Governor Lindsey Announces Himself To New Mexico

Chief Executive in Open Letter Makes Formal State- ment of his Candidacy and Asks Approval of People On Past Record.

His letter in part follows:
To the Republicans of New Mexico:

"The lamented and untimely death of Governor E. C. de Baca, at almost the inception of his term of office, elevated me to the office of chief executive of the state at the beginning of the last third of a general session of the legislature which adopted resolutions and enacted legislation of far-reaching consequence to the people of the state.

"Among such resolutions is that which proposed an amendment to the constitution of the state, prohibiting the manufacture for sale, barter or gift in the state after October 1, the present year, and which resolution was adopted at the November, 1917, election by a majority of more than 16,000 votes.

"Among such laws is that providing the modified form of the so called Australian ballot; that providing for a state budget; that providing for workmen's compensation; that providing for the consolidation of rural schools, that providing for the care, disposition and investment of revenues from state lands, as well as many others.

"After the congress of the United States have declared a state of war to exist between the United States of America and the imperial German government, the legislature was called in extraordinary session, and, in the brief period of eight days, enacted such legislation as has enabled the people of the state to keep, proportionately, in the forefront among the states of the Union in furnishing men, money, food, enthusiasm and loyalty for the prosecution of the war.

"The tremendous accession of labor incident to the administration of the selective service law and other national war requirements has taxed the energies of all our people, by no means excepting the chief executive.

"The time is now approaching when my successor will have to be elected. After mature deliberation, I feel free to ask the support of all the Republicans who endorse the constructive work of the only Republican administration the state of New Mexico has had and who believes we should enter the campaign on our record as a party of performance.

"The records of the office of the governor, during my incumbency, are an open book. I will confidently submit it to the clear conscience and good judgement of the enfranchised citizenship of this state to win the election, if nominated as the candidate of the Republican party.

Sincerely and faithfully,
W. E. LINDSEY, Governor.

On the Good Ship Missouri

Mike Barnett who is "Somewhere on the U. S. S. Missouri," sends the OUTLOOK the following poem, to which he lays claim to being the originator. The poem follows:

ONLY A VOLUNTEER

Why didn't I wait to be drafted
And be led to the train by band,

And put in a claim for exemption
O, why did I hold up my hand?

Why didn't I wait and be cheered?

For the drafted men get all the credit,
(While I merely volunteered.)

And nobody gave me a banquet,
Nobody said a kind word;
The puff of the engine, the grind
of the wheels,

Was all the goodbye I heard.
Then off to the training camp
hustled,

To be trained for the next half a year,

And in the shuffle forgotten—
I was only a volunteer.

And perhaps someday in the future,
When my little boy sits on my knees,

And asks what I did in this great war,
And his little eyes look up at me,

I will have to look into those eyes
That so trustingly peer
And tell him I was 'nt drafted—
I was only a volunteer!

Michael R. Barnett.

Tuesday evening at 9:30 the spirit of little Harold Pine returned to God who gave it. His illness was of short duration, having been ill but ten days during which time the little sufferer fought gallantly against his ailment, which was an aggravated case of bowel trouble. This soon overpowered the efforts of the little patient, and the lamp of life went out to mortal sight, to burn brighter and all enduring in his Father's house.

The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Pine home, after the arrival of Dr. Pine's mother. The services were held by Rev. Pace of Tularosa and the mortal remains laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.

Supreme Court Ruling Reverses Medler Decision

Long Standing Contest in Hyde—Corn Case Ends in Reversing Lower Court De- cision—Will Open Ballot Boxes.

In the Sheriff's contest case filed by Attorneys Spence and Merchant, C. C. Merchant of Santa Fe two years ago for Henry M. Corn, alleging that at Lincoln and Capitan illegal voting had been indulged in has been occupying the attention of the Supreme Court of late. Monday Spence and Merchant received word from Attorney Pritchard that the decision of the Lower Court wherein Judge Medler ruled that the ballot boxes could not be opened thus favored an injunction issued by the present incumbent Walker Hyde.

