Sheriffs of State Will Round Up Idlers and Slackers

Peace Officers' Association Plan to aid Federal Agents In Handling Problems that War Has Given Rise To

(Albuquerque Herald)

The meeting of sheriffs and peace officers of New Mexico, which opened June 12th in the Chamber of Commerce, will consider chiefly problems which have arisen from the war.

The association, officers expected, would work out plans for the co-operations of all cities and counties in the state in rounding up slackers and idlers who, according to Provost Marshall General Enoch H. Crowder must work or fight; for aiding federal officers in stamping out sedition, and guarding explosives to prevent their coming into the hands of dangerous enemy aliens.

Although the meeting is important the attendance was small. Less than a score of sheriffs, deputy sheriffs and other officers were in attendance when the meeting was called to order.

Among those present were the Sheriffs R. L. Roberts, McKinley county; Walker Hyde, Lincoln; Placido Jaramillo, Valencia county; C. A. Rectors, Chaves county; Raefael Garcia, Bernalillo county; Chief of Police J. R. Gashula, Albuquerque; and Chief Deputy Sheriff Elfege Baca, Socorro county.

Sheriff Raephael Garcia, Bernalillo county, first vice president; Sheriff Ray Sutton, Union county, second vice president; Sheriff Ramon Tenerio, Torrance county, third vice president; Sheriff C. L. Vargas Rio Arriba county fourth vice president; C. E. Noble, San Juan county, fifth vice president; Chief of Police J. R. Gashula, Albuquerque, secretary and treasurer.

District Atty. H. B. Hamilton, wife, son Mayo and the Misses Cora Cole and Vera Harris, motored up to White Oaks last Sunday evening and dined before returning.

Dr. T. W. Watson, wife and daughter arrived from Long Beach, Cal., the first of the week and left Tuesday for their home on the Ruidoso.

Blind Nightingale of New Mexico

At the request of many of our subscribers, we are republishing the poem written by a convict in Sing Sing prison after hearing Miss Elizabeth Garrett sing.

She sings for the prisoners at that place under the auspices of the Mutual Welfare League, and on this occasion, convict No. 67616, being inspired by the sweetness of her singing, wrote the following poem which by (request) follows:

They call her blind!
They call her blind yet could she lead

A thousand soul-sick men
From cold gray stones and make them head

The song of wind and rain.
From gloomy cell and dewy near
To sun and stars and sky,
And show the message all could read

Of love and peace and hope.
They call her blind.

They call her blind yet could she see

A neighbor's heart in each
A heart that neither Pharoah
Nor Levite tried to reach,
The wine of song she poured, like He

The oil of love she bore,
And showed to men what men could be

Thro' faith and hope and truth.
They call her blind.

They call her blind, yet could she paint

A message each could see,
A clarion call for those who faint
In notes of sweetest song
And when they told her of the taint

That each before her bore,
She would not see, but, like the saint

Saw faith and hope and love:
We called her blind!
We Fools!

Field Secretary of Red Cross Visits With Message

Important Man With Important Mission Gathers Scarlet Cross Hosts and Tells of Success

H. E. Tinney, who is field secretary of the Rocky Mountain division of American Red Cross, visited Carrizozo Wednesday and gave an interesting talk at the Red Cross rooms to a good attendance of enthusiastic workers. Among other things, Mr. Tinney spoke of the increased necessity of making six pairs of yarn socks to one sweater, on account of the prevailing trouble in the trenches of what is known as "trench feet." This trouble is similar to frost bite, but the cause is quite contrary to that. Instead of the feet being frost bitten, they remain so long in the mud and water that they become tender and so sensitive that the condition closely resembles that of being frozen. Therefore, it can be plainly seen that socks must be changed very often, and also that the same must be knitted very heavy so as to absorb the moisture that is continually coming to the feet by the mud and water. Mr. Tinney gave an interesting talk at the Crystal Theatre Wednesday night along the same lines as mentioned above and emphasized what Mrs. Kinney said last Saturday about the organization of a Canteen Committee, the duties of which would be to provide the incoming soldiers with refreshments during their stop over here. This committee is composed of the following members: W. H. Osborn, O. W. Bamberger, Mesdames Brannum, Dingwall and Allen, which is a foregone guarantee that the boys will be well attended to as they arrive. The field secretary found a more lively interest manifested in Carrizozo than in most places of its size, and paid a high compliment to the workers at this place and we may well add that a field secretary who is looking for a place to create a revival of Red Cross work had better put in his time somewhere else, as the workers here are certainly "on the job" and ready at any time for inspection.

Good Strike Near

White Oaks

Parties who have been prospecting near White Oaks of late are reported to have struck valuable ore. The news was conveyed to Carrizozo the early part of this week, but the names of prospectors are not as yet ready for publication, neither is the location of the strike. However the public may be prepared for a surprise at any time.

The Ranch at the Wolverine

A Story of Love and Adventure on Idaho's Plains

By B. M. BOWER

(Copyright, Little, Brown & Co.)

CHARLIE FOX ARRIVES AT THE COVE AND HELPS MARTHY RUN THE PLACE—HE SOON DISCOVERS EVIDENCE OF CATTLE THEFT.

Synopsis.—Marthy and Jase Melike, pioneers, have for twenty years made a bare living out of their ranch at the Cove on Wolverine creek in the mountain range country of Idaho. Their neighbors, the MacDonalds, living several miles away, have a daughter, Billy Louise, now about nineteen years old, whom Marthy has secretly helped to educate. At the time the story opens Billy Louise is spending the afternoon with Marthy. A snowstorm comes up, and on her way home the girl meets an interesting stranger, who is invited to stay overnight at the MacDonald ranch. Ward Warren and Billy Louise become firm friends. Jase dies and Marthy buries his body without aid.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

"You saw mamma, of course. You came from home?"

"No, I did not. I got as far as the creek and saw Blue's tracks coming down, so I just sort of trailed along, seeing it was mamma's daughter I felt most like talking to."

"Mamma's daughter" laughed a little and instinctively made a change in the subject.

"I've got to go in and wash the dishes," she said, stepping back from him. "Of course nothing was done in the cabin, and I've been doing a little housecleaning. I guess the dishwasher is hot by this time—if it hasn't all boiled away."

