Clark Hunt for Sheriff

At the Republican County Convention Monday, Oct. 7th, the name of Clark Hunt will be presented as a candidate for the nomination of County Sheriff subject to the decision of that body.

Mr. Hunt is an old settler in these parts, having located in the Tortilita canyon in the year of 1885. His address since that time has been Nogal, N. M. where he is engaged in the stock business and his highest recommendations come from his nearest neighbors, which is the best guarantee adjoining localities in the county can have of a man's character and standing.

Being as we have said, so long a resident of Lincoln County, gives him a thorough knowledge of the needs of this county as a whole, and any grievances coming from any portion of it would be promptly investigated, evil doers dealt with as they deserve, and justice administered to all concerned.

Mr. Hunt possesses all the qualifications for a first class sheriff; a wise head, a careful counselor, coupled with a nery disposition, makes him a fitting and worthy candidate for this important office. Under the influence of his many friends, he has finally decided to allow his name to come before the convention, and he solicits your support.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Again the Government comes to the people of this country with the request that they lend their money, and lend it upon a more liberal scale than ever before, in order that the great war for the rights of America and the liberation of the world may be prosecuted with ever increasing vigor to a victorious conclusion. And it makes the appeal with the greatest confidence because it knows that every day it is becoming clearer and clearer to thinking men throughout the nation that the winning of the war is an essential requirement. The money that is held back now will be of little use or value if the war is not won and the selfish masters of Germany are permitted to dictate what America may and may not do. Hence America, besides, have from the first until now dedicated both their lives and their fortunes to the vindication and maintenance of the great principles and objects for which our Government was set up. They will not fail now to show the world for what their wealth was intended.

The Confessions of a German Deserter

CIVILIAN DEAD STREW STREETS OF FRENCH TOWNS AS FOE SWEEPS ON TOWARD PARIS

Synopsis.—The author of these confessions, an officer in the pioneers' corps of the German army, a branch of the service corresponding to the engineers' corps of the United States army, is sent into Belgium with the first German forces invading that country. Ignorant of their destination or of the reasons for their actions, the German soldiers cross the border and attack the Belgian soldiers defending their frontier. Civilians—men, woman and children—are driven from their burning homes as the Zeppelins and giantguns of the Germans raze the strongest fortifications. The Germans sweep on across Belgium, mowing and burning under orders of their officers to show no mercy. Some German soldiers who tried to aid helpless refugees were rebuked by their officers, one of whom declared that such a thing as pity was insanity. The German pioneers throw pontoon bridges across the Meuse in the face of a murderous fire from the French. French troops are slaughtered when, surrounded, they throw down their arms and surrender.

Toward one o'clock the battle south of Hompepy reached its climax. When the Germans advanced to make storming attacks on all points the French gave up their position and retired in the direction of Sulpes. Whether our company was no longer considered fit to fight or whether we were not needed any longer I do not know. We received orders to go into quarters. But neither a barn nor a stable could be found so that nothing remained but to camp in the open. The houses were all filled with wounded. Citizens of the town, who had not fled were all gathered in a large barn. Their houses were mostly destroyed so that they had to make use of what shelter was offered them. There was one exception to this arrangement and that was a very old little motherly woman sitting, bitterly crying, by the debris of her late home and nobody could induce her to leave.

In the barn, which served as a shelter to the civilians, were thrown together men and women, youths, children and old men. Many were wounded by shell splinters and cartridges and others had suffered burns. Everywhere was the most terrible misery; sick mothers and half-starved infants for whom there was no milk were obliged to perish here; old people died from the excitement and fright of the previous few days and last of all men and women in the prime of life slowly died from wounds because there was nobody to care for them.

A company of Hessian reserves, every one a veteran, passed with bowed heads and tired feet. They must have had a very long march. Their officers tried to make them move more lively. They ordered that a song be sung but the Hessians were not in the mood.

"Will you sing, you pigs?" cried an officer and the pitiful-looking "pigs" tried to obey this order. Faintly sounded from the ranks of the overtired men: "Deutschland, Deutschland Ueber Alles, Ueber Alles in Der Welt." Despite their broken strength, their tired feet, disgusted and resentful, these men sang their symphony of super-Germanism.

Several comrades who like myself had watched this troop pass came to me and said, "Let us go to the camp and try to sleep so that we might forget all this."

We were hungry and on the way home caught several chickens. We ate them half-raw and then laid down in the open and slept until four o'clock in the morning when we had to be ready to march.

Our destination on this day was Sulpes. Before the march started the following army order was read: "Soldiers, his majesty the emperor, our supreme war lord, thanks the soldiers of the Fourth army and sends to them his full appreciation. You have saved our beloved Germany from the invasion of hostile hordes. We will not rest until the last enemy lies on the ground and before the leaves fall from the trees we shall return home victorious. The enemy is in full retreat and the Almighty will bless our arms further."