The ruling of the lower court was made on the grounds that to open the boxes would be destroying the sacredness of the ballot as said ballot was entitled to the protection of the court, and so the ruling was made. The Supreme Court gave the case the greatest amount of consideration as in reversing a lower court decision, the strongest facts available must be brought to light to substantiate the findings of the Supreme Court in reversing the lower court decision.

Now that the case is decided, unless the case is appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court which is not at all likely, the ballot boxes will be opened by the County Commissioners at which time the attorneys for both contending parties will be present to watch the recount and witness the finish.

Prudence

PRU DENCE is practical wisdom—wisdom that calls for caution and provision.

Prudence means right economy—watchfulness of one's own interests—frugality.

The fault with most Americans is that they are subject to overwhelming influences. They do things extravagantly before they think.

German Kultur

The following from the Birmingham Ledger is enough to make cannibalism bow its head in shame:

"He was one of those boys who was the life of the company, cheerful and always making the rest grin just by reason of his presence.

"One night he had to stand guard at an outpost alone, a dangerous place. About midnight he signalled the approach of a party of Germans. His comrades went out of the dark trench, but couldn't find him anywhere. They looked and looked, and they gave him up for lost, though they knew he'd never quit and he'd never be taken alive.

"Next morning they found his body beaten until it was almost unrecognizable. Besides it was a club, the end of which was wound with barbed wire, the weapon the barbarians had used to batter his body when they killed him.

"Near him were the bodies of three Germans he had killed before they could get him. In their haste to get away from the outrage the Germans had left these bodies.

"There is one company of Americans that will never forgive Germany."

Broke Down and Wept

The German Empress, in company with Prince Joachim, one of the Kaiser's six sons who have escaped injury in the war, visited recently some new hospitals in the Rhine towns. These were crowded with wounded soldiers, mostly Prussians from the zone of the German offensive, along the Marne, which collapsed last week. At Strassberg the Kaiserin saw so many wounded that she broke down and wept.

The Kaiserin's tears have good reason to flow. Her royal husband applied the torch to Europe. Upon her family rests the responsibility for the present plight of all the German people. Her tears fall as symbols of the great flood of tears which German women are fated to shed for a hundred years because "Germany's militant necessity" knew no law.

The Kaiserin wept for the German wounded. She may well weep for them and for the great armies of German dead whose lives have paid the price of Prussian ambition. So great a lady as the Kaiserin might even spare a tear for the unhappy women and children of Belgium, whose sex and helplessness could not defend them against her husband's soldiers, who were stronger than these unarmed non-combatants. Are there no tears for all the dead in France, the unnumbered thousands tortured and slain in Poland, in Serbia, in Armenia, at the bidding of the Kaiser? The Kaiserin's tears may flow in a stream as great as the Rhine, but the guilt cannot be washed away. Moreover, no Germans of any degree have learned as yet to shed tears of penitence; they weep in self-pity. Of the broken and the contrite heart they have no conception.

The awful retribution which is to fall upon Germany for the next cycle of years is already foreshadowed. Germany's men are slaughtered and crippled, her women are bereft. Upon them rests the curse of ungrinding toil performed under the un pitying scorn of a whole world for a people who have delivered up their souls and minds at the bidding of rulers who saved them the trouble of thinking for themselves, reading justice and doing right.

The air of the world will be filled with the sobs and howlings of Germans for many years to come. A people degenerated so close to madness can have no conception of proper behavior. Their life will be regulated for them by the rest of the world, because they have shown their unfitness for any free hand of their own.—X.

Proper Food helps to produce Strong Bodies, Rosy Cheeks, Good Brains, Bright Eyes.

OSTINE

Nature's Food For Infants And all Growing Children, is so rich in the elements absolutely needed in the building processes of muscle and bone that it ministers fundamentally to the harmonious development of the child in every direction, or in other words, supplies nature with the right working material.

Read what your neighbor says about OSTINE.

Hondo, N. Mex., Dec. 5, 1917.
The Ostine Company,
Chicago, Ill.

