

Sportsmen's Paradise

An announced in a recent issue of this paper, the Southwestern Fish, Game and Forest Protective Association has leased the North Fork of Eagle Creek as being the most logical location for the site of the Lodge and laying out of grounds which is to become one of the most popular and pleasant resorts in New Mexico.

As soon as the lodge can be erected and read made easily passable, everything will be in readiness to receive members of the Association and their families who wish to spend a space of time to enjoy not only the beauties of nature which the scenery affords, but during the fishing season the stream abounds with the wily trout, the water being so clear that one can plainly discern their figures as they cut fantastic scrolls in the natural spring water that rushes down the canyon as though urged onward by some unseen force in a hasty effort to bring tidings of joy to others below.

The lodge will be built at first with six rooms and a large assembly room; a board will be erected in Carrizozo to keep the public informed, who are at the lodge. This will afford those at home with the knowledge of those who are at the lodge and just how long they will stay, and in this manner the Trustees hope to be able to keep the lodge full at all times and in such a way as to avoid each other, thus giving all members their full share of its benefits without interfering with each other, or overcrowding the lodge.

The scenery of the North Fork of Eagle Creek beggars description; after a night's sojourn on the beautiful slopes of the White Mountains overlooking Eagle Creek and awake early, just as the blue lance-heads of dawn are shooting up from the eastern horizon, one beholds a scene of beauty surpassing all efforts of an artist to imitate. The valley below with its carpet of green and purple presents a picture more like the playground of fairies than for the habitation of man. Here the worn out constitution can find rest and enjoyment far away from the nerve straining grind of business life. The peaceful surroundings, the music of the mountain stream as it winds its way onward through the canyon, cause one to forever live in the past, after an experience in the "Sportsmen's Paradise."

Tularosa Lady Killed In Auto Accident

Miss Lena Buck of Tularosa was killed in an auto accident at El Paso Thursday. Two other ladies and Pvt. Longpre of the regular Army were in the car at the time and while badly shaken up, sustained nothing more serious.

The car was running at a high rate of speed, when nearing the Franklin Tavern on South Valley Road it veered into a pile of sand at the end of the road, turning completely over, pinning Miss Buck under the heavy engine. Miss Buck was rushed to the nearest hospital, but failed to regain consciousness although every effort to revive her was made. The body was taken to an undertaking parlor, where it is now held pending receipt of word from relatives.

Miss Buck was employed at a confectionery at Yaleta, having accepted that position about two weeks ago after having arrived there from Tularosa. Friends of the young lady in El Paso wired the relatives particulars shortly after the accident occurred.

LEADING SOCIETY EVENT AT FRENCH HOME THURSDAY

Four of Carrizozo Principals in Society Events Entertain in Honor of Mrs. McKeon of Fort Stanton.

Those who attended the above mentioned society event last Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. B. French will ever remember it as one of his most elaborate entertainments of this nature, in the history of Carrizozo. The hostesses were Mesdames J. B. French, J. E. Gurney, I. O. Wetmore and H. S. Fairbank, the guest of honor being Mrs. Major McKeon of Fort Stanton, who is shortly to leave for Charleston, S. C. The French home was beautifully decorated with streamers and cut flowers, the color scheme being lavender and white, the violet scheme prevailing throughout the elaborate six course luncheon. After the luncheon, the guests repaired to the home of Mrs. Ira O. Wetmore, where the remainder of the time was spent at Bridge. The guest of honor, Mrs. McKeon, was presented with a handsome beaded Indian hand bag.

The winner of the first prize at Bridge was Mrs. Geo. Titsworth of Capitan; the prize being a beautiful toilet box, while the consolation prize fell to Mrs. Worley of Ft. Stanton. On the whole, the affair abounded with schemes of entertainment which furnished the guests with a diversion from the usual routine of like events, the guests from the neighboring towns being identified with those at home will establish a precedent whereby other entertainments of this nature may follow.

GREEN FANCY LIARS.

Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Hart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. They are doing hotel work for their board. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night two mounted men leave the tavern under odd circumstances. One is shot dead near by; the other is brought back dying. The sheriff detains Barnes. Green Fancy guests appear and say the mystery does not concern Green Fancy.

The two men looked at him, plainly perplexed.

"When was all this?" inquired De Soto.

"Early last evening. He picked up your latest guest at the corner, and she insisted in his driving me to the tavern before the storm broke. I've been terribly anxious about her. She must have been caught out in all that frightful—"

"What's this you are saying, Mr. Barnes?" cut in De Soto, frowning. "No guest arrived at Green Fancy last evening, nor was one expected."

Barnes stared. "Do you mean to say that she didn't get there, after all?"

"She? A woman, was it?" demanded O'Dowd. "Bodad, if she said she was coming to Green Fancy she was spoiling you. Are you sure it was old Peter who gave you that jolly ride?"