After this talk we gave three cheers, something which had become routine for us. And then we resumed our march. We now had plenty of time and opportunity to discuss the gratitude expressed by the supreme war lord. We could not make out just what fatherland we had to defend so far in France. One of the soldiers expressed the opinion that the Lord had blessed our arms, to which another replied: "A religious man repeating such silly sentiments is guilty of sacrilege. If he speaks seriously."

Everywhere, on the march to Sulpes, in the fields and in the ditches, lay dead soldiers, most of them with hideous-looking open wounds. Thousands of huge flies swarmed on the corpses, partly decomposed, and giving off a fearful stench. Among these corpses, unsheltered under a blazing sun, were encamped wretched fugitives, because they were forbidden the use of the roads while the armies needed them, which was practically all the time.

In the evening, after a long march, we reached the town of Sulpes. Here our captain told us we would find numerous frank-tireurs. We were ordered to bivouac, instead of being assigned quarters, and all going into the village were obliged to take guns and cartridges with them. After a brief rest we entered the village in search of food. Dead civilians lay in the middle of the streets. They were citizens of the village. We could not learn the reason for their having been shot. The only answer to our questions was a shrug of the shoulder.

The village itself had not suffered to any noticeable degree as far as destruction of buildings was concerned, but never in the course of the war had I seen a more complete job of plundering than had been done in Sulpes. That we had to live and eat is true, and as the inhabitants and merchants had seen there was no opportunity to pay for our necessities. Therefore we simply entered a store, put on stockings, laundry, and left the old things, then went to another place, took whatever food looked good to us, and then proceeded to a wine cellar, there to seize as much as our hearts desired. The men of the ammunition column, located in the village as well as the military soldiers and cavalry by the hundreds, searched the houses and took whatever they liked best. The finest and largest business places in Sulpes served a very large rural district surrounding and therefore were stocked up on almost everything. Within a short time these places had been cleaned out. The munition drivers and train columns carried away old pieces of silk, ladies' dresses, linens, shoes, dress goods and every other article imaginable; and stored them away in their ammunition cases. They took children's and women's shoes, and everything else they could lay their hands upon, although many of these articles had to be thrown away shortly afterward. Later, when the field post was developed and gave regular service, many of these things were sent home.

A large chocolate factory was robbed completely, and chocolate and candy in heaps were trampled in the ground. Empty houses were broken into and wrecked, wine cellars cleaned out and windows smashed, the latter being a special pastime of the cavalymen. As we had to pass the night in the open, we tried to find some quilts and entered a grocery store and a market place. The store was partly demolished, but the apartment upstairs was as yet intact with all the rooms locked. It was evident that a woman's hand had worked in this house, for everything was neat and cozy. But all this order was still surpassed by the arrangement in a large room, which apparently had been inhabited by a young woman. We were almost ashamed to enter the sanctuary. To our astonishment we saw hanging on the wall opposite the door a picture burned in wood and under it a German verse: "Honor the women, they weave a braid of heavenly roses in their earthly life." (Schiller). The owner apparently was a young bride, for in the wardrobe was a trousseau, tied with neat blue ribbons, carefully put away. All the wardrobe drawers lay open. Nothing was touched here. When we visited the same place the next morning, impelled by some impulse, we found everything in that house destroyed. Barbarians had gone through this home, and with bitter ruthlessness had devastated everything, with every evidence of having utterly cast off the ethics and standards of civilized races.

The entire trousseau had been torn from the drawers and thrown partly on the floor. Pictures, photographs, mirrors, everything was in pieces. The three of us who had entered the room clenched our fists with impotent wrath.

We received orders to remain in Sulpes until further notice and the next day witnessed the return of many fugitives. They came in great throngs from the direction of Chalons-sur-Marne. They found instead of the peaceful homes they had left a wretched and deserted ruin. A furniture dealer returned to his store, as we stood in front of his house. He broke down when he viewed the remains of his enterprise. Everything had been taken away. We approached the man. He was a Jew and spoke German. When he calmed down a little he told us that his store had contained merchandise worth more than 8,000 francs.

"Had the soldiers only taken what they needed for themselves," he said, "I would be satisfied, for I did not expect anything else. But I never would have believed of the Germans that they would have destroyed everything."

Not even a cup and saucer were left in this man's house. He had a wife and five children, but had no idea of what had become of them. And there were many more like him.

The following night, remaining in Sulpes, we were again obliged to camp in the open "because it swarmed with frank-tireurs." Such were our instructions. In reality nothing was seen of frank-tireurs, but by this method the enmity toward the people living in the towns along our line of march was maintained. The Germans practiced the theory that the soldiers fight better and are more amenable to discipline when filled with hatred of their enemies.

The next day we were obliged to march to Chalons-sur-Marne. This was one of the hardest days we ever had. From the very beginning, as we began our journey, the sun blazed down upon us. It is about 35 kilometers from Sulpes to Chalons-sur-Marne. This distance would not have been so bad, despite the heat; we had already made longer marches; but the beautiful road from Sulpes to Chalons goes with unending monotony without so much as a curve or a bend to the right or left. As far as we could see it stretched before us like a long white snake.

