Carrizozo Boy Writes a Letter Home Thru Outlook

The OUTLOOK is in receipt of a letter from Henry A. Lindley, who enlisted at Carrizozo a short while ago, as truck driver, for foreign service. The letter follows in part.

Co. E, 26th. Reg't, Engineers,
Dix Barracks,
Trenton, N. J. Oct. 12, 17.
CARRIZOZO OUTLOOK:

Dear Editor:

I must write you this evening, although very tired after hard day's drilling. We rode five nights and four days to reach this place, and sure were a tired bunch when we arrived. We have forty thousand soldiers here, most of them drafted men, and only twenty-six enlisted men in the name, of which I am one.

There seems to be quite a rivalry among the different companies, each one trying to outdo the other. Company E, in my opinion, is the best. They subscribed twice as much for Liberty Bonds as any other company.

All of the Carrizozo boys are in Company E. I will give you some of their names: Ralph Barker, R. W. and B. R. Merchant, O'Neill Smith, Jim Dearman and myself. We have a nice set of officers, who treat us kindly, and Carrizozo boys will soon be promoted, according to our way of thinking. We will certainly do our best, at any rate.

We will like this life after we become accustomed to it, and we want to earn the name of the "Liberty Bond Company." I will describe this camp to you after I am more acquainted. Tell the folks in Carrizozo that Co. E has bought eighty-three bonds, and more coming.

Yours for Uncle Sam,
HENRY A. LINDLEY.

BAPTIST CHURCH
(Rev. J. M. Gardner, Pastor.)

The pastor will preach Sunday, Oct. 21, at 11 a. m., on "The Mode of Baptism." This is the second of a series of sermons on this important subject.

Sunday School at 10 a. m.
Classes for all.

Juniata and Senior B. Y. P. U.'s meet at 8:30 p. m.

"Buy Your Own Cherries" and C. O. Thompson's address is mentioned elsewhere. Come, and get others to come with you, and remember that everybody is welcome.

Prayer meeting Wednesday night at 7:30. W. M. U. 8 p. m. Friday. Teacher Training 7:30 a. m. Friday. Come and study the Bible and S. S. methods with us every Friday night.

I will preach at Ancho Tuesday, October 23, at 7:30 p. m.

To the People of New Mex.

We, the people of the United States, have got to pay this year an insurance premium of seventeen billion dollars.

What are we insuring—and why?

We are insuring our country; our liberty, our lives, our prosperity, our honor and the honor of our mothers, our wives and our daughters—against the "Hun."

How are we to pay this insurance premium?

Out of our annual income of thirty-eight billion dollars.

But we must meantime live.

So part—and a large part—of this insurance premium must be borrowed, or, in other words, raised by the sale of bonds—Liberty Bonds.

How can we buy bonds?

By saving. If you have no savings account, open one right now. If you do have one—just a little one—make it bigger. If you have a big one—make it bigger yet.

The United States Treasury is depending very largely upon the banks to take or sell Liberty Bonds. The banks are willing and anxious to do it. How can we help the banks and the Treasury?

By saving. You—who are reading this—go to a banker right now and tell him you want to help pay our country's insurance premium; tell him you want to buy a Liberty Bond yourself or start a savings account that will help him to buy a Liberty Bond. He will help you; will show you how, and it will be the best thing you ever did.

Get the savings habit—a mighty good habit—and join the bond-holder class—a mighty thrifty class of mighty good citizens. By thus helping your country you will be helping yourself.

Death, so that "government of the people for the people, by the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Respectfully
G. H. VAN STONE
State Bank Examiner.

Oscuro

A man was here three days last week, looking into the oil proposition. He is satisfied the oil is here, and thinks his people will be ready to drill before very long.

The new boiler for the oil well came in this week. It is an eighty-two-horse-power affair, and will certainly be able to handle the drill. Drilling will begin as soon as the derrick can be erected.

John Rightmire, the engineer who had charge of the railroad work here, and George Hoadley, his genial helper, have finished up their work and gone. They will be missed by the many friends they made here, and probably will themselves always have a warm spot in their hearts for Oscuro, for here they both found their wives.

Sterling and Grey gave a dance in the room next to the store Saturday night, which was well attended.

E. H. Thornton shipped a car of cattle to Kansas City this week, and went with them. He would almost need to take a six-shooter along to get what they were worth, as there were over 100,000 on the market last week.

NORTHROP-PAYTON

On Monday, October Fifteenth, occurred the marriage of Mr. H. D. Northrop and Miss M. M. Payton. The contracting parties were both of Rebenton. Justice Harvey performed the ceremony.

THANK YOU, STATE RECORD!

The "NEW MEXICO STATE RECORD", the wide-awake, newsworthy journal, published at Santa Fe, in its issue of October Twelfth, printed five articles clipped from the "OUTLOOK" of Oct. 7th, for which we modestly return thanks.

Mrs. John Kahler, Miss Frances Studeville, Mrs. Robert Hoffman and Mrs. Shulda motored up to Water canyon Sunday to enjoy the autumn scenery.

Council Meets

The City Council met in special session Wednesday evening, to consider the sidewalk proposition. Mayor Lutz was authorized to make contracts and superintend the work. In cases of persons refusing to pay the assessments, the same will be levied against their property.

RED CROSS ACTIVITIES

A general Red Cross meeting will be held in Denver October 24th and 25th.

Every Red Cross organization, whether chapter, branch, auxiliary—at large, or group of lay workers, in the mountain division, consisting of the states of Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico, is expected to have a delegation present.

POOLE BROS. SHOWS COMING

The Poole Bros. Carnival, showing this week at Estancia, will locate in Carrizozo for one week, beginning October 29th. The show consists of a merry-go-round and a general line up of attractions such as acrobatics, and a well-regulated carnival.

Women's Organization

The W. C. T. U. society meets on the 1st and 3rd Thursday of each month.

The Women's Home Mission Society will meet at the home of Mrs. John Bell Wednesday afternoon, October 24th, at 3 o'clock.

The Baptist Missionary Union meets each Friday afternoon at the Baptist church.

METHODIST CHURCH

There will be no church services Sunday morning. Sunday school at 9:45, followed by the Sunday School rally. Epworth League meeting at 6:45, after which we will attend the union services at the Baptist Church.

John Kahler, S. P. Gray, and mother, Mrs. S. C. Gray, took a motor trip to the Gray ranch last Sunday.

Oil drilling going on at Oscuro.

Red Cross Calendar

Monday—General Red Cross and Civic League. Mrs. Gunn, chairman.

Tuesday—The Guild. Miss Eaton, chairman.

Wednesday—

Thursday—Home Mission. Mrs. John E. Bell, chairman.

Friday—Knitting Class.

Saturday—Baptist Missionary Union.

Work Room—Judge's Chamber in Court House.

FOOD CONSERVATION CAMPAIGN

The following telegram, received from the Hon. Ralph C. Ely, Federal Food Administrator for New Mexico, is self-explanatory:

"Santa Fe, N. M., Oct. 15, '17. County Supt. of Schools, Carrizozo, N. M.:

C. W. Crist, National Food Administrator, will be in Carrizozo Friday night, the Nineteenth, by automobile from Roswell to help organize a Food Conservation. Please assist him in having a good meeting of workers.

Ralph C. Ely

This is a matter of interest to all patriotic citizens of Carrizozo, and Lincoln County as well, and all such citizens are earnestly solicited to be present at this meeting at the Methodist Church at Eight o'clock Friday night to hear Mr. C. W. Crist, our National Representative in this great campaign.

J. E. Koonce,

Co. Chairman Pledge Campaign.

PARENT-TEACHER CLUB MEETS.

An interesting meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Club was held in the Court House Tuesday evening. The piano that had been in the court room had been moved, and on this account the program that had been planned could not be carried out in detail. Interesting talks were made by the retiring Chairman, Mrs. J. B. French, Professor Conway, and County School Superintendent Koonce. The Mandolin duets by Mrs. Wilson and Miss Mason were exceptionally well rendered. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Professor Conway, Chairman; Miss Mamie Humphrey, Secretary; Mrs. Robert E. Blaney, Chairman Program Committee.

High School Notes

Miss Cora Roberts, Reporter

The High School pupils are organizing a glee club and will hold rehearsals every Tuesday evening.

The Girls' Tennis Club has perfected organization, and captains for the four teams have been appointed. The work of setting the tennis court in order will soon begin.

Buy Your Own Cherries

Is a Most Interesting Story of a man who stopped buying liquor that he might buy cherries, as well as clothes and food for his wife and children. One is almost moved to tears at the joy of the children over the things brought to the house while mother and father are marketing. The children are sure there is a mistake, for it was never so before, for father had spent the money for "booze" instead. This interesting story, with a number of appropriate songs for same, will be given at the Baptist Church at 7:30 p. m. Sunday, October 21. C. O. Thompson, sent out by the Anti-Saloon League, will give an address on the State-wide prohibition question at 8 p. m.

