APRIL RAINFALL OVER FOUR INCHES

Crop Conditions Throughout County Were Never Better. Acreage Placed Double that of any Previous Year.

THE SOIL IS IN EXCELLENT CONDITION

Reports are coming in from all parts of the county showing that the farmers are taking a greater interest in planting crops than at any previous time in the history of the county. This part of New Mexico has produced a fair crop every year for the last three years and it seems that this season starts in with better prospects than ever.

The soil at this time of the year was never in a better condition. The rainfall for April up to last week, as shown by the U. S. register was four and one quarter inches. Everywhere the dirt tanks and small lakes are full to overflowing, thus assuring an abundance of water for stock during the summer months.

The Hondo and Bonito streams are reported as being somewhat swollen, and much damage has been done in that section due to the highwater.

The amount of land put in this year in the Carrizozo Valley will double that of any previous year. Most of the crops that have been planted are up and growing nicely, and if warm weather continues for a couple of weeks a great many of the homesteads will look like real eastern or northern farms.

Wheat and oats have been planted this spring and it is thought that these crops can be successfully grown here in drier seasons than this one promises to be, by supplementing the rainfall with well irrigation, which a great many of the farmers are doing.

No forage plant has spread so rapidly over the middle west within the last three years as Sudan grass. The Southwest Trail, the agricultural paper of the Rock Island Lines, recently devoted a whole issue to this grass. It was introduced into the United States several years ago from the arid region of northeast Africa, known as "The Sudan." It is a member of the sorghum family and resembles the Johnson grass. Although it looks like Johnson grass it is in no way like it in its habits. When once it gets a start, Johnson grass spreads rapidly, reproducing from underground stems and crowding out all other small vegetation. Sudan grass is reproduced only from the seed and the plant dies root and all every year; thus there is absolutely no danger of its doing damage to other crops. Sudan also makes a better hay than Johnson grass, being more tender and containing a larger per cent of food. The seed of this plant, in former years sold as high as two dollars a pound but it is now within reach of all, selling at twenty-five cents a pound. Nearly every progressive farmer in Lincoln county should plant at least a pound of the seed.

ODD FELLOWS CELEBRATE

Carrizozo Lodge No. 30, I. O. O. F., celebrated the 96th anniversary of the organization of the order on Monday evening from 8 to 11:30 o'clock. The festivities were held in the Masonic hall. The program which was presided over by S. F. Miller, chairman of the entertainment committee, was composed of speaking, instrumental music, etc., at the conclusion of which a big supper was served. Interesting talks were made by S. F. Miller, Dr. T. W. Watson and Mrs. L. A. McCall, the latter being the principal speaker of the evening. About one hundred Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were present and a good time was had by all.

CARRIZOZO VICTORIOUS

A tennis party from Carrizozo motored over to Capitan last Saturday and carried off the honors of the day. The Capitan delegation put up a good class of tennis and local fans will have a chance to witness several sets on the home courts by Saturday week. The Capitan players were Miss Irving, Supt. Chas. L. Schreck, Prin. C. H. Thomason, Arthur Howard and Leslie. Carrizozo was represented by Miss Alice North, Rev. E. D. Lewis, Supt. Andrew McCurdy, George Barber, Emuel Anderson, Louis Adams and Wayne Hamilton.

MRS. LEWIS HONORED

The department of public instruction has received an attractive program of commencement exercises of the Tularosa graded schools which will be held May 29. Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, of Las Vegas, will deliver the class address. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Mrs. Lewis, wife of Rev. E. D. Lewis, pastor of the Methodist Church of Carrizozo. This is said to be the first time the officials of the department of education have heard of a woman selected for this honor.—New Mexican

EL PASO DEFEATS CARRIZOZO

The game of baseball that was played on the local grounds Sunday afternoon between Carrizozo and the E. P. & S. W. shop team of El Paso, resulted in a victory for the visiting team to the tune of 3 to 6. There were 13 innings played, and Carrizozo was the first to score, putting one over the plate in the third inning. It was evident from the start that Carrizozo had not had sufficient practice, which is more than likely what cost them the game. "Shorty" Dawson was the principal batter for the local team and did excellent work. Clay Van Schoyck tried very hard to get the hat offered by the Carrizozo Trading Co for a home run but failed on third. It was an interesting game throughout and as Carrizozo is just now starting in, some very interesting games are expected during the summer.

A PLEASANT HOUR

Mrs. John E. Bell was hostess to a party of lady friends Thursday afternoon in honor of her guest Mrs. Iro O. Wetmore. A pleasant social hour was followed by coffee and assorted cake. Those present besides the guest of honor were Mesdames Hamilton, Dawson, Lewis, McCurdy, Cribb, Tennis, C. Spence, Schaeffer, Brown and Wanner.

DAY OF RECKONING WILL BE IN 1916

A Dispatch from Washington, D. C., Tells how Legislation is Being Done by the New Administration

PRESIDENT HAS SIGNED MANY CRUDE LAWS

The legislative history of two years of Democratic rule was completed March 4. Those two years have been marked by one of the most active periods of law-making this country has ever seen. With a house ready and able to execute his decrees down to the last word and with a working majority in the Senate, President Wilson took the oath of office March 4, 1913. With prophetic eagerness he summoned Congress in extra session a month after. With the exception of six weeks of respite last fall the party machinery has been in operation ever since, grinding out experimental laws that effect every phase of our social and commercial life.

What does a study of that record show?

It discloses the fact that during that time the Democratic Congress has enacted and the Democratic President has signed more crude, imperfect and nugatory laws than ever were written during the same length of time by any American Congress. It furnishes an indictment of haste and lack of legislative intelligence that is bound to be humiliating to the party responsible.

That there has been a tremendous quantity of legislation cannot be denied. More than four hundred public laws have been placed upon the statute books by the Democrats since they came into power. These are designated "public" because they appropriate money for general purposes or effect general law. In addition to these, hundreds of private bills, have been passed.

Those who have closely observed the methods of legislation used by the Democratic majority are not surprised at the faulty results. The present administration has been admittedly notable, even notorious, for its steam roller short cuts in enacting laws. Every important bill passed has been put through with small consideration beyond that of party experience. As soon as the president proposed a law, then the caucus approved it, the majority rushed it through committees and back to the President for his signature, all with as little debate as possible, and under iron clad special rules and permitted no chance for intelligent consideration or amendment.

It is conceivable that a few bills might be put through a legislative body in this way and emerge in perfect form. But to use such methods indiscriminately, as the Democratic Congress has done, is practically to insure the enactment of laws which future Congress must either repeal or spend many weeks to amend. This is the task which Democratic haste and lustful use of a powerful majority has created for future Congresses.

Specific examples of blundering will not be enumerated in this article. It is enough at present to make the general statement that the Democratic party has "sown a whirlwind of mistakes." Future articles will appear that will show in detail the various instances of blundering, careless drafting of bills that finally went on the statute books without correction.

STING OF CONSCIENCE

A country newspaper once printed an item something like this: "It is reported on good authority that a certain married man in this town is conducting himself in a scandalous manner since his wife went away on a visit to her kinfolk three weeks ago. If the said party does not cease his mischief by the time we go to press with our next issue we'll give his name and the details." The paper had not been in the post office three hours until half a dozen men whose wives were off on visits came around to the editor, paid their subscriptions two years in advance, and quietly told him not to put any faith in certain rumors going the rounds.

If we thought that this racket would work on some of our delinquent subscribers we would even do worse than this, but we feel that our time and space would only be thrown away.

SAYS COUNTY IS PROGRESSING

Geo. Sena, county clerk of Guadalupe county, residing at Santa Rosa, came in Thursday morning before returning to his home. Mr. Sena expects to visit Capitan, Lincoln and other points in the county. Mr. Sena is one of the old-timers of Lincoln county, and has served the people of this bailiwick as sheriff and probate clerk. Geo. hasn't changed a bit, but he declares this section of the country has changed for the better in every way since he last saw it some five years ago. George's hosts of friends were delighted to see him once more on a portion of his old stamping grounds.