Ward, as a matter of course, tied his horse to the fence and went into the cabin with her. He also asked her to take him to a dish towel, which she did after a good deal of rummaging. He stood with his hat on the back of his head, a cigarette between his lips, and wiped the dishes with much apparent enjoyment. He objected strongly to Billy Louise's assertion that she meant to scrub the floor, but when he found her quite obdurate he changed his method without in the least degree yielding his point, though for diplomatic reasons he appeared to yield.

He carried water from the creek and filled the teakettle, the big iron pot and both pans. Then, when Billy Louise had turned her back upon him while she looked in a dark corner for the mop, he suddenly seized her under the arms and lifted her upon the table, and before she had finished her astonished gaspings he caught up a pail of water and sloshed it upon the floor under her. Then he grinned in his triumph.

Billy Louise gave a squeal of consternation and then sat absolutely still, staring round eyed through the doorway. Ward stepped back—even his composure was slightly jarred—and twisted his lips amusedly.

"Hello," he said after a few blank seconds. "You missed some of it, didn't you?" His tone was mildly commiserating. "Will you come in?"

"N-o-o, thank you, I don't believe I will." The speaker looked in, however, saw Billy Louise perched upon the table and took off his hat. He was well plastered with dirty water that ran down and left streaks of mud behind. "I must have got off the road," he said. "I'm looking for Jason Melike's ranch."

Billy Louise tucked her feet farther under her skirts and continued to stare dumbly. Ward, glancing at her from the corner of his eyes, stepped considerably between her and the stranger so that his broad shoulders quite hid her from the man's curious stare.

"You've struck the right place," he said calmly. "This is it." He picked up another pail of water and sloshed it upon the wet floor to rinse off the mud.

"Is—ah—Mrs. Melike in?" One could not accuse the young man of craning, but he certainly did try to get another glimpse of the person on the table and faltered because of Ward.

"She's down in the meadow," Billy Louise murmured.

"She's down in the meadow," Ward repeated to the bespattered young man. "You just go down past the stable and follow on down"—he waved a hand vaguely before he took up the broom again. "You'll find her, all right," he added encouragingly.

"Oh, Ward! That must be Marthy's nephew. What will he think?"

"Does it matter such a dence of a lot what he thinks?" Ward went on with his interrupted scrubbing.

"I'm awfully glad he came, anyway," said Billy Louise. "I won't have to stay all night now. I was going to."

"In that case the young man is welcome as a gold mine. Here they come"—he and Mrs. Marthy. "You'll have to introduce me; I have never met the lady." Ward hastily returned the mop to its corner, rolled down his sleeves and picked up his gloves. Then he stepped outside and waited beside Billy Louise, looking not in the least like a man who has just wiped a lot of dishes and scrubbed a floor.

The nephew, striding along behind Marthy and showing head and shoulders above her, seemed not to resent any little mischance, such as muddy water flung upon him from a broom. He grinned reminiscently as he came up, shook hands with the two of them and did not let his glance dwell too long or too often upon Billy Louise nor too briefly upon Ward.

When Ward went to the stable after Blue half an hour later Charlie Fox went with him. His manner when they were alone was different, not so exuberantly cheerful—more frank and practical.

"Honest, it floored me completely to see what that poor old woman has been up against down here," he told Warren, stuffing tobacco into a silver rimmed briar pipe while Ward saddled Blue. "I don't know a dence of a lot about this ranch game, but if that old lady can put it across I guess I can wabble along somehow. Too bad the old man cashed in just now, but Aunt Martha as good as told me he wasn't much force, so maybe I can play a lone hand here as easy as I could have done with him."

Afterward, when Ward thought it over, he remembered gratefully that Charlie Fox had refrained from attempting any discussion of Billy Louise or from asking any questions even remotely personal. He knew enough about men to appreciate the tactful silences of the stranger, and when Billy Louise on the way home predicted that the nephew was going to be a success Ward did not feel like qualifying the verdict.

CHAPTER IV.

The Mystery of the Missing.

WHEN Charlie Fox rode down to the Wolverine a month or so later, tied his horse under the shed and came up to the cabin as though he knew of no better place in all the world; when he greeted "mamma" as though she were something precious in his sight and talked with her about the things she was most interested in and actually made her feel as if he were immensely interested also, Billy Louise simply could not help admiring him and liking him for his frank good nature and his kindness. She had never before met a man just like Charlie Fox, though she had known many who were what Ward once called "parlor broke."

It was not until Charlie was leaving that he gave Billy Louise a hint that his errand was not yet accomplished. She walked down with him to where his horse was tied and so gave him a bloom against the dull brown of the chance to speak what was in his mind.

"You know, I hate to mention little worries before your mother," he said. "Those pathetic eyes of hers make me ashamed to bother her with a thing. But I am worried, Miss Louise. I came over to ask you if you've seen anything of four calves of ours. I know you ride a good deal through the hills; they disappeared a week ago, and I can't find any trace of them. I've been looking all through the hills, but I can't locate them."

Billy Louise had not seen them, either, and she begged for particulars. "I don't see how they could get away from your corral," she said, "unless your bars were down."

"The bars were all right. It was last Friday, I think. I'm not sure. They were in the little meadow above the house, you see. I was away that night, and Aunt Martha is a little hard of hearing. She wouldn't hear anything unless there were considerable noise. I came home the next forenoon—I was over to Seaback's—and the bars were in place then. Aunt Martha had not been up the gorge nor had any one come to the ranch while I was gone. So you see, Miss Louise, here's a very pretty mystery."

"You think they were driven off, don't you?" Billy Louise asked a question with the words and made a statement of it with her tone, which was a trick of hers.

Charlie Fox shook his head, but his eyes did not complete the denial. "Miss Louise, I'd work every other theory to death before I'd admit that possibility. I don't know all of my neighbors so very well, but I should hesitate a long, long time—"

"It needn't have been a neighbor. There are lots of strange men passing through the country. Did you look for tracks?"

"I did not. I didn't want to admit that possibility. I decline to admit it now." The chin of Charlie Fox squared perceptibly, so that Billy Louise caught a faint resemblance to Marthy in his face. "I saw a man accused of a theft once," he said. "The evidence was—or seemed—absolutely unassailable. And afterward he was exonerated completely. It was just a horrible mistake. But he left school under a cloud. His life was ruined by the blunder. I'd have to know absolutely before I'd accuse any one of stealing those calves, Miss Louise. I'd have to see them in a man's corral, with his brand on them—I believe that's the way it's done out here—and even then—"

"Where have you looked?" There were reasons why this particular subject was painful to Billy Louise. "And are you sure they didn't get out of that pasture and wander on down the Cove, among all these willows? It's a perfect jungle away down. Are you sure they aren't with the rest of the cattle? I don't see how they could leave the Cove unless they were driven out."