Why French-Canadians Won't Fight for Canada

Million and a half of them in the United States proud to fight for Uncle Sam: Those in the Dominion show ancient hate for England, once their conqueror

IN THE United States a million and a half French-Canadians are proud to make war for Uncle Sam. Those in Canada have refused to volunteer for service and have fought conscription dangerously and fiercely. They declare that fighting for Canada is fighting for England, once their conqueror. Why all the rumpus? We present here an analysis of the situation by Yvonne LeMaitre, a French-Canadian. Her article is taken from the Boston Transcript, and says in part:

The one great striking fact about the behavior of the French-Canadians on the Yankee side of the line—or French-Americans, as they want to be called—is the contrast with the attitude of their Quebec cousins. Their response to the call has been splendid. According to recruiting officers, they and the Italians are the two racial groups which have furnished the largest proportion of volunteers in New England. And since the coming of the draft, not only have they been promptly and patriotically acquiescent to the nation's demand, but have filed fewer exemption claims, again according to official report from the stations, than any other element in the population of foreign stock.

Aside from this patriotic American war spirit, their sympathy and affectionate regard for France is lively; there is scant friendship for Britain, and interest in Canadian affairs is keen among the older people and practically absent among the younger. Lowell, with its population of some 28,000 people of French name, and race, is a shifting spot for the study of this "triple patriotism"—if one may dare the term—involving a race twice transplanted and as often de-nationalized and re-nationalized.

The natives of France in Lowell are few, and chiefly represented by priests in charge of the largest French Catholic parish in the city and by members of a religious brotherhood, the Marists, in charge of the boys' parochial school in the same parish. Several of these Marists are at the front, having at once responded when the call came from France early in the war. One was killed on his first day under fire. So this calm home of a French Catholic brotherhood in Lowell, surrounded by a delightful garden, with a charming view on the Merrimac, is a spot where the war is very much of a reality and every mail from France an event.

Lowell's French-Canadian stock, like all others submitted to Uncle Sam's alchemy, varies greatly in degrees of American assimilation. It has the two extremes, of complete assimilation and utter "hyphenation," and all the shades between. By the newspapers they read you shall know them! Lowell has a large enough contingent of the older French-Canadians who subscribe to La Presse and La Patrie of Montreal and to Le Devoir, Bonrasson's organ, and to whom Canada is still very near; they are the ones interested in the conscription quarrel in the Dominion. It has a much larger number who read only "American" papers, young people born in "les Etats" and who insist that they are Americans first, last and all the time—that species of eagle-spreading adopted son which Uncle knows how and likes to turn out, "plus royaliste que le roi," more Catholic than the pope and more American than the Father of His Country. It has taken the French-Canadian stock longer to evolve this type, perhaps, than it has taken the Irish stock, probably because of the difference in languages and a greater attachment of the French-Canadians to their own schools. But there is no questioning the fact that it has very much arrived, and is bound to be an ever-emerging factor in the political advancement and general material progress of the race in New England.

The American end of the war comes home vividly to New England's French-Canadians because of the extraordinary recurrency of the race, in which respect they differ so markedly from their "cousins de France." The proportion of young men of military age among them is strikingly large because their families are so prolific. One Lowell family alone had five conscripts—not one of whom, by the way, claimed exemption—five brothers, aged twenty-one, twenty-three, twenty-five, twenty-seven and twenty-nine years, respectively. Another family had four sons of draft age, and six others had three. A piece—eight French-American families, in brief, furnishing the amazing number of 27 conscripts.

Young French-American men in Lowell—home, by the way, of George Charette, one of the "heroes of the Merrimac" of Spanish war fame—had always in peace times enlisted to a noticeable extent in the regular army and navy and in the national guard. As one officer of the latter organization put it: "The French boys always were strong for the national guard." Upon the call to arms, the response of these same "French boys" was striking. In spite of the circumstances of so many of them, forcing abstention because of dependents to support, volunteering was brisk with them in all branches of the service. When the draft came into operation, Military District Number 4, corresponding to Ward 6, Lowell's banner "French ward," had only 68 men to call to fill its quota, so numerous had been, the voluntary enlistments, or "credits," in the section.

A recruiting officer in Lowell, who had been previously stationed in several other New England cities, showed me a page of his register where 15 of the 30 volunteers' names it contained were French, and he reported a similar willingness of the "French boys" to serve wherever he had been. This page was of course exceptional, but no page in the book was without several French names. They ranged all the way from that of a prosperous young lawyer to that of a woodchopper who phonetically signed "Arment," the named he shared with the lover of the Dame aux Camellias.

The five Lowell units of the national guard went into camp with one-fourth or over of their men French-Americans, while many more, according to an officer, had at some time tried to join and been "turned down" for various reasons. One company of the railroad engineers' reserve, numbering 100 men now in France engaged in railroad building, was organized and is captained by a Lowell French-Canadian, who naturally sought among his compatriots for volunteers and secured the larger part of them from their ranks. A company of the state guard in Lowell is composed of a man of "French boys" and captained by one, these same "French boys" being older men with dependents who could not otherwise serve, but who are all patriotically anxious to give what they can. Plattsburg commissions have also been sought and secured.

Patriotism has been shown in various other ways. A French-American group of the Red Cross has been formed, and knitting is fast and furious among the French girls. Priests in the French churches have preached volunteering. Earlier in the war one young priest stirred social gatherings at the Association Catholique, the largest organization of French-American men in the city, by passionate appeals for voluntary service under the American colors. That organization alone has over 60 volunteers now wearing khaki or the sailor's blue.

In brief, all reports tend to show that the one million and a half people of French-Canadian stock in the United States are gladly and even eagerly accepting war service, while two million of the same people in Canada are apparently opposing it "en bloc." What can be the reason for this striking difference of attitude?

The English colonies in 1776 became American of their own volition. The French of Canada became English in 1763 by force of conquest. England to the American colonials was the burden shaken off; France, to the Canadian colonials, the lost treasure.

"There is no logic," a young American once said to me, "about the French-Canadian affection for France and the corresponding dislike of England—one born of the other—after a century and a half of English rule. It is mere sentiment. Political, that is, practically, France's name is erased from the Canadian consciousness."

The sentimental link with France has naturally remained stronger with the educated classes. It always does. The cultured lose more in losing the ancestral land because they had possessed more of that land's heritage.

This is what has puzzled Americans so much—the contradiction in the Quebec Frenchman's refusal to serve when he is described as still fond of France. This contradiction, however, is not wholly contradictory. The ancient French blood bond, the occult and mighty pact of race, is still the obscure root of many things, and it cannot be ignored in "getting at" the complex feeling of French-Americans on the attitude of their Quebec cousins in the war—an Ariadne's web made up of both condemnation and approval of the Quebec reluctance to serve.

Willing as they have shown themselves to help Uncle Sam make "the world safe for democracy," in general they do not condemn their Canadian kin-folk, and commentary almost invariably opens with a condoning: "Oh, well, in Canada, it isn't the same thing."

Why? Not all of the "French boys" who have gone gladly into the American ranks can clarify their feeling into so many words, but the secret of it is certainly this: as American citizens and soldiers of the United States, they feel part of a proud-sovereign nation "making" war; Canada, on the contrary, is only "participating" in the war, and the Quebec cousin, if he fights, only "fights for England."

In certain French-Canadian minds hostility to anything-English-in-itself is natural. And this hostility is precisely corollary to the attachment for France, vanquished by England on Canadian soil a century and a half ago, and such as have it will not fight for England at any price, even with France involved in the quarrel as it is today. It is sentiment, "reasons just reason does not know," and an Irishman understands just what it means.

Add to this fundamental hostility to Britain which is of the blood, the bitterness of the bilingual war between the French and English factions in Canada, the multiplying grievances of Jean Baptiste in regard to the relegating of French to the rank of an "accomplishment" in the Manitoba and Ontario schools, the rumbles of that "guerre de races" he hears of with every visit of a relative from the North, and the New England cousin of Jean Baptiste is apt enough to exclaim: "They have reason in Quebec! To hell with helping the English in the war!"

Besides the merely sentimental, there are the "thoughtful" sympathizers for Quebec, keener students of the question. In these same people there is no dream of resisting the draft here, it is even approved of as the wisest war measure President Wilson could take to have imposed it at once without asking the people to vote on it. But with one voice they say that in Canada "ce n'est pas la meme chose" and that to impose conscription on a little country of 7,000,000 inhabitants which has already volunteered 400,000 soldiers is tyranny. Note here the subtle difference in the "sense of country" and the "sense of colony," as it were. French-Americans here feel that they are fighting "for their country" and the draft is just. Canadians in their eyes are colonialists who are "helping," who have first of all the right to decide whether they will do it or not.

