Ex-Gov. W. C. McDonald
Passes Away After Life of Activity and Uprightness—
First Governor of State.

The sad news of the death of Ex-Gov. W. C. McDonald, at El Paso Friday morning, came as a shock to the people of Carrizozo, despite the fact that the public had been concerned for some time past with the knowledge that his condition was anything but encouraging, and when he was taken to El Paso the early part of the week, it was hoped that with the best of medical treatment that could be procured, together with careful nursing, would prolong the Governor's life, if not to affect a permanent cure.

He fought bravely against his infirmities, being on his feet until a few days before his death, complaining but little, which was characteristic of the man. Mrs. McDonald, who with Mr. Truman Spencer, accompanied the Governor to El Paso, was with him to the last.

William C. McDonald was born in Jordanville, New York, July 25th, 1857. After receiving his education, he taught school for several years before coming west. He was admitted to the bar in Fort Scott, Kansas, after which he came to the Territory of New Mexico, and located at White Oaks in 1880.

After settling in White Oaks, young McDonald was made U. S. Deputy Marshal, which position he held for a period of ten years. In 1890 he was made manager of the Carrizozo Ranch Association.

In 1891 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Francis McCourt, who has stood faithfully and lovingly by his side, sharing his honors during his career of usefulness, and ministering to his wants during his last hours on earth—in health his loyal companion, in sickness his constant mainstay and support.

Gov. McDonald was honored with many positions of trust, being of the type of men who command the attention and confidence of those with whom he came in contact in the business and professional world. At the time of his death, Gov. McDonald was in full charge of the El Capitan Cattle Company and was Federal Fuel Inspector for the state of New Mexico. He was at one time Assessor for the county of Lincoln, also Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners. Thus was the Governor a life long active man in positions which indicated his high standing with his fellow-men.

Being ever active in politics, having served his party in various ways, he was nominated by the Democratic party and elected to

HIS highest ambition was to see his country victorious in the present war against greed, avarice and autocracy. His aim to advance the interests of a true Democracy, was evidenced by his tireless, patriotic zeal in the interest of all that goes to make freedom realized in its true sense. As an established confident of the government, he had but few equals and no superiors. He passed away at a time when his country needed him sorely, but the influence he left behind him will serve as a rock and fortress against all enemies of Liberty, strengthening and broadening into patriotic determination, which will forever banish from the earth the system of savagery that now seeks to know out the heart strings of our free institutions, and destroy the God-given liberty we now enjoy.

His career is ended, but his example remains. We therefore float the Flag at half mast in honor of a deserving, patriotic statesman.

NEW MEXICO'S SONG BIRD INTRODUCES TALENT IN EAST

In Letter to Friend in Las Cruces, She Tells of Successful Venture With 'Senorita' and 'Raindrops.'

Miss Elizabeth Garrett, the "Song Bird" of New Mexico, whom all are interested in here, and who is attracting unusual attention in New York at the present time, writes an interesting letter to a friend at Las Cruces, which tells of her success with her musical creations. Among other things, she tells of meeting and singing for Helen Keller.

Miss Garrett, after telling of her first appearance at the New York Federation of Women's Clubs, which meant so much to her as an introduction to other societies and organizations, such as the Forum, Plaidies, Boston Opera Company, Beaux Arts, The Theatre Assemble, and the Gamut Club, says: "To all these societies and organizations, I was a guest of honor, and have met many people of note. Miss Rhodes, a very wealthy and accomplished blind lady, and who is a close friend of Miss Helen Keller, invited me to her home, where with Miss Keller we lunched together.

"Miss Keller is a very interesting person. She reads the lips by placing her hands on them, which was most fortunate for me, as I do not understand the hand language well enough to feel at ease. We have enjoyed ourselves very much together, and I must tell you about singing for her at her home. She is very impulsive and affectionate, and I know it will delight you when I tell you we were like old friends in a few minutes. She is indeed charming to meet and I am quite proud that she has invited me to know her better. I had the great joy of singing for her with her fingers upon my lips, and I am sure that one of the greatest inspirations of my life was her expression in so many ways of my songs and singing. She said that my voice and songs thrilled her beyond expression and that my lips were so easily read and expressive to her. She said she loved my New Mexico songs, and my Children's songs seem to appeal to her especially—"The Raindrops" in particular. My "Senorita" was also a favorite with her."

Miss Garrett is remarkably patriotic. She has learned to knit, and is spending all her spare time in working on knitted goods for the soldiers. She also sings for them, and makes herself useful in many ways that would put to shame many people who, being possessed of all God given blessings, are indifferent and inactive toward their country's call.

Auto Turns Turtle; Kills One

An accident occurred last Monday near the junction of the Ruidoso and the Nardo rivers. A car containing five men was going at a record breaking rate of speed, when of a sudden the car turned turtle killing a man by the name of Perez and severely injuring several more of the men. The body of the dead man was taken to Lincoln, and the injured men were cared for as soon as possible. Nothing of a very dangerous nature resulting from their injuries.

Anderson—Green

At Christian Church in El Paso Thursday, April 14th, Emuel Anderson and Ida Lee Greene, were united in marriage with Rev. A. O. Kuhn, pastor of the Church officiating. Only a few close relatives of both parties were present.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Johnson of Roswell, and has been for the past year, conducted the Oasis Confectionery. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Anderson, who have lived in Carrizozo for years. The newly married couple will make Carrizozo their future home and have the best wishes of their many friends.

Junior Red Cross

"Mrs. Slack" given at the Crystal Theatre last Friday evening proved a great success financially and otherwise, netting the Junior Red Cross $75.85

The organization wishes to thank the management of the theatre, the pupils and the public for their generous support.

The work in various parts is progressing very nicely. The High School pupils are making comfort kits. The 6th, 7th and 8th grades knitting Refugee garments. The lower grades knitting hospital garments.

Committee, By Sec.

ON IMPORTANT MISSION

Rev. J. M. Gardner and Rev. J. S. Arce of Capitan, have been out on an important mission for the past week. They were soliciting funds for mission work, and for the work among the soldiers. Their work proved very successful, when they found their collections amounted to $208.90.

Much credit is due to Rev. Gardner, he has been a hard and conscientious worker in this community, he has been continually active in his work, having made many sacrifices. He is thoroughly patriotic, having at one time served in the U. S. army as chaplain. Knowing the needs of the boys in the service so well, he is always alert and during the present war has been an instrument for good in his country's cause.

