MIKE BARNETT TO THE FORE—PRESIDENT'S ESCORT

Carrizozo Again Honored by Our "Mike" Being One of the Crew to Take President Wilson to France.

The news over the wires that President Wilson sailed on Tuesday, Dec. 3rd, on the good ship George Washington, with a picked crew, one of which was a Carrizozo boy, and that boy was Mike Barnett. In choosing a crew for such an important event as conveying the President of the greatest country on earth to a foreign land, great care was exercised in the selection of the men.

Inspectors who had spent years in the service, carefully sounded all prospective members of the crew, for they were to be of the proper grit and material, sound in principle and loyal to the core. The inspectors found their work easy when they came to Mike, for he answered in every manner to the satisfaction of the government's inspectors having this work in their hands. Inasmuch as the President's trip is interesting the public mind just now, Carrizozo may be proud of the fact one of her boys has been selected among the chosen crew to pilot the head of the Nation across the big seas. Well done, Mike, the Outlook congratulates you; and the townspeople in general are proud of you.

Revival Services

The revival services continue at the Methodist church with increased interest and attendance. Preaching by Evangelist Neal every night. Sunday services at regular hours. The public not only cordially invited, but urged to come.

Baptist Church

There will be no preaching at the church next Sunday, as Rev. Gwin will preach at Capitan both morning and evening. Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. services will be held at their regular hours—come.

Not Yet, But Soon

It was rumored the early part of this week, that Meyer Barnett was married at Brooklyn, N. Y., but on making the inquiry at the Barnett home they claimed to know nothing of the event whatever. The folks would not assure the news hunter however, that Meyer's thoughts were foreign to such a transaction, and we may be prepared for startling information in the near future.

Lights and Shadows

Under the leadership of Mr. D. S. Donaldson, the Methodist church people have installed a string of lights from the church across the vacant space over to Main street. This convenience should greatly add to the attendance at the revival meetings that are now in progress. It will do more; it perhaps will serve as a tempting morsel to a couple of business men who on a certain dark night stumbled about over clumps of soap weed, until an angel of charity happened along with a lantern and led the way to the nearest electric light.

If our honorable gentlemen of the City Council could have had that experience, lights would abound, and shadows would disappear and men would not suffer so quickly from a "fall from grace," after being refreshed and enlightened by a good sermon.

At the Hoffman Home

Last Monday night Mrs. R. E. Hoffman entertained in honor of her niece, Miss Mattee Shumate. The house was crowded with friends of the family. Mrs. Shulda at the piano furnished music for the affair, and an enjoyable time was experienced by all present.

Attention, Master Masons

In the Interest of Tinnie

Doyle Murray of Tinnie came over Thursday to meet with the Board of Education in the interest of the school at that place. Mr. Murray is a live wire of Tinnie, and its educational conditions are occupying his mind at the present time.

"Hunting" Party

The following gentlemen went "hunting" last Tuesday: Lin Branum, George Spence, Ed Kelley, Wm. Reily and A. L. Burke. We hunted, didn't we boys?—And we came back too, didn't we boys?

Over from Oscuro

A. O. Jamies, whose ranch is situated 3 miles south of Oscuro, was a Carrizozo business visitor Thursday.

Beautiful Recitation

After the Sunday School services at the Methodist Church last Sunday, Master Mack Shaver gave a beautiful recitation entitled, "Father, We Thank Thee." New Mexico Iron And Steel Company Meet Representative Gillenwater Reports he is to Take Over Interests of Roberson and Election of New Directors May Follow.

The meeting of the stockholders of the New Mexico Iron & Steel Corp., that was advertised for Dec. 6th was held with Mr. Gillenwater of Texico acting as representative for Mr. Roberson.

Mr. Gillenwater, it seems, is to take over the interests of Mr. Roberson, and in view of that fact, asked that a new organization be effected. The stockholders are still in session as we go to press, but it is not likely that they will take kindly to this scheme as Mr. Gillenwater explained it.

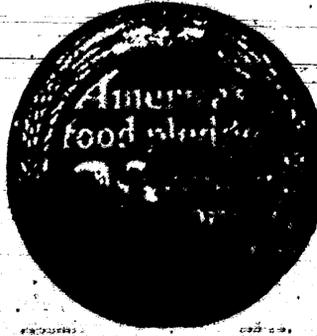

It seems that the stockholders will demand a full and complete report from Mr. Roberson, of how the funds which our business men have paid into the company have been disposed of, which is the one thing in reason for Mr. Roberson to do. His failure to be present according to agreement, has caused much comment, and the outcome of the affair will be looked forward to, with much interest.