L'Etouffe, the Lowell French paper, has taken an emphatic stand against conscription in Canada; also against the recruiting of New England French-Canadians for Canada's forces. Canadian recruiting officers recently on tour in New England have been the butt of acerbic aspersions from that quarter. "Serve the great cause under the Stars and Stripes," reiterates the editor, "don't go to Canada to serve by the side of English francophobes and fanatics." This attitude has been characteristic of the French-American press of New England, consisting of some 10 or 12 sheets distributed among the larger textile centers, with but an exception or two. It has patriotically "rooted" for volunteer service under the American colors on the part of French-Americans, and in the same breath defended the Quebec French who refused to enlist under the British colors.

In the bilingual quarrel the French-American press naturally sided with the French element, contending that its rights were trampled upon, and the present hostility to English efforts in Canada is a resultant.

By these extremists the big word annexation is pronounced. "Would not Canada be much better off if it were American?" they ask.

At the other end of the bridge are found those who bitterly denounce the Quebec cousins as traitors, rebels, cowards, etc., and have not enough words to paint them black. "What!" exclaimed one fervid citizen, "before the war didn't that Nationalist crew and other 'patriots' sing La Marseillaise with tears in their eyes? And didn't they clamor 'Restons Français!' on every roof? Their very salvation, and that of Canada itself, demanded that they should carefully keep their skirts from the contaminating English; and above all remain themselves, remain French. And now that France is clutched by the throat, their refrain has suddenly changed to 'We are Canadians, neither Frenchmen nor Englishmen! This war is none of our affair!' I must say that these people pass my comprehension.—Boston Transcript.

WAS LOTS OF FUN

Verdict of Youngster Who Took Remarkable Ride.

Curled Up Inside Automobile Tire Girl Rolled Down Steep Hill and Escaped Uninjured.

Alvan is only five and his sister Mildred is seven. They live on the slope of a great hill in Los Angeles, up which cars are drawn by a cable. The automobile road that winds to the summit describes the sweeping curves of the letter S. An electric car line runs past the foot of the hill, and the road that comes down from the summit crosses it to join Pasadena avenue.

One day the children were playing along the road, about three loops up from the bottom, where the road runs straight for half a city block. Alvan had a wrench that his father had borrowed, and was supposed to be carrying it back to its owner. They had two more loops to make, and then some stairs to climb to find the home of the wrench. It had taken an hour to come down three loops in their way of traveling, says the Youth's Companion.

At last conscience awakened in Mildred. She snatched the wrench and, calling to Alvan to follow, began to run. She rounded the first half of the next loop, and stopped. Before her lay a tire, lost off some hurrying automobile.

"Oh-ee!" she said. "Let's have some fun, Alvan. Set it up and let me get into it."

Obedient to the mandate of superior age, the boy struggled with the heavy tire. His sister dropped the wrench and gave a helping hand. When the tire was standing properly erect, she turned it till it headed down the grade and began to insinuate a foot into its interior. Soon she stood, with one foot ahead of the other, inside the shell of rubber and canvas, her body bent and the top of her head against the casing. Pulling the flanges outward with both hands, she jammed her head hard against the opening and the flanges gripped it. Then, with both hands clinging to the inner flanges, she gave the word to loyal little Alvan to "Let it roll!"

With as hard a push as his sturdy frame could give, the boy sent the rubber hoop trundling down the steep grade. All of the turns on the grade are banked. As the tire rolled down to the first turn, it shot up on the banked part, wavered a little, and turned. At the outer curve it nearly went over, but swung just in time. So it went careering round the last two loops and shot out on a straight line at the bottom, toward the car track.

The motorman of car No. 1231, watching the track ahead, saw the tire whizzing down from his right. He laughed as he glimpsed its upper rim above the bank of flowers. Then the tire shot out past the flowers, and he saw a curved, distorted body and a white face that whirled in rapid revolutions, with yellow hair streaming and skirts fluttering.

The passengers, who were not looking ahead, wondered why the man threw on the air brake so abruptly that they bent double over backs of seats. They thought they would report him.

The conductor and motorman jumped from the car and ran back. There, just across the track, lay the tire and a very dizzy little girl. Then women swarmed from the car, to pet and soothe. A careful examination revealed only one bruise—a skinned elbow; and when the dizziness had passed, Mildred sat up with a grin.

"It was lots of fun," she said. "I want to do it again."

That was not what her father said when he carried the tire up the hill and returned it to his neighbor, or what he thought when he found that the wrench was permanently lost.

The Regimental Dog.

The regimental dog has always been a favored animal in the United States armies, whether regular or volunteer. Champ Clark, it will be recalled, by reviving a southwestern folk song, relating to the unwise and bad taste of "kicking my houn' dog around," aroused new interest in that particular animal, and the Second regiment of Missouri adopted one as its " mascot." Since then the organization has been known as the "Houn' Dog Regiment." Recently a wealthy lady presented the men with a fine specimen of the species, a Great Dane, Maltese blue in color and weighing 210 pounds. It is unnecessary to say that few liberties will be taken with this "houn'."—Christian Science Monitor.

Flowers Owe Life to Insects.

In California are several sorts of flowers that would bear no seeds except for the visits and activities of insects. One of these is the yucca. A tiny moth lives in the flower and performs a peculiar work, intricate, but without which the yucca could not perpetuate itself through seeds.

Certain-teed

Roofing

CERTAIN-TEED is the best roof, not only because it costs less to manufacture, but also because it is weather-tight, light weight, clean, sanitary, fire-retardant, and costs practically nothing to maintain.

There are many roll roofings on the market, but only one CERTAIN-TEED. It pays to get the best. It costs no more to lay a CERTAIN-TEED roof than it does to lay a poor roof, but there is a vast difference in the wear. You can't tell the quality of a roofing by looks or feel. Your only safety is the label. Be sure that it is CERTAIN-TEED—then you are certain of quality and guaranteed satisfaction.

CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply).

Certain-teed Slate-Surfaced Asphalt Shingles

are supplanting wood and slate shingles for residences. They cost less, are just as good looking, wear better, won't fall off, buckle or split. They are fire-retardant and do not have to be painted or stained.

What He Learned.

Gerald was much depressed on bringing his monthly report card home from school at being scolded severely by his parents because it showed his department had only been 80 per cent out of a possible 100, and thinking she had punished him enough the mother, to cheer him, asked:

"Well, what did you learn this month in school, Gerald? Something nice, I'm sure."

"Didn't learn nothin'," he pouted.

"Oh, you surely must have learned something," the mother insisted.

"Well, nothin', only just how to be good," he conceded.—Indianapolis News.

Surf Coasting.

The sport of surf coasting reached this country from Hawaii and promises in a few years to become a popular sport. In California it was much practiced this past summer, while a few surf boards might be seen on the New York beaches. American manufacturers have put on the market a special surf board which is a considerable improvement over the plank used by the Hawaiians, having an air chamber at one end. All we lack now is the Hawaiian skill in riding the big breakers standing up.—Exchange.

The preacher was visiting in Tommy's home. Tommy was just three years old and loved above all things to sit on the preacher's lap. This day when they were enjoying a romp the preacher shook Tommy's head and clucked much as one would to a horse. Jumping down from his lap Tommy ran across the room and shook his head vigorously, then looked disappointed. He ran back to the preacher for another shake and cluck, then away again. He repeated this several times, each time looking puzzled. Finally he ventured:

Apology Accepted.
There is a good story of J. M. Barrie in Douglas Sladen's "Twenty Years of My Life."

It appears that the talented author of "The Little Minister," having promised to be present at a dinner of the Authors' club was late, for which he apologized.

He had, he explained, been to the wrong club. He had never been to the Authors' before, he said, so he asked a policeman the way.

From the way he pronounced the word, the policeman thought he meant Arthur's club, and to Arthur's accordingly Barrie was directed.

When he got there he found it a very grand place. The club porter looked him up and down, and said:
"The servants' entrance is round the corner."

It took the normal courage of a Scotsman (adds Mr. Sladen) to tell that story; but it was infinitely funny, told in Barrie's broad Doric.—Exchange.

Camp Libraries to Supply Soldiers With Best Reading Matter

Nothing is being left undone for the comfort and mental recreation of the men who are preparing to serve their country in the various training camps and cantonments throughout the country. The Y. M. C. A. was early in the field and besides its many activities, providing for the moral and spiritual welfare of the men, it did all it could to provide proper reading matter for them. But the need of libraries furnished in a more adequate and scientific way was so largely felt that the United States government requested the American Library association to undertake the work.

At once, it was decided to raise a million-dollar war fund; not so much for the purchase of books as for the erection of suitable library buildings at every cantonment; for the transportation of books and for the purpose of securing the service of skilled librarians. The first step in the formation of the organization in charge of the million-dollar war fund was the appointment by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker of ten nationally known men and women to constitute a library-war council.

United, and co-operating with the war service committee are most of the prominent authors of the United States; practically all of the publishers, who have proved willing volunteers; and practically all of the leading members of the library profession. All these are working in conjunction with the library war council, the commission on training camp activities and the war department itself.