Executive Committee Meets

The Red Cross Executive Committee met Thursday afternoon April 11th and as a safeguard for the future, adopted the following resolutions, which renders it impossible for any entertainments to be given after that date, without the permission of the society.

Be it resolved: That it is the decision of the offices of the Executive Committee of the Lincoln County Chapter American Red Cross, that hereafter no entertainments requiring the sale of tickets for entertainments at which collections are taken for the benefit of the Red Cross, to be given without first the written permission from the proper officials of the Local Chapter. These are Jno. A. Haley, Chairman, Mrs. H. S. Fairbank, Secretary.

Rousing Oil Meeting

Last Wednesday night, the stockholders of the New Mexico Electra Oil Company held what might be termed a "Love Feast" at the offices of the company in the Lutz Building. President Henry Lutz called the meeting to order, and gave a graphic description of the work now going on at the Kate Cunningham and Sunshine tracts.

Mr. Lutz told of certain drawbacks, such as rainy weather, the long distance supplies must be trucked, inconveniences by the delay and misfortunes in the oil field that the general public are, to a certain degree, ignorant of. He assured the stockholders however, that their interests were being properly taken care of, and told of two good wells they now have, and of the third which is now being drilled to a depth of 1,700 feet. This is expected to bring the heaviest flow of them all.

The last mentioned well has been drilled to a depth nearing the third sand, which is expected to contain an abundance of the coveted fluid. Leading stockholders in the company were present, and all backed up President Lutz in saying that patience at the present time was the one thing necessary to future successful developments.

The meeting ended by all present renewing their confidence in President Lutz, and besides this expression of confidence, voted to allow him full power to use all money needed in his judgment to further the interests of the New Mexico Electra Oil Co.

If we continue to let the Germans speak ill of our country, it will be only a question of time until we will not have a country to talk about, one way or another.

The Deep Sea Peril

By VICTOR ROUSSEAU

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

"She went inside the cave, I think," said Davies.

"Yes, I'm sure of it," answered Donald; and he entered farther into its recesses, calling "Ida! Ida!"

They began to be alarmed. They hurried from point to point. The cave was a wide one, but tapered, some distance back, into the neck of a bottle. It seemed evident that Ida could not have gone farther than this point.

"Run back, Davies, and see if she can't be outside," said Donald.

And, while he called, Davies took up the search without. Donald waited in terror. He did not dare go farther into the cave just then.

Ten minutes later Davies returned. A glance at his face told that his mission had been entirely fruitless. They looked at each other.

"There's light ahead," said Davies. They proceeded cautiously, and suddenly they came upon a little entrance leading up from the sea. Close by was the point around which MacBeard had disappeared in his motorboat.

Davies saw Donald shaking with mixed terror and rage. He stared out hopelessly toward the sea. Then, brushing past Davies without a word, he almost ran into the bottle neck of the interior. The middy followed him.

The ground grew damp, the floor seemed to descend abruptly. Davies could hardly keep his feet. All at once he heard Donald's muffled voice calling to him. He saw the spurt of a match flame.

Ten paces farther Donald pulled him back as his foot slipped on the edge of a precipice. Donald struck another match and looked down.

Under them was the level of the ocean bed. They were upon the very verge of a precipitous descent, a sheer wall having, however, natural footholds, at regular intervals.

Something white fluttering near drew their attention. Donald picked it up and held it out. It was a woman's handkerchief.

"She slipped here—" began the little middy, but Donald took the words from his mouth.

"No!" he cried furiously. "She was caught in the cave by that damned scoundrel MacBeard. He put his boat in at the tiny cove and came on her from behind. And he's taken her—my God, he's taken her! That's her message to me, that handkerchief."

His voice grew incoherent and he broke down. Then he raised it in furious declamation.

"But I'll follow that cur until I die!" he swore. "I may not rescue her—I don't know, Davies, and I hardly dare to hope. But I'll stay here and give my life."

He broke off suddenly, a spasm passed across his features, and all at once he became completely calm once more.

"No, I won't, Davies," he said. "It's my duty now to fly to England with all speed. You'll stay here and do what you can. It may be very little, old man, but we mustn't think of anything but our jobs."

"No, sir," said Davies. There was nothing more to be done but prepare for the journey. Donald felt reasonably sure that the F55 was safe against the herd. The terrific upward pressure of the night had not started a rivet; lying as she was upon the beach, she was unassailable.

They filled her oil-tanks and carried the stores aboard. Then Donald filled the gasoline tank of the hydroplane, and, entering, made a short trial flight out to sea and back. The machine was in perfect condition.

A grasp of the hand, and Donald was gone upon his journey. From his post in the conning tower Davies watched the hydroplane rise and fall to the wind, and sweep into the distance, to dwindle and disappear.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Swarming of the Herd. Davies had correctly divined the secret of the air under the sea. Nature, who does nothing in haste, had prepared the sea monsters for their change of environment by bestowing upon them the property of condensing the hydrogen in the water in such a manner as to separate it from the other constituent of water—oxygen.

But, being too unstable to exist as a separate gas, except under high pressure, the oxygen combined with the nitrogen that sustained the crinoids and other plant life at the bottom of the sea. The resulting combination was oxygen and nitrogen in place of oxygen and hydrogen, or air in lieu of water.

Masterman, who overlooked nothing, had explained all this in his letter to Donald. He had also told him of the means of controlling the sea monsters. Their auditory apparatus being still in its most rudimentary stage, they heard sounds only as vibrations.

Masterman had discovered, during those weeks of exploration and imminent danger, that G was the signal for dispersal. A, on the contrary, was the assembly call. The sacrificial bone-knife vibrated to the sound of A, and it was this which had given the herd the key-tone of their language.

Unfortunately for MacBeard, he had been unable to learn much more than this. The last page of the manuscript, as well as the first, was missing. MacBeard was sure that Donald had kept possession of them.

Had he possessed them, he would have learned that the power of uttering these calls rested with the queen of the swarm alone, a human organism, the type of the rapt toward which the monsters tended, differentiating from them as the queen bee differs from the worker or the drone.

He had discovered that the search for food was the one purpose of the creatures' existence. It had assumed a religious aspect. Their god, their altar stone, the sacrificial rite were all the soul's instinctive groping upward, based upon the dominating animal impulse.

The tune that Clouts had played, with its discords, had been the deep-sea equivalent of an artillery salvo. The terrified monsters had dispersed in all directions, letting down the curtain of condensed hydrogen. Fortunately for the professor, the main portion of the herd had kept together, and this afforded him a medium in which he could, with difficulty, breathe. But their rapid movement kept the hydrogen stirred up, and he was nearly asphyxiated before he reached his refuge within the cave. He did not like inhaling carbonated jelly.

