AMERICANS ARRANGE TO INVADE GERMANY

U. S. Commanders on Leave of Absence Called to Coblentz

John Hines, commander of the third corps, who were on their way to London Wednesday, were recalled to Coblentz by orders from American general headquarters.

Nine hundred motors began to move Tuesday at midnight from west of the Rhine to the bridge-head area.

The trucks are being distributed to various points of advantage among the troops holding the zone east of the Rhine should the occasion arise for the Americans to start an advance.

The recall of Gen. Liggett and Hines is part of the new program for the American army in the event the Germans do not accept the peace treaty.

The composite regiment of the third army, which was organized for the participation in the Empire day festivities in London, is being held in Coblentz because of the new turn in the peace situation.

The movement of the motor trucks continued throughout Wednesday and most of Wednesday night and was the topic of conversation among German civilians in Coblentz. Many civilians complained that the trucks as they rambled across the Rhine bridges at night disturbed their sleep.

Educational Items

Assistant State Supt., John V. Conway, passed through Carrizozo last Friday on his way to Capitan where he addressed the Seniors. Mr. Conway's address was pleasing and enthusiastic. He urged greater co-operation of parents and teachers.

Mr. Smith, President of Albuquerque Business College made a pleasing and forceful address, pointing out the advantages of better school conditions and a strict enforcement of the compulsory school law. Mr. Smith presented the Senior Diplomas. Mrs. M. L. Blaney on behalf of the County Board of Education, and the State Department with a few well chosen words presented the Eighth Grade Diplomas to the class.

Tri-County Institute

The plans for the Lincoln-Dona Ana-Otero County Institute to be held in Alamogordo the last week in August have been completed. All teachers in the three counties will attend. The institute will be conducted on the lecture-plan and promises many interesting programs.

Commencement Exercises Last Friday Night

The commencement exercises of the Carrizozo High School were held last Friday night at the M. E. Church, the attendance being exceptionally large. The program began with the "Processional March" by Miss Hilary Cooper, followed by the Invocation by Rev. L. S. Smith of the Baptist Church after which the "Flag Salute" by the School Chorus was well rendered.

The orations by the Misses Pearl Clements, Perola Stevens and Pearl Hyde showed remarkable talent as they handled the different subjects, namely: "Responsibilities of American Citizenship," "Strength of a Nation" and "Influence of our Environments." Three other numbers by the School Chorus, "The Angel Chorus," "Out on the Deep," and "Commencement Days," were much appreciated by the audience, as was also the sextette composed of the Misses Cooper, Conway, Terrell, Schaefer, Wack, Taylor, who sang "Gleam Oh Silver Stream."

Following the Class Address by Rev. Laflance, which was a splendid oratorical effort, the Diplomas were presented to the Class Roll by Mrs. T. W. Spencer, President of the School Board. The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by the congregation and was followed by Rev. Lewelling of the M. E. Church who pronounced the benediction which ended a program in which was displayed remarkable talent on the part of each connected with the exercises.

State Teachers' Exam.

The state teachers' examination (including Reading Circle work) will be held on the following dates in the office of the County Superintendent, at Carrizozo, New Mexico:

June 12th and 14th; June 27th and 28th; July 11th and 12th; July 26th and 27th.

Mrs. Maude L. Blaney,
County Superintendent of Schools.

The Stevens Depart

The Misses Iona and Perola Stevens with their brother Allison, left Wednesday for Globe, Ariz., to join the balance of the family, who are already located permanently at that place. This portion of the family will also make the city of Globe their future home. The young folks carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends made in Carrizozo.

Visitor From Knoxville

Mr. A. G. French of Knoxville, Tenn., father of J. B. French, arrived last Friday to spend a portion of the season with his son's family. He expresses himself as being well pleased with the healthy growth of vegetation at Carrizozo and the timely rains in this locality.

In Honor of Miss Parker.

Last Monday evening Mrs. T. W. Spencer entertained with a social dance in honor of Miss Francis Parker, who will leave this week for her home in California. Thirty couples participated in the affair, the music being furnished by Mr. George Ferguson, who gave his usual amount of much appreciated service at the piano.

The McDonald home was brilliantly illuminated for the occasion; lights twinkled through the grove of trees surrounding the scene of gaiety, adding their joyous gleams to the merriment of the event. At the given hour the guests repaired to the dining room where delicious refreshments were served. As the last notes of merriment ceased, the guests joined with one accord in a fond farewell wishing the guest of honor a safe and pleasant journey to her California home, with many happy returns for the future.

Mrs. Cribb Entertains

Mrs. R. T. Cribb entertained Wednesday evening in honor of her brother, Mr. Ernest Weekley. The affair was a birthday surprise for Mr. Weekley, who on his return home found a merry gathering of enthusiastic friends ready to offer their best wishes.

The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games, singing, recitations, etc., during which time refreshments were served. The gathering was not large, it being in the form of a home soiree, but the surprise was decidedly successful, likewise the evening's entertainment.

Judge Kimbrell Here

Judge Kimbrell came over from Pecos last Tuesday to attend to some Probate Court matters requiring his official attention. In speaking of the outlook for stock in his locality, the Judge says that the spring lambing will produce 95%, which is largely in excess of that of previous years, and that the report of large numbers being killed in the heavy hail storms is exaggerated.

For a Month's Vacation

Mrs. Laura Arnold, who is a sister of Mrs. R. E. Stubbam and who is a trained nurse at the Copper Queen hospital at Bisbee, Ariz., left last Saturday for Seattle, after paying a short visit to her relatives at this point. Mrs. Arnold will spend about one week in Seattle with her aunt, Mrs. Chas. Pace, after which she will return to Bisbee to take up her work at the hospital.

Miss Blaney Departs

Miss Hilary Conway departed last Sunday on No. 4 for Alva, Okla., which was at one time the home of the Conway family, and where a sister of Miss Edna still resides. She will arrive in Alva in time for the Commencement Exercises and will teach in the University for the coming fall term.

