

Bender-Branum Group of Gold Mines Sold

Gold Mines Deal Closed Saturday of Group of Mines At Nogal to Eastern Syndicate Which Will Push Work of Development at Once. Parties Interested Will Locate with Families.

The chain of gold mines known as the Bender-Branum Group at Nogal, 12 miles east of here was sold last Saturday to an Eastern syndicate composed of the following named gentlemen who will begin the work of further development as soon as the working forces are organized for the task at hand: Messrs. G. I. Rossiter, Newton Givens, Arthur Givens and Dr. C. E. Nelson. There are four mines in the Bender-Branum Group, working on a 125 foot level and the new owners will sink to twice this depth of, to a 250 foot level where they expect to strike veins more productive than the ones now being worked which have been making a splendid showing.

Mr. C. W. Green, prominent manufacturer of Brocton, N. Y., is associated with the above named gentlemen in the deal.

Col. Bender, who with Mr. Lin Branum formerly owned the mines, came here about six years ago and as an experienced miner, soon saw after prospecting that the Nogal regions contained valuable ore, and began the work which resulted in finding rich deposits the yield of which furnished ample proof to the syndicate we have mentioned, of the valuation of the group, hence the purchase. Mr. Bender has spent the most of his life in the mining business and now that he has reached a ripe old age, he feels that in justice to himself he must retire from the field.

The above is only one instance of the many valuable mines in this vicinity; the Helen Rae gold mines, not far from the Bender-Branum group, are among, if not the foremost in the yield of valuable gold ore. Mr. Robertson, like the new owners of the Bender-Branum group, is getting in readiness to install new machinery to further the mining interests of our community. The gentlemen who made the Bender-Branum purchase will move their families to Nogal at once in order to be located permanently before cold weather sets in. The deal mentioned was consummated through Attorneys Barber & Bonham, of Carrizozo.

Bank of Cloudcroft Destroyed By Fire

Cloudcroft, N. M., Aug. 9.—Fire at midnight last night destroyed the Bank of Cloudcroft and caused much excitement among the summer visitors and residents. It is believed that a carelessly dropped cigarette caused the blaze.

The bank is on the main street, and for a time several other buildings were threatened. Citizens and men from the summer cottages and hotels responded to the alarm and worked so diligently that the flames were prevented from spreading. No money or records were destroyed, as the safe withstood the flames.

Arizona Farmers May Be Forced to Abandon Farms

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 12.—Two thousand Arizona farmers may be compelled to abandon their farms because of prices charged for gasoline and other petroleum products used to operate pumping plants for irrigation, J. S. Brown, president of the Arizona Farm bureau, set forth today in a statement to the traffic bureau of the local chamber of commerce.

Breaks His Neck in Fall, But May Live

Phoenix, Arizona, August 11.—Physicians today admitted the probability that a laborer named Thompson, who fell a few feet yesterday and dislocated his neck, would recover. Thompson was employed in construction of a building. He fell from a scaffold and struck on his back just below the scaffold. Physicians, trying to benefit the man with a dislocated neck, lifted his head to slip an ice bag underneath. As they did so, something snapped and the bones were back in place.

Harold Bell Wright Weds in San Diego

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 11.—Harold Bell Wright, the author, and Mrs. Winifred Mary Potter Duncan of Los Angeles, were married secretly at a hotel here last Thursday, it became known today.

A township justice performed the ceremony.

Back to the Mines

West Frankfort, Ill., Aug. 9.—Seven large coal mines in this vicinity, employing about 3,500 men, resumed operations today. West Frankfort was normal after the anti-Italian rioting which began Thursday night.

Socorro-Lincoln Highway Project

In speaking of the meeting last week of the Boards of County Commissioners of Socorro and Lincoln Counties which resulted in the harmonious agreement to start the work as quick as possible, the Magdalena News says in part:

"With this road completed we will have a direct highway between the two points. At Carrizozo the route will connect with the route to Roswell, giving the traveling public a direct route to the southeast as well as a most feasible route north to Amarilla and other Texas points. Heretofore, tourists coming into the state from Texas and other southern points to Roswell have been compelled to go south or a long distance north to make good road connections west. By coming to Carrizozo, with this route complete, they will have a direct route into Socorro, where they will connect with the Ocean to Ocean Highway, the heaviest travelled and most direct route to the Pacific and California points."

And besides securing this large auto traffic that has been hunting a good route east and west through the southern part of the state, will have a road that will be of inestimable benefit to every portion of the state.

Walter Whitman's Home To Be Turned Into A Museum

Camden, N. J., Aug. 10.—The humble little house in which Walter Whitman, the "good gray poet" lived has been purchased by the city from the poet's three nieces. It will be converted into a memorial museum. It will be moved to either Whitman park or Forest Hill park and will house the relics, books and mementoes that have survived the beloved poet. It was here that many of the poems that have throbbled their way into the hearts of the world were written. The one hundredth and first anniversary of Whitman's birth was recently celebrated by a pilgrimage of devotees to his tomb in a cemetery near here.

Find Lost Girl On New Mexico Ranch

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 12.—Alice Miller, aged 16, who disappeared while on her way from Newkirk, Okla., to San Francisco, on July 21, has been found, according to word received here last night by the police. She was married to Lloyd Smith at Estancia, N. M., August 7, and the couple are now living on a ranch about 10 miles northwest of there. According to word reaching here, the couple left the Santa Fe train at Kennedy, N. M., about 50 miles north of here, and took a train on the New Mexico Central railroad at Estancia.

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 11.—The skin of a snake 16 feet long and 14 inches in diameter at the center is now on exhibition at the warehouse of Louis Hfeld. The skin was purchased today from a small boy who brought it to the company management and offered it for sale.