Seeing Donald and Davies upon the island, he had attempted to open negotiations with them. Repulsed, he fled in terror, and on rounding the point saw Ida alone at the cave's mouth. At once his scheme was born in his mind.

Pushing ashore, he entered the cave by the narrow way toward the rear. He came upon Ida suddenly, and grasping her in his arms, he placed one hand over her mouth, preventing her from crying for aid. Then, dragging her to the top of the precipice, he sounded the assembly call.

Instantly the water beneath began to dissolve. Thick clouds of steaming hydrogen rolled up to the cave's roof. Soon there was a natural passage, three hundred feet deep, from the interior of the cave to the crater below.

He carried Ida down the descent. The girl, who had contrived to drop her handkerchief, was no match for the professor. She screamed once or twice, but the echoes of the cavern absorbed the sound of her voice. And so she found herself again within the submarine temple.

MacBeard released her and stood in front of her, devouring her with his gaze. He could not understand whence this novel emotion in his heart derived its power; and, now that she was his captive, he did not know what to do. Geometry, physics, mathematics and the calculus all failed to help solve his problem.

Overcome by the presence of the woman he loved, the professor stammered like a youth with his first sweetheart.

"Why have you brought me here?" asked Ida.

"Because—because I—er—I love you," answered MacBeard.

Ida burst into ironical laughter. The situation was so impossible that there was room for no emotion but amusement. And in that laugh the professor felt a thousand arrows of jealousy rend him.

"Listen to me!" he exclaimed passionately. "You don't know who I am or what I am trying to do. I am going to obliterate the earth, as it is known to you. I command the Man of the Future. The Man who is to come. The new race of the sea, which is to sweep away the puny monkey-man. And I want you to share my power with me."

Ida laughed hysterically. She could not help herself. MacBeard glared at her. He did not know what to do. "You shall see!" he cried, beside himself with anger. "You don't believe what I tell you? I'll prove it." "It doesn't make any difference, professor. I am not a blackboard," answered Ida. "Will you kindly take me back to the place you brought me from?"

"No!" shouted MacBeard. "You'll stay here until you learn to love me. Why can't you love me?"

Ida's look was touched with pity. She did not answer him.

MacBeard sounded his tuning fork, and immediately the monsters gathered about them. The hydrogen haze rolled higher, disclosing the entire interior of the cave, and the idol. MacBeard sounded another fork, and the creatures began edging Ida toward the recesses of the cave.

"If I sound the sacrificial note you die," snorted MacBeard.

Ida, perfectly passive, waited. The monsters guarded the entrance. She was alone. Outside MacBeard paced up and down beneath the sea in fury. He had encountered a problem which seemed insoluble.

As Ida waited, all at once a most remarkable object broke upon her gaze. Advancing through the midst of the luminous, vague monsters outside the entrance there came a perfectly human figure, a man with a square beard.

He passed through the monsters without the slightest difficulty and entered the cave. He was walking exactly as a boy walks when he drives a flock of geese or a herd of pigs; that is to say, there was a straddle in his step quite different from the rolling gait of a sailor, and he had his arms extended. With his lips he made a hissing sound which resembled "Shoo!"

And in front of him, retiring backward, Ida thought she saw a phantom woman's form. But it must have been a delusion, because it was only by straining her eyes that she could discern anything at all; and now and again the figure seemed to vanish into the air.

The man was Clouts. As he passed her, Ida called to him. Clouts jumped. He looked at her with a comical expression of fear on his face.

"Clouts! Where is Donald? Can you get me out of here? Take me to him at once!"

Clouts looked terrified. "Certainly, marm," he said. "But that isn't nobody. There's all sorts of shapes and things here, but it isn't a real person, marm. I'm telling you this so you'll understand, marm."

He hastened past her, and, far ahead

"You Don't Believe What I Tell You? I'll Prove It."

of him, Ida discerned the shadowy shape of the queen.

"Clouts! Help me! You aren't going to leave me?" cried Ida pitifully. She heard Clouts' muttering tones come back to her, and he was lost in the hydrogen haze. She was astounded at his abandonment. Hadn't he understood?

To do the sailor justice, Clouts had one of those minds which are open to only a single impression at a time. Just then his mind was open to the necessity of keeping Donald's elusive sweetheart from Ida's knowledge.

He could see only the faintest luminosity now, and he stood with his arms stretched out to prevent her slipping past him. Suddenly he heard a singularly melodious sound proceeding from her throat.

It was a note unknown even to MacBeard. It was, in fact, the demi-semitone between G sharp and A, which is unknown to the Bach scale, though the bagpipes and Oriental music in general are acquainted with these subdivisions.

It was the swarming note. The queen was ready to lead the brood forth upon its adventures. The spirit, emanating from her, made itself felt simultaneously throughout the herd.

Instantly, from all quarters of the crater, the monsters rushed together. The hydrogen haze rolled far away. The ocean opened to its summit. Ida could see the sky above her, and the daylight. The air became saturated with oxygen.

MacBeard, amazed by this development, rushed in. He sounded the dispersal. But the swarming note took precedence of the dispersal, and the monsters, gathering into a gigantic circle, ignoring the professor's call, began to scurry wildly about the crater, seeking their leader.

MacBeard saw that the creatures were beyond his control. For the first time his tuning fork's faint tattered name. He was afraid of being torn in pieces.

And up in the cave Sam Clouts found himself engaged in the most furious tussle that he had ever known. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

BIG PHILIPPINE SUGAR CROP

Modern Machinery, Supplanting Hand Labor, Results in Planting of Immense Acreage.

The Philippines are like most of the sugar cane growing regions in that the available labor supply is comparatively limited. To overcome this, the tractor and modern power machinery is being introduced. As this does not pay on the small plantations, the custom is for one organization to operate several hundred or thousand acres, and a well-organized system is involved throughout the year. Labor-saving devices are employed wherever possible.

The first process in harvesting sugar cane is stripping the leaves from the stalks, an operation requiring much time and labor, as this must be done by hand. A cane knife or bolo is used by the native laborer, who passes the knife down each side of the cane, knocking off and throwing them into the middle of the row, where other laborers pick them up and load them to be hauled to the mill.

Sugar cane milling, under modern methods may be divided into four essential processes, namely, the extraction of the juice from the cane, the clarification of the juice by boiling, the evaporation of the juice so as to reduce the sugar to the crystalline form, and the freeing of the sugar from impurities. The most modern machinery for all operations is fast being installed throughout the Philippine islands, and American consumers may look forward to securing the bulk of their sugar from these distant dots on the Pacific, which owe their development to American capital and American leadership.