Many soldiers fainted or were stricken with sunstroke. They were picked up by the infirmary columns which followed. That the troops who had traversed this road before us had fared worse was evident from the many dead Germans who lay along the road. The commander feared that he could not get the machine in motion again if it was halted, and permitted to stretch its weary limbs on the ground for a brief rest. And so it crept along like a snail. Only, instead of having a snail's shell on its back, there was a leaden burden.

The monotony of the march was broken when we reached the enormous camp at Chalons. This is one of the largest of the French army camps. We saw Chalons from the distance. As we halted about an hour later outside the city in an orchard, without a single exception every man fell to the ground exhausted. The field kitchens were soon brought up, but the men were too tired to eat. We did eat later and then wanted to go to town to purchase some articles, particularly tobacco, which we missed most. Nobody was allowed to leave camp. We were told that entering the city was strictly forbidden. Chalons had paid a war contribution and therefore no one was permitted in the city.

We heard the dull sounds of the cannon in the distance and suspected that our rest would be brief. The rolling of gunfire continued to grow stronger. We did not know then that a fight had begun which was destined to become fatal to the Germans.

The first day's battle of the Marne had begun!

Terrific laughter marks the opening of the battle of the Marne, when the German herds, rushing forward so rapidly that their supply lines are broken, are caught in a French trap. The next installment contains a vivid story of the opening of this historic battle.

YOUTH AT A DISADVANTAGE

Younger Men Are Ineffective in Obtaining Credit as Well as in the Control of Workmen.

Christian Girl, president of the Standard Parts company of Cleveland, O., says in the American Magazine:

"When a man of noticeably youthful appearance goes to a cautious banker seeking to finance even the soundest kind of a proposition, his line of argument is discounted before he says a word, by his youthful looks. The banker is afraid of being carried away by mere boyish enthusiasm and is on his guard. If I were much under thirty-five and had a tiptop business scheme to finance, I would get an older man of established reliability and conservatism to present it for me to the banker."

"Youth is not always so good, either, in the production end of a big business—handling a force of men and getting the work out of them. In the first place, the man who is boasting the job should have accepted all the lesser jobs between him and the bottom rung of the ladder. This requires time. And, furthermore, men do not like to work under a boss who looks too much like a mere boy, no matter how smart or capable or experienced he may be. It isn't necessary that he be as old as most of them, but he should be old enough to give an impression of maturity. The average workman doesn't care much whether the boss is thirty or forty, but it might make a difference whether he is thirty or only twenty."

Commends Sailor's Bravery.

For gallantry in rescuing from drowning a lad eight years of age Secretary Daniels has commended Arthur Otto Radcliffe, a seaman of the United States navy. Alongside of the United States steamship Wadsworth, on which the sailor was stationed, lay a tug. A small boy played about the deck with no thought of danger. Suddenly he fell overboard. Before the warning came the child had floated seventy-five yards or more from the tug and ship. Then Radcliffe came into action. Jumping into the water, he swam to the boy and brought him to safety. Radcliffe enlisted in the navy in 1915, at Des Moines, Iowa.

Only Women Makes Home Possible. A man may build a palace, but he can never make a home. The spirituality and love of a woman alone can accomplish this.

Why Dread Old Age?

It doesn't matter how old you are, if you keep well and active. Lots of folks are younger at 70 than others are at 60. Lame, bent backs; stiff, aching, rheumatic joints; bad eyesight and deafness are too often due to neglected kidney trouble and not to advancing years. Don't let weak kidneys get you. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have made life more comfortable for thousands of elderly folk.

A Colorado Case

Mrs. Danie Brunley, 114 Twelfth St., Greeley, Colo., says: "I had a steady, miserable ache in my back and a dragging, aching day after day feeling too tired and discouraged to do my housework. I had spells of dizziness and felt weak and confused for hours. My kidneys were weak and caused me a great deal of distress. My hands and feet swelled and my whole body became bloated. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended and I tried them and soon the swelling had all gone and I felt as well as ever."

After Deep Thought.

A young man had been put on sentry duty for the first time and was stationed near the barracks. It was not long before an officer came along. The young man suddenly forgot the challenge, "Who goes there?" and after a moment of deep thought, thinking he had remembered, called out loudly: "Look what's here!"

On the date of his death he seemed to have lost none of his day he would weaken, as his grew weaker, and at 12 o'clock

 he passed away, saying "lay me

French cavalry, operating to the northeast of Monastir, in Macedonia, have captured the town of Prilep.

In an attack against the American outposts south of Archangel the Bolsheviks sustained considerable losses. In eastern Siberia the Japanese have captured Blagovestchensk, capital of the Province of Amur, and also the town of Alexievsk. Two thousand Austro-German troops surrendered.

Chinese troops negotiated the surrender of 3,000 Austro-Hungarians to a force of Czechs, near Klakhtia, when they mediated between the Czechs and 40,000 Austro-Hungarians who were fleeing.