On Eastern Purchasing Trip

O. W. Bamberger of the Carrizozo Trading Company left Wednesday on No. 4 for different Eastern points to make his purchases for fall and winter trade. He will first visit St. Louis, then Chicago, and finish with points farther East ending with New York.

This custom with the heads of our business institutions is a safeguard to their patrons, as in making purchases in the heart of the Eastern markets, they get in on the buying game before the stock is broken and also get better selections than others of the East who make the mistake of waiting until others have culled over the stock and seized the best bargains. Mr. Bamberger will be more cautious this year than ever before for the reason that he will have the new member of the firm to report to, on his return, and this will furnish him with an incentive to make deals which will appear best on his purchase sheets. His trip will consume from two to three weeks of time.

Golfers Entertainers At the Crystal

The Crystal Theatre offered its patrons a splendid double bill on Monday night. The first was Wallace Reid in "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." which was followed by the Golfers Juvenile Entertainers, musical artists who gave the audience a splendid demonstration of musical art consisting of instrumental and vocal selections that were well rendered and which could have been, without the least objection, be received in the parlors of the best homes in Carrizozo.

The management of this amusement enterprise is to be commended on staging such companies as the Golfers Entertainers and in procuring as it does, the best of moving pictures on the market.

Local Investors Make Good

About four months ago, Lin Branum and B. L. Stimmel received word from Dexter, Kansas, to the effect that the oil company in which they carried stock had struck oil, but it being only a 15-barrel well, the strike was so small that the matter was soon forgotten. A few days ago, these gentlemen received word to the effect that the same company had struck a 200-barrel well in the same locality. Our people here have been liberal in taking chances in the oil game with little or no results, but we congratulate the two citizens mentioned on the above piece of prosperity, which is in some measure an offset to some of their losses. We wish you news of a 600-barrel well at the next strike, gentlemen!

Gen. Villa Did Not Surrender, He Says

Mexico City, Aug. 10.—Gen. Francisco Villa declared he did not surrender but submitted to the government to avoid bloodshed and a conflict with the United States, in an interview at Las Delicias, printed by El Democrata today. Villa is declared to have emphasized his loyalty to the government.

Miss Irene Smith has returned from Brownwood, Texas, where she has been attending school.

THE GODDESS LUCK.

Synopsis—Typical tramp in appearance, Daniel Randolph Fitzhugh, while crossing a Chicago street, causes the wreck of an auto, whose chauffeur disables it trying to avoid running him down. In pity the occupant of the auto, a young girl, saves him from arrest and gives him a dollar, telling him to buy soap, and wash. His sense of shame is touched, and he improves his appearance. That night, in a crowd of unemployed and anarchists, he meets Esther Strom, a Russian anarchist, and in a spirit of bravado makes a speech. A few days later Fitzhugh visits Symbington Otis, prominent financier, and displaying a package which he says contains dynamite, demands $5,000. Otis gives him a check. At the house he meets the girl who had given him the dollar, and learns she is Kathleen Otis. She recognizes him. Ashamed, he tears up the check and escapes, but is arrested. Esther arranges for him to be released. He secures legal advice. His trial is speedily completed and he is found insane and committed to an asylum, from which he easily makes his escape. Fitzhugh takes refuge in Chicago with Esther, who has become infatuated with him, but with the thought of Kathleen in his mind, his one idea was to become rich and powerful, and win Kathleen. In a fight with Nikolai, jealous admirer of Esther, Fitzhugh wounds him, leaving him unconscious, and escapes. Securing menial employment he learns that Nikolai has been found dead in Esther's house, and in a letter to him she admits the killing, telling him she did it for his sake and that she has gone away. He sees Kathleen from a distance, and is strengthened in his determination to win her. Fitzhugh attracts the attention of one Quigg, dealer in bogus stocks. In Quigg's place of business Fitzhugh acts as a decoy for gullible investors. Staked by his employer in a poker game for high stakes, he meets a wheat pit speculator, Henry Hunt, who believes him to be a New York man of wealth.

"You wish to tell me about that Queen Bee gold mine stock, do you not, Mr. Pattington?"

"Yes, yes."

"I think you said you wanted a thousand shares?—the last thousand, to be exact."

"I said so."

Mr. Quigg shook his large head, his baggy eyes twinkling. "I'm sorry, Mr. Pattington, but I'm afraid you can't have those thousand shares."

"What d'you mean?" snapped the pseudo-financier.

"This gentleman"—with his cigar Quigg indicated the colorless man, who, eyes wide, mouth agape, had been swallowing whole every word uttered—"is just about to buy 'em. You see, Mr. Pattington, I'm on to you eastern fellows. I know all about your little game. I was just telling Mr. Blake here about it, I know you're trying to get possession of the Queen Bee; I know you've had your secret agents snooping her; I know you've discovered what a fat little chunk of gold she really is. But I'm afraid you can't have her, Mr. Pattington. First, because the Queen Bee people don't want you eastern capitalists to own the controlling interest; and, second, because Mr. Blake here has spoken first, and, in fact, is just about to negotiate for the purchase of the remaining thousand shares. Isn't that right, Mr. Blake?"

Quigg fixed his ox-eye benevolently upon the susceptible Blake, who moistened his lips, sugged his hat, looked down, then up, and cleared his throat.

"I—I guess—" He hesitated, licked his lips—and took the plunge with a rush: "Yes, that's right Mr. Quigg, I'll take those thousand shares."

Fitzhugh, keenly awaiting further news, watched the grafter's face intently, and though he received but a bare flicker of an eyelash and the faintest suggestion of a nod toward the door, it was sufficient, and with no other comment he turned and left, indignantly slamming the door behind him. For the benefit of those in the outer room he again assumed his usual air of boredom as he leisurely maneuvered through and out in the corridor.