Five Great Men in History.

In the generation that saw the birth and the earlier years of the republic five men stand out—George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton and John Marshall, says James Bryce in the Youth's Companion. Whether or not the last four of them were great men in the full sense of the word is a question on which people were not agreed in the lifetime of those four and are not agreed today; but everyone felt then as everyone feels now that Washington was great. He is a world figure. In mere intellectual power he was not superior to the other four. He had less originality and a less wide range of capacity than Franklin, less versatile activity of mind than Jefferson, less brilliant gifts for constructive policy and the exposition thereof than Hamilton, less logical grasp and penetration of thought than Marshall; but he rose superior to them all in a certain massive strength of character, in stately dignity, in a calm firmness, of purpose that neither the smiles nor the frowns of fortune could divert from the course his judgment had approved. So his primacy was undisputed then and has remained undisputed ever since.

Teaching for Future Endeavor.

If the teacher knew what field of endeavor each pupil would seek in later life, he would be greatly helped in making school plans. In the case of boys he can rarely know, for the employments of men are many and unlike and unforeseen circumstances often determine what their vocation is to be. In the case of girls, however, the difficulty is not so great, for of a hundred girls more than eighty will become homemakers; they constitute, so large a group with a common life business that special studies and methods adapted to their needs may fairly be required of all.—Youth's Companion.

Novel Will Held Valid.

In a novel Canadian decision recently reported from the New Brunswick courts, the court upholds as valid a bequest in a will in which the testator directed his executor "to pay a certain person whom I have made known to him, and whose name I otherwise desire to be kept strictly secret, a certain sum of money as soon after my decease as can conveniently be done, the amount of which is to be kept secret, but which has been made known to him by me."

Cleaned Up for Nothing.

George's voluntary scrubbing was few indeed. In fact, he seldom washed his hands before a meal unless ordered to do so. When Uncle Matt was expected for a visit George was made to wash himself vigorously and comb his hair neatly. But Uncle Matt did not come and that night, walking up to his father, he said emphatically: "And all my cleaning up for nothing!"

USE LESS WHEAT.

The allied nations have made further increased demands on us for breadstuffs—demands that Americans are obligated to meet.

In the meantime America's meat supply has been greatly increased for some months to come by the unprecedented shipping to market of hogs that averaged 232 pounds each instead of 203 pounds—the normal.

The United States Food Administration, endeavoring to adjust the international food balance, promptly removed certain restrictions in this country on the use of meat and at the same time asked for a smaller consumption of breadstuffs.

We are asked to observe only one meatless day each week—Tuesday. We will have larger meat stocks for awhile. But our bread ration must be held to a minimum.

In altering its food conservation program the Food Administration emphasizes that the food situation is of necessity, subject to radical changes, caused by crop conditions at home and abroad and by the precarious transportation problem, both in overseas shipping and in America's overburdened transportation system.

The Food Administration will keep the American people fully and frankly advised of each change in the developing situation that they may know definitely the part their food sacrifices play in the world war.

Eyes Made of Rubber.

Everybody knows that eyes were made to rubber. Very few know that eyes are now being made of rubber. This is one of the million results of the war, notes a correspondent.

Glass eyes are always more or less uncomfortable, and frequently unsightly, and it is interesting, therefore when the deformities of war are so serious a subject of consideration, to learn that two French workers, Mme. Lemaitre and Teuillieres, have evolved an entirely new method of replacing a lost eye. By the use of a combination of a hard and soft rubber substance they have achieved their aim and are producing an eye that looks well and feels well.

APRIL 15, 1918

Owing to the unusual and very unsettled conditions affecting the automobile field, brought about by the war, we are compelled to put our business on a cash basis, beginning April 15, 1918. Dealers and supply houses are demanding their money upon the delivery of goods, forcing us in turn to ask for cash from our customers.

This departure from the credit system is being introduced by garages throughout the country and we feel that the public will heartily co-operate with us.

IF WOMEN SHOULD BE NEEDED IN FARM WORK

English Women Learning How to Do Dairy Work Should They Be Needed to Replace Men and Boys.

WOMEN WORKERS NEED TRAINING

Essential Points Given for Consideration by Department of Agriculture.

URGE CAUTION IN PREPARING

Volunteers Should Be Organized in Units and Provision Made for Their Own Living Quarters—Matron for Each Unit.

PRELIMINARY TRAINING

If it becomes necessary in case of an acute farm labor stringency to accept woman volunteers for farming operations other than the lighter ones to which they are accustomed, some sort of preliminary training will be necessary to utilize the large class of woman volunteers from the cities who are unfamiliar with farm work. This article points out some suggestions and precautions that should be taken into consideration in preparing women for these tasks. The suggestions given here have been obtained in a study of this problem by specialists of the United States department of agriculture, both in this country and in other countries. Many of the suggestions are based on the experiences of England, which has trained and is using 300,000 women on farms.

Women should not be trained to go on farms before there is an actual and imperative need for their services. The department of agriculture hopes that it will not be necessary to employ women in heavier lines of farm work than they have been accustomed to doing. If, to save the food harvest, women are needed in the heavier operations and the development and training of unskilled woman workers appears advisable, the following points should be taken into consideration:

No woman should be accepted who is not at least eighteen years of age. The wisest policy would be first to register those women who are willing to undertake this kind of work, having them indicate their previous training and experience, kind of farm work they desire to take up, and length of time they can devote to it.

Two Weeks' Training.

Before going on the farm, the women should if possible undertake a course of training extended over two weeks or more under a skilled instructor. This course might be given at an agricultural or a woman's college, agricultural school, or on a farm donated by some patriotic individual as a practice farm. In some instances the course might be under the auspices of the extension division of the agricultural college. Care should be taken that no institutions are built up to perform functions that might be performed by institutions already in existence.

This two weeks of training would give opportunity to eliminate those not physically able to endure farm labor, and also those whose mental make-up is such as to make them unavailable. It would also give them sufficient skill so that they would be acceptable to the farmers. Such experience in obtaining woman laborers as has been had indicates that the farmer usually is not willing to take woman farm workers into his home, and therefore the women will have to be organized in units and provide for their own living quarters. This fact restricts the types of farm enterprises in which the women will be able to engage to such as are very intensive in character, and highly localized. The types of farm enterprises of this kind would be such crops as apples, peaches, grapes, onions, cabbage, potatoes, strawberries, etc. The training should be such that when the women went to the farmers they would have at least sufficient skill to be acceptable to the farmer.

