TO ARMS, CITIZENS!

The immortal words of the French battle cry of freedom ring out again today to the American nation.

We are called upon to take up arms and fight to the death - if need be - for Freedom, Justice and Those Things that make life worth living.

In this profound crisis is the test of citizenship.

The highest form of duty is to fight with our armed forces - to have enough to eat, enough to wear, a few dollars in your pocket, and to devote the balance of your earning power - your life if need be - as an offering to your country.

The next best form of duty is to stay at home and produce - allowing yourself enough money to purchase the bare necessities of life and to conduct business, essential to the war, and to devote the balance of your earning power to your country in the form of subscriptions to Liberty Loans.

One or the other duty you must assume.

If you can bear arms you will do so.

If you are unable to bear arms you will supply the money and material for those who can - you will enable them to bear your arms for you.

GERMAN PIONEERS THROW PONTOON BRIDGES ACROSS THE MEUSE IN FACE OF MURDEROUS FIRE

Synopsis.—The author of these confessions, an officer in the pioneers' corps of the German army, a branch of the service corresponding to the engineers' corps of the United States army, is sent into Belgium with the first German forces invading that country. Ignorant of their destination or of the reasons for their actions, the German soldiers cross the border and attack the Belgian soldiers defending their frontier. Civilians—men, women and children—are driven from their burning homes as the Zeppelins and giant guns of the Germans raze the strongest fortifications. The Germans sweep on across Belgium, slaying and burning under orders of their officers to show no mercy. Some German soldiers who tried to aid helpless refugees were rebuked by their officers, one of whom declared that such a thing as pity was insanity.

CHAPTER IV.

The scene of the slaughter could now be surveyed at leisure. Dead and wounded were strewn all around, and over them clouds of smoke and flames made the air thick. But we were already too hardened to feel much pity. Humanity was thrown to the winds and the cries and begging of the wounded left everybody cold.

Some Catholic sisters lay dead in front of their convent. The only building that was spared in Donchery was the armory of the Twenty-third French Dragoons.

There was not much time in which to do anything, for at seven o'clock the French began to hurl shells into the village. We fortified ourselves behind a thick garden wall directly in front of the Meuse. The river bank at this point was flat, but on the opposite side it was steep. Here the French infantry had dug itself in and established three lines, one above the other. The artillery firing was too far. We did not come within its range, so that we were able to observe the effect of the shelling of our own artillery on the enemy infantry positions before us. The 21-centimeter shells raged by above our heads and burst with a fearful noise in the enemy's trenches.

The French could not resist this hail of shot very long. They soon abandoned all the heights on the river bank. They abandoned Donchery without a fight and it was left intact. It had not been the case with Donchery. Hardly a house had suffered.

When the bugles sounded in Donchery, it was discovered that our company had lost 88 men in battle. A position was taken behind the dragon armory and our company, which now was reduced to 90 men, was ordered to attempt the building of a pontoon bridge over the Meuse. After we had been re-enforced by 50 men, we marched in small detachments in order not to draw the enemy's attention to us. After an hour's march we stopped in a small forest about 200 meters from the Meuse to rest until darkness set in. At twilight a division bridge train was driven up close to our hiding place. This was soon followed by a corps bridge train as a reserve. After all preparations were made and the main advance work, such as setting up the bridge stays and landing platforms, were ready, the single pontoon wagons drove up. They were speedily but silently unloaded. We completed four pontoons, that is, 20 meters of bridge, without the enemy discovering anything.

Then suddenly the searchlight of the enemy was set in action and scanned the river. We dropped to the ground at once. The enemy must have seen us, for the searchlights played here and there and kept our bridge position under continuous glare. We were discovered hardly before we knew what had happened, and a rain of fire fell in the water in front of us. We continued to lie flat on the ground as four more shots struck the water, this time a little nearer to the bridge and one shot hit the bank. At once a third rain of shot followed and two struck the bridge. Two men fell in the water and two lay dead on the bridge. There in the water swam waders and escaped none the worse for their experience except for a bath.

In spite of the continued volume of artillery fire, we brought the two dead men to land. The bridge was now greatly damaged and there was no chance except to replace the damaged pontoons by new ones. We began this difficult task as soon as the artillery fire let up. Hardly had we begun it again when a salvo struck and greatly damaged the bridge. Fortunately we had no losses. We were now ordered to retire, and after a half hour began anew. The enemy's searchlights were now dark. We brought about ten pontoons up without interference and then we were suddenly bombarded again. We had attracted the attention of the enemy's patrol.