He boarded the elevator and ascended to the top floor of the building. He took an office devoid of lettering and apparently unoccupied, he stopped, took a bag from his pocket, unlocked the door, let himself in and locked the door behind him. He removed his coat, hung it on a hook, placed his hat on the table and his gloves upon the chair, then settled himself in the chair and rested his feet on the steam radiator. He lighted a cigar, exhaled a swirl of fragrant smoke, and took a magazine from a pile on the table. He had barely read the table of contents, however, before there was a tap at the corridor door, and he admitted a messenger-boy, who handed him an envelope and departed. Upon reading the dispatch he tore the paper to small bits and hurried into the adjoining room, throwing off his vest and loosening his tie and collar as he ran.

In ten minutes he reappeared. He was completely metamorphosed. Instead of the smart morning coat, he now wore a long tan "duster"; instead of the stylish derby hat, he wore a broad-brimmed yellow one; and he wore a soft flannel shirt with attached collar, and rough trousers and dusty shoes. Under one arm he carried a horsewhip. In fine, he was a typical rancher, just arrived in Chicago with a load of cattle and a big wallet for the thousand-dollar bills. Even his beard was magically changed; it was tanned and all askew, and against the "sunburn" on his face appeared to be that of a man sadly in need of a shave rather than of one recently barbered.

A few minutes later he entered the "customers' room" of Quigg & Peavy. Free and easy, as befitting one of untrammelled life, he strode across the floor toward Quigg's private office, with great, awkward movements of his long body, flicking his whip against his thick trousers and puffing like a tugboat at his evil cigar.

Ostensibly, Quigg & Peavy were brokers. In reality they were swindlers. A superficial observer, visiting their offices, would have supposed their customers to be La Salle street speculators. A rigid investigator would have discovered their only patrons were victims of the get-rich-quick fever. The chief business of Quigg & Peavy was the selling of worthless stock. The rows of chairs in the "customers' room" and their occupants, the rushing messenger boys, the long blackboard and the phlegmatic youth chalking cabalistic figures, the chattering telegraph instrument, operated automatically not twenty feet away, were nothing more than stage properties and players, employed for the sole benefit of the suckers who made them possible.

And upon this opera bouffe stage of sham and hypocrisy strutted Daniel Fitzhugh, dreamer and actor. His roles were many and varied, but he portrayed them all with unerring accuracy—and, yes, even art. When he was informed that it was time for another "entrance," he never knew, until the messenger came with directions, what part he would be called upon to enact. Now it was that of a Western millionaire, bluff, ungrammatical, breezy; again that of a French financier, suave, polite, tangling his English; anon it was some great banker from Liverpool, rigid and precise. But the character he most often portrayed was the "Eastern capitalist."

Peavy was a thin, pale man, of a drooping eye and a pointed chin, and was deeply attached to a small briar pipe. His business was to "round up the books and steer 'em in." Quigg, aided by Fitzhugh, did the rest.

After the second week Fitzhugh began to conceive a sinking dislike for the knavery he was abetting. After the third he began to hate it. Capabilities were stirring within him—capabilities which told him he was worth infinitely more than one hundred dollars a week, and that every week he worked for that sum he was throwing away money. It was near the end of the first month that he asked his slippery employer for a hundred-dollar weekly increase. He was a little surprised when it was promptly granted him.

"I was thinking about increasing your pay, Fitz," said Quigg, in his large, careless way. "You're worth two hundred a week to me."

But when three weeks later the grafter was told it was four hundred dollars a week or nothing, he frowned, pinched the pink roll of flesh under his chin with his chubby fingers, and rocked himself gently in his swivel chair. "I'll tell you what, Fitz. I'm about to tackle the biggest thing I've ever attempted. I'm launching upon the grandest little mail-order scheme in America. I expect to spend a couple of hundred thousands in advertising. If it goes through, as I certainly think it will, I'll do the level thing by you—"

"That's not the point," broke in the petitioner. "Do I or do I not get my four hundred—now?"

"Yes, do not!" Quigg's palms descended firmly upon the arms of his chair. His big jaw acquired a belittling aspect.

"That's all I want to know," Fitzhugh stood up briefly. "This is Wednesday. You therefore owe me a hundred dollars. I'll take it now."

"Sit down, Fitz. Sit down and keep cool. I believe you're a game sport, in spite of the low way you're setting, and I'm going to make you a gambling proposition. Some friends of mine are getting up a nice, quiet little game of poker tonight, and I'm going to sit in. The pot'll run high—no limit. Between ourselves we'll cooperate in this game. I'll finance the partnership with five thousand dollars. If we double that amount you get half the winnings and your four hundred a week. If not, you'll still contrive to scrape along on two hundred."

The poker game that night took place in a South side hotel. It was a six-handed game, the players being of the class commonly known as "men about town." Two were professional gamblers, another was a wheat pit speculator, a fourth was a wealthy season owner. The remaining two were Fitzhugh and Quigg. Playing commenced shortly after eight. Compared to subsequent betting, it was modest at first, a five-dollar limit having been imposed. About nine, however, the limit was removed, and the game began to warm up. Another hour, and it had reached the point where five-and-six-hundred-dollar pots were the rule and not the exception.

The Golden Goddess, Luck, smiled upon Fitzhugh from the very start. Perhaps it was his superior playing that won her favor. Anyhow, he astonished his coadjutor by his skill at the game. He was a hundred different men. His fellow players never knew how to take him—never knew what he would do next. And while they were wondering he continued to take their money from them as though it were only a matter of course that he should.

But as Fitzhugh steadily won Quigg as steadily lost. When the game ended at nine a. m. it was noticeable that of the five men sitting around the padded table beneath the pall of tobacco smoke and the green-shaded electric lights Fitzhugh was the only one who showed no ill sign of the thirteen-hour steady playing. He seemed as fresh as when he started and apparently was quite fit for another thirteen-hour session. When he "cashed in" he was winner to the extent of some eighteen thousand dollars. The professional gamblers had won a few thousands each. The rest had lost.

