Dr. E. E. Cole Talks About Affairs For Good And Welfare Of Boys.

(By E. E. Cole)

T. E. Kelley official Scout Master of Carrizozo Troop of Boy Scouts, has appointed E. E. Cole as assistant Scout Master with the request that he give him all the assistance in his power in order to further the work. On Monday of last week, the Supt. canvassed the school, speaking of the benefits derived from the Boy Scout movement, advising all the boys of the ages of twelve to enroll with the Carrizozo troop. At 3:30 that afternoon, 25 boys assembled in room 9 where they listened to a well directed talk by the Superintendent and on the following afternoon 34 attended, all wishing to join the organization. The result of these meetings was the enrollment of all boys of the ages of 12 and over, in grades from sixth to twelfth have joined, which will make a troop of 82 which will be a fine working number. The organization no longer needs explanation or justification. It is similar to the Y. M. C. A. movement in its objects and purposes; it neither promotes nor discourages military training, its chief concern being development of character and personal efficiency of boys. The Scout Oath is: "On my honor I will do my best to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight; To help other people at all times; To do my duty to God, country and to obey the Scout Law. The Scout laws are: A scout is trustworthy; A scout is loyal; A scout is helpful; A scout is friendly; A scout is courteous; A scout is kind; A scout is obedient; A scout is cheerful; A scout is thrifty; A scout is brave; A scout is clean; A scout is reverent.

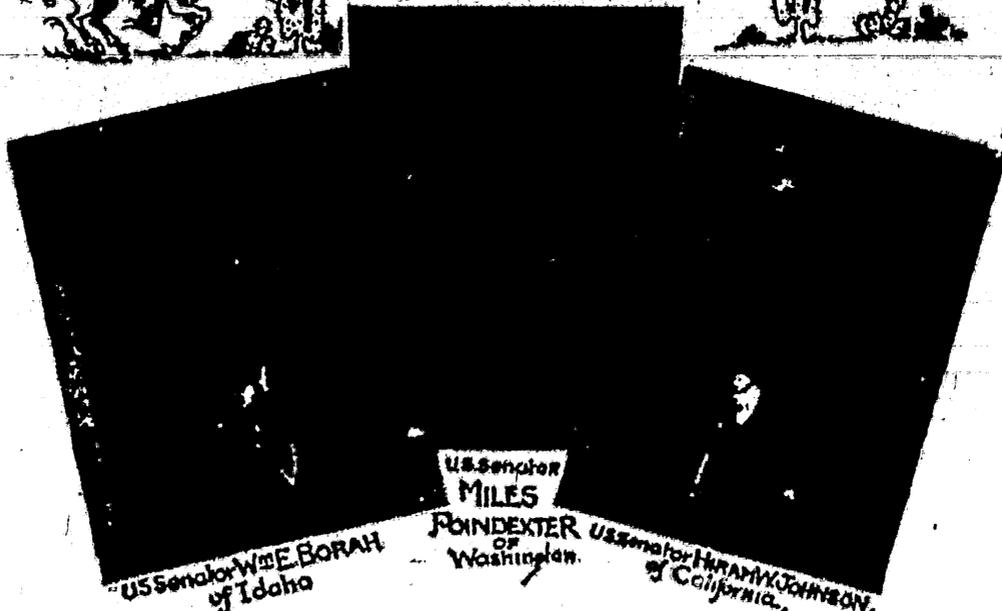

Surely every parent should be glad to have his boy trained along these lines. Items of interest concerning this important organization will appear in the local papers with others connected with the school work.

Redpath Lyceum Course

Messrs. Cribb and Donaldson, who are to conduct the Redpath Lyceum Course under the auspices of the Carrizozo Methodist Church make their foregoing announcement in this issue of the Outlook. The course will begin on October 14th with regular performances each month. The first number will be the "Paramount Entertainers," who are said to be the best on the circuit. The public will be kept fully informed as to the dates and merits of future numbers which as a whole will be the biggest and best that Carrizozo has ever seen.

The article on page 3 of interest to boys and girls was contributed by the representative of the N.M. State College.

THE WEST IS IN THE SADDLE

WILL IT CAPTURE THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION IN 1920?

"The political center of gravity in the nation has shifted . . . to the states that lie between the Mississippi River and the Pacific Coast."—New York Times editorial.

This opinion is typical of an idea which is rapidly spreading throughout the country. There is a feeling that "the West is in the saddle for the presidential nomination in 1920."

The fact that the West decided the last presidential election has made it a potent factor in future calculations. Moreover, the politicians know that in case the woman suffrage constitutional amendment does not become operative in time for the next national election there are, nevertheless, 16 states west of the Mississippi which have already given their women the franchise, adding an increment of some six million votes, which might easily turn the election one way or the other. Hence, the Republican leaders of the East as well as of the West are seriously considering whether it would not be good politics to take a western candidate.

It is significant that three of the most generally talked about presidential possibilities for 1920 come from the Far West. They are United States Senators Poindexter, Borah and Johnson.

The first mentioned, about whom considerable discussion is now centering, is from the state of Washington. Though a native of Tennessee and graduate of a Virginia university, Poindexter chose the Pacific Northwest as his field for life work, opening a law practice in Walla Walla, Wash., in 1885. Later he was judge of the superior court, and attracted much favorable attention by his judicial ability. In 1908 Poindexter was elected as a representative from the state of Washington to the Sixty-first Congress. He soon became known as an able, progressive Republican. In the senate, to which he was elevated in 1910, he was a staunch advocate of measures favoring the control and restriction of big corporations, especially of the railroads. He sought the conservation of all natural resources of the country, including water power, coal and oil lands. Before the war he stood strongly for preparedness, and later he vigorously supported all measures of the administration for the protection of American rights. He advocated throwing the whole power of the nation into the successful prosecution of the war.

Mr. Poindexter believes that Bolshevism and all other movements destructive of representative government and national spirit should be strongly taken in hand and that leaders in attempts to overthrow our institutions should be severely punished. He is opposed to any scheme for creating a hybrid government of the world whereby Europe and Asia, in his opinion, would inevitably dominate this country and control its politics.

Hiram Johnson, a native of California, was governor of the state before he was chosen senator. He is extremely popular in that commonwealth and will be strongly backed in his fight for the Presidential nomination.

Johnson was successful, after a long struggle, in ridding California of the domination of the Southern Pacific. For years the political machine of the railway held the state within its hand, and without the sanction and support of this great power candidate for state or judicial offices could not be elected. Johnson, first as counsel for interests opposing the railroad corporation and later as governor, waged a bitter and unrelenting warfare against railroad domination. His final victory was a potent factor in his election to the senate in 1916. Johnson is a Republican, but generally regarded as one of the radical type. He has, like Poindexter, strongly opposed the League of Nations.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho does not differ greatly in the degree of his achievements from the two other westerners. Born in Wayne county, Ill., Borah was educated in the common schools of that state and at Kansas State University. He was admitted to the bar in 1890 and devoted his time to legal practice until his election to the senate in 1907. Borah is one of the most active figures in the United States senate. His efforts largely have been directed toward the proper development of the great natural resources of the country, especially of the West. He is known as a progressive Republican, fearless in fighting for what he believes to be right and like the others included in this presidential group, has opposed from the start the League of Nations covenant.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast is a long jump for national politics to take. However, all presidents both in business and politics, seem to be vanishing in these days of remarkable readjustments, and the old theory that a Presidential candidate must necessarily come from east of the Mississippi is no longer tenable.

LOST LIFE IN EFFORT TO SAVE DAUGHTER

H. P. Flint, Former White Oaks Resident Dies in Sad Manner at Oatman, Ariz.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Albert Ziegler received word from Mrs. Sydney Parker of El Paso, mother of Mrs. H. P. Flint of Oatman, Arizona to the effect that on Sunday last, her husband, H. P. Flint or Phil as he was known in this locality was drowned in the Colorado river in attempting to save the life of his daughter.

