FUNSTON-BLISS NATIONAL HIGHWAY PROJECT ASSURED

Meeting Held at Tucumcari Appoint Committees and Arrange Plans for Meeting at Hutchinson, Kansas,
January 20th, Carrizozo Honored.

Carrizozo is to have a National Highway; at the conference in Tucumcari last Friday, plans were formulated and temporary organization effected for the purpose of securing the National highway from Kansas City to El Paso, said highway to follow the line of the C. R. I. & P. railroad.

In attendance were representatives from Hutchinson, Bucklin, Meade and Liberal, Kansas; Guymon and Texhoma, Oklahoma; Stratford and Dalhart, Texas; Nara Visa, Cuervo, Vaughn and Carrizozo, New Mexico.

Letters have been received by Secretary J. E. Clayton, of the Chamber of Commerce, Alamogordo, New Mexico and El Paso, Texas, pledging their support to the project, but regretting their inability to have representatives present.

Messrs. I. C. Wetmore and J. B. French were to have attended, but on account of the inability of Mr. French to arrange his business affairs in time, he asked Mr. Frank Gurney to attend in his place, which Mr. Gurney gladly did, and the two above named representatives from Carrizozo were prominently recognized in the temporary organization.

After a very enthusiastic meeting, the following committee reports were rendered:

We, the Committee on temporary organization and resolutions, beg leave to report as follows:

ARTICLE 1. This organization shall be known as the FUNSTON-F. T. BLISS MILITARY HIGHWAY.

ARTICLE 2. We recommend that this organization proceed to establish a permanent highway from Camp Funston, Kansas, to Ft. Bliss at El Paso, Texas, the highway to be located as nearly as practical, paralleling the C. R. I. & P. and E. P. & S. W. Railroads, connecting up the following fixed points: Hutchinson, Pratt, Bucklin, Meade and Liberal, Kansas; Guymon, Texhoma, Oklahoma; Stratford and Dalhart, Texas; Tucumcari, Santa Rosa, Vaughn, Torrance, Corona, Carrizozo, Three Rivers and Alamogordo, New Mexico; and Ft. Bliss at El Paso, Texas.

ARTICLE 3. We recommend that the officers of this temporary organization shall be: T. A. Multhead, President; Ira O. Wetmore, Vice President; H. W. McGruder, Secretary-Treasurer,

Miss Cooper's Surprise

Thursday, December 26th was Miss Hilary Cooper's birthday; knowing this, the thought suggested itself to Miss Catherine Pine that a surprise party on her friend would be a novel event especially during the Yule Tide. Acting on the suggestion, she made all necessary arrangements, and invited a number of Miss Hilary's friends, informing them of the facts, and at the same time extending an invitation to Miss Cooper to spend a quiet evening with the home folks.

The plan worked magnificently, for when she arrived at the "Pines," she found a gay and romping gathering of enthusiastic friends to greet her, instead of only the family, as she had expected. To add to the novelty of the affair, games of "Ye Olden Time" were played, and during the pleasant exercises refreshments consisting of "pine" apple ice cream, and cake were served. An enjoyable evening was experienced by all.

Those present were: The Misses Minnie Zeuch, Rose Conway, Myrl Corn, Hilary Cooper, Winnie Taylor, Rosalind Burke, Lillian Merchant, Alice Scott, Catherine Spence, Marion Place, Pearl Kennedy, Isabelle Tinnon, Urbana Corn, Ada Corn, Laureen Wilson, Eva Wack, Rachel Hughes, Catherine Pine; Messrs. John McLain, Edward Corn, Charles Scott, G. B. Herron, John Boyd, Joe Spence, Wm. Johnson, Homer Donaldson, Ben Scott, Kenneth Scott, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Miller, Mesdames Scott, Wells and McCarty.

Evelyn French Entertains

Miss Evelyn French entertained Christmas night at the home of her parents on Capitan Avenue, with a dancing party. Refreshments of punch and cake were served, and the young folks enjoyed themselves with games and dancing to their heart's content. Beginning with the young hostess, the following were in attendance: Aileen Haley, Clarite McQuillen, Lillian and Jeanette Johnson, May Schaeffer, Herndon Reily, Ella Rowland, Lois Jones, Audrey and Jule Miller; Fern Forrest, Mary White, Helen Rolland, Sara Osborn, Maxine Hoffman, Dora Anderson, Bessie Hyde, Rollo Place, Edwin McCarty, Herbert Tennis, Harry and Charley Cole, Carl Kahler, John Boyd, Lloyd Crutcher, Dayton Herron, Olaus Manning, Miller French.

Card of Thanks

Mrs. A. R. Tice and family wish to thank the many friends of her late husband, Mr. Alva Ralph Tice, for their kindness and condolence in the hour of her deep bereavement, and for the many floral offerings sent as a last token of respect.

Talitha-Cumi

During the early part of the afternoon last Sunday, Miss Ethel Hoffman, after an illness of short duration passed away at the Gallacher Hospital. Miss Hoffman had been ailing of late, but she pursued her studies at High School and to all appearances her condition was nothing to cause alarm until the latter part of last week she suffered a nervous collapse which caused her to abandon her studies and remain in quiet, with the hope that this would work a change for the better.

To the contrary however, her condition grew worse, and on being removed to the Gallacher Hospital, the Drs. Baker who were called, advised that an operation be performed, which was done. The weakened condition, it seems, was unable to withstand the operation, and following this she died.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Baptist Church attended by the many friends of the Hoffman family. Rev. Gwin after reading the scriptures, made a short but impressive talk on the many good qualities of the departed girl. He said that she was so well loved by all who knew her, that a funeral sermon was not necessary. He spoke tenderly of her attentiveness to her school and church duties, dwelt kindly on the love her schoolmates bore for her, and offered words of comfort to the sorrowing parents who sat bowed in grief before him.

He was followed by Rev. Lewelling, who offered his spiritual advice to the saddened relatives, and spoke words of highest praise for the departed loved one. After the services those present were allowed to view the remains, after which the funeral procession wended its way to the cemetery, attended by Ethel's former High School associates, and friends of the family in general. Ethel was reared in Carrizozo; she was well known, and therefore much loved. As her ambitions here were always for the best, her opportunities beyond will be greater—and,

"Like the stars of the morning
His bright crown adorning,
They shine in their splendor
His loved and his own."

Paden and Carr Entertain

On Christmas eve a large crowd attended a social dance given at the E. P. & S. W. Club House by Messrs. Brent Paden and Thomas Carr. The Jazz band of Fort Stanton furnished the music and the merry gathering separated at the stroke of twelve, well satisfied with the evening's enjoyment.

Christmas Entertainment

On the night of Dec. 24th, the annual Christmas entertainment of the Methodist church was carried out. Santa Claus was there of course, and distributed his gifts of candy, nuts and other dainties.

The program, which showed remarkable merit on the part of those who took part in it, was rendered as follows: Piano Duett, Clarite McQuillen, Aileen Haley; Quartette, "Glorious Night," Julian and Mary White, May Schaeffer and Rolla Place.

Prayer, Pastor; Merry Christmas, David White; So am I, Dolly Chorus; Little Tot's Advice, Jewell Henry Lewelling; I Wonder, Raymond McLean; Santa Claus, school; Santa Claus' Miss You, Elice McQuillen; Christmas Mending Bee—Marian Forrest, Helen Rolland, Lena Harris; Lorine Stimml; Dialogue, Mrs. Ferguson's class; When Yuletide Shineth, school; One Christmas Eve, Evelyn French; Song, Large boys and girls; It was Night When The Lord was Born, Audrey Miller; Reading, Hilary Copper; The Angels of Christmas, Fern Forrest, Mary White, Jule Miller, Clarite McQuillen.

On American Soil

Ex Mayor Henry Lutz has received word by wire from the Salvation-Army Headquarters at New York City to the effect that his son, Lieut. Henry Lutz, Jr., had arrived there on Monday, Dec. 23rd. The reason for the Lieutenant coming directly home after landing lies in the fact that people of the Metropolis are giving our returning boys a Yuletide greeting they will never forget. We rejoice with the relatives of the Lieutenant in the fact that he has reached the American shore, and the fact that we may soon see him.

Will Visit the Home Folks

Mrs. Dr. Gilbert of Caldwell, Idaho, and the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed R. Kelley, will pay a visit to the the home folks, and will arrive sometime between now and the New Year.

Mrs. Gilbert had intended to be here for Christmas, but circumstances over which she had no control prevented her coming. A recent wire from her stated that she would be here as soon as possible.

