What does it mean to you to know that your American Red Cross:

Is supporting 50,000 French children. Sends supplies to 3,423 French military hospitals. Provides 2,000 French hospitals with surgical dressings. Is operating thirty canteens at the front line. Is operating six other canteens at French railway junctions serving 30,000 French soldiers a day. Operates a movable hospital in four units, accommodating 1,000 men. Is operating a children's refuge in one part of the war zone; and in another a medical center and traveling dispensary, both capable of accommodating more than 2,000 children. Has opened a long chain of warehouses stocked with hospital supplies, food, soldiers' comforts, tobacco, blankets, etc., all the way from the seaboard to the Swiss frontier. Has warehouse capacity for 100,000 tons. Has 400 motor cars and operates seven garages, making all repairs. Has shipped 46 freight car loads of assorted supplies to Italy from France within two weeks after it began operating in the former country. Has a battery of motor ambulances at the Piave front four days after the United States declared war on Austria. Started a thousand different activities in Italy at the time that nation was in its most critical condition. Has established five hospitals in England and operates a workshop for hospital supplies employing 2,000 women. And that 120,000 cases of supplies have been received at the Paris headquarters of the American Red Cross from your various chapters scattered throughout the United States.

What does all this mean to you? And that is but a fraction of the work your Red Cross has done and is doing. It means that without this ceaseless, heroic work of the American Red Cross we could never win this war.

Without your Red Cross quick, vital help to keep Italy in the fight for Liberty, it would not have been possible. Without your Red Cross, thousands of French soldiers, now gallantly fighting for you at the front, would have died of wounds, exposure and lack of food.

And great and wonderful as has been the work of the American Red Cross in the past, still greater and more wonderful must it be in the future—for now your boy is in the fight.

Your Red Cross cannot neglect France, England, Italy, Serbia and little Belgium.

It must give them all constantly increasing help, for the men of these countries have been fighting our battles. But now we must all redouble our efforts and sacrifices for our Red Cross because a million mothers' sons are going to carry the stars and stripes to the greatest victory God has ever given to men fighting for honor and victory. With the help of your Red Cross, your boy will win.

"There's no hurry now," answered Donald.

Suddenly Davies' voice came up in agitated tones. "Donald!" he cried. "It looks as if the monsters are following MacBeard after all! Don't you see, they are with him, not us?"

"They wouldn't keep us in the center necessarily," said Donald. "Yesterday we nearly lost them."

"But then—do you suppose they are leading us somewhere?"

"I don't know," Donald answered. "Full speed!"

Donald, hazarding rocks, drove the F55 hard between the mighty walls of granite. In front of him he saw an open body of water, ringed with far-away hills. He was in Skjold fjord. But not a vestige of the monsters was to be seen.

Once through that gateway he lashed the wheel and went on deck. The quarry had disappeared. A glance assured him of that. The limpid water of the fjord lay motionless before him. Behind him the passage seemed to have closed.

He rushed back into the conning tower.

"Shut down!" he yelled to Davies. "Tell Clouts to let the anchor go. MacBeard has beaten us."

Davies, released from duty, rushed up, to find his chief standing at the entrance to the conning tower, a prey to abject despair.

"It's finished, Davies," he said wearily. "We're beaten. There's a missing factor in—that—damned equation of yours."

And he toppled over into Davies' arms, insensible from want of sleep. The tension of his nerves was broken.

Davies and Clouts carried him to his cabin and laid him down. They returned to the deck, almost equally despairing.

"The herd has left us, Clouts," said the middy. "I don't know—I can't understand it. Clouts," he continued, with a sudden inspiration, "do you think that you could induce the queen to sound that call again?"

"What, me, sir?" inquired Clouts, starting back. "Why—she's not a woman, sir, she's a devil incarnate! She won't eat, sir." His voice fell to a husky whisper. "And she won't wear the captain's blankets, sir."

"Perhaps she doesn't like them, Clouts. However—what are we to do?"

"I say, make for home, sir," said Clouts. "I never took no stock in the whole thing, Mr. Davies."

"What are you talking about, Clouts?"

"Why, sir, I never believed in it from the first, and I believe in it still less now. It's all a dream, sir. There never was no monsters."

"But you've seen them, Clouts. You've been under the sea with them!"

"Ah, I know, sir, that's what we both think," answered Clouts with a wise smile. "But it's just a dream, sir. I expect that German cruiser torpedoed us, instead of us torpedoing her; or maybe she sank us with her guns, and we're going to wake up in a German hospital in Hamburg in a moment. You haven't pinched yourself, sir?"

Davies was shaken. He looked at Clouts, blandly smiling at him, open-mouthed. He almost believed his theory. Clouts, unequal to the strain upon his limited mentality, had adopted a solution which seemed, under the circumstances, feasible.

"I think we'd better pinch each other, sir," said Clouts. "Mrs. Clouts always used to say, when in doubt—"

But, breaking off at this juncture, he pulled his mouth organ from his pocket and blew the most discordant medley of dissonants that ever issued from the apertures of that much-abused instrument.

To their amazement, the water was instantaneously churned into foam all round them. The F55 tossed like a cork upon the waves. A fleeting mist began to rise from the surface of the fjord.

"Hatches on!" gasped Davies, and they ran to save the F55 from submersion.

Hardly had they succeeded in this and reached the conning tower when Donald appeared at the head of the ladder below. His eyes were clear again; it seemed as if his half-hour of sleep had recreated him.

"What's happened, Davies?" he asked.

"The monsters! They're all about us!" cried the middy.

"Well, of course," said Donald. "You don't suppose I came here on a wild-goose chase, do you?"

"But you said we were beaten, sir, and—"

"Nonsense!" said Donald angrily. "They've been with us all the time. You don't expect that they can keep on condensing hydrogen forever without taking a rest, do you? Muscular fatigue, Davies. Hello!"

He pointed through the observation port, and, about a mile to port of them, they saw the motorboat, bobbing upon the agitated waves.

"We've got him, Davies," said Donald. "I knew it. I knew it all in my sleep—the solution and—and—it's going to be all right."

They were amazed at his resolution. He uttered his orders in a firm voice; he seemed now absolutely sure of his success. Through the port they watched the motorboat tossing toward them over the waves. They could make out MacBeard's figure beside the engine, Ida was doubtless within the cabin.

"Up anchor, Clouts," said Donald. "Davies, take the engine again."

Presently the submarine began to move so as to cut off MacBeard's egress into the open sea. Then, at Donald's command, they drew toward the motorboat.

MacBeard had seen them. He was working frantically at the engine. The inland sea still heaved, but it was beginning to subside as the monsters, forgetful of Clouts' mouth organ, began to draw toward the submarine again.

Then, for the third time, the imprisoned queen gave the swarming call. The sound, soft, yet incredibly voluminous, rolled from the interior of the ship and seemed to fill the universe. It was like a deep, soft note upon some mighty organ. And the response was instant.

For the third time the swarm, maddened by the call, leaped toward its leader. And, as on Fair Island, a tidal bore came on, a wall of water which struck the F55 and rendered her helpless in an instant. It dashed her round like a top, it drove her, uncontrollable, before it. In an instant the steering gear was disabled, and the vessel skidded through the waves toward the cliffs of the fjord, which grew larger with unbelievable swiftness.

It was the last voyage of the F55. The battered old submarine which had rendered such yeoman service, drove hard on the rocks. A needle point pierced her amidships, a score of razor edges rent her flanks. Slowly she sank, still spinning, into the seething waters that whipped the desolate shore.

As soon as they realized that nothing could be done, the three had gathered upon the deck and waited for the disaster. As the F55 struck they leaped into the sea. They escaped the hidden fangs of the rocks almost by a miracle. A few strokes, and Donald found himself upon the shore, which the waves were wildly lashing, and helping Davies to scramble out.

They gasped a moment and recovered their breath.

"Where's Clouts?" asked Donald anxiously. "Then they saw the sailor's head bobbing among the waves. He was apparently clinging to a point of rock with one hand, while he thrust the other down into the water."

"Clouts! Are you drowning?" Donald called. A bubbling sound replied. Donald waded into the sea, clinging to the projecting reef to save himself against the pounding waves. As he neared Clouts, the latter straightened himself and sighed regretfully.

"What is it, Clouts? Are you badly hurt?" asked Donald. "No, sir," he gasped. "But I've—I've lost it, sir!"

Donald grasped him and pulled him through the breakers to dry land ungently. At that moment Clouts had strained his patience severely with his lost mouth organ.

"Look, sir!" said Davies, when the three stood together once more.

Two hundred yards away MacBeard and Ida were standing beside the motorboat. MacBeard's light craft, built upon scientific principles of his own devising, had once again established its worth. The waves—and luck—had driven it ashore uninjured. And MacBeard seemed to be inviting Ida to re-enter it.