Mr. Flint will be well remembered by old residents of White Oaks as it was there he was united in marriage to Miss Agnes Parker at that place about twelve years ago. The Flints moved from White Oaks to Las Cruces and from there to Oatman, Ariz., where Mr. Flint has since been engaged in the mining business. How the daughter became endangered, was not stated in the information, but it is presumed that she was boat riding and capsized. The father in the attempt to save her life in which he succeeded, lost his own.

Mrs. Parker stated that her son Marshall had departed for Oatman to return to El Paso with Mrs. Flint, children and the body of Mr. Flint, the interment of which will take place Friday or Saturday either at Las Cruces in his father's family lot or at El Paso. The family in general have the sympathy of their many friends both here and at White Oaks and for the benefit of those who might wish to communicate with Mrs. Parker, her address is, 119 North Davis St. El Paso, Texas.

For Another's Sake

"As a matter of seniority, Miss Dunston, you will be advanced to the position of chief stenographer, at an advance of ten dollars a month."

Mary Dunston looked pleased, but acted confused and embarrassed. She did not express herself and John Ross, the office manager, began to frown. His face hardened, for he realized that Miss Dunston was preparing to demur over the compensation allowed.

"We consider the raise a substantial one," he spoke.

"Oh, it isn't that. It is more than I expected, and perhaps deserved. But if I may speak of it, Mr. Ross, could I—would you advance Miss Elson in my stead?"

Strict disciplinarian and man of business system, the chief clerk regarded Mary as though she had taken leave of her wits. In all his experience he had never before faced such a circumstance.

"If you will please listen to me," went on Mary, eagerly, "I have a good home and Miss Elson has none. She is next to me in the line of promotion and, oh, ever so much more expert at stenography work than myself. She is poor, friendless, she tells me, except for a crippled brother in a hospital."

"If I'm!" snorted Mr. Ross, who did not at all like Miss Elson. "She has played that for fair on your sympathies, has she? Well, so be it, if you are inclined to be soft-hearted, but I think in the end you will wish you had looked after your own interests."

Miss Blanche Elson, dark-eyed, keen of face and manner, selfish and false to the core, gushed to "her sweet-voiced, dear friend who sacrificed so much for her," but accepted the situation. Mary went home with a happy heart at the thought of having helped one more humble than herself to advancement and money reward. She received a grim, sarcastic glance from the chief clerk whenever she met him and others in the office made understood remarks as to her being a simpleton.

One day while they were at luncheon at a restaurant, just as they arose from a table, Blanche accosted a young man passing them. Mary was introduced to Mr. Arthur Holmes, who spoke a few words to both as they went their way and then took a chair at the table they had just vacated. He was a serious-faced but frank-eyed young man, and did not seem at all in harmony with the free, over-friendly manner of Blanche; but Mary seemed to have a decided interest for him.

"I worked for Mr. Holmes once," explained Blanche.

Somehow the memory of Mr. Holmes was a pleasant one with Mary. She had reached home and was getting ready for tea when there came a ring at the door. Mary, quite flustered, faced Arthur Holmes, hat in hand.

"Pardon my unceremonious call," he said, "but after you left the restaurant I found a purse lying on a chair. Some money and your card were inside and I have taken the liberty of returning it."

Mary had not missed the purse. She thanked Mr. Holmes and was not sorry to escape the loss of several dollars. She asked him in and her mother invited him to remain at their evening meal. Mr. Holmes lingered for an hour after that and, with Mary's consent, promised to call again the following Tuesday.

A change came over Mary Dunston after that. Blanche had offended most of the office employees with her queenly airs, affecting the rightful domination of a superior. She rather ignored Mary and then, bit by bit, the latter began to discover the true character of the girl she had benefited.

"She has fooled you badly and meanly, Miss Dunston," a fellow employee told Mary. "She has no crippled brother, she spends more than half her earnings at dances, cabarets and the like, and she sneers at you behind your back as a silly fool whom she has duped."

Mary was grieved and hurt, but there was compensation for the base betrayal. Arthur Holmes had become a regular caller at the Dunston home. He was Mary's first steady caller and a new life of pleasant rational enjoyment was begun in his cheery, courteous companionship.

"Oh, Miss Dunston," one day said the same girl employee who had spoken to her before, "Miss Elson has been discharged for nonattendance to work."

"You surprise me," said Mary. "Yes, and she left last evening in a great huff. And what do you think! I saw her later coming out of a cabaret, quite muzzy, as to speak, and the young man I have seen you with as much as helping her into a cab."

A death blow seemed dealt to dear Mary's faith in Blanche. Blanche had not only stolen from her pocket, but had robbed her of her lover! This was the crushing thought that tormented her all day.

But with avenging Arthur Holmes called upon her. He told of coming across Blanche while with a party of friends and out of pity for her condition saw her home and tried to influence her sister to take better care of her.

And Mary forgave Blanche, for was it not through the wayward Blanche Elson that she had met Arthur Holmes, and now knew how dearly he loved her?

Protest Against Constitutional Amendment

The constitutional amendment, to be voted upon September 16th, proposing a central board of control for all state institutions, should receive the careful consideration of all right-thinking people of the state of New Mexico.

This proposed amendment has several decidedly objectionable features.

Perhaps the most outstanding objection would be to the fact that the board would be appointed by the governor without the advice and consent of the senate—the term of the entire board terminating with that of the governor, at the end of two years.

Any fair minded person can see what a powerful political machine a board so constituted could become, in the hands of unscrupulous persons who might care to use it.

Under the amendment, the control of all state institutions—penal, reform and educational, is placed in the hands of this one board, the members of which are to receive annual salaries of $3,000 each.

The class of men who are now serving as members of the various state boards who represent the largest and most influential business interests of the state—could not be induced to serve under the amendment.

They give their time, their energy and their brains gratuitously, whereas a salary of $3,000 would absolutely bar them from serving.

The school people of the state might consider a properly constituted central board of control for the state educational institutions, but are strongly opposed to the board as proposed in this amendment.

The voters of the state are strongly urged to go to the polls on Sept. 16th and cast a vote against the board of control for state institutions.

SOIL FROM FRANCE

Earth for Filling Purposes About Statue of Liberty

Here is a striking instance of thrift manifesting itself in poetical justice. The tiny island in New York harbor on which stands Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty is being enlarged. The soil used for filling purposes comes from France. It is the debris from the trenches, military railway lines, warehouses and wharves. It was brought to America as ballast for the transports that carried our mighty legions of liberty to France. Thus is mingled the soil of the two republics as a setting for the world's most typical symbol of liberty, just as the bodies of thousands of American sons are today mingled with the soil of France under the crosses where they lie. In this humble yet beautiful demonstration of the kindred ideals of the two nations, American thrift, which did so much to make victory possible, was the underlying impulse. —Thrift Magazine.

Purpose to Make Tientsin, New York of China, Says Commissioner Yang I-teh

Tientsin is to become China's New York, according to General Yang I-teh, commissioner of the Native City. "I am trying to eliminate beggary in Tientsin by education and industry," said the general recently.

"We are starting on the new San Tiao Shih cutting, which is part of the general plan for the conservation of the river systems of Chihli," continued General Yang. "This cutting will include several streets. We are already tearing down the houses and building the tracks for the miniature railway. About 800 rooms in all will be removed to allow for the new cutting. But this does not matter. When the river is moved from its present bed and is forced to flow through the cuttings we shall have reclaimed much valuable land. It will then be possible for us to build new and clean houses there. We shall lay the reclaimed land out in the most modern fashion. I hope to make Tientsin the New York of China."

The Value of Salads in the Diet. Salads are invaluable in the diet as they supply water, mineral salts, acids, cellulose and fiber when prepared from vegetables and fruits. Meat, fish, eggs and cheese supply proteins and fat while starchy vegetables furnish fuel food. The salad dressings are an important part of the salad as regards nutrition, for they are valuable fuel foods.