"Yes, I thought of that—strange as it may seem." Charlie's voice was unoffended. On the contrary, he seemed glad that she took so keen an interest in his affairs. "It has been a week, you know, since they flew the coop. I did hunt every foot of that Cove twice over. I drove every hoof of stock up and corralled them and made sure these four were not in the herd. Then I hunted through every inch of that willow jungle and all along the bluff and the river. Miss Louise, I put in three days at it, from sunrise till it was too dark to see. Then I began riding outside. There isn't a trace of them anywhere. I had just bought them from Seaback, you know. I drove them home, and because they were tired, and so was I, I just left them in that upper meadow as I came down the gorge. I hadn't branded them yet. I know I've made an awful botch of the thing, Miss Louise," he confessed, turning toward her with an honest distress and a self-flaying humility in his eyes that wiped from Billy Louise's mind any incipient tendency toward contempt. "But you see I'm green at this ranch game. And I never dreamed those calves weren't perfectly safe in there. The fence was new and strong, and the bars are absolutely bars to any stock larger than a rabbit."

"I hate to bother you with this, and I don't want you to think I have come whining for sympathy," he said after a minute of moody silence. "But, seeing they were not branded yet—with our brand—I thought perhaps you had run across them and paid no attention, thinking they belonged to Seaback."

Billy Louise smiled a little to herself. If he had not been quite so "green at the ranch game" he would have mentioned brands at first as the most important point instead of tacking on the information casually after ten minutes of other less vital details.

"Were they vented?" she asked, suppressing the smile so that it was merely a twitch of the lips which might mean anything.

"I—yes, I think they were. That's what you call it when the former owner puts his brand in a different place to show that his ownership has ceased, isn't it? Seaback puts his brand upside down."

"I know Seaback's vent," Billy Louise cut in. There was no need of letting such a fine fellow display more ignorance on the subject. "And I should have noticed it if I had seen four calves vented fresh and not rebranded. Why in the world didn't you stick your brand on at the same time?" Billy Louise was losing patience with his greenness.

"I didn't have my branding iron with me," Charlie answered humbly. "I have done that before, when I bought those other cows and calves. I—"

"You'd better pack your iron from next time," she retorted. "If you can't get a little bunch of calves ten miles without losing them—"

"But you must understand I did. I took them home and turned them into the Cove. I know—I'm an awful clump at this."

"The calves may not be absolutely lost, you know. Why, I have a big steer last spring and never found him till I was going to sell a few head. Then he turned up the biggest and fattest one in the bunch. You can't tell. They get themselves in queer places sometimes. Ill' come over tomorrow if I can and take a look at that pasture and all around. And Ill' keep a good lookout for the calves."

Many men would have objected to the unconscious patronage of big tone. That Charlie Fox did not but accepted the spirit of helpfulness in her words, lifted him out of the small natured class.

"It's awfully good of you," he said. "You know a lot more about the bovine nature than I do, for all I put in every spare minute studying the subject. I'm taking four different stock journals now, Miss Louise. Ill' bet I know a lot more about the different strains of various breeds than you do, Miss Cattle Queen. But I'm beginning to see that we only know what we learn by experience. I've a new book on the subject of heredity of the cattle. I'm going home and see if Seaback hasn't stumbled upon a strain that can be traced back to your native mountain sheep."

Billy Louise laughed and said good-by and stood leaning over the gate watching him as he zigzagged up the hill, stopping his horse often to breathe. She began to wonder, then, about those calves. Vented and not rebranded, they would be easy game for any man who first got his own brand on them. She meant to get a description of them when she saw Charlie again—it was like his innocence to forget the most essential details—and she meant to keep her eyes open. If Charlie were right about the calves not being anywhere in the Cove, then they had been driven out of it, stolen. Billy Louise turned dejectedly away from the fence and went down to a shady nook by the creek, where she had always liked to do her worrying and hard thinking.

The next day she rode early to the Cove and learned some things from Marthy which she had not gleaned from Charlie. She learned that two of the calves were a deep red except for a wide, white strip on the nose of one and white hind feet on the other; that another was spotted on the hindquarters and that the fourth was white, with large, red blotches. She had known cattle all her life. She would know these if she saw them anywhere.

She also discovered for herself that they could not have broken out of that pasture and that the river bank was impassable because of high, thick bushes and miry mud in the open spaces. She had a fight with Blue over these latter places and demonstrated beyond doubt that they were miry by getting him in to the knees in spite of his violent objections. They left deep tracks behind them when they got out. The calves had not gone investigating the bank, for there was not a trace anywhere, and the bluff was absolutely unscalable. Billy Louise herself would have felt doubtful of climbing out that way. The gray rim rock stood straight and high at the top, with never a crevice, so far as she could see, and the gorge was barred so that it was impossible to go that way without lifting heavy poles out of deep sockets and sliding them to one side.

"I've got an idea about a gate here," Charlie confided suddenly. "There won't be any more mysteries like this. I'm going to fix a swinging gate in place of these bars, Miss Louise. I shall have it swing uphill like this, and Ill' have a weight arranged so that it will always close itself if one is careless enough to ride on and leave it open. I have it all worked out in my alleged brain. I shall do it right away to. Aunt Marthy is rather nervous about this gorge now. Every evening she walks up here herself to make sure the bars are closed."

"You may as well make up your mind to it," said Billy Louise irrelevantly in a tone of absolute certainty. "The calves were driven out of the gorge. That means stolen. You needn't accuse any one in particular. I don't suppose you could. But they were stolen."

Charlie frowned and glanced up speculatively at the bluff's rim.

"Oh, your mountain sheep theory is no good," Billy Louise giggled. "I don't see if a Hazed even would try to leave the Cove over the bluff," which certainly was a sweeping statement when you consider a Hazed's habits. "A mountain sheep couldn't anyway. They're hummers to climb—"

"But calves are not, Mr. Fox. Not like that. You know yourself they were stolen. Why not admit it?"

"Would that do any good—bring them back?" he countered, looking up at her.