In Defence of Our Own

Carrizozo's business men are of the best that flesh and blood can produce; anxious and ready to lend their assistance to anything that will benefit our community and insure our prosperity, but they must guard the doors of the future, so that they escape the "snare of the fowler," and know that their money is invested in enterprises that bear the stamp of absolute certainty. Our business men are always ready to pledge themselves with their sacred honor and backed by their pocketbooks, for anything that will promote our public good, and we need not be accused of wronging anyone when we say, that in the future we must avoid the false prophets and not exercise so much implicit confidence in those we know so little of.

Was Thanksgiving Guest

Mrs. Julia Gurney of the Carrizozo Eating House was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Huppertz at their home on Thanksgiving day.

Ladies of the Star

At a well attended meeting of the O. E. S. last Wednesday night, the election of officers for the ensuing year took place. The official roster as elected follows:

GUNNER DEPEW SHOWS THE POILUS HOW AN AMERICAN NAVAL GUNNER CAN SHOOT.

Synopsis.—Albert N. Depew, author of the story, tells of his service in the United States navy, during which he attained the rank of chief petty officer, first-class gunner. The world war starts soon after he receives his honorable discharge from the navy, and he leaves for France with a determination to enlist.

CHAPTER III.

In the Foreign Legion. This time I was determined to enlist. So, when we landed at St. Nazaire, I drew my pay from the Virginian and, after spending a week with my grandmother, I went out and asked the first gendarme I met where the enlistment station was. I had to argue with him, some time before he would even direct me to it. Of course I had no passport and this made him suspicious of me.

The officer in charge of the station was no warmer in his welcome than the gendarme, and this surprised me, because Murray and Brown had no trouble at all in joining. The French, of course, often speak of the Foreign Legion as "the convicts," because so many legionaries are wanted by the police of their respective countries; but a criminal record never had been a bar to service with the legion, and I did not see why it should be now—if they suspected me of having one. I had heard there were not a few Germans in the legion—later on I became acquainted with some—and believe me, no Alsatian ever fought harder against the Huns than these former Deutschlanders did. It occurred to me then that if they thought I was a German, because I had no passport, I might have to prove I had been in trouble with the kaiser's crew before they would accept me. I do not know what the real trouble was, but I solved the problem by showing them my discharge papers from the American navy. Even then, they were suspicious because they thought I was too young to have been a C. P. O. When they challenged me on this point, I said I would prove it to them by taking an examination.

They examined me very carefully, in English, although I know enough French to get by on a subject like gunnery. But foreign officers are very proud of their knowledge of English—and most of them can speak it—and I think this one wanted to show off, as you might say. Anyway, I passed my examination without any trouble, was accepted for service in the Foreign Legion and received my commission as gunner, dated Friday, January 1, 1915.

There is no use in my describing the Foreign Legion. It is one of the most famous fighting organizations in the world, and has made a wonderful record during the war. When I joined La Legion, it numbered about 60,000 men. Today it has less than 8,000. They say that since August, 1914, the legion has been wiped out three times, and that there are only a few men still in service who belonged to the original legion. I believe it to be true. In January of this year the French government decided to let the legion die. I was sorry to hear it. The legionnaires were a fine body of men, and wonderful fighters. But the whole civilized world is now fighting the Huns, and Americans do not have to enlist with the French or the Germans any longer.

But one thing about the legion, that I find many people do not know, is that the legionnaires are used for either land or sea service. They are sent wherever they can be used. I do not know whether this was the case before the present war—I think not—but in my time, many of the men were put on ships. Most people, however, have the idea that they are only used in the infantry.

With my commission as gunner, I received orders to go to Brest and join the dreadnaught Cassard. This assignment tickled me, for my pal Murray was aboard, and I had anticipated trouble in transferring to his ship in case I was assigned elsewhere. We had framed it up to stick together as long as we could. We did, too.

Murray was as glad as I was when I came aboard, and he told me he had heard Brown, our other pal, had been made a sergeant in another regiment of the legion.

We were both surprised at some of the differences between the French navy and ours, but after we got used to it, we thought many of their customs improved over ours. But we could not get used to it, at first. For instance, on an American ship, when you are pounding your ear in a nice warm hammock and it is time to relieve the watch on deck, like as not you will be awakened gently by a burly garby armed with a fairly wand about the size of a bed slat, whereas in French ships, when they call the watch, you would think you were in a swell hotel and had left word at the desk. It was hard to turn out at first, without the aid of a club, and harder still to break ourselves of the habit of calling our relief in the gay and festive American manner, but, as I say, we got to like it after a while.

Then, too, they do not do any hazing in the French navy, and this surprised us. We had expected to go through the mill just as we did when we joined the American service, but nobody slung a hand at us. On the contrary, every garby aboard was kind and decent and extremely courteous, and the fact that we were from the States counted a lot with them. They used to brag about it to the crews of other ships that were not so honored.

But this kindness we might have expected. It is just like Frenchmen in any walk of life. With hardly an exception, I have never met one of this nationality who was not anxious to help you in every way he could; extremely generous, though not reckless with small change, and almost always cheery and there with a smile in any weather. A fellow asked me once why it was that almost the whole world loves the French, and I told him it was because the French love almost the whole world, and show it. And I think that is the reason, too.

