Pioneer of Lincoln County Answers Last Call

Came to This Section When a Child, and Throughout His Life Was Noted for Charity and Benevolence.

Shortly after going to press last Friday, the sad news was conveyed to Carrizozo of the death of Emil Fritz, an old resident of this county. The body was found Friday morning, and to all appearances he had fallen from his horse the night before, while on the way to his ranch. Fritz & Lutz had lately closed a deal with Pru Bros., and Mr. Fritz was engaged in clearing up matters in connection with the deal, and intended to return to Roswell, there to await the arrival of Mrs. Fritz, who was to pass through that city on her way to North Carolina.

Mr. Fritz came to this section with his parents when a child and grew up with the country. He was held in high esteem by his associates, and his acts of benevolence and charitable works among the needy of Lincoln county, will live after all that is mortal has crumbled into dust.

In the year of 1896 Mr. Fritz was elected to the office of county sheriff and served the county for two terms during which time he gave the utmost satisfaction. Mr. Fritz was united in marriage to Mrs. James Dolan about 18 years ago, and his permanent residence has been on the Fritz homestead near Lincoln, called the "Spring Ranch." His body will be laid to rest alongside his relatives.

Cold is the dust that perished heart may lie, but that which warmed it once, can never die.

Ziegler's Burglarized

On Monday night the store of Ziegler Bros. was burglarized. One of the big plate glass windows was broken to effect an entrance, and the light in front of the store was extinguished to aid the evil doers in their work.

Evidently the job was done by amateurs, for in effecting an entrance the glass cut their fingers badly, as blood stains were found on the jagged glass.

Mr. Ziegler told the Outlook that the firm suffered the loss of a good suit of clothes, an overcoat, mackinaw and several articles of minor importance.

With a store so full of valuable merchandise as Ziegler Bros., the firm is to be congratulated on sustaining such a small loss, as it is plainly evident that the burglars would have taken more had they not in some manner been forced to abandon their task of securing more booty.

Carrizozo is a growing town and our business men should have more protection from thievery and vandalism.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

By Miss Pearl Hyde

The girls of the high school have organized a tennis club and are preparing to do good work in that line. They hope to interest the school board in their work in order to obtain financial assistance. The following girls are members of the three teams: Bessie White, Pearl Hyde, Eva Wack, Catherine Pine, Lorena Haley, Kathryn Spence, Hilary Cooper, Florence Lacey, Alma Hightower, Willie Reilly, Margie Lacey and Miss Murrell. The captains of the teams are: First, Bessie White; second, Lorena Haley; third, Miss Murrell. The girls had their first game on Tuesday.

Last Friday afternoon the high school students rendered a patriotic program. In this program the importance of food conservation was brought before the mothers of the town and the students. The following program was rendered:

- America.....By the School
 - Flag Salute.....By the School
 - 1861's Call to Arms.....
 -Rachel Hughes
 - Land of Sunshine.....By the School
 - The Love of Country.....
 -Homer Donaldson
 - The Flag.....Margie Lacey
 - Knighthood of 1917.....
 -Rufus Brannum
 - America (Piano Solo).....
 -Gladney White
 - Lincoln's Address at Gettysburg.....Gladney White
 - The Wind Before the Dawn.....
 -Perola Stevens
 - The Song.....Bessie White
 - Your Lad and My Lad.....
 -Joe Spence
 - The Star Spangled Banner.....
 -By the School
 - Address on Food Conservation.....Prof. Conway
- The plan for a football team has been abandoned on account of not having sufficient number of boys heavy enough to play such a game. They have organized a basketball team and will make this the leading activity in regard to physical culture.

Dead and Unknown

Late last Saturday afternoon a man made his appearance in town and was seen at several of the stores, the last place being the Carrizozo Trading Company, where he made several purchases. The man appeared to be an Italian and was accompanied by a Mexican, who was also a stranger here. He was last seen at the depot shortly after dark and after the extra freight train had pulled through, the mangled remains were found strewn along the track for several hundred feet, but not enough of the body could be scraped together to establish identification. Who the stranger was will, in all probability, never be known, neither will the truth concerning his death be arrived at, but one thing we may all be certain of, he was "somebody's darling one day."

The New Mexico Water Wagon Wins Out

Every County, and Almost Every Precinct in the State Give Big Majorities for State-Wide Prohibition.

The election on Tuesday, while the result for state-wide prohibition was expected by most of the people, the terrific landslide with such astounding majorities came as a complete surprise to everyone. The advocates for prohibition worked long and hard for their cause, while the wet forces, with few exceptions, rested on their oars. This was one of the elections where quiet reigned before the storm. It was hard to make predictions, for men were loath to commit themselves, and old politicians who have battled in the political arena, seeing the signs of quietude, shook their heads with a realization that a complete surprise was in store for the people.

And a surprise it proved to be, for every county in the state, and in almost every precinct, the vote was in favor of the dry amendment, which has appeared in these columns and is so well known that we omit its publication.

Lincoln county's vote by precincts is as follows:

Precinct	Dry	Wet
1—Lincoln.....	41	85
2—San Patricio.....	61	27
3—Arabella.....
4—Picacho.....	32	18
5—Rabenton.....	5	23
6—Encinosa.....	30	22
7—Jicarilla.....
8—White Oaks.....	52	8
9—Capitan.....	61	21
10—Ruidoso.....	52	0
11—Nogal.....	25	17
12—Angus.....	43	12
13—Corona.....	67	17
14—Carrizozo.....	184	58
15—Oscuro.....	14	1
16—Ancho.....	36	4

The state at large will go dry by about 20,000, and the County of Lincoln by 500. The outlying districts that have not yet reported will have little or no effect on these figures.

Knitting Party at Oasis

A party of ladies assembled at the Oasis Confectionery last Saturday afternoon, and indulged a few hours in knitting for the Red Cross Society. A plate luncheon was served and music was furnished with piano and gramophone. The ladies present were: Mrs. Reilly, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. A. V. Adams, Mrs. Dr. Lucas, Mrs. Wm. Poe, Mrs. Dr. Johnson, Mrs. Sam Allen and the Misses Reilly.

Reilly-Brannum Round Up

Last Sunday morning William Reilly and Len Brannum decided to take a look around among the haunts of wild game and see if the many hunters who had been roaming the mountains and canyons had left anything worth shooting. They motored up to the Bonita and were warmly greeted by Thomas Bragg, who insisted on them being his guests during their stay in that region.

Early Monday morning they arose and made the start, accompanied by four noted English wolf hounds, the two leaders being "Teddy" and "Woodrow," which Mr. Reilly raised several years ago. The party, now composed of Messrs. Reilly, Brannum and Bragg, went up South Fork to Blue Front Canyon where they turned the dogs loose and separated to take their stands.

In less than one hour the dogs had treed a big bear, and they held him at bay until the party arrived, when his case was disposed of in short order.

The party then proceeded to the north prong of Eagle Creek without encountering anything of an experience until on their return, when they jumped a deer, which met the same fate as Mr. Bear.

This brought the hunters back in close neighborhood to Mr. Bragg's home, where they encountered a flock of wild turkeys and succeeded in bagging several of the bunch, after which they turned in to enjoy the good cooking of Mrs. Bragg, who the boys claim cannot be excelled, for the the sumptuous repasts of venison, bear and turkey which she favored the party with was fit for kings. The Outlook takes pleasure in relating the results of a hunt like the one described, for so many of us have gone out and returned empty handed, that we are glad to shake hands with the fellows who do get them.

Bridge Club

Mrs. L. B. Crawford and Mrs. G. F. Dingwall entertained the Carrizozo Bridge Club in a joint affair Thursday afternoon. A two-course luncheon was served. Mrs. W. L. Gumm, carried away first prize, the second was captured by Mrs. J. B. French, and the consolation prize fell to Mrs. I. P. Wetmore.