The game seemed in MacBeard's hands once more.

"Come!" shouted Donald, starting forward.

But before he had broken into a run Clouts stood barring his way.

"I've found her, sir!" he shouted. "Look, sir!"

Donald was on the point of knocking the sailor down. His mouth organ had become a justification for homicide.

But Clouts was not making reference to his mouth organ just then. A cry from Davies stopped Donald upon the verge of delivering his blow. Donald started and saw, close to his side, the evanescent, nebulous outlines of the queen of the swarm.

And in that moment the memory of Ida faded from his mind. He stared at her like a man bewitched.

Her face, which had always been the most conspicuous part, was strangely clouded. It was, indeed, as if a veil of vapor had been drawn over it. It seemed to cover her, like a long bridal veil, giving her the aspect of a shrouded figure.

Davies did not stay to watch that meeting. Neither did Clouts. They started at full speed toward MacBeard, who, already having launched his motorboat upon the waves, was holding out his hand to Ida.

She hesitated and drew back. They were only fifty paces away. And, torn between her pledge and the desire to see Donald for one last moment on earth, the girl stood waiting.

Donald, alone with the queen, looked into her face and was aware of nothing else.

She raised her arms, slowly she threw off the draperies of clinging mist that covered her head. She stretched her arms out toward him. She fell upon her knees.

Her face was visible now, and Donald was aware of a startling change in it. The beauty that had dazzled him was gone. A milky pallor, spreading along the veins and arteries, suffused the flesh. The same change was passing over her that had passed over the dying monster in the house in Baltimore.

With horror Donald realized that she was dying.

She crouched at his feet; she raised her eyes to his once more in that mute yearning. And her face was that of an aged woman.

For a few seconds longer the eyes looked into Donald's. Then, without closing, they seemed to glaze. A film passed over them, and, with a shudder, the queen fell at his feet—dead!

She had given her life in payment for her disobedience to the racial law. It is by such disobedience that the race evolves into something higher than itself.

By such man rose from his apelike ancestry. By such, some day, wars and all wrongs will cease.

Donald tore the coat from his shoulders and covered the body of the aged woman—thing before him.

CHAPTER XVIII.

MacBeard Finds His Destiny.

He gazed at it still hypnotized; he was trying to fight his way back into consciousness. For a few moments he did not know where he was, or what was happening.

Then, gradually, he began to be aware of his surroundings. He saw the body at his feet, and the high cliffs about him. And in the distance he saw Clouts and Davies running toward the motorboat.

Ida stood, watching Donald. She was still hesitating. MacBeard had found that he could start his engine. His hand was on hers. Davies and Clouts were fifty paces away.

"Come!" said MacBeard. The girl shuddered, and suddenly she leaped into the boat. MacBeard threw himself against the gunwale and pushed it into deep water. He sprang aboard. He was twenty paces from the shore when his pursuers arrived at the water line. Davies whipped out his revolver.

MacBeard crouched behind Ida and raised her body before him for a shield. The girl knew nothing of this maneuver, for she had fainted.

"Surrender, you blackguard," shouted Davies, hoarse with passion.

MacBeard, trembling, covered behind the girl. With his hand, stretched out behind her, he guided the little craft. The distance was increasing swiftly.

Davies let his revolver hand fall. He knew that at that distance it was impossible to hit MacBeard with any certainty. And he could not run the risk of shooting Ida.

Impetuously he plunged into the water. At first his desperate strokes seemed almost to carry him as fast as the motorboat. But soon this was shown to be delusive. The distance was increasing every instant. Davies clung to a ledge of rock and panted for breath. He shook his free fist at MacBeard, who laughed scornfully.

He had seen the F55 settle beneath the waves, and knew that by no possible chance could Donald catch him.

He turned to Ida, who was just opening her eyes. He took her hand. It lay limp and cold in his own. He saw her shudder, and a diabolical fury overcame him. He struck her across the face with his open hand.

WAR DOGS AND CATS NEEDED

Bureau of Mines Can Use Great Numbers for Experiments With Gas Masks.

If you raised Fido to be a hero send him to the bureau of mines. And if there is a tom cat about the premises who shows signs of heroic qualities send him along, too. The bureau of mines is anxious to get canine and feline heroes right now. They can be devoted to a very useful purpose, one that may be the means of saving the lives of hundreds of American soldiers.

The bureau is using cats and dogs in experiments with gas masks that will be supplied to American soldiers at the front. Hundreds of animals can be used and the bureau recently sent out a call for more of them. In each case the animals are shipped at government expense.

The Yale Medical School at New Haven also is conducting experiments with gas masks and can use almost any number of dogs and cats.

The well-known fact that, when using the eyes for any near work, the illumination should come from the left side rather than the right is often disregarded. Let anyone who considers the matter of little importance once demonstrate to himself the difference and he will never forget it. Take a pencil and paper and try to write while in such a position that the light will fall from the right side. The shadow of the hand or pencil or both is thrown on the paper in such a way as, partly to cover the characters one is making. This necessitates a closer viewpoint and a conscious strain on the eyes. Now let the position of the writer be reversed so that the light falls on the work from the left side. He will notice that the shadows fall away from the work he is doing and leave the field unobscured. In making the change he cannot help but notice the feeling of ease that immediately is experienced by the eyes. This applies to any other kind of near work in which the fingers work under the guidance of the eyes. This fact should be remembered in planning school-rooms, workrooms, offices and any places where steady close work is to be performed.

Origin of Life on Planets.

The many speculations that have been published concerning the origin of life on the earth and on any other bodies in the universe where it may possibly exist usually assume that, in some way or other, "life germs" are transported across the gulfs of space from one planet to another. Thus it has been suggested that life may have been brought to the earth in meteors. One of the most recent suggestions is that minute "life germs" may escape from the atmosphere of a planet in which life exists, just as molecules of the atmospheric gases are believed to escape from our terrestrial atmosphere, and may be driven by light-pressure to some world where physical conditions have become suitable to support life. While there is nothing essentially absurd in these hypotheses, it is not clear why their authors should take it for granted that life cannot originate de novo on a cooling planet.—Scientific American.

A Spectacled Dog.

A short time ago, an article was widely published about a valuable hunting dog which had been fitted with eyeglasses for astigmatism. Probably most people who read it, laughed and thought it a fake.

The modern science of fitting eyeglasses, however, makes it possible to fit a dog, or any other dumb animal, with a lens which will correct its eyesight. Up-to-date methods have brought about the invention of instruments by which the error of the human eye can be accurately measured, and lenses to correct the error prescribed without asking the patient a single question. The "silent method" is very rarely used exclusively, however, except in the case of the foreigner, or our friend the dog, when no interchange of thought can be effected and the examiner must rely entirely upon the findings of his instruments.—Wellsworth Magazine.

NERVES GAVE OUT

Serious Kidney Trouble Had Made Life Miserable, But Doan's Removed All the Trouble. Hasn't Suffered Since.

"I had such severe pains in my back," says Mrs. Albert Akroyd, 304 W. Indiana Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., "that they almost doubled me up. Many a day I could not do my housework and I every now and then it seemed as if my back would break in two. My feet and ankles swelled until I had to wear large-sized slippers and sometimes I couldn't stand up."

Mrs. Akroyd

"I had dizzy spells and dreadful headaches and a fiery flush passed before my eyes. Had a heavy weight been resting on my head, the pain could not have been more distressing. The least noise startled me, I was so nervous. I couldn't control the kidney secretions and the pain in passage was awful."

"It began to look as though my case was beyond the reach of medicine until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box benefited me and four boxes cured all the troubles. I have had no further cause for complaint."

Many a persuasive woman has made a dumb waiter answer.

Red-blooded men of courage are on the firing line—and there are many anemic, weak, discouraged men and women left at home.

At this time of the year most people suffer from a condition often called Spring Fever. They feel tired, worn out, before the day is half thru. They may have frequent headaches and sometimes "pimply" or pale skin.

Bloodless people, thin, anemic people, those with pale cheeks and lips, who have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition in the springtime of the year, should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alternative and blood purifier. Such a one is extracted from Blood root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Queen's root and Oregon Grape root, made up with chemically pure glycerine and without the use of alcohol. This can be obtained in ready-to-use tablet form in sixty-cent vials, as druggists have sold it for fifty years as Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a standard remedy that can be obtained in tablet or liquid form.

A good purge should be taken once a week even by persons who have a movement daily, in order to eliminate matter which may remain and cause a condition of auto-intoxication, poisoning the whole system. To clean the system at least once a week is to practice health measures. There is nothing so good for this purpose as tiny pills made up of the May-apple, leaves of aloes and jalap, and sold by almost all druggists in this country as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, sugar-coated, easy to take.