Ascertain if Needed.

Before training the volunteers some method should be devised for ascertaining whether there is a demand for the woman workers to the kind of work they are preparing to undertake. This information could be obtained from the state agricultural college and the state farm help specialist employed by this department. Great care should be exercised not to prepare women to go on farms before there is an actual demand for their labor.

After completing the training, the women should not be sent into the localities where they are to work until some one has preceded them to make arrangements for their housing and to determine the basis of wages, etc. In most instances the living quarters would consist of a camping outfit, as such quarters as they might obtain in the community would be the least desirable of those in the community. Generally it would be desirable to have one person in the group who would do no farm work, but would act as general chaperon and matron and would see to the domestic phases of their living and welfare.

"Who Cares if Bones Ache?"

Thousands of women in all parts of the country are volunteering to help out on farms that will be short of man power this season. The letter which follows is typical of many which are coming to the United States department of agriculture. Department officials do not believe that women will be required in the heavier farming operations, but in the lighter labor on fruit and truck farms and in helping farm women with their tasks there will be work for women hands.

"I want to inquire where I can volunteer my services in the agricultural labor for my country's service. I know this work is just as important as fighting, and as I was raised in the country and can drive a horse and am familiar with all the rounds of farm life, I feel I would soon qualify. My husband is now doing his 'bit' aboard a transport.

"Napoleon is quoted as saying, 'A man fights on his stomach,' so I would like to work to enable our men to become good fighters. The German Blomberg in his world plans once said: 'America is a fine fat pig to be struck later.' So I guess the Kaiser thought, I would even enjoy helping raise some American fat pigs to defeat them in their designs.

"Hoping you answer quickly and tell me where I can enlist my services, I remain, Very sincerely,

"Very sincerely,

Make Farming a Business.

A young man who is now starting to farm needs to know his business. Through farm management demonstrations the county agent can show him his labor income, that is, what he had left of his receipts after paying expenses and allowing for interest on the investment and can show him how his labor income compares with those of the most successful farmers in that community. The showing will help him make a study of his farm business and to determine upon changes that should be made to make it more profitable.

YOUR LOYALTY TO COUNTRY'S CAUSE

ARE YOU MAKING SACRIFICES EQUIVALENT TO THOSE OF OUR SOLDIERS?

ALL CAN FIND WAY TO HELP

Make No Ridiculous Reservations; Hold Back Nothing; Share Your Money, Your Food and Your Clothing to Aid the Great War.

(By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER of the Vigilantes.)

A good woman was discussing the rules of the food administration.

"I am doing a lot for my country," she said, "but there are certain trifles that I do not intend to give up. Such as white bread and bacon."

"No," she said in response to my astonished look, "I mean to have white bread when I want it. Why should I eat corn bread and other substitutes? I like white bread just as much as the soldiers and sailors do. And, anyway, what difference can it make if I use a little white flour and a few slices of bacon every day? I am only one person."

Only one of millions! Suppose they all took that attitude!

"I am no slacker," she added. "I work at the Red Cross four afternoons of each week, and I have made dozens of knitted things for the soldiers. But I draw the line at bacon and white bread and rolls."

Is this patriotism? I remembered the text: "These things ought ye to have done, and not to have left the other undone."

Another good woman was talking of the next Liberty Loan drive.

"Well," she declared, "they need not come to me for help! I am a business woman, and I have lost money on headless Mondays, and since the government has made me do that I do not propose to help with their Liberty loan. I love my country, and I am a Red Cross worker, and all that—but there is a limit."

Should Be No Limit.

A limit! Is there any limit to what she would do if her nearest and dearest were fighting for his life? Would she stop to argue that she had given the suffered expensive woolen underwear, but that she drew the line at the renunciation of certain comforts so that he might have them? Would she be considered a good wife or mother or daughter if she held this attitude towards husband, child or parent?

Let us stop all these ridiculous reservations, these talks of what we will do and won't do. Let us hold back nothing. Do the women who are sending their sons abroad hold back anything? Do these sons grudge risking their beautiful youth, their lives, for their country? Yet some people hesitate at white bread and bacon, and refuse to buy Liberty bonds!

The last-named hesitation is not only unpatriotic, but it is absurd. Later we will know the meaning of the expression, "What I give I have." The money we invest in Liberty bonds will be ours when other money that we now have is gone.

All such talk as I have quoted is wickedly unpatriotic. Let us give as our sons give—ungrudgingly, proudly, because we are counted worthy to make sacrifices for the greatest crusade against evil that the world has ever known.

Make It An Honorable Service.

What would the Son of Righteousness say to our hesitation about trifling luxuries? He died for his cause. We women are not called upon to do that. (Some of us may wish that we were.) But we are called to sacrifice our selfishness for it.

I am not making light of the wonderful work done by those women who toil at Red Cross stations; I am not forgetting the noble and vast army of wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts who stop at nothing in their desire to help the war honorably.

But I hope that such sentences as I have quoted go no further than the tip of the tongue. If they do, shame to us who let such speech pass unrepented.

"His very living—such was Christ's giving."

We women "have not yet reached unto blood." But some of our men have, and—God help us!—many more may have to. Can we then endure the ignominy of receding back that even in our inner hearts we have passed to consider what delicacies we may use? Shall we not—in the language of our dear fighting boys—"cut out" all doubtful articles? And let us make of the trifling duty an honorable service. The cause enables all that it touches.

Win the War by Preparing the Land Sowing the Seed and Producing Bigger Crops

Work in Joint Effort the Soil of the United States and Canada

CO-OPERATIVE FARMING IN MAN POWER NECESSARY TO WIN THE BATTLE FOR LIBERTY

The Food Controllers of the United States and Canada are asking for greater food production. Scarcely 100,000,000 bushels of wheat are available to be sent to the allies overseas before the crop harvest. Upon the efforts of the United States and Canada rests the burden of supply.

Every Available Tillable Acre Must Contribute; Every Available Farmer and Farm Hand Must Assist

Western Canada has an enormous acreage to be seeded, but man power is short, and an appeal to the United States allies is for more men for seeding operation.

Canada's Wheat Production Last Year was 225,000,000 Bushels; the Demand From Canada Alone for 1918 is 400,000,000 Bushels

To secure this she must have assistance. She has the land but needs the men. The Government of the United States wants every man who can effectively help, to do farm work this year. It wants the land in the United States developed first of course; but it also wants to help Canada. Whenever we find a man we can spare to Canada's fields after ours are supplied, we want to direct him there.

