ROY HAMILTON DIES FOR HIS COUNTRY

The news of the death of Roy Hamilton as announced in the local papers last week came so suddenly and so unexpectedly to the relatives of the deceased, as to be hardly believable, from the fact that he had passed through here but a short time ago on his way to the battle front.

He had served in the regular army for eleven years, during which time he had with his years of training become thoroughly hardened to the service, and as such was among the first in place, on the field against the fiendish Hun, and it proved to be the first and last battle for the daring patriot.

Roy Hamilton was born in Marengo, Ill., Nov. 2, 1872. He enlisted in the regular army in the year of 1907, being stationed for most of the time after his enlistment, along the coast. He came through Carrizozo last June, and the train stopping over for a space of one hour, gave him an opportunity to bid his relatives a last goodbye. On August 6th, in a fierce engagement with the enemy, he lost his life in his first effort to help abolish the fiendish system of savagery that is seeking to destroy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Roy Hamilton's name adorns the "Flag Galley," and although his work is finished, his name will stand out with more brilliancy as it is pointed out as that of a soldier's whose duty was well done, and he now sleeps in foreign lands from which neither drum tap nor bugle call will ever awaken him.

On fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn sound
The bivouac of the dead.

Missing in Action

Mrs. Fulidora Baca of Carrizozo is in receipt of a telegram from the acting adjutant at Washington, D. C., to the effect that private Marcial St. John is reported missing in action since August 6th. Marcial St. John is a cousin of Ben Lujan who is one of the clerks at Ziegler Bros. store.

What Might Happen

A number of our exchanges have been speculating on what would happen if the government took over the newspapers. Well, the first thing the subscription would be raised 50 per cent and the sheriff would be kept busy chasing delinquents. The next step would be to raise wages about 25 per cent, and editors, who hadn't had a cent in six months they could call their own, would be placed on a salary. The merchants who fail to get their ad copy in until press day would be hauled up before the council of defense and our linotype man who hired out for two weeks and quit his job in a week would be sent to Leavenworth for about ten years as a deserter. It looks like a good proposition and we're for it.—The Fairbury (Neb.) News.

At The Crews Home

Last Sunday afternoon, the following ladies and gentlemen enjoyed the hospitality of the home of Judge Seth F. Crews near Oscura. F. J. Sager, wife and daughter, H. B. Hamilton and wife, the Misses Vera Harris and Cora Cole, A. L. Burko and wife.

Attorney Hamilton wife and the young ladies mentioned, had motored out in the early part of the afternoon, consequently the meeting of the visitors at the Crews home was unexpected. After a pleasant chat with the genial hosts, the guests were invited to the commodious dining room where they were treated to a bounteous repast of luscious watermelon, fresh from the garden which the Judge is so justly proud.

Following the enjoyment of this measure of hospitality, the guests were escorted about the garden and interested themselves in the system of irrigation the Judge has for watering his garden and thriving young trees about the place. The water is furnished from a freely flowing well on the hillside, operated by a large windmill.

The well was drilled to a depth of 26 feet, when the drilling ceased and an experiment was made in tunneling. The Judge ordered this work done from the depth of the well, into the side of the hill, when at a distance of 92 feet water was found in abundance. The water flows out through the tunnel into the well; then pumped to the surface by the windmill power, and flows out through the irrigation ditches and over the "Crews Garden."

As the sun was sinking over the blue Oscura range, the party bid the good Crews family a fond good bye, but not before the hosts had insisted on filling every vacant space in the two automobiles with a full line of samples of the Crews product of melons, which intensified the wishes of of the entire party, that the garden might grow to many times its present size.

RETAIL MERCHANTS NAME OFFICERS

Will Submit Report of Buying and Selling Prices Every Week

Last Friday night the Retail Merchants Association met and named the following officers who will take care of the interests of the association for the coming year:

Geo. Titworth of Capitan and Harry Humphrey of Carrizozo for the wholesale interests; S. M. Groom for the meat interests; R. T. Cribb for the retail grocers' interests and B. L. Stimel for the consumers' interests.

On Saturday night, Mr. F. J. Sager, county food administrator, called the retail merchants together and accepted a report of the purchase and selling prices, for the week ending Sept. 21st, 1918. The merchants will submit a report each week hereafter, so that the consumer can plainly see just what these commodities cost the retailer, what they are to pay, and what margin the dealer is making.

A glance at the figures in the tabulated report which appears in this issue of our paper, is enough to convince the public that the retail dealer is realizing a small margin on the business he is transacting. It will do more; it will convince the people who are in the habit of buying from the catalog houses, that they can secure by far better bargains at home than abroad. By keeping our purchases within our own boundaries, we are carrying out the "live and let live" policy, or in other words, a policy of self preservation as a community which is the first law of nature.

Let us reason this matter out and consider how important it is that we patronize our home merchants, who are giving us the actual figures each week, and in comparison with what we would have to pay outsiders, it is a foregone conclusion that we are by far better off by buying at home. Cut the tabulated report out of the paper each week, and tuck it up in some conspicuous place in the home.

Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Indiana: Perry Hightower, Hondo; Martin, Fresques, Glencoe; Walter A. Morris, Mayeville, Oklahoma; Antonio Garcia, Arabella; Pablo Sanchez, Hondo; Frank Gimel, Encinosa; Richard G. Morgan, Ancho; Tillman B. Burch, Earl C. Martin, Earnest T. The Confessions of a German Deserter

Copyright by Donald Eric Fries

Written by a Prussian Officer Who Participated in the Ravaging and Pillaging of Belgium

FRENCH SOLDIERS ARE SLAUGHTERED WHEN, SURROUNDED, THEY THROW DOWN THEIR ARMS

Synopsis.—The author of these confessions, an officer in the pioneers' corps of the German army, a branch of the service corresponding to the engineers' corps of the United States army, is sent into Belgium with the first German forces invading that country. Ignorant of their destination or of the reasons for their actions, the German soldiers cross the border and attack the Belgian soldiers, defending their frontier. Civilians—men, women and children—are driven from their burning homes as the Zeppelins and giant-guns of the Germans raze the strongest fortifications. The Germans sweep across Belgium, slaying and burning under orders of their officers to show no mercy. Some German soldiers who tried to aid helpless refugees were rebuked by their officers, one of whom declared that such a thing as pity was insanity. The German pioneers throw pontoon bridges across the Meuse in the face of a murderous fire from the French.