DEATH AND CREMATION--GROWSOME FIND NEAR MT. SPRINGS

E. W. Brown Victim of Lightning Stroke Followed by Burning of Car and Cremation of Body

Last Saturday morning, E. W. Brown, a well-known ranchman of this locality, started from his home, the Hopeful Tank Ranch, to come to Carrizozo. Everything went well with him until he reached the Mountain Springs when the hub came off one of the wheels of the car, putting the entire working gear out of commission.

After waiting for some time, he was picked up by Ira Johnson who brought him to Carrizozo, and he at once solicited the aid of Mrs. Belle Garven, his sister-in-law, and after providing themselves with a new hub and other necessary accessories to repair the car, they returned to the scene of the accident. They succeeded in repairing the car and made a start for this city; they had not gone more than one mile however, before it began to rain, accompanied by much thunder and lightning. Mrs. Garven, who was running in the rear of Mr. Brown, noticed his car suddenly come to a stop and thinking the car had again went to the bad, slowed up to ascertain the cause of the trouble. On reaching the car she noticed that Mr. Brown was sitting in an unnatural position, and on an investigation found that he was dead, and that his death was caused by a stroke of lightning.

Mrs. Garven noticed smoke issuing from the car, but her only thought being the one of soliciting aid, hurried to Oscuro and telephoned Sheriff Hyde, who in turn hastened to the place designated by the message. During the time of her absence, the car had taken fire, and the sheriff upon his arrival saw a sight that beggars description; instead of finding the auto with its dead occupant, he found nothing but a heap of ashes on the top of which rested the charred remains of E. W. Brown. The body was burned to a crisp, the only part recognizable being the head, and the skull resembled a cracked egg shell through which the cooked brains of the deceased protruded. It was a gruesome sight. Undertaker Kelley was notified and brought all that could be found of the remains to the city.

On Monday, a coroner's jury composed of Chas. Thornton, who acted as coroner, R. L. Burns, Chas. T. Grey, John Corwin, D. L. Wilson, Lee Lutterell and Dr. Ranniger, all of Oscuro, investigated the case and rendered a verdict setting forth the fact that the deceased came to his death by being struck by lightning.

E. W. Brown lived on his ranch at the north end of the San Andres mountains and owned probably the largest private reservoir in the southwest. He came to this part of the country in 1880 and has followed ranching continually since locating here. He was well known in the Rio Grande valley. He leaves a wife and one son, and has two brothers, one living in Arizona and the other in southwestern New Mexico.

Mrs. Brown came in Tuesday and after consulting with Undertaker Kelley and other close friends, decided to bury the remains in Carrizozo, consequently interment was made at 3 p. m. in the local cemetery on the same day.

Additional Information

In obtaining the information in connection with the sad death of E. W. Brown, our informant overlooked the fact that Mr. Brown had six children instead of one. Mrs. Orville Clarke of Roswell; Bessie, Francis, and Ernst of Alamogordo; James, of Magdalena, and Stephen who is at present living on the home ranch. The entire family were present at the funeral, and remained over until Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. B. Garven.

Two Sweet Flowers in Path of Grim Reaper Cut Down

Between the going down of the sun Saturday evening and its rising Sunday morning, the shadow of death brooded over the cribs of two of Carrizozo's sweet babies and tore away the tenderest cords of two mother's hearts.

Leona May Coplin

About two weeks ago, Mrs. Coplin, who it will be remembered, came home with her mother Mrs. Albert Ziegler from Seattle for a visit, and brought with her Baby May with the intention of visiting her old home for several weeks. The little visitor at once attached itself to the ties of the Ziegler home, but the flower was to bloom only for a short time. Shortly after their arrival, the little one became afflicted with fever. The best of medical aid was secured, but she gradually grew worse and last Saturday she passed away. The remains were taken to El Paso Monday for interment. The Ziegler and Coplin families have the sympathy of the entire community.

Baby Margaret Hey

Coincident with the above sad occurrence, little Margaret Hey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hey, ceased her sufferings at an early hour last Sunday morning. She was at first attacked with whooping cough, which later developed into pneumonia and resulted in her death. She was possessed of a sweet, friendly disposition, and during the time of her affliction, a strong constitution and friendly nature was plainly evident until the last tender thread of life was broken. R. C. Burke of Greenburg, Ind., father of Mrs. Hey, was notified of the child's illness and arrived the day before the baby died. The body was embalmed by Undertaker Ed Kelley, and Mr. and Mrs. Hey and Mr. Burke left on No. 2 Sunday afternoon for Greenburg where the remains will be interred in the family cemetery.

As the choicest flower in the garden will sometimes wither and die under the careful attention of the attendant, so these little sweet rays of glad sunshine are taken from us by the arch enemy of mankind—death—leaving our lives barren and desolate with no answer coming back from the great beyond in answer to the despairing heart.

Baird-Husband

Last Sunday morning at 9 o'clock at the personage of the Methodist Church in El Paso, with the Rev. Knickerbocker officiating, Mr. Roy Baird of Carrizozo and Miss Reina Husband of Mason, Texas, were united in marriage. A few close relatives of the contracting parties were present as it was the desire of both Mr. and Mrs. Baird that the wedding be solemnized in a quiet manner.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Husband of Mason, Texas, and being reared in that locality has a large circle of friends whose best wishes will follow the happy couple through life. Of Mr. Baird, it may be said, that he is not only one of our foremost bright business young men, but his friends are many, and enemies, if he should possess any, have never so expressed themselves.

He has been in the employ of Rolland Brothers, as drug clerk, for years and continually makes new friends for himself and new customers for firms he represents. The newly married couple will make Carrizozo their future home, and the Outlook extends the hand of welcome to the young couple in the morning of their new life, and as they enter into the responsibilities of the future, may their career be one of undisturbed happiness.

Will Be Here May 15th

H. W. Lewis, District Supt. of the employment service of the department of labor of the federal government over New Mexico and Texas, will be here May 15th. Mr. Lewis is touring the two states establishing labor bureaus in pursuance of the government's policy of helping employer and labor to get together with the least possible expense and loss of time.

His first branch established in New Mexico was at Deming and will be followed up by other branches at different points throughout the state. Mr. Lewis is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kelley of Carrizozo and his visit here will be looked forward to with great pleasure by the Kelley family in general.

Going on a Long Journey

Mrs. J. D. Baker received a letter from her husband, who is in the service, stationed on the eastern coast. Mr. Baker stated in the course of his letter, "We are going on a LONG JOURNEY" which conveys the impression that his detachment is going to ride the seas in search of the kaiser's "pets."

Livestock Commission's Sale

The Carrizozo Livestock Commission Co., sold 45 head of fine cattle last week to T. C. Bragg, who removed the herd to his ranch on the Bonito. This important company is negotiating for deals of this nature, and heavy contracts between ranchmen and the company may be expected at any time.

Mrs. Gurney Builds

Mrs. Gurney of the Carrizozo Eating House is erecting a new building on Alamo ave., the front of which will be occupied by W. W. Stadtman with his abstract office. Living apartments will be arranged in connection with the office.

Ben West's Mother Dies

Some two weeks ago Ben West being notified of his mother's illness at Alpine, Tex., hastened to her bedside. After his arrival however, her condition improved to such an extent that Mr. West feeling more confident, returned to Carrizozo and took up his duties with the railroad company. He had not been here long before he received summons that his mother was dead.

Acting on the advice received, Mr. West took the next train and arrived in Alpine in time to attend the funeral, and on Sunday last he returned. Mrs. West was well along in years, having lived as all good American mothers have, a life of sacred usefulness, and has passed in her turn to the reward of the faithful.

What Was in Him

"Children" said the teacher while instructing the class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but simply be yourselves and write what is in you. Do not imitate any other person's writings or draw inspiration from outside sources."

As a result of this advice Johnny Wise turned in the following composition:

"We should not attempt any flights of fancy, but rite what is in us. In me there is my stum-mick, hart, liver, two apples, one piece of pie, one stick of lemen candy and my dinner."

Don't Write "Gloom" Letters

In a recent statement the War Department strongly advises against "gloomy" letters to soldiers:

Recent reports from commanding generals of certain Army divisions indicate that one of the fruitful causes of soldiers absenting themselves without leave is the discouraging letter from home. Such letters frequently give alarming and exaggerated reports of conditions surrounding the soldier's family, that some member is desperately ill, that all are starving, or that they are being in some way harrassed. In instances such letters have so preyed upon the minds of the soldiers that they have absented themselves without leave to go home, only to find that conditions had been grossly exaggerated.

MANY HORSES ARE USED BY ARMIES

Shortage of Animals Means Losses of Cannon and Prevents Rapid Advance.

47,000 A MONTH ARE KILLED

About 80 Per Cent. of Animals Wounded Are Sent Back to the Front After Treatment in Red Star Hospitals.