Those present including the hostesses were Mrs. W. L. Gumm, Mrs. J. B. French, Mrs. F. J. Sager, Mrs. H. S. Fairbank, Mrs. Ira P. Wetmore, Mrs. H. S. Campbell, Mrs. C. P. Squier of Carrizozo and Mrs. Dr. McKeon of Fort Stanton were present as guests of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Reese arrived this week from Red Fork, Okla., and will reside with their daughter, Mrs. W. W. Stadtman. Mr. Reese is an experienced abstractor, and will take charge of the abstract business for W. W. Stadtman.

BAPTIST CHURCH

(Rev. J. M. Gardner, Pastor.)

Rev. J. M. Gardner has just closed his second year as pastor of the Carrizozo Baptist church, and is now starting on the third year. The Sunday school has grown from 54 to 200 enrollment. The main Sunday school has 114 on roll, the Cradle Roll has 54 and the Home Department has 82 on roll. There are classes for everybody and everybody is welcome to the service.

The pastor will preach Sunday, November 11, at 11 a. m. on "The Layman in the Church." At 7:30 p. m., "The Message of the Cross."

Junior B. Y. P. U. at 8 p. m. Senior B. Y. P. U. at 6:30 p. m. Both unions are taking on new life and interest.

Prayer meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

W. M. U. Friday at 8 p. m. Remember you are always welcome to all services.

METHODIST CHURCH

(Rev. Lewellen, Pastor.)

Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. The Sunday school is graded in the most approved manner and uses the graded literature.

Gospel sermons at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The Epworth League will furnish special music for the evening services.

Epworth League at 6:45 p. m.

Chili Dinner a Success

The chili dinner given Tuesday by the Women's Home Mission Society of the Methodist church in the rear of Bell's grocery was a decided success. Mr. Bell donated that portion of his store to the society for that occasion, and the courtesy was greatly appreciated by the ladies.

Lincoln State's New Assistant

At a meeting of the directors of the Lincoln State Bank Wednesday evening E. D. Boone was elected assistant cashier. Mr. Boone will be a valuable addition to this popular banking institution.

Election day passed off quietly with no excitement of any kind in connection with it. The saloons remained closed the entire day, in strict observance of the law, and groups of citizens held conversation on the streets. Election arguments were apparently put aside, and neighbors indulged in talks concerning their stock, crops, etc., showing that the days of heated political discussions are a thing of the past. These days mean study over the issues, make up their minds, deposit their ballots, and turn their attention to affairs of a business nature.

Joe White says he wants everybody to know that he voted dry, should there be any objections, let them be made now, or forever hereafter hold your peace. Ben Stimmler left for Woodward, Okla., Tuesday night.

"But first, wait!" exclaimed the horse-breaker. "I bring you something of value, too." Desiring to render favor for favor, and to show that he was fully deserving of the general's generosity, Jose removed from inside the sweatband of his hat a sealed, stamped letter, which he handed to his employer. "Yesterday I carried the mail to town, but as I rode away from Las Palmas the senora handed me this, with a silver dollar for myself. Look! It is written to the man we both hate."

Longorio took the letter, read the inscription, and then opened the envelope. Jose looked on with pleasure while he spelled out the contents.

When the general had finished reading, he exclaimed: "Ho! A miracle! Now I know all that I wish to know." "Then I did well to steal the letter, eh?"

"Diablo! Yes! That brute of a husband makes my angel's life unbearable, and she flees to La Feria to be rid of him. Good! It fits in with my plans. She will be surprised to see me there. Then, when the war comes, and all is chaos—then what? I'll warrant I can make her forget certain things and certain people." Longorio nodded with satisfaction. "You did very well, Jose."

The latter leaned forward, his eyes bright. "That lady is rich. A fine prize, truly. She would bring a huge ransom."

This remark brought a smile to Longorio's face. "My dear friend, you do not in the least understand," he said. "Ransom! What an idea! He lost himself in meditation, then, rousing, spoke briskly: "Listen! In two, three days your senora will leave Las Palmas. When she is gone you will perform your work, like the brave man I know you to be. You will relieve her of her husband."

Jose hesitated, and the smile vanished from his face. "Senor Ed is not a bad man. He likes me; he—" Longorio's gaze altered and Jose fell silent.

"Come! You are not losing heart, eh? Have I not promised to make you a rich man? Well, the time has arrived." Seeing that Jose still manifested no eagerness, the general went on in a different tone: "Do not think that you can withdraw from our little arrangement. Oh, no! Do you remember a promise I made to you when you came to me in Romero? I said that if you played me false I would bury you to the neck in an ant-hill and fill your mouth with honey. I keep my promises."

Jose's struggle was brief; he promptly resigned himself to the inevitable. With every evidence of sincerity he assured Longorio of his loyalty, and denied the least intention of betraying his general's confidence. After all, the gringos were enemies, and there was no one of them who did not merit destruction.

Pleased with these sentiments, and feeling sufficiently assured that Jose was now really in the proper frame of mind to suit his purpose, Longorio took the winding trail back toward Sangre de Cristo.

CHAPTER XVII.

A Warning.

A few days after she had written to Judge Ellsworth Alaire followed her letter in person, for, having at last decided to divorce Ed, she acted with characteristic decision. Since Ellsworth had more than once advised this very course, she went to Brownsville, enlisting his willing support. She had written Dave Law, telling him that she intended to go to La Feria, there to remain pending the hearing of her suit. To be sure, she would have preferred some place of refuge other than La Feria, but she reasoned that there she would at least be undisturbed, and that Ed, even if he wished to effect a reconciliation, would not dare to follow her, since he was persona non grata in Federal Mexico.

She had counted upon seeing Dave during her stay in Brownsville, and her failure to do so was a grave disappointment as she knew that he was in town attending court. Yet she told herself that it was brave of him to obey her injunctions so literally and to leave her unaccompanied by his presence at this particular time. It inspired her to be equally brave and to wait patiently for the day when she could welcome him with clean hands and a soul unshaken.

In the midst of Alaire's uncertainty of mind it gratified her to realize that Dave alone would know of her whereabouts. She wondered if he would come to see her. He was a reckless, headstrong lover, and his desires were all too likely to overcome his deliberate resolves. She rather hoped that in spite of his promise he would venture to cross the border so that she could see and be near him, if only for a day or for an hour. The possibility frightened and yet pleased her. The conventional woman within her frowned, but her outlaw heart beat fast at the thought.

Alaire did not explain her plans even to Dolores, but when her preparations were complete she took the Mexican woman with her, and during Ed's absence slipped away from the ranch. Boarding the train at Jonesville, she was in Pueblo that night.

It seemed at last that war with Mexico was imminent. After months of uncertainty the question had come to issue, and that lowering cloud which had hung above the horizon took ominous shape and size. Ellsworth awoke one morning to learn that an ultimatum had gone forth to President Potosi; that the Atlantic fleet had been ordered south; and that marines were being rushed aboard transports pending a general army mobilization. It looked as if the United States had finally risen in wrath, and as if nothing less than a miracle could now avert the long-expected conflict.

Blaze Jones took the San Antonio paper out upon the porch and composed himself in the hammock to read the latest war news. Invasion! Troops! The Stars and Stripes! These were words that stirred Jones deeply and caused him to neglect his work. Now that his country had fully awakened to the necessity of a war with Mexico—a necessity he had long felt—he was fired with the loftiest patriotism and a youthful eagerness to enlist. Blaze realized that he was old and fat and near-sighted; but what of that? He could fight. Fighting, in fact, had been one of his earliest accomplishments, and he prided himself upon knowing as much about it as any man could learn. He believed in fighting both as a principle and as an exercise; in fact, he attributed his good health to his various neighborly "unpleasantnesses," and he had more than once argued that no great fighter ever died of a sluggish liver or of any one of the other ills that beset sedentary, peace-loving people. Nations were like men—too much ease made them flabby. And Blaze had his own ideas of strategy, too. So during the perusal of his paper he bemoaned the mistakes his government was making. Why waste time with ultimatums? he argued to himself. He had never done so. Experience had taught him that the way to win a battle was to beat the other fellow to the draw; hence this diplomatic procrastination filled him with impatience. It seemed almost treasonable to one of Blaze's intense patriotisms.