"N-o, but I do hate to see a person deliberately shut his eyes in front of a fact. We may as well admit to ourselves that there is a rustler in the country. Then we can look out for him."

Charlie's eyes had the troubled look. "I hate to think that. Aunt Martha insists that is what we are up against, but—"

"Well, she knows more about it than you do, believe me. If you'll let down the bars, Mr. Fox, Ill' hit the trail, and if I find out anything Ill' let you know at once."

When she rode over the bleak upland she caught herself wishing that she might think the thing over with Ward. He would know just what ought to be done. But winter was coming, and she would drive her stock down into the fields she had ready. They would be safe there surely. Still, she wished Ward would come. She wanted to talk it over with a man who understood and who knew more about such things than she did.

The fate of the four Hazed calves became permanently wrapped in the blank fog of mystery. Billy Louise watched for them when she rode out in the hills and spent a good deal of time heretofore given over to dreaming in trying to solve the riddle of their disappearance. Charlie Fox insisted upon keeping to the theory that they had merely strayed. Marthy grumbled sometimes over the loss, and Ward, well, Ward did not put in an appearance again that fall or winter and so did not hear of the incident.

CHAPTER V.

The Little Devils of Doubt. THE spring had come, and Wolverine canyon, with the sun shining down aslant into its depths, was a picturesque gash in the hills, wild enough in all conscience, but to the normal person not in the least degree gloomy. The jutting crags were sunlit and warm. The cherry thickets whispered in a light breeze and sheltered birds that sang in perfect content. Not a gloomy place surely when the peace of a sunny morning laid its spell upon the land.

Billy Louise, however, did not respond to the canyon's enticements. She brooded over her own discouragements and the tantalizing little puzzles which somehow would not lend themselves to any convincing solution. She was in that condition of nervous depression where she saw her finest cows dead by blight in the alfalfa meadows—and how would she pay that machinery, note then? She saw John Pringle calling unexpectedly and insistently for his "time," and where would she find another man whom she could trust out of her sight? John Pringle was slow, and he was stupid and growled at poor Phoebe till Billy Louise wanted to shake him, but he was "steady," and that one virtue covers many a man's faults and keeps him drawing wages regularly.

Her mother had been more and more inclined to worry as the hot weather came on. Lately her anxiety over small things had rather got upon the nerves of Billy Louise. She felt ill used and downhearted, and as if nothing mattered much anyway. She panned her cave with a mere glance and sootied for the memories of golden days in her lonely childhood that clung around it.

She was in this particularly dissatisfied mood when she rode out of the canyon at its upper end, where the hills folded softly down into grassy valleys where her cattle loved best to graze. Since the grass had started in the spring she had kept her little herd up here among the lower hills, and by riding along the higher ridges every day or so and turning back a wandering animal now and then she had held them in a comparatively small area, where they would be easily gathered in the fall. A few head of Seaback's stock had wandered in among hers and some of Marthy's. And there was a big roan steer that bore the brand of Johnson, ever on Snake river. Billy Louise knew them all, as a housewife knows her flock of chickens, and if she missed seeing certain leaders in the scattered groups she rode until she found them. Two old cows and one big red steer that seemed always to have a following wore bells that tinkled pleasant little sounds in the alder thickets along the creek as she passed by.

She rode up the long ridge which gave her a wide view of the surrounding hills and stepped Blue, while she stared moodily at the familiar, shadow spotted expanse of high piled ridges, with deep, green valleys and deeper hued canyons between. She loved them, every one. But today they failed to steep her senses in that deep content with life which only the great outdoors can give to one who has learned how satisfying is the draft and how soothing.

Billy Louise becomes very much discouraged over the state of family finances. She hears and sees things that make her doubt Ward.

Write Cherry Letters.

One girl has a plan which has worked out admirably. She never writes any of her troubles to her people. She decided when she started out in life for herself that she would never write of her worries. If she were in any real difficulty she would use the telegraph. And she would use it only to solve a problem which could not be solved in any other way.

So far she has been able to work out all her problems without writing of her worries. She has never telegraphed, because she has found that with earnest effort she has been able to work out all of her own difficulties.

The Cravens Folks of Water Canyon

The Cravens of Water Canyon, who come to town several times each week, tell of bountiful rains and abundant vegetation in that locality. We always delight in listening to these truths, as it is indeed gratifying to know that somewhere, people can enjoy green foliage, living water (free) and get a glimpse of a cloud once in a while, without having to travel for miles to witness them. But there is one thing certain, We can see them in the Movies, and we should be thankful for that.

Machine Signs Five Checks at Once

The tremendous clerical burden of the war has multiplied the number of labor-saving devices employed by the United States government. The check-signing machine, operated in this picture by J. L. Summers, disbursing clerk of the treasury, is used extensively in bureaus where the writing of five signatures by one operation is saving time and money.

Eat More Rice

Nutritious Food That is a Good Substitute for Wheat

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Here in the United States it is difficult to realize that there is no other edible product, except perhaps meat, upon which more people in the world are dependent for food than rice, and that we might advantageously consume much greater quantities of this nutritious food and grow the increase in our own rice fields.

The average per capita consumption of rice for food in this country is scarcely 6 pounds a year, and most of this is consumed in the Southern states. The high esteem in which rice is held in other countries is indicated by their per capita consumption.

The placing of such dependence upon rice as a staple food certainly proves beyond a doubt that it is highly nutritious; analysis of rice supports this proof. Pound for pound rice is about as nutritious as wheat.

Although rice is the great foodstuff of the Orient, it is not used there in making a raised bread. In this country dieticians have made excellent bread by substituting as high as 25 per cent of rice for wheat flour, and have obtained a white yeast bread of excellent flavor.

With the Inventors.

A glass bottle blowing machine with a capacity of 2,000 bottles an hour has been invented in Europe. Electrical apparatus for tapping trees, which can be left without attention for months, has been invented. Spring pads to be strapped to the knees have been invented for the comfort of persons obliged to kneel at their work. To prevent rubber fire hose cracking while dry an inventor has patented a reel that keeps it filled with compressed air.

THE BEST POLICY

Would you win eternal fame And immortalize your name? Do you covet praise and self-esteem? Then give your utmost best— And do it with a zest— To the job that's yours, however small it seem.

Would you find the pot of gold With its blessings manifold, But with it have your conscience free from blight? Then cut your wants in half, Make thrift your daily staff, And keep your credit and your honor bright.