Quigg, who had left the game, was not to be found in the hotel rotunda. While Fitzhugh was walking about looking for him the wheat pit speculator, a jovial, red-faced man named Henry Hunt, clapped him heartily on the shoulder and wrung his hand.

"Old man, I'd give a million if I could bluff like you. Where did you learn how?"

"It comes naturally," smiled Fitzhugh.

Hunt glanced around and lowered his voice. "Fitzhugh, I'm putting through today one of the biggest wheat deals I've ever handled, and I'd like to let you in on it. What time can I see you, and where?"

"Any time at any place."

"Meet me at Burton & Burton's, then—brokers, you know, Board of Trade—at eleven sharp. Don't fail. It's a big thing. So long. Must hurry."

Upon certain of the casual acquaintances he had made in La Salle street Fitzhugh had taken pains to create the impression of being the scion of a highly respected family unknown to the newspaper columns but possessed of wealth. Hunt was one of those thus deluded. Others he had impressed in different wise. But every man who met him believed him to be a person of means. It was an emphatic point with him to see to that.

In a secluded corner and a low tone Hunt explained his project very concisely.

"September wheat," said he, "opened at ninety-eight and a quarter this morning. A gang of bulls have inflated it till she's like a soap bubble—ready to burst any moment. A gigantic bear raid is coming off here tomorrow that will send September wheat down like that"—(throwing a cigar end to the floor). "These bears," he went on, kicking the cigar aside, "have got millions behind 'em, and they're going to claw the entrails out of those bulls. They won't stop clawing as long as there's a live bull left. They're going to sell—sell—sell. It'll be the biggest smash you ever heard of. And the man who's heading this big bear raid is some other than Symbington Otis—"

"Otis?"

"As you know, of course, Otis has always been one of the greatest bulls in Chicago. Has that reputation. But all of a sudden he's gone over to the other side. I found it out last night. Only a handful besides myself know it. It seems he's got it in for a fellow who was associated with him in a bull charge a few months ago, and he's going the smash that follow if it takes the last cent he's got. That's Otis all over. Once you get in bed with him you might as well jump in the lake."

"So I was once given to understand," said Fitzhugh quietly.

"You see where we come in, at course, I'm only an outsider myself—but you! Lord, what a pile you can make!"

Symbington Otis again!

GOT BILL'S GOAT

He Simply Couldn't Understand About Wife's Hands.

Doing Only a Small Part of Housework Allotted to His Helpmate His "Fins" Were a Slight, but Here, Never.

Bill is wearing gloves!

Any time you see Bill wearing gloves know you that something has occurred.

It may be a death and Bill may be going to attend the funeral, or it may be that Bill is bound for a wedding, or else there is always the chance that the Improved Order of Joipits is going to have some sort of a ceremonial and that Bill is going to be a participant.

It was a knowledge of this peculiarity which caused all to look at Bill in an inquiring sort of way when he came in to her night and which prompted Joe to ask: "What's the big idea, Bill, that you've got your fins covered?"

"Wife sick."

Bill said no more. You'll agree that it was far from a satisfactory explanation. Joe voiced the sentiment when he remarked, petulant like, "that's a h—l of a reason!"

"Hub!"

It was plain Bill wasn't going to be voluble on this subject of "them" gloves. Now if there is one thing in this world that Joe delights in more than another it is in pecking away at Bill, and Bill equally enjoys seeking to harass that person's nanny.

"I said that wasn't much of a reason," repeated Joe. "My wife's been sick and I didn't wear gloves; don't see no reason on earth why you should be wearing gloves just because the Missus is ill, unless you're expecting her to pass over and are making preliminary arrangements for the serv-lince."

That nettled Bill. "Smart, aren't you," he asserted. "It's the great wonder of my life that some of the funny papers like the Undertakers' Herald haven't engaged you to conduct their humorous column. You're about as funny, as, as—a stick of wood. Now you're so darned inquisitive, just look at them!"

Bill peeled off the gloves and displayed his hands.

Say, but you ought to have seen 'em. Red! A fresh boiled lobster was a dark blue compared to those hands!

"There's the answer," says Bill. "The wife's been sick and I've been doing the housework. I didn't mind it much at first, sort of fun, you know. Made me think I was some cheese around the house. Didn't do it just because I wanted to, but because I had to. Couldn't get any help and the wife had to be cared for, had to have a bite to eat and the house had to be looked after. I did it; yes, I did. I cooked and I swept and I washed dishes and, believe me, I did some chore, but gosh almighty, I don't understand it yet, why my hands got so blasted red."

"Just look at 'em." Again Bill displayed those hands. "Look, at 'em; aren't they beauties! Honest, the only thing I can think of every time I look at those hands is Joe's nose before the first of last July."

"Those hands, I say, began to get red. They got redder and redder until they're what you see displayed before you. Will they stop there? I dunno. But this here is what gets me: When the wife is on her feet doing the work, she does 100 times as much as I've been doing; she not only washes the dishes, but she scrubs the floors and washes the clothes and cleans the house and gosh only knows what and, by hookey, I've yet to see her hands when they look even slightly red. What's the answer? Tell me!"—Sam, in Lewiston Journal.

Wireless for Shipwrecked.

However well equipped with wireless a ship may be, an accident that results in its sinking puts an end to its distress signals, and may not even allow time to begin them, leaving its hurriedly manned lifeboats without any means of communication with each other or with a rescue ship. An eastern inventor has designed a simple and compact radio system intended as permanent equipment for one or more lifeboats on each vessel, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The wireless apparatus, used for both telegraphing and telephoning, is inclosed in a water-tight box at the stern, and grounded through a metal plate on the bottom of the boat. To shut out extraneous sounds and add to the sensitiveness of the set, the operator is equipped with a helmet containing the telephone receiver.

