"By gad!" he muttered, half-aloud. Everything was as clear as day to him now. Bolting into his own room, he closed the door and stood stockstill for many minutes, trying to picture the scene in the cottage.

He found a letter in his box when he went downstairs, after stufing the tin box deep into his pocket. Before he siit the envelope he knew that Sprouse was the writer. The message was brief:

"After due consideration, I feel that it would be a mistake for you to abandon your present duties at this time. It might be misunderstood. Stick to the company until something better turns up. With this thought in view I withdraw the two days' limit mentioned recently to you, and extend the time to one week. Yours very truly,

"I too am strong," he whispered. "I am sure of my ground now, and I am not afraid."

He had clasped the hand that rested on his sleeve and, as he pressed it to his heart, his other arm stole over her shoulders and drew her close to his triumphant body. For an instant she resisted, and then relaxed into complete submission. Her head sank upon his shoulder.

"Oh!" she sighed, and there was wonder, joy-even perplexity, in the tremulous sigh of capitulation, "Oh," came softly from her parted lips again at the end of the first long, passionate

The End in Sight

Barnes, soaring beyond all previous heights of exaltation, ranged dizzily between "front" and "back" at the Grand opera house that evening, He was in the "wings" with her, whispering in her delighted ear; in the dressing-room, listening to her soft words of encouragement to the excited leading lady; on the narrow stairs leading up to the stage, assisting her to mount ing the moment when he would awake and find it all a dream.

But she saw at a glance that outstretched arms of the exile. brothers. She hoped that poor Tom bend was pressed against his shoulder,

The few minutes' conversation she had with the stranger only served to increase her alarm. Miss Cameron's voice and smile and her eyes! -- were positively alluring.

She had had a night letter from Tom that morning in which he said that he was bringing a young lady friend down from the north—and would she meet them at the station and put ber up for a couple of days? That was all she knew of the dazzling stranger up to the moment she saw her. Immediately after that she knew by intuition a great deal more about her than Tom could have told in volumes of correspondence. She knew, also, that Tom was lost forever!

"Now tell me," said the countess the instant they entered the Courtney apartment. She gripped both of his arms with her firm little hands and looked straight into his eyes, eagerly, hopefully. She had forgotten Mrs. Courtney's presence, she had not taken the time to remove her hat of Jacket.

"Let's all sit down," said he. "My knees are unaccountably weak. Come along, Ede. Listen to the romance of my life."

And when the story was finished the countess took his hand in hers and held it to her cool cheek. The tears were still drowning her eyes.

"Oh, you poor dear! Was that why you grew so haggard and pale and hollow-exed?"

"Partly," said he with great significance. "And you had them in your pack

Barnes was pacing the floor nervously when his sister returned after conducting her new guest to the room prepared for her. The countess was at the telephone before the door closed behind her hostess.

"I wish you had been a little more explicit in your telegram, Tom," she sald peevishly. "If I had known who she is I wouldn't have put her in that room. Now I shall have to move Aunt Kate back into it tomorrow and give Miss Cameron the big one at the ead of the hall." Which goes to prove that Tom's sister was a bit of a snob in her way. "Stop, walking like that and come here." She faced him acto tell. sir?"

Scratching his chin, he grinned—for he was the kind who bears disappointment with a grin—and sat himself down at the big library table in the center of the room. The readers of this paper, will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, there by destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it falls to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Nation Wide Stock Drive

This is the slogan of a national better live-stock crusade, to get actively in motion. October 1. that is announced by the United States Department of Agriculture, working in co-operation with the State agricultural colleges and other agencies interested in live-stock improvement. The campaign looks forward to the future food needs of this country's increasing population and results from long and careful observation of the live-stock industry in this country; and was planned after extensive consultation with specialists and breeders. Theplan is to hasten the replacement of the multitude of scrub domestic animals in the United States with pure-bred and high-grade stock, and also to improve the quality of pure breds themselves. The goal in view is greater efficiency in production.

The campaign will be first or ganized crusade in a large country to improve all live-stock simultaneously. It will interfere in no wav with any work in livestock improvement now being conducted, but makes all the work more definite and effective by providing official recognition for progressive breeders.

The campaign will be supervised from the Department of Agriculture in Washington, and [ in each State by the State Agricultural college. County agents and other field workers of of the Department of Agriculture and the State colleges will handle the campaign locally. Every live-stock owner actively co-operating and keeping and using none but pure-bred cires of good quality will be given an emblem as an official recognition of meritorious effort.