Dies of Wounds

1st Lieut. B. J. Berry, a Carrizozo boy who has been in the service for 18 years, has been officially reported to have died of his wounds. Lieut. Berry is a brother of Earl Berry, who is in the employ of Mr. J. B. French, and tells of receiving a letter from his brother about two weeks ago in which he spoke of his wounds, but at that time there was nothing to cause alarm.

The R. E. Stidham Return

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stidham have returned from a pleasant trip to Phoenix, Arizona.

GEORGE BARBER WRITES LETTER TO HOME FOLKS

Tells of Accidentally Meeting Brother Ralph and Other Things of Interest—Tells of Good Treatment and Speaks of Early Return to American Soil.

Somewhere in France,
Nov. 23, 1918.

Dear Father:

Your letter came several days ago and I was certainly glad to know that you are all well.

Ralph was here with me up 'till a few minutes ago and has just started back to his Company (about 30 miles from here). He is looking fine, hasn't had a scratch during all the time he has been on the firing line. He has been through everything that comes under the name of WAR. I found out where he was accidentally, and started out about to find him. I had a good visit with him and he brought me back this morning on a couple of his horses. He has charge of a bunch of horses and mules there.

All the boys treated me just like a brother, they all think the world of Ralph—officers and all. They've all been through so much that they're just like one big family of brothers. You certainly have reason to be proud of him and the way he has carried out his part in the scrap. They are all being equipped with new outfits to go back in now and I think that you'll see him in a couple of months and myself a little later.

Love to all,
From your son,
George Barber.

Funeral of A. R. Tice

Last Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the last sad rites were performed over the remains of A. R. Tice at the late residence of the deceased, and was attended by a good number of friends and sympathizers. The services were conducted by Rev. Lewelling, and a quartette of ladies sang several beautiful selections.

The remains were interred in the Carrizozo cemetery, the exercises both at the residence and cemetery being attended by the many friends of Mr. Tice. The parents of the deceased at Galeton, Pa., being so far distant and this, coupled with the severity of the weather, rendered the trip impossible, but the father and mother of Mrs. Tice living at a shorter distance, were fortunate in being able to arrive in time for the funeral.

DEPEW FINDS HIS PAL, MURRAY, HAS BEEN MADE A VICTIM OF HUN FRIGHTFULNESS.

Synopsis.—Albert N. Depew, author of the story, tells of his service in the United States navy, during which he attained the rank of chief petty officer, first-class gunner. The world war starts soon after he receives his honorable discharge from the navy, and he leaves for France with a determination to enlist. He joins the Foreign Legion and is assigned to the dreadnaught Casard, where his marksmanship wins him high honors. Later he is transferred to the land forces and sent to the Flanders front. He gets his first experience in a front line trench at Dixmude. He goes "over the top" and gets his first German in a bayonet fight. While on summer service, Depew is caught in a Zeppelin raid and has an exciting experience. In a fierce fight with the Germans he is wounded and sent to a hospital. After recovering he is ordered back to sea duty and calls on the Casard for the Dardanelles. There he sees the wonderful work of the British and French in the Gallipoli campaign.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

During our eighth trip of Cape Helles I was watching in the gallery when I heard our two lifeboats go off almost at the same time. Everybody ran for his station. Going up the main deck to my turret a man told me it was a sub on the port bow, but I only caught a glimpse of the little whitepod when his passage submerged. I do not know why she did not let loose a torpedo at us. The officers said she was trying to make the entrance to the Dardanelles and came up toward our ship and was scared off by our guns, but I thought we had just escaped by the skin of our teeth. Later on our destroyers claimed to have sighted her off Gaba Tepe.

At noon we were at mess when one of the boys yelled, "She's hit," and we all rushed on deck. There was the British ship, Triumph, torpedoed and lying away over to starboard. She was ready to turn over in a few minutes. One battleship is not supposed to go to the assistance of another one that has been torpedoed, because the chances are the sub is still in the neighborhood laying for the second ship with another torpedo. But one of the British trawlers went to the assistance of the Triumph to pick up the crew.

We could see the crew jumping into the water. Then we breasted out toward the horizon, full speed ahead. All about the Triumph was a cloud of black smoke, but when we looked through the glass we could see she was going down. Then our guns began to bombard the Turkish positions and I had to get busy. When I saw the Triumph again she was bottom up. She must have floated upside down for almost half an hour, then she went down as though there was somebody on the bottom pulling her.

When she went our Old Man banged his telephone on the bridge rail and swore at the Huns and Turks and broke his telescope lens to bits. About fifty from the Triumph were lost.

It was decided that the place was too hot for us with that sub running loose, and when they reported that afternoon that she was making her way south from Gaba Tepe to Cape Helles all of the fleet but the Majestic got under way, and the Majestic was the only ship left of the cape.

They said the Majestic was then the oldest of the ships in that campaign, but she was the pride of the British fleet just the same. She was torpedoed off Cape Helles later on, when there were a number of men-of-war off the cape. The sea was crowded with men swimming and drowning. I saw a lifeboat crowded with men and other men in the water hanging onto her, and there were so many hanging on that they started to pull her under. Of their own accord the men in the water let go to save those in the boat. Most of them were drowned.

The Majestic listed so that the men could not stand on deck, and the sides were covered with men hanging on to ropes and not knowing whether to jump into the sea or not. We lowered all our lifeboats and steam launches, and so did the other ships. We picked up a number of the crew and were pretty close to the Majestic when she went down like a rock. As she went down she turned over and a garby ran along her side to the ram at her bow and got on it without even being wet. A boat picked him up off the ram, which stuck out of the water after the ship had ceased to settle.

She had torpedo nets on her sides, and many of the crew were unable to get clear of the nets and went down with her. Quite a lot were caught below decks and had no possible chance to escape. There was a big explosion as she went under—probably the boilers bursting. Thousands of men on shore and thousands of shells on the ships saw the final plunge, and it was a sight to remember. When the ship started to go, the Old Man rushed back to his cabin, got the signal book and destroyed it. Also, he saved the lives of two of his men.

We gave dry clothes and brandy and coffee to the Limays we rescued, and though they had just come through something pretty tough, they were calm and cool and started talking right away about what ship they would probably be assigned to next.

CHAPTER XII.

A Pal Crucified.

When we got to "V" Beach on my next trip the weather was really fine, but it did not please us much, for as soon as we got in range the enemy batteries opened up on us and the shell fire was heavier than any we had been in before, though not more effective. We drew in on a bright morning, about half past five or six, with our convoy, the troopship Champagne, ahead of us and going slowly, sounding all the way.

At this part of the shore there is a dock about a mile and a half long, running back into the country and terminating in a road. The Champagne was making for this dock, sounding as she went. Suddenly, when she was within 800 yards of the shore, I saw her swing around and steer in a crazy fashion. We began asking each other what was the matter with her, but we learned afterwards that her rudder had been torn off, though we never found out how, nor do I think anyone ever knew.

Then she went aground, with her stern toward the shore and listed over to port. You could see different articles rolling out and down the side. Then her back broke. The quarter deck was crowded with men half dressed, with life belts on, jumping over the side or climbing down. There was an explosion and a cloud of black smoke broke over us, and for a while I thought I was blinded.

All the time the shells were raining in on us and on the Champagne. When I could see again I saw the men on the Champagne climbing down the starboard or shore side. One chap was going down hand over hand along a stanchion, when another fellow above him let go and slid right down on him. The first man fell about thirty feet, landing in the water with his neck doubled under him. Our lifeboats and launches were out picking up survivors.

Those who got safely over the side started to swim ashore, but when they had gone only a little way they found they could wade in. When the water was only up to their waists they came upon barbed wire entanglements and not a man got ashore that way but was scratched and clawed and mangled horribly. Some of them that I saw afterwards were just shredded along the sides of their bodies like cocoon. A great many of them, though, were killed by shrapnel while they were in the water.

On board the Casard our guns had been busy all the time, and it was not long before we put one enemy battery out of commission. We had suffered a bit, too, but not enough to worry us. There were about 3,000 men on the Champagne, I think, and at least a third were killed or drowned, and the casualties must have been about two-thirds. The ship was just a mass of wreckage.

They called for a landing party from the Casard, and officers asked for volunteers for trench duty. I was not very keen about going, because I had been in trenches at Dixmude, and I knew how pleasant they were—not, but I volunteered, and so did Murray. We went ashore in our boats under a heavy fire. There were 12 men killed in the lifeboat in which I was. I escaped without a scratch.

We were mustered up on shore and volunteers were called for, for sentry duty. Murray volunteered. If he had only gone on with the rest of us he might have come through. After a short wait we were given the order to advance. The firing became heavier about this time, so we went at the double. We had not got very far before we had a fine little surprise party landed on us.