Would you build your monument Ere your busy life be spent; Or would you the applause of men command? Then purge your soul of greed, Hear every call of need And scatter blessings with an open hand.

Old Age Cannot Wear Out Its Shoes as Recklessly As Does the Gay Youth

Preparing for easy old age is one of the spurs that has transformed a wholesome ambition into a "vaulting ambition that o'erleaps itself." Many a man has shortened his life overworking to take care of the old age that he thus snuffed out, observes a writer in the Minneapolis Journal.

Old age cannot wear out its shoes as recklessly as does youth. The normal old man finds better entertainment in meditation than he could in expensive amusement. Memory is his "movie."

The wise old man has learned what as a foolish young man he failed to see, that "enough is as good as a feast," and that after all "man wants but little here below."

Farewell Entertainment

Last Saturday night the boys on the last call were entertained royally at the Lutz hall. George Spence acted as master of ceremonies and gave an interesting talk, and was followed by C. W. Merchant who also performed his part by a good patriotic talk which was some wholesome advice to the boys about to leave for duty.

David E. Spindle's talk was very interesting and the Misses Carrie Roberts and Fay White Myers sang appropriate solos, little Alma Lacey gave an interesting reading. Elton D. Boone was elected as captain for departing contingent, as the boys all agreed that Elton, outside of being a "Boone" companion would be a captain they could "Bank" on.

Following the program dancing was indulged in until long after the clock had thrown up its hands, for the music, furnished by Messers Ferguson and Pitts was the kind that puts ginger into an occasion of this nature. Much has said about those donating to Red Cross, the subscribers to the Liberty Loan, but we are too prone to overlook those who have constantly donated their talent to the entertainment of this kind since the first bunch of boys left for the service, for without these liberal displays of patriotism, our "doin's" would be sadly lacking of interest and the spirit of these occasions would have become dull and inexpressive, instead of so interestingly successful as they have been.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Koger, assistant state leader of the Boys' and Girls' Industrial Clubs made a trip of inspection and inspiration in this county last week accompanied by Mrs. Gumm county leader, and County Agent Stirling.

Change in the train schedule made it impossible for Mrs. Koger to meet with the Capitan, Lincoln or Farmerville clubs. At the last place every member, with their leader, Mrs. Nellie Zamora, was present to greet her.

Interesting meetings were held at Idlewild, Picacho, Honda, Glencoe and Nogal Mesa. Senator and Mrs. Tully royally entertained the party at Glencoe. Although girls found it impossible to meet in the morning, so will have an afternoon meeting this week.

Mrs. Koger spoke to the Junior Red Cross in Carrizozo explaining to them that the sewing project of the Industrial Club work was separate and distinct from the making of refugee garments, but credit was given for this worthy work on the completion of the regular club lessons.

Thursday morning Mrs. Koger addressed the Teachers' Institute on the national, state and county work of this great work for children that has been undertaken by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Motto of This Paper

Pledged to the Undying Support of Its Country's Cause.

Power of Influence

Time and again we have issued calls from the Government through the State Council of Defense, to the relatives of the soldiers, to cease writing gloom letters full of "sob stuff" which is having a tendency to tempt the boys to desert their post of duty, and thus bring disgrace to themselves and trouble to their families.

The officials claim that most of the desertions are caused by this one evil, and advise in no uncertain tones, that it be stopped. This same influence is often the cause of young men shirking their duty to their country, and while none of this can be accepted as an excuse for his infidelity to his country's cause, he is entitled to some sympathetic consideration for which the following influences are directly to blame.

A mother's love—A father's devotion—A sweetheart's appeal, all of which in one combined force, make a mighty power for the young man to resist. These loving influences are exercised without the least consideration for the boy's future—they allow their love to work him an injury instead of a benefit. It is perfectly right, just and proper to love your boy, husband or bosom friend, but the thousands of good loving, patriotic parents, wives and sweethearts who nightly pray to Him who holds the destinies of nations and individuals in the hollow of His hand, to watch over and care for all our boys at the front, love theirs as deeply and truly as you do.

But the mother witholds the loving influence that might if exercised, keep her boy at her side. The father, silently steps aside knowing that the "chip of the old block" will not swerve from the 'path of duty unless undo influence is exercised. The young wife commands her tears to stand back knowing what the power of love can do when used as an influence. The sweetheart awaits his call with admiration for him who at the tap of the drum grasps the sword and hastens to the fray.

Don't advise your boy to enlist—Let him alone. He perhaps would never entertain a thought other than that which is at this time, the one thing paramount—common duty. His whole future among his fellow men depends on what he does now, and with these evil influences called love removed from his path, he could be saved from the humility and disgrace, which is bound to befall him if he allows these so called loving influences to misdirect him—Stand back. Love him to duty, not to dishonor.—Withold the influence that will injure the very one whom you seek to bless. Let free unrestrained, uninfluenced thought guide your loved one to his duty.

RODENTS EAT $150,000,000 WORTH OF FOOD

Sixteen Hundred and Forty-one Dead Prairie Dogs Were Collected From 320 Acres Which Had Been Treated With Poison the Day Before by One Man—Cost, Including Labor, $9.75—Specialists Teach Farmers How to Mix Poison.

POISONING STOPS LARGE CROP LOSS

Co-operation Among Farmers and All Authorities Concerned Is Necessary.

CAMPAIGN IN NORTH DAKOTA

More Than 5,000,000 Acres Treated in North Dakota and Saving of $1,000,000 Accomplished—Many Counties Organized.

Crops worth more than $150,000,000 are destroyed every year by such rodents as prairie dogs, ground squirrels, pocket gophers, rabbits, field mice and rats and woodchucks. This heavy toll does not include loss inflicted by house mice and rats. That the losses due to rodents constitute an entirely unnecessary drain upon the productive capacity of the farms and that they may be permanently eliminated at a cost which is but a small fraction of the damage occasioned during a single year has been proved by the extensive work already accomplished in campaigns conducted by the Biological Survey of the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with state and county organizations.