David Warned Against This.

"I shall never forget the look on her face when she found me in her paw," said the pitifully dressed woman.

"You were evidently sitting in the seat of the accident," remarked her friend.—Boston Transcript.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY-TALE

THE TABLEUX.

"The other evening," said Daddy, "some children gave tableux which, as I've told you, are like pictures. The children get in positions to make them look like the pictures and then they stand quite still while the curtain is drawn up and the people see the tableux."

"At these tableux the other evening were the mothers and fathers and older sisters and brothers of the children and many other people came too. The children gave these tableux and, with the help of their mothers got up their own costumes and did all the work assisted by a few grown-ups. They charged admission for they worked hard over them and had very fine ones, and the money they made went straight to a fresh air fund so that children in the city whose daddies and mothers were not well off at all could get a little of the country and the fresh air in the summer away from the city."

"I thought that it might be nice for Nick and Nancy and their friends to get up some tableux and give them for the benefit of some good charity. For you will get so much fun out of them yourselves and you will be giving others fun, too, which they otherwise would not have."

"It's always fun to dress up and to act—even if one acts without saying a word and looking just like a statue."

"What do you think about it, Nick and Nancy? Do you think you would like to give some tableux? And wouldn't you like to give the money you make to some nice charity so that others could get some pleasure out of your fun too?"

"We'd love it," said Nancy.

"And we'll work hard so folks will consider that our show is worth the money," laughed Nick.

"You can have volunteer ushers, and so they will all be known to be ushers."

Big Paper Hats.

They can all wear big paper hats of different colors as I once saw ushers wear.

"Some of the tableux which are easy to give are of fancy dress balls, and of boys and girls dressed to look like the Fairyland people."

"And tableux are nice of scenes on the farm, and at the beach and on the tennis court and fishing. A nice one to end up with is to have all the youngest boys and girls in their little night clothes carrying candles and candle sticks—all ready for bed."

"Then there are nice tableux taken from famous pictures, many of that kind."

"Don't you think it would be fun, children?"

"Oh, great fun, Daddy. Thank you so much for suggesting it to us. We'll get all the children interested in it tomorrow. And we'll get it ready in two weeks. Would that give us long enough?"

"Just about right," said Daddy, "for you'll have time enough with a good deal of hard work to get everything ready by that time and it won't be so long as to make you feel you have all the time in the world."

"And you can fix very simple costumes and they're just as pretty. They're easier to get into and they won't make your mothers all wish I had never suggested such a thing!"

Nick and Nancy laughed. "We promise to dress up in simple things," they said.

"And when one boy has something in the way of a costume which will make him do for a certain part give that part to him. That is also a good idea."

"And one more thing, when you give your tableux, have the children who're to act in the next tableux ready while one is being given, as then there will be no waits and waits make audiences very, very weary."

And off went Nick and Nancy to get up a series of tableux which they decided they would give for the benefit of a fund they knew of which was being raised to help city children get to the country.

VACATION NOTES

(By Supt. E. E. Cole)

Teachers, how did you spend your vacation? Supt. and Mrs. E. E. Cole, Mr.razier and Miss Sullivant, from the Carrizozo schools, and thirty other teachers from Lincoln county spent two months of their vacation in attendance at the Normal University at Las Vegas. Perhaps some would not consider two months of study in the summer time as a vacation, but when one also gets many fine lectures, good music, delightful plays, plenty of grass and trees, a cool climate, and the acquaintance and association with over one thousand of the brightest teachers of the state of New Mexico, he knows he has had a real vacation.

1,033 students were enrolled, the largest attendance in the southwest. The university chapel would not hold the crowd of students, making it necessary to hold all chapel exercises down town at the Duncan Opera House. The main building, four stories, would not hold all the classes, and the Douglas public school building, and the Armory were used for class-room purposes. This same condition of affairs existed last year. It is absolutely necessary that the Normal University have large additions to its buildings. An auditorium to seat 1,500 people is needed right now, also a large administration building.

The wonderful growth of this institution is due very largely to the genius and splendid executive ability of President Frank H. Roberts. Ten years ago the summer normal had an attendance of only 69; this year the attendance was 1,033. The writer of this article was impressed, this summer, with the high class of people in attendance—fine looking, up-standing, intelligent young men and women. It is the natural result of the better wages now being paid, attracting better talent. The ages of the students ranged from 16 to 65. Many of the old teachers are being drawn back into the old profession.

Only a few of the extra-good attractions can be mentioned. The Redpath-Horner Chautauqua giving twelve numbers, with reserved seats, at a cost of only 25 cents per number was a privilege eagerly seized by hundreds of students.

Dr. Hewett, first president of the University and now head of the National Archaeological Association of America, lectured two evenings on "The Making of a Race."

Miss Harriet Monroe, a leading poet and critic in the new poetic movement of America, and editor of "Poetry, A Magazine of Verse", published in Chicago, was another visitor at the Normal University.

A banquet was given by the faculty to Miss Monroe and Dr. Hewett at the Castaneda. Miss Monroe stated that the August number of "Poetry" is to be wholly a New Mexico number. Senator Jones was also a guest and made the statement that he taught the first school in Las Vegas.

Dr. Winship, leading educational editor of the United States, was a real inspiration, as he always is. This is the 38th year Dr. Winship has lectured in Las Vegas, and he is engaged for next year.

Dr. Espinosa, greatest teacher of Spanish in America and professor of Spanish in the Leland Stanford University, of California, addressed the students and held a Spanish-American Conference, at which were Governor Larrazolo and many other Spanish-Americans of New Mexico. He spoke in highest praise of the Normal University.