The front line was running over what appeared to be good, solid ground, when they broke through and fell into trenches 30 to 45 feet deep. These trenches had been dug, covered over with 14-inch boards and then with dirt, and were regular man-traps. Sharp stakes were sticking out of the parapet and parapets, and at the bottom were more stakes and rocks and barbed wire.

We were advancing with bayonets fixed and arms at the carry, so when the first line fell, and some of the second, the boys of the third line came running up, and in the scramble that followed many of the chaps in the first few lines were bayoneted by their comrades. I was in the third line, but I was lucky enough to pull up in time and did not fall in. You could not look down into that trench after you had seen it once, it was too sickening. Our casualties were sent back to the ship. One boat was sunk by a shell and all the men lost.

We remained where we were, scratching out shallow trenches for ourselves, feeling what natural cover there was and otherwise getting ready for the night, which was near. It began to rain and we could hardly keep any fires going, because we had to shelter them from the shore side, so the enemy could not spot us, and the wind was from the sea. It was certainly miserable that night.

Every once in a while we would stand by to repel an attack, whether it was a real one or not, and we were on our way to the front line. Along the road were numbers of troops scolding and among them Indian troops on sentry duty. They looked like a bunch of frozen turnips, cool and uncomfortable. We were close enough to make the roar of the cannonading seem intolerably loud and could see the bursting shells, particularly those from the British ships.

Then we came across some Turkish prisoners who were sheltering in an old barn, I guess it was, and we stopped for shelter and rest. They told us that their troops were very tired from long fighting, but that they had plenty of men. They said a couple of shells had dropped about a hundred yards from the barn just before we came, so we knew the batteries were trying to get our range and we did not stay any longer, but went away from there and on our road.

About 500 yards farther on we came to ruins, and when we went inside we found 50 or 60 of our boys cooking and sleeping and not giving a thought to the shells or shrapnel. The stoves outside were hanging away at the hay, as though there never had been a war in the world. There was no shell made that could budge them away from that hay unless it hit them.

Then along came a cart making a lot of racket. One of the fellows in it had half of his face shot away and was all bandaged up, but he was trying to sing and laugh just the same as the rest were doing. They were Anzac, and were pretty badly shot up.

The word "Anzac," as you probably know, is made from the initials of the Australian and New Zealand army corps. They had a regular town, called Anzac, on the peninsula. At Gaba Tepe and around Gaba Tepe the Anzacs got further into the Turkish lines than any other unit in the allied armies. They were wonderful fighters.

By this time the Turks were making an attack, and all you could see to the front was one long line of smoke and spouting earth. Then our guns started and the noise was deafening. It was worse than in the turrets aboard ship during an engagement. My head rang for days after we left the Dardanelles.

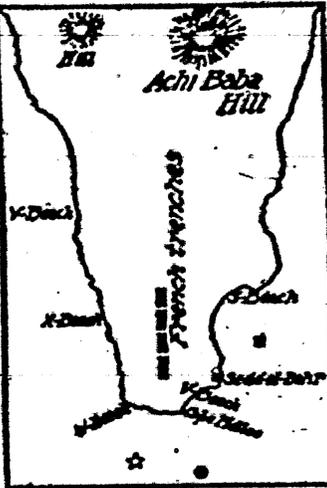

The Turks were getting a better idea of our range now and the shells were falling pretty close to us, but finally we tore in with the 14-inch navals and ripped up three of their batteries. In the fall that followed we made good time and reached our front line positions at Sedd-el-Bahr during the afternoon.

The next morning we made our first attack. I had had a bad night of it, thinking about Murray, and when the time came there never was a chap more glad to charge and get a chance at the enemy with the bayonet than I was.

We attacked according to a program. Time cards were issued to the officer of each section, so that we would work exactly with the barrage. To be ahead of, or behind the time card, would mean walking into our own barrage. The time of attack is called here—that is, the minute when you leave the trench. Some of the Anzacs said it meant when your feet got the coldest, but I do not think they suffered very much with trouble in the feet—not when they were advancing, anyway.

The time card might read something like this: First wave, zero, advance, rapid walk, barrage 25 in 10 seconds, take first trench, 0:20; second wave, same as the first, pass first trench, 0:28; take second trench, 0:36. The third wave is ordered to take the third trench, and so on, for as many lines as the enemy is entrenched. The other waves might be instructed to occupy Hill 7, 12:08; or dig in behind rock, 12:45. Here, zero is understood, the first figures standing for minutes and the others for seconds. It might take several hours to carry out the program, but everything is laid out to an exact schedule.

I was in the sixth line of the third wave of attack and zero was 4:30 a. m. Whistles were to be the signal for zero and we were to walk to the first line Turkish trench. As we came out our barrage fire would be bursting 50 yards ahead of us and would hit 25 yards every 10 seconds. Our stunt was to take advantage of it without walking into it.

under fire all the time. It seemed as if morning would never come. The sand was full of bones—great big boys—and they were as bad as any cookies I had ever had at Dixmude.

The morning came at last, and I was detailed with a fatigue party to the beach where we had landed stores. When we got down to the docks I missed Murray and asked where he was. They said he had been missing from his post not more than an hour from the time we left.

I left my fatigue party, without orders, and joined in the hunt for Murray. There were men searching all along the docks and on the shore to each side. Finally I saw a bunch of men collect around a storehouse at the farther end of the docks on the shore side. I ran up to them.

There was poor old Murray. They were just taking him down. He had been crucified against the wall of the storehouse. There was a bayonet through each arm, one through each foot and one through his stomach. One of the gables failed when he had to pull one of the bayonets out. They had hacked off his right hand at the wrist and taken his identification disc. I lay this to the German officers more than the Turk.

I do not know just what I did after this. But it changed me all around and I was not like my usual self during the rest of the time.

It was still raining when we started

Depew goes over the top in an attack on the Turkish trenches and has some close calls before he gets back to his own lines. Don't miss reading about it in the next installment.

MAKE YOUR FUTURE SECURE

Easy Farming Methods in Western Canada and Certain Financial Benefits.

With your crop harvested and marketed, with the disposal of your cattle and hogs completed, you are ready to prepare your financial statement for the year. You will soon know what you have gained, and if the gain made in your farming operations has been up to your expectations and will meet your requirements. Probably you may have been the loser. Your land may have been productive, but it may have been too high priced. The cost of production has been too great. If you have had the remuneration you sought and are satisfied this article may not interest you. If your returns have not been satisfactory, or if your ambition leads you to the laudable desire of bettering your condition, if you have dependents for whose future you have anxiety, you will naturally look around for some place, some opportunity that offers greater advantages and brings satisfactory returns. To the north and west of you lie hundreds of thousands of unbroken acres in Western Canada awaiting the husbandman, and ready to give of its richness to place you where you desire to be placed. For thousands of farmers from nearly every state in the Union the prairies of Western Canada have afforded wealth beyond what they had been led to expect. The excellence of the soil of Western Canada, which comprises the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, can only partially be told by the knowledge of some facts.

Every year for some years past the world's highest prices for wheat, oats and barley have been carried off by grain grown on Western Canadian Prairies. Beef fattened on the grasses of these same prairies recently brought the highest prices ever paid on the Chicago market. Throughout the entire world the quality of Canadian grain, and Canadian beef and mutton, is recognized. To recite what individual farmers have done, the riches they have acquired would fill volumes. The case of James Wishart of Portage la Prairie is not an exceptional one. His wheat crop this past season yielded him forty-five bushels per acre, and the land upon which it was grown was broken forty-four years ago, and it has been continuously under crop except for an occasional summer fallow. At Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, samples of the wheat of 1918 weighed 66 pounds to the bushel, others 65 and some 65 1/2 pounds. Wheat crops at Coaldale, Alberta, went as high as 38 bushels acre, while wheat crops near Barron, Alberta, had yields of from 25 to 30 bushels.

Records such as these speak in glowing terms of the excellence of the soil of Western Canada.

The war is over, and we are all settling down to a peace basis. There is a great world beyond the seas to feed and clothe, and thus is afforded the opportunity to lend a hand in the great work. Aside from the philanthropy in which you can play a part, there is the satisfaction of knowing you are amply providing for yourself and for the future of those who may be dependent upon you. Greater progress can be made in this and your own development by availing yourself of the advantages that Western Canada offers in its low-priced lands and high yielding values. There are good schools, desirable social conditions, low taxation (none on improvements) with an enjoyable climate, and the satisfaction of possessing a well tilled soil capable of producing abundant crops for which good prices prevail, at easily accessible marketing places. Used Ladders in Battle. The medieval scaling ladder played its part along with the more modern implements of war in the closing days of the American advance in France, according to a letter from Col. Alford V. D. Anderson of the Three Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, received by Mrs. Anderson.