I have used your wonderful Ostine No. 1 and No. 2 for my children, and I can say safely that they do all that is claimed for them.

During the first months of the year 1911, my youngest child was sick with a discharge from the ear; he was in such a state that I thought he would lose his power of hearing. I had read the instructive book of Dr. Melody, and I sent for a bottle of Ostine No. 1, and he used that bottle, and he is now healthy, strong and vigorous.

In July, 1917, my oldest boy was weak, pale and nervous. His energies were very much exhausted. I sent for two bottles of Ostine No. 2, and gave him one bottle, and he is now a new boy; his ability to read is very much superior to his age.

Now, Gentlemen, I wish to congratulate you for the noble end which you are pursuing in bringing happiness to countless homes, giving to our dear ones health, strength and happiness.

Now, if this letter is of some good service in order to recommend Ostine No. 1 and No. 2, you can use it as you may deem proper.

Very respectfully,
ELERDO CHAVEZ,

Probate Judge,
Lincoln County, N. Mex.

In spite of a subnormal food supply in this country the American people have been able to ship to the Allies as well as our own forces overseas 141,000,000 bushels of wheat, besides 844,600,000 pounds of meat, during the year ending June 30 last. This has been made possible by the wholehearted co-operation of the people, who, besides practicing self-denial, have speeded up production and responded nobly to the appeal from abroad.

Food Administrator Hoover, in a letter to President Wilson, gives a brief summary of the results of food conservation in the United States and of the activities of the Food Administration to this end. The conservation measures have been put through practically on a voluntary basis which is regarded as a splendid tribute to the patriotism of the American people.

Meat shipments were increased 844,000,000 pounds during the first fiscal year, as compared with our meat exports during the year before America entered the war.

"The total value of these food shipments," Mr. Hoover wrote President Wilson, "which were in the main purchased through or with collaboration of the Food Administration, amount to, roundly, $1,400,000,000 during the fiscal year."

In 1916-17 the United States sent the Allies 2,168,500,000 pounds of meat. In 1917-18, with voluntary conservation practiced in America, and aided by extra weight of animals, we sent the Allies 3,011,100,000 pounds of meat, an increase of 844,600,000 pounds.

Wheat Saving Enormous.

When the Food Administration began operations in the summer of 1917, this country was facing a large deficit in wheat. Counting in all carry-over wheat from the 1916 crop, we had at the beginning of the 1917 harvest year just enough wheat to take care of America's normal consumption,—not a bushel of surplus.

At the close of the 1917-18 harvest year the Food Administration's official reports showed that our total wheat shipments to the other side had been 141,000,000 bushels. Every bushel shipped was wheat saved by the American people from their normal consumption.

In cereals and cereal products reduced to terms of cereal bushels our shipments to Allied destinations were 340,800,000 bushels, 80,800,000 bushels more than the amount sent in 1916-17. Included in these figures are 13,000,000 bushels of rye and the 141,000,000 bushels of saved wheat. In addition we sent the neutrals dependent on us 10,000,000 bushels of prime breadstuffs.

"These figures do not fully convey the volume of the effort and sacrifice made during the past year by the whole American people," the Food Administrator wrote. "I am sure that all the millions of our people, agricultural as well as urban, who have contributed to these results should feel a very definite satisfaction that in a year of universal food shortages in the Northern Hemisphere, all of those people joined together against Germany came through to the new harvest, not only with health and strength fully maintained, but with only temporary periods of hardship.

"It is difficult to distinguish between various sections of our people—the homes, public eating places, food trade, urban or agricultural populations—in assessing credit for these results, but no one will deny the dominant part of the American women.

WORLD SHORTAGE IN BEET SUGAR

Crops Are 40 Per Cent. Less Than Pre-War Average—Central Powers Hit Hardest.

CANE SUGAR IS ISOLATED.

Allied Beet Production Falls One-third in Rigid War Economy Practiced.

The world today is producing forty per cent. less beet sugar than the pre-war average.

Counting the American, Allied and German-Austrian crops, as well as the neutrals, the U. S. Food Administration has estimated that the world shortage created by the light crop of 1917-1918 is at least three and a half million tons.