The dead bodies were seized by two men, one at the head and the other at the feet, and thrown into the ditch. Corpses were handled exactly as was a board to be used in building a bridge. Legs and arms were tossed likewise into the ditch. Dead horses and damaged batteries had to be removed. We were not strong enough to remove dead horses. We managed to capture a horse which was running wild and hitched him to the carcasses. Corpses hanging in the trees were left there. No one cared anything about them.

Canteens and knapsacks of the dead were searched for food and drink and whatever we found was eaten with the greatest relish.

French soldiers who had died of sunstroke covered the road. Others crawled to right and left of the road and waited there for relief or death. We did not dare to help them. The order was to advance and we had to march on and on. The captain told us we had to pursue the fleeing enemy with all our strength and much discontent was manifest on receipt of this order.

After being on our feet day and night, slaying like barbarians, taking no time to eat or rest, we continued to receive commands to maintain the pursuit with all haste. The captain understood how we felt and tried to pacify us by friendly conversation.

CHAPTER V.

Not far from Sommepey, the French rear guard stopped again. Four batteries of our artillery were brought into position and our company, along with machine guns, were ordered to protect the artillery. The artillery officers did not think this sufficient protection because the airplanes had discovered the presence of strong French cavalry detachments and a cavalry attack was suspected. However, a stronger guard could not be provided and there was nothing to be done but take our position and make the best of the situation. We dug ourselves in to the right and left of the batteries, in a field of small pine trees. The machine-guns were set up and supplied with ammunition. We were then given instructions as to what to do in the event of a cavalry attack. An old major of infantry, with white hair, took command. Our unit was placed with the infantry, but our "brave" officers disappeared suddenly. To them the defense of the fatherland was the business of a private. Since we had been assigned to assist infantry, our officers considered themselves superfluous and took French leave.

Our instructions were as follows: In the event of a cavalry attack, everything must be quiet. The guns must be pointed but hidden. A machine gun must not be fired until a major in command gives the order. When there must be a lively, quietness. Our batteries fired violently at a plane flying high over them which was made with star shells which were read only by the observer.

This state of affairs affects only "pioneer" officers who, when their units are attached to infantry or observer divisions, scarcely ever take part in a battle. This was the case with our officers during my whole war career. They remained far away from the gunfire in comfortable security. This is also the case with many infantry captains and almost all higher officers. Majors, colonels, etc., never take part in a storming attack. I was told and several times I observed this myself.

But the expected attack did not come, the enemy's infantry was not to be seen. We prepared to resume our march and were all ready to move when the order came to bivouac. The spot where we were to rest was as usual fixed by the staff so that they knew where to find us at any time. Hardly had we reached the place when our field kitchen, which we supposed had been lost, appeared as if it had come out of the ground. Those in charge of the field kitchen had received no knowledge of our losses of the last few days and had cooked for the old number. They were greatly surprised on seeing instead of a brave company of strong "pioneers," a lot of ragged, exhausted, crushed human shadows. We were given soup, bread, meat, apples and every one received a cigarette, which was more welcome to most of us than food and drink.

The next morning we slept until six o'clock and even though we were lying on the bare ground it was very hard to wake us. Breakfast was excellent. It consisted of mutton which had been requisitioned, vegetables, bread, coffee, a goblet of wine, and ham. Our captain told us to eat all we could as we had a hard day's march before us.

We resumed our march at seven o'clock. Everybody was in high spirits and in the course of our conversations it became apparent that we had lost track of the time entirely. Nobody knew whether it was Monday or Wednesday or whether it was the fifth or tenth of the month. This condition became more and more general. Soldiers never know the day of the week; one is just like another, Saturday, Sunday or Thursday.

We stopped to rest at noon on a large farm but were obliged to wait in the rain for the field kitchen. Meanwhile we helped ourselves. We shot one of the cows grazing in the meadow, cut open the hide without bothering to drain the blood from the carcass. Then everybody cut off a piece of meat, still warm, which was fried in a pot cover or eaten raw with a little salt by a great many of the soldiers. This killing of cattle was repeated almost daily by the soldiers acting without orders from their superiors. As a consequence they all got stomach trouble from eating meat which was too fresh without bread or vegetables. In spite of this the practice was continued. If a soldier became hungry during a pause in the marching and found a pig, cow or lamb, he shot it, cut out a piece for his own use, and let the rest spoil.

Under a burning midday sun we marched on amid clouds of dust, along a road used by munitions columns and other units, which never gave the dust an opportunity to settle. In all the fields which we passed, fugitives had set up their camps, where they lived like poor homeless gypsies. Many came up to us and begged for scraps of bread.

We marched without resting till late in the evening and at about nine o'clock we approached the city hall of Sommepey. In and around Sommepey a battle had started. We were ordered to take a part of the north-west section of the city. It was already dark and once more we halted. The fields all around us were covered with dead. In the middle of the streets were French batteries and munition columns. Horses and drivers had been killed.

After a ten-minute rest we started again and in double-quick step approached a little forest, in which dismounted cavalry and infantry were engaged with the enemy in a desperate hand-to-hand fight.

As a subterfuge we threw ourselves into the place with blood-curdling yells. We succeeded in the darkness in reaching the assembly point. The surprise attack was a success and the French, startled by our yells and by the attack, threw up their hands and surrendered. Merry was not shown them by the infuriated cavalryman.