We must not forget to state that the next greatest Spanish-American teacher in the United States, Dr. Fitz-Gerald, of the University of Illinois, has been an instructor in the summer school of the Normal University for the past two years. Dr. Espinosa stated that Leland Stanford University wants Dr. Fitz-Gerald for her summer school but that the Normal University of New Mexico always gets him.

Our splendid State Superintendent, Jonathan H. Wagner, addressed a huge crowd near the close of the session. Mr. Wagner's fine personality and his sensible, level-headed talks always draw a big audience.

John V. Conway, Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction, addressed a packed Opera House. He made the best address we ever heard him make, and he has made some good ones. He was listened to with a great deal of interest.

The Commercial Club of Las Vegas gave a picnic to the Normalites in the canon at Hot Springs. The canon is one of the beauty spots of New Mexico. Many of the students visited the million dollar hotel in the canon, which is to be the Baptist State College of New Mexico.

The Cowboy Reunion, lasting three days, was enjoyed by many of the students. Classes at the University were held from 8 A. M. to 1 P. M. during the entire summer so that the afternoons were free to attend such attractions as the Cowboy Reunion, the Chautauqua and lectures.

A course in Child Welfare was introduced into the curriculum of the summer school this year. Miss Montan-Hastings, child psychologist of the public schools of San Diego, had charge of the work. It was the purpose of the instructors to study each individual case brought to their attention and determine the causes of failure to advance properly in school work. The course is a valuable one and will be largely attended next year.

Candidate Cox cannot repudiate the Wilson administration. He must defend it!

On Commencement Day, July 29, Mr. Carl C. Mafee, Editor of the Albuquerque Morning Journal, delivered one of the finest addresses we ever heard. The Journal is fortunate in having a man of such ability at its head. Ninety one degrees and diplomas were given at these commencement exercises.

We have not mentioned all the advantages offered to the teachers of New Mexico, but enough to show that the state has a wonderful institution at Las Vegas. A further proof of this is in the rapid growth in the attendance.

After Ten Years—Eatonic Proves the Best

"I say, God-bless Eatonic," writes Mrs. Della M. Doyen. "I can truthfully say, after suffering with stomach trouble for ten long years, that I have never had anything do me so much good as this one box of Eatonic."

We print these grateful words from this dear lady, so that sufferers everywhere may have hope and a little faith—just enough to give Eatonic a trial. Why, folks, last year over half a million people used Eatonic and found relief.

This is the secret: Eatonic simply takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases, and carries them right out of the body. Of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well. Stomach trouble causes about seventy non-organic diseases, so, if you are suffering any kind of misery, not feeling well, go right to your druggist today and obtain a big box of Eatonic; cost is a trifle. Use it and find quick, sure relief.

Make this test—you will see, and then, if you are not satisfied, your druggist will hand your money back. He does not want one penny unless Eatonic pleases you. Adv.

SOMETHING NEW TO MOTHER

Dear Old Lady Had a Good Deal to Learn About the Latest Idea in Silk Stockings.

Styles may come and styles may go, but an old-fashioned mother like Bab's can't be expected to keep abreast with the latest creations. She is always looking after the welfare of the family, whether it is preparing father's choice dish or skimping her own needs so that Johnny or Bah may keep up appearances with the twentieth century younger set.

Mother recently was going over the week's washing, putting a patch here, catching a button there and seeing to it that the stockings were carefully mended. She came across a pair of stockings that Bab had purchased the week before. They were the latest thing dictated by fashion, the little stocking with lace designs on the sides, which very much resembles the lowly "run."

"It must be wonderful to live all your life long in the midst of the 'Land of a Million Scales,' where the silvery waters purr and splash and the nymphs frolic all the 'day' prattled one member of a party of city motorists who had invaded the Ozarks."

"To live in the 'pitu'—which?" surprisingly returned Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge.

"Here among the hills and dells of 'The Playground of America.' Look at the advertisement in the newspaper and—"

"Well, I'll be—pitu—dogged! I never would 'a' b'lieved it in the living world if I hadn't seed it in the paper! I've lived yur since Heck was a pup, and I never knowed nuthin' like these yur ladies—nymphs; I b'lieve you called 'em—to be setting on rocks this-a-way and skylarking around with nuth'n in pertickler on but undershirts and smiles. Corona Notes

Last Monday evening Carl Woods, one of the miners at the Corona Silver & Lead mine, had a very narrow escape from going to where all good miners go. They had finished work and had started to the top of the ground on the cross head. When they had gone about thirty feet, Woods became dizzy, and fell from the cross head, falling to the bottom of the hole. He was immediately brought to the top, rushed to Corona, where he received medical aid. One ear was badly lacerated and several bruises over the body were the only mishaps. At present he is still under the doctor's care but expects to be "on the job" at an early date.

Two brand new Dodge delivery trucks were received by the School Board here last week for the hauling of the school children from outlying districts. They are good as the market affords, and are a much needed improvement in these parts. Work is to be started on the gymnasium and manual training building next week, when this is finished we will have one of the most modern schools in Lincoln county, without a doubt.

We had one of the biggest rains of the season last Monday evening. The poor and weary travelers that were so unfortunate as to be caught out in it, came wandering in on foot. Nearly all the cars that were out, were deserted.

Restore Liberty Loans to Par

(Republican Publicity Association)
"I believe, said Senator Harding in his speech of acceptance, 'this government should make its Liberty and Victory bonds worth all that its patriotic citizens paid in purchasing them. There are probably 15,000,000 bond holders in the country today, and to them Senator Harding's statement brings encouragement that their securities will be enhanced in value about $1,500,000, restoring the loss sustained through depreciation. The candidate implies that if he is elected he will do his utmost to restore to par the war obligations of the government."