In both Macedonia and Palestine the contending allied forces are giving the already badly beaten Bulgarians, Germans and Turks no rest, while in France the British and French are continuing to draw their net more closely about St. Quentin and the remaining elements of the Hindenburg line in this immediate region, and the American troops repulsed hostile raids in the Vosges.

Disaster has overtaken the Teuton army over all fields. In Palestine the Turks are all but absolutely crushed; in Macedonia the contending forces are harrying their foes and threatening them with similar disaster; in France the British and French troops slowly but surely are cutting their way into the vitals of the German defensive positions, the collapse of which would result in important changes all along the western battle front, and in eastern Siberia the Japanese have made additional strides forward in the process of reclaiming that territory for the Russians.

From north of Jerusalem to the sea of Galilee, in the territory lying between the River Jordan and the Mediterranean Sea, the Ottoman forces have been caught by the swift drive of the British armies and virtually annihilated. Fourteen cities, including Nazareth, have been captured. Added to the heavy casualties suffered by the Turks, hordes of them were made prisoner and many more are wandering, bewildered, without leaders, in the hills, eventually to be brought in to swell the great total. At last accounts more than 25,000 of the sultan's soldiers and 200 guns and large quantities of war stores were in British hands. To add to the demoralization of the Turkish morale, allied aviators are carrying out successful bombing raids against Constantinople.

YANKS START NEW CHAMPAGNE DRIVE

CAPTURE TWELVE TOWNS AND 5,000 PRISONERS AND GAIN SEVEN MILES.

FRENCH ENTER SERVON

GERMANS APPLY TORCH TO 30 VILLAGES AS THEY ARE DRIVEN BACK.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Attacking Thursday morning over a front of twenty miles, west of Verdun, in co-operation with the French, the American First army advanced to an average depth of seven miles and captured twelve towns and more than 5,000 prisoners. Four of the towns were carried by storm by Pennsylvania, Kansas and Missouri troops of Maj. Gen. Liggett's corps, Gen. Pershing said in his official statement on the battle, received at the War Department. The enemy offered stubborn resistance. Troops of other corps forced their way across the Forges brook, took the Bois-de-Forges and wrested eight towns from the enemy. Gen. Pershing's communique follows:

"Section A.—This morning northwest of Verdun, the First army attacked the enemy on a front of twenty miles and penetrated his line to an average depth of seven miles. Pennsylvania, Kansas and Missouri troops in Maj. Gen. Liggett's corps stormed Varennes, Montblainville, Vauzouls and Chappy after stubborn resistance. Troops of other corps, crossing the Forges brook captured the Bois de Forges and wrested from the enemy the towns of Malancourt, Bothincourt, Montfaucou, Cuisy, Nantilles, Septarges, Dannevoux and Gercourt-et-Drillancourt. The prisoners thus far reported number more than 5,000."

Paris.—The Franco-American attack on both sides of the Argonne is continuing satisfactorily, according to the war office announcement. French troops have made an advance of nearly four miles at certain points west of the Argonne. The Germans, anticipating the attack, seemingly had withdrawn a portion of their forces. According to the latest unofficial reports reaching Paris, the American advance is progressing well and is now from five to six miles from the point of departure. Among the places taken are Gercourt, Cuisy, Montfaucou, Cheppy and Varennes, all northwest of Verdun.

Gen. Gouraud's progress has also been good, his troops having occupied all the enemy's first line. The new allied offensive in the Champagne was begun three years almost to a day after the first offensive of the French on Sept. 25, 1916. The French Fourth army is conducting the attack in conjunction with American forces and the front extends to the east and west of the Argonne forest.

The number of prisoners taken by the French is increasing steadily. They are filling back by all roads in groups of from a score to several hundred. Among them there is a larger proportion of very young men than heretofore taken. Some of the captives are recruits of the 1929 contingent. They are leaving behind them scores of burning villages. Thirty had been observed in flames up to noon Thursday. Even this additional and unjustifiable devastation can scarcely add to the desolation that has been spread all over this sharply disputed ground.

In local operations between Cambrai and St. Quentin on the western front the British are pushing farther into the Hindenburg line and capturing points vital to the defense of St. Quentin. West and northwest of St. Quentin the British have advanced in the region of Salency and Gricourt.

The important Bulgarian center of Iztik has been captured by allied troops, according to dispatches received from the Saloniki front.

British troops entered Bulgarian territory Thursday, it was officially announced in London.

The Fourth Turkish army on the Palestine front is virtually surrounded in the region east of the Jordan and faces annihilation by General Allenby's forces.

Distinguished Service Cross for Yanks

Washington.—For gallantry in action, thirty-four members of the American expeditionary forces have been awarded the distinguished service cross. General Pershing reported in a communique to the War Department. Five of the awards were made posthumously.