Ladies of the Woodmen Circle

The ladies of the above named society met in regular session last Tuesday afternoon, transacting a goodly amount of business that came before the meeting. After the order of business was completed, the circle entered into degree work, initiating six candidates namely: Mesdames E. O. and O. Z. Finley, L. T. Becot, Lotah Miller, Geo. Dingwall and L. B. Crawford. The circle is enjoying a much deserved season of prosperity, with a nice list of applications yet to be acted upon. After the initiatory work, refreshments were served. The Circle meets on the afternoon of the third Sunday of each month.

Clayton Thanks Newspapers

The Liberty Loan campaign which has just closed was the hardest of all, and if it had not been for the splendid response of the newspapers, it would have been harder still.

You have earned the thanks of both the government and the public for what you have done, and I want to add my expression of personal thanks and good will.

Cordially yours,
F. P. Clayton,
Director of Publicity.

The Lindsays Depart on Summer Vacation

The Misses Ivy, Lucille and mother, Mrs. T. W. Lindsay, left on No. 4 last Tuesday to spend the vacation season at St. Louis, Mo. The young ladies will return to Carrizozo before the fall term of school opens, but Mrs. Lindsay will remain at her farm home near that city for an indefinite period of time.

Visitor From Alamo

Prof. J. E. Koenes arrived last Friday in time for the Commencement Exercises at the Carrizozo High School. The Prof. will remain with us for about 10 days, after which he will attend the Normal at Las Vegas, being one of the faculty of that institution in Civics and Arithmetic. He will also take some advanced studies in the Professor's class, which the faculty has added to this important institution.

Senator Tully Here

Senator J. V. Tully came over from Glencoe last Tuesday to transact some business of a legal nature. The Senator brings good reports from his locality concerning condition of the stock and range; he also informs us that the mountain streams are full "of the finest trout ever."

To Her Home in Hollywood

Miss Francis Parker left Wednesday for El Paso, where she will visit for a short time with her grandparents, after which she will return to her old home in Hollywood, Cal.

SUFFRAGISTS WIN BY MORE THAN TWO-THIRDS VOTE

Representatives Adopt An- thony Amendment by a Vote of 304 to 89

National suffrage for women was endorsed by the house of representatives at Washington last Wednesday for the second time, when the Susan B. Anthony resolution was adopted by a vote of 304 to 89. Supporters of the measure at once arranged to carry the fight to the senate where they hope this time to obtain the necessary two thirds vote to insure its adoption.

The victory for the suffrage forces was by 42 votes more than the required two thirds. On the previous ballot on the resolution cast Jan. 10, 1918, exactly the required number of affirmative votes were recorded.

House leaders of both parties in the brief debate preceding the vote urged favorable action, but many southern Democrats opposed the measure, as did several New England Republicans.

West-Adams

At the home of the bride's parents last Saturday evening occurred the wedding of Mr. Benjamin West and Mrs. Bernice Adams. The wedding was a quiet affair, the attendance being composed of members of the bride's family.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Barber, who are old and prominent residents of this locality. She was reared in Lincoln County, receiving her education here and has many admiring friends who wish her well in all things for the future. The groom is train detective for the B. P. & S. W. in which position he has given both the Company and Carrizozo the best of service and satisfaction. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Loy-rolling of the Methodist Church, after which the couple departed for El Paso where they remained for several days, returning to Carrizozo on Tuesday, where they will be at home to their friends in the future.

Roses in the Desert

A peep into the garden of the French home is enough to assure those who have heretofore labored under the opinion that flowers could not be successfully raised in the open garden, roses especially. The bushes are heavily laden with these queens of the flower kingdom which nod and bend in graceful attitudes awaiting to be plucked and passed on to bless humanity, until the tender petals crumble and return to mother dust.

Notice, Knitters

All knitted garments must be finished and turned in by the middle of next week. Please bear this in mind. Mrs. Lin Brahm, Chairman.

GREEN FANCY
 BY GEORGE BARR
MC CUTCHEON
 Author of "GRAUSTARK," "THE HOLLOW OF HER HAND," "THE PRINCE OF GRAUSTARK," ETC.

THE CUT DIRECT
 Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Hart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Ruschroff is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. They are doing hotel work for their board. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night two mounted men leave the tavern under odd circumstances. One is shot dead near by; the other is brought back dying. Barnes comes under suspicion. He stays to help clear up the mystery. O'Dowd of Green Fancy says that that place of mystery is not concerned in any way. Barnes gets into the Green Fancy grounds and sees the mysterious girl.

CHAPTER VII.
 Spin-Gold Hair, Blue Eyes and Various Encounters.

She was quite unaware of his presence, and yet he was directly in her path, though some distance away. Her head was bent her eyes were thoughtful, her stride slow and aimless.

She was slender, graceful and evidently quite tall, although she carried a pigmy among the towering giants that attended her stroll. Her hands were thrust deep into the pocket of a white duck skirt. A glance revealed white gloves and trim ankles in blue. She wore no hat. Her hair was like spun gold, thick, wavy and shimmering in the subdued light.

Suddenly she stopped and looked up. He had a full view of her face as she gazed about as if startled by some unexpected, even alarming sound. For a second or two he held his breath, stunned by the amazing loveliness that was revealed to him. Then she discovered him standing there.

In a flash he realized that he was face to face with the stranger of the day before. He took two or three impulsive steps forward, his hand going to his hat—and then halted. Evidently his senses had deceived him. There was no smile in her eyes—and yet he could have sworn that it was there an instant before. Instead there was a level stare.

"I am sorry if I startled—" he began.

The figure of a man appeared as if discharged bodily from some magic treadmill, and stood directly in his path—a tall, rugged man in overalls was he, who held a spade in his hand and eyed him intently. Without another glance in his direction the first and more pleasing vision turned on her heel and continued her stroll, murmuring off to the right, her hair head once more bent in study, her back eloquently indifferent to the gaze that followed her.

"Who do you want to see?" inquired the man with the spade.

Before Barnes could reply a hearty voice greeted him from behind. He whirled and saw O'Dowd approaching, not twenty yards away. The Irishman's face was aglow with pleasure.

"I knew I couldn't be mistaken in the shape of you," he cried, advancing with outstretched hand. "You've got the breadth of a deckhand in your shoulders and the trimness of a prize fighter in your waist."