Community co-operation will do the work. Rodent pests have been practically eliminated from millions of acres of valuable agricultural land in the last four years through the co-operation of thousands of farmers. Describing these campaigns federal specialists declare that the eagerness with which farmers have availed themselves of the opportunity to join in concerted movements aimed at relief from these pests is most significant and gratifying, while the returns in increased crop yields from the amount of labor and money invested in the community campaigns have exceeded all expectations. A successful fight against rodent pests requires that all local, state and national agencies concerned be brought into harmonious and effective co-operation and that modern poisoning methods of proved efficiency be used.

Work in North Dakota.

In the great grain-producing areas of North Dakota there has been developed the most extensive and thoroughly organized campaign with a comprehensive plan of state-wide eradication of rodent pests that has yet been attempted. This campaign was organized under a co-operative project agreement between the bureau of biological survey and the states relation service of the United States department of agriculture and the North Dakota agricultural experiment station and extension service, including the county agent organization. The state legislature provided a revolving fund available for use in procuring and maintaining the required stock of poison supplies.

Many Gophers Killed.

The initial campaign was launched against the Richardson ground squirrel, commonly known locally as "gopher." In many places poisoning resulted in the killing of 98 per cent of the animals on the first application. Entire counties were organized in a systematic voluntary warfare upon the rodents, using the township as a convenient working unit. Poisoned grain was prepared in quantity, placed in plainly marked containers and distributed to farmers, who then applied it according to directions around the ground-squirrel burrows on their farms.

More than 5,000,000 acres were treated with poison in 1916. During the spring of 1917 16,000 farmers in North Dakota joined in this movement. The ground squirrels were poisoned on 4,500,000 acres, resulting in a practical elimination of the pest in the areas treated and a saving in the year's crop of more than $1,000,000. Including hire of labor to distribute the poison, the cost averages less than 5 cents per acre under North Dakota conditions, and where landowners perform the labor the actual cash outlay per acre is materially reduced.

Co-operative Campaigns.

In other states co-operative campaigns have been effective against other pests, such as prairie dogs and jack rabbits. As suggested by the campaigns which have already been conducted effectively, these five important features essential to ultimate success are named by specialists of the department of agriculture: (1) Co-operation of all agencies involved, including farmers, local organizations, county, state, and federal officials; (2) leadership trained and experienced in methods of rodent control and in organization; (3) a unit plan to systematize activities and cover a sufficiently large territory to prevent reinfestation; (4) financial support to procure supplies in large quantities; and (5) legal provision for the extermination of pests upon neglected areas.

States' Losses From Rodents.

Some idea of the loss suffered by individual states from native rodents may be obtained from the following estimate recently submitted to the United States department of agriculture by state directors of agricultural extension work: Montana $15,000,000 to $20,000,000; North Dakota, $5,000,000 to $9,000,000; Kansas, $12,000,000; Colorado, $2,000,000; California, $20,000,000; Wyoming, 15 per cent of all crops; Nevada, 10 to 15 per cent of all crops or $1,000,000; New Mexico, $1,200,000 loss to crops and double this amount to range.

THINKING MORE ABOUT DEATH

War's Effect on the Minds of Englishmen Is Declared to Have Been Extraordinary.

In England the effect of religious thought of three years and a half of war has been extraordinary. The revival of religious fervor, in many instances the direct result of personal loss by death or fear of impending loss, has reflected itself in English literature.

The most astonishing of all recent conversions is that of H. G. Wells, hard-headed and yet tender-hearted Socialist, who now writes of religion as if it were a discovery of his own.

Another writer who has been led by the war in faith in a life beyond the grave is Sir Oliver Lodge, whose book, "Raymond," dealing with the communications said to have been received from his son, is one of the phenomena of present-day literature.

The war is making the world think intently about death and what comes after and, in consequence, is urging them to establish a closer relation during life with the eternal.—Exchange.

The small boy sometimes sees straight and sees far, says the Christian Science Monitor. John stood high in his examination, but a girl took the highest mark. His father was indignant.

"Yes, father, said John, unblushingly, 'I have; but I can tell you something—girls are not so very mere after all."

President Proclaims June 28th as National War Savings Day

Washington, D. C., May 30, 1918.

A Proclamation By the President of the United States:

This war is one of nations, not of armies, and all of our one hundred million people must be economically and industrially adjusted to war conditions if this nation is to play its full part in the conflict. The problem before us is not primarily a financial problem, but rather a problem of increased production of war essentials and the saving of the materials and the labor necessary for the support and equipment of our army and navy. Thoughtless expenditure of money for non-essentials uses up the labor of men, the products of the farms, mines and factories, and overburdens transportation, all of which must be used to the utmost and at their best for war purposes.

The great results which we seek can be obtained only by the participation of every member of the nation, young and old, in a national concerted thrift movement. I therefore urge that our people everywhere pledge themselves, as suggested by the Secretary of the Treasury, to the practice of thrift, to serve the Government to their utmost in increasing production in all fields necessary to the winning of the war, to conserve food and fuel and useful materials of every kind, to devote their labor only to the most necessary tasks, and to buy only those things which are essential to individual health and efficiency, and that the people, as evidence of their loyalty, invest all that they can save in Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. The securities issued by the Treasury Department are so many of them within the reach of every one that the door of opportunity in this matter is wide open to all of us. To practice thrift in peace times is a virtue and brings great benefit to the individual at all times; with the desperate need of the civilized world today for materials and labor with which to end the war, the practice of individual thrift is a patriotic duty and a necessity.

I appeal to all who now own either Liberty Bonds or War Savings Stamps to continue to practice economy and thrift, and to appeal to all who do not own government securities to do likewise, and purchase them to the extent of their means. The man who buys government securities transfers the purchasing power of his money to the United States Government until after this war, and to that same degree does not buy in competition with the Government.

I earnestly appeal to every man, woman and child to pledge themselves on or before the 28th of June to save constantly and to buy as regularly as possibly the securities of the government, and to do this as far as possible through membership in War Savings Societies. The 28th of June ends this special period of enlistment in the great volunteer army of production and saving here at home. May there be none unenlisted on that day.

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

A splendid tonic is in the words of Maj. Donald Guthrie of the Canadian overseas forces: "There's lots of fun over there. There are no more cheerful and contented men on the face of the earth." He was talking, of course, about the soldiers in the trenches, who some would have us believe are pitiful, weeping, gray-haired wrecks after a tour of duty, says the New York Sun. There are societies and committees for nearly everything nowadays. Not the least useful among them would be a committee for printing the Canadian major's words, bracketed with Brigadier General Hoyle's hearty classic, "A soldier's life is a bully one," to be given to every man of draft age. It would serve as an antidote for much depressing drivel.