About the only way you can describe the Poilus, on land or sea, is that they are gentle. That is, you always think that word when you see one and talk to him—unless you happen to see him within bayonet distance of Fritz.

The French sailors sleep between decks in bunks, instead of hammocks, and as I had not slept in a bunk since my Southerndown days, it was pretty hard on me. So I got hold of some heaving line, which is one-quarter-inch rope, and rigged up a hammock. In my spare time I taught the others how to make them, and pretty soon everybody was doing it.

When I taught the sailors to make hammocks, I figured, of course, that they would use them as we did—that is, sleep in them. They were greatly pleased at first, but after they had tried the stunt of getting in and staying in, it was another story. A hammock is like some other things—it works while you sleep—and if you are not on to it, you spend most of your sleeping time hitting the floor. Our gun captain thought I had put over a trick hammock on him, but I did not need to; every hammock is a trick hammock.

Also, I taught them the way we make mats out of rope, to use while sleeping on the steel gratings near the entrance to stoke holes. In cold weather this part of the ship is more comfortable than the ordinary sleeping quarters, but without a mat it gets too hot.

American soldiers and sailors get the best food in the world, but while the French navy chow was not fancy, it was clean and hearty, as they say down East. For breakfast we had bread and coffee and sardines; at noon a belled dinner, mostly beans, which were old friends of mine, and of the well-named navy variety; at four in the afternoon, a plate of vino, and at six, a supper of soup, coffee, bread and beans.

Although the French "seventy-five" is the best gun in the world, their naval guns are not as good as ours, and their gunners are mostly older men. But they will give a youngster a gun rating if he shows the stuff.

Shortly after I went aboard the Cassard, we received instructions to proceed to Spezia, Italy, the large Italian naval base. The voyage was without incident, but when we dropped anchor in Spezia, the Italian port officials quarantined us for fourteen days on account of smallpox. During this period our food was pretty bad; in fact, the meat became rotten. This could hardly have happened on an American ship, because they are provided with canned stuff and preserved meats, but the French ships, like the Italian, depend on live stock, fresh vegetables, etc., which they carry on board, and we had expected to get a large supply of such stuff at Spezia. Long before the fourteen days were up we were out of these things, and had to live on anything we could get hold of—mostly hardtack, coffee and cocoa.

We loaded a cargo of airplanes for the Italian aviators at the French flying schools, and started back to Brest. On the way back we had target practice. In fact, at most times on the open sea, it was a regular part of the routine.

It was during one of these practices that the French officers wanted to find out what the Yankee gunner knew about gunnery. At a range of eight miles, while the ship was making eight knots an hour, with a fourteen-inch gun I scored three d's—that is, three direct hits out of five trials. After that there was no question about it. As a result, I was awarded three bars. These bars, which are strips of red braid, are worn on the left sleeve, and signify extra marksmanship. I also received two hundred and fifty francs, or about fifty dollars in American money, and fourteen days' shore leave.

All this made me very angry, oh, very much wrought up indeed—not! I saw a merry life for myself on the French rolling wave if they felt that way about gunnery.

I spent most of my leave with my grandmother in St. Nazaire, except for a short trip I made to a star-shell factory. This factory was just about like one I saw later somewhere in America, only in the French works, all the hands were women. Only the guards were men, and they were "blesses" (wounded).

When my leave was up and I said good-by to my grandmother, she managed a smile for me, though I could see that it was pretty stiff work. And without getting soft, or anything like that, I can tell you that smile stayed with me and it did me more good than you would believe, because it gave me something good to think about when I was up against the real thing.

I hope a lot of you people who read this book are women, because I have had it in mind for some time to tell all the women I could a little thing they can do that will help a lot. I am not trying to be fancy about it, and I hope you will take it from me the way I mean it.

When you say good-by to your son or your husband or your sweetheart, work up a smile for him. What you want to do is to give him something he can think about over there, and something he will like to think about. There is so much dirt, and blood, and hunger, and cold, and all that around you, that you have just got to quit thinking about it, or you will go crazy. And so, when you can think about something nice, you can pretty nearly forget all the rest for a while. The nicest things you can think about are the things you liked back home.

Now, you can take it from me that what your boy will like to remember the best of all is your face with a smile on it. He has got enough hell on his hands without a lot of weeps to remember, if you will excuse the word. But don't forget that the chances are on his side that he gets back to you; the figures prove it. That will help you some. At that, it will be hard work; you will feel more like crying, and so will he, maybe. But smile for him. That smile is your bit.

I will back a smile against the weeps in a race to Berlin any time. So I am telling you, and I cannot make it strong enough—send him away with a smile.

CHAPTER IV.