He was engaged in laying out a plan of campaign for the United States when he became conscious of voices behind him, and realized that for some time Paloma had been entertaining a caller in the front room. Their conversation had not disturbed him at first, but now an occasional word or sentence forced its meaning through his preoccupation, and he found himself listening.

Paloma's visitor was a woman, and as Blaze harkened to her voice, he felt his heart sink. It was Mrs. Strange. She was here again. With difficulty Blaze conquered an impulse to flee, for she was recounting a story all too familiar to him.

"Why, it seemed as if the whole city of Galveston was there, and yet nobody offered to help us," the dressmaker was saying. "Phil was a perfect hero, for the rufian was twice his size. Oh, it was an awful fight! I hate to think of it."

"What made him pinch you?" Paloma inquired.

"Heaven only knows. Some men are dreadful that way. Why, he left a black-and-blue mark!"

Blaze broke into a cold sweat and cursed feebly under his breath.

"He wasn't drunk, either. He was just naturally depraved. You could see it in his face."

"How did you escape?"

"Well, I'll tell you. We chased him up across the boulevard and in among the trees, and then—" Mrs. Strange lowered her voice until only a murmur reached the listening man. A moment, then both women burst into shrill, excited laughter, and Blaze himself blushed furiously.

This was unbearable! It was bad enough to have that woman in Jonesville, a constant menace to his good name, but to allow her access to his own home was unthinkable. Sooner or later they were bound to meet, and then Paloma would learn the disgraceful truth—yes, and the whole neighborhood would likewise know his shame. In fancy, Blaze saw his reputation torn to shreds and himself exposed to the gibes of the people who venerated him. He would become a scandal among men, an offense to respectable women; children would shun him. Blaze could not bear to think of the consequences, for he was very fond of the women and children of Jonesville. He rose from his hammock and tiptoed down the porch into the kitchen, from which point of security he called loudly for his daughter.

Alarmed at his tone, Paloma came running. "What is the matter?" she asked, quickly.

"Get her out!" Blaze cried, savagely. "Get her out!"

"Her? Who?"

"That varmint."

"Father, what all you?"

"Nothin' alls me, but I don't want that caterpillar crawlin' around my premises. I don't like her."

Paloma regarded her parent curiously. "How do you know you don't like her when you've never seen her?"

"Oh, I've seen her, all I want to; and I heard her talkin' to you just now. I won't stand for nobody talkin' you—bad stories."

Paloma snickered. "The idea! She doesn't—"

"Get her out, and keep her out," Blaze rumbled. "She ain't right; she ain't human. Why, what'd you reckon I saw her do, the other day? Makes me shiver now. You remember that big bull-snake that lives under the barn, the one I've been layin' for? Well, you won't believe me, but him and her are friends. Fact! I saw her pick him up and play with him. Who—ee! The goose-flesh popped out on me till it busted the buttons of my vest. She ain't my kind of people, Paloma. 'Strange' ain't no name for her; no, sir! That woman's dam' near peculiar."

Paloma remained unmoved. "I thought you knew. She used to be a snake-charmer."

"A—what?" There was no doubt about it. Blaze's hair lifted. He blinked through his big spectacles; he pawed the air freely with his hands. "How can you let her touch you? I couldn't. I'll bet she carries a pocketful of dried toads and—keeps live lizards in her hair. I knew an old voodoo woman that ate cockroaches. Get shed of her, Paloma, and we'll fumigate the house!"

At that moment Mrs. Strange herself opened the kitchen door to inquire, "Is anything wrong?" Misreading Blaze's expression for one of pain, she exclaimed: "Mercy! Now, what have you done to yourself?"

But the object of her solicitude backed away, making peculiar clucking sounds deep in his throat. Paloma was saying:

"This is my father, Mrs. Strange. You and he have never happened to meet before."

"Why, yes we have! I know you," the seamstress exclaimed. Then a puzzled light flickered in her black eyes. "Seems to me we've met somewhere, but—I've met so many people." She extended her hand, and Blaze took it as if expecting to find it cold and scaly. He muttered something unintelligible. "I've been dying to see you," she told him, "and thank you for giving me Paloma's work. I love you both for it."

Blaze was immensely relieved that this dreaded crisis had come and gone; but wishing to make assurance doubly sure, he conformed his features into a smile the like of which his daughter had never seen, and in a disguised voice inquired, "Now where do you reckon you ever saw me?"

The seamstress shook her head. "I don't know, but I'll place you before long. Anyhow, I'm glad you aren't hurt. From the way you called Paloma I thought you were. I'm handy around sick people, so I—"

"Listen!" Paloma interrupted. "There's someone at the front door." She left the room; Blaze was edging after her when he heard her utter a stifled scream and call his name.

New Paloma was not the kind of girl to scream without cause, and her cry brought Blaze to the front of the house at a run. But what he saw there reassured him momentarily; nothing was in sight more alarming than one of the depot hacks, in the rear seat of which was huddled the figure of a man. Paloma was flying down the walk toward the gate, and Phil Strange was awaiting on the porch. As Blaze flung himself into view the latter exclaimed: "I brought him straight here, Mr. Jones, 'cause I know you was his best friend."

"Who? Who is it?"

"Dave Law. He must have come in on the noon train. Anyhow, I found him—like that." The two men hurried toward the road, side by side.

"What's wrong with him?" Blaze demanded.

"I don't know. He's queer—he's off his bean. I've had a hard time with him."

Paloma was in the carriage at Dave's side now, and calling his name; but Law, it seemed, was scarcely conscious. He had slumped together; his face was vacant, his eyes dull. He was muttering to himself a queer, delirious jumble of words.

"Oh, dad! He's sick—sick," Paloma sobbed. "Dave, don't you know us? You're home, Dave. Everything is all right now."

"Why, you'd hardly recognize the boy!" Blaze exclaimed; then he added his appeal to his daughter's. But they could not arouse the sick man from his coma.

"He asked me to take him to Las Palmas," Strange explained. "Looks to me like a sunstroke."

Paloma turned an agonized face to her father. "Get a doctor, quick," she implored; "he frightens me."

But Mrs. Strange had followed, and now she spoke up in a matter-of-fact tone: "Doctor nothing," she said. "I know more than all the doctors. Paloma, you go into the house and get a bed ready for him, and you men lug him in. Come, now, on the run, all of you! I'll show you what to do." She took instant charge of the situation, and when Dave refused to leave the carriage and began to fight off his friends, gabbling wildly, it was she who quieted him. Elbowing Blaze and her husband out of the way, she loped the young man's frenzied clutch from the carriage and, holding his hands in hers, talked to him in such a way that he gradually relaxed. It was she who helped him out and then supported him into the house. It was she who got him upstairs and into bed, and it was she who finally stilled his babble.

"The poor man is burning up with a fever," she told the others, "and fevers are my long suit. Get me some towels and a lot of ice."

Blaze, who had watched the snake-charmer's deft ministrations with mingled amazement and suspicion, inquired: "What are you going to do with ice? Ice ain't medicine."

"I'm going to pack his head in it," Blaze was horrified. "Do you want to freeze his brain?"

Mrs. Strange turned on him angrily. "You get out of my way and mind your own business. Freeze his brain!" With a sniff of indignation she pushed past the interloper.