Several batteries now opened fire on us at one time and after ten minutes the entire work was after a pile of wreckage. Two more men were killed. The order now came to retire. Eight men were detailed to attend to the dead and wounded and we were taken out of this danger zone. After we marched about two kilometers up the river, we were halted, and discovered that the corps bridge train was in place. We were told that we would get the bridge ready on land. Sections consisting of two pontoons each were firmly fastened together, equipped with anchors, everything else made ready and then put in the water. The location for the bridge was indicated to us and we rode with all our might down to the bridge position. The enemy did not see through these tactics and did not interfere, so that all the parts reached the position in a very short time, where they were fastened together. In less than twenty minutes the bridge was completed and the infantry stormed over it.

The bridge was covered with straw in order to dull the noise of the troop movement. At the same time, at different places, transports with pontoons were awaiting the army to cross and before the French found out what had happened our troops had occupied the opposite bank and established themselves firmly there.

The French artillery and infantry now opened a terrible fire on the pontoons. Our units, which had defended the pontoons, were relieved and replaced by infantry. I was made a leader in the pontoon and with four men at the paddle and 18 infantrymen as a crew, we started our first crossing in a veritable hail of shells, but with only one minor casualty, we reached the opposite bank. A comrade took my place at the steering gear. On the return trip, our pontoon was struck by bullets but fortunately above the water line. All about us the pontoons crossed, several in a stinking condition. The men who manned them, all of whom could swim, tried to get to the bank, but many infantrymen were drowned.

We landed, and took a new pontoon, which, by a superhuman effort, we managed to get across the river a second time. This time we arrived with two dead and one wounded infantryman. Long before we reached the bank the infantrymen jumped into the shallow water and waded to land. With the two dead left in the boat, we turned around. Our crew ached as a result of the continuous rowing and their hands were soon covered by blisters, but nevertheless we had to row on. There was no rest.

When we were 20 meters from the bank, our pontoon was hit below the water line by several bullets. When the bullets struck our boat they made only a tiny hole, but as it emerged on the bottom, it tore an opening as large as a plate. As a result our pontoon settled rapidly and there was nothing else for us to do except to jump into the icy water and swim. Hardly had we left the boat when it sank, but we all reached the other bank safe for the moment.

In spite of our wet clothing we had to take a new boat at once, and with our blistered hands had to man the oars again. In the middle of the river we collided with another boat. This boat had lost its pilot and two rowers. It rammed us and our pontoon tipped over and 18 infantrymen and one member of the crew were thrown into the water. We were saved along with four men from the other pontoon and taken to the left bank. Hardly had we landed before we were ordered to take over a pontoon loaded with ammunition.

About five more times we crossed the Meuse. Meanwhile day broke and then a terrible battle developed between the troops which had crossed and the French. The Germans had the best in this encounter because they could not be shelled by the French artillery.

We were given a short rest and lay in our water-soaked clothing in an old abandoned trench shivering with cold. Our hands were swollen to twice their normal size. They pained so greatly that we could not hold a bottle to our lips. It was a terrible sight to see young and strong men lying on the ground helpless and broken.

After a short rest we were ordered to seek for wounded in the burning houses but we did not find many, for most of those who had been badly wounded and unable to save themselves, were burned to death. Only the buttons of their uniforms and their weapons indicated to us to which side they had belonged.

In some cases, there were not even these vestiges. Only a little heap of ashes within the ruins of a house, was all that was left of whole families for whole streets. During the search most of us behaved as if we had not taken part in the terrible events of the last hour, as if we had not seen the horrors of this encounter and as if we had forgotten entirely the danger we had just escaped.

As to honoring the dead, something which had been taught us by our mothers from infancy, or a fear which the average person feels toward a body, there was no sign. My pen would balk if I tried to recall the expressions, to describe the acts of soldiers as well as officers committed to determine the nationality or sex of the dead. In the meantime, the battle between our troops and the French had reached a climax. Our troops had suffered great losses but now our turn came.

The German artillery shelled as we crossed the enemy's position with great fury. Our artillery succeeded in Prohibitor's Civilization.

People of the present age need not think they are the only bright fellows there ever were. There are prehistoric remains in different parts of the United States—particularly in the southwest—that attest a civilization of long ago, for they are far beyond anything that would have been possible to the Indians who inhabited the country when the first white settlers came. Among this testimony to the importance of former days are the remains of irrigation systems. One of the most famous of these is on the Arizona highway, running from Prescott to the Grand canyon. Water is taken from what is known as Montezuma's well, a curious natural well 440 feet in diameter and 88 feet deep, except in one spot, where no bottom has been reached at 200 feet.

Misunderstood.

Santa Domingo.—A few evenings ago our warden, Sweet (who, by the way, doesn't deserve his name at all), was dining at a "Fonda" with one of our dearest damsels and was looking over the menu when he asked her whether she would have a little shrimp. She blushed deeply and answered in subdued tones: "Oh, Mr. Sweet, you are so sudden." Sweet, of course, doesn't like that; but you perhaps don't know him like we do.—"Star Jinx," 4th Ch., U. S. M. C., in the Mexican Magazine.

silencing the enemy's batteries and we tried to take his high positions by storm.