FRUIT PROSPECTS GOOD

At the present time there are better prospects for a bumper fruit crop in Lincoln county than has ever been at this time of the year according to reports from orchard men of the east end of the county. It was feared by many that the recent cold spell had done great damage to the fruit crop but it is reported that all fruit is safe and there will be abundance of apples, peaches, apples and plums.

However, there have, in times past been killing frosts up to the last week in April, but each succeeding day makes the situation a little safer and here's hoping that 1915 will be a great fruit year for the entire county.

TOOK PRISONERS TO "PEN"

John Baird whom sheriff Chavez appointed his special deputy for the purpose of taking the prisoners sentenced Monday and Tuesday by Judge Medler to the penitentiary, left with his men in his Ford for Santa Fe Tuesday, returning Thursday. John says that Torrance county has the best roads in New Mexico.

DISTRICT COURT HOLDS TWO DAYS' TERM

Judge Medler Opened Court Here Monday for Lincoln County and Disposed of Several Civil Cases

APPOINTS JURY COMMISSIONERS FOR ENSUING YEAR

Judge Medler opened the regular term of the district court for this county at the court house here last Monday, without juries. A number of civil matters were taken up and passed on by the Court, the more important cases, however, being continued until a later date.

On the criminal side of the court, Edmond Raymond's bond was reduced to $250.00, the defendant being before the court on a writ of habeas corpus. The bond was made without difficulty and the defendant given liberty. He is alleged to have been implicated in the Dunn robbery case last October.

In the habeas corpus proceeding instituted by the defendants in the matter of the State vs. J. J. Ayers and Harriett Melvers, held to the grand jury by the examining magistrate on the charge of adultery, the court discharged the parties, indicating that in a crime of this nature the complaint must show a continuing offence which is so open and notorious as to constitute a nuisance.

Tom Riley pleaded guilty to an information charging him with forgery and was given a term of one year in the penitentiary. Riley forged the name of P. E. Hardcastle to two checks, which he passed on local merchants, for about $30.00.

Guillermo Torres, after pleading guilty to an information in which he was charged with assaulting his wife, was given a penitentiary sentence of one year.

Geo. Irwin, in the confinement from the justice court, from which he had been bound over to the grand jury on a charge of burglary preferred against him by the rail road company for breaking into a box car, was called before the court and discharged from custody at the same time being by the judge ordered to get out of the jurisdiction of the court without delay.

Chris Selving was brought over from Fort Stanton on a complaint asking that his sanity be inquired into, he was taken before the court and adjudged to be of unsound mind. A commitment was ordered and the patient was taken to the asylum at Las Vegas.

An order of the court was entered giving the county commissioners permission to sell the old court house and jail, and the real estate pertaining thereto, under the provisions of the statutes. Further action in this matter will doubtless be taken by the commissioners at the July meeting of the board.

The jury commissioners appointed for the ensuing year are H. S. Campbell, Carrizozo, Geo. Titsworth, Capitan, Florencio Chavez, Lincoln. The commissioners will meet here Saturday of this week for the purpose of preparing the jury list.

The court now stands adjourned to the call of the court.

He lowered himself into the stream, which was deep to the shore, as silently as a ghost. A dozen feet away I lost sight of him entirely amid the dim, dancing shadows. Then I followed with equal caution, my face turned up to the sky. It was a dark night, but with a few stars visible peeping down through rifts of cloud. The small river was not wide, nor the current particularly swift, and I had not been carried far down stream when the overhanging branches of the opposite bank gave shelter. I drew myself ashore, and sat there, shivering in my wet clothes, the night air chill, and stared anxiously about, and across to the shore we had just left.

I moved down the shore cautiously, keeping well below the concealing bank until I found Brady. He was crouched in the shadow of a great tree root, his whole attention riveted on the opposite side.

"There are no signs of pursuit?"
"Not that I can see. I have watched here some minutes, but there has been no movement along the bank. We will move on down stream."

It was hard walking amid the tangled roots, and we made slow work of it. Brady, in advance, stumbled once or twice, and I noticed, held one hand pressed against his side as though from pain, breathing heavily. To our left, but some distance away, a voice called, and was answered by another. So, toiling on, we came to a sharp bend in the stream.

"It must be about opposite here, Hayward," he said stopping, "the girl told you the boat would be. What is that lumping shadow yonder? Your eyes are younger than mine."

"It is a big tree bent down over the river; no doubt the one she meant."
"You see no movement?"
I strained my eyes, searching the dark shore inch by inch, but could perceive nothing; the lights of the fires were far away.

"He is still as death over there."
He shot a swift glance at me, as if the words pleased him little. In the dim starshine his face appeared ghostly white.

"Perhaps the days of miracles are not gone," he said doubtfully, "and Girty may have played fair. Anyhow there is nothing to be done now but test it. Come on, lad; we'll take to water again."

The cheerful note in his voice bolstered my own courage. We swam straight this time, with steady stroke, our eyes scanning the bank we were approaching. And the canoe was there, smuggled under the leaning tree, bow to bank, rendered shapeless by a covering of broken branches.

Concealed by the shade of the great tree I waded cautiously ashore and crept out into a maze of roots. The higher bank rose sheer before me. To the right there was an opening, as if a trail led down to the river, and revealed there against the upper sky, something moved. For an instant I could tell no more; then I recognized a human figure stealing cautiously toward me through the gloom. It moved silently as a spirit, and my heart beat fiercely as I rose up and stared. She was close upon me before I was sure.

"Rene."
"Oh," a little catch in the quick whisper; "then—then it is you; how—how did you come here?"

I drew her back into the deeper shadow, and told her the brief story in swift words, clinging to her hands, as I held her close. I could not distinguish her face, but she listened, her soft breath on my cheek.

"Oh, I am so glad—so glad, monsieur. I did not know until after I gave the signal. I—came down here to be sure—to, to say good-by," she faltered, "and—and saw them waiting."

"Then it was treachery? The purpose was to kill us? Girty lied?"
"Yes, monsieur. You—you will not believe I knew? That I suspected such a thing?"

My handclasp tightened.
"No, dear, no; go on. Where are the men?"

"Most of them, ten or twelve as near as I could make out, are in a ravine at the edge of the camp, yonder close to the shore. There are three others up above here, hiding behind the bank."
"I see; the attack was to be made by those above as we crept along, and it either of us got away those three devils were to complete the job."

CHAPTER XXIII.

In the Woods.
"You must get into the canoe, Rene," I said shortly. "Come, we have no time to lose."

"Monsieur!"
"Yes, yes; I am not going to leave you here for Hamilton to wreak his rage on. There is no time to argue now."

"But, monsieur—"
"Never mind that; will you go as I say?"

There was a silvery gleam of star on her upturned face, and I could see her eyes, startled, puzzled, half frightened, gazing up into mine. Then the long lashes drooped over them.

"Yes, monsieur," she said, her lips trembling. "I will go with you."

The dawn found me with the paddle, but Rene still wide awake. There was a thin, gray fog over the river, which turned to purple as the light strengthened, and we were at the apex of a great bend, the course of the stream ahead leading into the northwest. That was not our direction, and besides I felt if there was pursuit it would be safer far ashore. Just as the sun broke through the mist we came unexpectedly to the mouth of a small stream leading into the main river from the south. So thoroughly was it concealed by a thick growth of bushes, that we would have slipped by, had I not been skirting the shore closely, seeking some such opening. I headed the canoe straight in, pressing aside the branches to gain passage, and found beyond a narrow creek, up which we managed to paddle for several hundred yards. Then I stepped overboard, and dragged the light craft still higher, until I discovered a place of concealment behind a huge rotting log.