Whenever there appeared to be any setup of the slaughter of the disarmed soldiers by our men new horrors were enacted under the commands of the officers, who kept shouting, "No quarter, slaughter everybody." Such were the orders of our distinguished officers. We pioneers also had to take part in this cold-blooded murder of unarmed men, who had thrown down their arms when they realized the futility of further resistance. Our officers took care this time, as in many earlier and later instances, that there should not be many prisoners taken.

The pioneer has a sidearm which, according to the law of nations, must not be used because the back of this sidearm consists of a three-millimeter sharp steel saw. In peace times the pioneers are not drilled with the bayonet because, this sidearm should be used only for the special duties which the pioneers perform—but the law of nations is not the law of Prussian militarism.

We were obliged to use the saw from the beginning of the war. It was in opposition to all the laws of humanity. When an enemy had this saw in his breast and the victim had long since stopped every effort of resistance and an effort was made to try and remove the deadly steel from the wound an instant and horrible death resulted.

Oftentimes this horrible weapon became embedded in the breast of a victim so firmly that the attacker, who had to have back his sidearm again would be obliged to place his foot upon the breast of his victim and use all his force to recover the murderous instrument.

The dead and wounded in horrible condition lay all around us. The moans of the wounded men would have softened a stone but not the heart of a Prussian soldier.

Not all the soldiers approved this senseless, wanton murder. Some of those officers who had ordered us to kill the French were themselves killed by mistake in the darkness of the night by their own men. Such mistakes are still being repeated almost daily and I could cite many names and places to bear out this testimony.

On this particular night a captain and a first lieutenant met their fate. A second-year infantryman stabbed the captain in the abdomen and the first lieutenant received a stab in the back. Both died in a few minutes. Neither of their slayers felt any remorse and none of us felt inclined to reproach them. We all knew that two murderers had received their just deserts.

Another instance requires me to run somewhat ahead of the sequence of events. As I talked to a comrade of my company the next day I asked him for a pocketknife and in reaching into his pocket he pulled out three cartridges. I was surprised that he should carry cartridges in his trouser's pocket and asked him if he had no room in his belt. "I have," he said, "but these three have a special mission. There are names of the intended victims on these bullets."

Some time later after we had become good friends I asked him again about the three cartridges. He had only one left. I thought about it a great deal and in my mind went over the noncommissioned officers, who, before war was declared had treated us like animals and whom we had hated as only human fiends can be hated. Two of these had found their grave in France.

The murder of Frenchmen who had surrendered continued as long as an enemy was alive. Then we received orders to determine if the enemies lying on the ground were all dead and unable to fight. If anyone was found simulating death it was ordered that he be killed. But the soldiers had lost some of the fever which had seized them during the battle and refused to obey this order. How they felt about it was illustrated by the remark of a member of my company:

"We had better look once more and see if the two officers are really dead and if not they ought to be killed without mercy for a command is a command."

We now advanced quickly but our part in the battle was over as the entire French line had retired to make a fresh stand, two kilometers west of Sommepey. The city was mostly in flames. The enemy artillery bombarded the town without intermission and shells burst all around.

Several hundred prisoners were corralled in the market place. Several French shells struck the prisoners but they were obliged to remain where they were. An officer of my company, Lieut. A. R. Neesen, remarked that no harm was done as the prisoners knew at least how their own ammunition tasted.

Civilian dead strew streets of French towns as the invaders sweep on toward Paris. The author describes these scenes as well as the plundering of homes and stores in the next installment.

PLEA FOR "FOOLLESS" DAY

Movement to Abolish Stupid April First Jokes Surely Would Meet With General Approval.

In connection with the movement for "foolless" days it is up to some patriot who has the highest interest of the nation at heart to launch a campaign for a foolless first of April.

Individuals, like automobiles, are not foolproof, and Mr. Absent Minded, who from time immemorial has been a much-foolled man on the fatal day, would rise up and call congress blessed, instead of calling the members thereof names, as he now does. If that body would busy itself with legislation abolishing the April-fool jokes that wreck tempers, ruin dispositions and work havoc generally.

On the other hand, Mrs. Absent Minded would probably fight to the last ditch against any curtailment of the privileges of jeering derisively at her husband when he puts salt in his coffee, cracks an egg which proves to be only a shell, finds the lining of his overcoat sewed up, picks up some stage money on the doorstep and starts to work with a box of soap camouflaged as candy in his pocket to munch after lunch.

As a result the sons of dignity will probably have to endure the annual disturbance of their mental equilibrium in order to keep peace in the family.

PERILS OF THE PANTOMIME

Chances Once Taken by Clowns, Harlequins and Pantaloon—Cleckwork Precision Was Necessity.

In speaking of his connection with the Fox American pantomimes, the late F. W. Hofele, once manager of the Old Bowery theater, told me that the making of these many mechanical tricks consumed much time. "F. W. W." writes in the New York Sun. Many skilled workmen were employed, as these devices had to work perfectly and not get stuck when in use. The duties of the stage manager were arduous indeed. From the time the stage manager tinkered his little bell for the rise of the curtain to his signal to ring down the act drop he was as busy a man as could be found anywhere in any capacity on earth.

Everything had to be done when the order was given to do it or everything would be instantly thrown out of trim, with the result of a confusion gone mad. Serious accidents are likely to happen to performers if the greatest care is not exercised. Take the work of Harlequin, that merry fellow with the magic sword, who is always dancing and gliding about with his lively Columbine. What a hazardous part he plays. He is perpetually taking a leap in the dark, trusting to sheer luck as to whether he will do that leap safely or not. I saw Paul Martinetti come up through the star trap in the usual way on one occasion, but instead of leaving the trap in his place he took it up with him. The points of the star were sticking in his neck and the square framework was resting on his shoulders. When he landed on the floor he staggered a few steps, then righted himself and ran off the stage. As he continued his part he could not have been injured greatly. I think he was lucky not to have broken his collar-bone.