When we were within 200 meters of the enemy's defenses, the French machine guns were turned upon us and we were driven back with enormous losses.

Ten minutes later, we stormed a second time and had to retire again with great losses. We again formed for attack within the shelter of our trenches, but the fighting spirit was gone. But we dared not lose courage, although the victims of our useless storming attacks covered the field and we were able to look at our dead comrades all about us.

The artillery started up again; reinforcements arrived; after half an hour, we stormed a third time, over the bodies of our fallen comrades. As we halted about 20 meters from the enemy's trench, he withdrew his entire first line. Soon after we saw the Germans advance along the whole line. The reason for this unexpected retreat was explained later when we learned that the main part of the French army had retired some time before. The heavy toll of life among our comrades was taken in a mere rear-guard action.

During the next hour the enemy abandoned all the heights of the Meuse. As we reached the crest of these heights, we could easily overlook the roads over which the French had retreated. They were departing in close formation, in long columns. Our company and others received orders to assemble and soon we pursued the fleeing enemy. It was our work to repair roads which had been destroyed so that they would be passable for our armies, a task that was harder in the burning midday sun, owing to the fact that the dead and wounded had first to be disposed of.

French soldiers, surrendering when they found themselves surrounded, were slaughtered by the Germans, acting under command of their officers. This is one of the incidents described in the next installment.

HAIR WORTH MORE THAN GOLD

Look From Head of the Immortal George Washington Brought Sum of Five Hundred Dollars.

It is a wise barber who knows his famous customers, notes a writer. A single hair from the head of Shakespeare would be priceless today. Yet he must frequently, methinks, have had his hair cut. Most poets wear their hair long, but there comes a time, even to a poet, when he must have it trimmed at least. That is the barber's chance.

A silver shell-shaped reliquary containing a lock of hair of Milton, together with a lock of hair of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, sold in London at an auction recently for $400.

A lock of Thackeray's hair, cut from his head after his death by his daughter, Anne, Lady Ritchie, fetched $100 at auction. Milton did not get quite that much for "Paradise Lost." The sale of a lock of Napoleon's hair for 10 shillings denotes a serious slump in hair shares. Perhaps there was doubt whether it ever grew on Napoleon's cranium at all, for in 1000 a similar relic, much the same color and texture, realized $100, and a year earlier two locks were sold for $125 and $25 respectively.

But probably the record was broken in America, where most records are doomed to be broken sooner or later, for at an auction sale in New York a lock of hair from the head of the immortal George Washington fetched the sum of $300.

Watch His Laugh.

The leopard cannot change his spots, nor the laugher his laugh. It is as characteristic as his nose or the color of his eyes. No polish or educational retractor can alter the laugh much in quality and tone, although it may soften it. Yet, even then, in an unguarded moment the old laugh rings of cackles, or explodes, and the show is given away.

A man to be avoided, to be passed by on the other side, is the man who laughs without smiling. The man who laughs like a snark or a ventriloquist's puppet. His face wrinkles. He makes a noise. But he is harmless as a reester when cackling. Take it from me, that man is hard, retentive, crust, malignant.

"Germ-Proof" Money.

To a bank in Spokane, Wash., belongs the distinction of circulating the first antiseptic germ-proof national bank notes. The United States treasury is still experimenting with devices to laundry dirty bank notes to bright crisp ones, but the Spokane bank has the first sanitary money on record. Fifty thousand dollars in bills, put out by the bank, were signed with an ink said to consist largely of carbolic acid. The result is the bills are saturated with an agency which means death to the most vigorous germ who'd live there.

LEMON JUICE TAKES OFF TAN

Girls! Make bleaching lotion if skin is sunburned, tanned or freckled

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quartier pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.—Adv.

Fatal Accident

Near Lena, Illinois

Warren, the home town of Mrs. Anabel Bucknam-Creys, was saddened last Tuesday by the report that she had met death in an auto accident near Lena. Mrs. Creys was home on a visit, and at her suggestion she and her sister drove to Freeport for a day's outing. When returning home about 5 o'clock, as they neared the Doll farm on the outskirts of Lena, the car swerved, dashed into an embankment and overturned so that it was facing in the direction from which it came.

The force of the jar threw Mrs. Creys to the ground, death resulting almost instantly from the injuries received. The real cause of the accident is not known. Miss Bucknam, who was driving the car, says that it was done so quickly that she was unable to account for the misadventure. The sensation she experienced as the big car made the lunge was as if the steering-wheel became loosened, depriving her of any control of the machine.