New York.—Necessity of sending hundreds of thousands of horses to France for the American artillery units and of establishing hospitals for the treatment of wounded animals is emphasized by Dr. W. O. Stillman, president of the Red Star animal relief, in bulletins upon the work of the organization. He said that the Germans had lost many batteries of field pieces because of lack of animals to draw them to safety during allied advances, while fewer guns had been lost by the British partly because they had large numbers of horses.

4,500,000 Horses in Use.

Figures compiled by the society show that there are 4,500,000 in use by all the armies in the war, and that the losses on the western front alone have averaged 47,000 a month. In a three-mile front at Verdun the French lost more than 5,000 horses. About 1,500,000 of the horses were bought by the allies in America and were transported with large losses. About 33,000 died on this side after they had been purchased and were awaiting shipment to Europe and 6,000 died in the ships. The value of the horses shipped to Europe last year was more than $50,000,000 and the loss for a heavy month of fighting is about $1,500,000. There are about 22,000,000 horses in America, and the estimates are that an American army of 2,000,000 men will need about 750,000 horses for draft purposes and mounts, and several hundred thousands more to fill up the losses of battle. The need of shipping to maintain this force at highest efficiency, to transport animals to fill the losses, with only part of the fodder, would be 50 ships a month.

Fighting units can deal only with well animals. As soon as a horse becomes sick, diseased, shell-shocked or wounded it must be removed to the rear and a sound, vigorous animal sent forward to take its place. Thousands of animals are in the hospitals at one time. They must be cured as quickly as possible to take the places of the injured which are certain to reach the hospital.

Animal Hospitals.

Behind the British lines animal hospitals are everywhere. To the left, to the right, there is a hospital not more than four miles away, and eight miles away from each is another. The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has hospitals for 10,000 horses and mules. A field hospital is no mere stable shack. It is a group of well-designed buildings, complete with operating rooms, operating equipment, ambulances, forage barns, cooking kitchens, quarters for the staff, and every other detail necessary for curing and restoring thousands of wounded animals. It must have an ample staff of veterinarians and helpers—not mere stablemen, but men with experience in animal hospital work, who can bandage a wound or give a hand to the veterinarian who is performing an operation. They are saving 80 per cent of the horses and sending them back to their batteries again.

The German postal authorities are organizing a telephone service between the large cities and the army fronts. Conversation cannot last longer than nine minutes.

AMERICAN GUNNERS

The heady "seventy-fives," the pride of France and the fear of Germans, have been manufactured in abundance in the war plants of our sister republic, and many have been loaned to our artillerymen until the arrival of our own guns from America.

BLONDES ARE FIDGETY

Brunette Typists Are Preferred by Uncle Sam.

Washington.—The blonde typewriters of America have reason to fidget from the government estimate of them. It appears that the glowing tributes heretofore bestowed upon them by the tired business man have been as inaccurate as have been the exceedingly biased estimates of the tired business man's wife.

The blonde typewriter, though a joy to the eye, is nervous, temperamental and other than steady, so the government has decided.

When the government undertook to pay its new, growing and splendid army it was found necessary to hire a few acres of typewriters. Every available loft, hospital, dance hall and store in Washington was fitted out as a place in which typists might type, and so great was the volume of work that the utmost care was taken in the matter of employing help. Things had to be done accurately, quickly and continuously, and the types of typists were considered at length by persons qualified to know a star key rattle, at a glance.

Well, sir, more than 3,000 typists were at work before a blonde typist was accepted. Every brunette available had been pounding the keyboard for days before it was finally decided that the light-locked element must be admitted through force of circumstance. There were no more brunettes typewriters out of work.

Then came the beautiful blonde spring drive. They came with blue eyes, dimples, little curls, golden Psyche, pink ears and smiles which made the grouchy experts dizzy but unconvinced. They knew that all this outward dazzle did not alter the fact that every blonde cherub was as nervous as a kitten, and that in a burst of temperament might very well send a major general's pay check to an obscure corporal.

But they were employed, and now each blonde in the government service sits between two brunette typists who devote themselves to the tasks of doing their work and steadying their golden-haired companion at the first sign of hysteria.

MAKE VAGRANTS WORK

Georgia Is No Place for the "Weary Willies."

Governor Puts Into Force Machinery That Will Reach Them in That State.

Savannah, Ga.—Wee, to every "Weary William" that brings himself Georgiaward in the quest of rest and peace under the balmy Southern skies from now on.

As a war measure Gov. Hugh Dorsey has put into force machinery designed to force every vagrant in Georgia to go to work, and it will be systematically and persistently followed up by him as a means of relieving the farm labor shortage.

To meet the situation Governor Dorsey has addressed a special and urgent communication to every county council of defense in the state requesting them to put in operation the following plan:

- 1. Join forces with their sheriffs, solicitors and superior court judges to arrest and convict all vagrants.
2. To give the vagrants the choice of going to the chain gang or going to the farm, and probation them to work on farms under proper supervision.
3. Follow up the prosecution of vagrants with the utmost persistence and vigor, making it certain of punishment for vagrants, that idle men will go to work voluntarily.

Governor Dorsey believes it is the duty of every state to force every idle man to work before it calls on the government to furlough men from military service. He believes there are thousands of men loafing in cities and towns throughout the state. He believes the sheriffs and courts will be glad to join in a state-wide crusade, which shall not be relaxed, to put these men to work. He believes the man power thus conserved will greatly, if not entirely, relieve the farm labor shortage. As he points out, Georgia's vagrancy law is one of the best, while Georgia's probation law exactly fits in with the present situation by enabling judges to send convicted vagrants to work on the farms.

FINDS PEARL WORTH $2,500

Discovery in Black River in Missouri Sends Whole County Wild With Excitement.

West Plains, Mo.—A pearl, said to be worth $2,500, was found in a shell in the Black river, near here, and the county is wild with excitement. A stranger stepped into the store of Mel Fry a few days ago and showed him a pearl as big as a hazel nut sticking in a shell. The two soon came to terms.

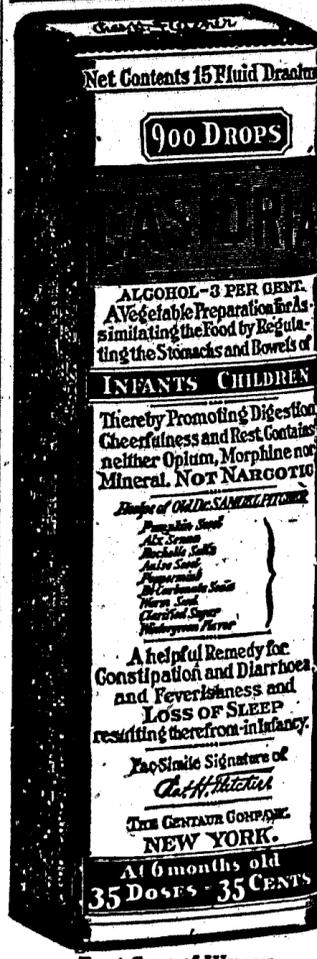

A few days later pearl buyers made an offer of $2,000 to Mr. Fry for the pearl the way it stood and $2,500 if it proved perfect. It weighs 180 grains. Fry refused to sell.

ARE YOU FOR AMERICA OR FOR GERMANY?

Which Will YOU Wear?

The Kaiser would gladly confer the Iron Cross on the man who gives aid and comfort of the THIRTY LIBERTY BOND

UNCLE SAM proudly gives the Liberty Bell to the man who buys a THIRTY
LIBERTY BOND

You think this an unnecessary question, but stop and think! A traitor is a man who gives aid and comfort to the enemy. Do you know of any better way of giving aid and comfort to the enemy than to leave your money in the bank doing nothing, when it could be used by the Government to build ships, make ammunition, and so help win the war? The Kaiser would ask nothing more of an American friendly towards Germany. He could hardly ask him to openly fight the Government of this country, because he would go straight into an internment camp, but he would ask him to do all in his power to hold up contribution of money to the allied cause, because the Kaiser knows that at the very end it will be money and resources, and nothing but money and resources, that will beat him to his knees.

You may say "If I do not subscribe to the Loan that is no reason why other people should not, therefore the matter is entirely a personal one." It is not. Example is everything in such matters. If you subscribe freely your neighbors will subscribe freely. If you are a tightwad your neighbors will see no reason why they should be anything else but tightwads.

Do not feel offended at having this matter put up to you so plainly. There is many and many a good American who believes that he has done his full duty when he has not done it at all. This war is now three thousand miles away, and it is a little hard to realize all the grave necessities of the situation.

Read over a perfectly true incident which occurred only last week at the Union Station, Dallas. The writer of these lines vouches for the truth of the story, which follows:

"Last night I saw a soldier taking leave of his mother at a railroad station. The two drew away from the crowd, the woman threw her arms around the boy's neck, and looked up at him as she sobbed words which will remain forever sacred to the occasion.