They shook hands. "I fear I am trespassing," said Barnes. His glance went over his shoulder as he spoke. The man with the spade had been swallowed up by the earth. He could not have vanished more quietly in any other way. Of course the trees were transparent masses of blue and white.

"I am quite sure you are," said O'Dowd promptly but without a trace of indifference in his manner. "By the way, leaving him as I do, I can't help saying that O'Dowd is a baby old croak. Mind you, I'd say it to his face—I often do for the matter of that. Of course," he went on seriously, "he is a bit of a man, poor devil. You see I've never seen for a dozen years and more, and he likes me, though God knows why, unless it may be that I once did his son a good turn in London."

"Sufficient excuse for reparation, I should say," smiled Barnes.

"I introduced the lad to me only sister," said O'Dowd, "and she kept him happy for the next ten years. No doubt I also provided Mr. Curtis with three grandchildren he might never have had but for my graciousness." A look of distress came into his merry eyes. "My Jove, I'd like nothing better than to ask you in to have a dish of tea—it's teatime, I'm sure—but I'd no more think of doing it than I'd consider cutting off my head. He doesn't like strangers. He—"

"My dear fellow, don't distress yourself," cried Barnes heartily. "There isn't the least reason in the world why—"

"You see, the poor old chap asks us up here once or twice a year—that is to say, he asks me—to keep his sister from killing the house up with men he can't endure. So long as we occupy the only available rooms, he argues, she can't stuff them full of objectionables. Twice a year she comes for a month, in the late fall and early spring."

"Why does he continue to live in this out-of-the-world spot? He is an old man, I take it, and ill?"

"You wouldn't be wondering if you knew the man?" said O'Dowd. "He is a scholar, a dreamer, a sufferer. He's not a very old man at that. Not more than sixty-five."

"He certainly has a faintest streak in him, building a place like that," said Barnes, looking not at the house but into the thicket above. There was no sign of the blue and white and the green gold that still defied exclusion from his mind's eye. He had not recovered from the thrill into which the vision of loveliness plunged him. He was still a trifle dazed and distraught.

"Right you are," agreed O'Dowd. "The queerest streak in the world. It's his notion of simplicity."

"Green Fancy. Is that the name he gave the place or does it spring from—"

"'Twas christened by me own sister, Mr. Barnes, the first time she was here, two years ago. I'll walk with you to the fence beyond if you've no objections," said O'Dowd gently, and linked his arm through that of Barnes.

The latter was at once acutely aware of the fact that he was being deliberately conducted from the grounds. Moreover, he was now convinced that O'Dowd had been close upon his heels from the instant he entered them. There was something uncanny in the feeling that possessed him. Such espionage as this signified something deep and imperative in the presence not only of O'Dowd but the jerk-in-the-box gardener a few minutes earlier.

His mind was still full of the lovely stranger about whom O'Dowd had so manifestly loitered over the telephone.

"I must ask you to apologize to the young lady on whom I blundered a few moments ago, Mr. O'Dowd. She must have been startled. Pray convey to her my solicitude and excuses."

"Consider it done, my dear sir," said the Irishman. "Our most charming and seductive guest," he went on. "Noddy, of the two of you, I'll stake my head you were startled the most. Coming suddenly upon such rare loveliness is almost equivalent to being struck by a bolt of lightning. More than one painter of portraits has said that she is the most beautiful woman in the world. Mayhap you have heard of her. She is Miss Cameron of New Orleans, a friend of Mrs. Van Dyke. We have quite an interesting house party, Mr. Barnes, if you consider no more than the feminine side of it. By the way, have you heard when the coroner is to hold his inquest?"

"Nothing definite. He may wait a week," said Barnes.

"I suppose you'll stick around until it's over," ventured O'Dowd. Barnes thought he detected a slight hardness in his voice.

"I have quite made up my mind to stay until the inquiry is entirely closed up," he said. "The case is so interesting that I don't want to miss a shred of it."

"I don't blame you," said O'Dowd heartily. "It's the nothing better we could do than to mix up in it. The next time you plan to pay us a visit, telephone in advance. I may be able to persuade my best that you're a decent law-abiding, educated gentleman, and he'll consent to receive you at Green Fancy. Good day to you," and he shook hands with the departing trespasser.

"Talkie a walk!" was the landlord's greeting as Barnes ascended the tavern steps at dusk.

"Going over the grounds of last night's affair," responded Barnes, pausing.

As he entered the door he was acutely aware of an intense stare leveled at him from behind by the landlord of Hart's Tavern. Half way up the stairway he stopped short and with difficulty repressed the exclamation that rose to his lips.

He had recalled a significant incident of the night before. Almost immediately after the departure of Moon and Paul from the Tavern Putnam Jones had made his way to the telephone behind the desk and had called a number in a loud, brisk voice, but the subsequent conversation was carried on in subdued tones, attended by haste and occasional furtive glances in the direction of the taproom.

Upon reaching his room Barnes permitted the suppressed emotion to escape his lips in the shape of a soft whistle, which if it could have been translated into words would have said: "By Gad, why haven't I thought of it before? He sent out the warning that Moon and Paul were on the way! And I'd like to bet my last dollar that someone at Green Fancy had the other end of the wire."

Mr. Ruschroff was giving Hamlet's address to the players, in the taproom when Barnes came downstairs at nine o'clock.

A small, dark man who sat alone at a table in the corner caught Barnes' eye and smiled almost mournfully. He was undoubtedly a stranger; his action was meant to convey to Barnes the information that he too was from a distant and sophisticated community and that a bond of sympathy existed between them.

Putnam Jones spoke suddenly at Barnes' shoulder. He started involuntarily. The man was beginning to get on his nerves. He seemed to be dogging his footsteps with ceaseless persistency.

"That fellow over there in the corner?" said Jones softly. "Is a book agent from your town. He sold me a set of Dickens when he was here last time, about six weeks ago. A year's subscription to two magazines thrown in. By gad, those book agents are slick ones."

"He's a shrewd-looking chap," commented Barnes.

"Says he won't be satisfied till he's made his section of the country the most cultured, refined spot in the United States," said Jones dolefully. "Excuse me. There goes the telephone. Maybe it's news from the sheriff."