Mrs. Floyd Crews is a daughter-in-law of our Judge Crews, of Osceola, and was a lady much beloved by all who knew her. We deplore the fact that lack of space forbids our giving an extensive account of the beautiful character of this amiable lady. But a few words will be sufficient to show the beauty and sunshine of her personality.

A few moments before her death she turned to her companion and said, "What a happy day we have had."

She was of the disposition that carried sunshine into all her associations. As she was much loved, so will she be much missed by those of her admiring associates.

First Lieut. O'Connell.

The Recruiting Sergeants who were here this week are well acquainted with First Lieut. Phil S. O'Connell, who was at one time foreman of The Outlook. Lieut. O'Connell was at the time he was connected with The Outlook, temporarily at leave from the service as a reward for his seven years of faithful service, during which time he had not only gained the confidence of his military seniors, but had performed many acts of loyalty and courage along the border, which commended him to the love and admiration of all his military associates.

He returned to the service several months ago, being stationed at El Paso, and was at once placed in charge of the Machine Gun Corps as instructor. He has since been promoted to different stations of honor as rewards of merit. The Outlook has ordered a service flag, which will soon appear in the "Service Flag Galley" in honor of Lieut. Phil S. O'Connell.

"To My Own Sunny South Take Me Home."

Flat Head to The Core

Last Monday Government official Tinklepaugh, came over from Fort Stanton bringing with him a full grown "Jimburger", who answered to the name of Hans Brandt, and who is charged with evading registration.

Upon being questioned, he stated that he was opposed to the registration because it would dishonor the Kaiser. He was landed in jail (to the dishonor of the Kaiser, unt gott) where we assure him of the fact that living in a free country, does not license him to violate the provisions of the Espionage Act.

Recruiting Sergeants

Visit Carrizozo

Sergeants Byary, Derry and Walker, serving as a recruiting contingent, arrived here Tuesday from El Paso, and made good use of the time allotted to their stay. These gentlemen are a credit to the great cause they represent. Thoroughly patriotic in every bone and fibre, they go about Uncle Sam's business in a manner which elicits the highest of admiration.

Sergeant Derry has undergone service in France, being sent in 1915 from Canada, and his vast experience, which he is free in giving information of, is not only of great interest to hear him relate, but it assists greatly in the work he and his officer friends were engaged in while in Carrizozo. If it were possible, we would be both pleased and benefitted by a visit from these gentlemen at some future date. —Warren Sentinel-Leader.

The Flag Galley Mourns

The Flag Galley mourns the loss of Roy Hamilton, who is officially reported killed in action August 6th, 1918.

Roy Hamilton is the son of Mrs. Martha Hamilton, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Calvin Carl, and was a brother of our Mrs. Wm. Barnett and Mrs. Calvin Carl.

Details have not as yet reached here, but a full account of his death, as far as the Government can give out, will appear next week in The Outlook. The relatives have our most profound sympathy.

ABOUT THE WAR

British troops have drawn their lines closer about Lens.

German war correspondents report that Douai is being evacuated.

French troops have crossed the Crozat canal opposite Lies, three miles southwest of Venduill.

More than 19,000 prisoners were taken by the British in France in the first week of September.

Tchitca, the capital of Transbalkala and 270 miles east of Irkutsk, has been captured by Czech-Slovak forces.

Continuing their pressure along the front from Rheims to Ypres, the allied forces are pushing back the Germans on virtually this entire 150-mile line.

Between the Somme and the Oise the French have advanced beyond Hincourt, despite strong enemy resistance, according to the Paris war office announcement.

North of the Somme French troops have made another advance in the direction of Clastres and have occupied La Motte farm, according to the Paris war office announcement.

Marshal Foch's succession of sledge hammer blows along the German lines from Rheims to Arras since July 18 have well nigh completely flattened out the bulges created by the German offensives.

Advices received at Shanghai from Vladivostok reported the occupation by the Japanese of Khabarovsk, the seat of the general government of Amur, at the junction of the Amur and Ussuri rivers.

Particular attention is being given by the Germans to the three hinges of their line—in Flanders, northeast of Soissons and around Rheims. A break through at either point by the allies would spell disaster to the enemy.

The line northeast and southeast of Hebecourt, east of Reims, has been advanced by Australian troops, and posts have been established well to the eastward of the former front. In the same general locality the British forward movement continued Tuesday.

The maneuvers of the French have added materially to their program of turning the St. Gobain forest from the west, and also the capture of St. Quentin, and the French and Americans, who are fighting shoulder to shoulder northeast of Soissons, continue to carry out successfully a correlated movement having the conquest of the St. Gobain forest in view and also the outflanking of the German positions to the east.

YANKS BEGIN BIG DRIVE AT METZ

ARIZONA, COLORADO AND NEW MEXICO TROOPS IN MIDST OF TWENTY-MILE BATTLE.

