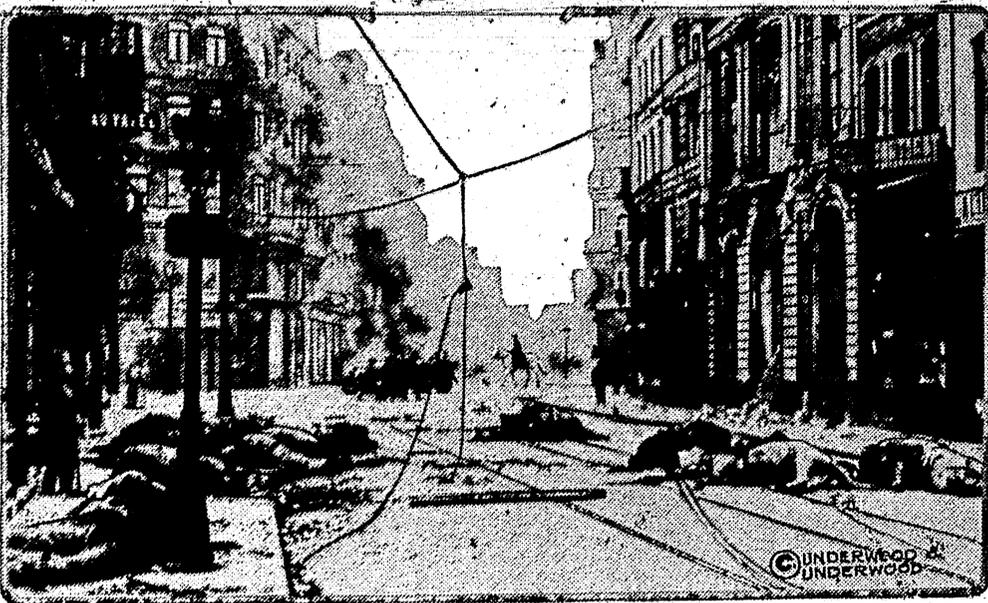

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

DEAD STREW STREETS OF LILLE AFTER BATTLE

A scene of ruin, desolation and death is this picture taken immediately after a hot encounter between some Germans and French in one of the principal streets of Lille. A company of uhlands tried to force its way through the city. As they were passing through one of the main streets they were unexpectedly confronted by a detachment of French infantry. A hot fight ensued, and after a few minutes the German uhlands were driven back with heavy losses.

PUZZLED OVER NAVY

War Lessons Leave Uncertainty as to What to Do.

American Students of Naval Affairs Will Have Much to Learn From European War—May Change Whole System.

By EDWARD B. CLARK. (Staff Correspondent Western Newspaper Union.)

Washington.—Congress was at sea for some time to know what it should do for the navy. It is still at sea as to whether or not what it is doing and has done are the right things to do.

Here is the trouble: The navy department made its recommendations for battleships and smaller craft prior to the time that any naval lessons had been learned as the result of sea fights between nations now at war. The naval committee of the house of representatives amplified the building program of the navy department, adding thereto several ships of war of various kinds. Now it is admitted that the sea lessons of the present war may tend to prove that the kind of ships which are to be authorized will not meet the requirements of the lessons learned from the fighting now going on.

In the navy department today every detail of recurring sea engagements is being studied closely. The battle between the British ships Lion, Tiger, New Zealand and others, and the German ships Bluecher, Moltke, Derfflinger and the others seems to have shown, so American naval officers say, the superiority of fast ships of the battle cruiser class with a certain number of big guns, over smaller ships with a much larger number of guns of slightly smaller caliber.

The information concerning the battles between English and German vessels in the South Pacific, South Atlantic and in the North sea is not as full as it might be, but the service men are able to read between the lines and they get a lot of material out of meager reports in which laymen might not be able to find anything, even if they applied a microscope. The result of this study of fighting as it occurs will show later when the estimates are made for another naval appropriation bill.

Some senators and representatives seem to think that it would have been far wiser this year not to have appropriated any money to build American men of war, except for a few of the smaller type whose worth for certain duties is well known. There seems to be a belief that the great fighting ship of the future will be not a dreadnaught, but the fast battle cruiser with heavy long range guns.

The war is still going on and as far as all human probability there will be more sea fights before it is over there will be plenty of lessons yet to be learned by the American students of naval affairs. Navy men say it is possible when the European war ends that there will be a complete change of ship building procedure on the part of all the nations of the world.

IS CHECK ON DEATH IN WAR

Progress in Surgery and Sanitation Reduces the Fatalities in Modern Warfare.

Amsterdam.—Contrary to the popular impression that modern wars result in a greater number of deaths than those of the past, the opposite is true, according to an article reproduced in the Tijd. It is pointed out that this is largely due to the progress in surgery, the use of efficacious antiseptics, the great development of modern army sanitation and the high efficiency of the medical troops.