With the spasmodic tinkling of the telephone bell the book agent arose and made his way to the little office. Barnes glanced over his shoulder a moment later and saw him studying the register. The pose of his sleek head, however, suggested a listening attitude. Putnam Jones, not four feet away, was speaking into the telephone receiver. As the receiver was returned to his hook Barnes inhaled again. Jones and the book agent were examining the register, their heads almost meeting from opposite sides of the desk.

The latter straightened up, stretched his arm, yawned, and announced in a loud tone that he guessed he'd stop out and get a bit of fresh air before turning in.

"Any news?" inquired Barnes, approaching the desk after the door had closed behind the book agent.

"It wasn't the sheriff," replied Jones shortly, and immediately resumed his interrupted discourse on books and book agents. Ten minutes elapsed before the landlord's garrulity was checked by the sound of an automobile coming to a stop in front of the house. Barnes turned expectantly toward the door. Almost immediately the car started again, with a loud shifting of gears, and a moment later the door opened to admit, not a fresh arrival but the little book agent.

"Party trying to make Horville tonight," he announced casually. "Well, good night. See you in the morning."

Barnes was not in a position to doubt the fellow's word, for the car unmistakably had gone on toward Horville. He waited a few minutes after the man disappeared up the narrow stairway, and then proceeded to test his powers of divination. He was as sure as he could be sure of anything that had not actually come to pass that in a short time the automobile would again pass the tavern, but this time from the direction of Horville.

Lighting a cigarette he strolled outside. He had barely time to take a puff when the car came and of the porch behind the desk of an approaching shadow came to his eye. A second or two later the lights swung around the head in the road a quarter of a mile above Hart's Tavern, and down came the car at a high rate of speed. It dashed past the tavern with a great roar and rattle and shot off into the darkness beyond. As it rushed through the dim circle of light in front of the tavern Barnes succeeded in obtaining a brief but convincing view of the car. That glance was enough, however. He would have been willing to go before a jury and swear that it was the same car that had deposited him at Hart's Tavern the day before.

Having guessed correctly in the one instance he allowed himself another and even bolder guess—the little book agent had either received a message from or delivered one to the occupant or driver of the car from Green Fancy.

CHAPTER VIII.
 A Note, Some Fancies and an Expedition in Quest of Facts.

He started upstairs, his mind full of the events and conjectures of the day. As he entered the room his eyes fell upon a white envelope at his feet. It had been slipped under the door since he left the room an hour before.

These reminders from the prudent Mr. Jones! His bill for the day! He picked it up, glanced at the inscription, and at once altered his opinion. His full name was there in the handwriting of a woman. For a moment he was puzzled; then he thought of Miss Thackeray. A note of thanks, no doubt, unpleasantly fulsome. Vaguely annoyed, he ripped open the envelope and read:

"In case I do not have the opportunity to speak with you tonight, this is to let you know that the little man who says he is a book agent was in your room for three-quarters of an hour while you were away this afternoon. You'd better see if anything is missing."

He made a hasty but careful examination of his effects. There was not the slightest evidence that his pocket had been opened or even disturbed. If the little book agent spent three-quarters of an hour in the room he managed most effectively to cover up all traces of his visit.

Barnes did not go to sleep until long after midnight. He now regarded himself as definitely committed to a combination of amateur and pigunt ruses, not the least of which was to know about the mysterious young woman at Green Fancy.

The next day he, with other lodgers in the Tavern, was put through an examination by the police and county officials from St. Elizabeth, and notified that, while he was not under suspicion or surveillance, it would be necessary for him to remain in the "bull-wick" until detectives, already on the way, were satisfied that he possessed no knowledge that would be useful to them in clearing up what had now assumed the dignity of a "national problem."

O'Dowd rode down from Green Fancy and created quite a sensation among the officials by announcing that they had a perfect right to extend their search for clues to all parts of his estate, and that he was deeply interested in the outcome of their investigations.

The sheriff said he would like to "run over the ground a bit" that very afternoon if it was agreeable to Mr. O'Dowd.

O'Dowd stayed to dinner. (Dinner was served in the middle of the day at Hart's Tavern.) He made a great impression upon Lyndon Ruschroff, who, with his daughter, joined the two men. Indeed, the palavering Irishman extended himself in the effort to make himself agreeable. He was vastly interested in the stage, he declared. As a matter of fact he had been told a thousand times that he ought to be on the stage.

The little book agent came in while they were at table. He sat down in a corner of the dining room and busied himself with his subscription lists while waiting for the meal to be served. He was still poring over them, frowning intently, when Barnes and the others left the room.

Barnes walked out beside Miss Thackeray.

"The tailor-made gown is an improvement," he said to her. He was thinking that she was a very pretty girl, after all.

"The frock usually makes the woman," she said slowly, "but not always the lady."

He thought of that remark more than once during the course of an afternoon spent in the woods about Green Fancy.

O'Dowd virtually commanded the expedition. It was he who thought of everything. First of all, he led the party to the corner of the estate nearest the point where Paul was shot from his horse. Sitting in his saddle he called the attention of the other riders to what appeared to be a most significant fact in connection with the killing of this man.

YIELD BIG CROPS
 Grain Seeds From Western Canada Do Well in Ohio.

Demand for Them Is Bound to Add Value to the Land of Our Northern Neighbor. Now Is the Time to Buy Cheap.

A large area of the land in several counties in Ohio prepared for spring seeding will be seeded with Marquis wheat—a spring variety. This wheat is imported from Western Canada. It was about three years ago that the first of this seed was imported into the State, and the result, watched each succeeding year, proved that Ohio soil and spring seeding was a success. The demand for the seed has now become so great that one of the largest seed houses in the state, that has been purchasing from Western Canada farmers and importing it, has decided to purchase a large block of land in that country for the purpose of growing the grain themselves. They will devote a considerable portion of their Western Canada holdings to growing oats, barley and rye. Their action is a strong endorsement of the product. For some time past a considerable quantity of seed oats has also been imported. The prolific yield reported was what probably gave an impetus to the introduction of wheat.