But Blaze was waiting for her when she returned a few moments later with bowls and bottles and various remedies which she had commandeered. He summoned sufficient courage to block her way and inquire:

"What you got there, now, ma'am?"

Mrs. Strange glared at him balefully. With an effort at patience she inquired: "Say! What ails you, anyhow?"

Jones swallowed hard. "Understand, he's a friend of mine. No magic goes." "Magic?"

"No—cockroaches or snakes' tongues, or—"

Mrs. Strange fingered a heavy china bowl as if tempted to bounce it from Blaze's head. Then, not deigning to argue, she whisked past him and into the sickroom. It was evident from her expression that she considered the master of the house a harmless but offensive old busybody.

For some time longer Blaze hung about the sickroom; then, his presence being completely ignored, he raked further antagonism by telephoning for Jonesville's leading doctor. Not finding the physician at home, he sneaked out to the barn and, taking Paloma's car, drove away in search of him. It was fully two hours later when he returned to discover that Dave was sleeping quietly.

Dave slept for twenty hours, and even when he awoke it was not to a clear appreciation of his surroundings. At first he was relieved to find that the splitting pain in his head was gone, but imagined himself to be still in the maddening local train from Brownsville. By and by he recognized Paloma and Mrs. Strange, and tried to talk to them, but the connection between brain and tongue was imperfect, and he made a bad business of conversation. It seemed queer that he should be in bed at the Joneses. When he had recovered from his surprise he turned his head and saw Mrs. Strange slumbering in a chair beside his bed; from her uncomfortable position and evident fatigue he judged that she must have kept a long and faithful vigil over him.

Suffered For Years Back and Kidneys Were in Bad Shape, But Doan's Removed all the Trouble.

"My kidneys were so weak that the least cold I caught would affect them and start my back aching, until I could hardly endure the misery," says Mrs. D. C. Ross, 973 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. "In the morning when I first got up, my back was so lame, I could hardly bend over and any move sent darts of pain through my kidneys. It was hard for me to walk up stairs or stoop, and to move while lying down sent darts of pain through me."

"The kidney secretions were scanty and distressing and the water remained in my system, making my feet and hands swell. There were dark circles under my eyes and I became so dizzy I could hardly see. I had rheumatic pains in my knees and it was all I could do to get around. For years I was in that shape and I wore plasters and used all kinds of medicine to no avail until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. They rid me of the trouble and strengthened my back and kidneys. When I have taken Doan's since, they have always benefited me."

WAR TAX REVENUE HELPS TO CONQUER ENEMY OF LIBERTY

Hits Most of Us Hard, but We Must Have Victory.

Real Patriots Will Steel Selves For Sacrifice—Remember the New Income Tax, Too.

Washington.—How hard has the war tax hit you? And how do you like paying a little extra for your movie ticket, your telegram, your long-distance phone call, your passenger, freight and express transportation, your tobacco, your postage, and so on?

Well, don't cuss the government, cuss the Kaiser. He is to blame for all this. The murdering, thieving, raping, burning, barbarous Prussian gang must be wiped out. It takes money to do the job. So be a man about doing your part.

Incidentally, if you are single and earn more than $1,000 during 1917 you must pay two per cent tax on all in excess of $1,000 by June 1, 1918. If you are married, you must pay two per cent on all in excess of $2,000.

All of the new taxes fall upon the average man. They have nothing to do with the "conscription of wealth." They are a part of the program of taxation to make each man, woman and child in the United States feel a direct personal part in the war. They apply to freight, passenger and express transportation, pipe lines, Pullman seats and berths, telegraph and telephone messages, insurance policies, admissions to theaters and "movies" and to club dues. The effect of most of them is felt, therefore, in a slight rise in the high cost of living.

The taxes are expected to net the federal government the following revenues:

Freight transportation....	$77,500,000
Express transportation....	10,000,000
Passenger transportation....	60,000,000
Pipe lines.....	4,500,000
Seats and berths.....	4,000,000
Telegraph and telephone messages.....	7,000,000
Insurance policies.....	5,000,000
Club dues.....	1,500,000
Admissions.....	50,000,000

The war tax on facilities furnished by public utilities is now levied as follows:

Three per cent of the amount paid for transportation by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power in competition with carriers by rail or water, on freight consigned from one point in the United States to another.

One cent for each twenty cents or fraction charged by express companies for transportation from one point in the United States to another.

Eight per cent of the amount paid for the transportation of persons by rail or water or by any form of mechanical motor power on a regular established line in competition with common carriers, from one point in the United States to any point in the United States, Canada or Mexico where the ticket is issued in the United States. No tax is imposed on commutation or season tickets for trips less than 30 miles, or in cases where the fare does not exceed 25 cents.

Ten per cent of the amount paid for seats, berths or staterooms.

If a mileage book used for transportation or accommodation was purchased prior to November 1, 1917, or if cash fare is paid, the conductor or agent collecting the fare is required to collect the tax.

Five per cent on the amount paid for the transportation of oil by pipe line.

Five cents for each telegraph, telephone or radio dispatch originating in the United States where the charge is 15 cents or more.

The foregoing taxes are paid by the persons paying for the services or facilities rendered. A carrier making no charge for transporting a commodity because of its ownership thereof, or for any other reason, is required to pay a tax equivalent to the amount which would be imposed if it received payment, except in the case of commodities which are necessary for its use in the conduct of its business or the business of another line constituting a part of the same railroad system. Services rendered to the federal and state governments is exempt from taxation. Persons collecting these taxes are required to make monthly returns and monthly payments to the federal government.

The new levies upon insurance take effect in the following manner:

On life insurance, eight cents on each $100 or fraction of the amount of the policy, except industrial insurance policies not in excess of $500 issued on the weekly payment plan, in which case the tax is 40 per cent of the first weekly premium. Policies of re-insurance are exempt.

On marine, inland and fire insurance, one cent on each dollar or frac-

Postage.—Three cents an ounce or fraction thereof on letters for other than local delivery; two cents on all postal cards.

Admissions.—Ten per cent tax on tickets to theaters, cabarets, and other amusement places.

Dues.—Ten per cent tax on dues of clubs exceeding $12 a year.

Tobacco.—Graduated taxes on cigars, tobacco, cigarettes, cigarette papers and snuff.

Express.—Five per cent tax on amounts paid for express transportation.

Passengers.—Eight per cent of the cost of railroad tickets, except local.

Berths.—Ten per cent of the cost of berths, staterooms, and parlor car seats.

Oil.—Five per cent tax on amounts paid for transportation of oil by pipe lines.

Messages.—Five cents tax on each telegraph, telephone, or radio message costing 15 cents or more.

Insurance.—Eight cents tax on each $100 or fractional part thereof of each life insurance policy; one per cent of the premium on fire, marine, inland, and casualty insurance policies.

tion of the premium charged under each policy including renewals, but not including policies of re-insurance.

Casualty insurance, one cent on each dollar or fraction of the premium charged under each policy (except indemnity and surety bonds, which are taxable under another title of the bill) including renewals, but not including re-insurance policies.

Policies issued by any corporation exempt from the income tax are exempt from this tax.

The person, partnership or association issuing such policies of insurance is required to make monthly returns and monthly payments to the government.

For every ten cents or fraction thereof you spend on the movies you must turn over to the government one cent. Of course, the movie proprietors may save you the inconvenience of handling pennies by raising his admission price a nickel, as many other persons selling goods affected by the war tax have already done.

Here is the way admission tax and the club dues levies will fall upon the public:

One cent on each ten cents or fraction of the amount paid for admission to any place including admission by season ticket or subscription, to be paid by the person paying for such admission, except in the case of children under twelve, where the tax in every case is one cent. Persons admitted free pay the tax on the basis of the charge made to other persons of the same class, except employees, municipal officers on official business and children under twelve. Where the charge for admission to a cabaret or similar entertainment is wholly or in part included in the price paid for refreshment, service or merchandise, the amount paid is to be computed under regulations to be prescribed by the treasury department.