The materials used in making salads are: Raw vegetables, cooked vegetables, eggs, meat, fish, cheese, nuts and fruit. With such a variety from which to choose, there is no need of monotony.

Calcutta Salad. Take one cupful of soft cheese, one-half cupful of grated American cheese, one cupful of whipped cream, three-fourths of a tablespoonful of gelatin, one teaspoonful of salt, and a few dashes of paprika. Soak the gelatin in the cold water, add the hot water to dissolve it. Soften the cheese with a little plain cream, add the grated cheese and the whipped cream, the gelatin, the salt and the paprika. Turn into molds and chill. Garnish with olives or stuffed olives and asparagus tips. Serve on lettuce with French dressing.

French Dressing. The amount of acid will vary with the kind of salad on which it is to be used. One tablespoonful of vinegar to three of oil is a good combination, and half a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of paprika. This dressing may be changed by adding a tablespoonful of thick cream to the French dressing, a tablespoonful of chopped onion, parsley, or green pepper. The dressing should be well blended by beating with a Dover egg beater, then add the chopped vegetables and let stand for at least an hour to season. Beat again before serving.

The Boys, Girls and The County Farm

Many people are asking the question, What part can the boys and girls take in helping to carry out a County Farm Bureau program of the work? First, let us consider what a Farm Bureau is and what we mean by a program of work. Briefly, the Bureau is a representative organization of the farmers and ranchmen of the county, having community committees working in conjunction with an executive committee in helping to carry out an adapted program of work for the improvement of Agricultural and home conditions in the county, all interested to be assigned to the work in which they are best fitted. For instance, if "Dairy Improvement" is the one project to be carried on in the county, a man interested in the dairy industry would be the party best fitted to the position of executive chairman. Where "Dairy Improvement" is to be a part of the community program, the chairman will appoint local committeemen in the different communities who, like himself are interested in this particular line.

In order to show how boys and girls fit into this particular program of work, an outline like the following will be helpful: 1. Dairy Improvement, a. Introduction of More Dairy Stock by means of: 1. Boys' and Girls' Dairy Calf Clubs; 2. Co-operative Purchase; b. Handling Milk and Cream on the Farm, by Farm Women; c. Feeding Cattle, 1. Silo Campaign; 2. Balanced Rations, D. D. Herd Improvement; Boys' and Girls' Junior Cow Testing Clubs; Cow Testing Associations; Herd Inspection Excursion.

The above will show how the work of the men, supervised by the County Agent, with the Executive and Community Committeemen, and that of the boys and girls by the County Club Leader and that of the women by the Home Demonstration Agent will work at the program of dairying in the County. In some projects there will be work for the agent, in others work for the men and women, in others the entire family will work together in developing the Agricultural and Home program. The Boys' and Girls' club-department of the Extension Service of the New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts offer the following projects: LIVESTOCK: Pig Club Work, Poultry, Sheep, Rabbits, Calves, and Goats. FIELD CROPS: Bean Club Work, Corn, Small Grain, Sorghum and Potatoes. GARDENING: Garden Club, and "canning." HOME ECONOMICS: Cooking, Sewing, Canning and Drying. HANDICRAFT: Farming, and Woodworking; this is not a separate project, but is encouraged in connection with other work. FARM MANAGEMENT: special work will be sent for this project to those who have completed 3 years in any other project.

The boys and girls can help the program by enlisting, not in a boys' and girls' club, just as a side line because they like calves, but because "Dairy Improvement" is an important factor in your community and through the introduction of better calves they will be doing their part in this big piece of constructive work in the community.

COMFORT OF HOG MOST DESIRABLE

Well-Made Sanitary Wallow Is Like Coney Island Bathing Beach for Porkers.

CONCRETE TYPE IS POPULAR

Grower Faces Two Temperature Extremes in Many of Pork-Producing States—Many Farmers Neglect Proper Shelter.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is as natural for the hog to want to wallow as it is for the small boy to scurry to the old swimming hole with the first breath of spring. Hot weather is, indeed, to fat animals, the portly porker included. That is why a well-made, sanitary hog wallow is like a Coney Island bathing beach for the hogs. A popular and serviceable type of wallow advocated by the United States department of agriculture should be made of concrete about 12 inches in depth and large enough to accommodate the herd of hogs. The wallow should be supplied with a satisfactory intake and outlet so that it can be filled about two-thirds full of water and drained every few days, or as often as is necessary to keep the pool fresh and clean. At the present time a test is being made at the experimental farm of the department of agriculture at Beltsville, Md., to determine the value of the cement hog wallow as a comfort for hogs. The results of this investigation will be published upon completion early in the fall.

Temperature Extremes.

The hog grower in many of the leading pork-producing states faces two temperature extremes during the year. During the winter, unless he provides comfortable houses and warm quarters, his hogs are likely to suffer from the cold, while in the summer season he must handle the animals under conditions of extreme heat. Any animal as fat as the average hog which is to be marketed in the late summer or early fall suffers greatly during hot weather, and unfortunately many hog farmers neglect to provide shelter and protection for their hogs from the extreme heat. During hot weather hogs need

An abundance of shade—natural shade, such as is furnished by trees and bushes being the best.

Temporary Shelter.

Where natural shade and shelter are not available, the hog owner should put up a temporary shelter by building a framework about 4 feet high and thoroughly covering the top with

YOUNG ANIMALS NEED CARE

(They Should Be Given Such Attention as Will Insure Them Most Favorable Start.)

The young animals should receive such care and attention as will give them a favorable start. Every practical animal husbandman knows that unless he is in a position to give his young animals plenty of the right kind of food and protect them from cool rains and other ailments they will not thrive. This is where a good beginning means a favorable ending.

RAISING SAME STOCK BREED

Better Prices Are Obtained for Uniform Product and Suitable Breeding Animals Secured.

There are many advantages to be gained when the stock interest of one community takes the same breed. Better prices may be secured from the sale of a uniform product, and suitable breeding stock can be secured more easily.

brush, straw, grass, or hay. This inexpensive sunshade should be of sufficient size to protect a herd of hogs in comfort as they lie under it. As a rule, the ordinary hog house should not be used for shade purposes during the summer. Each year hog mortality is comparatively heavy due to "porker sunstroke" induced by maintaining the hogs in the open without sufficient protection from the ruddy glow of Old Sol's furnace.

PURE SORGHUM SEED BY ROGUEING PLATS

Go Over Field and Carefully Remove Off-Type Plants.

Work Can Be Done Easily by Man on Foot With Dwarf Varieties, While With Taller Sorts It Is Practical to Use Horses.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In order to obtain pure sorghum seed it is usually necessary to go over the field carefully after it has headed out and remove the rogues or off-type plants. Every plant which does not conform to the type which is desired should be cut down, or, better, pulled up so that there will be no danger of the production of seed from tillers produced by the rogue.

In dwarf varieties the rogueing can be done easily by a man on foot, but Superior Sorghum Field.

In the taller growing sorts it is most practical to ride through the field on horseback so that the workers can see over the top of the field and thus more readily determine the position of the rogues which must be removed. The horse can be securely muzzled to prevent injury other than that occasioned by the tramping down of plants.

It is not profitable to rogue fields which are intended for the production of grain or forage, but in the producing of seed, either for home planting or the market, careful rogueing gives returns both in dollars and cents and in the satisfaction of growing pure seed. Sorghums being open-pollinated are subject to almost endless hybridization if stray plants of other varieties are allowed to mature in the field. This intermixing of varieties results in lack of uniformity in ripening as well as in the size of the plants, thus causing difficulty in harvesting and marketing the crop. The use of pure seed varieties which are known to be adapted to the farmer's climatic conditions will be rewarded in bigger and better crops.

Forage Crops for Lambs.

In sections where permanent pastures are not abundant lambs may be fattened by the use of annual pasture crops, according to tests at the Ohio experiment station.