ASTHMA INSTANTLY RELIEVED WITH ASTHMADOR

Familiar Sounds. An Alsatian correspondent of Dr. David Starr Jordan writes that to his "joyous astonishment" he has discovered among the bugle calls of the American army in France "airs which are exactly those we used to hear in times of peace in passing from our barracks to the drill grounds." Among these are notably the reveille, the soap call, the call to the officers and the rare call to the general, which the public seldom hears. His explanation is a natural one. "These calls are those which Lafayette brought to Washington's troops in the War of Independence."—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

SHOWED HUNTER NEW TRICK

Wily Fox Climbed Tree to Evade Enemies and Finally Made His Escape Uninjured.

One of the slickest foxes that has been liberated by the Speakman hunt in many years led Pennsylvania's chase recently. The fox kept the huntsmen going for half an hour, when they suddenly lost him. They found a tree under which the bounds were baying and caving but despite a diligent search being made, no trace could be found of the fox.

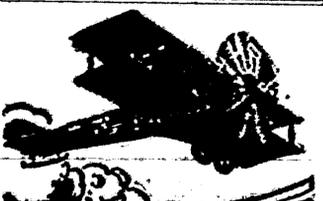

The huntsmen were about to turn back when one of their number happened to cast his eyes up in the tree, and there on one of the limbs sat the wily fox. Recovering from their amazement, straws were drawn to determine who should climb the tree. It fell to the lot of William Speakman. Being an expert climber, Speakman was soon out on the branches, and giving the limb a vigorous shake, Reynard tumbled off.

Although he fell a distance of 80 feet he was not injured in the least. He gave the dogs another lively chase as far as Thomas farm, where he saved his brush by holling.—Philadelphia Record.

Her Preference. "I'm so glad to see good golf weather again," said young Mrs. Turkina. "I didn't know you cared for the game." "I don't. But I'll be glad to have Charlie out playing the game instead of staying home talking about it."—Cassell's Magazine.

War Industries Board

The War Industries Board has designated the State Council of Defense as its representative to pass upon proposed construction in New Mexico, in order that all new construction not essential and not contributing directly or indirectly toward winning the war may be stopped. Henceforth permits from the War Industries Board will be required for construction projects as specified in circular No. 21 of the Priorities Division of the War Industries Board (a copy of which is on file in the office of the Executive Committee of the County Council of Defense in the Exchange Bank, Carrizozo). This plan has been adopted because of the imperative necessity of conserving labor, materials and capital for war purposes.

The Executive Committee of the County Council of Defense has been appointed local representative of the State Council of Defense and the War Industries Board in Lincoln County. This Committee will proceed to act along the lines indicated in the following rules of the procedure:

"The person, firm or corporation interested in a construction or building project (whether proposed or now under construction), which does not come within the class of projects for which no permit is required, as set forth in the circular above referred to, shall make a full statement of the facts in writing, under oath, and present the same to the Executive Committee of the County Council of Defense, applying to such Executive Committee for its approval of the proposed construction.

The Executive Committee of the County Council of Defense shall immediately make surveys of all buildings now under construction in its territory which do not come within the classes mentioned in the circular above referred to, and report the same as promptly as possible to the Executive Committee of the State Council of Defense, together with its recommendations concerning the necessity for the continuance of such construction to completion, or the possibility of deferring the same until after the war."

All applications and statements as provided for in the above rules, must be filed with the Committee at once.

Address Executive Committee, County Council of Defense, Carrizozo, N. M.

TREAT YANKS AS ONE OF FAMILY

Somewhere in France. — Many American soldiers are having the unique opportunity, as well as the pleasant experience, of learning French customs and seeing French life by being billeted right in the houses of their Gallic hosts and hostesses.

In one of the villages of central France, high up among the hills, where one can get a magnificent view of the surrounding "peaks," the valley and the winding river below is billeted a regiment of American artillery lads. Most of them are from California, others are from North Dakota, Montana, and other states of the Northwest.

Coming up the road from the railway station one crosses the mill race with its ancient stone bridge, passes the "moulin noir" and entering the village after "recall," sees the soldiers talking about in the houses or seated about the tables in front of the wine shops talking to their French friends whose guests they are.

From one of the village streets clear through the town the houses are marked with the number of Americans billeted there. One place may have painted at the side of the door, "24 men" and another "2 officers, 14 men." Down in the narrow side streets are more billets and from these winding passageways the soldiers come in scores after the evening mess to wander along the "main drag" and visit billets of their friends in other batteries.

No Formality There. Life is very informal in this village since the Americans came. The doors and windows of the home-billets, opening right into the streets, reveal the soldiers' beds made up in ship-shape-military manner, the floors scrubbed spotlessly clean and everything as neat and tidy as a home might be expected to be. In many places, sanitation, crude in most French towns, at least from an American's standpoint, has been improved and living conditions improved not only for the soldiers but for the civilian natives as well.

"How do you like living in billets?" was asked a raw-boned gunner who said his home had been in Idaho. "All right now," came the response. "We did not think much of it at first; we had to go too far for mess. The cook shack is away up there on the hill in the square behind the church. And in our billet we had to climb a ladder to get into the hay-mow. I'd rather live in a tent, especially in the summer. But we all say, like the French, 'C'est la guerre' and let it go at that."