CAPTURE TEN VILLAGES

GEN. PERSHING IN COMMAND OF GREAT OFFENSIVE BETWEEN MEUSE AND MOSELLE.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington.—With French and American troops striking on a wide front south and east of Verdun the greatest battle, perhaps the decisive struggle of the war, may have begun. Early reports show this first employment of Gen. Pershing's new army is on a wide front, the French and American thrust covering twenty miles.

Many officers here believe Marshal Foch now has struck the blow he has had in preparation ever since he determined to withhold the bulk of the American army from the fighting until the stage was set for decisive action.

American divisions known to be in the positions from which the attack has been launched included the veteran First and Second divisions of the old regular army, the first American units to get into action in France; the Eighty-ninth National Army division, composed of Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona troops, and the Eighty-second National Army division, composed of Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee troops.

Launching of America's drive in the Toul sector, where probably 1,000,000 Yanks are concentrated, may mean the beginning of General Pershing's forecast campaign of destruction against the German industrial centers on the Rhine. It is known here that systematic destruction of the Rhine industries has long been urged. It has been felt that the best opportunity of giving Germany an example of the wreck she has wrought in Belgium and northern France lay in a campaign across the Rhine from the Americans' concentration point between the Meuse and the Moselle.

Military experts felt that it offered the opportunity of shoving the boche well past the Hindenburg line and compelling him to drop back at least to the Meuse line.

With the American Army on the Lorraine front, Sept. 13.—St. Mihiel has been recaptured by the French, cooperating with the Americans under command of Gen. Pershing. The Americans in their drive reached the first objective at some points an hour ahead of schedule time. Seven hundred prisoners have already been taken. All along the line the advance has been carried out on schedule. Near Maizerais the troops went ahead against machine gun fire by crawling, and tanks were sent to their aid. To the north Les Eparges hill and the neighboring Hill 372 were captured; numerous of the enemy surrendered at the latter place. The American casualties have been remarkably low. By 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon the Americans had gained possession of the villages of Nouard, Pannez, Bouillonville and Thiaucourt.

Thiaucourt, Bouillonville, Pannez and several other towns in the south were captured in the initial dash, while on the west at the northern edge of the pocket the village of Combrès was captured and the environs of Dommarin la Montagne were reached.

To the south everywhere the Americans penetrated into the heights of the Meuse and the French fought their way into the outskirts of St. Mihiel. Unofficial reports are to the effect that the town has been recaptured by the French, and Gen. Pershing reports 3,000 prisoners taken.

In the north Field Marshal Haig is still hard after the Germans in the region of Cambrai. Here he again has advanced his front toward the much-desired German line, penetrated into the old British defense line, crossed the Canal du Nord north of Havrincourt, taken Havrincourt and another section of the Hindenburg line, and sent 1,000 Germans into the British prison cage in the rear. The Germans fought hard at Havrincourt, say the British, but all their counter attacks were beaten off.

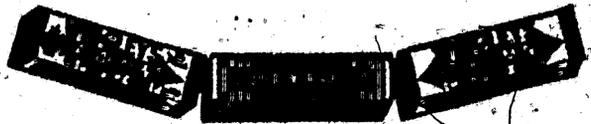

Further advances for the British also are reported in the region south of La Bassée canal and northwest of Armentieres.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY CLEANSSES YOUR KIDNEYS

The centuries GOLD MEDAL Hairton Oil has been a standard household remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and stomach trouble, and all diseases connected with the urinary organs. The kidneys and bladder are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters, the purifiers of your blood. If the poisons which enter your system through the blood and stomach are not entirely thrown out by the kidneys and bladder, you are doomed.

They are the pure, original imported Hairton Oil your great-grandmother used, and are perfectly harmless. The healing, soothing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and through the bladder, crying out the poisons which have gathered there. New life, fresh strength and health will come as you continue the treatment. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day; they will keep you in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not delay a minute. Delay is especially dangerous in kidney and bladder trouble. All druggists sell GOLD MEDAL Hairton Oil Capsules. They will refund the money if not as represented. GOLD MEDAL Hairton Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories in England. They are prepared in correct quantity and convenient form, are easy to take and are positively guaranteed to give prompt relief. In three days, sealed packages. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL. Accept no substitutes.—Adv.

city, heard last Sunday evening, with profound regret of your severe wounding on the battle field in France, while fighting for the cause of Humanity.

We assure you, Mr. Lutz, that the heart of all your companions and friends has been deeply touched by the tragedy that has come into your young life and all are hoping earnestly and praying fervently that you may, at an early date, be restored to health, that your ambition, as a young soldier, to fight the battles of your Country, may be again realized.

It is the wish of all that you may be restored to health, to your home and nation.