In the case of persons having the permanent use of boxes or seats, or a lease thereon, the tax is equivalent to 10 per cent of the amount for which a similar box or seat is sold for the performance or exhibition at which the box or seat is used or reserved by or for the lessee or holder.

These taxes are not to be imposed in the case of a place where the maximum charge for admission is five cents or for shows, rides or other amusements in outdoor general amusement parks where the admission is ten cents or in the case of shows, rides or other amusements (the maximum charge for admission to which is ten cents) within outdoor general amusement parks, or in the case of admissions to such parks. Where the proceeds inure exclusively to the benefit of religious, educational or charitable societies or organizations, and in the case of admissions to agricultural fairs, no tax shall be levied, provided none of the proceeds are distributed to stockholders or members of the association.

A tax of 10 per cent is imposed on the amount paid as dues or membership fees, including initiation fees, to any social, athletic or sporting club where such dues or fees are in excess of $12 per year, such tax to be paid by the person paying the dues or fees. Dues or fees paid to fraternal or beneficiary societies, orders or associations operated on the lodge system are exempt.

Those collecting admission dues or fees are required to collect the tax and make monthly returns and payments to the government.

Not His Fault.

She—You declared you would love me as long as you lived! And now, hardly married a year, you care nothing at all about me!

He—But you see, when I told you I would love you as long as I lived I wasn't feeling very well, and I didn't think I'd live long.

ALL MEN AT HOME SHOULD PREPARE FOR WAR

The first test a man is put thru for either war or life insurance is an examination of his water. This is most essential because the kidneys play a most important part in causing premature old age and death. The more injurious the poisons passing thru the kidneys the sooner comes decay—so says Dr. Pierce of Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., who further advise all people who are past thirty to preserve the vitality of the kidneys and free the blood from poisonous elements, such as uric acid—drink plenty of water—sweat some daily and take Anuric, double strength, before meals. This Anuric is a late discovery of Dr. Pierce and is put up in tablet form, and can be obtained at almost any drug store. For that backache, lumbago, rheumatism, "rusty" joints, swollen feet or hands, due to uric acid in the blood, Anuric quickly dissolves the uric acid as hot water does sugar. Take a little Anuric before meals and prolong your life. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce for trial package of Anuric. Large package 60 cents.

"I was just thinking."
"What?"
"What a pitiful showing we should make in this war if our young men were as afraid to die as some of our older men are of giving up their dollars."

WHEN IT LOOKS DARK to any weak or ailing woman, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to her help. For "female complaints," pains, internal inflammation, ulceration, bearing-down sensations, and all chronic weaknesses and derangements, this is the proven remedy. It's the only medicine put up without alcohol—ingredients on wrapper. Liquid or tablets. All Druggists. Tablets 60c.

An easily procured vegetable pill is made up of May-apple, the dried juice of the leaves of aloes, and the root of jalap, made into a tiny pellet and coated with sugar. Almost every drug store in the country sells these vegetable pellets in vials for 30c—simply ask for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They have Dr. R. V. Pierce stamp.

The Historical Society of New Mexico, being the only society within the borders of the state having a collection of portraits of our public men, from early days to the present time, have resolved to issue a call for soldiers pictures who have served in the war of 1917. All those who have served on land, sea, or in the air, will be represented in the gallery and the society pledges itself, to their arrangement for exhibition, and for their absolute safety and preservation through years to come. Photographs should be sent to the Historical Society, Santa Fe New Mexico.

Did you ever see Lafollette? Well, if you have you didn't see much. He is about the size little Jeff is pictured in the cartoons. His legs are not long enough to reach from his body to the floor, and he has to have a stool upon which to rest his feet when in his seat in the senate. But still the Kaiser is under the impression that the Wisconsin senator is a big man.—Ex.

Forest Service Battalion

Washington, October 7.—The Forest service has been able to comply in full with the request of the war department for help in securing qualified lumbermen and foresters to serve as officers for forest battalions which are to comprise part of the American overseas forces, according to an announcement by the Forester.

Three hundred and nine men have been recommended for commissions in the grades of major, captain, first lieutenant and second lieutenant. Of these, two-thirds are practical lumbermen or sawmill operators and one-third are trained foresters with long woods experience. Some of the lumbermen who were recommended have also had theoretical training in forestry and many of the foresters have had experience in logging or sawmilling.

In the selection of qualified lumbermen the Forest service has had the close co-operation of a subcommittee of the Lumber Committee of the Council of National Defense and of fourteen committees of lumber men in different parts of the country. Almost every man selected was interviewed by a lumbermen committee or by the Forest Service officials. Many private foresters and forest schools have assisted in finding technical foresters suitable for commissions.

Every timber region of the United States has contributed its share of the men who have been nominated for officers and it is believed that every class of lumbering, from the smallest portable mill operation to the largest and most up-to-date plant, is represented. Among those selected are men experienced in logging and sawing every merchantable wood growing in this country.

Men who have been recommended have been notified that all further action as regards physical examination, the issuance of commissions, and the order in which the successful applicants will be called for service rests with the War Department.

Mrs. Makinson and Sons Plead Guilty to Murder

The Makinson murder case was terminated Wednesday at about noon in the district court for Socorro county, when an arrangement was made permitting Mrs. Julia Bell Makinson and her two sons, Bonnie and Lonnie Makinson, charged with the murder of the husband and father in 1916 to plead guilty of second degree murder. A sentence of not less than ten nor more than fifteen years in the penitentiary was given each of the defendants, but Mrs. Makinson's sentence was suspended, and under the suspension she regains her liberty. The two sons will be taken to the state penitentiary along with a number of other prisoners probably next Wednesday to start serving their sentences.—Socorro Chieftain.

During these times we are mighty glad that we sell Kuppenheimer Clothes because we know through thick and thin this long established and favorably known house will keep up their standards of quality and value.

They wouldn't for a minute think of putting their reputation for making good clothes, that extends over the span of a half century, in danger because of temporary conditions.

The new Kuppenheimer Fall and winter styles now await you. Don't marvel at the array of fine fabrics and big values at $22.50, $25 and up. It is a forcible demonstration of the resources leadership of our clothes.

Step in any day and spend a few minutes looking over the smart new styles. We especially welcome comparison.

Watch Thief Apprehended

Last Sunday morning when No. 1 pulled in the conductor told Detective Ben West that watch thieves had been operating on his train and Mr. West boarded the train as an uninterested passenger to apprehend the offenders.

After the train pulled out of Carrizozo the officer got busy, and on making inquiries, found a man who complained that he had suffered the loss of his watch, and pointed out another passenger who he accused of robbing him.

Mr. West searched the accused man and found the watch secreted in his shoe. He was placed under arrest and when the train arrived at El Paso Mr. West turned the light fingered one over to the police, and the next morning he had the opportunity of saying, "good morning, judge," and listening to a sentence of 100 days on the rock pile.

WHITE OAKS

White Oaks was rather liberal in its subscriptions to the Liberty Bond issue, as the amount taken reached about $15,000. This is not so bad for a town that is dead broke and a back number, as many people seem to think it is.

We also furnished ten of the young men for the army and one for the navy and still have a fine bunch of eligibles and a supply patriotism left for future needs.

As to the election—the dregs appeared to have an overflow—52 of them climbed into the water wagon and left a lonesome 8 trying to hold a shaky equilibrium and wobble along at the rear of the procession. It was like a German drive on the booze fighters.