Apply to our Employment Service, and we will tell you where you can best serve the combined interests.

Western Canada's help will be required not later than April 5th. Wages to competent help, $30.00 a month and up, board and lodging.

Those who respond to this appeal will get a warm welcome, good wages, good board and find comfortable homes. They will get a rate of one cent a mile from Canadian boundary points to destination and return.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect Union, one and inseparable, established upon those principals of freedom, equality, justice and humanity, for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag and defend it against all enemies."

Board of Regents Meet

Last Friday Jno. E. Bell and Wm. Reily were called to Alamogordo to attend the meeting of the Board of Regents of the New Mexico Institute of the Blind, at which meeting some business of a very important nature was transacted.

On account of the increase in the number of blind children in the state, it is necessary to increase the capacity of the Institute as rapidly as possible to conform to the appropriations, and there are quite a number of names of eligibles carried over each term which the capacity of the buildings will not accommodate.

At this meeting plans were accepted and contract let for an additional building, which will mean an additional expenditure cost of $10,000. The Board is very proud of the way in which the institution is conducted by Supt. Pratt and his capable assistants, every effort being put forth to make this Institute second to none in the west.

Messers Bell and Reily speak highly of the Institute as a whole, its management, and noble work being accomplished for the blind children of the state.

Branching Out

Gillett and Daniel have closed a contract for a residence building at Capitan which will cost $5,000. Mrs. Boane was the lady who let the contract. It will when finished, be one of, if not the best building in that part of the country.

YOUR FLAG AND MY FLAG

The Third Liberty Loan

The third Liberty Loan is now ready to be offered to the liberty loving people of this country. Patriotism, manliness, duty, principle and everything that goes to make and preserve our future, is at stake. The people must remember that they are not called on to make sacrifices in this case. They are not giving anything away. When one buys a Liberty Bond, he or she will simply make an investment in a Government Bond, which is the best piece of goods one can invest in.

Outside then of being a good and safe place to put your money, you are helping to form a bulwark of financial strength which will serve as a foundation on which will rest all our cherished hopes and ambitions, handed down to us by our forefathers who purchased this same Liberty and government, which without our timely support will be wrenched from us by monarchical cussedness.

The Government is not asking us for charity. It is asking us to help to maintain our freedom and to forever bury a devilish system that has for centuries eaten like a canker at the heart of freedom. It is now knocking with its skeleton hand at the peaceful gate of blood bought Liberty.

Then let there be no hesitating about the purchase of Liberty Bonds, for unless we wish to return to servitude, to a master whom we have been released from, unless we wish to see our land of the free reduced to a land of alavery, unless we would rather be ruled by kaiserism than to continue to live under the folds of the Flag we love so well, let us purchase Liberty Bonds ourselves, and do all in our power to uphold our country's cause. And if not able to do this, we can aid in other ways. But let us be up and doing, interesting ourselves continually in our country's affairs for the good of all concerned. With "Safety First" as our watchword, let us move forward.

—Come to the Outlook for fine job printing.

EVERYONE MUST HELP.

Wars cannot be fought without money, and upon the Treasury centers every financial demand upon the Nation.

The rich of this country cannot alone meet the needs of the Nation; the men of the country cannot do it alone; the women of the country cannot do it alone; but all of us, the people of the United States, disregarding partizanship, forgetting selfish interests, thinking only of the supremacy of right and determining to vindicate the majesty of American ideals and secure the safety of America and civilization, can do the great and splendid work which God has called upon us to do.

W. G. McADOO,
 Secretary of the Treasury.

The Sailor's Prayer

The following poem has been received from Mike Barnett, who is at Mare Island, and as Mike was always more or less poetical, we are not surprised that his name appears at the foot of this humorous poetry as its writer, Mike loves the Navy, and like the balance of the Carrizozo boys is straining at the leash to get into foreign waters and mix with the kaiser's forces. The "Sailor's Prayer" follows:

Now I lay me down to sleep
 I pray the Lord my soul to keep.
 Grant that no other sailor take
 My shoes and socks before I wake.
 Guard me in my peaceful slumber,
 Keep my hammock on its number.
 May no clews nor lashing break
 Let me down before I wake.

Keep me safely in thy sight,
 Grant us no fire drill tonight.
 In the morning let me wake
 Breathing scents of sirloin steak.

Lord protect me in my dreams,
 Make this better than it seems,
 Grant the time may swiftly fly,
 When I'll rest up in the sky.

In a snowy feather bed,
 Where I long to rest my head
 Far away from all these scenes,
 From a smell of half baked beans.

Take me back into the land,
 Where they don't scrub down
 with sand,
 Where no demon typhoon blows,
 And the women waste their clothes.

Lord, thou knowest all my woes,
 Feed me in my hungry throes.
 Take me back—I'll promise then
 Not to leave "C'zozo" again!

THREE YEARS LATER

Our father who art in Washington,
 Please, dear father, let me stay;
 Do not drive me now away.

Let me stay my thirty years.
 Wipe away my scalding tears,
 Please forgive me all the past,
 Things that happened at the mast;

Please do not my plea refuse—
 Let me stay another cruise.

Big Gun Shock Earth

Professor John A. Curtin, who is in charge of the Seismograph at the Canisus College in Baltimore, declares that the shocks from the explosions of the big long range guns with which Paris is being bombarded, have been recorded on the Seismographs all over the country.

This shock, he explained, causes the needle to record a small dot on the smoked paper on the cylinder of the earthquake detector.

Since Palm Sunday, Professor Curtin said, instruments all over the country have been showing the dots and the opinion is now that they are caused by the German cannon.

Professor Curtin said that he thought the cannon was securely bedded on concrete which rests on rock strata.

Activity of Psychologists

One of the Youngest of Sciences Is of Especial Aid to the Government

Psychology, one of the youngest of the sciences, but nevertheless one equipped with standardized methods of experimental procedure, is steadily answering the call to the colors. Eminent scientists from almost every field of knowledge have been summoned to give expert advice or to render continuous service as commissioned officers in the army. So heavy has been the levy that several of the Eastern universities have been compelled to cancel all their courses in psychology; other institutions are offering only a bare minimum of courses. The University of Illinois has been more fortunate in this respect. While several of its psychologists have been called away, the work of the department is pursuing a nearly normal course.