Riffing the Pilgrims.

In times of peace devout Moslems arrived in Palestine from all parts of the world to perform the Haj—pilgrimage—make their supplications to Allah in the Holy Sanctuaries of Mecca, kiss the Kaaba, and take part in other religious ceremonies. On arriving at the principal port, Jeddah, they were met post haste by hosts of purveyors, guides—practiced scoundrels—and others, all keen on lightening the pockets of the pilgrims under all manner of pretenses. The Turkish government used to keep all the pilgrims in Mecca for a fortnight at least after the Haj, so that they might spend all their money there and go back penniless to their countries.

Greener Had Nothing to Say.

The grocer thought one day that he would like a steak for his dinner as a change from the bacon, so he sent his little girl across to the butcher for one pound of steak.

On receiving the steak, he thought he might satisfy his curiosity by weighing it, and in so doing he found it to be four ounces light of weight.

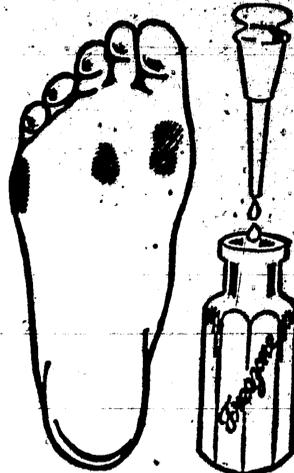

He brought it across to the butcher and said: "What is the meaning of only giving me twelve ounces of meat instead of one pound?"

The butcher calmly replied: "I lost my one-pound weight, so I had to use your one-pound packet of tea."

"HARD SKIN" AND FOOT CALLUSES

Magic! Peel them off without pain or soreness

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the toughened calluses or "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift those painful spots right off with fingers. Corns also!

When you peel off corns or calluses with Freezone the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or even irritated. Try Freezone sure!—Adv.

Kaiser's Insane Ambitions.
Napoleon Bonaparte placed his brothers and famous marshals on the thrones of several conquered states in Europe. A writer in the London Spectator imputes to Kaiser Wilhelm a desire to follow the French conqueror, not only in war and diplomacy, but also in appointing relatives or puppets as rulers of Teuton-trampled countries. According to the article, the Kaiser contemplates making his second son, Eitel Fritz, grand duke of Courland; a Saxon or other prince, king of Poland; his fifth son, Prince Oscar, prince of Finland; a more Gothic Hohenzollern king of Roumania, while Albania is reserved for Prince William of Wied.

Her Letter.

"Dear George," she wrote, "I'm awfully glad to know you've gone to France. Now, don't get sore and misconstrue. I'm glad you got the chance. I'm true to you as I can be. I'm sure true blue's no name for me. I'm true—I'm blue. I hope that you feel just the same toward me. Oh, goodness, gracious, George, it seems that even though you hunt my dreams and fill my thoughts this very minute, each word I say I'm deeper in it. Therefore I'll close this missive, dear. I'm sure I'll have to drop a tear. I'm much afraid you'll take offense, and won't take me at some time hence."

It May Help Eventually.

The only sort of nourishment that seems to be plentiful in Germany and Austria is food for thought.

The time to be an optimist is when the many are doubters.

Commission Important

Maj. Gen. George W. Goethals, chief of the division of purchase, storage and traffic of the general staff of the Army, has commissioned Arthur A. Hammerschlag, president of the Carnegie Institute, and Lieut. Col. J. W. McIntosh, subsistence division, Q. M. C., N. A. at Chicago, to cooperate with the Chicago packers in experiments which may save up to 40 per cent of the tremendous cargo space now required for shipping fresh beef. President Hammerschlag and Col. McIntosh have already reached the stock yards and the experiments have begun.

The experiments contemplate not only the conservation of shipping space, but also the problem of having the packages small enough to be handled by the class of labor available at unloading ports overseas and the quick and convenient issue at supply depots in France.

312 Miles of Good Roads

A report from the office of the State Engineer James A. French shows that 583 men are now employed on road work. Two horse teams to the number of 180 and 36-4 horse teams are at work. Bids were opened on August 31 for the construction of 218 miles of roadway from Tucumcari to Montoya in Quay county, a federal aid project. On September 16 bids will be opened on state road No. 21 of 15.5 miles in Mora county, from Ocate northward.

A program embracing 312 miles of graveled surfaced, crowned road has been adopted by the state highway commission and a large portion of it approved by the governor, which is to pay 50 per cent of the cost. Within national forests of the state 195.5 miles of roadway are to be built with federal aid.—New Mexico State Record.

It seems probable that a new and mighty blow against the Teutonic armies in France will be the allies' answer to the peace proposals voiced by Austria on behalf of the central powers.

Maissemy, a village five miles northwest of St. Quentin, has been captured by the British. This adds another important position to those recently taken along the ridges west of St. Quentin.

The Germans apparently are withdrawing along the whole thirty-three-mile front between Abcourt and the Moselle in an effort to improve the protection of communications in the vicinity of Metz.

The French took 7,000 prisoners in the St. Mihiel operations, including 5,000 Austrians, making a total of more than 37,000 prisoners taken by the Americans and French, the Echo de Paris announced.

British aviators have again bombed the railways at Metz-Bablon and Mainz, and docks and sidings at Karlsruhe. Seventeen direct hits were obtained on the Karlsruhe objectives, according to the London air ministry communication.

American, British and French detachments are reported by the Petrograd Pravda to have met the Bolshevik forces in battle on the Archangel front. The Bolshevik troops, after an initial success, were repulsed by British reinforcements and fled in panic.

The British gained ground Tuesday in the neighborhood of Holnith village, northwest of St. Quentin, according to Field Marshal Haig's report. A German post west of La Bassée was captured. New posts were established northeast of Neuve Chapelle and in the neighborhood of Floegsteert.