On the Firing Line. When I reported on the Cassard after my fourteen days' leave, I was detailed with a detachment of the legion to go to the Flanders front. I changed into the regular uniform of the legion, which is about like that of the infantry, with the regimental badge—a seven-barred grenade.

We traveled from Brest by rail, in third-class cars, passing through La Havre and St. Pol, and finally arriving at Bergues. From Bergues we made the trip to Dixmude by truck—a distance of about twenty miles. We carried no rations with us, but at certain places along the line the train stopped, and we got out to eat our meals. At every railroad station they have booths or counters, and French girls work day and night feeding the Poilus. It was a wonderful sight to see these girls, and it made you feel good to think you were going to fight for them.

It was not only what they did, but the way they did it, and it is at things like this that the French beat the world. They could tell just what kind of treatment each Poilu needed, and they saw to it that he got it. They took special pains with the men of the legion, because, as they say, we are "strangers," and that means, "the best we have is yours" to the French. These French women, young and old, could be a mother and a sweetheart and a sister all at the same time to any hairy old ex-convict in the legion, and do it in a way that made him feel like a little boy at the time and a rich church member afterwards. The only thing we did not like about this trip was that there were not enough stations along that line. There is a tip that the French engineers will not take, I am afraid.

There is another thing about the French women that I have noticed, and that is this: There are pretty girls in every country under the sun, but the plain girls in France are prettier than the plain ones in other countries. They might not show it in photographs, but in action there is something about them that you cannot explain. I have never seen an ugly French girl who was not easy to look at.

We finally got to Dixmude, after having spent about eighteen hours on the way. On our arrival one company was sent to the reserve trenches and my company went to the front line trench. We were not placed in training camps, because most of us had been under fire before. I never had, but that was not supposed to make any difference. They say if you can stand the legion you can stand anything.

Before we entered the communication trench, we were drawn up alongside of a crossroad for a rest, and to receive certain accoutrements. Pretty soon we saw a bunch of Boches coming along the road, without their guns, a few of them being slightly wounded. Some of them looked scared and others bappy, but they all seemed tired. Then we heard some singing, and pretty soon we could see an Irish corporal stepping along behind the Huns, with his rifle slung over his back, and every once in a while he would shuffle a bit and then sing some more. He had a grin on him that pushed his ears back.

The British noncom who was detailed as our guide sang out: "What kind of time are you having, Pat?"

The Irishman saluted with one hand, dug the other into his pocket and pulled out enough watches to make you think you were in a pawn shop. "Oh, a foine toim I'm havin'," he says. "I got wan from each of thim fellas." We counted fourteen prisoners in the bunch. Pat sure thought he was rolling in wealth.

After we were rested up we were issued rifles, shrapnel helmets and belts, and then started down the communication trench. These trenches are entrances to the fighting trenches and run at varying angles and varying distances apart. They are seldom wide enough to hold more than one man, so you have to march single file in them. They wind in and out, according to the lay of the land, some parts of them being more dangerous than others. When you come to a dangerous spot you have to crawl sometimes.

There are so many cross trenches and blind alleys that you have to have a guide for a long time, because without one you are apt to walk through an embrasure in a fire trench and right out into the open, between the German front line and your own. Which is hardly worth while!

If any part of the line is under fire, the guide at the head of the line is on the lookout for shells, and when he hears one coming he gives the signal and you drop to the ground and wait until it bursts. You never get all the time you want, but at that you have plenty of time to think about things while you are lying there with your face in the mud, waiting to hear the sound of the explosion. When you hear it, you know you have got at least one more to dodge. If you do not hear it—well, most likely you are worrying more about tuning your thousand-string harp than anything else.

Depew gets his first experience in the front line trenches at Dixmude and learns how the British "Tommys" "carry on." He tells about it in the next installment.

Green and Mistrustful. Thomas W. Lawson said in a Boston lecture:

"The green speculator is apt to be more suspicious and mistrustful than the seasoned one. Green speculators by their actions often remind me of the farmer who went to the Boston & Maine station, put down a $20 bill, and said to the ticket agent: "Round trip to Washington, young fellow."

"Here you are," said the agent. "Change at New York."

"No, ye don't, young fellow," marred the farmer. "I'll take my change right here."

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well."

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARNIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal. If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years experience is at your service.

Airplane Equipment. There are several kinds of airplanes used in the military service and their equipment varies according to whether they are intended chiefly for scouting, for bomb dropping or for gun fighting. On most of the machines of the last named or battleship type, a machine gun is so fitted as to point along the axis of the machine. The pilot, who is alone, directs the nose of his airplane at the enemy and fires across the propeller. Two plans were tried for preventing the propeller from being broken by the bullets. The first consisted of stopping the machine gun whenever the propeller came within the field of fire, but experience showed that frequent stopping of the gun with the propellers making 1,200 revolutions a minute ends in putting the gun out of order. Designers then placed steel plates on those parts of the propellers likely to be struck and these plates turn the bullets that strike the propeller. It is mathematically calculated that only one bullet in 13 is wasted in that way.