Capt. Madison Bentley of the department of psychology has for some time been president of the Cleveland aviation board. His work consists mainly in selecting aviators and examining them for color blindness, certain spatial perceptions, dizziness and general mental capacity. Prof. G. M. Whipple has also been asked to assist in formulating suitable mental tests for the selection of drafted men and for men in special lines of training.

In addition to the recognition of necessary abilities for the service, problems concerned with the localization of sounds in the air, discrimination of projectiles by sound, and the effects of high altitudes upon the memory are being worked out. Prof. Christian Ruckmick, also of the University of Illinois, is serving upon the committee for localization of sounds coming from any point in the air, under water or in the ground. Since few people have a sensitive ear to determine the position of an enemy gun by noting the sound of the projectile in its course, apparatus is being worked out for such detection.

Work in the cantonments consists in the apprehending of mental defectives and in noting special aptitudes of the men. In this way much waste of time and money for special training can be eliminated. Psychological problems of incapacity, shell-shock and re-education occupy the attention of another committee, and collaborating with them is a group of psychologists who are studying problems of vocational guidance and advice. Still another group has already done important work in determining and devising means to arouse emotions which result in maximum service from the men.

Saving Foodstuffs

By MRS. LUTHER BURBANK
Wife of Noted Plant Scientist

Did it ever occur to you that eating, sleeping and the large consumption of certain foods is more of a habit than a necessity to sustain life? The man or woman who has been used each morning to his or her ham or bacon, with eggs, will undoubtedly consider it practical starvation if asked to forego these habits, yet there are today millions of people on the earth who eat less in two days than you and I consume in one meal, but who are among the healthiest on earth.

Mrs. Burbank.

Study history, ancient Greeks, and you will find that the nations which used the plainest, simplest and most meager fare were among the strongest, while those who descended to table habits bordering upon gluttony rapidly retrograded. Why? Because the mind of the glutton is a dead mind. He cannot think, his whole body is sluggish, the organs are so clogged that they are unable to function properly and the result is physical and mental decay.

Eating is a matter of habit. We in America, the great land of plenty, have been accustomed to eat what we wished. For generations it has been the same until, from simplicity of eating, we have bordered closely onto excess. This is not true of everyone. America is not a nation of gluttons, but I do maintain that, on an average, we Americans consume perhaps twice as much as is necessary to sustain life, and that this very overconsumption has been the cause of more illness, more doctors' bills and more suffering than any other one cause.

In all life we are creatures of heredity. When Mr. Burbank wishes to produce a new flower he looks back into the past ages and finds all about the ancestors of that flower. He discovers that a flower which had once been fairly hardy and able to withstand rigorous winters, has become a delicate plant which must be tenderly nourished, or it will die. This condition is brought about through centuries of pampering. It has been artificially cared for, well watered, and thoroughly fertilized with the result that nature has not been called upon to give it protection.

And so it is with us. We have been reared in a land of plenty; a land of vast crops and rich food and, we have become soft. The savage who depends on his acute sense of smell, keen vision, and keenness of foot for his daily food is a wonderful animal. Nature provides him with all these essentials to sustain life. Take that same savage from his wild environment and daily struggle with life, place him in surroundings of plenty, and in two or three generations his descendants will have lost all of those wondrous senses their ancestor had developed. The American Indian is the most striking example of this we have today.

With these few facts before us let us now look into those little practices of saving which we all believe in trying to put into effect, but which many of us deem impossible, because habit has made us believe that we cannot live without certain things to eat and a certain quantity of each.

Kite Balloons Form Very Important Part of Naval and Military War Forces

"The observation balloon has been one of the important discoveries of the year," observes a writer in Aviation, who continues:

"Its value is indicated by the rapid growth of both personnel and craft. It is found today on every front, and almost every mile of that front, for the excellent reason that it has proved indispensable to the modern army in the field.

"The observation kite balloon, as at present used, was the invention of Captain von Sigfeld and Major von Parseval of the German army, and the craft was constructed by the Parseval Alrahlp company. The British army got its first idea of the kite balloon from the Belgians. Early in 1915 Squadron (now Wing) Commander Maitland was so much impressed by the excellent service it was giving the Belgian artillery that he laid a proposal for similar equipment before the board of admiralty. This was adopted, orders for the construction of the craft were placed and the British K-B made its first appearance in the war area in the early spring of 1915.

"As then constructed by the British, the balloon was found to be considerably more reliable than the spherical, being steeper and more airworthy, and therefore more accurate in observation.

"The great success of the first craft led to a demand for more, and the British naval authorities made experiments with them on ships at sea. More and more urgent grew the demand from both branches of the service, until today kite balloons form an important part of both naval and military forces.

"The work of these craft is too widely recognized to need repetition, further than to mention the danger to which a captive balloon is exposed from hostile airplanes. There is often not time enough to draw the balloon to the ground when an enemy machine appears, and the only protection is a friendly airplane, or the ever-ready parachute."

Cheap Fuel.

Today the question of fuel is a burning one, metaphorically as well as literally. In a series of very interesting tests recently conducted at the Ohio State university, natural gas was found to be the cheapest combustible. There are many places, however, where it is not available. A breakfast which cost one-fourth of a cent to cook with natural gas, costs nearly three and one-half cents to cook with soft coal, two and one-half cents with coal oil, over three cents with gasoline, and three cents exactly with electricity. Popular Science Monthly.

THE NATIONAL ARMY MAN

I'm a National army man;
My name and number is the same
Was call of fate to serve the state
As a National army man.

Take notice, Regular and Guard,
We pledge that nothing shall retard
Our effort great to emulate
Your just fame, sung by every bard.

For what is the great U. S. A.,
Whose call to colors we obey,
But hearthfire ray, and old church gray,
And the friends we meet every day?

And what is the flag of our choice,
At whose flutterings we rejoice,
But mantel fair, fit for the wear
Of the lass with gentle voice?

Sans the fire of the volunteer,
We pay with all good will and cheer,
One duty more, to meet the score
We owe to those whom we hold dear.

As a National army man
I'm sure that all my people can Say, when I die, in pride, that I
Was a National army man.

O'Connor Cites History in Connection With Troubles of the People of Ireland

If the Irish rebellion had not been followed by its sequel it would have been by this time forgotten and condemned by the vast majority of the Irish people; but, as a matter of fact, writes T. P. O'Connor in Cartoons Magazine, when the rebellion was put down by one of those extraordinary blunders so often committed in the management of Ireland by England, dictatorial powers were given into the hands of a soldier of not particularly marked intelligence. He declared he was going to put down sedition and rebellion in Ireland forever. Well, if he had read any Irish history he would have known that that had been said for six centuries. He then proceeded, in secrecy, in the darkness of cells, convicting on evidence not yet published, these unfortunate young men, and then taking them out in batches in the cold, bleak morning and executing them in the back yard of a jail. One of them was so severely wounded that he had to have planks put on each side of the chair on which he had to sit while he was being shot. All these executions produced a profound revulsion of feeling in Ireland and in America.