That the 1917-1918 crop of cane sugar was two million tons in excess of the previous year does not relieve the general shortage.

Cuba and Java produce one-half of the world cane crop, and the Java sugar is too far removed from America to transport when shipping is badly needed to transport and maintain the military forces in France.

In Java a large part of the old sugar crop is still awaiting shipment. Since it requires 150 to 160 days for each boat that is sent to Java, the possibilities of obtaining adequate shipments of Java sugar this season are remote.

Allies' Production Falls.

Taking the Allied nations as a group, official reports show that beet sugar production is less by one-third than the pre-war average.

French beet sugar industry has suffered most by the war. The French yield of beet sugar is now only 29.1 per cent. of the pre-war average.

For the five years preceding the outbreak of hostilities in Europe, France produced an average of 752,542 tons of sugar each year. For 1917-18 the French production was 219,416 tons.

With 61 factories operating, as compared with more than 200 that were in existence before the war and before the general campaign of destructiveness launched by the German armies, France nevertheless managed to manufacture more beet sugar in 1917-18 than in 1916-17, when the total output was 202,415 tons.

Italy in 1917-18 produced 100,800 tons of beet sugar, which was 50,000 tons less than the previous year and 110,250 less than the annual output of sugar for the five year pre-war period.

One of the great difficulties experienced in Italy's beet sugar industry was finding sufficient labor to handle the crop. Thousands of men usually employed in beet sugar production were called for military service. The yield per acre amounted to approximately half of the usual quantity of beets harvested.

SUGAR EXPORTS SMALL TO NEUTRAL NATIONS

Only 797 tons of refined sugar were shipped from America to neutral nations during the first five months of this year. This amounted to only 3.2 per cent. of the total exports to all countries. Mexico received more than half the amount we exported to neutrals.

SUGAR SHORTAGE HITS SPAIN AND PORTUGAL

In Spain and Portugal sugar prices are soaring. Both countries have been seriously affected by the short beet sugar crop in Europe and the lack of ocean tonnage to move stocks of cane sugar isolated in far away ports.

Granulated sugar, home grown, was being sold in Barcelona, Spain, during the early summer at 19 cents a pound. The price of brawna sugar in Lisbon, Portugal, fixed by governmental order, was $1.04 to $1.12 a pound. By comparison the price of beet sugar in Sweden is 14 cents a pound.

The Hidden Treasure

By PHYLLIS M. ABBOTT (Age Fifteen Years)

Once upon a time, many, many years ago, there lived in the palace of Jupiter a beautiful goddess whose name was Mercl. Every evening as the sun went down, Mercl would go to the walls of the sky city to look down to the world below. She loved the earth people and watched over them.

One day, as Mercl watched over the wall, she saw great excitement in one city; men were polishing long bright pieces of metal that shone in the sun. In a neighboring city men were marching out of the gates with a great banner at their head. Mercl was puzzled. She had never seen anything like this before, and because she was immortal and knew nothing of the passions of men, she did not understand. Intently she watched as on the plain below two great bodies of men came together with a clash and smote each other with those shining things they carried. Above, Mercl watched in amazement and sorrow. Oh! she must help those men who were suffering so.

Vivian A. Brown, Age Five Years.

What could she do? What was it they needed? She must find it! So she went to Jupiter and told him what was happening to the earth people, and asked him where she could find the thing that would help them. Wise old Jupiter only shook his head sadly and replied:

"Mercl, I cannot tell you where the treasure is that will help your earth children. Only you can find it."

Then Mercl wandered about the sky palace, asking everyone she met if they knew where the treasure was, but no one knew. She searched the treasure houses in vain, but the wise men could not tell her where it could be found.

At last she went back to the walls of the city, and as she stood looking down on her suffering earth people she exclaimed:

"Oh! where is the hidden treasure? What can I do for the earth people?"