GOOD STRAWBERRY TILLAGE

Always Run Cultivator or Rake Through Patch Some Way to Permit Runners to Set.

Let the strawberry runners set at will within the row. In making strawberries, always run the cultivator or rake through the same way each time. This allows runners to set which would be uprooted by a reverse tillage. But when a row is matted over two feet deep, stretch a line and chop off and hoe up all runners.

MONEY IN SHEEP AND GOATS

Animals Are Not Appreciated on Many Farms Where They Could Be Made Profitable.

Sheep and goats are not properly appreciated as profitable farm animals. There are many farms where sheep and goats could be kept at very little expense and the manager of these farms better off financially by keeping them.

FALL DESIGNS

More Width Is the Decree of Leaders of Fashion.

Extensive Choice Will Be Allowed Wearers in the Selection of Favorite Goods and Colors.

The phrase that sums up the new fashions for the autumn is "more width." There is a very distinct movement on foot to get away from the narrow, constricted styles, Paris never adopted the lead-pencil silhouette with its long tight skirt that was used by some American houses. To the easy width that they have been using they have added even more fullness, in tunics, circular skirts, gathered tunics and hip draperies. The most distinct departure in the styles is the circular tunic, circular blouse and circular skirt. This new cut not only gives more width, but a new silhouette, because there is a flare at the bottom.

For street dresses these skirt styles will be used in tricot, soft twills, lightweight duvety, serge, gabardine, broadcloth, checks and plaids. The same materials will be used for the chemise dresses which Paris goes on creating with fresh variety and interesting details in the way of new vests, tucked skirts, etc. For afternoon dresses the smartest materials will be the satin-finished silks like satin, charmeuse and crepe meteur. Faille and moire will also be good, because they have a certain stiffness and body which accents the new silhouette. Taffeta will be used, but will not be as fashionable as satin. These same silk materials will be employed for evening for the theater and for dancing dresses. For their most formal evening gowns older women will use the velvet and metal brocades and metal cloths, while young girls and debutantes will use tulle, chiffon, georgette or net as well as the soft silks and satins.

For day dresses there will be the short sleeves, the open neck, either collarless or with one of the new stand-away or plaited collars, the long blouse, the redingote styles, the use of multitucked skirts, versions of the vest, and the draped hip-length body that suggests the line of the figure.

The wide circular skirts are used for street dresses, afternoon dresses and evening gowns, but not for suits. For the suit there is a slightly wider skirt with straight lines, but with no unnecessary width, which would be burdensome in walking. For the suits the coats are also cut on a straight silhouette, even when there is the effect of soft fullness that you get in the

MILADY'S COIFFURE

A charming effect in women's hair-dress produced by an unobtrusively constructed comb, somewhat resembling a beautiful butterfly.

BLACKS AND BROWNS AGAIN

Sober Colors Just Now Showing a Revival of Popularity Hard to Account for.

Why the recent vogue for black evening frocks? At the present time there is just the right feeling for colors so brilliant and colorful—and gaudy, if you will go to suit the most primitive of us. That is, dark colors were put on the shelf when the prohibition was signed and there was a striking showing of colors of brilliant hue.

But these new black frocks that a good many smart women are getting are rather different. They are of less and they are sometimes trimmed with brilliant ribbons or silk patches. They are an improvement and an opportunity as the wing of a feather, certainly. But they are black, and it does seem strange that one should want to wear black when one has come and winter is here.

But even older is the persistence of the brown frock. This made its appearance just before the end of the war, and it was extremely smart, but with the craze for bright Vandy colors it went into short retirement, only to blossom forth more interesting than ever. And this is even stranger because now that it is summer one would think that brown, which is warm, if any color ever was, would have no place in our wardrobe. But somehow it is true that the brown frock even in the evening has a certain distinguished appearance that is hard to account for.

NEW DESIGN FOR SMART BAG

Receptacle Will Be at Its Best in Black and Gold Ribbon, or Silver Brocade.

This bag is extremely smart and at the same time very easily made. It looks particularly well in ribbon of black and gold or silver brocade, as in our sketch.

One yard of ribbon is required about 9 inches wide. This you double in halves wrong side out, and stitch up both sides within 7 inches of the top, and turn out.

Next cut lining same shape, allowing 3/4-inch turnings. This you also join within 7 inches of top. Place this inside bag. Now get a bone ring, either in black or color, and put one side of the bag through; after this is done, stitch to the other side, making a seam in the ordinary way, with turnings wrong side. Join up your lining in the same way, seeing that your turnings are outside, so that when linal and ribbon are placed together both lining and bag are perfectly neat, with bone ring between both.

All that is now required is to slip-stitch opening at sides of bag neatly together, when the bag will be ready for use.

FASHION TIPS

Apricot-colored davetza, couched all over in navy blue, makes an attractive short overblouse.

Short sleeves are growing in popularity; many are shown on davetza street models.

Hip drapings and panache effects are accentuated in the youthful tulle evening frocks.

Lace tunics, stiffened so that they extend outward, are a feature of some smart dance and dinner dresses. Hair cloth is used for this purpose.

The all-black hat is adored as the most fashionable for dressy wear, and velvet is the chosen material for exclusive models.

A smart tailored satin is all over embossed in lighter shade in raffle embroidery and has a shallow ripple and deep tuck, both circular.

pearance just before the end of the war, and it was extremely smart, but with the craze for bright Vandy colors it went into short retirement, only to blossom forth more interesting than ever. And this is even stranger because now that it is summer one would think that brown, which is warm, if any color ever was, would have no place in our wardrobe. But somehow it is true that the brown frock even in the evening has a certain distinguished appearance that is hard to account for.

Sometimes it is a golden brown that goes very well with metallic gold and bronze shades in evening gowns, and then sometimes it is merdore, a reddish brown. And by the way there is an accident on that "K" giving to the word these syllables; a fact that does not seem to be recognized by all who speak of the color.

Draw Little Girls' Attire.

A New Deck Chair is to dress the little girls of the family alike, when their ages range from six to ten years. Coats, dresses, hosiery, hair ribbons and millinery are identical.

"BAYER CROSS" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Always buy an unbroken Bayer package which contains proper directions to safely relieve Headache, Toothache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Colds and pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents at drug stores—larger packages also. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monacetio-acidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

They Should Have.

A Terre Haute (Ind.) librarian had a new book which two boys were very anxious to take out for the next week. They argued and argued, and then came to the point where blows were imminent. A little girl, who had been listening to the discussion, turned to the librarian and saw the anxiety on her face. Then she became angry. She spoke to the boys: "Ain't you two got any suspect for Miss H.—to keep you all from fightin' in her library?" she demanded.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes you see so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Dispatches, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

Not in School.

"I hope they don't teach you to flirt in school, Ethel?"

"No, they don't mother."

"Well, it seems you know something about it, dear."

"Yes, mother. But we don't learn that in school. We learn it during recess."

A SUMMER COLD

A cold in the summer time, as everybody knows, is the hardest kind of a cold to get rid of. The best and quickest way is to go to bed and stay there if you can, with a bottle of "Boecher's Syrup" handy to insure a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning.

But if you can't stay in bed you must keep out of draughts, avoid sudden changes, eat sparingly of simple food and take occasional doses of Boecher's Syrup, which you can buy at any store where medicine is sold, a safe and effective remedy, made in America for more than fifty years. Keep it handy.—Adv.

Still Looking After Stock.

Church—When he was a boy he lived on a farm and he used to feed the stock.

Godwin—I understand.

"Now he's in business in Wall Street."

"And doesn't have to feed the stock any more?"

"No; only water it."

Once in a while we still run across an old codger who takes his debts seriously.

The government has so much "coin of the realm" that it actually bulges out the walls of the vaults containing it. The treasury has asked Congress to appropriate $1,500,000 to make the vaults secure and provide additional ones. The treasury's gold and silver accumulated during the war.