Here we left it, Rene and I bearing with us the guns and our small store of provisions. I had cut a cane for Brady, and, with his help, he managed to get along slowly, although sight of his face made my heart ache. Thus in single file we waded up the tiny stream, until we attained a ledge of rocks where our feet would leave no trail. Over these we toiled, helping each other, until we came to the upland, into an open forest, carpeted with autumn leaves. By this time Brady was too exhausted to go further, sinking helplessly on the ground. Rene also looked worn and heavy-eyed, and I had no heart to urge them on. We ate sparingly of what food we had, but Brady barely touched his portion. I wrapped him in our only blanket, and the three of us slept.

It was the gray dawn when mademoiselle awoke me, shaking me soundly ere I could be aroused.

"What is it?"
"He is gone, monsieur! Monsieur Brady is gone."
"Gone! You mean left camp. Why that is impossible; he could barely walk."

"But he is not here, monsieur," she insisted. "See; it was there he lay. I will tell you all I know. I woke up in the night and thought of him, of how hard it was for so strong a man to be so weak and ill. Then I got up and went over quietly to be sure he was all right. But he was awake, monsieur, staring up at the sky with eyes wide open. He saw me, and said he was nervous and could not sleep. No, he told me he was not in pain, but complained of being cold. I spread more leaves over him, and he said that was better. Then—then he took my hand and kissed it, and begged me to go back and—and lie down. He was very nice and gentle, and smiled at me. So I went back, and crept into my leaves, and tried to sleep. He did not move, yet I lay there a long while thinking. I—think I cried a little, monsieur, for I felt so sorry. At last I slept again. It was just a little light when I awoke once more, and my first memory was of him. I went over there and—and he was gone. I could see where he had rested in the leaves, and the blanket on the ground, but—but he was not there. I sought for him, but there was no trace—nothing. So I came and woke you."

I was on my feet, a feeling of dread tugging at my heart. I felt that I already knew what had happened, yet I could not tell her—not now, not until I was sure.

"He could not have gone far, Rene," I said hastily. "Perhaps to the river for a drink. Come, we will see."

The ground about the camp had been so trampled by our feet that, at first, I could not pick up the trail. Finally, taking a wider circle, I came upon softer soil and the imprint of his moccasins. I knew they were his because of one foot dragging, and the impression of his cane. They led down toward the river, and I followed swiftly, the girl close behind, until we stood at the edge of the stream. The man's trail ended there. I explored the bank for some distance up and down, but without result. There were tears glistening in Rene's eyes, as I came back—she also was beginning to understand. Without a word I waded out into the water, and swam across to the other shore. There was nothing there—no sign, no mark of any description—and I came back to where she waited, wading out with dripping garments to the bank.

"There—there was nothing, monsieur."

"Nothing," I answered gravely. "He has not crossed over." I hesitated an instant, but could not resist the questioning horror in her eyes. "You understand, do you not?"

"You—you think," she faltered, "that Monsieur Brady has—has killed himself?"

"He has given his life for others, my girl—for you and me, and those soldiers of St. Clair's."

She stood a moment, silent, tears on her cheeks, looking blindly out at the water. Then she sank upon her knees, holding the crucifix against her face. I could see the movement of her lips, but heard nothing; only I knew that she prayed for his soul, and my own eyes were moist as I knelt beside her. Then I lifted her up by the hand, and we went back up the hill to the camp.

There was nothing to hope for in waiting, and all our duty lay beyond. Without the exchange of a word we packed what few things we had, and started, following the bank of the stream.

It was a raw November morning that we came unexpectedly upon St. Clair's outposts. The ground was covered with snow, and the little pools were skimmed over with thin ice. It had been too cold to rest, and we had walked much of the night, afraid to build a fire. Chilled to the marrow by the icy wind that swept through the trees and buffeted us, I had wrapped the girl in our only blanket, fastening it about her head and face, hurt as I did so by the dumb, patient, bewildered look in her eyes. She tried to protest, yet at my first stern word ceased and wrapped herself closely in the folds. I was in front, breaking the trail that she might have easier marching, when suddenly a man stepped out of a thicket, and with gun at my breast roughly commanded a halt. I paused instantly, uncertain as to which side the challenger was on, yet a glance at his face and dress reassured me.

"Who are yer, an' what do yer want?" he asked suspiciously.

"I am an officer of the Fort Harmar garrison," I answered, "with news from the north. To what command do you belong?"

"The Kentucky militia," he acknowledged sullenly. "Colonel Oldham."

"Where is your colonel?"
"Back yonder on that rise o' ground; you kin go on, but I'll keep an eye on yer."

We left him, following the direction pointed out, hearing him call to some one in our rear, yet paying no heed. The very case with which he had passed us on was evidence enough of lax discipline, and small conception of the danger of the command. There was a plain track through the snow, which led to a camp fire blazing cheerily in a grove of trees, with maybe a dozen men clustered about it. No one appeared to notice us as we drew near.

"Which is Colonel Oldham?" I asked, glancing about the group. One stood up, a smooth-faced, ruddy-cheeked man of fifty, with iron-gray hair, and eyes that looked as if they laughed easily.

"That is my name," he said shortly. "What is it? St. Denis, man!" as his glance swept over me, "you look as if you had been far from the settlements and had a hard trip."

"I have, sir; I come from the Maumee. I am an officer of regulars with news of importance for St. Clair."

Every eye was on me now and Oldham took a step nearer.

"The Maumee!" he exclaimed. "Ay, that is a journey. News for St. Clair, you say—what news? There was a rumor down below that the Indians of the northwest were mustering. Know you anything of that?"

"They have already mustered, sir. I was at their rendezvous. Even now they are at my heels—the whole of them, Shawnees, Miamis, Delawares, Wyandots and, for all I know, as many more. There are white renegades with them, and English officers I suspect—I saw Hamilton myself on the Maumee, and he evidently was managing affairs."

"Well, sir, I believe it, but I'll be hanged if you can make St. Clair. The arrogant old fool may listen to you, but I doubt even that. He thinks this is a pleasure party we are on. What do you think he did a week ago?"

I looked at him uncomplaining, stung by such mutinous words openly spoken.

"Sent back a whole regiment of regulars on a wild-goose chase after deer, and we within fifty miles of the Miami towns."

"What force have you here?"
"Less than fourteen hundred—all militia but one regiment. From the Maumee, ensign? And did you come through alone with that squaw?"

I glanced back at her, standing silently behind me, the blanket drawn over her head and face.

"Take it off, Rene," I said quietly.

"Yes, monsieur."
Her hands obediently threw the wrapping aside, permitting it to drape over her shoulders. She lifted her head, and stood facing them, with eyes centering upon Oldham. He gasped, and jerked the hat from off his head. "I beg your pardon," he stammered. "A white woman?"

"A French girl, sir, whom I found with the Wyandots. Can you send us back to St. Clair?"

He stared at her so long, hat still in hand, that I thought he did not hear. An officer touched him on the shoulder and spoke a word.

"Ah, yes, certainly—St. Clair. At once, sir, but I don't envy you your reception. By Jove, I lost my wits seeing such a woman as that here in this hole. Someone send Masters here."

He came quickly, a youngish lad, with white hair and eyebrows, but intelligent face, who never took his eyes off Rene. Oldham spoke brusquely.

"Take this officer and the lady to General St. Clair at once. Tell Butler I say it is important, that he be given immediate interview. Here, wait! get the lady a horse somewhere. Captain, can he take yours?"

"With pleasure, sir; I will fetch the animal."

They watched us depart until we had crossed the ridge, Masters and I trudging through the snow at the horse's head. Rene had drawn up her blanket, but I could see her eyes watching me, when I glanced around at her. It was not long, however, until we came out of the forest, into a bit of lowland near the river, where a dozen tents, grimy and dirty looking, stood on the bank. There were soldiers everywhere, gathered about the camp fires, with a few guards patrolling beats along the forest edge. Masters led the way through the motley crowd up to the central tent. There was delay there, Rene sitting motionless in the saddle, and I waiting impatiently beside her. At last Masters came back.

"He will see you, sir."

"Very well; are there any women in camp?"