One of the heaviest items of expense at the beginning of the work is the erection of 32 camp-library buildings at the various cantonments throughout the country. Each building will be 40 by 120 feet in size, one-story high, and will have accommodations for 8,000 or 10,000 books, newspapers and magazines, and living quarters for the staff. It is hoped and expected that each of these libraries will be in charge of a trained librarian. In each camp it is planned to have a library headquarters with books and periodicals for reading-room use, together with a system of distributing agencies; affording to the soldiers a kind of first-class city public library service.

A careful survey of the entire field determined that $1 is the amount necessary for the purchase, maintenance and circulation of one book. One dollar, it has been figured, will furnish a book, keep it in circulation until it is worn out, replace it when it is retired for physical disability, and all the time pay a share of the expense of properly housing and caring for these libraries in the various camps.

It is not to be imagined that the stupendous task of furnishing the soldiers with books; equipping, establishing and maintaining libraries, both stationary and traveling, is undertaken with, primarily, an educational idea. The books are needed not only to provide recreation for the soldiers when they are off duty, but to help counteract evil influences in the vicinities of the camps and cantonments. Books to read will help to make the camps so wholesome and attractive that the forces that tend to take men away from their duty will lose, at least part, of their charm.

There is no desire on the part of the American Library association nor the library war council to thrust educational books at the heads of men already tired from training and from fighting and who would desire recreation rather than the acquisition of knowledge. The aim has been and will be to provide in abundance volumes of short stories and novels of the more popular sort; and these when they are purchased, from the present fund, will be selected with all the acumen that comes to men whose lives have been spent in library service. A tentative list has already been prepared, and that it is tremendously democratic may be gleaned from the fact that it starts out with W. J. Abbot's "Battlefields and Camp Fires" and includes novels by George Ade, Balzac, John Kendrick Bangs, James M. Barrie, Rex Beach, Hilaire Belloc, William Black, Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson, Robert W. Chambers, Hall Caine, Winston Churchill, G. K. Chesterton, Wilkie Collins, Irvin Cobb, Marlon Crawford, Richard Harding Davis, Charles Dickens, W. M. Thackeray, Conan Doyle, Lord Dunsany, Jeffrey Farnol, Edna Ferber, Montague Glass and—but one could go on and make a list of practically all the popular American and foreign authors and that list would probably prove a pretty accurate catalogue of the books that are to be furnished the American soldier, wherever he may be, by the library war council.

Woman Who Gives New Life To Old Clothes Is Aiding In Conservation Movement.

In these times when there is a shortage not only of food materials, but also of textile stuffs, the woman who can clothe herself and her family at a minimum expense is "doing her bit" just as much as the woman whose garbage can fills slowly or the man who makes two potatoes grow where none grew before, declares Beryl Dixon, of the Colorado State Agricultural college.

Many articles of clothing that in ordinary times would be discarded without a second thought may, with a little care, be freshened up and made to serve another period of usefulness.

Woolen goods may be satisfactorily cleaned by washing in warm water with soap solution or soap bark. Soap bark is prepared for use by letting five cents' worth stand in two quarts of water for an hour and then straining it into lukewarm water in which the material is to be washed. Water of the same temperature should be used for both washing and rinsing. Press woolens when almost dry, on the wrong side, with a warm iron.

Most grease spots may be removed with naphtha soap and warm water. Chemical or dry cleaning will remove grease spots by dissolving the fat. The cleaning liquid may be ether, chloroform, carbon tetrachloride, gasoline, naphtha or benzine. The last three should be used in the open air if possible. They must be used away from a fire or a flame of any kind.

On silks or satins, rub the grease spot with a thin paste made of benzine and carbonate of magnesia. The benzine evaporates and the magnesia will absorb the grease and can be brushed off. Very often dry French chalk or powdered magnesia alone will absorb the grease, several applications sometimes being necessary. A warm iron and blotting paper will remove some grease spots.

Every Bird and Beast Makes A Noise That's All Its Own.

If a complete list could be made of the distinctive names by which the noises produced by birds and beasts are called, it would be found that there are few duplicates. We may judge this even by the most common, says an exchange. The horse neighs, the sheep bleats, the cow lows, the pig grunts and squeals, the turkey gobbles, the hen cackles, the cock crows, the goose hisses, the duck quacks, the cat mews, the dog barks, the wolf howls, the lion roars, the bull bellows, the sparrow chirps, the pigeon coos, the frog croaks, the rook caws, the monkey chatters, the elephant trumpets, the camel grunts, the stag calls, the rabbit screams—only when wounded, the donkey brays, the bee hums, the fly buzzes, the grasshopper chirrups, the swallow twitters, the chick peeps, the hound bays and the owl hoots.

Perhaps the best word for the sound a cricket makes is used by Tennyson. "Not a cricket chirr'd," he writes in "In Memoriam," although the word would fit the grasshopper better perhaps. Tennyson prided himself on his exact word for the noises made by bird and beast. Thus he speaks of the "moo of doves," the robin's "pipe," the woodpecker's "taugh," the curlew's "whistle," the jay's "scritch," the parrot's "scream," the peacock's "squal," the ocean-fowl's "shriek" and the eagle's "yelp."

Some Observations.

Experience never makes fools of wise men.

Faultfinding is unlike charity, yet it usually begins at home.

Vanity makes a lot of remunerative work for the beauty doctors.

You never really know your friends until they become your enemies.

It is awfully hard to get rich according to the methods prescribed in books.

Some men don't mind getting it in the neck if their neighbors get it just as hard.

Good sense is better than good looks, but so few people are afflicted with either!

You may have noticed that one girl no sooner breaks a man's heart than another comes along and bandages it up.

Chinese Doile Starvers.

No other race is as docile as the Chinese in times of famine, according to the National Geographic Magazine. Their resignation in the face of calamity is amazing. For instance, in the food shortage of 1906-7 a starving army of 800,000 peasants camped beneath the walls of the city of Tsanklanm. The grain warehouses of the town, a place of 200,000 inhabitants, were overflowing with wheat, maize and rice, and these supplies were constantly on display; yet there were no riots. The thousands outside the walls sat themselves down to die, while those within continued to transact the ordinary affairs of everyday life.

During this famine parents found it necessary to sell their daughters to wealthy families in which they became slave girls. Early in the period of distress girls of ten to fifteen years of age brought as much as $20 each, but when the suffering was most severe the customary quotation in the slave market was 60 cents each, while in one instance a father is known to have accepted 14 cents and two bowls of rice in exchange for his child.

One Might While Away Idle Hours Reading One of These.

Which is the longest poem in the world? One generally regards "Paradise Lost" as pretty lengthy, and Thomson's "Seasons" and Cowper's "Task." But these are short compared with Spenser's "Faerie Queene," which is easily the longest poem in existence, even as it stands, and had he attained his object and reached the twenty-fourth book, no other poem would have been "in it."

It is only a quarter of the original plan, yet it is as long as the Iliad, the Odyssey, and the Aeneid put together, twice as long as Dante's "Divina Commedia," and three times as long as "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained" in one.

The longest novel in the world belongs to Japan. Its author is Klong Te Bakin. It was commenced in 1852, and published volume by volume as it came out over a period of fifty years. There are 106 volumes, 106,000 pages, 3,180,000 lines, and about 38,000,000 words. A complete copy weighs 180 pounds.

Something New.

Peru was the first country to add instruction in aviation to its public school curriculum.

A new electric fan can be used on a desk or attached to a wall without changing any of its parts.

Concrete floors can be made almost noiseless by covering them with heavy tar paper, attached by cement.

European factories each week make about 16,000,000 pounds of artificial butter with coconut oil as a base.

Separate wind shields for each of the two seats it contains features a new English motorcycle side car.

A French scientist is trying to prevent fogs by floating small quantities of oil on rivers to check evaporation.

Platinum deposits recently discovered in Spain are believed to be greater and richer than those of the Ural mountains, which furnish the greater part of the world's supply.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

If your father and your son were in trouble, struggling for their lives, and doing it in defense of your home and your business, would you supply them with food and clothing, or would you refuse them?

This is a straight question. Yet it is the one facing you today. The country which has protected you and your family, may well claim to be considered as your father, and as for the boys who are giving their lives for you, surely they have a right to be considered as your sons.

This nation is one big family today. This war is a family affair.

Be a good father and a good son. Your sense of justice and fairness, your patriotism, is on trial.

When you remember that you are asked to give nothing, but only to lend money by investing in LIBERTY BONDS, you have no choice in the matter. Your heart tells you that you MUST do it.

If you have to go short of some luxury—do it.

Save and invest in Liberty Bonds until it pinches you, and the sacrifice hurts. It is the duty of every real American.

You will lose nothing. The bond is always worth just about what you gave for it. Probably it will be worth more later. You will have saved just that amount of money you invest in Liberty Bonds, and be just so much better off.