IN THE NATURE OF "BLUFF" SMALL CHANCE TO GET AWAY

Rounder's Excuse for Declining Coffee Was Somewhat Laughable, Considering the Circumstances.

It was one of the days near the end of June, and young Bill, having to sustain a reputation as one of San Francisco's best town painters, had had a hard night. He looked it when, at 9 o'clock in the morning, he wandered into the hotel dining room to keep an appointment with a friend, who was just then at breakfast. "Hello, Jack," Bill murmured, yawning. It appeared as if every syllable cost him untold effort. He sat down and rubbed his eyes with his fists. He bit his lips to keep from yawning again. "Had breakfast?" Jack inquired. "No," the other replied. "Don't want any." "Well," Jack insisted, "have a cup of coffee, anyway." Bill yawned again in spite of himself. "Don't want any coffee," he said. "It would keep me awake all day."—San Francisco Chronicle.

As It Happened, the Old Gentleman Was Placing the Blame Where It Didn't Belong.

"I don't know what the young men of today are coming to," said Mr. Smith. "In my young days there wasn't any need for all this courting. The girls then—" But he was cut short by the coalscuttle which Mrs. Smith accidentally dropped on his toes. "I was only going to say, my dear," he remarked, when he had recovered his composure, "that I wish the young fellow who is calling on Christabel would go away and let us get the house shut up. It's past midnight!" At that moment there entered the small boy of the household. He had been, for the last hour or so, behind the draught-screen in the drawing-room, and vowed that he had enjoyed himself better than if he had been at a movie show. "It isn't his fault, pa," said the heir of the Smiths. "He can't go; Christabel's sitting on him!"

WILL FIGHT TO FINISH

GOVERNOR COOLIDGE HEADS STATE FORCES IN BOSTON TROUBLE.

WILL TEST THE UNIONS

MACHINE GUNS ARE MOUNTED AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS BY TROOPS.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Boston, Sept. 12.—The Sixth and seventh deaths growing out of strike disturbances occurred when Richard D. Reemts, a striking policeman who was shot, succumbed to his wounds and Robert Lallie, who was shot, died at a hospital.

With Governor Coolidge as commander-in-chief of the state's forces in complete charge of the situation, the city took on a warlike appearance. Six machine guns were mounted at police headquarters and troops wearing "tin hats" by order of Adjutant General Stevens patrolled the streets.

Meanwhile shopkeepers, supplementing police and military protection by means of their own, barricaded the windows of their places of business to withstand a siege. Boards were nailed in front of the glass to protect it from the assault of bands of hoodlums who have been roaming the streets.

A fight to the finish between the constituted authorities of state and city and the labor unions was indicated by developments in the policemen's strike. While Governor Coolidge was exercising his authority as commander-in-chief of the state forces to take complete command of the measures for protection of the city, Mayor Peters was making it plain to labor leaders who visited city hall that the policemen's union would not be recognized.

The labor men were firm in their insistence that the police be permitted to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor, and offered to guarantee that the police never would be called out on a sympathetic strike.

The possibility of a strike of carmen, telephone and electrical workers and industrial employes was serious. What gave the authorities the greatest cause for anxiety, however, was the danger that the firemen might join in the movement.

It was recognized that this would place the city in the gravest peril. A ray of hope was seen in the declaration of the president of the Firemen's union that he would not take the responsibility for a strike unless authorized by the American Federation of Labor.

Miners Murdered at Tomboy.

Telluride, Colo.—Four miners, Gus Danielson, 30; Eric Smith, 25; Fred Sund, 20, and Celeste Mattive, 40, were shot to death by two masked men at the Montana workings of the Tomboy mine here. Joe Kochever, another miner, was wounded in the knee as the murderers fled from the mine and escaped. Officials believe the murders may have resulted from a feud between the murderers and the dead men.

Boulder.—Ole Flinde killed a dog his son Oran brought home to the ranch twelve miles northeast of Boulder. Oran shot and killed his father and the hired man, William Fulmer, 48. The 20-year-old boy was taken to Boulder by the sheriff. "No one has a right to kill a dog," he told the sheriff. "I like dogs, don't you?" "Fulmer and dad threatened to run me off the place," he said.

He fell! True, it is a moment of overwhelming temptation—her upturned face, with rosy lips pursed. But still, as he crept sorrowfully away, he told himself that he had been a cad to steal that kiss. But even now he could see the sudden tears in her eyes.

His broken apology still rang in the little room where the girl lay sobbing on the couch.

"It's awful!" she sobbed. "To think he should have kissed me at last, and—then said he meant nothing by it! What does he think I gave him the chance for the idiot?"—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

VIENNA'S AGED DYING ON FEET

London.—Dr. Ethel Williams, a New-castle doctor of 30 years' experience, recently has returned to England from Vienna. She attended the Woman's International conference at Zurich, where she heard so much about the conditions of disease in Austria that she decided to see for herself what those conditions really were. She spent a week in Vienna, visiting the hospitals and the school kitchens, studying medical statistics, interviewing representative people, and seeing as much as she could of the city. Speaking to a Manchester-Guardian representative, she said:

"What impressed me most was the appalling condition of every old person I saw, and of 95 per cent of the children. The old people were like walking death's heads. There are so many things that persons over sixty cannot digest. The mortality among the old has increased by 150 per cent. What struck me most when walking about the streets was that there were no toddlers. Children of three and even four years were carried by their mothers. The children did not run about, or shout, or quarrel. It was four days before I saw a child playing.

Most Children Emaciated.

At least 95 per cent of the practically well children were painfully emaciated, with discolored circles around their sunken eyes and the tendons of their necks showing like those of old people. Even middle-class children have these scrawny necks, and when they run their cheeks flap like those of old people. But they seldom run. They are all limp and listless.

"The scene in the out-patients' department at the biggest state children's hospital was pitiful—no sound or attempt to play. The children sat quietly on their mothers' knees or against a wall.

"I saw several cases of osteomalacia, a disease so rare before the war that the only two cases I had ever seen had been shown to me as a curiosity. It seems to come from lack of fresh food, and there have been 250 cases in Vienna, and I heard of another epidemic in a German town.

"The bones soften and become distorted, the pelvis bones fold inward. In early stages it is curable, but a bad case never will walk again, and a rather bad case always will have difficulty in walking.

"The cases were those of older children and adults. They told me that the hospitals were receiving about 15 cases a day, and those they had to turn away inevitably must become worse. I used to test the condition of the children I saw by feeling their fleshless arms. When I touched one child the father said: 'Don't touch him. He has this bad new disease, and it hurts him so much.' I realized it had hurt him, but the child was too listless to shrink from the pain.

"The doctors could do practically nothing for the out-patients, who could not be taken to the hospitals. The mothers were in despair. The doctors said the greatest want of all was for cod liver oil. Funds raised in England had sent a supply, but it only lasted two days. Practically every child under two is rickety.

Suffer From Starvation.

"It is extraordinary how little Vienna has suffered from war epidemics such as typhus. The enormous increase in sickness is due to starvation disease. Almost all of its child population is stunted, starved, left without vitality, vigor or energy. An enormous number are tubercular and a considerable proportion of these will die. Another considerable proportion will for all their lives probably be stunted in mind and body, and all will be handicapped."

The children of school age provided with one meal of soup and bread in the day by American Red Cross workers at a special kitchen she visited were watched lest they should take the bread home. "You must eat the bread," the workers told them. "All that we can do is to help you to keep well and strong." The American Red Cross is opening more of these kitchens, and hopes to feed 40,000 or more children, but that only means food for one section of the people, the children of school age—and even then only one meal in the day.

FAMINE IN MEN TO FIGHT FIRES

Spokane, Wash.—One of the biggest "industries" of the northwest this summer is the fighting of forest fires.

A good, husky man, with two strong arms and a willingness to work, looks as good as a million dollars to the officials of the United States forestry service, and the big lumber concerns, who are losing vast values in timber.