"A few, sir; 'non-com' wives mostly, washerwomen and cooks; they are in those two tents there—the officers' kitchens."

"Take the lady over there, and leave her in good hands, Rene."

She looked down at me.

"Yes, monsieur."
"This soldier will take you to some women who will take care of you until I come. You will wait for me."

"Yes, monsieur."
I waited until they started, and then advanced to the tent. A tall, slender man, in a colonel's uniform, pointed the way within, and I stepped through the narrow opening. The interior was plain—a bearskin stretched on the ground, two officers on campstools against the canvas; a sentry beside the open flap standing motionless; a rude table of one unplanned board, and behind it, seated, St. Clair. He was a spare man, with broad shoulders and prominent nose, wearing a long queue of thick, gray hair, which was pigmy visible below his three-cornered hat. He was attired in blanket coat, with hood dangling down his back.

"Well, sir," he snapped, "Colonel Oldham says you bring news. Who are you?"

"Ensign Hayward of Fort Harmar," I answered, bringing my hand up in salute. "I was sent with a message to the Wyandots."

The stern lines of his face broke into a grim smile.

"Ah, yes, I recall that. One of Harmar's fool notions. Told him as much when I got back. Well, your peace offering didn't do much good, did it? I hear there is hell brewing in those north woods."

"It is already brewed, sir. The tribes have got together to crush you. They rendezvoused on the Maumee."

"Huh! that is a ways away. No great danger from that source till we're ready. What tribes were there, do you know?"

"I saw them, sir; Wyandots, Pottawattomies, Shawnees, Delawares and Miamis. There were also some Ojibwas, and a sprinkling of others, mostly young warriors."

"Who heads the conspiracy?"
"Little Turtle, of the Miamis, but there are Englishmen with them also; Hamilton himself was there."

"The cursed hound; so you were there, with them, hey? A prisoner?"
"Yes, general; a scout named Stephen Brady and I. We got away by means of a canoe on the river."

"Where is Brady? I know the old coon."

"He died, sir, and I came on alone." No one spoke, and I went on.

"It was a hard journey, and there were many delays on the way. I came as quickly as I could, sir, but I don't think the savages are far behind."

"Oh, don't you, indeed," sarcastically. "It was not advice I was asking, and as to what is in front of us my own scouts keep me posted. You're young, and easily frightened. I happen to know there isn't a hostile Indian within fifty miles of us—not a bloody one. I don't care what they do up on the Maumee. We'll go on to the Miami towns tomorrow, raze them, and be back to the Ohio before that bunch gets started. I doubt if there is a shot fired. It's all a big bluff, sir; we've got them frightened half to death. I wrote Washington as a month ago."

MRS. WILLIAMS' LONG SICKNESS

Yields To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Elkhart, Ind.:—"I suffered for fourteen years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanative Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.

"If these lines will be of any benefit you have my permission to publish them."—Mrs. SADDIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Interested.

"My dear, you ought to pass up frivolous things and take an interest in deep subjects. Take history, for instance. Here is an interesting item. Gessler, the tyrant, put up a hat for the Swiss to salute."

The lady was a trifle interested. "How was it trimmed?" she inquired.

GOOD USES FOR KEROSENE

Excellent for Cleaning Glassware—Will Remove Rust From Kitchen Stove—For the Refrigerator.

A little kerosene added to very hot water will make windows, looking glasses and picture glasses bright and clear. Use a small, clean cloth, wring it dry and rub it over the glass, after wiping down the framework with an oiled cloth. Then proceed to the next window and treat it similarly on both sides. After that go back to the first one and wipe it dry with a large clean cloth. No real polishing is required and the window or glass will look clear and shiny.

Kerosene will clean your hands better than anything else after blacking a range or stove. Pour a little in the water, wash your hands in it, then wash them in tepid water and finally with plenty of soap and a stiff brush in hot water. If possible finish up by rubbing the hands with lemon and rosewater and glycerin.

When your kitchen sink is rusty rub it over with kerosene.

Squeaks in shoes may sometimes be prevented by dipping the soles in kerosene.

The white spots appearing in the spring on the lining of your refrigerator will disappear if you rub the zinc with kerosene. Leave the refrigerator open several hours, then wash with water, soap and ammonia. The refrigerator will then be clean and sweet and all spots will have disappeared.

To clean painted walls wipe them first with a cloth wet in kerosene and let stand 15 minutes. Then wash the walls with good warm soapsuds, but do not rub soap on the cloth, or the paint will be streaked. Rub spots of tar or pine pitch on clothing in kerosene before washing them.

MANY WAYS TO SERVE EGGS

Albumen Water, for One Thing, is Palatable and Highly Beneficial for Children.

After a bilious attack or any other kind of stomach trouble when a child cannot digest the yolk of the egg, it is possible to make the needed albumen more palatable by poaching just the white, removing the yolk before the white is dropped into the poacher.

Of course this can only be done in the transition period after the albumen water (raw white shaken up in water) is no longer strong enough.

Those who have babies generally know how to make albumen water, but for the benefit of those who do not know, the proportion depends upon the age of the child.

The usual formula for older children is the white of one egg shaken up in a glass of water, put on ice or served with ice chopped with a little orange juice for flavoring, if the doctor will allow it.

A refreshing drink for a sick person is the white of egg shaken up in two-thirds of a glass of water, mixed with the juice of a whole orange and half a lemon, with a little cracked ice. The acid cuts the albumen and prevents the stringiness besides adding a delicious flavor, cooling to a fevered throat.

Beefsteak Pie.

Have butcher cut 1 1/2 pounds of round steak into small squares. Put meat, with one small onion chopped fine, in frying pan with two tablespoonfuls of butter and simmer for a few minutes. Cover with boiling water and boil—not too rapidly—until tender. Add four potatoes, cut into small cubes the last 15 minutes. Make pie crust and line baking pan. Prick and place in oven until dry but not brown. Put stew into this, adding one-half teaspoonful of chopped parsley, one-quarter teaspoonful of black pepper and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Put on top crust and brown in oven. Serve from baking dish. Mushrooms may be added with potatoes if desired.

Lentil Croquettes.

Take one pint of lentil pulp, one-half pint of bread crumbs (entire wheat preferred), three beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of grated onions, one-quarter cupful of butter. Salt and pepper to taste. Mix ingredients together, cook in double boiler or steam until eggs are set. Chill, then form in croquettes. Dip in egg, roll in crumbs and fry in deep fat. To add one-half cupful of shredded English walnuts or pecans imparts a rich, delicate flavor.

Chicken and Almond.

Mix half a cupful of blanched chopped almonds with half a cupful of dried cold chicken and moisten with four tablespoonfuls of cream. Season with salt and pepper and spread between buttered slices of bread.

Macedoine Salad.

Take an even quantity of cold, cooked vegetables—peas, turnips, beets and potatoes, cut fine. Add a little minced onion. Cover with salad dressing, mix lightly and serve cold.

His Grievance.
A dozen deaf-mutes sat in a north-bound subway train the other night, vigorously conversing along and across the aisle, with gesticulating arms and fingers. The roar of the train was no deterrent to that interchange.
At Grand Central station a man got on plainly overloaded with effective beverage. All the way to Seventy-second street he watched, fascinated, the swift play of hands and fingers. Once he shouted some remark, lost in the racket of the train, and unnoticed, of course, by the deaf-mutes to whom it was addressed.
The doors were closed and the train ready to start from Seventy-second street; there was a bit of silence. In to it the inebriated one broke with an appeal to the guard:
"Conductor! Conductor! I wick!—wish you'd ask those people not to tick!—talk so loud. I can't sleep a wick!—wink."—New York Evening Post.

Would Not Do.
The other morning Jones turned up at the office even later than usual. His employer, tired of waiting for him, had himself set about registering the day's transactions, usually Jones' first duty. The enraged merchant laid his pen aside very deliberately and said to Jones, very sternly:
"Jones, this will not do!"
"No, sir," replied Jones, gently, drawing off his overcoat as he glanced over his employer's shoulder, "it will not. You have entered up McKurkey's order in the wrong book altogether. Far better to have waited till I came."