Paul and Mrs. Mayer returned a few days ago from a two-weeks visit with relatives on the Ruidoso. The trip was said to have been planned for big game, but the jack rabbits and cottontails were so thick they shut off the views of anything larger, and the result is that the bear meat is still on the hoof.

Mrs. Ralph Treat and the kiddies are off on a visit to Carrizozo and Capitan, and the head of the household is trying to Hooverize the culinary department and find out how many meatless, cookless and pot-luckless days a fellow can stand without telephoning for help.

The Jeffries have moved into the Jim Reed house on the south side, but it is said that they, like Micawber, are negotiating for "more pretentious domiciliary accommodations" on the other side

For Refreshments for Parties and Entertainments

A Plant that Grows with the Times

About five years ago we conceived a tremendous idea—the idea of giving to America a soft drink such as it had never before tasted. A new kind of soft drink in flavor and in its cereal ingredients—a soft drink that should be nutritious as well as delicious—pure and wholesome.

The idea took root—it was cultivated, experimented with, tended with all the care and skill that science could apply. For four years this work went on and then finally about a year ago there sprang into being, Bevo—the drink triumphant.

Less than two months after its introduction Bevo had leaped into such popularity that even our already large facilities could not supply the demand.

The result is that soon will be completed (built by public demand) the largest plant of its kind in the world—daily bottling capacity, 2,000,000 bottles.

You will find Bevo at all places where refreshing beverages are sold. Bevo is sold in bottles only—and is bottled exclusively by of town. Miss Dudley has so far recovered from a late severe accident that she has taken up her work of teaching. She and her sister had some beans cooking on the stove with the vessel in which they were contained tightly covered up. On raising the lid to see how they were coming off the steam flew up into her face with the force of an explosion, burning her in a most painful manner and almost destroying the sight of one eye. She has had the sympathy of the whole town in this misfortune, and all are glad to know that no permanent injury will result.

Bright and early Monday morning large footprints were discovered in the sand near Paden's drug store. Curiosity seekers followed them. The mysterious marks led them across the street to Taylor & Son's, thence to Foxworth & Gailbrath's, and on to Barnett's Feed Store, where they disappeared. What is it? Watch these issues, the mysterious footprints may appear again.

Wants to Join the Army

No state has been without men who prefer to do their fighting by proxy. New Mexico had, and has, residents whose claim to exemption were far from valid, but New Mexico's proportion of such residents was not heavy. And, on the other hand, New Mexico has a vast number of citizens who would like nothing better than an opportunity to go into the trenches in France, or any other country where the fortunes of war place the trenches.

Such a citizen, a Spanish-American who lives in Rio Arriba county, has written to Benigno C. Hernandez, member of the federal exemption board for the northern district of New Mexico. He wants to know why he has not been called to the colors. Twenty-five years of age, he is ready and fit to fight, he desires to know why his country is not using him.

Confessing that he is not handsome he asserts that fighters do not need to be handsome, for "the habit does not make the monk."

England's Third Line of Defense

By G. KAY SPENCER.

The singular metamorphosis that transmutes a quiet, meek little London tailor or clerk to a brawny, element-hardened husky, who meets the steel of Spartan-trained armies in the supreme test—and conquers—is one of the inexplicable developments of this war.

While Flanders sucks the life blood of the noblest armies of them all, London listens—and hears the thunder of British guns "out there."

Those deep-throated mammoths are the "Gods of Attrition" and the first line of England's defense.

The second line of defense rides the waters of the world. No ensign flies so high nor so far as the "Union Jack."

There is another line.

The women of the United Kingdom man the forges and foundries of Britain from Kirkwall to Dover. They insure the delivery of the snows of war—to the heroic descendants of that "thin red line," who fought as Englishmen have always fought—with honor and glory—on the sands of the Sahara, the crests of the Alps or the Tibetan plateaus.

The women have also entered the military.

The Woman's Military Reserve, organized by Viscountess Castlereagh (now marchioness of Londonderry), whose object is to defend the shores of the nation against the possible invasion of the Germans, is about to acquire the honor of becoming an integral part of the British army system.

To the marvelous organizing ability of the marchioness of Londonderry is due this unique woman's organization. With her second in command, Hon. Evelynna Haverfield, the marchioness has developed the W. V. R. until they are much more efficient than the so-called "Territorials" were when the great war struck. They are proficient in the regular army drill manual. All the officers have attained their positions solely on merit.

They have had the aid of regular army officers, but these gradually withdrew as the women developed officers of their own.

A tremendous impetus was given the youthful organization when, through the death of her father-in-law, Lady Castlereagh became marchioness of Londonderry. Society flocked to her colors, only to find that commissions could not be bought—and then, curiously enough, they set out to work for them. There is many a prominent society woman serving in the ranks with servants of her own establishment.

The marchioness received the official attention of Lord Kitchener, when he recommended her as the colonel in chief for the very good and sufficient reason that he desired the command to go to a leader willing to accept the guidance of the government. Mrs. Pankhurst is said to have been more or less disappointed at this turn, but she lost no time in grieving—instead, she loyally supported the legion of Amazons.

The age limit for the organization was fixed at eighteen to forty. The big drill hall of Knightsbridge was loaned and drilling in the military arts has continued ever since.

It might be mentioned that all the officers of the W. V. R. have passed successfully the royal army examinations for their rank.

The purpose in applying an official status to the W. V. R. would be for the effect in case of an actual invasion any time in this or future wars—for it is to be a permanent organization. If they were no official body an enemy would be justified in dealing with them as franc-tireurs or snipers. An official standing merely allows to them treatment under the war colors for official armed enemy forces.

While there seems to be not the remotest fear of invasion, either now or in the years to come, it is felt that in case of any internal disruption occurring through malignant internal forces or enemy air raids, a body of healthy, straight-thinking, well-officed and trained women would be of inestimable aid.

The colonel in chief of the W. V. R. never identified herself with the militant suffragettes, but her chief aid, Mrs. Haverfield, was a leader among them, driving her dog-cart through the London streets bearing flaming placards, "Votes for women!" and having—with evident enjoyment—numerous fights with the police and the rabble.

of all floors in a poultry house as when the house is cleaned a portion of the dirt will be removed and in the winter it is difficult to obtain a supply of clean dry dirt. Rats easily dig into the poultry house when the dirt floor is used and as the rats burrow up through the litter it is sometimes difficult to find out where they enter without cleaning out quite a portion of the litter or hunting a long time for their place of entrance. Board floors are of course necessary in colony houses which are to be moved frequently, but the concrete floor is now considered by practical poultrymen to be the only safe and substantial manner of building the floor in a modern poultry house.

The concrete foundation for a poultry house can be made at least eight or ten inches above the ground and it should then be filled with at least three inches of tightly packed cinders or coarse gravel. Over this place the concrete mixture in the proportions of one part of cement to six parts of gravel and spread it out with a plasterer's trowel to a depth of two inches. The mixture will spread better if plenty of water is added during the mixing and it is quite sloppy. Before the first cement mixture has set cover the surface with a half-inch layer of a mixture containing one part cement to three parts of coarse sand instead of gravel. A foundation of this height allows the sill to be above the floor and this prevents rotting. It is also best to tile the ground under the poultry house unless it is very well drained and when on a well drained site tiling will take away the moisture that lies just under the surface of the soil as well as the surface water and in that way the house is given an ideal situation as far as drainage and permanent foundation are concerned.

All Mothers Must Make Sacrifices—Philosophy of One of Right Spirit

Mothers are mothers all the world over; but I think some of our mothers of men in the big draft have shown as fine a spirit as the best, writes Margaret Prescott Montague in the Atlantic. I happened to drop in at the log cabin of one of these mothers just as a rickety old automobile lurched down the rough road and left an official summons for one of the sons who had volunteered. The mother's face was lean and brown, with magnificent black eyes, high cheekbones, a fierce, clean-cut chin and not an extra pound of flesh anywhere upon her. Two of her sons have volunteered. She has five boys; three are of the fighting age, and the other two will soon be if the war keeps on. I offered some uncertain murmurs of sympathy, but was met by the proud retort, "Mothers have got to make sacrifices. I figure it out that's the way it's always been, an' so it'll always have to be, an' if you hold yer sons back, yer don't git nowhere."