Important Meeting

Last Monday afternoon, the executive committee of the Red Cross met at the office of the Carrizozo Live Stock Commission Co., and launched the movement for receiving the boys who will soon begin to arrive from overseas and from the camps. O. T. Nye is chairman of the committee to attend incoming trains; Brent Paden will head the committee on automobiles, and Mrs. Wm. Reily will be chairman of the committee on arrangements. Chairmen of the different committees reserve the right to appoint all the help necessary to insure the success of all undertakings, and every one appointed must serve, give a reasonable excuse, or show a yellow streak. All together now, folks, let us make it a good one.

Save Our Sheep and Live Stock

In some of the big wool growing states of the west it is proposed to enact laws to protect sheep and live stock against neglect.

High wages paid in other lines of work and scarcity of labor has induced sheep herders in many cases to abandon their flock without notice.

The result has been some losses from sheep wandering away and getting caught in severe storms and great suffering from starvation.

It is proposed to make it a penitentiary offense for a sheep herder to leave his band under any circumstances without 30 days' notice, to allow owner time to make other arrangements and prevent loss and starvation.

Our martyred and yet immortal President Lincoln first appointed the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day. In this good year, 1918, the people of the state of New Mexico rejoice in greater cause for thanksgiving to the God of our fathers than ever yet was blessed His and their children. A sudden victorious peace has been squandered out of the world war, begun by tyrants, to extend their system over all nations and all peoples. From such dire calamity, the Great God, our King, has delivered us by His righteous might, so that free government, under law, has been justified finally and now is triumphant in the world. Because of this inestimable blessing we are filled with gratitude."

Blancett is still in the state penitentiary and he is reported to be in good health.

HOUSE, WHITE AND LANSING

SELECTED BY PRESIDENT WILSON AS DELEGATES TO PARIS PEACE CONFERENCE.

TO SIGN TREATY IN APRIL

PRELIMINARY CONFERENCES TO BE HELD THROUGH A NUMBER OF COMMITTEES.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington, Nov. 30.—President Wilson has definitely decided on three of the envoys who will compose the nation's delegation to the peace conference. They are Secretary of State Lansing, Col. E. M. House and Henry White, former ambassador to France. Mr. White will be the Republican member of the official party.

London.—It is authoritatively learned that Great Britain's delegates to the peace conference will be Premier Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law, Foreign Minister Balfour, Viscount Reading.

The dominions will send the following representatives: Canada, Premier Borden; Australia, Premier Hughes; New Zealand, Premier Massey; South Africa, Gen. Botha.

The vatican announces that Cardinal Gibbons and Manlicri asked President Wilson to use his influence to obtain permission for representatives of the pope to be present at the peace conference.

Tokio.—The Marquis Kinnouchi Saionji, former premier; Baron Nobunaki Makino, member of the privy council and former foreign minister, Viscount Suteimi Chinda, ambassador to England, and Baron Kelshiro Matsui, ambassador to France, have been selected as Japan's plenipotentiaries to the peace congress.

Paris.—At a meeting preliminary to the sitting of the delegates to the peace conference, it is announced, committees will be appointed to study different phases of the problems which will be involved, and present reports to the conference, whose deliberations will by this means be of a more definite character. The conference, it is believed, will last for three months and it is not expected that a treaty will be signed before April.

David Lloyd George, British premier, will arrive in Paris at the same time as President Wilson.

The question of conducting the proceedings of the peace congress in English is being discussed, with some prospect that this innovation will be brought about. If it is, it will be the first great international congress with English as the official language, as French has long been recognized as the medium of diplomacy.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

Nation Celebrated Victorious Peace After Nineteen Months of Fighting.

Washington—Deep feelings of gratitude and thankfulness, greater than can come to a nation through material prosperity, pervaded America's observance of Thanksgiving day. Peace with victory after nineteen months of war gave the day much added significance. Successes of the nation's military forces on land and sea made the occasion a "victory day" as well as a Thanksgiving day. There also came a realization, as expressed by the President, that "a new day shines about us in which our hearts take new courage and look forward with new hope to new and greater duties."

Many celebrations of the day centered directly around the soldiers and sailors. Community Thanksgiving services, community song services and "victory celebrations" were held in many parts of the country and in every city and hamlet, on board ships at sea, in camps and homes, the national anthem was sung at the same hour.

In the training camps, in the navy forces over sea, all efforts tended toward making the day a memorable one.

Washington observed the day quietly and in accordance with the President's proclamation.

SPANISH INFLUENZA

Do Not Fear When Fighting a German or a Germ!

By DR. M. COOK.