"No, I am not sure," said Barnes meekly. "She was absent, having walked from the station below. I met her at the corner and she asked me if I knew how far it was to Green Fancy, or something like that. Said she was going there. Then along came the automobile, rattling down this very road—an ancient Panhard driven by an old codger. She seemed to think it was all right to hop in and trust herself to him, although she'd never seen him before."

"The antique Panhard fits in all right," said O'Dowd, "but I'm hanged if the woman fits at all. No such person arrived at Green Fancy last night."

"Did you get a square look at the driver's face?" demanded De Soto.

"It was almost too dark to see, but he was old, hatchet-faced, and spoke with an accent."

"Then it couldn't have been Peter," said De Soto positively. "He's old, right enough, but he is as big as the side of a house, with a face like a full moon, and he is Yankee to his toes. By gad, Barnes, the plot thickens! A woman has been added to the mystery, now, who the devil is she and what has become of her?"

CHAPTER VI.

Charity Begins Far From Home, and a Stroll in the Wildwood Falls.

Mr. Rushcroft was furious when he arose at eleven o'clock on the morning after the double murder, having slept like a top through all of the commotion. He boomed all over the place, vocal causticities falling right and left on the guilty and the innocent without distinction.

"I don't see how you managed to sleep through it," Barnes broke in. "You must have an unusually clear conscience, Mr. Rushcroft."

"I haven't any conscience at all, sir," roared the star. "I had an unusually full stomach, that's what was the matter with me. I take oath now, sir, never to eat again as long as I live. A man who cannot govern his healthy appetite ought to defy it, is nothing else."

"I gather from that remark that you omitted breakfast this morning."

"Breakfast, sir? In God's name, I suppose you not to refer to anything so disgusting as stewed prunes and berries at a time like this. My mind is—"

"How about luncheon? Will you join me at twelve-thirty?"

"That's quite another matter," said Mr. Rushcroft readily. "Luncheon is an æsthetic tribute to the physical intelligence of man, if you know what I mean. I shall be delighted to join you. "Twelve-thirty, did you say?"

"It would give me great pleasure if your daughter would also grace the festal board. I think it is too bad that she has to go about in the gown she wears, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes. "She's much too splendid for that. I have a proposition I'd like to make to you later on. I cannot make it, however, without consulting Miss Thackeray's feelings."

"My dear fellow!" beamed Rushcroft, seizing the other's hand. "One frequently reads in books about it coming like this, at first sight, but, damme, I never dreamed that it ever really happened. Count on me! She ought to leave the stage, the dear child. No more fitted to it than an Easter lily. Her place is in the home, the—"

"Good Lord, I am not thinking of—" And Barnes, aghast, stopped before blurting out the words that leaped to his lips. "I mean to say this is a proposition that may also affect your excellent companions, Bacon and Dillingford, as well as yourself."

At twelve-thirty sharp Barnes came down from his room freshly shaved and brushed, to find not only Mr. Rushcroft and Miss Thackeray awaiting him in the office, but the Messrs. Dillingford and Bacon as well.

"I took the liberty, old fellow," said Rushcroft, addressing Barnes, "of asking my excellent co-workers to join us in our repast."

"Delighted to have you with us, gentlemen," said Barnes affably. "The sole topic of conversation for the first half hour was the mysterious slaying of their fellow lodgers. Mr. Rushcroft complained bitterly of the outrageous, high-handed action of the coroner and sheriff in imposing upon him and his company the same restrictions that had been applied to Barnes. They were not to leave the county until the authorities gave the word. One would have thought, to hear the star's indignant lamentations, that he and his party were in a position to depart when they pleased. It would have been difficult to imagine that he was not actually rolling in money instead of being absolutely penniless."

Barnes had been immersed in his own thoughts for some time. A slight frown, as of reflection, darkened his eyes. Suddenly—perhaps impolitely—he interrupted Mr. Rushcroft's flow of eloquence.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Rushcroft, to a more or less personal question concerning your own private—er—misfortunes?" he asked, leaning forward.

For a moment one could have heard a pin drop. Mr. Rushcroft evidently held his breath. There could be no mistake about that.

"It's rather delicate, but would you mind telling me just how much you were stuck up for by the—er—was it a writ of attachment?"

"It was," said the star. "A writ of injunction, you might as well substitute. The act of a polluted, impetuous, parsimonious—what shall I say? Well, I will be as simple as possible—hotel keeper. Ninety-seven dollars and forty cents. For that pitiful amount he subjected me to—"

"Well, that isn't so bad," said Barnes, vastly relieved. He was covertly watching Miss Thackeray's half-averted face as he ventured upon the proposition he had decided to put before them. "I am prepared and willing to advance this amount, Mr. Rushcroft, and to take your personal note as security."