Suddenly, forgetting her helplessness, forgetting the treasure she sought, forgetting herself, she flew down into the planet below. She gave the dying water and bound up the wounds of the injured, giving help and bringing back happiness to the hearts of the men she loved. Then, just at the end of the day, as the men watched her standing on the blood-red battlefield, she vanished and among the glorious colors of the sunset a tiny scarlet cross appeared; Mercl had found the hidden treasure in her own heart. And all those who wear that scarlet cross and carry it in their hearts have found a precious treasure, the Spirit of Mercy.

Boy Scouts Are Appealed to by President to Help Find Black Walnut Trees.

President Wilson's appeal to the Boy Scouts of America to help win the war by locating supplies of black walnut trees has been followed by arrangements under which the war department, the forest service, and the boy scout organization have joined efforts to find the needed timber.

As President Wilson pointed out, the war department program makes the securing of black walnut lumber for use in manufacturing airplane propellers and gunstocks of the utmost importance. War department and forest service officials are combing the country for black walnut timber, which can no longer be found in abundance anywhere but has to be culled, often as single trees, from mixed forest growths. Much of the black walnut that is left is in farmers' woodlots, and it is primarily to locate this that the boy scouts have been called into service.

Many thousands of blanks and letters of instructions are being printed by the government for distribution to scouts and scout masters throughout the region in which black walnut occurs in commercial quantities. Individual trees may be found as far east as Connecticut, northward in New York to and beyond the Canadian line, southward almost to the Gulf of Mexico, and westward far into the prairie states, but the Ohio and Mississippi valley states, the middle Atlantic states, and the southern Appalachian region are expected to furnish most of the supply. As reports are turned in by the scout masters, they will be tabulated by the forest service and reported to the war department.

Find Markets for Canned Goods

By the U. S. Department of Agriculture

Housewives and members of canning clubs are urged to study their market at the beginning of the season and pack according to the local demands for different products. They are advised by the bureau of markets of the department to secure orders for canned goods before putting them up.

Small lots of nonstandardized products are difficult to sell except among local buyers and are not purchased by the army, navy, commercial dealers or any department of the government. Many appeals to the department of agriculture to find a market for home-canned goods have been made during the past year and often the canners believed that the government was in the market for such goods. Subject to whatever regulations may be made by the federal government, the marketing of food products will proceed in the usual manner and the bureau of markets points out that proper grading, standardizing and careful preparation for market are especially necessary in handling canned goods.

Home-canned products can be kept over from one season to the next and those who have not sold their goods have reserves to draw from for their home table. It is good policy, say the specialists, for the housewife to provide a reasonable surplus beyond the probable home consumption for the next crop year.

While the bureau of markets is giving aid to producers on marketing problems it says that it is difficult to place producers of small quantities of different kinds of products in touch with buyers and urges home and club canners to learn the marketing end of their business just the same as producers in other lines of industry.

A Song For Marching Men.

O who will give us a song for them,— The silent marching men? A martial song with a swing in it, With measured rhythm and ring in it, The breath of a deathless thing in it, A song for marching men.

O who will give us a song for them,— The silent marching men? A gallant song with a cheer in it, A tender song with a tear in it, And never a taint of fear in it, A song for marching men.

O who will give us a song for them,— The silent marching men? Trumpet and bugle and life in it, The passion and pride of life in it, And the old mad joy of strife in it, A song for marching men.

O who will give us a song for them,— The silent marching men? With iron and blood and ruth in it, Vision and beauty and truth in it, Terrible pathos of youth in it, A song for marching men.

O who will give us a song for them,— The silent marching men? With a sacred wordless space in it, With a clinging last embrace in it, A song with a woman's face in it, A song for marching men.

O who will give us a song for them,— The silent marching men? A scorn for the tyrant's rod in it, A thought of the crimsoned sod in it, A faith in the Living God in it, A song for marching men.

Magazine Writer's Close-Up of Our General Pershing, as a Man and American Soldier.

What of General Pershing, who may one day have as great an army as any? The question is asked as often in Europe as in America. It is not, I think, known in America how deep a first impression his character as man and soldier have made on the British and, indeed, the French, writes W. Beach Thomas in Harper's Magazine.