Colonel Anderson said that his regiment, with the Three Hundred and Ninth and Three Hundred and Eleventh, rushed the walled town of Grand Pré with ladders five times. Four times they were driven back, he said, but on the fifth rush, by sheer weight of numbers, they gained a footing, and scaling the walls, which were 12 feet high, captured the town.

Inevitably. Said the observing fellow, "It's a wonder the health inspectors don't get ahead of the chap who spits out just what he thinks."

Change of Countenance. Said the facetious teller: "As soon as a girl gets past the age of making faces at the boys she starts in making eyes at 'em."

Peace, and the New Year

The New Year will dawn on a world at peace; a world awakened from a nightmare of strife, contention and bloodshed, to ask itself—what has been gained? Has the world been saved for democracy? It has. Have the principles for which our forefathers fought, bled and died been preserved? They have.

But there has been more than this accomplished; after subduing savagery, we are now teaching it the lesson of humanity. In the days of old, victors in time of war would subject the vanquished to horrible systems of torture, finally ending with a slow and cruel death. Prisoners were treated with a lack of human sympathy, starved and whipped, beaten and humiliated until death came as a welcome visitor.

To all such relics of the dark ages, our country bids defiance; the vanquished must pay the penalty, but not with the guillotine. Prisoners have been mercifully dealt with instead of being tortured to death, and in ways many and various, we have taught the former enemy the lesson of humanity that caused it to stand in awe before the example. The footprints of the Great Wayshower are again seen in the Holy Land.

American doctors, nurses and workers connected with the American Red Cross there, are carrying relief work and civilized methods in districts isolated from western civilization since the Roman occupation. For the first time in many centuries they are free from the miserable government that quenched all initiative except that of a plunderer and bribe giver—and they realize the change. The roads have opened up a country that has for 1500 years hardly had contact with the West.

The network of highways built by the British armies under General Allenby through the hill country lying eastward of the Jordan River valley has opened up this land for the first time in 1500 years.

Fifteen clinics have been arranged; visits are being made to surrounding villages the previous day to notify inhabitants to bring their sick.

Surveys of water supply, sewage, sanitation and the like have been made in 20 villages and corrective measures undertaken.

The light is breaking in the east; liberty holding aloft the flaming cross is shedding the glorious light into the dark recesses of the earth, and proclaiming the gospel of the Son of Man. I was hungry, and you gave me meat; I was naked and you clothed me; sick and in prison and you visited me. These are the things spoken of by the "Prince of Peace," which peace, and the New Year will be realized by a portion of humanity who have for ages sat in darkness and in the shadow of death.

CONFERENCE FROM ALL STATES ON DEC. 29 TO ELECT PRESIDENT, STOP DISORDERS.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Paris, Dec. 20.—The German government, headed by Friederich Ebert, has resigned as a result of events of Tuesday, according to a dispatch received at Zurich from Stuttgart.

Friederich Ebert, who was named as minister of the interior in the cabinet of Prince Maximilian of Baden, Nov. 9, and became imperial chancellor on Nov. 8, took command of the situation in Berlin following the revolutionary uprising there. On Nov. 13 it was announced that he had become premier and had chosen his cabinet, naming Hugo Haase, Philipp Scheidemann, Wilhelm Dittman, Herr Landsberg and Richard Barth as the secretaries in charge of the departments created by the revolutionary government.

Copenhagen.—The German government has decided to convoke a conference of representatives of all the states of the former empire on Dec. 29 to elect a President of the German republic, according to a Berlin report. This step is said to have been taken in order to avoid fresh outbreaks.

Amsterdam.—The Spartacus group leaped into power at the congress of soviet in Berlin Wednesday and broke up the session. Extremists and soldiers stormed the hall where the congress was in session, following a speech by Herr Barth in which he denounced Chancellor Friederich Ebert for refusing to demobilize the whole German army.

Commenting upon the breaking up of Tuesday's session by the extremists Vorwaerts said Wednesday: "There is danger that the Spartacus group will end the Socialist government as the result of Tuesday's action, making the prolongation of the armistice and peace negotiations impossible and assuring the occupation of Germany by the allies."

Three of the principal directors of the Krupp munitions works at Essen, including Dr. Braunsberger, inventor of the "Big Berthas," have been arrested by the revolutionary committee in that city, according to advices received here.

The congress of German soldiers and workmen's councils of Wednesday adopted a resolution, according to a Berlin telegram, transferring legislative and executive power to the people's commissioners (the Ebert government) until some other arrangement is made by the German national assembly.

The congress further appointed a central council of soldiers and workmen to exercise parliamentary supervision over the German and Prussian cabinets with the right to appoint and depose the people's commissioners of all Germany, and until the final regulation of state affairs of Prussia.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH.

Victor Electricians Are Thrown on 20,000-Voltage Wire.

Victor, Colo.—W. S. MacMahon of Goldfield and Gordon Edwards of Victor were burned to death, and John MacCarrow of Victor, it is thought, was fatally burned while working on the 20,000-volt power line of the Arkansas Valley Railway, Eight and Power Company, near the Vindicator mine on Bull hill.

The power line was supposedly dead, but it is thought connection was in some way made with the power line of the electric road at the nearby crossing.

MacCarrow fell to the ground, but the others remained suspended upon the wires with their clothes burning until the bodies could be taken down.

Both of the deceased are married. MacMahon is the father of two children. Coroner J. N. Schmalzried took the bodies in charge.

Clarite McQuillen Wins

The puzzle in last week's issue of the Outlook by Mr. Brockway, was won by little Miss Clarite McQuillen. She was first to send in her answer, which contained the correct solution. We herewith produce the puzzle and the answer which won the pound box of chocolate creams:

Understand
I Take
U
To Overthrow Taking
My

The I, being directly under the word 'understand' the line up makes it, 'I understand'; the word 'to' being directly over the word 'throw' makes it 'to overthrow'; The word 'taking' appearing over the word 'my' makes it 'my undertaking'. Thus the solution, to the puzzle reads as follows:

I understand
You undertake
To overthrow
My undertaking

RED CROSS FIGHTS DEADLY EPIDEMIC

Besides the special work conducted by hundreds of Red Cross Chapters throughout the country in checking the recent epidemic of Spanish influenza, the organization through its headquarters at Washington is preparing to fight a repetition of the experience that was so disastrous this fall, educating the public thoroughly regarding the symptoms and the proper care at the beginning of an attack. In addition to this, the American Red Cross is fighting tuberculosis. The recent appropriation to the National Tuberculosis Association will be used for educational as well as relief work throughout the country.

So much has been said about the aftermath of the epidemic that special attention is being given to the work along this line. The weakness which follows influenza leaves the patient in a condition which makes him a good field for the germs of tuberculosis. A thorough physical examination, proper food and clothing, the use of mild preventives, will check the progress of the disease at once.

Tuberculosis, or consumption, as it is frequently called, is both preventable and curable, provided the treatment of the disease is begun before it is too far advanced. Medicine plays a comparatively small part. The frequently advertised "consumption cures" should be looked upon as poison. The only medicine which should be taken is a good tonic which will stimulate the appetite and build up the system generally. The main cures lies in proper food, sufficient rest, fresh air and sunlight and living, if possible, according to the plan prescribed by a good physician. This renews the patient's vitality and soon kills the disease entirely.

For several years the National Tuberculosis Association has been financing its work by the sale of Red Cross seals at Christmas time. The seals sold for a penny each and by making a concerted effort enough money was usually raised to carry the work through the year. This year there will be no seals sold because the American Red Cross has made an appropriation for the anti-tuberculosis work, and those who formerly spent their time selling seals will join in the work for the Red Cross Christmas Roll Call during the week of December 19 to 23.

RED CROSS SANTA TO FILL SOLDIERS' SOCKS

An Old Fashioned Celebration of Yuletide for American Soldiers in France.

A Christmas tree in every ward of every American hospital and in every hospital recreation hut in France!

Every wounded or sick American fighting man to receive two socks filled to the brim with fruits, nuts, candy and smokes!

These are the most interesting features of a tentative Christmas celebration program for the American hospitals arranged by the American Red Cross in France in co-operation with the commanding officers of our fighting forces in that country. Details of the plan to make Christmas as merry as possible for the soldiers in these institutions have just been received at Red Cross headquarters. Nurses and enlisted men on duty at these places will also share in the distribution of Christmas cheer. Because of the limited amount of available shipping space the Red Cross was compelled to abandon its original plan to send special Christmas parcels from here to soldier patients in France. All the articles distributed will be obtained over there.