SAVED FROM GRAVE BY WONDERFUL REMEDY

"I feel like it had brought me from the grave."
After taking one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, W. E. Barnett of Glen, Colo., found relief from stomach trouble of years' standing.

Mr. Barnett's experience is typical of the experiences of stomach sufferers all over the country. For two years he bought and tried all kinds of medicines and so-called "cures." He got Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and after much hesitation took a dose. Results—were immediate. The first dose convinced—it always does. Mr. Barnett wrote:

"I cannot say anything but words of praise for your Wonderful Remedy, after taking one bottle, I had spent all I was able to spend for medicine for two years. Now I feel that your remedy has brought me from my grave."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. She went on with her sequence of affection. At last aunty interrupted: "But don't you love your godmother?"
"Oh, yes, I love her. I love her, but she comes at the very, very end of the list—the last one. And in between . . . in between, are quite a good many dogs."—New York Evening Post.

If you want to ruin your boy just take his side on every question and dispute he has with his teacher or your neighbor's children. Just let him know you are with him, right or wrong, in all his disputes. This will give him a good start in the downward path.

A man's worth is not measured by the wealth he has accumulated nor the sensational reports of his achievements, but in service he has rendered to the community. Some men never acquire wealth and do not desire it, but "lay up treasures where moths do not corrupt nor thieves break through nor steal." Their wealth is in character which has been formed by good deeds that live after them.

There are various opinions advanced from time to time as to Uncle Sam's dilatory tactics in the Mexican situation, but the only answer to his course seems to be, that while he is slow to act he is some one when he gets his back up, straightens out his fur and sticks out his claws. He knows as soon as he makes a face at those Mexicans that he's got the whole caboodle to lick.

A man may invest in bonds and get one dividend a year. He may invest in sound stocks and get one or two. He may also buy wild cat mining shares and enjoy an assessment. He may put his money in a savings bank and get two dividends in twelve months. But if he invests in the future in the stock exchanges alongside the big gamblers who make the business a profession, the chances are that he will never see hide, hair nor color of his money again.

COURTESIES FORGOTTEN

The man who runs a store account several months buying in small quantities, should never go away from the store that accommodates him in case he should have $20 or $50 to spend, and then come home with his purchases and say he can do better at some other place than at home. It is always to be presumed that a man who is making large cash purchases can drive a closer bargain than one who makes small purchases on time. We do not believe there is a town anywhere in the state where goods are sold on a smaller margin than right here in Carrizozo, and still the mail order house patrons of our little city are so numerous it would require a whole of a mathematician to even estimate the number. If the home merchant is not worthy of your support when you have the money you should not ask favors of him when you get in the tight.

Col. Roosevelt is again getting some free advertising, even if it is a libel suit. Anything with Teddy so long as he is given prominent space in the newspapers.

Some fellows imagine every idea and theory is wrong but theirs. That's what we call the narrow soul. Some are ready to fight a disagreement of their opinions; that's the brainless man. Then there is the broad minded man who is always ready to discuss the question with his neighbor and be convinced when he finds out he is wrong.

NEXT ADMINISTRATION

It is in the air that American business men are resolved upon asserting their right to be represented in national affairs. In Washington circles, as set forth by the correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, the feeling is general that the next administration is going to be selected by business men.

In the middle west, according to the correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, business men are organizing for the campaign of 1916 and are intending to become a leading factor in the events and results of next year.

In New York ex Senator Root has been telling the men of big business that the time has come for them to assert the right of business men to do business without being hampered and crippled by the hostile legislation and the anti-business proclivities of the present federal government.

In Louisiana the reputable business men, regardless of previous party affiliations are forming plans which look toward the rescue of that state from the blighting consequences of free trade.

In Florida, where the business of growing fruits and vegetables for the northern market has been practically ruined by the free list of the Underwood Tariff sentiment is developing that bids fair to work important changes in the politics of that state.

In Texas free trade in wool, live stock and other farm products has embittered great numbers of men who have hitherto voted the democratic ticket, and the situation is ripe for revolt from the political machine that operates blindly, always for a party and never intelligently for the best interests of the people.—American Economist.

WHITE OAKS

Charlie Spence is showing some mighty good specimens of copper from his Yellow Jacket iron mine, and may conclude to mine it all to copper instead of iron.

Miss Edith Schale has accepted a position in the Chas. D. Mayer store and about every young fellow in town is going there to get their cigarettes and taffy.

Wayne Van Schoyck is rapidly recovering from a very severe attack of the measles. It serves him right however, for not having them when he was young.

There has been several cases of typhoid-pneumonia in town of late but the parties afflicted are all on the mend and some of them on the streets.

Col John W. Harrison of St Louis Mo., with his son-in-law J. E. Campbell, are among the late arrivals. Looking after their mining interests, having a change of climate and taking a much needed rest is supposed to be their mission here.

The way the town is filling up of late the need of more and better houses is seriously felt. Every bushy topped juniper and cedar hereabouts is beginning to spread itself like a green bay tree and hanging out the sign "Only basement rooms to let."

Mr Kniffin, who put in the tailings apparatus at the cyanide plant for the Wild Cats several months ago, came back Tuesday bringing with him J. W. Wilkey a friend of his and the two of them appear to be giving the whole camp a pretty thorough going over.

A government inquisitorial emissary came in one day this week and plied our local postmaster with interrogations galore and otherwise attempted to put him on a redhot gridiron. Bob is rapidly recovering from the unexpected and violent attack.

Messrs McDonald and Stanton are now working the old John Wilson properties, on which they have a bond and lease. They have moved into the Frank Loyd residence and will undoubtedly disprove the old assertion that "no house ever built is big enough for which two families can live in peace and harmony."

Judge Hewitt is making arrangements to do some development work on the Little Mack mine. This has always been considered one of the very best properties in the White Oaks District and it is to be hoped it will at least keep up its reputation when it comes to a show down.

Col Geo. W. Prichard is developing some very fine ore on his Comstock with enough of the yellow metal visible to make an old prospector go tangoing all over the side of the mountain. He came up from Carrizozo the other day and filled his pockets with enough rich specimens to make his friends crowd around and gaze. He brought Judge Medler along to add a judicial air to the proceeding.

SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE

Since taking charge of the Outlook we have mailed out several hundred dollars worth of statements to those who were indebted $1.50 or more, and those whose subscription had expired we mailed statements to them for the advance subscription now due. Some have remitted, but the majority have remained as silent as the seven spirits. We kindly ask every one indebted to us to send in their remittance at once. It seems a little unfair for us to pay interest to keep our business going when we have due us in amounts from $1.50 up, enough to pay all we owe. In fact we cannot understand why a subscription to a newspaper should be the last obligation considered, when most of those indebted are able to pay promptly. A payment now will be appreciated.

HONDO

(Too late for last week)

Robert Brady made a business trip to Rabenton during the week. Some rain—four inches. Not in the history of the oldest inhabitant has it occurred before.

One farmer on the Ruidoso is said to have lost about twenty hogs in the flood, others lost smaller numbers.

S. W. Kelsey went to Carrizozo last Sunday to visit his wife who is at her parent's home slowly recovering from a serious illness.

J. S. Sloan returned this week from Big Springs, Texas, where he went to take a bunch of horses, he reports splendid crops and plenty of rain in that section.

The carcasses of a number of horses and cattle were seen in the flood waters but their owners, in some cases no doubt, or yet in ignorance of their loss.

The Ruidoso suffered the most from the rain hail and flood. Several farmers lost from one to five acres of valuable land, in some cases orchard and alfalfa land went down.

Lon Hunter, the constable from the Upper Ruidoso, was visiting friends at San Patricio last week and reports one hundred feet of snow in the canyon of the Sierra Blanca. The Worst is yet to come.