For a moment I could not see very clearly, and as a consequence I bumped into a friend of mine, a man, by the way, who has made more money this year than ever before in his life. After a friendly greeting he said, 'Say, you fellows are hitting us up pretty hard on this Liberty Loan business. Do you realize that we are having to make some terrible sacrifices to meet our quota?'

"My friend has a business, owns farm land, and has a substantial bank balance; he has no boy in the army, and he has subscribed ten thousand dollars to the Liberty Loan. His sacrifice consisted of the loss of about one and three-quarters per cent on ten thousand dollars, for probably he would have secured six per cent instead of four and one-quarter per cent had he invested his money in some way other than the purchase of Liberty Bonds.

"What is the matter with my friend? Is he a pro-German or a traitor, or a poor American even? Not a bit of it! He just has not the right glasses for his mental vision. He doesn't see things quite right. That's all. He will, though—I am sure of it."

WHAT OF THE ALIEN FREE

We have hordes of aliens in this country; we have lately put them all under registration so as to have them marked so to speak and now the question is, what shall we do with them? It is a well known fact that these same creatures have been constantly lying in wait for the opportunity to take the places of our boys who were to enter the service, and not only this but have in countless instances, taken advantage of firms and corporations and under the strained conditions of the need of help, compelled them to pay an increased price for service which was far inferior to that our own boys furnished.

The question has been asked, what shall we do with the alien prisoners? and this has been answered by the government issuing an order to put them to work. Not with gloved hands and at delicate occupations, but at good old American out of door exercise with a man's sized shovel on the public roads. Not with a sissy superintendent over them who will "mister" the skunks, but with a genuine sandpaper handed American "boss," who, when the shovel comes up will expect to see some mud come with it.

What of the alien free? This question should be answered by the government taking them over, and instead of working as they do now, at increased wages to what our own were receiving, compel them to work in our factories and mines under government supervision at the same money our boys are receiving. Is there any injustice about this? Is there a proposition as this un-American? While they are here should they not be compelled to assist the government? The Outlook takes this position: that as patriots at the front are sacrificing their lives, and patriots at home are doing their "damndest," these aliens, bond and free, should be compelled to do their "damndest" to help win this war, willingly or unwillingly.

SHOWER BATHS FOR CHILDREN

Up in the mountains, where the snow falls early and lies deep, 80 miles from Lyons, is the little French village of Les Halles—a story book village, with its massive stone church standing sentinel over two long rows of trim, blue-gray plaster cottages. And a mile farther on is the Chateau des Halles, where your Red Cross has established a home for 200 sick children.

Mangini built the chateau. Mangini was the man who built the railroad along the Riviera and many other railroads in France. And thirty odd years ago he built this castle up in the mountains for his country home. But soon after his two children died. Then he died, and when his widow followed him she left the chateau to the city of Lyons to be used as a hospital for children.

The War's Wreckage.

Then came the war. A little rivulet of the war's wreckage began to trickle in at Evian—"repatriates," elderly men and women, children, even babies, who had once lived in the parts of France engulfed by the German tides and whom the Germans, finding them useless, were beginning to ship back into France by way of Switzerland. Gradually this rivulet swelled. Soon 1,000 of these unfortunates were arriving at Evian daily. And fully half of them were children, undernourished, thinly clad, dirty, sickly and, worse, grim, spiritless, with faces that had forgotten how to smile.

To care for these children was the task your Red Cross at once assumed. Working with the French authorities, the Red Cross secured permission to make use of the old and almost forgotten Chateau des Halles up there in the mountains. For years the castle had been closed. No effort had ever been made to fit it up as a hospital. Your Red Cross had to begin at the very beginning.

Rooms Big and Jolly.

But what a wonderful task it has accomplished! The Chateau des Halles, transformed into a children's hospital and rest home in furious haste under the terrible pressure of war needs, with little time to think twice and no time to retrieve errors, is not only one of the most complete establishments of its kind; it is one of the best children's hospitals in all France. The two rooms where the arriving children are isolated for a few days are big, jolly rooms—just what is need to efface from the little ones' minds the memories of those iron days behind the German lines. The big play room is strewn with rocking horses and wonderful smile-enticing parrots and other toys carved by the wounded poilus.

And so you stray from room to room, and everywhere you find new evidences of this watchful care. And then you reach the bathrooms. This chateau was built by a man of wealth. Its plumbing was excellent, and yet it has been stripped out and replaced with little, low wash basins and little shower baths that the children can use more comfortably.

That is how your Red Cross thinks and cares for France's children.

HER WEIGHT IN GOLD.

An Aviator's Letter Tells What a Red Cross Nurse is Worth.

"As for the American Red Cross—well, I could never in a thousand years express my appreciation and admiration of those American women. I worship them. I guess all the fellows do. The first day I came into camp—and my morale was right low; I'll tell you about it some time—well, I went into the American Red Cross, and there, standing behind a nice clean counter, was a little round faced Red Crossite. She was just beaming on every one. Imagine! I never came as near making a fool of myself in my life. I felt like throwing my arms around her and weeping for joy. As it was, I managed to salt up my chocolate a bit—only a drop or two that I couldn't help rolling off my cheek. "If I ever paint an angel it will look just exactly like that little Red Crossite. They would be worth their weight in gold if they did nothing but just be here."

FOOD CONTROL MEANS VICTORY

European Shortage Places Problem Before American Government—Farsighted Policy Adopted.

NEED 75,000,000 BU. WHEAT.

Food Administration Asks Aid of Every American in Gigantic Task of Feeding Millions.

It is the food problem over there that makes a food problem over here. If we wished to be supremely selfish—and supremely shortsighted—we could go on eating as much as we like and whatever we like, without much difficulty or interruption—at least, until the Germans came!

But we are not doing things in that selfish and suicidal way. We are trying to make a great common pool of all of our food, and all of the food of the allies, and all of the food we can get from South American and other neutrals, and dividing it up fairly among America, England, France, Belgium and Italy.

This does not mean that all of the people in the great pool are going to have the same ration, but means that we are trying to arrange to have enough for everybody, so that the soldiers—our soldiers and their soldiers—will be well fed, as they have to be to fight hard and continuously, and that the munitions workers and the workers in all the other necessary industries, and the men and women at home will all have enough to keep alive and well. It is absolutely necessary to do this if the war is to be won, and we are going to do it; but it means planning, working, arranging, co-operating, being careful, not wasting, saving.

And it means that each and every one of us has got to help.

Now, we have enough and more than enough food for ourselves, and the Government is going to see to it that we keep here at home a sufficient supply of every essential kind of food to support our people. But over there they simply have not enough. Lord Rhondda, the English food controller, recently called the American food administrator, that unless we can send the allies before the next European harvest 75,000,000 bushels of wheat in addition to what had been sent up to January 1 of this year he could not assure the people of the allies that they would have a sufficient supply of food to eat on the war.

He did not say anything in this cable about the other food necessary, but he has told of these needs in other cables—and by his actions in England. For example, his latest regulation compels a reduction of meat eating in the United Kingdom to a maximum of one pound per week per person, this pound including the bone and other waste parts in the meat as bought in the shop.

The allies must have more wheat, more meat, more fats, more dairy products, more sugar. Their harvests were very short—France had less than half her normal crop of wheat—and the available shipping is small in amount and constantly being lessened by submarines, so that it is now practically impossible to use any ships for the long voyage necessary to bring food from Australia and other remote markets. The food must come chiefly from America. In specific figures it is necessary for us to send to the allies 1,100,000 tons of foodstuffs a month. This is a great responsibility and a great problem. The food must be found, and also the ships to carry it. It is being done, but can only continue to be done by the help and full cooperation of all of us over our broad land. We must produce and save more.

To supply the wheat necessary until the next harvest, we must reduce our consumption by from one-fourth to one-third; we must cut down our usual average consumption of meats and fats by from 10 to 15 per cent, and dairy products by about 10 per cent.

Over there they are tightening their belts and doing everything they can. They are eating war bread; they are cutting down their sugar in England to two pounds per person per month, and in France and Italy to one pound—how much are you eating?—and they are using ration cards for most of the staples. We must meet sacrifice with sacrifice. If we don't, we are helping to lose the war instead of helping to win it.

Typewriter For Sale

Second-hand Remington No. 6, in good condition. Cheap. A bargain if taken at once. Address "Typewriter," this office.

Here Is The Point!

Paint cost depends not upon what you pay per gallon for the paint, but upon how much service you get out of every gallon of paint you buy.