A man who will not sacrifice anything for his country, is not a real man. The man who does make a sacrifice, is a real man, and a true American.

You—the man who is reading this—know these statements are fair and true ones. This appeal is not written in vain, because it is going to influence you. You are going to buy a Liberty Bond.

Following the policy of the system in handling all of its affairs, the El Paso & Southwestern railway officials have decided to take half a million dollars worth of the second Liberty Loan Bonds through the local banks along its lines. The same system took a large amount of the first Liberty Bonds, purchasing through banks in Dawson, Tucumcari, Santa Rosa, Carrizozo, Alamogordo, El Paso, Columbus and other places, the usual amount being $25,000 through each local bank. New Mexico will probably get credit for more than $200,000 of the subscription.

READY TO DRILL

Mr. E. G. Raffety, of Oscura, now has an eighty-two-horse-power boiler, and all the machinery necessary for drilling the deep well for oil and gas. Experts say the field is good, and the result of the experiment is awaited with interest.

What could easily have resulted in death to the victim, happened on Tuesday evening, a short distance above the City Garage on Alamogordo Avenue. A man by the name of Beals from Carlsbad, N. M., who was in town with the intention of buying cattle, was run down by an automobile and badly bruised, but no bones broken. After striking the man, the driver put on full speed and disappeared.

When about to buy an article such as a range that plays such an important part in the daily routine of the home, it pays to examine it carefully and be sure you are getting the best range value. A range expert from the factory will, during the week commencing Oct. 22d, show you how the MAJESTIC is built, why it lasts so long, and why it is the best. KELLEY & SONS.

WICHITA'S BEST FLOUR

Wichita's Best Flour is the most perfect product of the great wheat producing section of the world. Only the choicest TURKEY HARD WHEAT is used in the making of Wichita's Best.

Every grain of wheat which enters into the composition of WICHITA'S BEST FLOUR is first thoroughly washed and sterilized before being ground.

This eliminates all foreign matter and conditions the wheat exceptionally well for grinding.

Following the policy of the system in handling all of its affairs, the El Paso & Southwestern railway officials have decided to take half a million dollars worth of the second Liberty Loan Bonds through the local banks along its lines. The same system took a large amount of the first Liberty Bonds, purchasing through banks in Dawson, Tucumcari, Santa Rosa, Carrizozo, Alamogordo, El Paso, Columbus and other places, the usual amount being $25,000 through each local bank. New Mexico will probably get credit for more than $200,000 of the subscription.

Judge Y. Hewitt and Paul Mayer were in from White Oaks Thursday.

Dr. Pine was in El Paso this week, attending a trial in which he is interested.

Mrs. Ed Kelley, is visiting relatives in Texas.

We have a pleasant surprise for all children who visit this store between 3 and 5 on Tuesday afternoon during the MAJESTIC Demonstration Week. All children are invited. Watch our advertisements for further particulars.

READY TO DIE

Mr. E. G. Raffety, of now has an eighty-two power boiler, and all the machinery necessary for drilling the deep well for oil. Experts say the field is the result of the exploration awaited with interest.

What could easily have resulted in death to the victim, happened on Tuesday evening, at a dance above the City Hotel, Alamogordo Avenue, the name of Beals from Carrizozo, N. M., who was in town the intention of being entertained was run down by a car and badly bruised, his bones broken. After the car was broken, the driver was arrested and disappeared.

When about to be examined such as a routine of the examination it is found that you are getting the best value. A range of factory will, during the commencing Oct. 22d, show how the MAJESTIC is built it lasts so long, and is the best. KELLEY & SONS

People You Know

Dr. R. T. Lucas was a business visitor in El Paso this week.

S. M. Groom visited his family in Alamogordo last Sunday.

J. M. Roberts and family left for Bisbee Arizona, Thursday.

Mrs. L. M. Scott returned from a trip to Roswell last Sunday.

C. E. Brown, of Ancho, passed through Carrizozo Monday, on his way to El Paso.

Mrs. G. T. McQuillen left last Thursday for a short stay in Clovis, N. M.

Charles Spence left for Harrington, Kansas, Friday, to attend to business interests.

Mrs. Guaney, of the Carrizozo Eating House, has returned from a visit with friends in El Paso.

Tourists are coming and going continually according to the Carrizozo Eating house register.

Jack Cleghorn and Phelps Lacey trapped a 200-pound bear in Johnny Canyon, south of Carrizo Mountain.

Captain J. M. Rice and Mr. L. C. Graham, of the Parsons Mining Co., were business visitors here this week.

Mrs. W. C. McDonald will entertain the Auction Bridge Club at her ranch home on Thursday, October Twenty-fifth.

J. F. Kimbell and mother, Mrs. J. W. Kimbell, accompanied by the W. H. Osborns, motored over to the Malpais last Sunday.

Pru Brothers, of Roswell, who recently bought out the live-stock interests of Lutz and Fritz, were in town Tuesday, on business.

E. C. Wright, of Little Rock, Arkansas, passed through Carrizozo this week, on his way to White Oaks, looking up mining interests in that locality.

Mrs. J. B. French and Mrs. H. S. Fairbanks expect to leave Monday for Denver, Colorado, to represent the local Red Cross Chapter in convention at that place.

A party comprising W. W. Stadtman and family, the Misses Reece and Mrs. C. A. Stevens motored to the Big Ten Mining Company Sunday, where they enjoyed a pleasant outing.

Officer Brockway has returned from El Paso, where he was called as a witness in the trial of the three deserters he recently arrested at this place. He says that according to the evidence submitted, they will receive a severe sentence.

One hundred and eighty members of the Engineers Corps of Co. A. 9th, Iowa Infantry, came through here recently and everyone as far as we know, knew when the train left, much different from the Arizona bunch, who had the world beat for a heavy load.

County Clerk O. T. Nye, J. L. Bryan and Ira Wetmore, returned from Santa Fe, and feel at liberty to say that Lincoln County, can expect something at the hands of State and Federal authorities in the near future on the good roads proposition. Ex-Governor McDonald, who accompanied these gentlemen, on the same mission, will remain in Santa Fe a few days longer.

Ed Kelley went to El Paso on Wednesday

Ben Stimmel left Thursday for a short stay in Oklahoma City.

George Clark and Lieutenant Besse paid us a visit Wednesday.

Mrs. D. S. Donaldson was in El Paso, on Thursday of this week.

Dr. Blaney leaves Tuesday on a hunting trip to be gone a week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. LaFleur, and the Ira Wetmores, suppered in Nogal canyon Sunday.

Mrs. Ira Wetmore, left for El Paso Thursday, to pay a visit to relatives in that city.

Miss Belle Lutz left Friday to visit friends in Kansas City, and other points further east.

Ralph Davies, agent for the Krakauer Hardware Company of El Paso, was in the city visiting his customers this week.

The Court House has come into its own. For a long time the people had no place for public gatherings of any kind, but, through the kindness and concern of our County officials, the House and grounds have been turned into a home for the public. The last three entertainments given in honor of the boys who went to the front were given there and it has been a home for the Red Cross Society for their meetings and work.

Mr. H. S. Campbell of the Lincoln State Bank, has a collection of vegetable novelties. The first is what Mr. Campbell calls, a "banana squash." The squash measures thirty one inches in length. His "squaship" was raised on Uncle Tom Henley's place at Nogal. The potatoes were raised on the Bonito, and weigh from two to three and half lbs. apiece. Mr. Campbell is pleased with his collection, and points with pride to the Lincoln county product.

Lute Jennings, up on the Bonito, killed a 250-pound bear Sunday morning at six o'clock. This is Mr. Jennings's 27th bear in ten years.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

Alaire drove as swiftly as she dared, following the blurred streak of gray that was the road, and taking the bumps with utter recklessness. Ahead loomed the dark ridge of the river thickets, a dense rampart of mesquite. But even before they were sheltered from the moonlight Paloma saw the lights of another automobile approaching along the main-traveled highway behind them—the lights, evidently, of Tad Lewis' machine. A moment later Alaire's car drove into the black shadows. It had been a short, swift, exciting ride. "Young Ed's" runabout could not be many minutes ahead of them.

The women got out, then breast the high grass and brambles between their hiding place and the pumphouse road. A hundred yards away they could now see the ghostly Rio Grande, its snarling surface faintly silvered by the low moon; lights gleamed from the windows of Morales' house. In the distance the vague outlines of the Mexican shore were resolving themselves, and far beyond twinkled the evidence that some belated citizens of Romero were still awake.

Paloma had brought with her the long-barreled rifle, and this she clutched nervously as she and Alaire stood whispering. Conditions were favorable for an approach to the pumphouse itself. They had nearly reached their goal when out into the clearing behind them, with metallic rattle and clang, burst another automobile, and Paloma whispered excitedly.

"There's the Lewis outfit at last!" In the Lewis car were several men. They descended hurriedly, and when one of them ran around the front of the car to turn off its lights, both women saw that he carried a rifle. Evidently Tad Lewis had come prepared for desperate measures.