Rushcroft leaned back in his chair and stuck his thumbs in the armbolts of his vest. He displayed no undue elation. Instead he affected profound calculations. His daughter shot a swift, searching look at the words he said. "There was a heightened color in her cheeks."

"Moreover, I shall be happy to increase the amount of the loan sufficiently to cover your return at once to New York, if you so desire—by train." Barnes smiled as he added the last two words.

"Extremely kind of you, my dear Barnes," said the actor, running his fingers through his hair. "Your faith in me is most gratifying. I—I really don't know what to say to you, sir."

"May I inquire just how you expect to profit by this transaction, Mr. Barnes?" Miss Thackeray asked steadily.

He started, catching her meaning. "My dear Miss Thackeray," he exclaimed, "this transaction is solely between your father and me. I shall have no other claim to present."

"I wish I could believe that," she said.

"You may believe it," he assured her.

"It isn't the usual course," she said quietly, and her face brightened. "You are not like most men, Mr. Barnes."

"My dear child," said Rushcroft, "you must leave this matter to our friend and me. I fancy I know an honest man when I see him. My dear fellow, fortune is but temporarily frowning upon me. In a few weeks I shall be on my feet again, slipping along on the crest of the wave. I dare say I can return the money to you in a month or six weeks. If—"

"Oh, father!" cried Miss Thackeray. "We'll make it six months, and I'll pay any rate of interest you desire. Six per cent, eight per cent, ten per—"

"Six per cent, sir, and we will make it a year from date."

"Agreed. Get up and dance for us, Dilly! We shall be in New York tomorrow!"

"You forget the dictatorial sheriff, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes.

"The varlet!" barked Mr. Rushcroft. It was arranged that Dillingford and Bacon were to go to Hornville in a hired motor that afternoon, secure the judgment, pay the costs, and attend to the removal of the personal belongings of the stranded quartette from the hotel to Hart's Tavern. The younger actors stoutly refused to accept Barnes' offer to pay their board while at the Tavern. That, they declared, would be charity, and they preferred his friendship and his respect to anything of that sort. Miss Thackeray, however, was to be immediately relieved of her position as chambermaid. She was to become a paying guest.

Rushcroft took the whole affair with the most noteworthy complacency. He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will pack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure. Egad, sir, I'll read the play to you. It's—What ho, landlord. Have your best automobile sent around to the door as quickly as possible. A couple of my men are going to Hornville to fetch bither my—"

"Just a minute," interrupted Putnam Jones, wholly unimpressed. "A man just called you up on the phone, Mr. Barnes. I told him you was entertaining royalty at lunch and couldn't be disturbed. So he asked me to have you call him up as soon as you revived. His words, not mine. Call up Mr. O'Dowd at Green Fancy. Here's the number."

The mellow voice of the Irishman soon responded to Barnes' call.

"I called you up to relieve your mind regarding the young woman who came last night," he said. "You observe that I say 'came.' She's quite all right, safe and sound, and no cause for uneasiness. I thought you meant that she was coming here as a guest, and so I made the very natural mistake of saying she hadn't come at all, at all. The young woman in question is Mrs. Van Dyke's maid. But, bless me soul, how was I to know she was even in existence, much less expected by train or motor or skanks' mare? Well, she's here, so there's the end of our mystery."

Barnes was slow in replying. He was doubting his own ears. It was not conceivable that an ordinary—of even an extraordinary—lady's maid could have possessed the exquisite voice and manner of his chance acquaintance of the day before, or the timidity to order that sour-faced chauffeur about as if— The chauffeur!

"But I thought you said that Mr. Curtis' chauffeur was nose-faced and—"

"He is, indeed," broke in Mr. O'Dowd, chuckling. "That's what deceived me entirely, and so wonder. It wasn't Peter at all, but the respectable washer who went after her. He was instructed to tell Peter to meet the dear o'clock train, and the blackhead forgot to give the order. Bodad, what does he do but sneak out after her himself, scared out of his boots for fear of what he was to get from Peter. I had the whole story from Mrs. Van Dyke."

"Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen the heroine of our basted romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry discretion so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over the wire.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hugged up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most admirable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At four o'clock he set out alone for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. His mind was quite clear. Robn and Paul were not ordinary robbers. They were, no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disclosure of Miss Thackeray and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border; in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation, Robn and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the instant he encountered the young woman at the crossroads. His busy brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct conclusion. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the inside worker at Green Fancy in a well-laid plan to rife the place?

Could it be possible that she was the confederate of these palisading agents who lurked with sinister patience outside the very gates of the place-called Green Fancy?

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Robn's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horsec. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rash, daring impulse, he climbed over the stake and rider fence and sauntered among the big trees which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees grew very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables and—yes, windows.