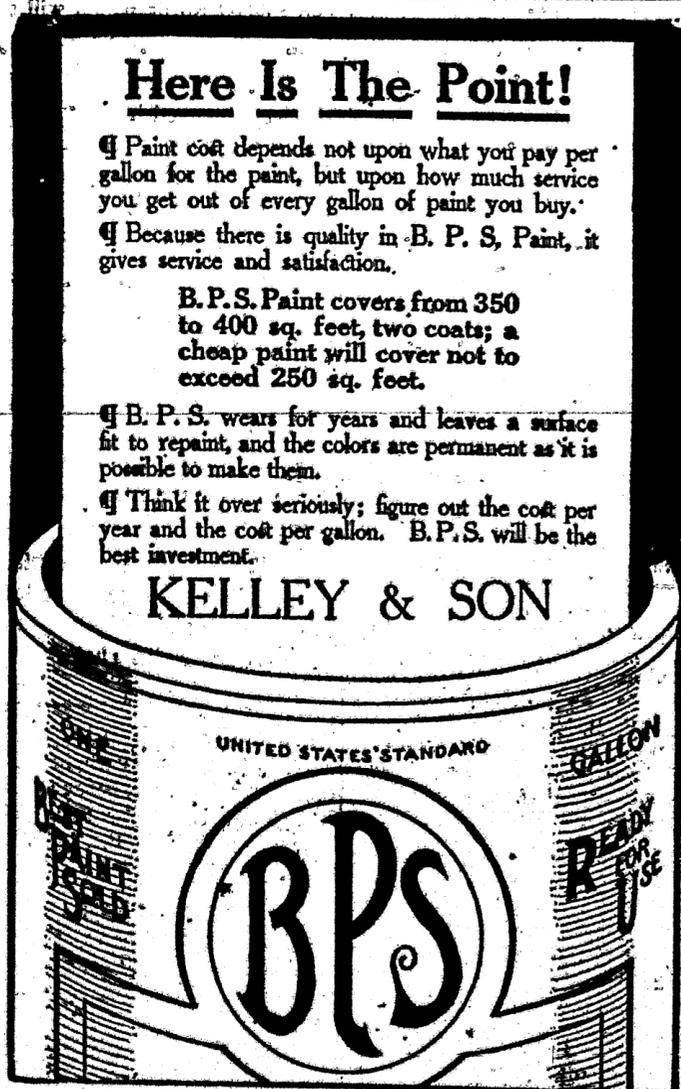

Because there is quality in B. P. S. Paint, it gives service and satisfaction.

B. P. S. Paint covers from 350 to 400 sq. feet, two coats; a cheap paint will cover not to exceed 250 sq. feet.

B. P. S. wears for years and leaves a surface fit to repaint, and the colors are permanent as it is possible to make them.

Think it over seriously; figure out the cost per year and the cost per gallon. B. P. S. will be the best investment.

Bowser Was Benign

But An Old Goat Spoiled It All

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper-Syndicate.)

By M. QUAD.

It was a pleasant Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Bowser had laid down to get a nap, the cook had gone on a visit to her mother, and the cat was on the alley fence taking a sun bath and half asleep. Mr. Bowser lighted his cigar, arranged his necktie and took his cane for a walk. He had had a good night's sleep the night before. He had had a good breakfast. He had read the papers. The day was so beautiful that he felt to forgive all enemies and find no fault with anything in nature or mankind.

Up the street half a block, as Mr. Bowser sauntered along, he found a rope stretched across the sidewalk and each end held by a child. There had been rope skipping, but they had stopped at play to have a little sport with Mr. Bowser. Instead of ordering them to drop the rope, he took to the gutter around it, and at the same time sweetly smiled and said:

"Skipping the rope, are you? Well, that will bring roses to your cheeks, and you will grow up to be handsome girls. No one should complain of you. Here is a dime to buy candy for all of you."

Just at the corner were two tramps leaning up against a fence. They saw Mr. Bowser coming, and saw that he was contented and benign. This led them to the conclusion that things were all wrong in this world, and that he ought to be made to share his money with them. They did not strike him for anything as he passed, but one of them called him an old robber. Mr. Bowser heard it, and turned about and said:

"Boys, you shouldn't feel that way on such a beautiful day as this is. What money I have, and it is not a great deal, I have made fairly and honestly. I have not robbed nor oppressed any man, and I certainly should be glad to see you earning $10 a day. Here is a quarter for each of you, and you can do what you like with it."

The men's attitude changed at once, and they lifted their old hats to him and begged he would not have any hard feelings on account of their mistake.

Mr. Bowser passed on, and his smile was more glad some. He had made hearts happy, and, if it had cost him 60 cents to do it, it was bread cast upon the waters. Only two days before he had threatened to go over to his family grocery and punch the head of the grocer for giving him light weight and poor service. Mrs. Bowser had argued with him and kept him from going, but he had made a mental vow to meet that grocer on the street and give him what he thought he deserved. Now all was changed. Mr. Bowser was so benign that he could forgive anything or anybody. He saw the grocer coming, and the grocer saw him. The grocer's exclamation was:

"On my soul, there is old Bowser coming, and I've got to meet him! He is sure to kick about something." But there was no kick. Mr. Bowser extended his hand and asked about the state of trade and hoped the grocer would soon be doing as large a business as formerly. He even promised to increase his orders to $3 a week. The grocer got away, but was weak in the knees for an hour afterwards.

Mr. Bowser met the plumber. They had not been good friends for the last six months, owing to the fact that the plumber had been called to mend a pin-hole leak in a water pipe and had charged $2.50 for about 30 cents' worth of work. Mr. Bowser had refused to pay the bill, and the plumber had threatened a law suit. The plumber turned aside when he saw that a meeting was about to occur, but Mr. Bowser walked up and slapped him on the back and said:

"Plumber, perhaps I was too short with you about that bill. I happen to have the amount of it in my pocket and you must take it. I do not think I understand the true cost of plumbing as well as you do. I always want to do the fair thing."

"Mr. Bowser, you are a fair and honest man," replied the plumber, as he took the money. "By George, but it does my heart good to meet up with such a man!"

The smile on Mr. Bowser's face broadened as he walked on. Here was another case where he had made a person believe that life was worth the living, and his heart swelled as he thought of it. He was so benign that the motorman on a passing trolley car looked at him and wished he had time to stop his car and borrow a dollar. Presently a boy came along with a robin in an old cage. Mr. Bowser smiled at the boy and at the robin and asked of the boy:

"My son, what are you doing with that bird?"

"I am taking it home," replied the boy. "I bought him of a boy for 15 cents."

"Oh, but it is wrong to imprison a bird like that. He has got a mate who is looking for him, and, perhaps, young robins, who are pining for his care."

"But you won't take him away from me, will you?" appealed the lad as he got ready to run away.

"No, my son, I won't, but I will buy him of you and give him his freedom, and next year, if he comes back, he may light on my window-sill and sing his thanks to me. I will give you half a dollar for the bird."

"You can have him in a holy minute," exclaimed the boy. And as soon as the coin was passed over he set the cage down at Mr. Bowser's feet and went away shouting with glee as he went.

The cage was lifted up, the robin taken out and given a toss into the air, and as it flew away Mr. Bowser almost had tears in his eyes. He had done another good deed. Three or four people had gathered around him and they saw the bird go and expressed their astonishment. Mr. Bowser smiled at them and exclaimed:

"Mankind has a right to freedom, and why shouldn't our birds have the same right? And any of you can have this cage who wants it."

Down a cross street, two blocks in advance of Mr. Bowser, some bad boys who had never been talked to by a benign man, were encouraging a fight between a dog and a goat. Neither animal cared to fight. They were also somewhat benign. They sniffed at each other and bluffed a little, but each hoped to get out of the situation without a conflict. The boys persisted, however, and finally the dog was encouraged to go in for a slindy. He sprang forward and gave the goat a bite, and the goat's courage was not equal to the occasion. He turned and ran. It was just what the dog was hoping for, and he made a vigorous pursuit. Facing the rear end of the goat is a far different thing from facing his horns.

It was a pretty even race to the corner, and the goat arrived there just as Mr. Bowser did. There was a collision and Mr. Bowser went into the gutter with cane and hat and the benign smile scattered all around. The dog stopped, and, after a moment, the goat put on speed and soon vanished from view.

And what did the benign Mr. Bowser do when he picked himself out of the dust? He looked around for somebody to hold him to blame for the calamity. He found three or four men and shook his fist under their noses, and he swore by the beard of his father to lick the whole town. The benign smile had faded forever.

Mr. Bowser went home. His hat was broken and his cane was splintered, and there was dust all over him. He found Mrs. Bowser up and ready to ask him questions, but, instead of replying, he went upstairs and was seen no more until the evening meal was ready. During garret retirement he did some thinking, and the thinking was expressed to himself on the way downstairs:

"By thunder, but being a benign and happy man don't pay five cents on a dollar, and I am going to quit it!"

Grandpa's Movement.

The small grandson was sent to the garden to call his grandfather to dinner, but, intent upon his work, the man paid little attention to the child, who returned to the house and when asked by his grandmother, "What did grandpa say?" replied: "He didn't say anything. He just went around in a think."