This is to be an old fashioned celebration in every sense of the word. Every soldier will hang his socks on the tree. The socks will be tied with red ribbon and in addition to the goodies mentioned above will contain a handkerchief and a card, on which will be outlined the services the American Red Cross is prepared to render our soldiers. Each soldier will receive a sufficient number of Christmas postcards—now being designed by artists in the Red Cross service—to enable him to write to members of his family and his friends back home.

The Christmas dinner, of course, will be one of the features of the celebration. After dinner there will be musical entertainment, motion pictures and general singing.

AID GAS HEROES.

On the roof of the Pavilion Bellevue, near St. Cloud, is a most interesting hospital for soldiers who have been "gassed." The Pavilion Bellevue is the former home of Isadora Duncan and is in charge of the American Red Cross.

Lieut. Wilfred H. Day of Niagara Falls, N. Y., is in charge of this hospital, which treats only those who have been gassed, and is the first hospital of its kind to be established. Lieutenant Day has visited every country that was in the war, except Bulgaria and Turkey, and has worked in each one. During a recent visit to Worcester, England, he was received by the Lord Mayor and honored because of his work and the Queen of Roumania conferred honor upon him, commending him for his work among the wounded and destitute of her country.

FRENCH AUTHORITIES ACCLAIM WORK OF AMERICAN RED CROSS.

Dr. Chas. G. de la French Military Sanitary Service and M. Goyon in recent addresses paid warm tribute to the work of the American Red Cross in the war, and M. Aigrand, prefect of the Department of the Seine, praised the personal efforts of Red Cross workers.

"Your task is not ended," said M. Aigrand. "Our friends and our benefactors now are more than ever indispensable to us. Our task is immense. Help us. We have known how to vanquish; we will know how to organize ourselves in victory."

MONEY NOT THE OBJECT.

Our obligation to our own soldiers and sailors and the privilege of ministering to the sick and wounded, of feeding the hungry, housing the homeless and rebuilding the waste places of our associates in the war, call the entire American people to the support of the Red Cross spirit now as never before. The money to be raised in membership dues is secondary. It is the spiritual phase that is important, for it will show the suffering people of the world that the American people will see them through their experience to the very end.

PEOPLE WHO ARE LEFT OUT OF THE ROLL CALL

Population of the United States Asked to Stand Up and Be Counted.

By GERALD STANLEY LEE.

I had a friend once named Old Bill Spear, who was the curator and founder of the John Quincy Adams Memorial in Quincy, Mass. He conceived the idea of making the house into a memorial and, with his genius as a collector of old furniture, filled it with things to see.

People came from everywhere, and at twenty-five cents apiece they went about to see the things Bill had collected and hear Bill talk.

Bill felt very superior to most collectors. "Just collectors," Bill said, "collect anything."

Bill usually could size people up when they came in the door, but when he wasn't quite sure about people, and suspected he didn't want to bother with them very long, he used to take them up to the attic to size them up quick. He would show them a bushel basketful of something they couldn't quite see, and then he would wave his hand with a flourish and say in an impressive tone as they stepped to look closer "This is the Largest Collection of Burnt Matches in the World!"

Hundreds of collectors didn't break a smile, Bill said, and just looked awed.

Then Bill knew, of course, that he needn't bother to show them his best things.

Some of the people who are proposing to go out into the streets Red Cross Christmas Roll Call Week and gather up everybody to join the Red Cross, seem to think that the main thing there is to tell people about the Red Cross is that if they pay a dollar to belong they will belong to the Largest Collection of People Who Have Paid One Dollar in the World.

I felt a little superior to this at first and began thinking how I wouldn't do it. But when I began thinking what the biggest Collection of People in the World could do by just being the biggest and by all wanting the same thing with a different one dollar, it became impressive.

It would even be impressive if forty million people in America all wanted the same thing with the same dollar!

All wanting the same thing would be a nation praying—all the grown-up people of a nation with their little half-conscious children round them—praying!

The dollar a man joined with, would not be a mere one dollar. The dollar would be a receipt to every man in America that 39,000,000 other men or women belonged to him, and that he belonged to them in getting what he wanted for three million soldier boys and for their children at home.

Forty million people—all the grown-up people in this country pick out three million more and say to the three million men they have picked out, "You go and die for us, you go and be saviors of the world and die on our crosses for us!"

Then what do the forty million do?

It would be something if we would all line up—the whole forty million of us to a man, with our little pallid insipid speechless dollar bills in our hands from Maine to California Christmas Week and use our two dollar bills a year as ballots, stand up in line and be counted and call to the men across the seas that we vote one centavo onto in two weeks to stand by them, to stand by the souls and bodies of the children of the men who have made a standing offer to die on our crosses for us!

Who wants to be left out of this line by Christmas Eve?

What man would want to be stood up in a row of those who are left out while all of the children of the world die by and look at him, while the little children of nine hundred thousand dead men in England die by and look at him, or the children of the soldiers of France giving their lives to protect the skyscrapers of New York?

For that matter it need not take so many children. What man who let himself be left out would feel safe in his own house with his own children climbing up into his lap believing in him—safe with his own baby pulling on his face, jabbing his small brutal fists in his eyes—if he let himself be left out?

Of course, it seems a little like a mockery to cable over to France Christmas Eve that we give one centavo onto in two weeks to the children of the men we picked out to die for us, but it would be a start.

Nobody needs to think it would be a big thing just to belong to the Red Cross, but it is going to be a big thing to be left out.

THE RED CROSS IS REAL SERVICE

By FRANK MORRISON, Secretary American Federation of Labor.

The work of the Red Cross is not confined to our boys on battlefield or in hospital nor amidst the ruins of Belgium and other portions of devastated Europe. One of its great activities is any necessary aid to the dependents of members of America's military forces.

On the battlefield the Red Cross presents an heroic figure. In America, removed from destruction and death, the Red Cross steps silently to the side of the father, and mother whose boy is "over there" and who need counsel and aid.

No service is too small for the Red Cross. If allotments from the government or from their sons are delayed, or information on the government's war risk insurance is wanted, the Red Cross is both counselor and friend. It enters into the home in the true spirit of charity—secrecy.

But first and foremost our soldiers in field and hospital must be given the most attentive care possible. Nothing we can do will equal their share in this movement for world democracy, and the Red Cross presents an opportunity for us to play our part in this great drama by contributing to the extent of our ability.

The Red Cross appeals to organized workers because of its one quality—service.

Behind Red Cross service is an enabling charity that is not defaced by cost matter, a democracy that personifies Jefferson's great principle of equality and a religion that is beyond sectarianism.

MAKE SOLDIER FEEL HE IS AS GOOD AS EVER

Men disabled in the service who are returning from the front and who find it hard at first to see their way toward earning a livelihood are a special problem for the Red Cross. Under the Smith-Sears law a fund is appropriated to re-educate every disabled man who will take the opportunity to make a living. It is felt that such men are likely to be weakened in their resolution to keep their self respect and find real work by the mistaken charity of benevolent worshippers, who will forget them once the first flush of war enthusiasm is over. Here the support of the disabled man's family must be enlisted, for in the last analysis it is the man's family who will be the determining influence in his rehabilitation. The relatives must be braced to meet the situation—to make of themselves for the man a bulwark against discouragement and weakness.

SMILES AND TEARS GET MIXED.

Two little stories came to the Red Cross headquarters from over the seas a short time ago. One was a story of bravery that brought the tears, and one a tale of tears that brought smiles.

The first story was of a soldier who asked for a light. He was in bed, and a cigarette was between his lips, placed there by the nurse after she had finished spreading his blanket up smoothly. At his question, she turned and gave him a box of matches and hurried on, then remembered that the arms beneath the blankets were without hands.

Nurses have to be without tears, but there were tears in her eyes as she turned to strike the match and light the cigarette for him.

"Quit that," he said, "they were good hits, and they helped get three or four Germans before I lost them, but they ain't worth crying about, so there!"

And the tears story that brought smiles? Well, that was the story of a big, kunky, colored man, who sat reading, and the Red Cross worker at the canteen saw that he had tears running down his cheeks. She was curious to know what he might be reading and was astonished when she looked over his shoulder to see that it was the canteen cook book.

He smiled through his tears as he saw that she was watching, and said, sheepishly, "You sure must excuse me, ma'am, but this here book done make me blamed homesick. I'm shamed to make a baby outen mahself, but this makes me think o' home."