He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancy.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. Mountain ivy literally enveloped it. Exposed sections of the house were painted green; the doors were green; the leafy porches and their columns, the chimney pots, the window hangings—all were the color of the unchanging forest. And it was a place of huge dimensions, low and long and rambling.

"Gad," he said to himself, "what manner of crank is he who would bury himself like this? Or all the crazy ideas I ever—"

His reflections ended there. A woman crossed his vision; a woman strolling slowly toward him through the intricate avenues of the wildwood.

Barnes meets "Mrs. Van Dyke's maid," and the mystery deepens.

Never Lose Hope.

Hope is something to be hung with. It is something of which we should accumulate a store. Always have plenty of hope, and have them so that they will reach out and last away into the years of the future.

There is really something mysterious about a hope. If you will cherish it faithfully and keep it warm in your heart, you will be almost sure to some time realize it. It is said that we are what we believe ourselves to be. But, perhaps, we might better say that we are what our hopes are.

showing her color. Many were men, perhaps men, but you that she got her wonderful color, her vivacious spirits, her strength and health by taking a "temperance" tonic, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Probably no man in America was ever better qualified to successfully treat the disease peculiar to women than Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. The cases that come to him run into many thousands, giving him an experience that rarely comes to any one man. Dr. Pierce found that in nearly every case there were certain vegetable growths which rarely failed to give prompt relief in these females' disorders from which so many women suffer. He combined these roots and herbs into a temperance medicine that he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is sold in both liquid and tablet form by druggists everywhere. A weakly, sickly, backache, head-ache, nervous, dependent woman, with regular or irregular pains—with female disorders that come in youth or middle age—is pretty sure to find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the exact remedy that her condition calls for.

Auto Safer Than "Horn"

The Industrial accident board of the state of Massachusetts discloses the remarkable fact that fatalities from motor vehicles last year were less than those for which horse-drawn vehicles were responsible. This is unusually interesting, because automobiles and trucks are 60 per cent greater in number than horses. Forty-three fatal accidents are reported by the board. Twenty-three were caused by horse-driven vehicles.

WAS IN MISERY

Mrs. Jones Was in Serious Condition From Dropsy. Doan's Made Her Well.

"I don't think many have gone through such misery as I," says Mrs. G. Jones, 126 Federal St., Burlington, N. J. "That awful pain in my back left as though my spine were cracked. My head ached and I had swelling and falling sensations when anything would turn black. Though the kidney secretions passed ten or fifteen times in an hour, only a few drops came at a time and they felt like boiling water. I soon found I had dropsy. I bled all over. My face was so swollen I could hardly see out of my eyes. My ankles and feet felt as though they would burst if I put any weight on them. My night clothes became wringing wet with sweat and I would get chilly and shake all over. Doan's Kidney Pills soon had me feeling like a different woman. My kidneys were regulated and all the swelling went away. The aches and pains left me and after I had finished my eighth box of Doan's, I was as well as ever. My kidneys have never bothered me since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

MADE STAIID BOSTON GASP! SHACKLES HARD TO BREAK

Mackerel Adorning Mildred's Bonnet Caused a Sensation on the Streets of Old Beantown.

Prisoner Really Not to Blame for His Constant Return to Place of Confinement.

Introducing the "fish" hat—latest millinery creation of staid old Boston, home of the cod and mackerel.

A member of a prison commission, visiting a penitentiary for purposes of studying the conditions of prison life, chanced to be in the office as one young fellow was being discharged.

Tremont street was all agog when Miss Lucretia Seymour, artist and designer, appeared wearing the "fish" hat atop her castle clip. Girls nudged their companions, disguised matrons gazed in horror, chauffeurs tooted their horns and things were all upset in general as Miss Seymour walked serenely down the street.

"Why," said the sociologist to him, "Don't you live quietly at home with your family, instead of committing a crime that sends you right back to prison just as soon as you get out?"

The object of all this commotion, navy, admiration, etc., is headed after the mackerel. The color is white. Fins are in evidence. Fishes' eyes gleam from the head. The tail is just in position for a swing under the waves. Small celluloid petals are used in the construction of the head piece.

"Well," said the young fellow, with a grim smile, "that's just the point— it's my love of family that gets me into jail."

Miss Seymour declared that it took eight hours a day for eight consecutive days to design and construct the "fish" hat.

"How so?"

Mr. C. Archibald Sharpe—Newport's little boy is dead.

"Why, my father and mother are both in prison. But we can never meet. They go in, I come out! They leave, I go in. It's a regular thing, and it upsets our family life."—Cartoons Magazine.

Mrs. S.—I didn't know he had a boy.

"Children," said the teacher toward the close of the geography lesson on Australia, "there is one animal that no one has mentioned. It is quite tall, and does not stand up on its legs all of the time. It cannot walk like other animals and people, and takes funny little skips. What is it?"