Japanese cavalry and an infantry battalion have captured the enemy naval base of Khabarovsk, according to a Tokio official announcement. They took seventeen gunboats, four other vessels, a wireless station, 130 guns, eight ammunition depots, seven magazines, one munition warehouse, seventy horses, seven automobiles, barbed wire and much other material.

The increased acreage of sugar beets produced in Utah this year will supply the population of Utah with sugar for one year, under the present ration of two pounds per month per person, it was announced at the Federal Food Administration's office in Salt Lake.

One hundred and fifty-four persons are missing following the torpedoing of the British steamship Galway Castle, which was en route to South Africa. Of this number thirty-four were members of the crew.

Socialist members of the municipal council of Berlin raised the food question in the council meeting, according to the Telegraf. One speaker exclaimed: "It is time the war came to an end." His words were greeted by loud applause from the public gallery.

Wholesale executions are increasing in Petrograd, according to private telegrams received at Stockholm by way of Helsinki. During the last week 813 persons were executed and more than 400 others are on the prescribed list. Most of them have already been made hostages. All persons of the rank of counselors of state have been imprisoned regardless of their political views.

While Austria was preparing her note to the belligerent nations, proposing that they meet in informal discussion of peace terms in a neutral country, Germany was making ready to make another offer of separate peace to Belgium. It is announced that the Belgian government has been approached with a proposal that if she will remain neutral during the remainder of the war Germany is ready to withdraw to the frontiers that were violated in August, 1914. It is affirmed from Berlin that the Austrian government acted on its initiative in sending out its proposals, but the offer of Germany to Belgium points to what may be said to be more than a coincidence and probably a desperate "peace offensive" is now well under way.

METZ FACTORY FIRED BY YANKS

PINGER BLOW MENACES ST. QUENTIN—POILUS BLOCK COUNTER NEAR SOISSONS.

SIXTY BIG GUNS SEIZED

TEUTONS SUFFER HEAVY LOSSES WHEN TERRIFIC SWEEP IS KEPT UP.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

With the American Army in Lorraine, Sept. 20,—American heavy artillery has set fire to a factory in the German fortified city of Metz. American aviators reported that they witnessed American shells bursting in the city and saw a fire break out in a factory following the explosion of a shell.

The American heavies have been pounding the German rear positions steadily. Every German concentration has come under their range. The Metz region has been getting the most of the attack.

London.—Correspondents at the front emphasize the stiffening of the enemy resistance, making the British advance all the more remarkable. German gun power is unusually strong, being employed to draw a line of fire, almost equal to a barrage, across a wide extent of country.

Heavier more British casualties are due to shell splinters than to machine gun bullets. An important feature of the advance is that the British have not merely passed their old line of March 21, but have attained their greatest success near Bellecourt, where the St. Quentin canal, which is practically an integral part of the Hindenburg line, runs three to four miles underground.

Lempire heights, commanding the tunnel, is largely in British hands and the Germans at this point cannot hope to oppose the advance of tanks by flooding the country.

Paris.—The French, continuing their attacks southeast of St. Quentin, have reached the outskirts of Benay. In the Soissons sector numerous enemy counter attacks west of Juzy were repulsed.

The important town of Contescourt, in the St. Quentin sector, is now entirely in the hands of the French, who also occupied Caestre, further to the northeast.

Thursday saw both the British and French armies in Picardy materially develop their plans for the eventual enveloping of St. Quentin and Cambrai. The British made further gains around Gouzeaucourt and east of Epehy, while the French striking southeast of St. Quentin, brought the southern part of their nipper into a better position for the squeeze against the town, which daily seemingly is growing nearer.

More than 10,000 prisoners and in excess of sixty large guns fell into the hands of the British during the big operation begun by Field Marshal Haig Wednesday northwest of St. Quentin.

Northeast of Soissons the Germans are counter attacking vigorously against the allied forces holding strategic positions which are threatening the high ground along the Chemin des Dames, which the enemy hopes to save as a temporary haven of refuge in the event of a forced retirement from the west and the south. Notwithstanding the strength of the onslaughts, the French everywhere repulsed the enemy.

MOBS COMMIT MURDER IN RUSSIA

Anarchists Get Upper Hand in Petrograd as Police Protection Fails.

Stockholm.—Numerous refugees arrived Sept. 18 from Moscow and Petrograd, having left Petrograd Sept. 12. They say that the Russian capital is entirely in the hands of anarchists and that conditions are worse than ever before. There is no police protection or any other means to preserve order, and persons are openly murdered in the streets or held up and robbed, as there is no risk of punishment for the criminals.

Armed gangs break into houses, stealing and murdering in their search for provisions, money and clothing. Several of the refugees in this way lost all their property.

The report that large sections of the town have been burned, they say, is exaggerated, but very serious fires have destroyed certain quarters.

Slovene Soldiers on Western Front.

Paris.—Slovene troops, with a general and his staff, have arrived in France to participate in the war.

Suffered For Years

Back and Kidneys Were in Bad Shape, But Doan's Removed all the Trouble.

"My kidneys were so weak that the least cold I caught would affect them and start my back aching until I could hardly endure the misery," says Mrs. D. G. Ross, 513 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. "In the morning when I first got up, my back was so lame, I could hardly bend over and any move sent darts of pain through my kidneys. It was hard for me to walk up stairs or stoop, and to move while lying down sent darts of pain through me."

"The kidney secretions were scanty and distressing and the water remained in my system, making my feet and hands swell. There were dark circles under my eyes and I became so dizzy I could hardly see. I had rheumatic pains in my knees and it was all I could do to get around. For years I was in that shape and I wore plasters and used all kinds of medicine to no avail until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. They rid me of the trouble and strengthened my back and kidneys. When I have taken Doan's since, they have always benefited me."

Here is a familiar scene in any Y.