There is a famine for men. That is the great reason fires, started by careless campers or lightning storms, have been able to spread over many miles of America's richest lumber lands and cause damage that will not be replaced for a generation.

One large fire in the Pack river district, northern Idaho, burst entirely beyond control and spread over forty-five square miles of territory without showing the least signs of dying down. Men to fight it were few and far between.

In Spokane as well as the coast cities the forest service is waging recruiting campaigns similar to those carried on during the war. It is a war—against flames almost as destructive to America as the flames that broke out in Europe.

Lumberjacks, those big-shouldered veterans of the forest life, make the finest fire fighters. This summer they have had little chance to engage in their regular work of cutting timber, and have bent all their efforts to saving the forests that house the nation.

The forest service maintains a ceaseless lookout. As soon as smoke is discerned the news is flashed to headquarters; a crew is hastily recruited and equipped, and sent into the burning area with full supplies of food, tools and bedding.

But they have little chance to use the bedding. Fire fighting is an all-night all-day job.

How Fire is Kept.

The only successful method of stopping a fire is to get in front of it, clear a wide trail, and widen it by backfiring.

A slight change of wind will make the back fire cross the trail and endanger the workers' lives.

Hazing trees frequently fall with the wind, across the trail, and undo the work of a day.

One result of the epidemic of fires in the present summer will be a vigorous effort, on the part of lumber companies and forestry men alike, to secure from congress a greater appropriation for the forest service than ever before.

ANTHRACITE PRODUCTION UP

Shipments Show Hundreds of Thousands of Tons Over Latest Normal Production.

Philadelphia.—Shipments of anthracite for July as reported to the anthracite bureau of information aggregated 6,000,000 tons, an increase over June of 202,748 tons.

Compared with July, 1918, the latest normal year in anthracite production, the shipments last month showed an increase of 619,000 tons.

The shipments for the first four months of the coal year, beginning April 1, amounted to 22,000,000 tons, as compared with 21,140,000 tons for the corresponding period in 1918, an increase of nearly 1,000,000 tons.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NICK AND NANCY TALK.

"Of course," said Nick, "the more friends we have the better we like it."

"It would be nice to have more and more friends all the time," said Nancy. "Lots of friends whom perhaps we never see, but who like us, and want to hear about us and our thoughts and what we do. Even if they don't know us to talk to, they can know us so well by hearing about us. Then, too, they can hear the stories Daddy has to tell us. In that way we can become friends, for they can know our Daddy through his evening tales."

"Wouldn't it be nice," she added, "if before a week was over we added so many, many friends, all over the country, and that each friend we had told some other friend about us?"

"It would be splendid," said Nick. "I think perhaps our friends will tell other friends of theirs about us. You're a nice, sensible girl; you can climb a tree and you can see a mouse without crying. In fact, you like mice! And I'm a nice boy, so won't they all like us?"

"Well, you do flatter yourself, sir," said Nancy. "Still, we like other boys and girls, so it would be nice if we all become such friends, and if each time they saw us and heard of one of our adventures they would smile and say:

"Glad to see you, Nick and Nancy. What have you been up to now? Have you any new queer friends, and has your Daddy something new to tell us?"

"And it would be awfully nice," said Nick, "if sometimes some of our friends wrote us and told us what they had been doing, or some new game they had been playing, or of some animal they had just seen for the first time. There might be a chance of our getting the letters if they posted them to us, care of Mary Graham Bonner, 607 West One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street, New York City; in fact, an excellent chance. That really would be exciting! Do you think they like us enough to do that?"

"You're a nice brother; you don't tease, and if you do, it's all in fun and not in meanness. You teach me how to do things, instead of saying: 'Cry-baby, can't come along.' I'm sure they'll like you. If we get into a scrape, you take your full share of the blame. You're such a nice brother!"

"Think of the fellows who have sisters who are nothing but little babies. I'm lucky, I am."

They smiled at each other, Nick and Nancy did, for they are such good pals.

"Let's say we're going to become better and better friends all the time," said Nancy. "We've been getting new friends ever since other boys and girls read about us and our nice Daddy and the Evening Tale he told us every evening. That has been quite a long time now, but not too long!"

"Dear me, dear me!" said a sweet voice, and looking around Nick and Nancy noticed that it came from the direction of the sugar bowl.

"Dear me, dear me," it said again. "I'm glad to see how nice you two children are today, so good-natured and well-behaved. Just like myself!"

"Don't be so proud, Sugar Bowl," said the Salt Cellar. "I remember the day, and not so long ago, either, when you were very scarce and when you didn't give much of your sweetness at all."

"But you're never sweet," said the Sugar Bowl, "and though sometimes there has been but little of me, what there has been, has been sweet."

"True enough, but I give seasoning to food," said the Salt Cellar. "Life would be very dull without seasoning."

"Listen, Salt Cellar," said the Sugar Bowl, "you'd better keep out of this story. Nick and Nancy have a plan to ask their friends to introduce them to their friends in turn, and only things like myself should enter into the story."

"Oh, very well," said the Salt Cellar. "I never was much on receptions. Sugar and tea and ice cream and cake and boys and girls go together far better at a party, so I'll stay away today. I'll come in another time, instead."

The Sugar Bowl smiled. Have you ever seen a sugar bowl smile? It's a hard thing to believe; but, never mind, this sugar bowl smiled, and it said:

"Boys and girls, I live in the same house with Nick and Nancy, and while they're not as sweet as sugar, they are a nice pair. Don't you think so?"

Need Help to Pass the Crisis Safely—Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Can be Relied Upon.

Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life," in addition to its annoying symptoms, I had an attack of grippe which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and your Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman so I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women passing through the Change of Life."

—Mrs. FRANK HANSON, 1816 S. Orchard St., Urbana, Ill.

Women who suffer from nervousness, "heat flashes," backache, headaches and "the blues" should try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Couldn't Follow It.

"Can't you avoid quarreling?" demanded Judge White the other day of a man who appeared for the third time in his court for fighting.

"Yes, sir, I could," answered the culprit. "I have a recipe that was written by Bill Shakespeare or Kipling or someone, but I don't know but what I'd rather get into trouble once in a while, rather than follow it."

"What's the recipe?" demanded White, curiously, and the man answered:

"Say nothing; do nothing; be nothing!"

Was Almost Frantic With the Pain and Suffering of Kidney Complaint. Doan's Made Her Well.

Mrs. Lydia Shuster, 1538 Margaret St., Frankford, Pa., says: "A cold started my kidney trouble. My back began to ache and got sore and lame. My joints and ankles became swollen and painful and it felt as if needles were sticking into them. I finally had to give up and went from bed to bed."

"My kidneys didn't act right and the sensations were nasty and distressing. I had awful dizzy spells when everything before me turned black; one time I couldn't see Mrs. Shuster for twenty minutes. Atrial pains in my head set me almost frantic and I was so nervous, I couldn't stand the least noise. How I suffered! Often I didn't sleep a wink."

"I couldn't sleep on account of the terrible pains in my back and head. Nothing seemed to do me a bit of good until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. I could soon see they were helping me; the backache stopped, my kidneys were regulated and I no longer had any dizzy spells or rheumatic pains. They kept my kidneys in good health. I never felt so well."

USE TACTICS OF QUAIL

How Villa and His Men Follow Pursuit.

Bandits Scatter and Hide as Federals Appear—Brown Uniforms Aid.

Juarez, Mex.—Francisco Villa's method of evading pursuit by Mexican government troops is almost identical with that used by a covey of quail to escape the hunter. Even the detail of protective coloring has been applied by Villa, for his men always wear heavier cotton clothing which blends with the desert landscape and that blends through which they travel in company.

Hunters know that the quail's instinct directs it to scatter when danger approaches and seek cover in the same-by landscape. Villa and his sub-el bands do the same thing when a superior federal column approaches.

Often Villa's band will number 2,000 men under his chiefs, Angeles, Lopez, Diaz and Garcia. They make a column which coils across the plains like a giant snake and leaves a great dust cloud in its wake.