A small door gave entrance to the pumphouse, and into the lock of this Mrs. Austin fitted a key; the next moment she and Paloma were safely inside. Dusty, cobwebbed windows let in a faint ghost-glow of moonlight, but prevented clear observation of anything outside; Alaire's fumbling fingers found the latch and began to lift a window, when someone spoke, just outside the building.

"What did you discover?" inquired a voice which neither woman recognized. Paloma clutched blindly for her companion; the two eavesdroppers stood rooted in their tracks. The pounding of their hearts sounded loudly. Since the building was little more than a wooden shell, they could plainly hear the answer:

"The house is full of greasers. I can't tell who they are."

A third man spoke, this time in Spanish. "That was Tad Lewis who just came, senior."

There followed some whispered words indistinguishable to the listeners, then a rustle of bodies moving through the tall grass and weeds. Paloma placed her lips close to Alaire's ear. "Who are those people?" she breathed.

"I don't know. They must be the ones who came in that strange automobile."

Paloma chattered viciously: "Everybody in Texas is here. I wish we'd thought to scatter tacks behind us." Cautiously they swung the door back and looked out. The open space along the river bank was leveled, by the moonlight; from Morales' house, to their right, came the sound of voices. The women waited.

A few moments, then a number of men appeared. Paloma judged there were at least a dozen, but she was too excited to count them. As they came straggling toward the pumphouse one of them called back:

"Morales! Put out your lights." Both women recognized Tad Lewis as the speaker.

Alaire had stubbornly refused to charge her husband with any active share in this evil business, but her faith in Ed suddenly vanished when she heard him say:

"Hush! You're making too much noise. You'd better scatter out, too, for there's no telling where they'll lead." Alaire leaned weakly against the door. "I'm going to leave, and let you all attend to the rest," he was saying. But Tad Lewis halted him as he turned from the group.

"Where are you going, Ed? You left your car back yonder by the road. I expect you'll be in it."

FOLLOWING DISCOVERY BY ED AUSTIN AND GENERAL LONGORIO THAT DAVE LAW AND BLAZE JONES ARE RETURNING FROM MEXICO WITH GUZMAN'S BODY, CLASHING FORCES GO TO THE RIVER—PALOMA AND ALAIRE LOOK ON

SYNOPSIS—Mrs. Alaire Austin is the handsome young mistress of Las Palmas ranch in Texas and La Feria ranch in Mexico. She dislikes her husband, who is a brutal, profligate, lecherous drunkard, but she feels a strong sympathy for David Law, state ranger, when she discovers accidentally that he loves her hopelessly. There is trouble between Mexicans and Americans along the border. Law discovers that Austin is leagued with American horse thieves and Mexican rebels, among them Tad Lewis, who is under suspicion. Law kills a horse thief. When Law's friend, Ricardo Guzman, goes to the Mexican side to collect money due him, he is murdered by the Lewis gang because he can give incriminating testimony against them. Law and Blaze Jones go to the Mexican side to get Guzman's body secretly. Mrs. Austin and Paloma Jones, Blaze's daughter, are preparing to give them aid on their return to the American side when Gen. Luis Longorio, an odious admirer of Mrs. Austin, comes to call. Ed Austin and Longorio learn of the Jones-Law expedition. Tad Lewis is warned and his gang, and Longorio's meet at the river to kill the friends of Guzman.

"Eh? What are you talking about? My car is over by Morales' house." "Senior Austin is in a great hurry," sneered someone in Spanish. "Once more he leaves all of the fighting to his friends."

"That's Adolfo Urbina," panted Paloma. "I know him." Stung by this open charge of cowardice, Austin began a voluble defense, but in the midst of it General Longorio addressed him sharply.

"You will stay here, senior. Nobody leaves this place."

"I told you I wouldn't be a party to the business," Ed declared hotly. "You forced me to come in the first place."

"Yes! And now I force you to stay," Longorio's stand appeared to please Lewis, who chimed in with the words: "That's right, Ed. You've got to stick, for once in your life."

"What do you mean, you nearly ran into my car back yonder?" Austin asked after a moment.

"Ain't that your machine yonder by the thicket?" inquired Lewis. "If it ain't, whose is it?" As no one answered, he started in the direction he had indicated; but at that moment a man came running from the river bank, crying softly:

"Look out! They come."

A man passed swiftly by the crack of the half-open door and scarcely ten feet beyond. He was followed by three others.

The first of the newcomers, acting as spokesman for his party, stepped out into the moonlight and cried loudly: "Hello, men! What's goin' on here?" It was an American voice; it had a broad, slow Texas drawl.

The group of plotters turned; there was a startled murmur, then Tad Lewis answered:

"Hello! Who are you? What do you want?"

"I reckon we must have got off the road," announced the stranger. Then he peered out across the river. "Say! Ain't that a skiff yonder?" he inquired.

"Well, it don't look like a steamboat," Lewis laughed disagreeably. "We're havin' a little party of our own. I reckon you fellows had better beat it. Understand?"

The outposts that had been sent to cover the bank in both directions were now coming in. Through the stillness of the night there sounded the thump of oarlocks. Seeing that the stranger did not seem to take his hint, Lewis raised his voice menacingly:

"That's your road back yonder. It's a right good road, and I'd advise you to travel fast."

But this suggestion was also ignored; in fact, it appeared to amuse the man addressed, for he, too, laughed. He turned, and the women noticed that he carried a short saddle gun. They saw, also, that at least one of the men at his back was similarly armed.

"Now, what's the hurry?" The stranger was chuckling. Suddenly he raised his voice and called loudly: "Hello, Dave! Is that you—all?"

The answer roared promptly back: "Hello, Cap! Sure it's us."

"Have you got him?"

It was Blaze Jones' voice which answered this time: "You bet!"

Paloma Jones was trembling now. She clung to Alaire, crying, thankfully: "It's the Rangers! The Rangers!" Then she broke away and ran out into the moonlight, trailing her absurd firearm after her.

"Now, boys," the Ranger captain was saying, "I know most every one of you, and we ain't going to have the least bit of trouble over this thing, are we? I reckon you-all are friends of Ricardo Guzman, and you just couldn't wait to find out about him, eh?"

Alaire, who had followed Paloma, was close enough now to recognize the two Guzman boys as members of the Ranger party. Lewis and his men had drawn together at the first alarm; Longorio's Mexicans had gathered about their leader. The entire situation had changed in a moment, and the Ranger captain was in control of it.

Soon Dave Law and Blaze Jones came up over the river bank; they paused, stricken with surprise at finding a score of people where they had expected no more than four.

Blaze was the first to speak. "What's all this?" he cried. He peered near-sightedly from one to the other; then his huge bulk shook with laughter: "Say, do my glasses magnify, or is this an open lodge meetin'?"

"Dad! Oh, dad!" Paloma scurried to him and flung herself into his arms. "What you doin' here, kid?" the father exclaimed. "Why, you'd ought to be home and abed, long ago. You'll catch your death of cold. Is that gun loaded?"

Dave Law was even more amazed than his companion. Recovering from his first surprise, he took a position beside his superior officer. Captain Evans did not seem at all troubled by the disparity in numbers. One Ranger, or two, at the most, had always been sufficient to quell a Texan disturbance; now that there were three of them, he felt equal to an invasion of Mexican soil, if necessary. In consequence, he relaxed his watchful vigilance, and to Dave he drawled:

"We've got most of the leading citizens of the county, and I reckon somebody in the outfit will be able to identify Guzman."

"There's no trouble about that, sir. We found him. Pedro and Raoul can make sure." The sons of Ricardo Guzman stepped forward promptly, and Law waved them toward the boat landing, where the two helpers were waiting with Ricardo's remains.

Despite the Ranger captain's easy assumption of command, the strain of the situation had not subsided, and Longorio drew swift attention to himself when he said:

"It is fortunate that I chanced to learn of this matter. You have done me a great service, Senior Law, for I came to Romero purposely to examine into the death of this unfortunate man. But I could learn nothing; nobody knew anything whatever about the matter, and so I became convinced that it amounted to little. Now—behold! I discover that I was deceived. Or—perhaps there still may be a mistake."

Blaze Jones thrust his daughter aside and advanced toward the speaker. "There's no mistake," he declared belligerently. "I don't make mistakes when I go grave-robbin'. Don Ricardo was shot by your men. He had five thousand dollars on him, or he should have had, and he was an American citizen. Your Colonel Blanco covered the body, but he'll have a h—l of a job coverin' the facts. It's time we came to a showdown with your murderin' outfit, and I aim to see if you've got a government in your country."

"Heaven guided my hand," devoutly breathed the general. "It is regrettable that you used this means when a word to me would have served the purpose, for—it is no trivial matter to desecrate a Mexican graveyard. My country, it has a government. An officer of the state of Texas, under arms, has crossed the Rio Grande. What does that mean?"