 Ice-cooled water "bubblers" quench
 the thirst of thousands of soldiers, and during a "run" on the fountains the "water line" often extends across the building.

The Army Y. M. C. A. is the enlisted man's club, where he may read, write letters, buy stamps and post cards, have bundles wrapped free of charge, get money orders, play games, and meet his comrades for a social composed of Texas, Arkansas, Okla-

A SOLDIER "TRIG" CLASS

Educational classes at the Army Y. M. C. A. huts are proving popular with the soldiers. Thousands of young men who left school to go into the service are continuing their studies and classes while in the army. Many educational institutions are arranging to give credit for the work done in this way, so that students may not lose anything while serving their country, and can resume their studies on their return, with credit toward degrees and graduation for the class-room work in the army. The picture shows a group of college men continuing their study of trigonometry at one of the Y. M. C. A. schools. It will make them better artillerymen. In addition to advanced classes, the Y. M. C. A. conducts classes for illiterates and foreigners, teaching them to read, write and speak the English language. The War Department is giving the Army Y. M. C. A. hearty co-operation in this work. The "trig" class shown in the picture is one of the many educational classes conducted by the Y. M. C. A. at Camp McArthur, Texas.

The Branch House Man

This is one of the Swift & Company Branch House Men.

They are all pretty much alike in the way they feel toward their work—and that is what this ad is about.

They know that most people couldn't get such good meat promptly and in good condition if it weren't for the branch houses of which they are in charge.

They know that the branch house is one of the most important links in the chain of preparing and distributing meat for a nation.

They know that Swift & Company must have its branch houses run at the highest notch of usefulness; that even a Swift &

Company branch house won't run itself, and that it is up to the branch house man to run it properly.

Any branch house man who doesn't see his work in this light is transferred to some other place with Swift & Company to which he is better adapted.

They are picked men, these branch house men. Every time you sit down to a steak or chop, or cut of roast, you can give a grateful thought to the whole crew of them.

And remember, in a general way, that everything that makes life smoother and more convenient for you, is the result of the thoughtfulness and effort of a lot of people of whom you have never heard.

A MESSAGE FROM FRANCE

Spirit of This War Pictured by French Schoolgirl in Letter Received by John H. Finley.

THIS letter is one of the many messages which have been received from the schools of France in response to the messages from American universities and schools, carried to them by John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education and President of the University of the State of New York. It is reproduced here and comes from a pupil in the Lycée Victor Durny in Paris, which he visited last May, and there heard the pupils singing "The Star Spangled Banner" in French and crying in chorus, "Vive l'Amérique." It is doubted if there has been a more graphic or poetic expression of that which separates the men in the opposing trenches or of that which brings America and France together.

"It was only a little river, almost a brook; it was called the Yser. One could talk from one side to the other without raising one's voice, and the birds could fly over it with one sweep of their wings. And on the two banks there were millions of men, the one turned toward the other, eye to eye. But the distance which separated them was greater than the stars in the sky; it was the distance which separates right from injustice.

"The ocean is so vast that the sea gulls do not dare to cross it. During seven days and seven nights the great steamships of America, going at full speed, drive through the deep waters before the lights of France come into view; but from one side to the other hearts are touching."

AT THE BASE HOSPITAL, FT. SAM HOUSTON

Clean white beds, the very best of attention from the surgeons and nurses, and plenty of cheer-up consideration from the Army Y. M. C. A. secretaries make confinement at the base hospital as attractive as illness or injury can be made. Mothers and other relatives and friends with their beloved soldiers in the hospital can find comfort in the fact that their boys are not being neglected. The "Y" man supplements the regular ministrations of the military and the Red Cross with frequent and regular visits, bringing books, writing the patient's letters, and complying with his every wish as nearly as it is possible for him to do so. The Y. M. C. A. secretary in the picture is making his regular afternoon visit at the base hospital, distributing books to the soldiers.

When the soldiers reach the convalescent period, the "Y" furnishes movies, entertainment, and music for the convalescing soldiers.

A TYPICAL SOLDIER GATHERING

The Army Y. M. C. A. is the gathering place of the soldiers in every camp. It is his substitute for home, and he soon learns to go there when he is threatened with homesickness. He is seldom disappointed, for the "Y" always is "something doing all the time."

This crowd was too big to get inside the building, so they had the program outside. The soldiers are listening to a lecture on mental and physical cleanliness by Dr. Clark, a noted lecturer. The picture was taken at Camp Travis, San Antonio, Texas, where thousands of soldiers from Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and other states receive their training for the big adventure.

Republican Primaries

In answer to a call from Precinct Chairman George Spence, the primaries of the 14th precinct was held at the county court house last Monday night, and was well attended.

Chairman Spence called the meeting to order and read the call, and to effect temporary organization, named W. H. Osborn as secretary.

On motion the temporary organization, named W. H. Osborn as secretary.

On motion the temporary organization was made permanent, the next thing in order being the selection of 12 delegates to attend the county convention at Lincoln on Sept. 25th, a motion was made and carried that the chair appoint a committee of 3 to select a list of names to bring before the meeting as delegates, subject to the approval of the primaries.

The committee appointed were: A. L. Burke, Henry Lutz and Anton Vega, who presented the following list of names, which on motion was approved by the meeting. [George Spence, Lauro Gutierrez, Henry Lutz, W. H. Osborn, A. M. Vega, A. L. Burke, J. B. French, Vicente Vigil, Clark Hust, D. B. Tennis, Silvestre Baca, Wm. Kahler.

After taking up a collection for the janitor, the meeting adjourned. Complete harmony reigned throughout the meeting which was a foreshadow of the atmosphere of the convention at Lincoln.