Hondo and Lincoln have a base ball team worth while. They went up to Fort Stanton last Sunday and defeated the Fort team to the tune of five to one, and this without an hour's practice this season. The same teams will probably play at this place next Sunday week.

A sheepman who has ranches south of Picocho is said to have lost an automobile in a sudden flood through a dry arroyo; some part of the car was broken and had to be left near the bottom of the arroyo while the chauffeur went to repair the broken part, and when he came back he met the car on the crest of a flood on its way to Roswell.

The sheepmen whose flocks began lambing before the big "spell-of-weather", have lost quite heavily; those who are now beginning are hopeful of the best crop of lambs ever produced, as the grass is working overtime in making the landscape green, while water is the least of their troubles—every arroyo, pond, lake and waterhole is full.

LINCOLN

A number of the neighbors spent a very enjoyable time with Mr Mabrys Saturday evening.

Miss Bernice Hulbert has so far recovered from her recent illness as to be able to be out.

Farmers are very busy planting their spring crops and making gardens.

It began raining on April 10 and rained every day for a week and grass is starting out nicely.

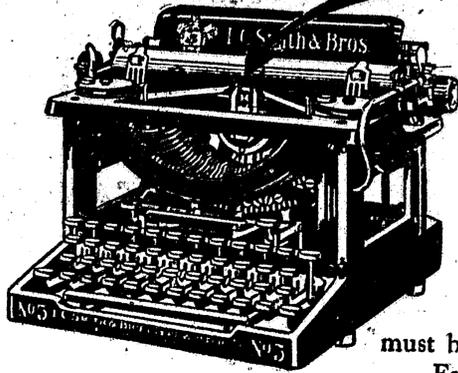

Fruit trees are in bloom and there is fine prospects for an abundance of fruit of all kinds.

Sunday school has been organized here with James Dow as Supt and meets at the Lincoln school house each Sunday.

There was a light hail storm here on the 10th inst. accompanied by rain but not heavy enough to injure the fruit.

WHITE OAKS

H. H. Newberry who has been employed at the North Homestake mine for the past year, left Tuesday for his former home at Santo, Texas.

Mrs. E. L. Queen who has been undergoing treatment at the Paden hospital at Carrizozo for some time, returned home Thursday.

Several forces of men have been put to work on different properties here the past week and all indications point to a substantial revival of mining activities this year.

Wayne Van Schoyck who has been suffering for the past ten days with a severe attack of measles is reported as slowly recovering.

FAITHFULNESS TO OPPORTUNITIES.

Lev. 19:11-27—July 23.
"Well done, thou good and faithful servant! thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."—Matthew 25:21.

We are not to confound the Parable of the Pounds with the Parable of the Talents. They teach totally different lessons. In the case of the talents, the amount given each servant differed. In the case of the pounds, the amount was the same. This parable, therefore, deals with something common to all the class referred to.

Jesus and His disciples were approaching Jerusalem, where shortly He was to be crucified. The disciples, on the contrary, supposed that the Messianic Kingdom would immediately be established. This parable was intended to inform them that a long time would first elapse.

The kings of Palestine were appointed by the Roman Emperor. One of the Herods had recently gone to Rome, seeking appointment to a kingdom. Some who hated him sent a message to Rome, declaring their preference for another king. Jesus seized upon this circumstance as illustrating His own case. He was the Appointee for the Messianic Kingdom; but He would go to Heaven, and there the Heavenly Father, Emperor of the Universe, would invest Him with authority. Later He would return to earth and exercise dominion. This is exactly the presentation of prophecy.—Psalm 2:8.

"Occupy Till I Come."

During the Master's absence in Heaven, He has committed to His disciples, His servants, one pound each, with full liberty to use their best judgment in His service. At His return, these servants will be reckoned with, and rewarded in proportion to their zeal and efficiency.

The parable distinguishes between these consecrated servants of God and the world. It shows that nothing is "Occupy Until I Come" committed to the masses, and that no judgment, reward, is made in their case at the Master's return. Only His servants will be held responsible for either reward or punishment in respect to their faithfulness.

In considering what is signified by the pound, we must keep in memory that the fulfillment must show some blessing or responsibility given alike to all of God's consecrated people. We can think of but one thing given alike to this class. Their talents and opportunities are very unlike—wealth, mental capacity, environment, etc. None of these varied talents belong to this Parable of the Pounds.

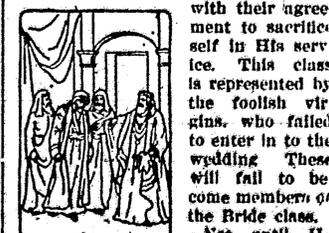

The pound represents justification. The one thing which the Redeemer does for all His followers is to justify them freely from all things, leaving them on exactly an equal footing; for justification makes up to each in proportion as he is short of perfection.

"Be Thou Faithful Unto Death."

All who now become Christ's followers must receive from the Lord, as a basis for this relationship, the pound—free forgiveness of sins—justification. Because they are thus alike qualified, the results will show the degree of loving zeal controlling each servant.

As in the parable one servant gained ten pounds, so such noble characters as St. Peter, St. John and others counted all earthly things as loss and dross that they might be pleasing to their Master, the coming King. These, and such as these, who have gladly spent themselves in the Lord's service, will have the highest rewards. The servant who reported a gain of five pounds represents a class who will receive a less influential place in the Kingdom.

"These—Mine Enemies—Slay Them."
The servant who hid his pound represents those who have entered into a covenant with the Lord to be His servants, who have received justification at His hands, but who have not complied with their agreement to sacrifice self in His service. This class is represented by the foolish virgins, who failed to enter in to the wedding. These will fail to be come members of the Bride class. Not until He, The Unfaithful Husband, shall have dealt with His servants at His Second Coming will Messianic begin to deal with the world, and especially His enemies. This statement is borne out by numerous Scriptures. The work of the Gospel Age is merely for the selection and testing of His servants, to determine which will be found worthy of admission with Himself in the Kingdom.

Lettuce Ranks High in Commercial Horticulture.

Size of Seed Has Not Been Given Careful Study. Until Recently—“Heading Up” Capabilities Are of Much Importance.

(By M. CUMMINGS.)

Lettuce is a standard vegetable crop, largely grown in farm gardens and ranking high in commercial horticulture as a forcing crop; hence its inclusion in these seed sorting experiments. Although a seed-bed crop, it is often grown in places where space is expensive, where intensive culture prevails, and where crop uniformity and even maturity are of prime importance. On this account growers now carefully consider both seed and varietal choice. In some hothouse districts only certain varieties are deemed suitable for greenhouse culture; and a few progressive growers select only the locally-grown seed now recognized as strains of commercial varieties. Although many methods of seed selection have been adopted, the influence of seed size has not been given careful study until more or less recently.

Since lettuce is seldom sold by weight, a comparison of the value of different-sized seeds on this basis is of little account. Uniformity of maturing and relative “heading-up” capabilities are of more importance. The formation of good, firm heads, making possible the growth of white, crisp, and highly-edible center-leaves, is characteristic of a good quality of lettuce. That good “heading-up” characteristics are related to the size of the seed has been found by extensive and careful experiments carried on for several seasons. As to the results of these experiments, several points are worthy of note in summarizing. Marked differences in favor of large seed appear in the seedling stage, a point of little value in itself were it not for the fact that an early advantage influences later growth. Large seeds start the plants off better; and great leaf surface area in early life is of permanent benefit. Moreover, heavier plants, better heads, and greater uniformity at edible maturity are usually secured. In every instance and at almost every stage of growth it could be seen that the plants grown from large seed were much more uniform in stature and in time and manner of heading. Plants grown from small seed were very variable in size and quality—some very good, a few mediocre, and many very poor. Some headed early, but most of them were tardy in forming the heart and in firming the head.

It seems reasonable to conclude that a large sized seed is a factor in producing head lettuce of good quality and earliness of maturity. In the writer's judgment the lack of plant uniformity commonly observed in commercial lettuce culture is quite apt to be due to the use of seed which is variable in size and consequently, variable in value.