RED CROSS WOMEN CITED FOR BRAVERY

American women at Sperry, south of Rheims, have been cited in an order of the day for remaining at their posts in an American Red Cross canteen under bombardment for six days. Throughout this battle they continued to feed and care for wounded.

WHAT RED CROSS MEANS.
Your membership in the great American Red Cross means the mothering of these little children made desolate by the invasion of the Hun. Mrs. Lars Anderson in her recent book on conditions over there says: "It is the poor, homeless, motherless kiddies that somehow make all the other horrors of war fade away into distance. These frightened, crying, dying, innocent children, who do not know what it is all about—they wring your heart dry."

COMFORTS, SMILES AND CAKE LIKE MOTHER USED TO MAKE

Thus Every Red Cross Canteen Becomes a Bit of Home for Our Soldiers in France.

What could possibly be more glad-dealing than the sight of real American doughnuts, hunks of luscious pie, real hunks? Nothing—unless it might be the sight of an honest-to-goodness American girl. And the combination of the three, and maybe a couple of mugs of good hot coffee thrown in for good measure—nobody but a really tired, hardworked Yank can really appreciate this food for the gods and comfort for the heart of man.

"It ain't the coffee nor the pie nor the doughnuts, not even the pretty girls," said one young soldier; "it is the sight of a woman who looks like your mother—with her little cap a frills askew sometimes, and maybe a lock of hair straightened out of curl, just like mother used to have hers come when she was hurrying too hard —that's the thing that makes a fellow glad he happened to be with this particular bunch. And when that woman says, 'Here, son, have another piece of pie!' it goes right through your heart and makes you feel that if you ever do get back to the old U. S. A. again you'll never forget mother's birthday and you'll remember to say the kind things every single day of your life."

The Red Cross serves the lads of all the nations, of course, but it is particularly partial to the khaki clad youths with a bit of slang and the call for the matches and the cigarettes.
They are the ones who appreciate the American crackers and jam.

There are the canteens close to the tranches, of course, and the buts where the men may go and bathe and have their clothes freshened up, and the railroad station canteen service, and the big canteens with the writing rooms and showers and libraries, and lounges where a fellow can rest a while, but the boys who have been there insist that they love the little rolling canteens that just naturally spring up where you least expect them, most of all.

Many well known names are on the lists of canteen workers, for American women were quick to seize the opportunity for service. The poorest soldier on his leave may be served by an American woman whose hospitality was formerly dealt out by her maids and butlers—and whose guest lists included only the most fashionable names in the social register. Now it is she who hands over the pie, with her own hands and then gathers up the dishes—yes, and oftentimes washes them when help is scarce, for they have to be washed and made ready for the next lot of soldiers—and one cannot disappoint the boys who are never too tired to respond to the call of duty.

Another part of the canteen service is the "store," where the soldiers are supplied with their needs, where things they have lost in the heat of battle are replaced, tooth paste handed out, razor blades, towels, toothbrushes, all sorts of things, not forgetting the post cards to send home and the ever wanted packages of cigarettes.

Taking it all in all, the canteen does for more than fill the stomachs of the men—it puts something worth while into their hearts.

represented in the proposed line from Hutchinson to El Paso and we recommend that there be assessed against the various coun-

Live Stock Co. Enlarge

The Carrizozo Live Stock Commission Co. has vacated their office room in the Trading Co.
building, and have moved into the suite of rooms formerly occupied by the Pattee family.
New furniture will be installed and after everything is set, it would make an ideal meeting place for the Purity Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Monroe will move to the room vacated, after the same has been refitted to their liking and comfort.

Crystal Theatre Opens

On Christmas night the Crystal Theatre opened its doors in its new quarters in the Wetmore Block, and as previously announced featured Bryant Washburn in "Till I Come Back to You" and it was shown to a large audience.

A force of workmen under the direction of Mr. Dingwall have been busy for the past week remodeling the building and getting things in readiness for the opening, so the public would not be disappointed. The management is to be congratulated on the speedy termination of the change, and the big advantage

the new order of things affords both the public and management.

The more extended seating capacity, together with the increased elevation of the seats insures the audience an unobstructed view and will give the management the advantage of being able to handle the largest of crowds with the greatest of ease.

SONG OF LITTLE THINGS

By Jeanne Judson

This is the song of little things,
A clean, white bed in a quiet
place,
A cigarette and the saving grace
Of smiles that illumine the nurse's face—
These are the joys the Red Cross brings.

This is the song of little things,
An old man brought to his home
again,
And children who play, forgetting pain,
A hut that shelters from mud
and rain—
This is the rest the Red Cross
brings.

the best the market affords. At

HUNGER DRAWS THE MAP

A food map of Europe today shows not a single country in which the future does not hold threat of serious difficulties and only a small part which is not rapidly approaching the famine point. With the exception of the Ukraine only those countries which have maintained marine commerce have sufficient food supplies to meet actual needs until next harvest, and even in the Ukraine, with stores accumulated on the farms, there is famine in the large centers of population.

Belgium and northern France, as well as Serbia, appear on the hunger map distinct from the rest of Europe because they stand in a different relation from the other nations to the people of the United States. America has for four years maintained the small war rations of Belgium and northern France and is already making special efforts to care for their increased after-the-war needs, which, with those of Serbia, must be included in this plan, are urgent in the extreme and must have immediate relief.

The government of the Belgian nation for the help America has extended to her during the war constitutes the strongest appeal for us to continue our work there. The moment the German troops withdraw from her soil and the appalling conditions in her own seat of government the little nation's first thought was to express her gratitude to the Commission for Relief in Belgium for preserving the lives of millions of her citizens.

Germany, on the other hand, need not figure in such a map for Americans because there is no present indication that we shall be called on at all to take thought for the food needs of Germany. Germany probably can care for her own food problem if she is given access to shipping and is enabled to distribute food to the cities with dense populations, which are the trouble centers.

England, France, the Netherlands and Portugal, all of which have been maintained from American supplies, have sufficient food to meet immediate needs, but their future presents serious difficulties. The same is true of Spain and the northern neutral countries—Norway, Sweden and Denmark —whose ports have been open and who have been able to draw to some degree upon foreign supplies.

Most of Russia is already in the throes of famine, and 40,000,000 people there are beyond the possibility of help. Before another spring thousands of them inevitably must die.
Their supplies are well to Poland and practically throughout the Baltic regions, with conditions most serious in Finland.

Bohemia, Serbia, Roumania and Montenegro have already reached the famine point and are suffering a heavy toll of death. The Armenian population is falling each week as hunger takes its toll, and in Greece, Albania and Roumania so serious are the food shortages that famine is near. Although starvation is not yet imminent, Italy, Switzerland, Bulgaria and Turkey are in the throes of serious stringencies.

In order to fulfill America's pledge in world relief we will have to export every ton of food which can be handled through our ports. This means at the very least a minimum of 50,000,000 tons compared with 6,000,000 tons pre-war exports and 11,820,000 tons exported last year, when we were bound by the ties of war to the European allies.

If we fail to lighten the black spots on the hunger map or if we allow any portions to become darker the very peace for which we fought and died will be threatened. Beyond and inevitably follow famine. Should this happen we will see in other parts of Europe a repetition of the Russian disaster and our fight for world peace will have been in vain.

NEW YEAR'S DAY

Its Entrance Has Been Celebrated for Many Years.

Custom of Calling Originated With Dutch in New York State—Reception by President an Annual Occasion.

THE celebration of the entrance of a New Year has been observed with much ceremony in this country ever since the beginning of our Republic. President Washington was the first to establish the custom, and at his Philadelphia residence, during his first administration, it has been noted that the day was observed with appropriate ceremonies, with a light repast in the afternoon, including a plum cake baked by Martha Washington herself, and some temperance punch, made chiefly of lemons and sugar, minus any intoxicating ingredients.

The custom of New Year's calling originated in this country with the Dutch in New York state. The nature of the day, the clearing off of old accounts and the hopeful beginning of the new trial of life, made New Year's day a day for the interchange of friendly greetings, and in no country more than in this has the friendly visiting crystallized into such a hard and fast business.

In the South, in the early days, that land where social life is as delightful and spontaneous in its growth as is the flora of the region, New Year's day was formerly observed as the great time for coming out. The debutante burst into blossom on that day, the old homesteads were thrown open, and the social world, like the huge family, met to exchange greetings and good cheer.

On New Year's day the observance in Washington takes on the form of diplomatic and political observances, when conveyances from all over the city start moving toward the White House for their occupants to pay their respects to the president and other dignitaries of our government.