Viewing her words in retrospect, it seems to me now that she was really talking more to herself than to me, arguing it out passionately, seeking earnestly the right road to travel. And I think in a sense she had come to her journey's end, and had found what she was seeking, when she added: "There's a plenty lays right down an' carries on an' thinks they can't stand it, but— and here her face set itself in a high determination—"you kin ef you will!"

Teeth Factor in General Health

By DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON, Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania.

Good teeth are necessary for health. What adds more to the beauty of the human face than a mouthful of fine teeth?

The first teeth need great care. First, the mother should see that the mouth is not overcrowded so that its form may be maintained for the second teeth when they come.

The baby teeth are softer than those that come after and therefore acids must be scrupulously avoided, particularly in mouth-washes, as they will destroy these important teeth which should be kept in the mouth as long as they are in good condition. Your doctor or druggist should be able to tell you about the acidity of the tooth preparations that are on the market.

It is always a pleasure to learn how to do things for one's self; it makes you self-reliant and at the same time stimulates you to seek further knowledge.

If you suspect your tooth preparation of being acid you can buy a few cents worth of litmus paper from your druggist, and by dipping a very small piece of this into your mixture a reddish tinge will appear on the paper if there is any acid present. If acid, forbid the use of the preparation. If a tooth powder is used it should be well shaken up with water before making the acid test.

Plain chalk with a soft brush or rag will do very well to cleanse the teeth of children both night and morning. The mouth should be well rinsed with water after each meal, and just before retiring it is well for both adult and child to rinse the mouth with a strong solution of baking soda. This destroys the acidity that might have been generated in the mouth from foodstuffs.

The teeth and gums should not be abused. Sound and healthy gums are necessary to maintain the health of the teeth.

Good Floor for Poultry House Is of Importance; Concrete Best Material

The floor in the poultry house is worthy of more consideration than it usually receives, as a substantial floor is necessary to keep the flock warm and dry as well as to exclude rats and moisture. The wooden floor costs more than concrete if you place the concrete without hiring skilled labor and the concrete is perfectly warm when covered with a deep litter and it can be thoroughly cleaned whenever the litter is removed.

The dirt floor is the least desirable

"It's all right, officer," replied the man with the jag. "I just been drafted."

"You've what?" "Drafted. You know. Just been examined. I'm going into the army."

"You had better come to the police station first," said the patrolman, and he started to lock the man up.

Just then a doctor came along, a member of one of the Fall River exemption boards. "What are you doing?" he asked the officer. "Don't lock him up. Let him go."

"But he's drunk," said the policeman.

"Never mind that. We just passed that fellow for the army, and if he's arrested we may lose him, and God knows it's hard enough to get men who are fit and willing to be drafted without taking any chances. Please, Mr. Policeman, let him go."

So the policeman exempted him from the lockup.—New Bedford Standard.

ART and CAMOUFLAGE

An organization is being trained in the science of ambush at American University: It is their business to hide guns and material of war from our enemies

CAMOUFLAGED FIELD PIECE

Washington.—Of the novel units which are being organized for the first time in the military history of the United States, probably the company of "camoufleurs" now in training at Camp American University will create the greatest popular interest; partly because it is composed of the leading artists, sculptors and architects in the country, but more from the unique task which the "camoufleurs" have set themselves. Camouflage is not a new military term developed by the war. On the contrary, it is an old slang word of the French stage, intended to be descriptive of the makeup of the actors. In its military sense, in which it is now popularly known, the term refers to the art of so concealing or disguising an object that the enemy cannot recognize it for what it is. A peaceful rock is discovered when too late to be a death-dealing gun. A mound of earth heaped above a trench shows no sign of human occupancy, when the incautious enemy learns to his cost that the seeping mound was a row of invisible helmets with a rifleman behind each. A hedge conceals a regiment, and the rushing German finds death lurking behind the cleverly contrived nest of shrubbery whose secret even his airplanes and his cameras had failed to reveal.

It is not surprising that the fascination of outwitting the enemy by means of brush, color and ingenious design should appeal to the artistic sense of our painters, sculptors and engineers. It was this appeal which caused Barry Faulkner, the artist, and Sherry B. Fry, the sculptor, on an evening some months ago, to call together in New York as many of their artist friends as they could assemble with the idea of organizing and offering to the government the services of the artists of America to aid the American troops in France to ambush the Germans. Camouflage, by the way, is only another name for ambush. It was first employed by the American Indian; perhaps not consciously, but with such instinctive naturalness, that the Indian of history always appears to have been merged with the rock and the forest in which he fought. Opinion is divided as to whether the Indian realized the effectiveness of his own scheme of costume colors. However that may be, ambush always has been more than half the art of the fighting Indian, and the modern camouflage was his natural resort. When the white man came with the shotgun the Indian at first had the advantage, for he so blended with the landscape that the superior marksman could not distinguish him, and the bow and arrow won many bloody triumphs over the gun. In the day of the short-range musket with which our early armies were equipped the necessity of concealment was as great as in the days of the pioneer, and the woodsmen who fought in the Continental army and who picked off the British in 1812 had learned better than expose themselves to the enemy in red coats. Then came the long-range rifle, and the art of concealment and disguise became less serviceable. With the invention of the airplane, however, the need of ingenious devices for hiding troops and equipment from the enemy again became vital, and the French developed it until it ranks with the best of their military achievements.

It was knowledge of this need and of the new problems injected into the science of war by the airplane that drew these artists together in New York. Nineteen responded to the first call and it was determined to start an organization of some kind and inquire of the government if the idea were worth developing. Fortunately about this time Gen. John J. Pershing went to France in command of the American expedition and it was not long before without inquiry of any kind from this side of the water, he began to cable back requests that a company of camoufleurs be sent to France. Thus with simultaneous enterprise and patriotism the commanding general was demanding and the American artists were organizing a branch of the service which appears destined to play an important part in the activities of the American troops on the battle front.

The company began to grow and is still growing. Everts Tracy, one of the leading architects of New York, had taken all the courses at Plattsburg and received a commission as major in the Officers Reserve corps. He entered with enthusiasm into the idea of organizing the artists and became the moving spirit of the enterprise.

To make a long story short, a large company of artists, sculptors, architects, civil engineers and others who have won fame with brush and chisel—and many of them much money with their brains and skill—are now drilling and experimenting at Camp American University. They must be soldiers also, as well as artists, for no one who goes upon a foreign battlefield in the uniform of the United States is permitted to be there until he has learned how to take care of himself. The company is under the capable command of Capt. Martin Nixon-Miller, U. S. R., from whom they get daily a grueling course in military instruction.

A first lieutenant of the company is Homer Saint Gaudens, son of perhaps the greatest of American sculptors and himself a stage director of note, as witness his remarkable work with Maude Adams in the preparation and production of the wonderful effects and illusions in "Peter Pan" and "A Kiss for Cinderella." Second in command is Lieut. Wilfred S. Crow, the landscape painter. Both are graduates of Plattsburg, and so far highly successful with the task they have in hand.