The cool fighter always wins and so there is no need to become panic-stricken. Avoid fear and crowds. Exercise in the fresh air and practice the three C's: A Clean Mouth, a Clean Skin and Clean Bowels. To carry off the poisons that accumulate within the body and to ward off an attack of the influenza bacillus, take a good liver regulator to move the bowels. Such a one is made up of May-apple, leaves of aloë, root of jalap, and is to be had at any drug store, and called "Pleasant Purgative Pellets."

If a bad cold develops, go to bed, wrap up well, drink freely of hot lemonade and take a hot mustard foot-bath. Have the bedroom warm but well ventilated. Obtain at the nearest drug store "Anuric Tablets" to flush the kidneys and control the pains and aches. Take an "Anuric" tablet every two hours, together with copious drinks of lemonade. If a true case of influenza, the food should be simple, such as broths, milk, buttermilk and ice-cream; but it is important that food be given regularly in order to keep up patient's strength and vitality. After the acute attack has passed, which is generally from three to seven days, the system should be built up by the use of a good iron tonic, such as "Ironole" tablets, to be obtained at some drug stores, or that well known blood-maker and herbal tonic made from roots and barks of forest trees—sold everywhere as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Got to Quit Kickin' the Newspapers Around
 (Tucumcari News)

Various boards, politicians and postal officials have made it very difficult for newspapers to do business.

The zone system of putting subscriptions on a cash basis and prohibiting exchanges, has reduced the newspaper output to a minimum.

A constant stream of newspapers announce suspension under new rulings and increasing cost of labor and material.

Autocratic orders in some cases have been revoked by the President, but lively bureaucrats continue to make life a burden for publishers.

It is said that one average city daily newspaper was put to an expense of $6000 to change its circulation and exchange system to meet new regulations.

Smaller newspapers find it impossible to make all reports and comply with all the regulations and demands of the departments.

Of course, after the war some of these interferences with the liberty of the press will cease but publishers are becoming disheartened.

The government has not fully appreciated the loyalty or the devotion of the press in helping put through every need of our country.

There is not a day but new demands for free publicity are made by various boards and officials on the newspapers that have been crippled.

intentionally or otherwise, the interference by national authority with problems involved in getting out newspapers has gone too far and must cease.

YOUR FLAG AND MY FLAG

When the Boys Come Home

Messages are beginning to arrive announcing that our boys will soon return from foreign shores; parents who have endured the heartaches of watching and waiting, will soon be rewarded with the return of their sons. The wife who has stood so nobly in defence of the tear that she felt would dishonor him in his patriotic duty, will realize her dreams of his victorious return. The sweetheart who has read with wonderment in her eyes the accounts of terrific battles in which her admirer with his patriotic companions run the gauntlet of death to defend the principles of liberty, will soon be able to greet him with pride and admiration.

But what of us who are not closely identified with those just spoken of? What shall we do to show our appreciation of the mettle of our boys? Shall we stand idly by while these loving relatives and sweethearts are enjoying the glad homecoming and show no interest whatever? Certainly not! Every individual in our community is as deeply interested in the cause they fought for as their relatives are. Then let us make preparations for the home coming and make the boys feel that as a people united in our appreciation of what they have done, we wish to give expression to our feelings with a telling force. Let us give the boys a welcome that they will feel in every bone and fibre of their bodies, and receive them with open arms.

During all of these joyful demonstrations, let us not be unmindful of the heroic dead; those whose names are emblazoned on the country's honor roll. The ones who sealed the glorious principles of liberty with patriots' blood, and are now laid away in mother earth to await the last trumpet call when even the sea shall give up its dead. The loud shouts of the victors, and the glad answers of those who welcome them, will be like dagger threats to the broken hearted relatives and we must divide our attention between the living tents of the victors and the bivouac of the dead. The relatives must have that measure of sympathy and consideration they so richly deserve. On one hand we will raise our voices in shouts of praise for the victors, while on the other hand we must bow our heads in reverential submission. Now is the time to begin the making of arrangements for receiving the boys, and let us make their welcome complete.

Christmas Presents

If You Like to Make Your Own Gifts You May Find a Suggestion Here

Christmas Bags

Christmas wouldn't seem like Christmas without the lovely bags of all kinds that women delight in. Some of them are rich and splendid and others charm by their quaintness. Here are two that belong to these extremes. The shopping bag is of black satin brocaded with silver and has a handsome silver mounting. The other is a powder bag of lavender satin ribbon with a big ribbon pany on the front of it. The petals are tinted with water colors, making a blossom that looks very real. It carries a powder puff and a little box of compact powder and a small mirror is incased in the reverse side.

A Home-Made Doll

The dolls of yesterday—so beautiful and so cheap—they are no more. It is the war. But no little maid need be without a doll, for it is the easiest thing ever to make one of heavy domestic and paint a face on it. One can buy a pattern of any of the pattern companies and make the body, which is to be stuffed with sawdust. Such a doll dressed and making her appearance at Christmas time will be as much loved as the most fragile waxen beauty that ever came from overseas.