It was found, though, after a couple of years the quality of the oats, as well as the yield, began to deteriorate when grown seed was used, making it necessary for fresh importations every couple of years. It is possible that the same experience may follow the growing of Western Canada wheat. In fact it is quite probable, and the Ohio farmer will find it necessary to import every two years.

With the success that has followed the Ohio farmers' experiments with this imported seed it is possible other states now growing winter wheat will begin growing spring wheat. It may therefore be taken for granted that Western Canada, in addition to its ability to produce hundreds of millions of bushels of wheat possessing the greatest percentage of gluten of any wheat in the world, will shortly be called upon to provide the seed that will be grown on the additional acres in the United States that may be devoted to spring wheat.

It is a well-established fact that the further north any product of the farm can be brought to a state of maturity, the more vigorous it becomes. This has been proven in Western Canada; it has been shown in the development of its horses, its cattle, its sheep and its pigs; also in its people. The neighbor to the north really has a splendid future. Before him, and many years will not have passed before the lands that are selling today at much less than their producing value will bring prices more commensurate with their true worth than they do today. Think of lands that yield in their operation a profit of from fifteen to twenty-five dollars an acre a year selling at figures less than $40 an acre. It does not require a mathematician to figure the percentage of profit. It is unfair to these lands to ask them to continue these profits for long. So it is safe to make the prediction that in a very few years they will place themselves on a parity with other lands that today produce less and sell for much more.—Advertisement.

Barnes again visits Green Fancy and meets with a very different reception, which is, however, quite as mystifying.

To Leave in Carrizozo

Father Girma was over from Lincoln this week and left for Santa Fe on Wednesday, where he conferred with certain officials of the Catholic Church on things pertaining to the good and welfare of the organization. In a brief interview before leaving for the Capital he said that it would be but a short time before he would change his location from Lincoln to Carrizozo, this being more of a central location for his work.

A new Church is soon to be erected on the east side of the railroad track and to assist in raising funds for the purpose a Spanish play was arranged for last Sunday night. The attendance was large, the Church netting the neat sum of $77.00 out of the project. The play was repeated Wednesday night, but what was realized has not been reported in.

Joe Stratton Buys Wells Stock

Joe Stratton bought 115 head of stock cattle from Mrs. M. E. Wells of White Oaks this week. The stock is in fine condition and connected with the deal are well satisfied.

No Bill Collectors Can Enter This Stronghold

There is no reason for alarm in what we are about to say. There is a case of small pox in town, but the patient is securely quarantined with an armed guard on the outside bidding defiance to all who come within a given spot of the house containing the man, who from now until the time County Physician Sawyer pronounces safe and sound may consider himself out of the clutches of bill collectors and oil stock solicitors. The case is a light one with no cause for alarm.

Hides Show Stolen Cattle

Due to the activity of American cattlemen, a shipment of 20,000 hides has been held up at the border until the shippers file a bond of half a million pesos to cover the demands of the Juarez district attorney, who asserts that a number of hides in the shipment show stolen property. The original action asked the inspection of the 20,000 hides and the return of the hides with the brands of American cattlemen. An inspection was made at the order of the federal district court at Juarez and a number of hides with American brands were found, according to inspectors.

GOOD IDEA—"KEEP LAUGHING"

Persons Who Adopt It Will Live Longer and Be Popular With Their Fellow Mortals.

The physiological benefits of laughter cannot be overestimated. It shakes up the diaphragm, sets the pulses beating to a lively measure, stimulates the blood, and calms the brain. Used with discretion, laughter is as inspiring as a sea breeze, as refreshing as a needed shower.
Its moral effect is beyond computation. It has killed more ridiculous superstitions by its rollicking roars of unbelief than any other agency. What can be more derisive than a laugh? The man who laughs never kills himself.

Dan Lehr, of Jordan station, Owen county, while a guest at the Hotel Severin recently, told an unusual story of what happened to a flag staff down in his neighborhood. Lehr heads a corporation which operates the "bunny farm," an institution devoted to the propagation of rabbits.
"Bunny farm," Lehr said, "has the highest knoll in that part of Owen county, and on its crest just after the United States got into the war a flag staff of unusual height was erected. From this staff Old Glory flapped in the breeze, the pride of the neighborhood. It was a beautiful flag and the folks in the neighborhood borrowed it for all sorts of patriotic occasions. It did duty at funerals, burials war meetings and in Liberty loan campaigns.
"The day the armistice was declared, November 11," said Lehr, "the flag floated majestically all day. The next day, in the midst of a fearful thunderstorm, a bolt of lightning hit the top of the staff and splintered it half way down into thousands of pieces."—In Indianapolis News.

YOUR FLAG AND MY FLAG

Airplanes With Whiskers

(New Orleans Times-Democrat)

The "threat" with which the aviation world just now is faced is along this very line, and is that the airplane may soon become a "hairy monster." This condition would not be brought about for the purpose of terrorizing an enemy, but for the same purely practical reasons that nature seems to have followed in making a hairy monster of the housefly.

It is indeed the housefly's special qualification for flight that suggests our imitation of him. According to Dr. G. H. Rodman of England, a scientific student of natural flight, the housefly never suffers from those bug-bears of air riding, the "sideslip" and the "air pocket." He attributes the fly's peculiar stability under the most difficulties of flying conditions to the rough hair which covers much of its form and which "grips the air."

To the unassisted eye, the hair on the fly does not disturb its beauty to any great extent, but under the magnifying glass the hideousness of the insect is appalling, and we can easily imagine how many fold more shuddery its appearance would be if, in actual life, it had a wing spread of 100 or 150 feet, like the giants among our airplanes, and how terrifying our own creations made in the fly's image would be buzzing and zooming overhead.

Already we have gotten quite close to the humming bird in our designs, but there is yet the bee to study, the wasp and the hornet, the tender willow fly and the inharmonious electric light bug. Also it is probable that from each of these something may be learned so that every plane may have the same lines and mechanism best suited to work exacted of it, not with minor differences such as now separate a Spad from a Handley-Page bomber, but types as radically varied as the Victoria and the Plane Box buggy or the Phaeton and the stage coach in the terms of our ancient horse drawn vehicles.