LESSON IN MANNERS.

This is the way the agent got a lesson in manners. He called at a business office and saw nobody but a prepossessing though capable appearing young woman.

"Where's the boss?" he asked abruptly.

"What is your business?" she asked politely.

"None of yours!" he snapped. "I got a proposition to lay before this firm, and I want to talk to somebody about it."

"And you would rather talk to a gentleman?"

"Yes."

"Well," answered the lady, smiling sweetly, "so would I. But it seems that it's impossible for either one of us to have our wish, so we'll have to make the best of it. State your business, please!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

At this time of the year people feel weak, tired, listless, their blood is thin, they have lived indoors and perhaps expended all their mental and bodily energy and they want to know how to renew their energy and stamina, overcome headaches and backaches, have clear eyes, a smooth, ruddy skin, and feel the exhilaration of real good health tingling thru their body. Good, pure, rich, red blood is the best insurance against ill of all kinds. Almost all diseases come from impure and impoverished blood. It is to be noticed in the pale or pimply face, the tired, haggard appearance or the listless manner.

AN ATTACK OF GRIP USUALLY LEAVES KIDNEYS IN WEAKENED CONDITION

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are often very distressing and leave the system in a run-down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney troubles. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince anyone who may be in need of it. Regular medium and large size bottles, for sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.—Adv.

BLACK IS POPULAR

Gowns Suitable for All Occasions and All Ages.

May Be Relieved by Use of Colored Lining and Touches of Jet and Metallic Lace.

With the spring season almost upon us, nearly every woman will have need of a smart new evening gown. Something simple and dignified is looked for in these days of economy, says a fashion authority, and women gladly pass up the frivolous frocks of more prosperous days. Black is tremendously popular for evening wear, but it is usually brightened by quantities of fine jet or metallic lace.

One of the loveliest black evening gowns is made of black tulle over soft satin. If you have a black satin or charmeuse afternoon frock, the waist of which is worn, you can use that to great advantage. If the skirt is rather narrow, use it as the foundation.

First make a plain drop skirt of black net over the satin, reaching down to the hem. A narrow band of jet sewed to the net will give it weight and make it hang well. A tunic with four points, also bordered with jet, goes over the net skirt and falls a little longer than usual.

This tunic can be elaborately embroidered in jet beads, or you can buy black net that is already embroidered. However, it is not difficult to do oneself, and if white tissue paper is held under the net, it will not be so hard on the eyes. Later, carefully rip the paper away.

The bodice of the gown should be extremely simple. Make a plain dart

BLACK SATIN HAT AND BAG

Clever sets are offered as spring accessories and among the latest and most attractive designs are those in satin decorated with wool embroidery and cut-out floral designs. This fetching hat and knitting bag of black satin are trimmed with gay-colored appliqued flowers.

LATEST IN DRESS GOODS

Covert coating is always smart. Winged hats are in great favor. Brown is a good color for spring hats. Tan coats are lined with navy blue. Peanut straw is popular in millinery. Lace ruffles are used on combinations. Linings are generally in dark shades. No draperies are seen on the newest Paris creations. Not a few of the new spring coats button up close under the chin. Wool cashmere and silk jersey are favorite materials for spring suits. The smart sport sweaters have hems turned up to serve for holding golf balls.

Fancies in Taupe. Feather fancies in taupe and gray shades abound in all the hat trimming departments, and are obviously, just now, smarter than black ornaments of the same type, even on hats of black straw. Most of these fancies are made of ostrich, spilt, burnt, curled or uncured as the case may be. They come in aigrette and pompon effects and may be set up in military fashion at the front of a turban, slanted sideways or posed high at the back, according to personal taste or the shape of the particular hat under consideration. The soft ostrich fancy in the soft taupe shade gives a very individual note to a black straw hat of glazed milan or luser and the taupe trimming usually makes such a hat more becoming. A band and bow of new glazed ribbon adds the final note of smartness, and with such a hat a taupe veil looks well.

An interesting note could be given this gown by a corsage bouquet of gay colors. A rich red poinsettia would be striking at the belt, especially when worn by a brunette. The girl with the auburn hair should select a few orchids (artificial if necessary) to wear with her black dance frock.

For those who find all black too intense, try black tulle or lace over a slip of flesh-colored satin. Finish the bottom with a deep flounce of silver lace and have a black tulle drop skirt.

Silver embroidery should trim the tunic of this style gown and silver banding used at the shoulders. This makes a lovely dance frock for the young girl, and one of which she does not easily tire.

Black evening gowns are well suited to all ages and occasions, from the elderly matron with snowy locks to the golden-haired debutante.

GRAY MATTER AND CLOTHES

How a Smart Girl Copied Hat She Saw in Shop Window, Making a Most Clever Reproduction.

Read about these two clever things that one girl did whose allowance for clothes was nothing what it should have been, which only goes to prove that pocketbooks don't always make smart clothes and that gray matter has a lot to do with it. She saw a hat she liked in a smart shop window. It was a tricorne, with the most adorable trimming cockades on each of the three sides. But she couldn't afford it. However, she went straightway and bought a plain silk tricorne and then proceeded to copy those fetching little cockades. She painted a wooden button mold with some gilt paint, then covered it with some dainty figured chiffon. The result was that of an enameled ornament. She then used some long yellow and black beads, which she had on hand, and arranged them around the button as spokes in a wheel, backing the whole thing with a plaiting of the folded chiffon.

This same girl did wonders to a plain blue chiffon blouse designed to be worn with a dark blue suit, but not quite dressy enough as it stood when bought.

Short Peplum Pleases. The short, wired peplum is again sponsored by Lucille. An exquisite evening gown presented at the opening was made of silver cloth, pink pearls and sequins and pale pink tulle. The tulle was wired into an extremely short peplum, below which hung the draping of pearls and sequins. Delicate shades of green, mauve and orchid satin were combined in the bodice, and at the waistline there was a tiny bunch of hand-made ribbon flowers, the edges of which were hemstitched and peccod with silver thread.

Three-Quarter Length Gloves. Some concern is felt by buyers of gloves over the difficulty in obtaining 12-inch silk gloves, and the 8-inch leather glove, which the bell effect now applied to many of the high-priced waists and to the Eton coat will make quite necessary, for the reason that these sleeves are worn only half way to the wrist.