Captain Evans had a sense of humor; Longorio's ominous words amused him. "Say, general, it ain't the first time," he chortled. "And you're an officer, too, ain't you? You're in Texas at this minute, and I'll bet if I frisked you I'd find that you was under arms." The Mexican understood English sufficiently well to grasp the significance of these words. After a moment's consideration, therefore, he modified his threatening tone.

"But my mission was friendly. I had no criminal purpose," he said mildly. "However—perhaps one offense condones the other. At any rate, we must have no international complications. There is a more practical side to the matter: If Don Ricardo Guzman met his death in Mexico, there will be a rigid investigation, I assure you."

Evans agreed. "That's fair! And I'll make a bargain with you: you keep still and so'll we. We never aimed for this affair to get out, anyhow. I reckon these men"—he indicated Lewis and his followers—"ain't liable to talk much."

The two Guzman boys, greatly moved, returned to announce that they had identified their father's body, and Longorio could not well refuse to accept their evidence.

"Very well," said he. "I am indebted to you. Since there is nothing more to be said, apparently, I will return to Romero." With a bow to Mrs. Austin, who had silently watched the play of these opposing motives, he turned away, and Tad Lewis followed him.

But Dave Law had recognized Adolfo Urbina in the crowd, and, stepping forward, disarmed him, saying:

"Adolfo, there's a warrant for you, so I'll just take you in."

For a moment Adolfo was inclined to resist, but, thinking better of it, he yielded with bad grace, bitterly regretting the curiosity which had prompted him to remain to the end of this interesting affair.

Tad Lewis gave him some comfort. "Never mind, Adolfo," he said. "They can't prove anything on you, and I'll go your bail. Ed Austin knows where you was the day that stock was stole." He and his two remaining men moved toward their automobile, and a moment later the vehicle went clattering away up the thicket road.

So ended the attempt to foil the return of Ricardo Guzman's body to Texas soil.

When Alaire came to look for her husband, he was gone.

CHAPTER XIV.

Supperations and Certainties.
The sensation caused by Ricardo Guzman's disappearance was as nothing to that which followed the recovery of his body. Whatever the facts of the rescue, it was generally recognized that the result had been to bring on a crisis in the affairs of the two nations. Strong influences, however, were at work to prevent that very outcome for which the people of Texas prayed. During the delay there arose a report that Ricardo Guzman had borne an evil reputation, and that he had been so actively associated with the rebel cause as to warrant punishment by the federal government. Moreover, a legal question as to his American citizenship was raised—a question which seemed to have important bearing upon the case.

Public interest is short-lived; few living men can hold it more than a day or two, and it reckons no dead man worthy of more than an obituary notice. Thus in the course of time the Guzman incident was in a fair way of being officially forgotten and forgiven.

But there were several persons who felt intense relief at the course events had taken, and among these was Alaire Austin. In the days following that midnight expedition she had had ample time in which to meditate upon her husband's actions. It seemed probable that he had fled to San Antonio, there to remain until interest in the Guzman matter had abated.

Alaire telephoned Dave Law, arguing to herself that she must learn more about her husband's connection with the Lewis gang. Dave arrived even sooner than she had expected. She made him dine with her, and they spent the evening on the dim-lit gallery. In the course of their conversation Alaire discovered that Dave, too, had a hidden side of his nature; that he possessed an imagination, and with it a quaint, whimsical, exploratory turn of mind which enabled him to talk interestedly of many things and many places. On this particular evening he was anything but the man of iron she had known—until she ventured to speak of Ed. Then he closed up like a trap. He was almost graft in his refusal to say a word about her husband.

Because of Ed's appropriation of the ranch cash, Alaire found it necessary a few days later to go to the bank, and, feeling the need of exercise, she rode her horse Montrose. When her errands had been attended to, she suddenly decided to call on Paloma Jones. It was years since she had voluntarily done such a thing; the very impulse surprised her.

Paloma, it happened, was undergoing that peculiar form of feminine torture known as "fitting;" but insecurely basted, plumed and tacked as she was, she came flying down to the gate to meet her visitor.

Alaire was introduced to Mrs. Strange, the dressmaker, a large, acidulous brunette, with a mouthful of pins; and then, when Paloma had given herself once more into the seamstress' hands, the two friends gossiped.

"I don't know what dad will say when he gets the bill for these dresses," Paloma confessed.

"Your father is a mighty queer man," Mrs. Strange observed. "I haven't so much as laid eyes on him." Paloma nodded. "Yes. And he's getting more peculiar all the time; I can't make out what ails him."

"Where is he now?" asked Alaire.

Tad Lewis and his gang determine that Dave Law is too dangerous to be alive—so the plotting takes a more sinister turn. Startling developments are described in the next installment.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

LOCUSTS' CONCERT.

Mr. Lionel Locust Got Up.

"It was almost time for the sun to set," said Daddy, "when the locusts began their singing. 'They sang on into the night and when it was very dark they called their friends to the concert. 'What have you been singing all this time?' asked a number of other insects politely. For you know the locusts are insects just as the crickets are. 'How good of you to call it singing,' said the locusts. 'We only called it practising. We wanted to get in the best of voice for a concert and we wanted all the creatures to come.' 'Thank you,' said the crickets. 'We'd be charmed to come.' 'The concert will begin in a very few minutes,' said Mr. Lionel Locust, who was the leader of the locust chorus. 'Word was quickly whispered about the insect world, and many of them were ready almost before they had been asked. 'You see they heard the locusts practising all the late afternoon, and during the early evening, so they imagined they were going to give some sort of an entertainment. They had merely been waiting for their invitations. 'First the Katydid family arrived, then the field crickets, next came a smaller size of field crickets, and the smooth-winged crickets. The broad-winged locusts, cousin of the meadow locusts and the tree crickets all soon appeared. 'They sat around on shrubs and on low trees. Some of them sat in reserved seats the locusts had for them on very tall blades of grass. 'Then the concert began. The locusts sang in chorus, they sang separately and two or three sang at a time. 'The reason for that was because every creature so much wanted to join in the fun, and of course it was only in a chorus that that could be done. 'The rest of the insects clapped their little legs together and shrieked with delight at many of the songs. When they called out how much they liked the songs, they sang their words of praise. 'It is not usually the way to ask the audience to join in the performance, but this was the way it was in the meadow that night. 'Mr. Lionel Locust got up and said: 'Ladies and gentlemen, crickets, Katydid, locusts, we are all highly honored to have you here, our cousins and our friends.' He cleared his throat and all the insects looked very much pleased. 'It is an honor to be here,' they said. 'Thank you,' said Mr. Lionel Locust, bowing very low. 'I am glad to hear these kind words from our good friends, and now I have a few words to say. I will not take more than a moment or two of your very valuable time.' 'Of course Mr. Lionel Locust had already taken up a little of their time and had said several words before he made this part of his speech. But he had heard somewhere that creatures who made speeches usually made opening remarks way down toward the middle of the speech. And so he wanted to be perfectly correct. 'I would deem it a great favor,—but all the insects had interrupted. 'What does he mean by 'deem'?' they all asked. 'Mr. Lionel Locust heard them. 'Deem,' he said, 'means the same as think or consider. In other words, I would consider it a great honor—and then he paused. 'We understand now,' said the insects, 'and that was as far as you had gone in your speech. Pray continue.' 'Yes, I would consider it an honor,' repeated Mr. Lionel Locust, 'if our guests would sing for us, too. In fact, a concert would not be a real one without their lovely voices.' 'This made everyone very happy, and they all promised to sing. They all sang in separate family groups at first but later on every insect in the meadow that night sang in the great final chorus and the meadow was gay with the sound of many insect voices.'

The Katydid Family Arrived.

Georgia Farmer Says Tanlac Relieved His Rheumatism Entirely.

SUFFERED 45 YEARS

"I Am a Well Man In Every Way and Feel as Strong and Healthy as I Ever Did," He Says.

"I wouldn't take five hundred dollars in cash for the good four bottles of Tanlac did me," said J. M. Mallory, a well-known farmer of Stonewall, Georgia, a short time ago.

"For forty-five years I suffered almost every day," he continued, "and was so crippled up with rheumatism that I had to hobble around on crutches. My knees were so stiff I could hardly bend them and often I have been so weak that I have had to take to my bed for weeks at a time. More than half the time I couldn't do any work. I had indigestion and stomach trouble, too, and my back hurt so bad that I couldn't lay on my left side at all. I tried every medicine I saw advertised and many prescriptions besides, but kept getting worse.

"My brother living in Atlanta told me what Tanlac had done for him and begged me to try it. Well, sir, I have taken four bottles in all and have thrown my crutches away for the rheumatism is entirely gone and I can jump two feet off the ground without it hurting me a bit. I am a well man in every way and feel as strong and healthy as I ever did in my life."

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT!

No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers—It's like magic!

Soft corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority. For little cost one can get a small bottle of freezone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain.