FIRST ATTEMPT IS FAILURE

BIG U.S. NAVY PLANES UNABLE TO RISE WITH REQUIRED FUEL

LOADS ARE TOO HEAVY

DIRIGIBLE BREAKS MOORINGS AND LANDS OUT IN OCEAN

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Trepassey, N. E., May 16.—The "Inx" which visited NC-4 on the initial leg of the navy's transatlantic flight, compelling her to put in at Chatham, Mass., for repairs, turned its attention to the NC-1 and NC-3, holding them harbor-bound while the NC-4 caught up with them.

The NC-4 landed here, swooping to its moorings in the harbor over the NC-1 and NC-3, which had just returned after an ineffectual attempt to get away on the 1,350-mile flight to the Azores.

The crew of the NC-4 owes its chance for an even start with the sister planes to the fact that the NC-1 and NC-3 refused to rise from the water with the heavy loads of fuel which had been taken aboard.

St. John, N. E.—The United States navy dirigible C-5, which escaped from its moorings here, dropped into the sea about eighty-five miles off shore, according to a radio message received by the cruiser Chicago from an unidentified British steamship.

Plans of the United States navy for a transatlantic flight by a dirigible, received a serious jolt when the C-5 burst from her moorings in a gale and was swept out to sea soon after she had arrived from Montauk Point, after being in the air continuously for twenty-five hours and forty-five minutes.

Lieut. Charles G. Little of Newburyport, Mass., who was given charge of the C-5 after her crew had been bundled off to her aboard the cruiser Chicago, was almost carried away by the fugitive gas bag while making a dervy attempt to deflate it.

Seated in the "blimp's" nacelle when she broke away, he seized the ratchet and gave a tug which should have opened up the big envelope and permitted the gas to escape. The cord broke, however, and Lieut. Little, realizing he would be unable to bring the slip down, leaped out from a height of twenty-five feet. His only injury was a sprained ankle.

A landing crew of 100 men under the direction of Lieutenant Little had fought with the gale for control of the C-5 for six hours before it broke away.

Mail Route Satisfactory

Chicago.—Daily aerial mail service on the Chicago-Cleveland leg of the Chicago-New York route has been established on a satisfactory schedule. One mail flight a day from each terminal of the ter to Bryan, Ohio, the relay point, has been arranged by the aerial mail service until arrangements for expansion have been completed.

Elapsed time on the Chicago-Cleveland relay was three hours and thirteen minutes, while the Cleveland mail was relayed to Chicago in three hours and fifty-four minutes.

All Oil Restrictions Removed

Washington.—All rules and regulations governing the production, manufacture, distribution or transportation of oil in its various forms, including gasoline, and of natural gas, have been removed by an order of Fuel Administrator Garfield.

Says Germany Cannot Sign

Berlin.—Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the head of the German peace delegation, in communicating to the other members of the delegation the text of the three notes he sent to Premier Clemenceau, pointed out that the peace treaty in its present form could not be accepted, and could not be signed, because it was impossible to fulfill its terms. Dispatches from Versailles reporting the count's action add that he told the German delegation that it would sign nothing if it was not intended to fulfill. The delegation, he continued, would endeavor to improve the treaty and make its signing possible.

Man Not Guilty

Marines, Calif.—A verdict of not guilty was found by the jury after an hour's deliberation in the trial here of Miss Onetta Hall, accused of the murder of Charles Hoag, a Chinaman, on a houseboat in the Sacramento river, January 1. The defense had pleaded self-defense. The prosecution alleged that robbery was the motive for the shooting.

Severe Test of Artificial Limbs. Though the unfortunate coincidence of both limbs being out of order at the same time in the war office, remarks a writer in the London Evening News, two officers, who have each lost a leg in the war, had to walk down from and come up to the top floor by the stairs.

When one learns that this involves the negotiation of 354 steps stairs, one can only divide one's admiration between the officers for their pluck and the makers of the artificial limbs for their skill.

You must say "Bayer." Never ask for merely Aspirin tablets. The name "Bayer" means you are getting the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," proven safe by millions of people. Beware of counterfeits! Only recently a Brooklyn manufacturer was sent to the penitentiary for flooding the country with talcum powder tablets, which he claimed to be Aspirin.

WOMAN'S NERVES MADE STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wisconsin, Minn.—"I suffered for more than a year from nervousness, and was so bad I could not rest at night—would be awake and get so nervous I would have to get up and walk around and in the morning would be all tired out. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thought I would try it. My nervousness soon left me. I sleep well and feel fine in the morning and able to do my work. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to make weak nerves strong."—Mrs. ALBERT SUTHER, 604 Olmstead St., Wisconsin, Minn.

How often do we hear the expression among women: "I am so nervous, I cannot sleep," or "it seems as though I should fly." Each woman should profit by Mrs. Suther's experience and give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

For forty years it has been overcoming such nervous conditions as dyspepsia, indigestion, absorption, irregularities, periodic pains, headache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

Those who were in attendance expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the program and had the affair been more extensively advertised, a greater amount of people would have been glad of the opportunity to hear these ladies, but their coming not being known until Sunday gave only a short time for those interested here to spread the notice. The ladies left for Roswell to repeat the program on Tuesday.

American Graves Overseas

AMERICAN GRAVES AT BELLEFALL WOOD

Our Heroic Dead Are Resting In Peace Today In Seven European Countries

By LLOYD ALLEN, Special Staff Correspondent.

AMERICAN GRAVES AT BELLEFALL WOOD. America's dead—seventy thousand in all—are being well cared for here in Europe by a section of the American expeditionary force detailed to collect the bodies and place them in military cemeteries.

TYPICAL GERMAN GRAVE

Wearing gas masks, the workers dig up old graves as a matter of duty. And in a great many instances they do much more than their duty.

Consider, for instance, what was done with a cemetery of more than one thousand bodies at Polisy on the Aisne. Every army order had been faithfully and carefully carried out.