Beginning with the Seven Years' war, the number of deaths in battle and from wounds received have decreased in the following percentages: Seven Years' War, 43; Napoleonic wars, 35; Crimean war, 15; Italian war, 10; Franco-Prussian war, 14; Chinese war, 10; Anglo-Boer war, 9; Manchurian war, 25; Turco-Bulgarian campaign, 12; Turco-Serbian campaign, 10; Turco-Greek campaign, 8.

The tendency of modern wars to show a constantly diminishing number of deaths is indicated by some of the most important battles of these and other campaigns, as the following list of percentages of the losses through death during or after the action shows: Borodino, 30; Austerlitz, 25; Waterloo, 17; Solferino, 12; Mukden, 20; Liaochang, 10; Lule-Burgas, 12.

The absence of all reliable data on the losses so far sustained in the European war makes even an estimate impossible.

LIKE HELEN KELLER

Five-Year-Old Boy Displays Remarkable Powers.

Deaf Mute and Almost Blind, He is in Fair Way to Become Famous—Result of Care and Proper Treatment.

St. Louis.—Ernest Smith, five years old, deaf, dumb and almost blind, was taken from the city hospital three years ago, after his mother deserted him, by the Missouri Branch International Sunshine society, and is in a fair way of becoming as remarkable as Helen Keller, according to medical authorities, specialists and instructors in the Missouri School for the Blind.

The child, who three years ago was not expected to live and who was declared to be mentally defective, is an excellent proof of what care, the proper treatment and skilled attention will accomplish. At five he displays a healthy devotion to the sports indulged in by boys of his age the world over and an alarming interest in the carrying out of mischievous pursuits.

Since an operation performed several months ago, which restored to him in a slight measure the use of his left eye, he has displayed a sense of touch and perception which have set his elders wondering, and which has determined them to secure for him the best advantages obtainable to make of himself other than an ordinary mute.

He recognizes colors readily; is able to distinguish his Sunday clothes from those of the every-day variety; he is quick to notice anything new in the wearing apparel or speech of the visitor in the home in which he is being cared for, and he makes known his likes and dislikes in an emphatic manner, in everything ranging the gamut from foodstuffs to persons.

In the opinion of Mrs. F. W. Bauinhoff, for 14 years president of the Missouri Sunshine society, and who

EAR SUSTAINS GUN THUNDER

German Scientists Claim Normal Hearing Is Not Affected by Heavy Artillery.

Berlin.—The normal ear is not affected in any noticeable degree by the noises of even the heaviest artillery, according to conclusions based upon a long study of artillerymen by a Berlin ear specialist.

Of fifty-one artillerymen observed for a long period by this specialist none exhibited any objective symptoms, and only four complained of subjective injuries, mainly "ringing in the head." In investigations covering a whole year only one case of burst eardrum was found.

The ordinary recruit, who serves only two years in peace times in the heavy artillery, but rarely incurs any lasting injury to his ears. Officers who have served many years not infrequently leave the service with chronic partial deafness or ringing in the ears. Investigation appears to show, however, that these sufferers did not have normal organs when they enlisted.

MAY EAT ONLY STATE BREAD

Dresden Residents Are Now Forbidden to Buy Their Supplies in the Evening.

Amsterdam.—It is reported from Dresden that residents there are now receiving every evening bread which is destined for use the next day. They buy a large supply in the evening so as to be able to eat some of the bread when it is fresh.

In view of this evasion of the order the Saxon government has ordered that in future bakers shall supply only stale bread in the evening. The government threatens to forbid the baking of cakes and other pastry.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

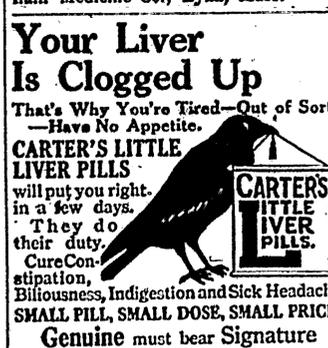

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 8146 N. Tullip St., Richmond, Pa.

No Voice for Singing.
Vivian, age three, and Marion, age two, were doing the street car tango. Accompanied by their mammas, they were on their way to town. They were standing on the car seats, and, of course found added motion to their terpsichorean endeavors in the swaying of the car. Then they turned to a song and dance turn.

Suddenly the car stopped, but the singing continued, and, of course, the attention of the passengers in the car was directed to the children.

Vivian frowned, but Marion did not stop.

"Marion," she finally said, rather sternly, "you must not sing; you haven't a good voice for singing."

PLAN FOR CLEAN EGGS

Sunshine Is Necessary for the Health of Laying Hens.