Win the War by Preparing the Land Sowing the Seed and Producing Bigger Crops

Work in Joint Effort the Soil of the United States and Canada

CO-OPERATIVE FARMING IN MAN POWER NECESSARY TO WIN THE BATTLE FOR LIBERTY

The Food Controllers of the United States and Canada are asking for greater food production. Scarcely 100,000,000 bushels of wheat are available to be sent to the allies overseas before the crop harvest. Upon the efforts of the United States and Canada rests the burden of supply.

Every Available Tillable Acre Must Contribute; Every Available Farmer and Farm Hand Must Assist

Western Canada has an enormous acreage to be seeded, but man power is short, and an appeal to the United States allies is for more men for seeding operation.

Canada's Wheat Production Last Year was 225,000,000 Bushels; the Demand From Canada Alone for 1918 is 400,000,000 Bushels

To secure this she must have assistance. She has the land but needs the men. The Government of the United States wants every man who can effectively help, to do farm work this year. It wants the land in the United States developed first of course; but it also wants to help Canada. Whenever we find a man we can spare to Canada's fields after ours are supplied, we want to direct him there.

Apply to our Employment Service, and we will tell you where you can best serve the combined interests.

Western Canada's help will be required not later than May 5th. Wages to competent help, $35.00 a month and up, board and lodging.

Those who respond to this appeal will get a warm welcome, good wages, good board and find comfortable homes. They will get a rate of one cent a mile from Canadian boundary points to destination and return.

Serving in a World at War

We are doing our utmost to serve the public as satisfactorily today as we did before the war upset the commercial world.

In the face of greatly increased costs of material we are endeavoring to maintain our plant at the highest point of efficiency.

Despite the high cost of labor, we are maintaining full crews that there may be no part of the work slighted or neglected.

While the demands of the signal service of our armies have deprived us of many technically trained men, those who remain have spread out to fill the gaps by extra effort.

In some places congestion has occurred because we have been unable to secure equipment for relief, but in such cases the traffic is being handled to the full extent of human ability.

With the world rocking under the weight of war; with economic conditions unsettled and abnormal, we are striving always to coordinate our efforts to the great problems involved in the winning of the war.

We feel that uninterrupted, efficient telephone service is playing a conspicuous part in the forces that will bring ultimate victory.

Comet, Owned by Henry Bell, Launched From Port Glasgow in 1812, Proved a Success.

The king's visit to Port Glasgow recalls a fact in the history of ships and shipbuilding which has a particular interest at the present time.

As everybody knows, asserts the Christian Science Monitor, it was from Port Glasgow that the first steamer ever built in Europe—the Comet, owner Henry Bell—was launched in 1812. She was a 30-ton vessel, with an engine of three horsepower, and was found to be so successful that within the next two years two larger craft were constructed. One of these was the Marjery, and from the Clyde the Marjery was transferred to the Thames, and plied between London and the Gravesend during the first months of 1816. But she was viewed with disfavor by the Thames watermen. She was very much of a novelty, and they were suspicious of novelties; besides, they considered that this Scotch-built boat interfered with their rights. So the Marjery left the Thames for the Seine, her owners having sold her to a French company. To reach the Seine she had to cross the channel, and she was thus the first steamer to do so.

WHERE FARMING IS PROFITABLE

The Future of Great Possibilities.

Some idea of the great wealth that the Western Canada farmer had in view a few years ago is now being realized. The amount received from the sale of wheat, oats, barley, flax and rye in 1917 was $270,000,000, while the sales of live stock at Winnipeg alone netted $40,000,000 additional. Of this sum hogs alone gave over eleven million dollars. The increases at Calgary and Edmonton were over 6 1/2 million dollars.

This money, so easily earned, is being spent in improvements in farm property, purchasing additional land, buying tractors, automobiles, and improving home conditions; providing electric light, steam heat, new furniture, pianos, buying Victory bonds, paying up old debts, etc.

Over five hundred tractors were sold in Southern Alberta in 1917. One implement agent reports that the increase in his business in 1917, over that of 1916, was equal to the total business in 1915. It is the same story all over the country. And it is not this evidence alone which proves the advancement and growth of the three prairie provinces, but the large increase in the number of settlers; the improvement in the extent of the cultivated areas and agricultural production; the increase in value of which over 1916 was $77,000,000.

This wonderful progress that has been made in agriculture in Western Canada is but the beginning which marks the future of the greatest agricultural country on the continent, showing a future of great possibilities. There are millions of acres yet untilled, and of land as good as any of that which is now giving its owners a return of from twenty to thirty dollars an acre, figures that in many cases represent the cost of the land, with all cultivation costs included. It is true that the cost of production has increased during the past few years, but the price of the product has also increased to a figure which leaves a large balance to the credit of the producer.

Percentage increases are shown too in another way, leading to the same conclusion, from consultation of the Department of Labor's review of prices. Taking 100 as the index number of normal production in the decade from 1890 to 1900, the increases in prices of farm products have slightly outdistanced the increases in his needs.

DARING FLYERS AVENGE LONDON

For Every Bomb Dropped in England 999 Are Sent Down in Germany.

SILENCE MANY BATTERIES

Feature of the Air Combat Is the Continuous Gallantry and Audacity of the Pilots—Difference in Strategy.

London.—Captain M., one of the British Flying corps, ambling watchfully behind a great bank of rolling clouds, spied in a rift below a German patrol of six machines. The combat was short, sharp and unequal. Immediately his gun barked off. A German dived headlong for the earth. His leader swept out of formation to meet the daring Britisher and followed suit. Enraged, the four others dashed for our man simultaneously, firing as they came. For the latter only one course was optional. Sweeping low from the sky until he almost skimmed the treetops and the roofs of the houses he reached home in safety.

Which is to relate a recent by-the-way air raid incident in that thrilling and most audacious factor of up-to-date warfare, aerial activity. When the day is clear and bright or when the hunter's moon illuminates the night the pilots and observers of the Royal Flying corps work overtime, and then some. From dawn to dawn, without intermission, until the rain clouds gather or the fresh wind grows too unruly, they are hard at it, fighting high up among the clouds or bombing railways, ammunition dumps, aerodromes and billets in back villages.

Nine Hundred and Ninety-Nine for One

For every bomb on London in a German raid there have been 999 dropped by our men on points and posts behind their lines. In this new warfare of give and take while the Boches are busy over England the English are busier over Boche land. In a single day as the result of aerial observation 127 hostile batteries were silenced, 23 gun pits were destroyed, 80 men were bombed and over 60 explosions were caused in ammunition dumps.

In two short months 12,000 bombs, aggregating a weight of 238 tons, were placed at the disposal of troops, intrenchments and batteries in the enemy lines. The R. F. C. in the period from Saturday, February 10, to Wednesday, February 20, accounted for 70 German airplanes with a loss of 12. The naval airmen bagged a further eight without loss and the French were responsible for 24.

The German airmen are not lacking in courage, but the policy of their commanders appears to be to maneuver them in large formations, 15 and 20 at a time. Six is a common party. The "tip and run" strategy of their bombers is only of advantage at night. From a great altitude they "lay their eggs" indiscriminately and then make off at a breakneck speed for their base. The larger types of machines, such as the triplane, are greatly favored. And more than anything they are lacking in that code of traditions fostered by the British navy and so admirably developed by the airmen.

The outstanding feature of the air combat is the continuous gallantry and audacity of the British pilots. One youthful veteran, attacked by a fighting formation of Boches, fired into one machine, which turned over on its back

MAIL TO SOLDIERS IS OVERBURDENED

Parcel Post Is Loaded Down With Unnecessary Articles for Army Men.

PRIVILEGE MAY BE CURTAILED

Postoffice Department Statement Asserts That Large Number of Articles So Carried Can Be Purchased at Canteens.

Washington.—That the parcel post mails to soldiers in France are greatly burdened by reason of so many unnecessary articles being mailed, and that there may arise a necessity for curtailing the parcel post privilege to soldiers are shown in the following statement given out by the Post Office department:

Recently a government transport reached France carrying to the soldiers at the front 715,950 letters and 335,840 pieces of parcel post and newspapers. The letters weighed 8 1/2 tons and the parcels and papers in excess of 113 tons. By reason of the bulkiness of the mail, this shipment took up in excess of 12,000 cubic feet of space on the transport. This means a slice of the ship's cargo space 100 feet long, 10 feet high, and 12 feet wide. The 715,950 letters went into 348 sacks but and spun down out of control. Then he turned his attention to another and fired 200 rounds into it. Suddenly it went into a spin and crashed.

Out with a battle flight of our own the following day he added another German to his bag. Then, to make full measure that day, he spun lower and fired an observation balloon. In the afternoon he finished the aggregate of four enemy airplanes and a balloon in three days.