"But we're learning a lot about the French, getting a lot of insight into their lives which we could not get otherwise. We're learning to sympathize with them more than ever. I believe it makes us better soldiers. I know for sure that it makes us keener to fight the Germans when we hear some of the facts the French people tell us. Why, in our house alone the old man and old woman who live there have lost three sons in the war and another is a prisoner of the Germans."

"Oh, we get along all right. The women do our washing and mending and they're always anxious to do a lot of extra things for us. We sure will miss these people when we move from here. It will be like leaving home again."

Music and Craps. The black troops are bringing America's folk songs to Europe. Whether he is in the overalls of the stavedora or the olive drab of the fighting man going over the top, the American negro sings just as he does in the cotton fields of the sunny Southland or the dock along the shores of the Great Lakes.

The nearness of the war, the whizz of the bullets and the roar of the cannon fall to mear the eternal non-worrying attitude of the American negro.

Their barracks at night are alive with music. At least one man in every squad has managed to bring a banjo along or made enough shooting craps to buy one in France. Speaking of craps, it's the great barrack room sport of the negroes the first day after payday. And every niche they can get in out of sight of their white officers sees a crap game going. Then when one or two men in the regiment have got all the money in camp they go back to singing the old-time songs and playing them on their banjos until another payday rolls around.

If morale follows in the footsteps of music, then the colored troops must be "less full of it, boss!"

MUTINY GROWING IN GERMAN ARMY

Officers Are Defied and 20,000 Deserters Are Said to Be in Berlin.

TROUBLE ALSO IN THE NAVY

Four Torpedo Boats Are Seized, and Attempt is Made to Escape, but Two Are Sunk by Pursuing Battleship.

London.—General demoralization of Germany's population and widespread and growing disaffection in the German army, accompanied by mutiny and desertions, are described in a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from its Rotterdam correspondent.

The correspondent says that information reaching him is so sensational as to inspire skepticism, but declares he has received undoubted corroboration from authoritative sources.

He asserts that the German army is filled with despondency and seething with mutinous spirit, and that alarming outbreaks have occurred in several units, principally Bavarian and Silesian.

One incident on the Arras front terminated in a whole Bavarian division being disarmed and transported to Bavaria, where it was placed in a prison camp, and the mutiny of one of the Silesian regiments resulted in nearly 100 of its men being executed.

Desertions Are Heavy.

A huge number of desertions are occurring, the correspondent says, and it is estimated that there are more than 20,000 deserters in Berlin alone. Large numbers are scattered throughout the country and the authorities are having the greatest difficulty in trailing deserters owing to the complicity of the working classes. Nevertheless hundreds have been arrested and generally these have been sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment. A great number of imprisoned deserters, broken by solitary confinement, have been released and sent back to the ranks.

Disobedience and defiance of officers is common at the front, according to the correspondent's information, and a similar spirit is shown in the munition factories, where the workers deliberately are slowing up, with the result that the output has been seriously decreased.

Heavy Cannonading Heard.

"It was reported from various places on the Danish and Norwegian coasts three weeks ago that heavy cannonading was heard from the North sea," says a dispatch from Christiania to the Times. "A few days later the bodies of German marines were washed up, most of them on the coast of Jutland, but no fighting was reported on either the British or German side.

So there was much speculation about these floating corpses, which bore life belts with the figures and initials of two different German torpedo boats.

An explanation is now given by the Aftenpost's correspondent at Copenhagen, who says a report was received yesterday from across the German frontier of a recent mutiny. German navy crews refused to go aboard the U-boats to which they belong, and seizing four torpedo boats set a course for Norway.

They were overtaken by a German warship and a regular fight ensued, with the result that at least two torpedo boats were sunk and the crews drowned or killed.

MACHINE GUNNERS GALLOPING INTO ACTION

British machine gunners are particularly active in the great Franco-British-American drive in Picardy and Flanders. This British official photograph shows some of them galloping into action.

BOMBING ENEMY'S DUMPS

Behind the British Lines in France.—The British aviation communique frequently contains a brief line to record that "direct hits were obtained upon an enemy dump" at some point behind the German lines. This colorless announcement may seem to the reader in America nothing more than the record of a dull piece of routine, but the deed itself is different from its record.

A British airman, Lieut. W. A. Barnes, has given the Associated Press the following account of a recent 58-minute raid on a German dump as characteristic of this form of activity: "On this particular night there was not enough moonlight for a long raid, so the target given us was a German ammunition dump.

"Dumps are by no means easy targets to find at night, for they are seldom situated near any definite landmarks and are usually well camouflaged. By the study of maps and photographs, however, we had pretty well located the position of this one, and started out on the raid with high hopes of success.