Danger of Overfeeding.

The danger of overfeeding in the case of young pigs is always inimical to maximum results.

Eggs Develop Mold.

Eggs develop mold if kept in a too damp cellar. The mold penetrates the porous shell and makes the eggs taste stale. They keep better, however, in a cool, moist air that prevents a too rapid evaporation within the shell.

Rejuvenating Rhubarb.

When rhubarb grows rank and spindling it needs rejuvenating. Dig it up, cut the clumps into smaller parts, plant them in deep trenches and fill in well with well-rotted manure mixed with good loam.

Partial to Rich Foods.

Young pigs are so partial toward foods rich in protein that they will acquire an excess of that element if given an opportunity, thereby stunting their growth.

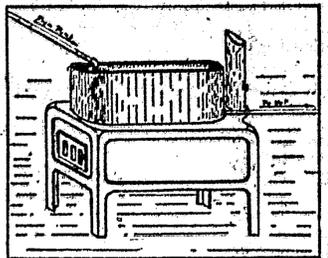

Industry Just Recognized.

Pork production as a specialty is just becoming recognized. For many years the hog has, to a large extent, been a by-product of the feed lot wherein beef production was the standby.

BIG CONVENIENCE OF DAIRY

Low-Pressure Boiler Is Most Desirable for Heating Water for Cleaning Milk Vessels.

One of the greatest conveniences on the farm where cows are kept is some means for heating an abundance of water for washing the milk vessels. Where a considerable number of cows are kept, heating water by means of steam from a small, low-pressure upright boiler is desirable, but on the small farm a stove with a basin fitted into the top (or it may be separate from the top) can be purchased cheaply and will serve the purpose, provided the water is properly heated. Water can be pumped from the well directly into the basin. In order to avoid heating the milkroom and to do away with smoke and ashes, the water heater should be placed immediately outside the milkroom, and if elevated the water from it can be run into the washing vat. Such an arrangement is shown in the illustration.

FEEDING ROOTS TO CATTLE

English Stockmen Feed Enormous Quantities of Turnips and Beets—Best Methods of Feeding.

Turnips and beets are grown and fed in enormous quantities by English stockmen and farmers. They do not have silage because of climatic conditions unfavorable to corn. American farmers who use roots to some extent can wisely profit by English experience in feeding them.

An authority advises that they should always be cut or pulped, and never fed whole to cattle. When fed whole there is greater danger of choking, especially with the last piece, and also greater loss or waste by trampling under foot.

The best method of feeding is to cut or pulp the roots and mix them with cut hay, straw or chaff, allowing the pile to heat for a few hours before feeding. This has the merit of warming up the roots, which are generally a cold feed, and of making low-grade roughage more palatable. Cattle fed in this manner through the winter come out in much better condition than if given the same amount of feed uncut and not mixed.

FOR GROWING TOMATO PLANT

Hot-Bed-Grown Variety Produces Twice Amount of Those Started in Seed Bed in Ground.

According to investigations on tomato growing at the Indiana station, hot-bed-grown plants produced about twice as much fruit as those started in a seed bed in the open ground. Transplanting once or twice in flats gave a larger yield than planting directly from the hotbed soil.

The most profitable method for starting seedling plants consisted in sowing the seed in wood veneer bands in the hotbed and shifting the plants to the field at setting time with band and soil intact.

Plants started in a seed bed in the open ground gave estimated returns, less cost of growing the plants, of $51.50 per acre, as compared with $140.40 per acre for plants hotbed grown in veneer bands and set out without transplanting.

TURKEYS READY FOR MARKET

Big Mistake to Pen Up Flock of Birds for Purpose of Fattening—Worry for Freedom.

It is not to be wondered that there are so many failures made in preparing turkeys for market when it is taken into consideration the course so many breeders take in fattening their birds.

It is a mistake to pen up a flock of turkeys for the purpose of fattening them. Turkeys are of a wild nature, and as soon as they are cooped begin chasing one another about and constantly worrying for freedom.

They soon tire of their food, grow thin and will when killing time comes weigh less than when first cooped with the intention of fattening them.

Poultryman Always Busy.

There is not a day in the year when there is not something that should be done in the poultry yard, but if every day's duties are regularly performed, there will never be a day when its duties overflow into the next.

SUDAN GRASS ON DRY LANDS

Where Climatic Conditions Are Suitable It Is Most Promising Annual Hay Crop Yet Tried.

(By ALVIN KEYSER, Colorado Experiment Station.)

A previous article on Sudan grass has aroused so much letter inquiry that it is thought that further explanation in regard to the crop would be helpful.

Sudan grass belongs to the sorghum family of plants. It is finer stemmed than cane and matures in a shorter season. Like all sorghums, however, it is distinctly a warm weather plant. There are very few localities where it will do well at altitudes higher than 5,000 feet. In some favored locations it can be grown somewhat higher than that. It is generally adapted to the Colorado plains conditions as a dry land annual crop.

It cannot be pastured, but makes a very rapid growth when warmth and moisture conditions are proper, it can be expected to yield as much as a ton per acre on practically all of the dry lands worth cultivating and in fairly favorable seasons may go as high as four tons per acre.

Sudan grass is a good producer and will harvest seed at the rate of 300 up to as high as 2,000 pounds per acre under the very best conditions. Under ordinary dry land conditions seed yields of 800 to 1,000 pounds per acre are not unusual.

On the dry lands this crop should be planted in rows and cultivated. It is not especially adapted for irrigated conditions, although it will make a heavy growth as an annual hay crop if it is desired to use it for such purposes. In the Arkansas valley, the season is long enough and hot enough to make two crops most years under irrigation. Under dry land conditions one crop is all that can be expected except in unusually wet seasons. Where climatic conditions are warm enough, Sudan grass is the most promising annual hay crop yet tried. It will not do well in the higher altitudes where the nights are cool, the seasons short and the days often cool.

When seeded in rows, five or six pounds per acre is amply sufficient. The rows should be put from three to three and one-half feet apart in order to permit of cultivation. Seeded broadcast, ten to fifteen pounds is sufficient under dry land conditions.

WASTE PLACES ON THE FARM

Progressive Farmers Are Making First-Class Hog Pastures of Land Once Thought Worthless.

Most of the large and many of the small farms in the arid West have more or less poor land. Some of this is rocky hilly country, some damp alkaline soils and other sections are cut up with washes and ditches. Most of these are not being utilized. What can we do to help in a practical way?

A number of progressive farmers have made first-class hog pastures of these formerly waste places by sowing common sweet clover. They say hogs relish it and make about as good gains as on alfalfa if pastured young. Others have planted sweet clover for sheep pasture, taking care of the few farm sheep which are always a source of profit on such farms. Some have been utilizing these places for dairy calves, colts or any other animal available.

This is worth trying out. If the farmer wants to grow sweet clover and does not want to pasture it, then he may cut it young for hay or produce seed which at present is bringing a big price on the market.

Neglected Heifers.

Young heifers that are fed just enough to keep them alive grow up into rough beasts with large horns, coarse hair, thick skin and high bones and other marks of starvelings. They are seldom good cows.

Palatable Rations.

Too much has been said about balanced rations, and too little about palatable rations for cows. Many of the best-balanced rations—that is according to figures—prove failures when put into actual use by the feeders.

Roughage for Horses.

Clean, bright clover hay makes the best roughage for the horses, in my opinion, but this may be varied by such other roughage as can be obtained, if it is sound and free from mold or dust.

Keep Pure-Bred Sheep.

Pure-bred sheep should be kept, because they have been bred to a certain purpose, but the veriest scrub ewes crossed on a pure-bred ram will bring lambs that are a great improvement.

If the new calf shavers, its pen is not warm enough. Give it a good rub-down and put it in a warmer place.

Roup is caused by exposure to cold or drafts, by dampness or filthy quarters.