Sincerely,
The Membership and Friends

September 12th, 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lutz,
Carrizozo, New Mexico.
Dear Friends:—

The Pastor, Membership and friends of the Methodist Church of this city, assembled for evening service Sunday night, heard with profound sorrow, of the severe wounding of your son Chas.
H. Lutz, on the battlefield of France, while fighting for his command, for the cause of humanity.

We wish to express to you, at this time, our heartfelt sympathy, and to assure you, that we will pray earnestly and fervently, that your son may soon be restored to his usual health, that he may again be permitted to take up the cause, for which he dedicated his young manhood.

We will ever pray, it being God's will, that he may, eventually, be restored to his home and country, as a living evidence of a young battle-scarred soldier, who has "fought the fight" and "kept the faith" as one of our "Nation's heroes."

Sincerely yours,
The Membership and Friends,

Three at One Haul

West's Latest Pickings

Officer Ben West is surely an enemy to traitors and slackers; deserters have traveled many miles without apprehension, but when they come within his boundaries, they are at "dead line" and go no further—They go back.

Last Monday morning Mr. West was informed that three men had been seen lurking about the outskirts of town in soldier's uniforms, and he at once set out on horseback in search of the coldfoot trio. On nearing the old Peters residence in the southern portion of town, he saw the objects of his search in the act of begging breakfast from the housewife, who was evidently the victim of some "hard luck" tale from the men, and was about to provide them with a morning meal.

The officer placed them under arrest, took the trio to jail where they gave the names Peter Craigim, Lin Dow Davenport and George H. Nutting. They are on their own confession, deserters from Fort Bliss, being cavalry recruits, and have been at large for four weeks. In consideration of the time consumed in making a distance of 144 miles they must have walked the greater portion of this distance, in order to escape detection.

The proper military officials were notified, and the men taken to the place from whence they came. Mr. West should have a medal; he has arrested more deserters than any one official in the western country and if all railroad detectives were on the alert and watching for these seagoats, as Mr. West has been there would be less desertions, and duty would be more in consideration.

KEEPING THE HOME FIRES BURNING

Here is a little bit of home which may be found in any Army Y. M. C. A. building in the Southern Department. The big open fireplace, the curtained windows, the cozy corner, and the little feminine touches which have been added by friends of the "Y," all contribute to the comfort and morale of the soldier away from home.

Here the soldier will find a happy substitute for the home fireside, with music if he prefers it—the home paper—good magazines—a game of checkers with his chum, and a lot of other things that help to make life interesting for the soldier. This is the social room which may be found in nearly every Army Y. M. C. A. hut. This particular one is enjoyed by soldiers from the Southwestern states at a Texas camp.

WIDEAWAKE FISH.

Well," said Mrs. Pike to Mrs. Salmon, "we can never greet each other in the morning as some creatures can do."

"No," said Mrs. Pike, "I don't know just what are sentiments," said Mrs. Pike, "but I am sure they must be all right."

"The water is our home," said Mrs. Salmon. "You know I think it is the nicest home, too. It's such a big home—such a gloriously big watery home. I believe I could sing a song about it."

"I never heard of the voice of a fish cracking," said Mrs. Salmon. "No I don't think I need fear that danger."

"I never sleep, I never sleep, and I do not weep, I do not weep. For though there's water around my eyes, it does not give me a surprise."

Good office boys are at a premium just now, and the one engaged by a certain business man in one of our principal cities certainly does not come up to the prewar standard.

The Warhorse and the Miller. Those who delight in reading about patrioters of today should enjoy this fable of Ambrose Bierce, written 20 years ago:

Having heard that the state was about to be invaded by a hostile army a Warhorse belonging to a Colonel of Militia offered his services to a passing Miller.

"No," said the patriotic Miller, "I will employ no one who deserts his position in the hour of danger. It is sweet to die for one's country."

Another Argument Gone. Whether it was ever an argument against woman suffrage or not does not matter. It was, at any rate, an argument often advanced, that if women got the vote, that vote would always be cast against war;

Honest Advertising.

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Imitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher Honestly advertised, Honestly placed before the public and from which he Honestly expects to receive his reward.

Steam power was very low on the trifter, so the captain went below and picked out one of the grimy seamen. "What's wrong? It isn't the coal? What was your rating when you joined the navy? A trimmer?" "Yes, sir," came the reply. "They asked me my trade and when I said I was a trimmer they shoved me in the washboard before I had time to explain. I'm not a coal trimmer; my specialty is—corsets."

Home of the Old Man. "If women keep on taking up the essential work once performed by men," remarked a quiet observer "what a grand leading spell father and some of his sons are going to have after the war. The dressmakers and school teachers' husbands used to have a monopoly on that sort of thing, but now we will have the steam riveters, conductorettes, truck drivers and chauffeurs' husbands. It begins to look as if the old man is coming into his own at last."