"He hasn't. I tell you the boy is dead."

"Charlie Chaplin," yelled the row of movie fans on the front seat.

"I mean I didn't know he had the boy before he died."

This is from a boy's composition on "Babies." "The mother's heart gives 4th joy at the baby's 1st 2th."

"Who said he was dead? It was the boy that died."

YOUR FLAG AND MY FLAG

The Shantung Peninsula

Much criticism is directed against President Wilson by certain members of Congress for his settlement of the Japanese question. It is contended by them that the turning over to Japan of the Shantung Peninsula is a violation not only of the open door policy as laid down in the treaties made by this country through John Hay, Secretary of State, but that it will be a breeder of trouble in that it gives Japan a greater foothold in Asia which she hopes in the future to solely dominate.

They point out the great question of whether Japan shall have the free right of immigration of equality of citizenship, educational rights, property rights, etc., on our Pacific coast is left to obedience, and if that under the shadow of the League of Nations plan one Nation can be robbed of territory to placate another (and both our Allies), it will not be long before Japan will not only seek more territory in Asia, but will attempt to force the United States to grant her the rights she has heretofore insisted upon having and been denied.

They are asking why Italy should be denied the Fiume district, (which is sixty-three per cent Italian), on the ground that this is purely a territorial grab, and then part of China be taken away from her and given to Japan which has no interest in it other than aggrandisement? If aggrandisement is agreed upon in some instances, why not in all? It is not at all improbable that this whole question of apportionment of territory will come before the Senate, which may change some of the things now under consideration.

Outlook in Western Canada Never More Favorable.

Perfect Weather Conditions Enabled Early Seeding and Wheat Has Long Run Above Ground in the Land of Opportunity.

The greatest optimism prevails throughout every district in Western Canada. From the eastern boundary of Manitoba to the slopes of the Rocky Mountains the farmers have been busy for three weeks in seeding operations. Last fall, even for Western Canada, was an exceptional one. Threshing was completed, at an early date and the amount of fall plowing made ready for crop from fifteen to twenty-five per cent more acreage than in any year in the brief history of the country. Therefore there was ready for seeding this spring an acreage away beyond anything ever before experienced in that country.

On April 20 Calgary (Alta.) reported that in south country points there was a notable spirit of optimism amongst the farmers there. Moisture and weather conditions were good, while land in most places was in the best possible condition. More tractors were being put into operation than in any previous year. In some parts of the south country, however, there was a marked shortage of labor, but in the consideration of the country as a whole the labor outlook was bright.

Seeding operations were well under way in every part of Western Canada by the fifteenth of April. The practice of the farmers in that country is to commence as soon as the frost is out of the ground enough to allow the few inch seed bed to be worked up well. Beneath this the ground may still be frozen, but from this frost the young and tender wheat roots get the moisture at first so necessary to its existence. The warm days of spring and the long hours of sunlight that are ushered in with it thaw the frost out day by day and pay to the growing plant the moisture as it is needed. Nature's way of producing moisture to the young wheat plant is one of the chief reasons why Western Canada has become world famous as a wheat-producing country. What may be said of wheat can as truly be said of oats and barley, and yes, in fact, corn, too. Rapid and strong growth is stimulated in this manner. Heavy spring rains usually occur after seeding is over and the grain well above ground. Already a report has been received, dated April 20, that a farmer near Cabel, Saskatchewan, had 190 acres of wheat showing above the ground.

A good, strong and sturdy wheat plant is necessary when it is expected that there will be produced a forty-bushel-to-the-acre crop of wheat of a quality that will weigh out its sixty-five pounds to the measured bushel.

These spring wheat conditions represent but one of the reasons why Western Canada has been able to produce, with so little effort, world's record grain crops, wheat and oats that have carried off all championship awards at America's largest exhibitions.

Western Canada has this spring shipped ten thousand bushels of Marquis wheat, the variety that holds most of the world's championships, to Australia, where it is to be tried out. Seventy-five thousand bushels of the same variety has been sent to France to be used for seed.

The wheat lands of Western Canada are probably the most undervalued of any on the continent.

A comparatively small acreage of Western Canada's lands has been sold as high as $40 an acre. The greater portion of the best farming land in its unimproved state may be purchased at $25 an acre. The comparison between these prices and an annual revenue derived from grain-growing alone, with big yields and present prices, can but more firmly impress one with the certainty of a rapid increase within the next few years.—Advertisement.

Daily Thought.

When tillage begins, other arts follow. The farmers, therefore, are the founders of human civilization.—Daniel Webster.

Raise Both Beef and Milk

Thousands of Chorthorn cows are producing from 2,000 to 12,000 lbs. of milk per year and producing calves that sell the best markets. This is the combination that pays on the farm. The average farmer gets a cow that produces 10,000 lbs. of milk and milk as no other breed does.