To Wrap Baby Up In

The baby can't hike out of this cozy garment when he is rolled out in the keen, wintry air or put to sleep by an open window, so that every one of his relatives will want to make him a Christmas present of it. It is made of elderdown flannel and has flaps that button up over the hands and feet and a hood that can be drawn up close about the face.

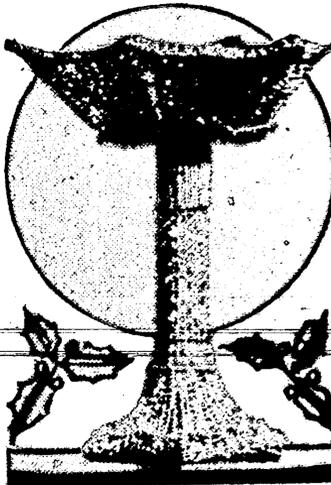

Toys for Baby

Canton flannel, elderdown flannel and plushes are used for the doggies, ponies and circus animals that prove absorbingly interesting and dear to his babyship. Patterns for them can be bought from any of the standard pattern companies and they are stuffed with sawdust.

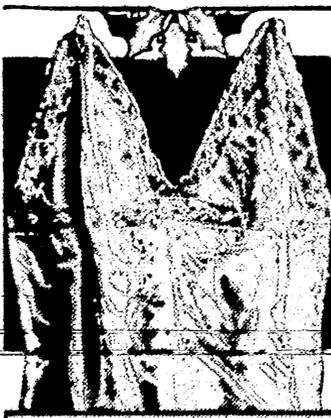

The doll pictured can be made to go through many antics. She is without a body and her coat is to be slipped on over the fingers of whoever undertakes to amuse the baby. She will bow her head, wave her arms and dance.

Something for Mother

Here is a pretty pedestal supporting a small basket to be used for bonbons or as a sewing basket or for table decoration, now that artificial flowers are a part of house furnishings. It is made of paper rope and is gilded. It is a very substantial bit of decoration, suited to almost any room in the house.

Of Crepe and Lace

This combination or envelope chemise is so sheer and dainty that it is just the sort of gift that one woman will like to give to another. It is of flesh-colored crepe de chine, with insertions of fine filet lace. Little flowers in small French knots are embroidered on it in pale shades of pink and blue. The yoke is novel, simply four triangles with points joined at the shoulder with little chiffon roses.

PROVEN SWAMP-ROOT AIDS WEAK KIDNEYS

The symptoms of kidney and bladder troubles are often very distressing and leave the system in a run-down condition. The kidneys seem to suffer most, as almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more dangerous kidney troubles.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which, so many people say, soon heals and strengthens the kidneys, is a splendid kidney, liver and bladder medicine, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who use it.

A trial will convince anyone who may be in need of it. Better get a bottle from your nearest drug store, and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

HURRY, MOTHER! REMOVE POISONS FROM LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

GIVE CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS AT ONCE IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, fall of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

Food Conservation Meeting

At a well attended meeting at the Methodist Church last Sunday afternoon, the question of Food Conservation was ably discussed by Miss Minnie Zeuch, Messrs. F. J. Sager, Rev. Lewelling and H. B. Hamilton.

Considering the fact that we must supply the Allies with provisions for some time to come, it is highly necessary that we conserve food in every manner possible. These facts the speakers impressed upon the minds of their hearers, and the meeting on the whole was very successful.

Grazing Fees and Permits

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 4, 1918.—Notice has been received at Albuquerque by the District Forester, that the question of changes for grazing privileges on the National Forests during the next five years has been definitely decided by the Secretary of Agriculture. The grazing fees will be uniform on all of the Forests of New Mexico and Arizona and will not be subject to change before the end of the five year period beginning Jan. 1, 1919. The yearlong rates on the different classes of stock will be as follows: Cattle $1.00, horses $1.25, sheep and goats 25c and swine 75c.

At the same time the new rates become effective, a wider extension of the five year permit will be authorized than heretofore. Such a permit will not be subject to reduction before the end of the period for which it is issued except as may be required for forest protection. Stockmen with small outfits, who are regular users of the Forests, will be given the preference in granting the long term permits, but, after their needs are provided for, larger permittees will be considered for as many stock as the range will safely carry.

Forest officials believe that the bulk of the grazing business upon the National Forests will soon be handed upon the long term basis and predict a more stable and satisfactory condition of the stock industry as a result.

New Sweet Shop to Open

The Oasis Confectionery, that has been closed for several months, will be reopened in the near future under new management.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pattee, late of Roswell, but formerly of Glenwood, Ia., are the owners, having purchased the stock and fixtures from Mrs. J. W. Johnson. The Patees are live, wide-awake business people who come into our borders with the best of recommendations, and will make a splendid addition to our growing town.