"Pershing's Crusaders"

"Pershing's Crusaders," the first United States Official War Film will be presented by the Committee on Public Information, George Creel, chairman, at the Crystal Theater, Thursday and Friday, October 3 and 4; admission, 25c and 35c, no war tax. This is really a pictorial history of America's part in the Great War, living history, full of human interest and patriotic thrills. It should be seen by every American who has given his boy or bought a bond, and it should particularly be seen by those who have not yet mastered the lesson of Americanism.

In the last half of the film you are transported to France, and see just what has been accomplished since the Stars and Stripes were carried over there.

CITY FOLKS HELP HARVEST CROPS.

These Firemen's "Days Off" Were Spent on Farms Helping With the Wheat Harvest.

TO SOLVE FARM LABOR PROBLEM

Men and Women From Towns and Cities Go Into Country to Assist Farmers.

LARGEST ACREAGE OF CROPS

How States Have Enlisted and Organized Labor for Farms to Save Season's Food Harvest— "Shock Troops" Assist.

The co-operation of people of villages, towns and cities in harvesting the farm crops demonstrates in a most forcible way the patriotism of the American people and the active way in which they are supporting the program of the government.

Farmers planted this year the largest acreage of crops in the history of our agriculture. Everywhere the farmers have responded to the call from the government for greater food production and are doing everything within their power to give to the country the large supply that is so greatly needed.

While crop production has been increased, the farmers have been confronted with labor difficulties in many sections of the Union, and have had to cope with the difficulty of cultivating and harvesting an increased acreage of crops with a reduced amount of regular labor to do the work.

In order that this question might be clearly placed before the people of the villages, towns and cities of the various states, arrangements were made by the department of agriculture, in co-operation with state councils of defense, the agricultural colleges and the U. S. department of labor and state departments of labor, to hold meetings with chambers of commerce, business men's associations, rotary clubs, and other organizations of the cities and towns, placing before them the need for agricultural labor and urging action which will give adequate assistance. Everywhere the response has been large and gratifying. The result of this campaign is that many thousands of workers have been enrolled and have done much to meet the emergency. There is reasonable assurance that, in spite of difficulties, all the crops will be normally harvested.

Business Men Save Potatoes.

The potato crop of Houston and Wharton counties, Texas, has been saved through the aid of the business men in local towns. When it was realized that the potato crop would be lost unless the farmers received help, the state extension director, co-operating with the farm help specialist of the department of agriculture, explained the situation and the business men closed their offices, stores and banks, went to the farms and worked with the potato growers in harvesting the crop.

More than nine and one-half million acres of wheat were harvested in Kansas. Hundreds of towns organized their forces and closed their stores, offices, and other places of business during the day, that the workers might go to the fields and help save this food crop.

The mayor and board of public works of one of the large middle western cities closed their offices and worked in the wheat fields. The mayor drove the binder while the other men shocked the grain. On a farm adjoining a Catholic institution in Indiana 145 priests were found assisting in the harvest of the alfalfa and clover hay and the wheat and oats.

"Shock troops" have been organized to assist the farmers in harvesting their wheat. These so-called "shock troops" consist of business men, clerks and laborers who volunteer to assist in this way. These men perform their regular work in town during the day and at 5 o'clock are taken in automobiles to the country, where they assist the farmers. In this way the regular business is carried on and at the same time these men go into the fields during the cool part of the day, when they can render the greatest service. In one evening alone 40 men were able to shock more than 80 acres of wheat.

Women Cook for Hands.

In Indiana 24 towns secured an enrollment of 9,000 workers to assist in the harvest of the wheat and oats crop. Kansas City, as a result of a campaign during the week of June 3 to 8, enlisted 10,000 workers to assist Kansas farmers. These workers not only offered their services, but under the direction of the athletic club and the chamber of commerce took a course of training which fitted them and hardened them for the severe work they would be called upon to do on the farms. In addition to enrolling men, women were enlisted from the towns and cities to go to the country to assist the farmers' wives in cooking and caring for this large army of harvest hands. Forty thousand city people assisted Kansas farmers in handling the wheat.

In the berry district south of Portland, Ore., a large amount of help is needed to harvest the crop. The farm help specialist in Portland enlisted the services of 1,000 women and girls, who were organized into units and taken to the district, where they are now working and aiding in harvesting the crop in a satisfactory way.

Emergency Labor Organization.

The farm labor administration of the Illinois state council of defense, in co-operation with workers furnished by the U. S. department of agriculture, has perfected an emergency farm labor organization in practically every county of the state. Reports from 60 counties show more than 50,000 workers registered to assist in the harvest.

In the sugar-beet districts of southern Michigan, Colorado and Utah many thousands of workers have been secured to cultivate this crop and thus insure a large supply of sugar.

In a similar way the other states have organized and enlisted labor for the farms and thus meet in a most admirable way the emergency needs.

LOAD ALL CARS TO MAXIMUM

Shippers of Foodstuffs Are Reminded That Patriotism Demands Heaviest Loading.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The transportation situation is still serious and shippers of foodstuffs are reminded that patriotism demands of them the heaviest loading possible consistent with the safe carriage of the goods. The failure of one shipper to load cars to the maximum may prevent other shippers from getting any cars at all, with the consequent loss of those foodstuffs on which the winning of the war depends.

Cultivation Better Than Water.

Cultivation is better to apply to the garden than water. Sometimes it is desirable to apply both. Always cultivate well after a rain and after watering.

BOLSHEVIK RULERS BRIBED BY KAISER

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT EXPOSES THE TREACHERY OF LENINE AND TROTZKY.

FACTS FULLY SUBSTANTIATED

Documents and Photographs Prove Absolutely That Leaders Betrayed Russia — Germany's Plotting Against U. S. in 1914 Also Revealed.

Washington.—Through the committee on public information the United States government has submitted to the world, in a series of official documents, absolute proof that Lenine and Trotzky, the bolshevik leaders, are the paid tools of Germany and betrayed Russia for Hun gold.