Two British machines photography-bound ran up against half a dozen of the enemy's. Strictly speaking, theirs was a noncombatant craft, but annoyed at the interruption, they laid about the enemy with their machine gun to such effect that in a short time they had knocked out two of their attackers. The rest then flew away and the Britons returned in peace to their picture making.

Recently our bombers achieved a direct hit on a German army cinema with results which, according to a prisoner's story, were disastrous. Immediately the Germans retaliated by bombing our hospitals and stretcher bearers behind the lines.

The pieces of parcel post and papers required 7,452 sacks. When this mail was unloaded at a French port the letters filled completely one of the small French cars, which are half the size of the American mail cars, but the parcels and papers required a train of 19 cars.

Waits for Days on Cars. The mail that is unloaded from the ships must frequently wait days at the port before cars can be spared from the heavily burdened railroads in France to move the mail.

When the United States army postal service was first inaugurated mail reached all of the camps in the country in one to two days, according to distance and train connections. Today mail, by reason of its vast volume and the heavy demands on the railroads, frequently takes six days to reach General Pershing's headquarters.

According to a report from New York and Chicago of some of the contents of this parcel post matter to the troops, a 12-hour inspection of the parcel post as it was being searched for inflammables and explosives disclosed, among other things, 1,632 boxes of matches, 361 cans of solidified alcohol, 224 cigar lighters (all of these of the greatest menace to the safety of the ship), 1,248 cakes, 3,818 packages of candles, 1,332 bars of chocolate, besides countless scores of useful, as well as useless, articles, including a bouquet of artificial flowers, a baby outfit, and a bottle of whisky.

The question this state of affairs raises is: Why send apples and oranges that become bruised in the long transit and rot in the stuffy holds of the ships, when the recreation rooms of the Young Men's Christian association and other welfare organizations serve fruit fresh from Italy and Spain, that takes up no cargo space; why send cakes and candies and chewing gum, when the post canteens sell 17 varieties of cakes and cookies, fresh baked in France, at American prices, or a bare shade higher; why try to send across vast quantities of matches, which endanger the ship and which is a penitentiary offense to place even in the domestic mails?

Can Buy Same Articles in France.

Two-thirds of the articles found in a 12-hour inspection tour when working the soldiers' parcel post are on General Pershing's canteen list and sold in retail quantities to the soldiers at practically wholesale prices.

The question will have to be answered by the relatives of the soldiers, or it will, of military necessity, be answered drastically by the authorities in France charged with the responsibility for the success of this war.

BOMB INVENTED BY STUDENT

New Missile Will Explode at Any Given Distance of "Drop," Claims Inventor.

Eugene, Ore.—A student in the University of Oregon battalion has invented a bomb that will explode at any given distance of "drop." The bomb can be hurled horizontally and will not explode, but when dropped it is so arranged that it will explode after any number of feet fall—the length of harmless fall being regulated by an attachment. If the bomb proves satisfactory under tests that are now being made it will be turned over to the war department for use by aviators.

WOMAN WORKS 15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not be on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with the result that I am now well and strong. I get up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how many of my friends I have told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 35 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

Women who suffer from any such ailments should not fail to try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SCORE ONE FOR DIPLOMACY

Henry's Remarks Rather Stirred Things Up, but He Got Out of It Quite Neatly.

When the grocery man had taken his order and gone, Mrs. Umson said to her husband:

"Mr. Sandseller has a pleasant face, hasn't he?"

"It is always the case," Mr. Umson replied.

"What is always the case?"
"Whenever you see a man like that you can gamble that his wife is some diked up little weazel with a sour face."

"Oh, I don't know."

"It's a fact."

"Well, I can tell you another thing."

"What's that?"

"Whenever you see a pleasant little woman you can bet your last button she is tied up to some grouch of a man."

"Think so?"

"Yes, I do, so there!"

"Then I'm thankful for one thing."

"What's that?"

"That there are still left on the earth a few couples that are perfectly matched, like you and I."

"Henry, you are a wonder."—Youngstown Telegram.

HOW BOYS CAN HELP

Can Play Big Part in Upholding American Ideals.

Secretary Houston Says They Can Aid in Home Gardening and Con-serv-ing Food.

Washington.—How every American boy, although separated by the Atlantic ocean from the actual theater of the war against autocracy, can play his part in upholding American ideals, is pointed out by Secretary of Agriculture Houston in a message addressed to the Boy Scouts of America. The secretary pledges to the boys the hearty co-operation of the federal and state agricultural agencies.

Secretary Houston's statement follows:

"The splendid army of Boy Scouts of America can be of very great help to the nation in this time of world need. The war can be won only if we deliver the men, the ships, and the food in sufficient number and quantities to make our war program effective. You as boy scouts can greatly aid by growing home vegetable gardens, raising pigs and poultry, conserving food by canning and drying for home use and in many other ways open to you.

"Will you not help your country again this year even in a bigger and a better way than you did during the summer of 1917? Your task will be to 'beat your own record' in food production and conservation. May your motto for 1918 be, 'Every scout to feed a soldier and one other.'"

"I desire to extend to you the hearty good will and co-operation of the officials of the United States department of agriculture, also that of the co-operative club leaders of boys' and girls' extension work at the agricultural colleges, who will be glad to assist you in your work."

"Over The Top" With the Third Liberty Loan Dash

The Committee recently appointed to secure Lincoln County's portion of the Third Liberty Loan, exceeded its expectations when its work was completed. Mr. A. J. Rolland, the Chairman, and his capable assistants worked long and late in their never ceasing efforts to accomplish their allotment. When the time came for the accounting, they found that the amount of their allotment 103,000 was realized, and an additional amount of $28,000 had been added to it, thus making the full amount $130,000. Much credit is due the committee for its faithfulness; they visited every locality in the county and the good work shows for itself.

In praising up the work of the Committee and its co-workers, we should not forget the good work done by Messrs. Kimbell and Fairbank or the E. P. & S. W. They worked hard and faithfully among the railroad men and the showing, while so far is exceedingly good the Committee has not, as yet, received the report of the amount subscribed. Therefore, to all concerned, Lincoln County can say she has more than done what was expected of her, as we draw the curtain on the Third Liberty Loan success.

Rifleman 2389

We are very interested to learn that Harry G. Alcock has just completed a thrilling and interesting book of 30,000 words, entitled "Rifleman 2388."

Alcock volunteered for the British army three weeks after war was declared by England Aug. 1914, and went into the trenches four and a half months later.

"The writing of this book has been the hardest struggle I have had to bear since I left the trenches," says Alcock. "The writing of each chapter has been a battle in itself to me, and has renewed all of my love for the Germans. The love of killing them. Greater cowards than the Huns I have never known, and until I went to France, I never knew existed. The greatest event of my life was when I killed nearly seventy of these beasts in one afternoon. I wish it had been ten thousand."

In the Second Battle of Ypres, I saw three Canadian soldiers who had been crucified to a barn door with bayonets. I saw many dead women and children who had been terribly handled by Huns, and in addition to this, one afternoon I came across one hundred and fifty British soldiers who had all been beheaded. Their heads were stuck up like a lot of cannon balls; just to impress us as we advanced over that country again.

When I look back and try to picture that first winter in the trenches, spent at Messines ridge my heart fails me, and I wonder if I should have attempted such a serious business as telling the world what horror we went thru while there. However the deed is done and the world may criticize.

Fort Stanton Notes

A very interesting meeting was held by the Seamens Social Club on Monday night.

Geo. R. Young is at Hotel Dieu in a rather critical condition due to an accident which occurred recently in El Paso.

Chas. U. Babbs was in El Paso last week and was detained there owing to an acute attack of appendicitis.

A committee of ten is already arranging for a Fourth of July celebration at the Fort.

Mr. Powell, Miss Cody and Mr. Martin were in town Tuesday to transact some business.

A Liberty Loan address was given at Ft. Stanton by Mr. Gillett Tuesday morning at Library Hall. Ft. Stanton again far exceeded its quota, subscribing over $2,000, a record better than which few places in the country can boast when the population is taken into account and duly compared.

Last Sunday Dr. Pattison, medical field secretary of the N. A. T., and John Tombs of the N. M. Health Association, visited Ft. Stanton and after spending the day there inspecting the institution were able to express a very favorable opinion concerning the equipment and facilities. It is expected that the hospitals will be enlarged so as to care for many soldiers who will probably soon be sent there to receive medical aid and attention.

Mrs. McKeon, who enjoys the unique distinction of being the only lady chairman of the various Red Cross Units in the county, has gathered about her different capable committees to launch the coming Red Cross Drive and bring it to a successful finish. Mrs. McKeon still believes in the old dictum: "Finis coronat opus."

A full account of the important Carrizozo Bridge Club entertainment by Mrs. Dr. McKeon, will appear next week.