When the general custom of celebrating the first of the year by the parading of New Year clubs in fantastic costumes, and similar jollifications began, it is difficult to say, though it does not appear to have antedated the Civil war. As for shooting in the New Year, that seems to have been the custom—and strikingly so in Philadelphia, ever since the revolution.

When John Adams moved into the White House it was so incomplete that there was very little attempt to observe New Year's day at the mansion, nor in fact any other elaborate social affair. The celebration, as now observed, began with the administration of President Jefferson. On New Year's day in 1803 it is noted "On Saturday, New Year's day, the president was waited upon by diplomatic characters, the officers of the government, the members of the legislature, and the citizens generally. There were also present a large number of ladies." In

A NEW EXPERIENCE

The Young Year stood and blinked his eyes. And gazed, with wondering surprise Upon a sight so fine and new. He scarcely could believe it true. He gazed again, and still that sight Remained to fill him with delight. Until he asked what might this be. This thing of shining mystery.

"What can it be?" he eager asked, As still in that strange thing he basked "Which is so bright and big and fine, And feeling brings I can't define. But which my very heart makes glad. The greatest feeling I've yet had; And braces up my spirit so With all its warmth and shine and glow?"

"I never saw such sight before. And will I see it o'er and o'er? Or will it vanish like a dream? And not again upon me beam? What is this rare and radiant thing Which makes me want to dance and sing?" The one he questioned answered: "Son, Don't you know what? Why, that's the sun."

1804 the report contains the information that "the affair was rendered more agreeable by the accompaniment of the Marine and Italian bands."

At this second Jefferson reception "some time after the company had assembled, Colonel Burrows, at the head of the Marine corps, saluted the president, while the band of music played the president's march, went through the usual evolutions in a masterly manner, fired sixteen rounds in platoons, and concluded with a general 'feu-de-joie'."

Naturally, with Dolly Madison as hostess, the New Year receptions during her husband's administration were brilliant, and at the last one, prior to the burning of the mansion, a guest wrote as follows: "Nothing ever was witnessed in Washington so brilliant and dazzling."

Every president since then has celebrated the dawn of the new year as an occasion for diplomatic courtesies, as well as an opportunity to give the public a chance to visit the White House and shake hands with the president.

First Observed by Romans.

The observance of January 1 as the beginning of the year we borrow from the Romans. The first Christian emperors kept up the custom of New Year's observance, though it tolerated and afforded the opportunity for idolatrous rites, but later the western church opposed three days of penitence and fasting to the Pagan celebration of January (A. D. 497). By degrees, however, the church, in the eighth century, abrogated the fast, and the earlier and more congenial jovial customs were gradually resumed and have continued to the present.

Make Several.

One good New Year resolution deserves another.

NEW YEAR SOON GROWS OLD

Fades and Passes Just as All Things Earthly—Only the Spiritual Endures and Satisfies.

The heart-breaking thing about the New Year is that he becomes old. We run out to meet him today as he arrives rosy-cheeked, and ruddy, stamping his feet, drawing off his gloves, unbuttoning his great coat and shaking off the snowflakes. How buoyant and hopeful he is! He has his pockets full of good things for us, we are sure. How he wins us! How he inspires us! We can do great things with him. He is so different from the old fellow who is gone. Poor Old Year! He got pretty stale toward the last. And then, too, we got so we didn't feel just comfortable with him. He had seen so many of our mistakes and failures. It will be easier to make a new start with him out of the way.

And now, for this youngster! We shall keep the past from him. He shall not know a word of it. All his things are new. Ours shall be also, new words, new thoughts, new ways. Good-by, old things; we greet the New Year. But even before our New Year's resolutions are all made, the New Year's day grows old. Light the candles; the day is dying. The shadows deepen. Our new New Year already is taking on age. We cannot keep him now; can we keep the new that he brought to us? In the first gloom of the new year we know that we cannot. The guests of the day are gone. The flowers we chose with such care are withering. The tempting feast—fragments. Is there no abiding thing? The old year was like this. The old year was like it; the new year will be and years and years—all alike. Time is their body; their soul is eternity. And as they come one after the other they bring to us the gifts of their body and the gifts of their soul. The one waxes old and passes; the other endures and satisfies.

Welcome, New Year. Show us your good gifts and help us to choose among them such as you and the other years that come and go can leave with us until the perfect and ascending day.

"House Moss." A Washington housewife employs a negro servant girl, who sweeps and dusts on the theory that you don't have to worry about the dirt you don't happen to see. The other day her mistress was making an inspection of a bedroom which the girl had just cleaned up in preparation for an expected guest who was known to be very fastidious.

The woman looked under the bed and saw there a very visible deposit of fuzz and dust. Calling the girl to the spot, she pointed this deposit out to her and asked: "What do you call that, Pearlina?" "What does I call dat?" asked the shifty maiden, in the effort to gain time. "Why, don't you all know what dat is? Dat ain't dirt. It's house moss, ma'am; yes'm—dat's jes' house moss."—Pathfinder.

HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES IF YOUR BACK ACHES

Do you feel tired and "worn-out"? Are you nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged out" unrested feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Bilious? Bad taste in the mouth, back-ache, pain or soreness in the loins, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or sediment? All these indicate gravel or stone in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The oil soaks gently into the walls and lining of the kidneys, and the little poisonous animal germs, which are causing the inflammation, are immediately attacked and chased out of your system without inconvenience or pain.

Don't ignore the "little pains and aches," especially backaches. They may be little now but there is no telling how soon a dangerous or fatal disease of which they are the forerunners may show itself. Go after the cause of that backache at once, or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition, and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, and thus be sure of getting the genuine.—Adv.

"But, my dear, there's only about half a column of 'it'" said Biffkins, stily.

The Farmer Receives More Than Five Thousand Dollars a Minute From Swift & Company

This amount is paid to the farmer for live stock, by Swift & Company alone, during the trading hours of every business day.

All this money is paid to the farmer through the open market in competition with large and small packers, shippers, speculators and dealers.

The farmer, feeder, or shipper receives every cent of this money ($300,000 an hour, nearly $2,000,000 a day, $11,500,000 a week) in cash, on the spot, as soon as the stock he has just sold is weighed up.

Some of the money paid to the farmer during a single day comes back to the company in a month from sale of products; much does not come back for sixty or ninety days or more.
 But the next day Swift & Company, to meet the demands made by its customers, must pay out another $2,000,000 or so, and at the present high price levels keeps over $250,000,000 continuously tied up in goods on the way to market and in bills owed to the company.

This gives an idea of the volume of the Swift & Company business and the requirements of financing it. Only by doing a large business can this company turn live stock into meat and

Building Material

As decided by the War Industries Board, Nov. 16th, it is no longer necessary to obtain a permit from any government official to make farm improvements not to exceed $10,000. This also applies to work in towns and cities.
 So farmers, ranchmen and others can now make improvements up to this amount unhampered. Having a large stock of building material we can give you good service.

HOW SUBS WERE FOILED IS TOLD

Camouflage and Big Convoys Used to Make Our Shipping Safe.

DETAILS ARE MADE PUBLIC

Official of United States Shipping Board Describes Convoys' Activity From Time It Left New York.

New York.—With the need of secrecy ended by the cessation of fighting "on land, on sea and in the air" the methods used to baffle the Hun submarines have been revealed by officers of the United States shipping board. They made public the details of convoy management and the proper camouflaging of grouped ships to make their destruction by undersea craft difficult.

One of the officers begins his description of a convoy's activity from the time it left the port of New York. "Once we were out in the stream," he says, "we headed down the channel for the lights, beyond which our convoys and escorts were waiting for us. All were slowly under way when we reached them. The ships of different columns took their places, and after a few minutes' confusion, and lively work on the signal halyards the other ships of the convoy got into place.

"Guarded above by dirigibles, hydroplanes and anchored balloons, and on the surface by a fleet of patrol boats as well as our ocean escort, we proceeded, and America soon dropped below the western horizon.

"As in the army we have turned back to medieval helmets and armor, so on the water we have turned to medieval naval tactics; but instead of convoys of Spanish galleons and frigates of the seventeenth century from the new world to the old, our convoys were American transports and destroyers.

"It is not hard to see why the convoy system was effective. Take the case of a convoy of 25 ships (72 is the largest number I've heard of in one convoy; our mate told me of being caught in a 72-ship convoy in a sailing ship in the Bay of Biscay). When these ships went in convoy instead of there being 25 different units scattered all over the 'zone' for the U-boats to find, there was only one. That is, the Hun had only one chance of meeting a ship where he had 25 before. And if he did meet the convoy he found it usually with a naval escort, whose sole business was sinking submarines. He found, too, 25 lookouts on watch for him, 25 sets of guns ready for him, where there were but one each before.