And it is no idle reference he has made to the matter in the hope only of catching votes at the election. By the refunding of all the Liberty issues into a single serial bond issue, bearing interest at the rate of 5 1/2 per cent, the market price would probably go immediately to par, the interest return to bond holders would be increased by from 19 to 33 per cent, the entire amount of the bonds would be retired by June 15, 1947, the latest date of any Liberty issue, and the whole transaction would cost the Government no more than an adherence to the present sinking fund method.

The conspicuous advantages of serial bonds over an issue having a single maturity date were strikingly set forth by former Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts in an address to the Senate on September 17, 1918, during the discussion of the Fourth Liberty Loan Act. At that time he demonstrated how billions of dollars could be saved to the taxpayers by the adoption of the serial method, but his recommendations were ignored by the Democratic administration. It is not yet too late to secure the advantages of the serial system if a refunding plan should be adopted by the Harding Administration.

On May 31st there were outstanding approximately $15,384,000,000 of Liberty Bonds, bearing interest rates from 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 per cent, and maturing at dates ranging from September 15, 1928, to June 15, 1947. The redemption date for Victory Notes is June 15, 1922, and the maturity date May 20, 1923; which are so near at hand that the Notes should be considered separately in any plan for future financing. Assuming that each issue of Liberty Bonds will be retired on its maturity date, an exceedingly conservative assumption, then it will have cost the taxpayers in interest and principal payments from June 15, 1921, (a convenient date after the inauguration of the Republican administration,) to June 15, 1947, approximately $23,142,000,000. If the Republican Congress should enact a law refunding all those issues into a single serial issue bearing 5 1/2 per cent interest, finally retired on June 15, 1947, the total cost would be about $26,287,000,000.

Who Remembers?

As if in defiance to what we said last week, "Who remembers, what we said about what we would do with the next Carrizozo visitor, who would knock down one of our street lights," either a stranger within our gates, or otherwise, it matters not, ran directly into the guide wire that added its support to the tall light pole directly behind the City Garage. According to tracks the intruder left behind him, the stunt was accomplished as he was making a turn. The car was not damaged; we are certain of this, as the tracks showed conclusively that it was a Ford; but the concussion tore the pole down causing the wire to rest in a tangled mass on the roof of the garage and filling the street with wire between that place of business and the Outlook office.

Manager Dingwall had prepared a treat for his patrons; "Behind The Door," but hardly had the third reel been run off and things of interest connecting themselves together, when the crash came which of course, put the Crystal Theatre in darkness. The courteous manager with his usual display of fairness to his patrons, notified the people to return the next night Sunday, and witness the show which they did and we may well add, saw one of the best of the season. The Carrizozo Dancing Club came in for their share of trouble Saturday night; they were giving a big dance at Lutz Hall, but procured lamps by which they furnished the patrons with moonlight service until the electric lights came on which was about 10:30. We are all ready now for the next "nut" to try his hand at putting us out of light commission.

Think of America first—Warren G. Harding.

Barbecue at Texas Park

(Captain Mountaineer)
Plans have been formulated to hold a large barbecue at Texas Park, at the north side of the Tucson mountain on August 18th.

Arrangements have been made by the committee for the regular events usually experienced at the old-fashioned picnic. A barbecue, horse races, foot races, broncho busting, a dance, and many other attractive features have been arranged.

It is expected that a large attendance of Lincoln county people will be there for the day, and everyone is invited. The horse racing has been given special attention, and it is expected the running events are to be very high class. Even plans to carry the horse races over to the second day, or the 19th are prepared in case some of the races are asked to be re-run.

Remember everyone, and be at Texas Park for August 18th.