Responsibility for Good Service

IT IS tremendously important in these days of stress that the public be given good telephone service. It is vital to the Government's progress.

The responsibility for telephone facilities rests with the company; but the public has a partnership in the responsibility for good telephone service.

There are three human factors involved in a telephone call, represented by the person calling, the operator and the person called. The quality of the service depends upon the cooperation of all three.

The operator can make the connection but no words can be heard at one end of the line if they are not properly spoken into the transmitter at the other end of the line; if they are not spoken distinctly to an attentive listener.

The public can serve the service by answering promptly, speaking distinctly into the transmitter, and listening attentively.

Slackers Want Their Teeth Pulled to Avoid Draft

Warning dentists that slackers may wish to have sound teeth pulled in order to avoid the draft, the Preparedness League of American Dentists has sent out the following notice which was received yesterday in El Paso:

The department of justice has turned over to this office information which it has received tending to show that registrants in certain localities have sought to avoid military service. They have sought to have teeth extracted so as to render them eligible to physical disqualification. A dentist in New York state advises that several would-be slackers have approached him with requests to have teeth extracted for this purpose.

This office desires to warn all dentists against permitting themselves to be a party to practices of this sort and to call attention to the fact that severe penalties are provided in the law for any person conspiring to aid another to avoid the draft. — El Paso Times

Chaplain Would Exterminate Foe

Baltimore, Md.—Rev. George A. Griffin, a Baltimore Protestant Episcopal clergyman serving as chaplain with the Fifth field artillery, the regiment that fired America's first shot in the war, has written a letter to Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs, a prominent Baltimorean, which was printed in full in the current issue of the Manufacturers' Record, in which he discusses at length cruelties inflicted by the Germans upon civilians and soldiers.

"I feel," he says, "that I express the sentiment of those who have seen and heard over here, when I say that were I in America today, priest as I am, I should do my best to have put to death any Boche in America or any so-called American who would apologize in any way for what the Boche has done.

"All that you have heard in America about them does not approximate the truth. There are little children right here in France with their little stumps of hands; there were some not far from my last camp, and young men with all the fingers of their right hand cut off. The other day a British officer and three Tommies told me that a short time ago they went as an advance party into a little village from which the Boche had been driven back, and in a large room there were four young Canadians crucified, one on each wall of the room.

Torture Young Girls

"Also, when I was with the British they told me the Boches had taken young Belgian and French girls into their first line trenches and tortured them until their screams made the Scotch and the Canadians so crazed they would go over into the machine gun nests which the Boche had set up, using the women's screams as a decoy.

"And I have it on the word of a British officer that they have stood (the officers) with guns leveled at their men to keep them from going over when the women scream, and being needlessly slaughtered. I cannot tell you what the Tommies told me they found when they drove these hell-fiends out of these positions; it is too awful even to think about. I also have it on the word of one of the greatest French abbés that the Boche were especially instructed to destroy convents—and kill or outrage the nuns—and he says that all through France and Belgium are ruined convents, and that the nuns were given to the soldiers to be outraged in camps.

"These are not isolated cases nor abnormal conditions which prevail here and there where troops were drunk or without restraint. Go along the French or British front, and the only conclusion you arrive at is that they are just the ground principle of Boche efficiency in action.

"It is American blood that is flowing now, and God grant it may give America some strength to realize what we are up against. To talk of terms until the Boche is exterminated is to league with Satan for a corner in hell. Privations, sacrifices! What can you do at home to compare with what these men of ours are doing over here? Meatless days, wheatless days, sugarless days, good women knitting, benefits for the Red Cross—or all your social diversions with a charitable object sandwiched in!

"When you are out on a shell-swept hill and the shells are going by like bats out of hell, as the soldiers say, and it's dark as the grave, and every man, God bless him! stands strong and

Wears Gas Mask Over Cook Stove

By ROY S. DURSTINE.

Paris.—Some day the story of what American women have done over here in France will be written. People will hear, then, about the women who are cooking and baking for the American boys with their helmets and gas masks on the shelf, next the baking powder can. They will learn of the casual heroines who see nothing remarkable in making hot chocolate in shacks where the rain and the snow come in on them through fresh shell holes in the roof.

One of the women people will hear about will be Mrs. Clara Simmons. She is as close to the front line here as any woman is permitted to go. For many days, during the active fighting just over the hill from her, she was the only woman in the entire area. That didn't bother her at all.

The boys wanted hot chocolate, and she could make it. So there you are. And there she was.

She is a little bit of America, of American womanhood, dropped right down in the middle of the fighting zone. She looks more like home to the boys than anything in the world, except a letter. She has no picturesque ideas about carrying culture and uplift to the soldiers. She's there to work for them.