This simple drug dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

BROKEN DOWN IN HEALTH

Woman Tells How $5 Worth of Pinkham's Compound Made Her Well.

Lima, Ohio.—"I was all broken down in health from a displacement. One of my lady friends came to see me and she advised me to commence taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I began taking your remedies and took $5.00 worth and in two months was a well woman after three doctors said I never would stand up straight again. I was a mid-wife for seven years and I recommended the Vegetable Compound to every woman to take before birth and afterwards, and they all got along so nicely that it surely is a godsend to suffering women. If women wish to write to me I will be delighted to answer them."

Women who suffer from displacement, weakness, irregularities, nervousness, backache, or bearing-down pains, need the tonic properties of the roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DAIRY CAMPAIGN PLAN

Make Fullest Use of Every Drop of Milk Produced.

Large Portion of By-Products Might Advantageously Be Made Directly Into Food for Human Consumption.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A campaign to have every drop of milk produced in the United States make the fullest possible contribution to the food supply of the country will be launched immediately by the Dairy Divisions of the United States department of agriculture. This campaign will be carried on with funds made available by the food production bill recently enacted by congress. At present much skim milk and large quantities of other dairy and creamery by-products are fed to farm animals when, according to dairy specialists, a considerable portion of this might more advantageously be made directly into food for human consumption. Dairy products constitute cheap forms of food. Whole milk, skim milk, and cottage and other cheeses are high in protein and are useful substitutes for meats.

In work for fuller utilization of milk in factories, the dairy division will devote special attention to cottage-cheese manufacture. Creamery and milk-plant operators will be taught cottage-cheese making by a corps of specialists of the division; milk producers will be encouraged to send as much whole milk as possible to the creameries, and efforts will be made to increase the general consumption of cottage cheese by the public.

Other specialists of the division will aid state extension workers in conducting campaigns for the improvement and increased manufacture of farm-made cottage and cream cheese. These specialists also will conduct demonstrations before groups of farm men and women.

PLAN TO SAVE CLOVER SEED

Should Be One of Regular Routine Duties on Farm—High Price Justifies the Labor.

Saving clover seed should be one of the regular routine duties on every farm. The high price and the uncertainty of being able to secure good seed more than justifies the labor and expense of saving seed for home use if nothing more. It is only an item in a well-organized system of diversified farming. A gatherer in the shape of a comb or stripper, which any farmer can make for himself, will enable him to easily save seed sufficient for his own use. Other methods will suggest themselves to you when the time comes, only do not fail to save the seed.

FARMER SHOULD KEEP BOOKS

Many Cannot Tell at End of Year Whether Business Has Been Profitable or Not.

Probably the most expensive error usually made by our farmers is the failure to keep books that will enable them, at any time, to tell whether they are doing business at a profit or loss. Many of our farmers can't tell at the end of the year whether they have made money or lost money. Should any other business be conducted in this manner, nothing but failure would be expected.

EFFICIENT POWER OF HORSE

Greatest Amount of Net Power Produced From Feed and Care—Increase the Load.

Remember that the horse produces the greatest amount of net power from the feed and care provided when driving a load at a moderate gait, hence greater and more efficient power and energy can be secured by increasing the load rather than the speed of the work horse.

Great Need of Silos.

If you have no silo and need one, its construction ought not to be put off. Silos were never needed so much as they will be this coming winter.

Apples to Keep Well.

Apples, to keep well, must be picked and handled in such a way as not to bruise them.

Help Next Year's Crop.

POTATO DON'TS

- (1) Don't injure the selling and storing quality of your potatoes by careless digging.
- (2) Don't glut the fall market and injure your winter market by placing large quantities of ungraded stock on the market at harvesting time.
- (3) Don't ship any frost-damaged potatoes. It is disastrous.
- (4) Don't demoralize the already overburdened transportation facilities by shipping cull potatoes. Unless potatoes are extremely high in price culls will not bring transportation charges.
- (5) Don't overlook the advantages of "machine sizers." They are proving of great value in many shipping sections.
- (6) Don't expect machine sizers to grade for quality—only human hands can grade out the defective tubers.
- (7) Don't mix No. 1 and No. 2 grade potatoes. There are customers who desire each separately, but do not want them mixed.
- (8) Don't overlook the potato grades recommended by the United States department of agriculture and the United States food commission.

PLAN FOR CATCHING RABBITS

Illustration Shows Scheme Recommended by Department of Agriculture—Tile Is Used.

A clever plan for catching rabbits is recommended by the department of agriculture. It is a trap which catches the rabbits alive, and almost any boy can construct one quickly.

The materials required consist of a twelve-inch sewer tile with a six-inch side outlet, and two lengths of six-inch tiles. The long end of the larger tile is set downward in the ground so that the small side-outlet is below the surface, as shown. The two small tiles are connected with the side outlet so that the opening will extend out to the surface.

The tiles are well covered with soil to exclude all light, and a close-fitting cover is placed over the upper end of the large tile. The open end of the small tile may be surrounded with a few small stones and brush to make it inviting to the rabbits.

The rabbits are free to pass in and out of the dens thus made. When they are located in one of them it is an easy matter to close up the entrance and take them out of the large tile by raising the cover. Such traps are especially suited to open places or on prairie lands, where rabbits cannot find natural hiding places.—Popular Science Monthly.

WEED SEED VERY PROLIFIC

Given Crop Does Not Germinate First Season, But Distributes Germination Over Period.

"One year of seed, seven years of weeds." Weed seeds are produced in great abundance. A given crop of weed seed does not germinate the first season, but distributes its germination over a period of years.

Seeds deep in the soil do not germinate readily because of lack of oxygen, and those that do grow exhaust the stored food in the seed before reaching the surface. Seeds may lie buried in the soil for years without losing their power of germinating. Such seeds may germinate readily when brought to the surface.

DETERMINE VALUE OF HORSE

Feed Given Colt for First Eighteen Months Decides to Great Extent Size at Maturity.

The feed a colt gets the first 18 months, and especially the first winter, determines to a great extent the size of the colt at maturity. The size of a horse determines its value very largely. Good breeding gives wonderful possibilities, but it takes feeding if these possibilities are to be fully realized.

Substitute for Wheat.

It is essential to feed a considerable proportion of beef scrap in the mash if a wheatless ration is used for egg production.

Saves Grain for Birds.

Store a few bundles of grain to put out during the winter for the birds.

Paper Bags for Grapes.

Grapes are sometimes kept in paper bags, a bag over each bunch, in a storage room.

Help to Save Nation's Food Supply

In this time of high cost of living, everybody should use all possible means to prevent waste and to help save food. No one means can be more effective than a vigorous campaign to exterminate rats which destroy over two hundred million dollars worth of foodstuffs annually. Keep garbage in rat-proof cans, stop up their holes, and above all exterminate them with Stearns' Paste, which can be bought for a few cents at any store. A two ounce box will usually rid a house or barn of every rat. It destroys mice, cockroaches and waterbugs as well. Adv.

Carrizozo, being the county seat of Lincoln County, is the center of our commercial activity. Listen! Our business men have the ginger in them. Put your name on their list of regular customers. Try them:—Ziegler Bros., Carrizozo Trading Co., Bell's Grocery, A. V. Adams' Grocery, Groom Bros., Sanitary Store, Taylor & Sons, Hardware, Pure Food Bakery, Carrizozo Eating House, Grand View Hotel, Adams House, Rolland's Drug Store, Paden's Drug Store, Oasis Confectionery, Kelley & Sons' Hardware, Stoves and Ranges, Barnett's Fuel, Feed and Grain Store, Humphrey Bros., Fuel and Feed, and others, which we will mention later on. We have three of the best banks in the State.—think of it!—a staff of good physicians, the Lucas and Paden Hospitals, good schools and churches, an up-to-date moving picture house, three flourishing garages and two news papers. Besides this, Carrizozo is a division point of the El Paso & Southwestern Railway, with a payroll of thousands of dollars.

Boost your own home town.

Sheriff W. C. Hyde left for El Paso Thursday.

Mrs. Richard Potts, of Ancho, is spending the week with Mrs. Rolland Forrest.

Finishing touches are being put on the First National Bank. The decorators are working overtime, in order to complete the building before the cold weather comes.

Mrs. Anna Eve, who formerly conducted a hotel and boarding house at Ancho, has returned and has opened up for business in the building formerly occupied by Mrs. Deel. Mrs. Eve's hospitality and good meals are widely known and she extends a cordial invitation to all her old friends to call on her at her new location.

What You Waste Will Buy a LIBERTY BOND

We all spend too much money on "unnecessaries."

The country needs some of the money you spend on pleasures, which, though harmless, you CAN manage without.

For your own sake save this money, and put it into a Liberty Bond.

The Bond is as good as a bank account. It is yours to borrow on, to sell, to do as you like with.

Do your duty to yourself and your country by buying a LIBERTY BOND