Fringe of Bone Beads. A certain amount of fringe is used, sometimes composed of round bone beads, and wooden beads with gold galleons and mohair braids are trimmings of importance.

Sailor Hat of Rough Straw. Of course the nature and purpose of a sports hat demand that it shall be plain in trimming and shape and as serviceable as possible. A new sailor is in mushroom shape of rough straw and fits well down over the eyes like a child's hat. Later on we are to see perfectly adorable little summer outing hats of gingham to match the little frocks of such pleasing simplicity last summer, and which will reappear this year more popular than ever.

WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Winona, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night—would lie awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around and in the morning would be all tired out. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. My nervousness soon left me. I sleep well and feel fine in the morning and able to do my work. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."—Mrs. ALBERT SULTZ, 608 Olmstead St., Winona, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women, "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Such women should profit by Mrs. Sultz's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

LET HIS GERMAN BLOOD OUT

Patriotism Shown by Would-Be Fighter Sure Entitled Him to a Place in the Ranks.

"I thought I had a few drops of German blood in my veins, so I pricked my great toe and let them flow out. Now I'm ready to take the oath."

So saying, William Strasburger, an applicant for enlistment in the United States marine corps at Newark, N. J., removed his shoe and displayed to the astonished gaze of Sergt. Thomas Green a bandaged "little pig that went to market."

"How do you know that the blood you let out was German and not some other kind?" asked Green.

"I pricked at a point furthest from my heart," returned Strasburger, who is American-born and pugnaciously anti-Teutonic.

But Strasburger can't be a United States marine. He lacked the weight and height necessary.—New York World.

ECONOMY TALK is all right—ECONOMY PRACTICE is better. INSTANT POSTUM is an economy drink—absolutely no waste. Besides, it is convenient, saves fuel and sugar, and leaves nothing to be desired in the way of flavor. TRY A CUP!

Both Ends (Producer and Consumer) Against The Middle (The Packer)

The consumer wants to pay a low price for meat.

The farmer wants to get a high price for cattle.

The packer stands between these conflicting demands, and finds it impossible to completely satisfy both.

The packer has no control over the prices of live stock or meat, and the most that can be expected of him is that he keep the difference between the two as low as possible. He does this successfully by converting animals into meat and distributing the meat at a minimum of expense, and at a profit too small to be noticeable in the farmer's returns for live stock or in the meat bill of the consumer.

Swift & Company's 1917 transactions in Cattle were as follows:

	Average Per Head
Sold Meat to Retailer for	$68.97
Sold By-products for	24.09
Total Receipts	93.06
Paid to Cattle Raiser	84.45
Balance (not paid to Cattle Raiser)	8.61
Paid for labor and expenses at Packing House, Freight on Meat, and Cost of operating Branch distributing houses	7.32
Remaining in Packer's hands as Returns on investment	$ 1.29

The net profit was $1.29 per head, or about one-fourth of a cent per pound of beef.

By what other method can the difference between cattle prices and beef prices be made smaller, and how can the conflicting demands of producer and consumer be better satisfied?

IMPORTANT NOTICE

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES PROCLAIMS FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 1918,

NATIONAL WAR SAVINGS DAY

GOVERNORS AND MAYORS MAKE SIMILAR PROCLAMATIONS

MEETINGS WILL BE HELD IN EVERY COMMUNITY TO SECURE SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Pursuant to the proclamations of the President of the United States and the Governor of this State, I, War Savings Director for New Mexico, acting under the authority of the United States Treasury Department, have called all tax-payers and wage-earners to meet on Friday, June 28th, to give their subscriptions for War Savings Stamps. In rural communities, and the smaller towns and cities, meetings will be held in the school houses at 2 p. m.

The school or precinct officers will conduct the meeting in each school house, keeping a record of the proceedings and reporting the names of all persons present and the amount of War Savings Stamps subscribed for by them. The names of absent persons, and of those who refuse or neglect to subscribe, with their reasons for so doing, will also be reported.

War Savings Stamps (which are United States Government Bonds the same as Liberty Bonds) can be paid for during any month in the year 1918, but it is intended that subscriptions will be signed for them on June 28.

The price of each War Savings Stamp depends upon the month during which it is bought. During June each stamp will cost $4.17. In July each Stamp will cost $4.18, and so on, one cent more each month during 1918. On January 1, 1923, the Government of the United States will redeem all War Savings Stamps at $5.00 each, no matter during which month in 1918 they were bought. They cost less during the early months in 1918 than during the later months because the person who buys earlier has loaned his money to the Government for a longer time than if he should buy later.

By way of illustration, note the following table:

COST OF WAR SAVINGS STAMPS DURING JUNE, JULY AND AUGUST, 1918

	Cost in June	Cost in July	Cost in August	And Are Worth on Jan. 1, 1923
1 Stamp.....	$ 4.17	$ 4.18	$ 4.19	$ 5.00
50 Stamps.....	208.50	209.00	209.50	250.00
100 Stamps.....	417.00	418.00	419.00	500.00
200 Stamps.....	834.00	836.00	838.00	1,000.00

The law provides that no person can hold in his own name War Savings Stamps exceeding $1,000 maturity value. War Savings Stamps, however, may be purchased for other members of the family, including minor children.

The money invested in War Savings Stamps is not a gift, or a donation, but is a loan to the Government. It will all be paid back with 4% compound interest. If, because of some serious financial reverses, or calamity, it should be necessary to get your money before January 1, 1923, you may do so by giving ten days notice to any Money Order postmaster, in which case you can get what you paid for the Stamps, with interest to date of payment. The Stamps are free from all State and Local taxes; when registered at the postoffice they are insured against loss; they are backed by all the property in the United States; they cannot fall in value below the price you pay; they are as convenient and as well paying an investment as has ever been offered by our Government.

A definite quota of War Savings Stamps has been assigned each school district and community, which will be announced at each meeting on June 28th. The Government of the United States expects all the citizens of every precinct, school district and county to subscribe for its quota and to pledge themselves to save and economize to help win the war.

It is to be hoped that the subscriptions taken at the meetings in your county will show you and your neighbors to be loyal Americans to whom our Government, in this hour of need, does not call in vain.

Signed,

J. Reynolds

New Mexico War Savings Director appointed and acting under the authority of the Secretary of the United States Treasury.