WILSON CALLS EXTRA SESSION

PROCLAMATION ISSUED TO CON- VENE CONGRESS MAY 19 AT NOON.

WILL CONSIDER TREATY

PRESIDENT WILL NOT BE PRESENT WHEN CONGRESS CALLS TO ORDER.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington, May 8.—President Wilson issued a proclamation by cable Wednesday for a special session of Congress to meet Monday, May 19.

Secretary Tumulty in making the announcement said it would be impossible, of course, for the President to be here on the opening day. The day fixed for the special session was much earlier than Democratic leaders had expected.

White House officials said that in naming an early date for the session, President Wilson was guided largely by the advice of Secretary Glass as to the necessity of passing annual appropriation measures which failed in the closing days of the last session.

There was no information at the White House as to the probable time of the return of the President, but some administration leaders believed the President had called the session earlier than had been anticipated in order that Congress might dispose of the more important appropriation measures before the treaty was ready for consideration.

Republicans of the House virtually have completed their organization, but the Senate has done no organization, and this probably will occupy its attention for the first week.

Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, Wednesday issued a call for a Republican conference May 14 to perfect the Senate organization, and Representative Mondell, Republican floor leader, announced a conference of Republican House members for May 17.

President Wilson's proclamation calling the extra session follows:

"Whereas, public interests require that the Congress of the United States should be convened in extra session at 12 o'clock noon on the nineteenth day of May, 1919, to receive such communications as may be made by the executive.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the Congress of the United States to convene in extra session at the capitol in the District of Columbia on the nineteenth day of May, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members thereof are hereby required to take notice.

"Given under my hand and seal of the United States of America, the seventh day of May in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-third. (Signed):

"WOODROW WILSON,
By the President.
"ROBERT LANSING,
Secretary of State."

May Stay Until Treaty Signed.

Paris.—There is no indication that President Wilson contemplates hastening his return because of the convocation of Congress on May 19th, and he undoubtedly will remain through the period of fifteen days allowed the Germans for consideration of the peace terms, probably until the treaty is signed. In case the negotiations are protracted by suggestions advanced by the Germans, it is possible he may forego the satisfaction of signing the treaty and return home. It is expected that he will send a message to be read in his absence.

Would Protect France.

New York.—An official summary of the peace treaty delivered to the German delegates at Versailles by the representatives of the associated powers, was made public here Wednesday by the Committee on Public Information. It contained the following: "In addition to the securities afforded in the treaty of peace the President of the United States has pledged himself to propose to the Senate of the United States and the prime minister of Great Britain has pledged himself to propose to the parliament of Great Britain an engagement, subject to the approval of the council of the League of Nations, to come immediately to the assistance of France in case of unprovoked attack by Germany."

Arrived on No. 4 Last Friday
Mrs. W. C. McDonald and father, Mr. Geo. D. Tarbell arrived last Friday on No. 4 from a winter's sojourn on the Pacific coast, spending the major portion of the time at Hermosa Beach.

Mr. Tarbell is a remarkable personality; he attained the age of ninety-two the second day of last March, but notwithstanding this fact, he still possesses vitality and stamina equal to most men who are thirty years his junior. He stood the trip both going and returning splendidly and like Mrs. McDonald spent the season in an enjoyable manner, but the coming of spring brought with it the longing for home, which nothing short of familiar scenes can satisfy.

PEACE TERMS FOR GERMANY

Enemy Is Shorn of All Military Power by the Stern Document

FIRST PAYMENT 5 BILLION

Must Agree to Restoration of Alsace-Lorraine; Agree to Trial of Ex-Kaiser; Approve League; Cut Army to 100,000, and Reduce the Navy.

Paris, May 8.—Following is the official brief summary of the peace treaty as presented to the German plenipotentiaries at a memorable assemblage at Versailles on Wednesday afternoon, attended by the delegates of the twenty-seven nations which are parties to the peace pact:

Following the preamble and deposition of powers comes the covenant of the league of nations as the first section of the treaty.

The frontiers of Germany in Europe are defined in the second section; European political classes given in the third; European political classes in the fourth.

Next are the military, naval and air terms as the fifth section, followed by a section on prisoners of war and military graves and a seventh on responsibilities.

Reparations, financial terms and economic terms are covered in sections eight to ten. Then comes the aeronautic sections, ports, waterways and railways sections, the labor covenant, the sections on guarantees, and the final clauses.

Alsace-Lorraine Restored.

Germany, by the terms of the treaty, restores Alsace-Lorraine to France, accepts the internationalization of the Saar Basin temporarily and of Danzig permanently, agrees to territorial changes toward Belgium and Denmark and in East Prussia, cedes most of upper Silesia to Poland, and renounces all territorial and political rights outside Europe, as to her own or her allies' territories, and especially to Morocco, Egypt, Siam, Liberia and Shantung.