When he landed in England in June, 1918, one of the British newspapers, whose correspondent had been for a long while in his presence, compared him with Moltke, who was "silent in seventeen languages." What General Pershing, the master of several Philippine dialects, said was little and good. When General Joffre shook his hand in Paris a few weeks later—a scene worthy of a great historical memorial—he said to one of his staff, "General Pershing will think first and act afterwards." At all junctures the general has been cool and prompt and determined. His colonel in Cuba wrote of him, "He is the bravest and coolest man under fire I ever saw in my life." His own recorded maxims are few; but at the most worrying crisis in France—when news of the arrival of American troops was published while some of those troops were still in the danger zone at sea—he said, "I do not worry, and when the day's work is over I go to sleep."

Immigration Promises to Set New Record—Smallest Since the Colonial Days

When the present fiscal year ends, June 30, it is highly probable that a new immigration record will be set—the smallest since colonial days, says the Washington Herald.

Immigration statistics of the first six months indicate that the year's total may be less than 100,000 persons. For the half-year ending January 1, 1918, only 57,715 came to America, and since then the monthly totals have dwindled to a few thousands.

The war, of course, is responsible. The real dwindling began when the United States entered the war. Since that day only one country has sent anything like the normal number of immigrants. That is Japan, which country now leads all nations in sending immigrants to America. Japanese immigration this year will reach 12,000 as against 8,925 in 1917, 8,711 in 1918 and 8,009 in 1915.

Had a Sting to It.

Little Norman had been troubled with a toothache for several nights, during which time he slept with his mother. When the ache had ceased his mother told him he had to sleep in his own bed. His prayer was answered, as shortly after he awoke with a terrific toothache.

When his mother reminded him of the prayer she had overheard, he said: "Yes, I know I said it, but I didn't mean it."

MUST USE LESS SUGAR; ALLIED NEEDS GROW

Americans Asked to Use No More Than Two Pounds Per Person Per Month.

Shortage May Last Until Beginning of 1919, When New Sugar Crop Arrives.

After making a careful survey of the world sugar situation the U. S. Food Administration has asked the American public to USE NO MORE THAN TWO POUNDS OF SUGAR PER PERSON A MONTH until January 1, 1919.

Increased sugar demands from the Allied nations—where the present sugar ration is already reduced to the lowest possible level—and the need of keeping our army and navy supplied are two of the leading causes of the curtailment of America's sugar ration. Americans are requested to make two pounds of sugar per person (half a pound a week) serve for all sugar uses in the household—including cooking and all sugar served at the table.

Public eating places, as well as housewives, will be required to limit their use of sugar to two pounds for every ninety meals served. In the U. S. Food Administration's cafeteria at Washington, where employees of the Food Administration take their noon meal, one pound of sugar is used for every 120 meals served.

The U. S. Food Administration is confident that the American public will heartily agree to reduce household use of sugar here to a level more nearly equal to the present restrictions among the Allied nations.

The situation which the United States faces in its efforts to maintain a fair distribution of sugar to the Allied world is as follows:

The sugar supplies throughout the country, in homes, stores, factories and bakeries, are at low ebb; the production from the American beet and Louisiana cane crops have been disappointing; the yield in Porto Rico has likewise been smaller than anticipated, and the inability of the United States and the Allies to secure sugar from Java and other distant sources on account of the imperative call for ships for the movement of troops and their supplies has materially reduced the supply from such quarters. Added to this already difficult situation, the quantity needed by the Army and Navy greatly exceeds earlier estimates; we must send a large amount to France and Italy to take the place of the great volume lost through the German and Austrian invasions, during which much beet land was overrun and many factories destroyed; we have to supply certain quantities to neutral nations under agreements; and finally over fifty million pounds were lost recently through submarine sinkings off our Atlantic coast.

The Food Administration is confident that the American people, with the record of wheat savings behind it; having by voluntary savings sent 140,000,000 bushels of wheat to the Allies after practically every bushel had been exhausted from our normal surplus, will with the same spirit save the sugar situation of the world.