"We flew almost due east from the airfield. At the end of the 50 minutes we could just make out the outline of sheds. This was good, but we let out a parachute flare to light up the ground, and make sure we were over the target. This promptly dispelled all doubts, for the Hun searchlights opened up at once, and a hail of machine gun bullets leaped up from the ground. Anti-aircraft guns had been firing for some time, but the shells were bursting well above us, and giving no trouble.

"The parachute flare proved a real friend, because both searchlights and machine guns concentrated upon it, giving us just sufficient time to dive swiftly, release our bombs, switch on the engines and start climbing. "When we turned to observe results, we witnessed the finest fireworks display I ever saw. Ammunition was cracking off at record speed, dense clouds of smoke were rising and highly-colored flames were leaping a hundred feet and more from the ground.

"We watched this pleasing exhibition for some minutes, until the cough of an 'Archie' burst near by to remind us that we were still over Hunland, and so turned, and steered for home. "The whole job occupied 58 minutes, but it must have cost Germany hundreds of man-power hours in fruitless work."

New Cure for Cooties.

New York.—"We've got a new-fangled disinfectant for 'cooties' which is fine," writes Private Fred G. Motton to his mother here.

"It is a sort of wash that you put on at night. Then you sleep like a log and dream that you are home.

"They issue it to us every night for a soother. And as it sure keeps the 'kissers' off me, you need have no worry about me. Cooties were our greatest source of worry."

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN A WEAK BODY

When you're fifty, your body begins to break a little at the hinges. Motion is more slow and deliberate. "Not so young as I used to be" is a frequent and unwelcome thought. Certain bodily functions upon which good health and good spirits so much depend, are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Unpleasant symptoms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the inconveniences and pain due to advancing years. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put up in odorless, tasteless capsules. These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles.

Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill, with a small swallow of water. They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve those stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules cleanse the kidneys and purify the blood. They frequently ward off attacks of the dangerous and fatal disease of the kidneys. They have a beneficial effect, and often completely cure the diseases of the bodily organs, allied with the bladder and kidneys.

If you are troubled with soreness across the loins or with "stimp" aches and pains in the back take warning, it may be the preliminary indications of some dreadful malady which can be warded off or cured if taken in time.

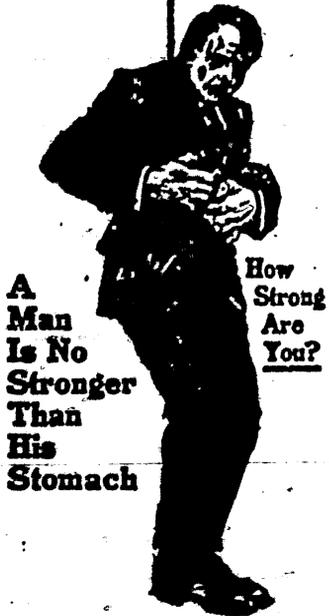

Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. GOLD MEDAL are the pure, original imported Haarlem Oil Capsules. Accept No Substitutes.—Adv.

Don't Get Hung Up With an Acid Stomach

125,000 People Commit Suicide Every Year. A great food standard says: "The cause of the most of them started in a bad stomach."

It's Just Acidity That Makes Millions Sick and Suffer

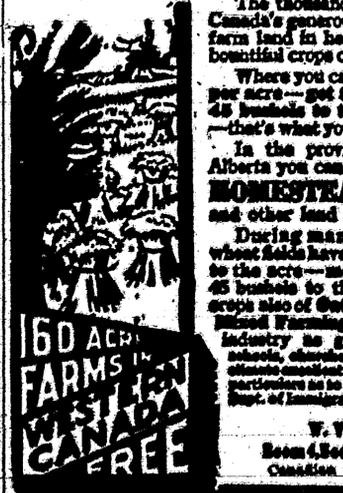

It's true. There are millions of people all over the land who are weak, nervous, all tired and dragged out, who are trying to build up their laded nerves and weakened bodies with drugs and stimulants; and many of them also EAT and EAT—but fail to get anywhere near the full amount of strength and nourishment out of their food. Scenes of Prosperity Are Common in Western Canada

The thousands of U. S. farmers who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops of wheat and other grains.

Where you can buy good farm land at $15 to $20 per acre—get $2 a bushel for wheat and raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre you are bound to make money—that's what you can do in Western Canada.

In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta you can get a HOMESTEAD OF 160 ACRES FREE and other land at very low prices.

During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley, and Flax. Mixed Farming is as profitable an industry as grain raising. Good schools, churches, and other social and domestic amenities. GET FULL BENEFIT FROM YOUR HOME GARDEN

The Illustrations Show (B) a Suggested Plan of Arrangement for a Vegetable Storage Room in the Corner of a Basement; (A) Construction of an Air Duct for Ventilation; and (C) Cross Section of a Storage Pit Containing Irish Potatoes.

FACILITIES FOR PROPER STORAGE

Many Cellars Are Suitable, but Care Must Be Given to Light and Heat.

AVOID FROST AND MOISTURE

Attention Must Be Given in Fall to Storing Surplus Vegetables So That Grocery Bills May Be Materially Reduced.