She also recognizes the total independence of German-Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Her army is reduced to 100,000 men, including officers.

Conscription within her territories is abolished.

All forts 50 kilometers east of the Rhine are to be razed.

All importation, exportation and nearly all production of war material is stopped.

German Navy Is Reduced.

Allied occupation of parts of Germany will continue till reparation is made, but will be reduced at the end of each of three five-year periods if Germany is fulfilling her obligations. Any violation by Germany of the conditions as to the zone 50 kilometers east of the Rhine will be regarded as an act of war.

The German navy is reduced to six battleships, six light cruisers and twelve torpedo boats, without submarines, and a personnel of not over 15,000.

All other vessels must be surrendered or destroyed.

Germany is forbidden to build forts controlling the Baltic, must demolish Heligoland, open the Kiel canal to all nations and surrender her fourteen submarine cables.

She may have no military or naval air forces except 100 unarmed seaplanes until October 1 to detect mines.

Responsible for All Damages.

Germany may manufacture aviation material for only six months.

Germany accepts full responsibility for all damages caused to allied and associated governments and nationals, agrees specifically to reimburse all civilian damages beginning with an initial payment of 20,000,000,000 marks, subsequent payments to be secured by bonds to be issued at the discretion of the reparation commission.

Germany is to pay shipping damage on a ton-for-ton basis by cession of a large part of her merchant, coasting and river fleets and by new construction, and to devote her economic resources to the rebuilding of devastated regions.

Germany agrees to return to the 1914 most-favored-nation tariffs without discrimination of any sort; to allow allied and associated nationals freedom of transit through her territories, and to accept highly detailed provisions, as pre-war debts, unfair competition, internationalization of roads and rivers, and other economic and financial clauses.

She also agrees to the trial of the ex-kaiser by an international high court for a supreme offense against international morality and of other nationals for violation of the laws and customs of war. Holland is to be asked to

Restoration of Alsace-Lorraine.

Temporary internationalization of Saar coal basin.

Permanent internationalization of Danzig.

Territorial changes toward Belgium and Denmark.

Cedes Silesia to Poland.

Removes all territorial and political rights outside Europe.

Renounces "especially" her rights in Morocco, Egypt and Siam.

Freedom of transit through her territories.

Highly detailed provisions as to pre-war debts.

Provisions as to unfair competition, internationalization of roads and rivers and other economic and financial subjects.

Agrees to trial of the ex-kaiser by an international high court for a supreme offense against international morality and customs of war.

Holland to be asked to extradite the former kaiser.

Accepts league of nations in principle, but without membership.

Germany recognizes total independence of German-Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

German army reduced to 100,000 men, including officers.

Conscription within German territories abolished.

All German forts for 50 kilometers east of the Rhine razed.

All importation, exportation and nearly all production of war materials stopped.

Germany accepts any agreement reached with its former allies.

Allied occupation of parts of Germany to continue until reparation is made.

Any German violation of conditions pertaining to the Rhine zone constitutes an act of war.

German navy reduced to six battleships, six light cruisers and 12 torpedo boats, with no submarines.

German navy personnel to consist of not over 15,000.

Germany is forbidden to build forts controlling the Baltic, must demolish Heligoland, open the Kiel canal to all nations and surrender her fourteen submarine cables.

She may have no military or naval air forces except 100 unarmed seaplanes until October 1 to detect mines.

She also agrees to the trial of the ex-kaiser by an international high court for a supreme offense against international morality and of other nationals for violation of the laws and customs of war. Holland is to be asked to extradite the former and Germany being responsible for delivering the latter.

The league of nations is accepted by the allied and associated powers as operative, and by Germany in principle, but without membership.

Similarly an international labor body is brought into being with a permanent office and an annual convention.

A great number of international bodies of different kinds and for different purposes are created, some under the league of nations, some to execute the peace treaty. Among the former is the commission to govern the Saar basin till a plebiscite is held 15 years hence.

The high commissioner of Danzig, which is created into a free city under the league, and various commissions for plebiscites in Malmody, Schleswig and East Prussia are provided for.

Among those commissions to carry out the peace treaty are the reparations, military, naval, air, financial and economic commissions, the international high court and military tribunals to fix responsibilities and a series of bodies for the control of international rivers.

Certain problems are left for solution between the allied and associated powers, notably details of the disposition of the German fleet and cables, the former German colonies and the values paid in reparation.

Certain other problems, such as the laws of the air and the opium, arms and liquor traffic, are either agreed to in detail or set for early international action.

Italy Promised Fiume.

As a basis of resuming participation in the peace negotiations Premier Orlando accepted a proposal that Italy administer Fiume as a mandatory of the league of nations until 1923, after which Fiume will revert to Italian sovereignty.