Now, that is the beginning of the trouble in Ireland. If you read history you will find that there has never been anything so incalculable in its effects upon the human soul as an execution for an ideal.

FOR A LAUGH

Great Falling Off.

"What is the trouble, dear?"
"Boo-hoo! I—I'm afraid Harold doesn't love me any more."
"Ridiculous! Didn't he say if you died he would shed a quart of tears?"
"Yes, but—but—boo-hoo; he used to say he'd shed a gallon."

Another Definition.

"What's an egotist?" asked Three-Fingered Sam.
"An egotist," replied Broncho Bob, "is a man that 'ud stop a regular card game and ask all hands to admire the way he plays solitaire."

No Royal Cracks.

"I wonder why they call golf the 'royal and ancient game?'"
"I don't know. I never heard of a king who could drive worth a cent."

L'Enfant Terrible.

"Your sister's a long time about making her appearance," ventured the young man who was calling.
"Well," answered the kid brother who was temporarily entertaining, "she'd certainly be a sight if she came down without making it!"

Looking Into It.

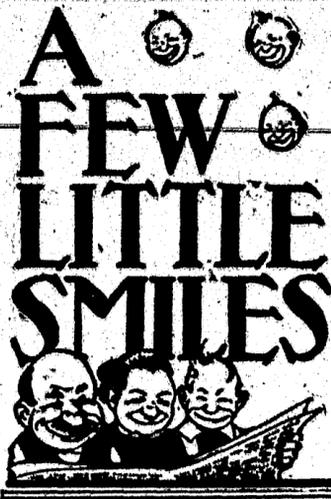

Mr. Stonbroke—Yes, we've lost all our money, but it was an act of providence.
His Wife—Don't pass the buck. It was your acts of improvidence.

His Part.

"My former maid has not been married a year yet, and already she is taking in washing."
"What is her husband doing?"
"Oh, he's taking in the proceeds."

His!

"I guess we're on the trail," declared the great detective. "Yonder is a shepherdess."
"What?"
"Now for the crook."

ROUGH GUFF.

"Yes, I've cut the slang stuff," Nell was telling her latest "gentleman friend." "Gee, but my talk was gettin' fierce! I'd worked up a line o' fable-material that had George Ade backed off the map and gaspin' for wind, but I've ditched all that now. I seen it was up to me to switch onto another track. Jammed on my emergency brakes one day and says to myself, 'You mutt, where you think you'll wind up if you don't slough this rough guff you're shovin' across on your unprotected friends? You never will land a Johnny-boy that's enough gray matter in his cupola to want a real, bang-up flossy lady for his kiddo instead of a skirt that palavers like a brainstorm with a busted steerin'-gear.' Any girl can talk like a lady, even if she never gets closer to one than to stretch her neck when some swell dame buzzes past in her gas-wagon. I says to yours truly, 'It's time to re-learn your grammar, little sister,' and you betcher sweet life I've cut the mustard."—Grit.

Woke Up Trembling.

"I had a terrible nightmare last night," said Mr. Dubwaite.
"Tell me about it."
"I dreamed my wife wanted me to go with her and hear a long-haired poet read from his own works."
"Well, well!"
"And something seemed to paralyze my tongue so I couldn't say no."

She Knew Him.

He (a great flirt)—Ah, dearest one, if you could look in my heart, you'd find your name written there in imperishable characters.
She—Tut, tut, my boy! Your heart would look like a hotel register.

SOMETIMES.

"A man can't do anything without money."
"That depends."
"Depends on what?"
"The man; if his credit is good he can get into debt."

Unavailable.

The poet vowed his luck was bad; in fact, distinctly cruel. A lot of burning thoughts he had; they were no good for fuel.

The Market.

"I'll give you five cents for dat egg," said Uncle Rasbury.
"No, suh," replied Mr. Erastus Pinkley.

"I'll give you ten cents."
"No, suh."
"Put another wif it an' I'll give you two bits."

"No, suh. An' I ain't got no moh time to stan' here an' talk. If eggs is gins up dat fast, I's gineter put dishere one in cold storage."

Poor Man.

The Photographer—Look pleasant, please.
The Man—How can I, when I've just paid the coal man and the plumber, and expect when I get home tonight to have my wife hand me her dressmaker's bill?

What Happened to Him.

"Dinks had an athletic stroke yesterday."
"Athletic stroke! You mean a paralytic stroke, don't you?"
"No; I mean just what I said. He got mixed up with a professional boxer."

LEMONS WHITEN THE COMPLEXION

ANY WOMAN CAN MAKE UP THIS CREAMY BEAUTY LOTION FOR A FEW CENTS.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, makes a whole quart pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach a darkened skin and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whiter and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.—Adv.

God help the rich—the poor are used to it.

KIDNEY SUFFERERS HAVE FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

Swamp-Root is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. According to verified testimony it is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you will find it on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Picking One for Him.

Two days before the senior prom I was strolling about the campus with my "best girl." I was lamenting the fact that she was going home for a visit the following day rather than waiting for the dance. I was not only sorry because she was going and I would be deprived of her company, but also because I feared I wouldn't be able to get a partner at the last minute. She suggested I ask a certain girl.

"Do you think she will go?" I queried.
"Oh, yes," said my lady, "I think so; she will go with most anyone."—Chicago Herald.

A Stern Winder.

Smith had just bought a new dog and took Jones to have a look at it. They hung over the stable door and peeped at the puppy, which was twisting round and round in a frenzied effort to catch its own tail.

"What sort o' dog do you call that?" asked Jones.

"A watch dog," replied Smith.
"Oh, I see!" remarked Jones. "I suppose he's winding himself up now?"

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription ointment—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of ointment—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it at night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength ointment, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

Drink Bevo! Drink Bevo!! Sold in all drug stores and at all soda fountains.—Carrizozo Trading Co.

Jake Caldwell left Monday for Arizona where he will look for a location for the future. He will go from here to Phoenix, from there to Bisbee, and if the prospects look favorable to him he will locate at one of these places, but he says that at any rate he will be an Arizonian from now on. His family will accompany him to their new home.