In addition to the general confectionery line, they will serve hot chocolate, chili, coffee, sandwiches and every necessity that goes along that line, and parties may now have the advantage of securing hot drinks after a cold drive over the prairie or mountain roads.

Everything in the establishment has been gone over and a general renewal is the order of the day. New lights have been installed and nothing will be overlooked to make the place cozy and inviting. The new management extends an invitation to the public to be in attendance at the opening and inspect the new order of things. They solicit a portion of the local trade in return for which they guarantee a full measure of good service.

Sight for the Curious

A novel and interesting display may be seen in the south window of Groom's Market. The window contains a German helmet, belt and scarf, and was sent direct from the battle fields of France by Roy Grumbles. They are genuine and show the marks of having undergone service. Spots of camouflage adorn the helmet, the belt and scarf showing distinct evidences of blood stains.

What Determines Meat and Live-Stock Prices?

Some stock men still think that Swift & Company—and other big packers—can pay as little for live-stock as they wish.

Some consumers are still led to believe that the packers can charge as much for dressed meat as they wish.

This is not true. These prices are fixed by a law of human nature as old as human nature itself—the law of supply and demand.

When more people want meat than there is meat to be had, the scramble along the line to get it for them sends prices up. When there is more meat than there are people who want it, the scramble all along the line to get rid of it within a few days, while it is still fresh, sends prices down.

When prices of meat go up, Swift & Company not only can pay the producer more, but has to pay him more, or some other packer will.

Similarly, when prices recede all down the line Swift & Company cannot continue to pay the producer the same prices as before, and still remain in the packing business.

All the packer can do is to keep the expense of turning stock into meat at a minimum, so that the consumer can get as much as possible for his money, and the producer as much as possible for his live-stock.

Thanks to its splendid plants, modern methods, branch houses, car routes, fleet of refrigerator cars, experience and organization, Swift & Company is able to pay for live cattle 90 per cent of what it receives for beef and by-products, and to cover expense of production and distribution, as well as its profit (a small fraction of a cent per pound), out of the other 10 per cent.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MORE ABOUT TURKEYS.

Didn't Mind Putting Up With Trials.

"Well," said young Master Turkey, "I've been thinking it over."

"What have you been thinking over?" asked young George Turkey.

"Yes," said young John Turkey, "please be good enough to tell us what you have been thinking over."

"You remember the other day we were so pleased because we were being given so much to eat? We said it was quite delightful and we all talked about it."

"Yes, I remember our talk," said young John Turkey.

"So do I," said young George Turkey.

"I've been thinking it over since then," said young Master Turkey.

"When we first heard the news," he continued, "that we were being fed for a special day and only being fed so that folks could eat us, we were quite sad. You remember that Grandfather Turkey told us the reason for our fine meals?"

"We most certainly do remember it," said the other two turkey brothers.

"We did feel just a little better after a few moments of Grandfather Turkey's talk," said young Master Turkey, "because he said that it was fine to live a glorious life full of food even if it were not to be for long. That cheered us up a bit."

"Has it made you happier to think it all over?" asked young George Turkey.

"It has," said young Master Turkey. "I've been finding out more about it. There are a number of old turkeys around the barnyard and they've been telling me all that happens."

"They have said that come of us were to be eaten on Thanksgiving day, which Grandfather Turkey told us. I found out more about that day, too. It's a day when folks are thankful; they're thankful for everything they've got—health, sunshine, happy homes, folks who love them and whom they love—and, oh, they've got very many things to be thankful for."

"But mostly they're thankful because a good many years ago this country in which in this barnyard was a very young country and it was through brave men who didn't mind putting up with many trials who stayed and built up the country."

"They made barns and pig pens and houses you mean," said young John Turkey.

"Yes, and cities and villages, towns and hamlets," said young Master Turkey.

"Continue with your story," said young George Turkey.

"So people celebrate this day every year to show they are thankful that they are living in this country which is a wonderful land of freedom and sunshine and liberty!"

"I don't believe they usually mention sunshine along with freedom and liberty," said young George Turkey, "but no matter. It sounds all right, and sunshine is nice, too."

"And then come of us are saved and used on a day which comes not long afterward, when an old fellow named Santa Claus climbs down chimneys and fire escapes and takes presents to children and fills their stockings with oranges and apples and all sorts of goodies. On this day, which is known as Christmas day, they have turkey, too. It's a most important day—the most important day, I believe, in the year."

"So we're especially saved for two important days," said young George Turkey. "That's fine. It's a great honor shown to turkeys."

"It is indeed," said young John Turkey, "and not only do they do us this honor, but in making us nice for themselves they make it nice for us while we are around."

And what he said was true, for they had a beautiful meal right then and there, while young Master Turkey told the other Turkey brothers more about Thanksgiving day and Christmas—the two great days to come!

So they felt very proud and gobbled delightedly all afternoon as they talked about it.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

A small bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—your surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Adv.