During the four years of Italian administration a harbor for the Jugoslavs will be built at a port a few miles lower down the Adriatic coast. The harbor will have railroad communication with Agram and other cities.

Italy, it is understood, also is preparing to make sacrifices of some of her other claims on the Dalmatian coast.

Italians Back at Peace Table.

Paris, May 8.—Vittorio Orlando, the Italian premier, and Baron Sonnino, the foreign minister, arrived in Paris from Rome just in time to be present at the presentation of the peace treaty to the Germans at Versailles.

The Italian premier arrived at the Paris "White House" just as the council of four reconvened and resumed his seat in the council.

THINK PEACE TERMS DRASTIC

HUNG IN NEAR PANIC OVER TREATY—STOCK EXCHANGE CLOSES

MAY REFUSE TO SIGN

TAGEBLATT SAYS "TREATY SURPASSES OUR WORST EXPECTATIONS."

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

London, May 9.—Under the impression that the peace conditions are crushing, the Berlin stock exchange committee has resolved to close the exchange for three days, according to a dispatch received here. Advisers state that at a meeting of the peace committee, held in Berlin, the German government declared itself in favor of a commercial treaty with Russia.

Berlin.—The Berlin papers publish a summary of the peace terms, which are condemned by all from the extreme left to the ultra-conservative right. Dr. Theodor Wolff, in the Tageblatt, says: "Although we were prepared for a good deal, even for everything; we can only say that the treaty surpasses our worst expectations."

Berlin.—The National Zeitung publishes what it terms the official standpoint the government expects to take regarding the peace terms. The government, according to the newspaper, will refuse to sign any part of the treaty which provides for "oppression of Germany." For instance, the entente's standpoint regarding Danzig and the Saar valley will not be accepted. The German delegates, however, will make every effort to institute negotiations on these and other unacceptable demands, says the National Zeitung.

Paris.—Intimations reaching the peace conference from Versailles lead to the belief that two or three members of the German peace delegation probably will return to Germany to consult their government, the others remaining at Versailles. Germany has not submitted any communication with regard to the peace treaty. All the exchanges between the delegation at Versailles and the home government are being kept secret.

The delegates said they had expected from the newspaper reports that the demands in many respects would be far-reaching, but were not prepared for the terms as actually laid down in the printed copy of the document.

After the conference at Versailles William M. Hughes, premier of Australia, said, according to a Reuters dispatch: "The attitude of Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau was an intolerable insult to the conference, for while Premier Clemenceau spoke standing, the German spokesman did not rise while making his address. In spite of their intolerable arrogance, the day was one of humiliation for the Germans, which we could see had entered into their souls."

William F. Massey, premier of New Zealand, said: "The Germans were more impudent and aggressive than anything I have ever met."

May Abrogate Prohibition.

Paris.—In connection with a report that President Wilson would abrogate the wartime prohibition order if he found that sentiment was overwhelming against it, attaches at the White House asserted that no action is likely until he returns home and thoroughly canvasses public sentiment.

Tornado Visits Texas.

Corpus Christi, Tex.—Fifteen persons were killed when one of the worst tornadoes ever experienced in south-west Texas swept the lower Rio Grande valley, demolishing farm houses and doing great damage to growing crops, according to telegrams received here from the storm area. Other reports said the number of dead might be larger than first believed. Many of the victims of the storm were said to have been Mexicans settled along the Rio Grande river.

Holland Protests Treaty.

Washington.—A protest by Holland against the provision of the peace treaty affecting the Rhine was predicted here. The treaty not only contravenes Dutch rights, but will nullify an existing treaty between the Netherlands and Germany. The treaty of peace would place the Rhine under a central commission of representatives of France, which, in addition, would select the president, four of Germany and two each of England, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and the Netherlands.

Indigestion, Gas and Bloat From Acid-Stomach

An acid-stomach cannot digest food properly. Instead, the food sours and ferments and, passing into the intestines, becomes a breeding place for countless millions of deadly germs—poisonous they are called. These acids are absorbed into the system and cause untold misery. So, you see, it is just acid-stomach, nothing else—that makes so many people weak, listless and unfit; saps their strength and energy; robs them of their vigor and vitality. Biliousness, bad liver, nervousness, blinding, splitting headaches, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica—these and many other still more serious ailments often are traced to the common source—an acid-stomach.

Take EATONIC and get rid quickly of the pains of indigestion, heartburn, that horrible, lumpy, bloated feeling after eating; disgusting, belching, food-repeating; sour, gassy stomach. These stomach miseries are caused by what doctors call "Hyperacidity." It's just ACID-STOMACH. And in addition to the pains and miseries it causes, ACID-STOMACH is the starter of a long train of ailments that the most people never dreamed are in any way connected with the stomach.