But let General Castro's government troops approach with artillery, machine guns and cavalry mounted on former American army horses and the column will break up into little bands of 100 under petty chiefs, will disappear in some mountain canyon and go into hiding until the federals pass. Once the danger of attack is over the column reassembles, occupies some town in its path and again disappears with its loot.

Villa's men have been known to hitch their horses to plows in the folds of the irrigated districts and be industriously plowing when the fed-

COMBINED RUDDER AND BRAKE

Simple but Useful Invention Said to Be Applicable to All Kinds of Craft.

An inventor, N. Van Asche, comes forward with a means of making a boat's rudder serve as a brake. Speaking correctly, he means to have two rudders, which act in the usual way of rudders, but which can be swung around or unfolded to act as vanes, which will exert a braking effect. This is shown in the illustration. The system, the inventor maintains, is applicable to all sorts of craft, from motorboats to ocean liners.

Some of the advantages of pulverized coal are: The utilizing of every heat unit in the coal; the reduction of labor for handling coal, and the maintenance of a constant temperature in the furnace.

Will Answer Call Of The Whole World

Now that the larger liberties enjoyed by peoples everywhere, following the close of the world war, have revealed as never before the need and the opportunity for the spread of the gospel to all the ends of the earth, the Baptists of the South have launched their program for $75,000,000 to be raised in cash and five-year subscriptions between now and December 7th, in the hope of making a worthy beginning toward supplying this world need.

Of the total sum sought in this campaign, the actual drive for the funds

DR. J. F. LOVE,
Of Richmond, Va., Secretary of Foreign Missions for the Southern Baptist Convention.

to be made during Victory Week, November 30-December 7, $42,000,000 will be devoted to missions, and $20,000,000 of this sum will be devoted to enlarging the work on the ten important foreign fields occupied already and to opening up new fields where countless millions of peoples have not yet heard the story of Jesus Christ.

Asia, Africa, Latin America (including Mexico as well as South America), and Europe are the four continents in which the missionaries of Southern Baptists are operating today, but in all of the ten countries of these continents, Southern Baptists have only 218 missionaries, 787 native workers, 192 of whom are ordained, 12 foreign physicians, 6 foreign trained nurses, 21 native physicians and 22 native nurses.

"Our missionaries already on the field have wrought wonderfully for the Master, considering the difficulties they have had to confront," Dr. J. F. Love, secretary of foreign missions, declares, "but we at home have not supported them as we ought with help of all kinds and with schools, hospitals and other agencies to enable them to do a larger work in every way. The smallness of the work we have done already can be realized when we look at the vast number of people who have not been reached in the foreign fields we are occupying today. China, for instance, has a population four times that of the United States, or one-fourth the population of the entire world, and our force there consists of only 65 men, 52 married women, 49 unmarried women, 54 ordained natives and 420 unordained native helpers. Japan, which has half as many people as the United States, is being served by 2 men, 2 married women, 2 unmarried women, 11 ordained natives and 6 unordained native helpers. In Italy there are a third as many people as there are in the United States, yet we have there only 2 men, 2 married women, 25 ordained natives, and 2 unordained native helpers. Mexico has 15,000,000 people, and we have in that country and on the border a missionary force consisting of 11 men, 11 married women, 2 unmarried women, 24 ordained natives and 15 unordained native helpers. Argentina has a population of 2,000,000 and our missionary force there consists of 7 men, 7 married women, 14 ordained natives, and 7 unordained native helpers. In Africa, we have entered only one state, that of Nigeria, but this state has a population of 25,000,000, and to serve these people we have only 7 men missionaries, 6 married women, 2 unmarried women, 3 ordained natives and 22 unordained native helpers. Brazil has a territory larger than all the United States and a population of 20,000,000. Serving these people we have a force of 21 men, 20 married women, 2 unmarried women, 40 ordained natives, and 22 unordained native helpers. Our work in Cuba, where there are 2,000,000 people, is only two years old, but we have 12 churches, and 25 out-stations in which last year there were 120 baptisms. We need at least 500 more missionaries now and from the proceeds of this campaign we hope to supply them and their wives and then on the field already for doing the largest work for the Master."

Red Cross Drive

During the first part of this coming November Lincoln County will be asked to subscribe her quota to the Red Cross, simultaneously a drive will be made for membership.

In apportioning to each district their quota, the total resources of the precinct will be taken into consideration and the total amount for the County will be apportioned to the precinct accordingly.

I have been asked to take charge of the coming Drive in the capacity of Roll Call Chairman; I have consented on condition that all who are interested will hold themselves in readiness to accept the work I assign them and those in charge of the Red Cross organization in this county allow me a free hand in the management of the Drive.

The details with regard to the Drive will be announced in the local papers from time to time and every one is asked to watch for these announcements. Whether the ladies will be asked to work with the men or to work as a separate organization has yet to be decided upon.

In times past when precinct workers have been appointed for any work they have written back that they are too busy, that some other person was better qualified, etc., etc. The success of this Drive will depend largely on the Precinct Chairmen and their workers, no one will be called upon to assist in works harder than I do, and if an appointment is tendered it is for reason that that party is wanted, so it will not be necessary to write back a long letter about why the position cannot be accepted, the appointees are urged to simply get down to business, do the best they can, or have the Manager of the Drive to "lick" at the first meeting. All are encouraged to write for suggestions and instructions.

New Hospital

Dr. E. L. Woods has established a hospital in what is known as the Peters building. The building was leased some time ago and has been undergoing repairs and improvements to make it suitable for hospital purposes.

The new hospital is so arranged as to accommodate about fifteen patients at one time. Graduated nurses will be in attendance at all times and all kinds of surgical and obstetrical work will receive prompt and careful attention. The Doctor issues a statement to parties outside of Carrizozo that they may now take advantage of the accommodations which the hospital affords, thus putting an end to long trips in disagreeable weather besides lessening the expense on the patients and receiving better service than they could possibly get at their homes. Telephone calls to 124 will be responded to with promptness.

The Substitute

By GENEVEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union)

At the window of the great show mansion of Rushville stood Honora Trescott, a queen of beauty and fashion, gazing out rather wearily at the street. A token of interest came into her eyes as she saw a lovely girl with a sweet, childlike face pause to pet a little dog on the head one moment, and the next lift up a crying child who had stumbled and fallen on the pavement. She raised the little one in her arms, crossed and consoled her and sent her on her way with her tears all chased away. Miss Trescott turned to her maid, who was unpacking a trunk. "Who is that girl, Martha?" she asked, and the maid hurried to her side.

"Oh, please, Miss Honora, that is Nellie Druff, the new schoolteacher." "Hurry after her, Martha, and ask her if she will kindly come into the house for a moment."

Impetuous as Miss Trescott usually was, her tone had softened and her eyes were tender and sympathetic. She was a creature of impulse, generally followed out her whims and was used to having them gratified.

It was not often that Rushville saw the queenly heiress of the great Trescott estate. She passed most of her time in the city social circles. For three or four weeks in the spring, however, the country home was opened up and the family there received numerous friends. Such guests, to quite a number, were to motor to Rushville and attend a grand party to be given by Honora on her birthday. But there had come a break in the arrangements. Her close friend, a Miss Clarice Burnett, had fallen ill. It broke the pairing of her guests. Miss Trescott felt that she needed support as the hostess, and the necessity of a substitute was urgent.

Wondering vaguely, Nellie Druff was overtaken by the maid. She obeyed assent to the request made. She had heard of Miss Trescott and her elaborate entertainments. She gazed about her, lost in admiration of the elegant furnishings as she was shown into a choice boudoir and Miss Trescott advanced with outstretched hand, a welcoming smile on her lips.

"You sweet child!" she said, and faced Nellie on the cheek. "I hope you forgive me, and do not misunderstand why I sent for you. I am a comparatively stranger in Rushville, although this is supposed to be my home." Then the stately lady, frankly and warmly explained the situation.