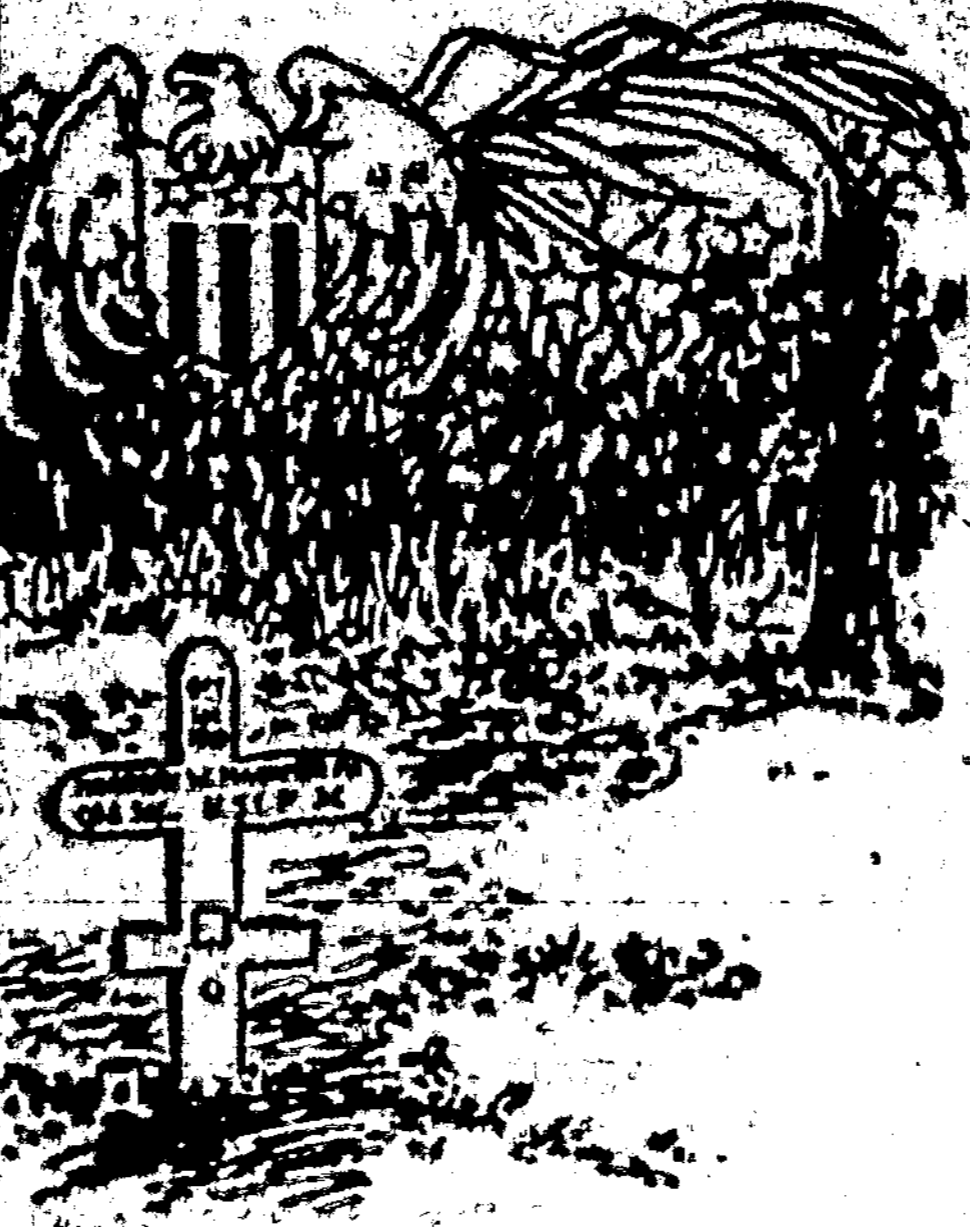

They searched through many piles of scrapped metals at a salvage dump and collected iron rails. They begged or borrowed cement, and then they built a reinforced concrete wall around the cemetery.

Then they made a trip to a timber patch nearby, found the tallest and straightest tree, cut it down, stripped it of branches, painted it white, and planted it in the middle of the little cemetery for a signpost.

It was officially announced in the midst of the war that the final disposition of bodies will be considered and executed as an entire project at such time, probably after the conclusion of peace, as the vastness and difficulty of this almost insuperable task may make possible.

There was another announcement that "return of bodies to the United States will be made in due time except in cases where a specific request to the contrary is made."

Excellent centralization of this graves registration work is a feature of the system. An efficient filing system, card index style, has been installed. Maps have been made showing the location of each graveyard. These records are being kept at Tours. They give the location of a grave with exactitude.

AMERICAN GRAVE IN THE ARGONNE

garding final disposition of the dead, no bodies were returned to America, it was announced officially here.

The idea should not get about that the graves registration service was working solely at finding unburied bodies left on the field and in the trenches after the rapid advances of the allied armies during the autumn of 1918. Virtually all of the battlefield dead were given burial within a very short time after the engagement, unless, perchance, it was physically impossible to perform the last rites because the body happened to be in a No Man's land, raked by machine gun or rifle fire.

Here in the Argonne sector the German graves are thick. It is difficult to tell, while journeying through the region, whether a cross is meant to mark an allied mound, or the grave of an enemy soldier.

In all France the most elaborate military graveyards are to be seen. In the Argonne, near the town of St. Mihiel, where the German dead are buried beneath costly gravestones resembling monuments in a modern city cemetery. Evidently the Germans believed they were to hold these lands forever.

Many of the German graves are marked with large headstones. On these stones are typical cemetery figures, such as Grief, pictured as a weeping woman.

Beaded wreaths, entwined artificial flowers, decorate most of the headstones; untarnished by wind, rain or snow. Where appropriate, there is a replica of the Iron Cross, in black. Possibly half of the graves are so marked.

Every respect is given these cemeteries by the allied army of occupation. No wreath is touched, and no headstone marred, which in itself furnishes comparison of allied and German methods—since the Germans, in many sections of occupied France made a systematic campaign of dishonoring French cemeteries by tearing down gravestones and actually destroying the graves themselves.

It will be many a day before all of the American bodies have been moved from the roadides and fields of France to the selected burial grounds. It is a certainty the French will always revere these spots where American bodies are interred, which are monuments to the American sacrifice that made France's future safe from Bocho domination.