She works with a huge mixing bowl full of pulverized chocolate, and seven or eight open cans of condensed milk on the table. On the rickety stove where the old fireplace used to be, a great kettle of hot water is simmering. She stirs and pours, and pours and stirs, till the air of the little shack is as fragrant as that of a candy store at home.

true, camouflaging all his own feelings for your sake and for the sake of what he has back home, meatless days and wheatless days, and Liberty bond campaigns seem cheap as your support of him in such an hour.

"Loathe the Boche—preach against him—work against him, whatever he is, ostracize him socially and commercially. Take no chances—even though his reputation for loyalty has been a long-standing one. The leopard cannot change his spots—neither can the Boche demon lose his horns. I'm begging you now, as the Boche are trying to murder us—to help wake every one up to the fact that America must realize what the world is facing over here. Can't you see it—can't America see it—how everything is hanging in the balance? And I know that the weight which shall cast it down is when your loathing for the Boche will so burn in you as to make you count nothing—consider nothing—but his extermination."

A convoy of camions rumbles past her door. They are almost at the end of their journey. German territory isn't half a dozen kilometers away. Mrs. Simmons knows that, of course, but she hums, under her breath, at her work.

Even before the hot chocolate is quite ready, the boys begin to arrive. They come in tin hats with gas masks hanging at their sides. Her own helmet and mask are on the shelf behind her.

"Hot chocolate ready?" the first one asks.

"All ready," she says, as she stirs it with her long spoon. She fills one of the tin cups from the manglepiece.

"Um-m-m!" says the youngster. "That's good and thick. Give us a package of cookies."

He takes his tin cup and his cookies to an empty packing box in the corner, sits down, and feasts slowly and luxuriously. Another boy is at the board that serves as a counter.

Give the Horse Touch.

Some of the boys stop to gossip, when the edge is taken off their thirst and hunger.

"Remember Bill Johnson?" they ask Mrs. Simmons. She does. He was the boy who always took three cups of chocolate.

"He won't any more for awhile," they tell her. "Stopped one in the leg last night."

"Oh, that's too bad!" she says, just the way she would say it at home if she heard that Johnnie had the measles.

That's the thing about Mrs. Simmons and such women. She brings to the boys a constant reminder of the women they have left behind, of their mothers and their sisters and their wives. She talks in the most casual American way about things that are neither casual nor American.

After the last of her soldiers has put on his tin hat and gone down the hill into the valleys from which they start for their outposts, she begins talking very simply about her work.

"There is not a mother or wife or sister of any one of these boys who wouldn't give all she has to be where I am today," she says. "Just think what a privilege it is to talk to them, and to see that they are well and happy, and that their clothes are whole. Women, you know, worry most about their uncertainties. If I could only tell the people who are worrying about these boys how husky and cheerful their youngsters are! That's what would make them happy. Every time I get tired, I just think how many thousands of women would be the happiest persons on earth if they could be where I am.

MADE MARCHING MEN SMILE

Appeal of Groups of Parisian Midinettes Got Desired Results From Passing British Soldiers

The Paris Figaro recounts the following picturesque episode at a review recently, which admirably expressed the enthusiastic admiration of the Parisian crowd for the British soldiers. The latter marched past, stern and impassive. Groups of midinettes observed that the soldiers were not smiling. "Smile, please, smile," they cried in French. The men did not falter, but continued to march, grave and meditative, because they did not understand. "Cry 'Smile' to them," a linguist in the crowd suggested, whereupon the group of midinettes cried in English, "Smile, please, smile." And then the British smiled, to the great delight of the girls.

L'Occuro writes: "We may say without hesitation, because we know we shall be understood by our incomparable Pollus, that it was the British troops, and especially the Scotch, who produced the greatest impression."

GET HOME-MADE FURNITURE

Italian Refugees Fit Up Red Cross Offices Out of Packing

Rome.—One example of wartime economy lies in a new carpentry shop at the American Red Cross central war-home in Rome. Here mounds of packing cases have accumulated in which for many months food and clothing have been coming from America. Recently a group of hand-made furniture appeared at Red Cross headquarters, all made from packing case wood. The work was done by Italian refugees employed originally in the American Red Cross as porters, but who had been carpenters in their old homes before the Austrian invasion of northern Italy last year.

Not only has the American Red Cross acquired a supply of badly needed office furniture, but a group of victims of the war dislodged from their homes and from their normal trades have been re-established in their old callings. Dozens of American Red Cross workshops throughout Italy are now run on a similar plan.

"I would rather go to prison than to war," he told the county authorities. He was accommodated.

Enters College at Forty. Cleveland, O.—Six years ago, when he was thirty-four years old, Isaac Maso came to America from Russia. He could not speak a word of English. While attending high school Maso worked every day and supported his wife and family.