Secured in Russia by Edgar G. Sisson, representing the committee (who was in that country during last winter, 1917-18) these documents not only show how the German government through its Imperial bank paid its gold to Lenine, Trotzky, and their immediate associates to betray Russia into deserting her allies, but give added proofs that Germany had perfected her plans for a war of world conquest long before the assassinations at Sarajevo, which conveniently furnished her pretext.

Hun Plots Against America.

These documents further show that before the world war was four months old, and more than two years before the United States was drawn into it (in 1914), Germany already was setting afoot her plans to "mobilize destructive, agents and observers" to cause explosions, strikes, and outrages in this country, and planned the employment of "anarchists and escaped criminals" for the purpose.

Almost ranking in their sensational nature with the notorious Zimmerman note proposing war by Mexico and Japan upon the United States, these documents lay bare new strata of Prussian intrigue, a new view of the workings of kultur to disrupt the allies standing between the world and kaiserism. They disclose also a new story of human treachery for gold.

The intrigue appears to have been carried down to the last detail of arrangement with typical German system.

Revolution Staged by Berlin.

Not only do the disclosures prove that Lenine, Trotzky, and their band are paid German agents. They show that the bolshevik revolution, which threw Russia into such orgy of murder and excesses as the world seldom has seen, actually was arranged by the German general staff.

They show how the paid agents of Germany betrayed Russia at the Brest-Litovsk "peace" conference; how German staff officers have been secretly received by the bolsheviks as military advisers; how they have acted as spies upon the embassies of the nations with which Russia was allied or at peace; how they have directed the bolshevik foreign, domestic and economic policy wholly in the interest of Germany, and to the shame and degradation of Russia.

Originals of documents, photographs of originals, and typewritten circulars, some of them marked "very secret" or "private," and many of them bearing the annotations of the bolshevik leaders themselves; some of them containing references to "Comrade Trotzky" or "Comrade Lenine" comprise the record.

Some of the originals, it is shown, although deposited in the archives of the bolsheviks, were required to be returned later to representatives of the German general staff in Petrograd that they might be destroyed.

BELGIUM WILL STAND FIRM

Consul Vermeren Declares His Country Never Will Consider Peace Offers From Germany.

Chicago.—Dr. Cyrille Vermeren, consul for Belgium, said concerning the offer of peace made to his country by Germany:

"Belgium will never consider any peace proposals or offers of any kind from Germany. Just what retributions Germany must make to Belgium is up to the United States. The government of Belgium is perfectly willing to leave it to Uncle Sam, feeling secure that the United States will demand and obtain for the country that Germany so wantonly and ruthlessly destroyed, justice and fair play. I don't lay a great deal of stress on the sincerity of Austria-Hungary's peace proposal, as that power is entirely dominated and under the influence of Germany. Time will tell, however."

MISSING HOUR.

"Well," said the clock, "it makes me mad." A watch overheard the remark.

"You should never get mad," said the watch.

They were having this talk in the watchmaker's shop, or rather the watch mender's shop.

"And why may I not get mad if I want to?" asked the clock.

"For a perfectly good reason."

"I don't know it, and I will never know it, unless you tell me," said the clock.

"I will tell you," said the watch.

"Do, I beg of you," said the clock.

"Don't beg of me," said the watch.

"I will tell you without begging. I'm a kindly watch that way. I don't have to be begged and urged to do things. I keep time without being coaxed into doing so—the way it is with some watches I know."

"Why are you here?" asked the clock.

"Because I was dropped and my glass face protector was smashed. Then one of my hands became hurt by that fall. It was an accident, and not my fault."

"I see," said the clock, "but you haven't told me why I can't get mad if I want to."

"Because," said the watch, "you mustn't get ruffled up and excited. You must stay the same, steady, regular even old clock through life. You mustn't jump ahead excitedly because you see ahead, or you mustn't lag behind because you are worn out from having been mad. You must have an even disposition for you are a clock, and must go steadily, regularly, all the time."

"Tick-tock, tick-tock."

"That's so," said the clock. "Tick-tock, that's so."

"But just the same," the watch continued, "I would like to hear what makes you mad. You mustn't get mad, but you must tell me what would make you mad, if you allowed yourself that treat."

"I never knew it was a treat to get mad," said the clock.

"I don't suppose it is," said the watch, "but I didn't bother to pick out a nice word for it. I was too anxious to hear what you had to say. What would make you mad if you let yourself be mad? Pray tell me. I am anxious to hear."

"It's this," said the clock.

"What?" asked the watch.

"It's this," repeated the clock. "They have turned me on an hour, and I don't know what has happened to that poor hour. I feel dreadfully about it."

"What do you mean?" asked the watch.

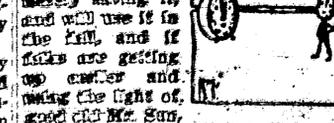

"A few months or so ago, I didn't speak of it before because I thought that the hour might come back again any day—but they haven't set me back yet."

"Oh," said the watch, "you have been near the window of this shop and you haven't heard the news in the outside world. They decided, all over the country, to turn the clocks and watches on an hour one day in the spring, and in the fall they will turn them back. They wanted to use the bright light of the sun, and so, by being an hour early in the morning they could do so."

"Why, people, animals, trains, ships, and the gardens have known this for a long long time."

"Well, I am glad to have it explained to me," said the clock. "It just made me too mad for anything to think of that poor hour losing its way in the world—anywhere—I didn't know where."

"But if they're merely saving it, and will use it in the fall, and if folks are getting up earlier and waking the light of good old Mr. Sun, and making fine 'Well, it Makes Me mad'—well, then, I am glad I spoke to you about it, for now I understand. And I think it's a wonderful idea. Saving daylight, eh? Well, well, well, they played a joke on this old clock. I thought they'd stolen an hour away—but to think what they're really doing! Yes, they say old heads are wiser than young ones, but I say that people are wiser than clocks, even if we do keep time."

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try It! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes!