In the fall the wise home gardener, whether in city or country, plans and works for his garden next year, and stores the surplus products of his summer work.

If the gardener has planned his crop so that fall finds him with a large surplus of storable vegetables, much of his attention will be given to placing them away, safe from moisture and heat, so that through the winter they will help to reduce grocery bills and vary the diet without regard to market conditions or winter temperature.

Home storage of vegetables, important at times, is especially valuable if canning or drying containers are high in price. Furthermore, crops of suitable sorts that mature at a season when they can be preserved by storing should be kept in their natural condition instead of being canned or dried.

Beets, late cabbage, carrots, celery, onions, parsnips, potatoes, sweet potatoes, salsify and turnips may be stored in their natural condition. Beans of various kinds, including the limas, may be stored dry. Successful storage is not at all difficult. In fact, good facilities already exist in many homes, it being necessary only to make use of the cellar, the attic, a large closet or other parts of the dwelling, depending upon the character of the product to be stored.

Storing in House Cellars.

A cool, well-ventilated cellar offers good conditions for vegetable storage, but many cellars are not well suited because of poor insulation or lack of ventilation. Cellars containing furnaces are usually too warm or too dry for storage of root crops. Often it is possible, however, to partition off a room, either in one corner or at one end of the cellar, where the temperature may be controlled by means of outside windows. At least one window is necessary, and two or more are desirable for light and ventilation.

Natural earth makes a better floor than concrete or brick, as a certain amount of moisture is desirable. Walls of the storage room should be parallel to the walls of the cellar. Ventilation may be secured by opening windows, but an air duct, made of wood, metal or terra cotta, and permitting cool air to enter near the floor level, is desirable. A piece of board with a hole the size of the air pipe is fitted in the window in place of one of the panes of glass. Another pane of glass may be removed from the sash and a small hinged door fitted in its place, which when open allows the heated air to escape. In cold weather both the hinged door and the damper in the air pipe must be closed. The windows in the storage room should be darkened in order to protect the vegetables from too much light.

Barrels, crates, boxes or bins may be used as containers for the various vegetables, but movable containers are preferable to built-in bins, as it is possible to remove them for cleaning.

Using Outside Cellars.

Outdoor storage cellars or caves are particularly good for the storage of many vegetables. They are especially desirable on the farm, as they afford convenient and inexpensive storage facilities for surplus vegetables that otherwise might be lost. They possess all the advantages of the basement storage room and are superior in many respects. It is possible to keep the cellar cool and to reduce temperature quickly by opening the door during the night, and closing it in the morning before the air becomes warm.

As the root cellar must be proof against frost and moisture, its types and construction vary with the geographical location. In the southern portion of this country the structure usually is entirely above ground and protected by only a few inches of sod and straw or leaves. In northern sections outdoor cellars are made almost entirely below ground and are covered with a foot or two of earth.

Full directions for the construction of storage rooms and cellars and for the storage of vegetables are contained in Farmers' Bulletin 870, "Home Storage of Vegetables," which will be sent free on request to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Pastures Save Grain Feeds.

From the results of many feeding trials with hogs ten pounds of gain for each bushel of corn fed, or one pound of gain for every 5.6 pounds of corn, is all that should be expected from feeding corn alone in a dry lot. A mixture of one part tankage and nine parts corn gives much better results, usually producing one pound of gain for every 4.5 pounds of the mixture fed.

The quantity of grain needed to produce a pound of gain is considerably lessened if the hogs have access to green forage. Corn fed to growing shotons on rape should produce one pound of gain for every 3.67 pounds of grain fed. The addition of some highly concentrated feed, such as tankage, meat meal, shorts or linseed meal should reduce by one-half to three-fourths of a pound the quantity of grain necessary to produce a pound of gain.

Usually when cabbage plants wilt it will be found that small maggots are feeding on their roots.

ZOO JOKE.

"A joke, a great and glorious joke. Ha, ha! Ha, ha! Such a joke! The best in the world."

"The speaker was the giraffe, the animal with the long neck."

"What's the joke?" asked the Arabian deer.

"Don't you see it? But hush! don't speak too loud. They'll hear us."

"Even if they do hear us, they won't understand us," said the giraffe.

"I think I see the joke now," said the Arabian deer.

"Haven't you seen it all this time?" asked the giraffe.

"I wasn't quite sure before, as I hadn't really looked at myself or yourself. Now I see, and I think it's a beautiful joke. Also, my dear giraffe, it's an honor. We are receiving all the attention in the zoo today."

"It was a shame the way those peacocks were getting it all. I simply couldn't bear it. I had to do something."

"Oh, you arranged this joke, then," said the deer.

"I most certainly did," said the giraffe.

"And the giraffe and the deer would look at each other, wink and say in low tones: 'Isn't it a good joke?'"

"I bet the peacocks are good and angry now," said the deer.

"Oh, they must be," said the giraffe.

"All the people are looking at us," said the deer.

"And all the children, too," added the giraffe.