Poultryman Should Follow Nature's Plan and Make Winter Months Comfortable to Fowls—Furnish Plenty of Nests.

(By A. C. SMITH.)
Sunshine is absolutely necessary for the health and vigor of the laying hen. Low windows should be set so that the sun will shine into every part of the house during some part of the day. Roosts should be placed on a level, and not too high, as the hens are apt to injure themselves either by crowding, falling or flying against a projection about the house. Keep the windows in the poultry house clean. Rub them repeatedly with old newspapers. Sunshine in winter is the greatest of tonics.
When poultrymen and farmers realize that the sooner they follow nature's plan and make the winter months as near like spring and summer months, the sooner they will realize the height of their ambition—win-necessary. Plenty of nesting material prevents breakage and insures clean eggs.

An ample and clean litter on the floor is also very essential when an A-1 clean product is sought. Particularly is this true when the hens are allowed outdoors during wet weather. The litter acts as a foot

KEEPS COWS' STALLS CLEAN

Device Shown in Illustration to Prevent Animals From Standing in Gutters With Hind Feet.

The sketch shows a device to keep the cows from standing in the gutter with their hind feet and making a filth in the stall when they step out, then lying down in the mess, writes A. C. Dillon of Lincoln County, Colo., in Farmers Mail and Breeze. Some have the habit where movable stanchions are not used. This device works to perfection and sometimes cures cows of the habit.

You will need two pieces of 2 by 4. Cut them to fit your gutter as shown in Fig. 1. Angle off one end so the cow does not lie on a sharp corner, make two half-diamond cuts in these pieces and set in the cross pieces. These are made of 3 by 3 and are securely nailed. If the gutter is very wide you may have to put in three strips, as a cow used to standing in the gutter will soon find she can get her feet down between the strips. If you have two or more cows that have this trick stand them together. You can make the strips long enough for several cows and put extra 2 by 4 pieces in to support the strips. Lift the rack and place it back to the wall before turning out the cows. This device effectively cures your helpers of the habit.

Seed Corn From Shock.
Seed corn taken from shock corn which has stood in the field most of the winter has been found to give no better germination test than one and one-half per cent in some instances. Such corn cannot be used for seed with any degree of success. Corn is not allowed to dry out well in the shock, and when frequent freezing and thawing begins the vitality of the corn soon vanishes.

Green Feed for Hens.
Sprouted oats are a splendid green feed for hens in winter and may be quite easily supplied on any farm. They are fed when they have reached a height of about three inches.

PROPER FEEDING OF A COLT

Badly Stunted Weanling Had Hard Time Trying to Make Horse of Itself—Give Some Grain.

Too many young foals, just before and after weaning, and, in fact, throughout the whole winter, are obliged to take pot luck with the older horses and mules, and as a result are stunted. A badly stunted weanling has a hard time trying to make the horse of itself that it would had its opportunity been better early in life. From the time the foal begins to notice the feed box it should have access at frequent intervals, if not constantly, to feed of its own. Oats, either whole or meal, are good for the real young foal; oatmeal is preferred by some.

As the foal increases in age and size, and its ability to eat grain improves, other feeds should be put into the box, forming a grain mixture. Oats, bran and corn, equal parts by weight, may well form the bulk of this mixture. To this may well be added a small amount of linseed oil

No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The coffee drinker who has suffered and then been completely relieved by changing from coffee to Postum knows something valuable. There's no doubt about it.

"I learned the truth about coffee in a peculiar way," says a California woman. "My husband who has, for years, been of a bilious temperament decided to leave off coffee and give Postum a trial, and as I did not want the trouble of making two beverages for meals I concluded to try Postum, too. The results have been that while my husband has been greatly benefited, I have myself received even greater benefit."

"When I began to drink Postum I was thin in flesh and very nervous. Now I actually weigh 16 pounds more than I did at that time and I am stronger physically and in my nerves, while husband is free from all his ails."
"We have learned our little lesson about coffee and we know something about Postum, too, for we have used Postum now steadily for the last three years and we shall continue to do so."

ter eggs. Getting winter eggs is really quite easy if given a little thought and study. Using the gray matter in your skull will make you a successful poultryman.

Poultry keepers may easily reduce the percentage of dirty or soiled eggs, and losses entailed to insignificant figures.

First, an ample number of nests is, of course, necessary, but an ample number means no more, than, and probably not as many as, are usually directed by poultry writers. Laying houses are, as a rule, provided with a sufficient number, but where the keeper falls down is in failing to supply enough nesting material and floor litter.

Obviously the nesting material must be clean, or the eggs become soiled by contact, and it must be sufficient in quantity, or the eggs are often broken by dropping upon the hard floor of the nest. In houses where the dropping boards are above the nests, and the custom is to sand the boards, small stones often drop into the nest and breakage results when newly laid