"I shall feel honored to introduce you to my friends," she said, "and you can help me out, oh, so much. Won't you try and fancy we are old, dear friends?"

Nellie was completely won by the pleasant manner of her hostess. It was with infinite delicacy that Miss Trescott made her understand that she was conferring a distinct favor, and that Nellie should be provided with a party dress and accepted as a guest, and in no wise as a stranger.

Nellie had dreamed of just such an occasion as that which eventuated two evenings later. Amid all her longings, however, never had she hoped to attain the elegance of attire with which she was provided. The guests treated her as if one of their select number.

She found herself apportioned to Mr. Torres, and before the evening was over lost all self-consciousness amid its rare enjoyments. Mr. Torres was a true cavalier and seemed immensely attracted. Nellie heard his name mentioned in connection with that of Miss Trescott, and understood that they were engaged. It was after midnight when Miss Trescott bade her good-by and placed her in charge of Mr. Torres. She had presented Nellie with a pretty diamond necklace.

Nellie felt like some modern Cinderella as she at length stood alone in the humble room of the home of Mrs. Alcott, a widow lady with whom she boarded. It fairly dazzled her to think over the events of the evening. It roused her breath to quicken as she recalled the courteous, almost tender attention of Mr. Willard Torres. She had been greatly surprised as he bade her adieu with a request that he might call upon her later.

Nellie experienced a vague sense of treachery when Mr. Torres spent a full hour in the parlor of the widow's humble home two evenings later. She could not resist an invitation to a motor drive the following Saturday afternoon. She wondered what the exciting Miss Trescott would think of these attentions on the part of her fiancé. Still she forgot all care or thankless enjoyment as they drove across hills and dells and showed up at the borders of a pretty, placid lake. "Miss Druff, Nellie," spoke Willard

Torres earnestly. "I have halted here purposely, to tell you what I have been longing to tell you since the first evening we met—I love you."

"Oh, Mr. Torres!" faltered Nellie, bewildered and embarrassed. "I must not listen to you; indeed I must not! Am the fiance of Miss Trescott."

Willard Torres burst forth into a merry peal of laughter. He drew closer to Nellie, then, and his former earnestness of tone and manner returned.

"You are confusing me with my brother Rolfe," he said simply, "and that being so, dare I venture to repeat what I have just said?"

And the blushing face and bent head told him that Nellie was waiting and willing to hear more of the sweetest story ever told.

Water Analysis

With a view of obtaining a correct report on the condition of the water in the reservoir of the E. P. & S. W., Dr. M. G. Paden, Division Surgeon of the system forwarded a sample of the water to the Department of Chemistry at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, from which he received the following report:

UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO
Department of Chemistry
Albuquerque, N. M.,
Sept. 3, 1919.

Dr. M. G. Paden,
Division Surgeon, E. P. & S. W.,
Carrizozo, N. M.

Dear Sir:—

You have not told me about what trouble you have been having, but I will venture to say that there has been much complaint about odor and taste. You may find the following summary of assistance to you; I am suspicious of the presence of a small plant known as "Anabaena." This plant consists of vegetable cells, spherical, elliptical, or compressed in a quadrate form. The cells bear chlorophyll and other pigments. These give off marked odors. They are killed by copper sulphate (about a pound per million gallons of water); this being hung in a sack and towed about until dissolved.

The very high ammonia suggests to me that the reservoir may contain considerable organic matter, some of which is decaying. I think that if you will make a careful survey of local circumstances, you may get some valuable information. You may suggest a thorough cleaning of the reservoir. Examination of the small sample of water shows the following:

Free Ammonia, .06 parts per million; Albuminoid Ammonia, .23 parts per million; Nitrates, Trace; Nitrites, None; Chlorides, (61) Absent; Bacteria per cc, 560; Color slightly turbid; Odor distinct.

Yours very truly,
John D. Clark,

Analyst.
The above analysis shows conclusively that the water in the reservoir contained nothing beyond that of vegetable matter, therefore, aside from the odor and taste which was the subject of some comment, the water, as the analysis shows, is pure. Following the recommendation of Dr. Paden the big reservoir was drained, cleaned and is now being filled with pure sparkling mountain water.

Live Stock Should Be Well Treated

Prices Are High, and It Will Pay to Feed Generously and Protect All Animals From the Weather

Farm animals that are shabbily wintered—the idea being to fatten them and sell them early the next summer or in the fall—do not thrive or give a profitable account of themselves, writes DeWitt C. Wing in Breeder's Gazette. Poorly sheltered, stingily fed and compelled to drink ice-cold water, they become stunted. The severe weather of the winter months in the corn belt and elsewhere is hard on live stock, even when comfortable housing, generous feeding and an abundance of clean, temperate water are provided.

Animals kept to do farm work, to breed, to make meat or to produce milk are worth more than they have been in a long time. They will be worth still more when grass comes.

Shelter is essential; it is a form of feed. It saves body heat by keeping animals warm and dry. Body heat is made with feed. Shelter, therefore, conserves feed. Inexpensive sheds, in the absence of well-equipped, modern barns and stables, will serve the purpose fairly well. Straw and corn stover can be used in walling up and sealing the ends and north sides of such improvised structures, which usually open to the south.

A beast worth wintering is worth wintering well, even on high-priced feed. All young stock should be fed more liberally, pound for pound, than mature animals. Both classes require a lot of roughage. Clover, alfalfa and cowpea hay, which are rich in protein, should be generously dealt out to young stock. Adult animals may be wintered largely on other hays, silage, corn fodder and corn stover (cut and hauled to them, or standing in fields).

Pigs, in order to thrive and make the best returns, must have plenty of protein feeds, like skim milk, bran, tankage and cowpea or soy-bean meal, which make muscle (lean meat) and bone; they must also have corn to make body heat.

Water from holes in the ice on a pond, creek or tank requires a lot of feed (fuel) to warm it when drunk by an animal. The best water for stock in the winter is pumped daily from depths at which its temperature is comparatively high. With practically nothing green or succulent to eat in winter, all classes of stock require much more water than they will drink if they are compelled to take it ice cold.

The Time of His Life

John Urey, the good natured Yard Engineer of the E. P. & S. has returned from a pleasant vacation on the coast. He enjoyed the nights at the resorts and making a long story short, had "the time of his life."

Home From the Border
L. H. Powell, wife and daughter Wahna Lee returned from El Paso No. 4 last Friday, after spending the major portion of the week among relatives and friends.

Mrs. S. B. Fambrough and sons were in from their ranch at Jacks Peak.

New Delivery System

The combined delivery system adopted by the grocerymen of Carrizozo, the announcement of which appears in this issue of the Outlook will no doubt be of great benefit to both dealers and consumers. Mr. Ralph Treat, who has for the past eight months officiated as Deputy County Clerk, has the contract for delivering the orders for three firms mentioned in the notice to the public. Mr. Treat is well known, knows the ins and outs of the town so well that the delivery system will prosper under his management.

Dr. Freeman Returns; Locates

Dr. Carl Freeman and family have finally returned and located to make Carrizozo their future home. About three months ago the Freeman family left here for California, with a view of finding some place along the coast that would meet with their desire as a place in which to reside for the future, but finding nothing suitable, they journeyed back to Arizona, visiting the different cities in that state.

After many attempts to satisfy their desire to locate, they finally decided to return to Carrizozo and the first of the present week they motored in, and on Tuesday Dr. Freeman purchased from E. L. Stimmel the place formerly owned by "Doc" Lacy which adjoins that of Clarence Spence. Now that the doctor has "seen 'em all," we congratulate him on his return to ever-lasting sunshine.

Visiting the Home Folks

J. P. Dennis, wife and son left on No. 3 Monday. Mrs. Dennis will visit for about two months with her mother at El Guapo, Tex., Mr. Dennis accompanying her as far as El Paso.