It might appear invidious to mention the distinguished professional men who compose this unusual company, but it seems appropriate to make special mention of Barry Faulkner, the New York artist, if only because he is a pupil of Abbott H. Thayer, the great figure painter, who early in life made a study of animals and discovered the law of the protective coloration of the animal kingdom. It was Thayer who first dared to differ with Darwin upon this subject, the British scientist having attributed the coloration to sex influence while Thayer, combining the faculty of visualizing and noting the actual aspect of things in their relation to one another with his knowledge of the animal world, proclaimed that nature's gift of color to her children of the forest enabled them to disappear quickly from the sight of their enemies. That the truth was stated by both writers now is generally acknowledged. Mr. Faulkner is a devout disciple of his master, but in his most intimate studies with Mr. Thayer he could never have dreamed that the theory of an artist in relation to the dress of birds and animals would some day contribute to the success of American arms.

The company bristles with men of the highest standing in their profession. Fry is a pupil of MacMonnies, Lorado Taft and other distinguished sculptors and, like Faulkner and Harry Thresher, the painter, has taken the Prix du Rome. Among their comrades are Sutter, Taboing, Dewar and Nell, the painters. Twigg Smith, who has been painting the exquisite scenes of the Hawaiian islands, has come back and enlisted. Sanger, Hoyt, Foster and Comstock are listed among the architects. All are young men but they come from the best offices in the United States and many already have made names for themselves. Leslie Thrasher, who draws the striking frontispieces for the Saturday Evening Post, is a rookie in the awkward squad. Men of this stamp are appearing at the camp every day, and enlistments are coming in so fast that Major Tracy has had his hands full dealing with them. The spirit of the command is an inspiration to the layman.

While the achievements of the French in camouflage are well known, and the American organization is in its infancy, it has been worth much to the men to know that General Pershing really is eager for their services. Half their day is given to experiments in their own peculiar line, and they are confident that the problems they will be called upon to solve are relatively simple. The art of concealment has most to fear from the cameras of the enemy, for many an object which appears innocent to the eye is remorselessly exposed by the lens and the plate. Knowing this, the men are conducting a series of experiments in coloration which are carefully being tested out photographically. An artificial green which would deceive a naturalist at a few hundred yards might show black under the merciless gaze of the camera, and the artists already have mastered a secret of fooling the lens. They have invented a grass which can be turned out in quantities by a machine and used as a covering, and they have learned so to color it that it will defy detection. One of their first experiments was upon an humble latrine, which they so disguised that at enemy distance it was invisible. They have taken to the trenches, and already have discovered a method whereby a rifleman equipped with a proper helmet can be so concealed that a whole regiment might slowly arise from their places to fire without the enemy noting a particle of change in the appearance of the background. The sniper or sharpshooter is one of the most useful soldiers on the battle front, and uniforms are being devised which will be indistinguishable from tree or landscape. A fake road is being planned, at the end of which will be placed dummy cannon, while the real cannon are concealed hundreds of yards away. One of the arts of camouflage is to make certain that the object to be concealed contains all the color values of its background, and the artists know that if one color is omitted the object at once becomes very noticeable.

The men are working in conjunction with the Signal Corps of the army at Fort Myer, and their experiments will be tested out thoroughly with airplanes and cameras. It is not pretended that the major part of the training can be undertaken in this country or that these professional men, however high their standing, can teach the French. It has been demonstrated already, however, in the month in which the first increment has been in training, that the company can acquire certain general principles which will prove useful in whatever work they may undertake in the future. The combination of artists and architects is a valuable one, for while the colorations of the one group are necessary, the designs of the other are equally important. The men have no doubt that the American camoufleurs will prove their utility on the battlefield and that their work will result in the saving of thousands of soldier lives. The finishing touches will be put on in France, but at Camp American University the groundwork is being laid for a service which is wholly unique in character and demanding as much of patriotism, self-sacrifice and daring as any that Americans on the European battlefield will perform.—Boston Transcript.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER.

CHESTNUT PARTY.

Jack Frost and his little helpers had made the chestnuts fine and ripe and the squirrels were very much excited.

"I Didn't Know It Was My Birthday."

We're also planning to give a banquet in honor of Chippy Chippy's birthday, which comes tomorrow.

"We never knew that Chippy Chippy's birthday was tomorrow," said Mrs. Red Squirrel. "And she was thinking as hard as she could what she could get ready to give Chippy Chippy on such short notice."

"We didn't tell our friends, as we didn't want them to feel they had to give Chippy Chippy presents, but we did want to give a birthday party for him," said the chipmunks.

"As a matter of fact," said Chippy Chippy, "I didn't know it was my birthday."

"Neither did we," said the chipmunks, "but we know it now, as we have just decided upon it."

"Ha, ha," laughed the red squirrels, "and you said you hadn't told us before so we wouldn't feel we had to get presents."

"Never mind," added Mrs. Red Squirrel, "I'll have some special treat for him." For she remembered that she had had a birthday once—at a time when she wasn't absolutely sure it was her birthday—because she just longed for a feast.

"We'll start for the nuts in the morning," said Mr. Red Squirrel, "and in the evening we'll have the feast."

"Aren't we to have anything to eat through the day?" asked the little red squirrels.

"We'll starve," said the little chipmunks, almost weeping at the thought.

"Of course we'll eat a little," Mr. Red Squirrel said. "Squirrels will always eat. We can eat and work at the same time, which is extremely clever of us. We'll have a nibble every little while—as often as we wish," he continued, and all the little squirrels and chipmunks felt happier.

"We simply meant," Mrs. Red Squirrel explained to the children, "that we would have a special feast in the evening."

Everyone felt very happy and they all went off to have good sleeps so they would feel quite fresh for the morning.

Morning came and the red squirrels and chipmunks were awake and ready for all the fun. "We feel just like a good hunt," said the red squirrels.

"So do we," said the chipmunks. Far off they saw the gray squirrels and they hurried away for the gray squirrels are fond of fighting the red squirrels and chipmunks. They are much stronger and they are very apt to kill the chipmunks and red squirrels.

The gray squirrels didn't seem to see the others. At any rate they paid no attention to them and went off on a trip of their own. The red squirrels and chipmunks felt greatly relieved and they began to go in the opposite direction.

"I am glad they didn't come this way," said Mr. Red Squirrel, "for the best chestnut trees are over here."

"I saw some other nuts, too," said Mrs. Red Squirrel.

"Did you, my dear?" said Mr. Red Squirrel, jumping over to her side. Tell me where."

"Tell us all," they screamed. "Let's Have a Nutting Party."

So Mr. Red Squirrel showed his trees of nuts as did Mrs. Red Squirrel. They ate so much all the time, and nibbled so many nuts that the chipmunk and red squirrel children most certainly did not starve.

But they took many away with them and at just the time when Mr. Sun was going to bed they had their special feast.

Suddenly they all said, "Many happy returns, Chippy Chippy," for in their excitement over getting the nuts they had forgotten that they had planned to make this day his birthday. But Chippy Chippy had forgotten too, and the chestnut feast made up for everything!

Don't put on the roof until you investigate

It is poor economy to save money by substituting something inferior, but wouldn't you like to save on cost if you could get something better? You can get a better roof for less money if you put on

Certain-teed

Roofing

Before its merits were recognized, roll roofing was regarded as a more or less temporary roof—but now CERTAIN-TEED has demonstrated that it is not only a most durable roof, but also the most efficient roof.

It is economical to buy, inexpensive to lay and costs practically nothing to maintain. It is light weight, clean, sanitary, fire-retardant and weather-tight.

It is now used as the preferable type of roof for office buildings, factories, hotels, stores, warehouses, garages, farm buildings, etc., where durability is demanded. CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply.)

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes are made for all uses and in all colors. With paint, as with roofing the name CERTAIN-TEED is a guarantee of quality and satisfaction.

OLD PRESCRIPTION

FOR WEAK KIDNEYS

A medicinal preparation like Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that has real curative value almost sells itself. Like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a physician's prescription. It has been tested for years and has brought results to countless numbers who have suffered.

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Do not suffer. Get a bottle of Swamp-Root from any druggist now. Start treatment today.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.