The day has not yet arrived when American visitors can visit the American cemeteries. But it is to be expected, unless congress orders every body removed to America, that thousands will visit these spots where rest in peace the American soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice for their country.

Our Experiences. "There is no bad weather," says Kunkin, "only different kinds of good weather—each good for the purpose for which it was sent." The same is true of all life's experiences. The disappointment, the struggle, the success, the waiting, the hope and the grief, each is good for the purpose that brought it.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SPRING TURKEYS.

"Hello, my children," said Father Turkey, one bright spring day. "Hello, Dad," said the little turkeys. "You're spring turkeys, aren't you?" asked their father.

"I suppose we are," said one of the turkeys. "It's fine to be any sort of a turkey in this nice world where we get such good things to eat."

"You must be careful not to get your feet wet," said Father Turkey. "Yes," said the little turkeys, "mother was telling us to be very careful not to get our feet wet for the first four weeks of our lives, for if we do we will never be strong or well turkeys, and if we're careful—well, we will be strong and well turkeys."

Father Turkey laughed and said: "Well, anyway, you know just what you should do. Your mother teaches you well."

"Why did you ask us if we were spring turkeys, dad?" asked the little turkeys. "Didn't you know whether we were or not?"

"Yes, I know," said their father, "but I wondered if you had heard of the autumn and of Thanksgiving."

"Is Thanksgiving something to eat, daddy?"

"No," gobbled Father Turkey, "Thanksgiving is something which eats us. That is we are supposed to be good food for Thanksgiving and for Christmas, too."

"We are going to be eaten." "Cheer up, little turkeys," said Father Turkey. "It sounds quite dreadful to you now, but it won't when I explain it to you. And it is best for me to explain it to you than for some one else who doesn't know and understand the whole thing."

"You see," said Father Turkey, "Thanksgiving day is a day when they give thanks for all the fine things they have in this world. When some people come over to this country years and years ago they set aside a day upon which to give thanks for their safe arrival in this land."

"Well, it's a day which is kept year after year after year, and in order to celebrate it in great style they have turkeys to eat. It's a great honor they pay us. And they also have turkeys for Christmas which is a day still greater than Thanksgiving day."

"And more than the compliment that they pay us is the fact that we're fed so well and given so much to eat before Thanksgiving day that we never have to hunt for our food; we are given all the goodies we want, and we are made fat in the most delightful fashion."

"To be sure, all of us aren't eaten, but it doesn't matter whether we are or not, for we don't know it when we are, and we do know all about the delightful days beforehand, when we eat and eat and eat and gobble and gobble and gobble."

"When your mother was looking after you I kept watch all the time to see that no harm came to you. I warned her whenever danger was near. 'I will teach you how to roost in the trees, and I will teach you how to pat your heads under your wings.' 'But probably your mother has already taught you these two things. So I will just have a good time with you and chat with you and gobble with you.' 'You're a fine father,' said the little turkeys. 'But you can still call yourselves spring turkeys,' said their father, 'because it is still spring, and it will be a long time before Thanksgiving day, and the following holiday, Christmas, and the snow and the cold weather.' 'Yes, you're spring turkeys, you're father's own nice spring turkeys, and it will only be one more week before you can walk wherever you want, for you will be four weeks old, and after the first four weeks little turkeys don't have to be so careful.' And the spring turkeys gobbled and said that life sounded and seemed very pleasant."

SAVED BY A FAITHFUL WIFE

After Thirty Years With Stomach Trouble and Hemorrhages of the Bowels.

The Story of a Wonderful Recovery

There is hardly any one who does not experience some trouble with the stomach. It is so common that we frequently pay little or no attention to it. Yet, the stomach is very easily upset, and catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining develops, grows worse—the pain and distress is incessant and the truth dawns that we have chronic stomach trouble.

The case of Mr. Louis Young, 305 Merrimac St., Rochester, N. Y., is typical. He writes: "I suffered for thirty years with chronic bowel trouble, stomach trouble and hemorrhages of the bowels. We bought a bottle of Peruna and I took it faithfully. I began to feel better. My wife persuaded me to continue and I did for some time as directed. Now I am a well man." Mr. Young's experience is not unusual.

If you suffer from catarrh in any form, whether of the head, stomach, bowels or any other part of the body, try Peruna. It may be just what you need. Peruna comes in either liquid or tablet form and is sold everywhere. Your dealer has it or will get it for you. Ask for Dr. Hartman's World-Famous Peruna Tonic and insist upon having it. If you want your health accept nothing else.

All the sick and suffering are invited to write The Peruna Company, Dept. 78, Columbus, Ohio, for Dr. Hartman's Health Book. The book is free and may help you. Ask your dealer for a Peruna Almanac.

There's little peace when your kidneys are weak and while at first there may be nothing more serious than dull aches, sharp, stabbing pains, headaches, dizzy spells and kidney irregularities, you must act quickly to avoid the more serious trouble, dropsy, gravel, heart disease, Bright's disease. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that is so warmly recommended everywhere by grateful users.

A Colorado Case

Andrew E. Johnson, Cabinet Maker, says: "My wife's kidneys were inflamed and sore. Sharp pains went through the small of my back when I tried to lift anything. My kidneys acted irregularly and annoyed me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. I had used Doan's but a short time when my back was free from pain and my kidneys were good working order. To Build and Foster

A COMMUNITY always welcomes the establishing of an institution that fills a recognized community need; unfortunately it doesn't always manifest a lively interest in the health of such an institution after it is established.

It is one thing to establish industries; it is quite another thing to build up, develop and maintain them.

An industry can be established by the investment of capital; its development and maintenance depend upon the attitude of the public toward the enterprise and toward the product.

Likewise, the permanency of an institution depends upon the willingness of its customers to pay a sufficient price for its product to enable it to continue strong and healthy financially.

The Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company's system of wires, furnishing the means of communication over mountains, plains and desert, is a tremendous factor in the development of the West.

Telephone service is a "home product" of every community in the mountain states, and is woven into the very warp and woof of commercial and social life. The permanency and adequacy of telephone service depend upon the same factors as are involved in the security and permanency of every other established industry.

With very, very few exceptions the people of the West recognize these principles and pursue a "live and let live" policy toward all legitimate business institutions.