"The usual convoy formation was in columns in a rough square. This was the most compact, and the inside ships were practically immune from attack. The escorts circled the convoy. If necessary, and the outside ships concentrated their fire on any submarine that appeared.

"Convoys were made up at different speeds, and even the rustiest old tramps were provided for in a six-knot class.

"In spite of this, some captains' imagination always tacked a couple of knots to their ship's speed. There seemed to be a nautical version of 'Home, Sweet Home'—'Be it ever so humble, there's no ship like mine,' and vessels making nine knots on Broadway make a bare seven off Fire Island. "It was remarkable what a snappy escort commander could do with his charges. After a day or two together he had them maneuvering in position like a second grand fleet; zigzagging 'dark' through a black night, not a ray of light showing anywhere if they were in the danger zone or a tin fish was reported near.

"The war brought no stranger spectacle than that of a convoy of steamships plowing along through the middle of the ocean streaked and bespotted indiscriminately with every color of the rainbow.

"The effect of good camouflage was remarkable. I have often looked at a fellow ship in the convoy on our quarter on exactly the same courses we were, but on account of her camouflage she appeared to be making right for us on a course at least forty-five degrees different from the one she was actually steering.

"The deception was remarkable even under such conditions as these, and of course a U-boat, with its hasty limited observation, was much more likely to be fooled.

"Each nation seemed to have a characteristic type of camouflage, and after a little practice you could usually spot a ship's nationality by her style of camouflage long before you could make out her ensign."

CANADA REBORN AS WAR RESULT

Toronto.—It is a new Canada that emerges from the world war—a nation transformed from that which entered the conflict in 1914.

More than 50,000 of her sons lie in soldiers' graves in Europe. Three times that number have been more or less incapacitated by wounds. The cost of the war in money is estimated to be already $1,100,000,000.

These are not light losses for a country of 8,000,000 people. Fortunately, there is also a credit side.

Canada has "found herself" in this war. She has discovered not merely the gallantry of her soldiers, but the brains and capacity and efficiency of her whole people. In every branch, in arms, in industry, in finance, she has had to measure her wits against the world, and in no case has Canada reason to be other than gratified.

Of the glory that is Canada's because of the gallantry and endurance and brains of her boys at the front not the half has yet been told. "The most formidable fighting force in Europe" is not a phrase of empty words. Characteristic of all that has gone before is the fact that the last act before the curtain was rung down on the drama of war should be the capture of Mons by the Canadian corps. No Canadian, when he heard that it was reserved to Canadians to retrieve the great tragedy to the original British army in August, 1914, but felt his pulse jump and the red blood surge through his veins.

These boys who went from Canadian firesides, who never heard the jangle of a sword previous to 1914, in the last four months have met the flower of the German army, vaunting warriors who had given their lifetime to preparation. Divisions totaling one-fourth of the entire German army were in this period met in succession and vanquished by four divisions from Canada.

Nor have the people at home been lagging behind the boys at the front in courage, resourcefulness and efficiency. The development of Canada's war industry is an industrial romance of front rank. American government officials can testify to the efficiency of the manufacturing plant Canada has built up in four short years. In Department after department, where they found American industry faltered, they were able to turn to Canada. The full story may be revealed some day.

In finance, Canada before the war was always a borrower and expected to be so for many years to come. But for a year and a half Canada in finance has been "on her own." More than that, she has been furnishing large credits to other nations.

Having triumphed over the soul-testing crises of war, Canada faces an era of peace with more than confidence—with buoyancy.

A vast program of reconstruction and of development awaits. The country is eager to get at it and is impatient for the government to give the word. Public works of tremendous importance, silent since 1914, are awaiting labor soon to be available. Shipbuilding, railway equipment, steel production and many other industries will, under proper direction, go forward with a bound.

A Canadian commission under Lloyd Harris, fresh from Washington, is headed for Europe for the purpose of securing orders for Canadian industries for the reconstruction of Europe.

ward and placed in the bed beside him. "She's a wiz," announced Hefty to the ward, and the Red Cross lady found herself swamped with demands for seances. She sees only happiness and good fortune ahead and the convalescents, with a new interest in life, find the days go less slowly when something good awaits them "just around the corner."

They know it's good luck because "The Red Cross lady says so—she saw it in the cards."

These Tommies, who have done their part nobly in the victorious struggle against the Hun, are seen here showing great interest in the fine codling caught by Mrs. McHutchins, winner of the ladies' sea angling competition at Deal.

"You will receive a letter in a few days which will bring you good news. Um! Yes, and you are going to receive a present, from a lady—blonde, whom you are going to meet." "Trust Hefty, there, to meet the blondes," drawled a lanky Southerner, and the group of interested soldiers, clustered about the fortune teller, shouted in chorus, "Oh, oui! He's there with the blondes!" Hefty looked embarrassed, but pleased. "Tell me some more!" he urged, and the fortune teller, conning the cards, read for the wounded soldier a coming day of good luck when muddy trenches, silencing nights under bombardment and aching strappel wounds would be forgotten except as a hale of hard work well done to crown the days of peace with content.

The gipsy, in her scarlet kerchief, has always plied her trade profitably. An American Red Cross worker, in a Paris hospital, has discovered that the scarlet kerchief is not a necessary requisite for drawing a clientele. She began telling fortunes one afternoon just to while away an hour for a boy who had begun to lose interest in getting well. He was restless and weary. For four months he had been lying in the same bed; other patients had come and gone.

"You're going to have an interesting adventure tomorrow," predicted the Red Cross lady, and the following day a pal with whom Hefty had trained in the States and whom he hadn't seen for six months, was carried into the

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER.

THE JACK O' LANTERN.

"I never know," said the pumpkin Jack o' Lantern, "just how I am going to be received."

The Jack o' Lantern was on the back porch of a little boy's house, and a fly was walking over it.

The fly raised its wings a little and said, "I always know how I am to be received."

"How?" asked the Jack o' Lantern.

"A Horrid Old Fly,"

"One question at a time, please," buzzed the fly. "I beg your pardon," said the Jack o' Lantern.

"I'll answer the first one first and the second one second if you wish," said the fly, "though if you would rather I will answer the second one first and the first one second."

"No, don't do that," said the Jack o' Lantern, "for I haven't had any schooling and I don't know a great deal. It would doubtless confuse me and mix me up, if you did that. So please answer the first question first and the second question second."

"To tell you the truth," said the fly, "I've never been to school myself. They don't have any schools for flies. They don't care to educate us and teach us spelling. And so, as I know so little and as my memory is so short, I've forgotten which question you asked first and which you asked second. And to tell you the honest truth I've forgotten just what your questions were."

The Jack o' Lantern grinned and its funny teeth looked still funnier.

"My first question was that I said 'How?'"

"How?" repeated the fly. "How what?"

"No, not how what—just how—all by itself," said the Jack o' Lantern. "What went with how—strawberry sauce or sugar or cake?" asked the fly.

"Nothing went with it like that," laughed Jack o' Lantern. "Yes, I really believe there are no schools for flies. In fact, I think I know more than you do. I asked you how you were always received. You said you always knew how you were going to be received, you know."

"Oh, yes, yes," said the fly, waving one of its wings, "now I seem to understand and remember. I said that I always knew how I was going to be received—and I do. Of course I don't know just how they'll go about it, whether they will use fly paper, fly hitters, fly poisons or what. But they won't give me a rousing welcome. No, people don't like flies. They say we carry dirt and germs and aren't nice at all. It's perfectly true, we do."

"So you admit it," the Jack o' Lantern replied. "Well now, please answer my second question. Aren't you glad you know how you are going to be received rather than not to know it at all? You're sure you aren't welcome. But you know it beforehand."

"Oh, I don't mind," said the fly. "I fly about and care little for anyone or anything (except food, and sweet things especially). I'm not very fussy about what folks think or what they do."

"Well," said the Jack o' Lantern, "I'm different. As you may know, I was made out of a pumpkin. In the center there is a candle and it will be lighted so that my mouth and my eyes and my nose will all show up most beautifully. I will grin at everyone and my funny cut-out teeth will look jolly. But some people won't like me."

"I know—because I was out last night. My little master took me about from house to house and rang the bell and left me on the porch while the people came to the door. I was there as a visitor, saying 'how do you do.' Well, some of those folks banged the door when they saw me. There is nothing wrong about me, but you know there are some people who are just cross and mean by nature and they can't enter into the fun of the autumn season and the pumpkin Jack o' Lantern visitors. But thank goodness, most people aren't like that—still, I don't know just how I'm going to be liked."