SHOULD HAVE PLEASSED HIM

Enemy of Nat Goodwin Surely Could Look Forward to the Ending of the Play.

Nat Goodwin in his book tells this story on himself:

The first night of my production of “Nathan Hale” Hoyt had assured me of his intention of being present with his wife. But when the time came she refused to accompany him. Charley, having purchased two tickets and not desiring to be alone, sought someone to go with him. He soon found a friend and invited him to come along. Much to Hoyt's astonishment his friend quietly but firmly refused the invitation.

“Why not?” asked Hoyt. His friend replied, “I don't like Goodwin.”

“Well,” said Charley, “you like him as an artist, don't you?”

His friend replied: “No; I don't like him, on or off the stage.”

“Well,” said Hoyt, “come along. You are sure to enjoy the play, for they hang Nat in the last act.”

MACHINE GUN MEN CREEP INTO POSITION

This picture, an actual scene on the western battle line, shows a German light artillery and machine gun detachment moving closer and closer to the enemy's lines in an effort to gain a position from which the allies' trenches can be swept with gunfire preparatory to a charge. So effective is the fire of these light machine guns that the few men seen in the picture could withstand an entire regiment if the latter charged them across an open field.

TRENCHES ONE TURN

Hospital Next for Some of Canadian Soldiers.

Could Neither Sit Nor Stand in Mud-Filled Ditches Under Heavy Fire for Three Weary Nights and Days.

London.—The discomfort and even actual suffering caused by doing only one turn in the trenches is described by a Canadian soldier in Princess Patricia's Light Infantry in a letter written at the front. Such was the condition of the troops that some of the men hardly were able to crawl from the trenches when the relief hour arrived. With too much mud to sit down and the trench too shallow to stand up straight, the troop was in a difficult position. The letter, which was printed in the London Times, says:

"We left the place from which I last wrote, marched 15 miles and billeted in a barn. The following day we marched 12 miles to within about three miles of the trenches, which we entered late at night, relieving some French troops. We stayed 48 hours in the trenches, or rather ditches, as they're little better, and such a time I never experienced in my life.

"It was raining most of the time, sniping was going on all night, and in the daytime we were subjected to a most awful bombardment, especially on the first day, shells exploding near my trench sometimes in bunches of six. Mud and pieces of shrapnel fell quite close several times. The shells from the German big guns burst with a terrible din and fairly made the earth quake, our trenches caving in in many places from the severe concussion.

"We of my platoon consider ourselves very lucky indeed, as we suffered the hottest shell fire along the line occupied by the battalion, but fortunately the German gunners had too much elevation, which resulted in the shells, with two or three exceptions, falling over and clear of the trenches. The German trenches opposite our position were only 120 yards away, but very little rifle fire was indulged in, everyone on both sides keeping well under cover.

"The bottom of the trenches in most places is just ankle deep in mud. We sat on our equipment, which was soon smothered in wet, cold mud, and in a deplorable state. But it saved us from actually sitting in the mud, and one could not stand upright, as the trench was not deep enough. Of course sleep was practically impossible, though most of us negotiated 40 winks at intervals when not on watch.

"Our feet were wet through the whole time, also our nether garments. During the long nights we just longed for daylight, although we knew it would bring a renewal of the bombardment. Some of our men were hardly able to crawl out of the trenches when our turn came to be relieved.

"I hardly think human flesh could possibly stand the conditions prevailing more than three days at the most. The night we came out and into billets I put on dry socks. I had the most peculiar sensations in my feet all that night—a kind of pins and needles. This, I suppose, was the returning of circulation.

"My hands were also much swollen, but two days' rest soon put me all right again. I feel absolutely none the worse for my experience, but come of the men had to go to hospital, and others were unfit to march and had to ride in transports. I myself have been able to stay with the best of them, although I am the oldest man in the section.

"We occupied the trenches on the night of the fifth and were relieved on the night of the eighth. Twenty of us are billeted in what you would call a country public house and sleep in the kitchen on the floor, by far the most comfortable digs we have had so far.

"I was much struck by the behavior of the boys who had never been under fire before; in fact, I was surprised. Of course we all realize that we carry our lives in our hands and I think the most of us don't worry. We found time to laugh and joke while the shells were bursting overhead and quite a few uncomplimentary remarks were addressed at the German gunners of their indifferent marksmanship."

Builds Benzol Plant Complete in Twenty-Nine Days.

First in United States Since War Began, Turns Out 800 Gallons Daily—Supply Was Formerly From Germany.

Orange, N. J.—Completion of the first benzol plant built in the United States since the war has been announced by Thomas A. Edison. It was finished in the record time of 29 days, from six to eight months usually being required.

"Benzol is used in making aniline dyes and synthetic carbolic acid. Practically the entire supply always has come from Germany, and the war had not been long in progress before there was a scarcity.

Edison uses a ton of carbolic acid a day in making phonograph records. When the war made carbolic acid scarce he decided to make it synthetically. But he needed benzol, and benzol was even more scarce. So first he had to make the benzol.

With characteristic directness, Edison gathered the latest information on benzol manufacture. He decided on the method of extracting it from coal gas in preference to the petroleum system of Prof. Walter Rittmar of Columbia university. Then he designed a system of apparatus that would combine cheapness and speed of construction.

So well did he succeed that the first plant, which is in Johnstown, Pa. and on which work was started twenty-nine days ago, now is turning out 800 gallons of benzol a day. Edison is planning another plant in Sydney Nova Scotia, and still another at a yet unknown location. The total benzol production thus is expected to be brought to 2,000 gallons daily.

The benzol apparatus devised by Edison, if easier to build, is somewhat less permanent than the usual type. It is, however, serving its purpose. Edison is getting all the benzol he needs and has had a little left over for his friends. There is not much prospect, however, it was said at the Edison laboratory yesterday, that there will be much for public sale.

The Edison plant in Silver Lake, N. J., is said to be the first synthetic carbolic acid plant in the country. It is turning out one and one-half tons of acid a day.

TO WALK 500 MILES A YEAR

Thirteen Minnesota Girls Set Strenuous Athletic Task for Themselves—Banquet for Winners.

Fort Dodge, Minn.—Five hundred miles a year is the goal 13 Fort Dodge girls, who are not superstitious and aim to be athletic, have set for themselves. They do not plan to cover the distance in automobiles, but on foot. To make the task more pretentious, the rules are rigid that they should not attach their pedometers while "running around the house, attending tango teas or shipping."

At the end of the year those who have failed to tramp 500 miles are to banquet the others.

CAST BOTTLE ON THE WATER

After Many Days It Came Back Filled to the Neck With Choice Whisky.

Virginia, Minn.—A. B. Coates, a well-known spinning man, got a surprise in the express the other day. It was a bottle of whisky from a Kentucky distillery that he had not ordered. The odd thing about the gift was that the liquor was in a bottle that Mr. Coates emptied with a party of friends while steaming down the River Nile in Africa about a year ago and threw into the murky stream. In the bottle he had placed a slip of paper bearing his name and address. Someone found the bottle and forwarded it to the distillery, where it was filled and sent to Mr. Coates with the liquor factory's compliments. The original bottle was presented to Mr. Coates by a local friend when he started on his African trip.

PATIENT SPOUSE WAITS LONG

But After Keeping Coffee Hot for Her Nine Years, Concludes She Isn't Coming Back.

La Crosse, Wis.—Abdolla Saad, most patient husband in La Crosse, has been granted a divorce by Judge Higbee. One day in 1906 the wife stepped over to a neighbor's. She told her husband to keep the coffee hot. Abdolla was a faithful husband. He kept the coffee hot nine years. He went about his work as usual and said nothing. Then it came to him that he had been deserted, and so he made application for divorce.

The court heard his story. The woman had not written since leaving home. Neighbors had seen her take a train. The husband did not know where she went. The judge granted an interlocutory degree of divorce under which Saad will have to wait at least another year before he remarries. He was so informed by the court. He replied: "Wait only one year? Oh, one year is nothing, nothing at all."