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

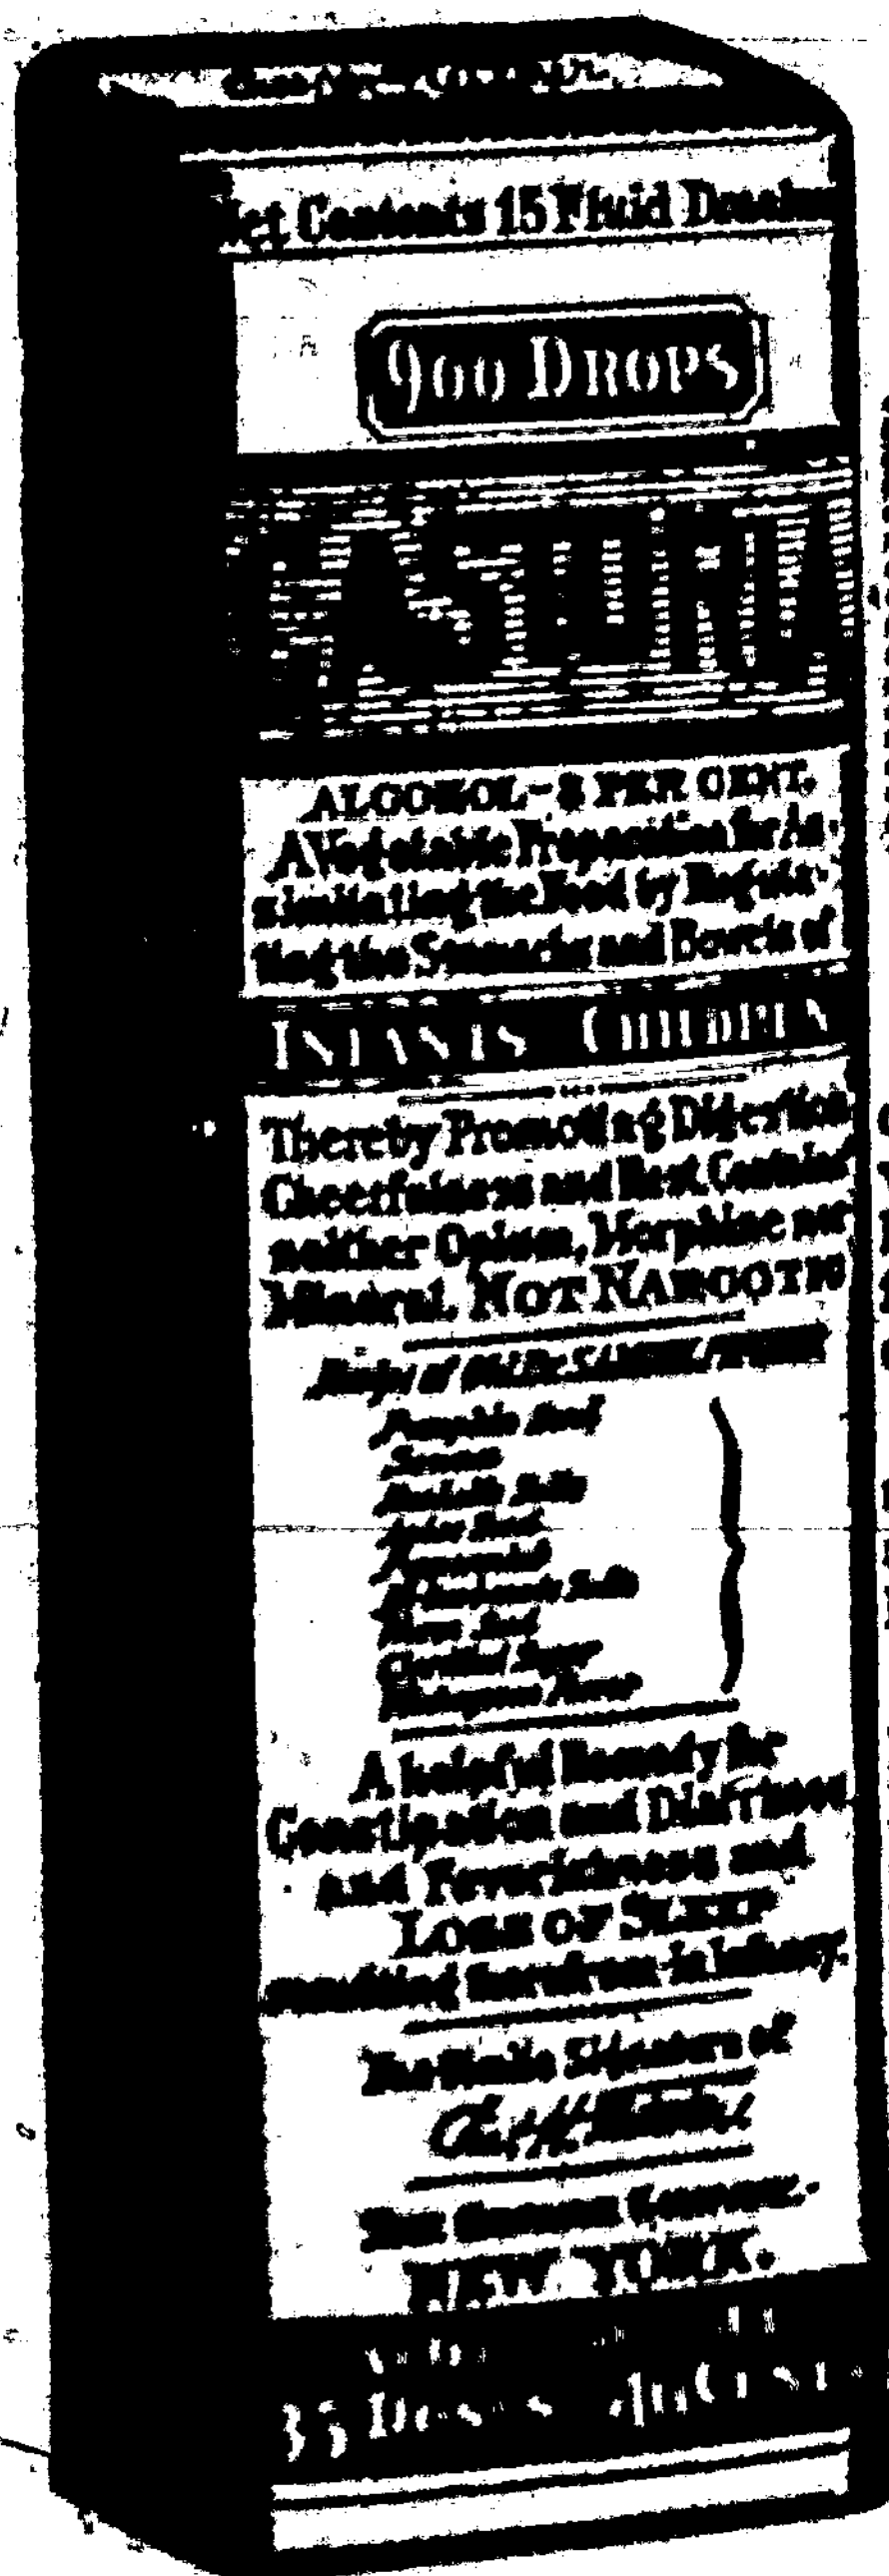

NO OTHER SHOULD BEAD THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA.

There is more Cataract in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a fatal disease and prescribed local treat-with local treatment, pronounced it incur-

Says War Cost Hundred Billions

English Financier Fixes Real Losses of the European Belligerents.

AMERICA WORLD'S CREDITOR

To Only United States and Japan Did the War Bring Prosperity, According to English Authority—Germany a Heavy Loser.

London.—The actual cost of the war to European belligerents was in excess of £20,000,000,000 ($100,000,000,000 normal value), represented by property destroyed, losses in investments abroad, depreciation of properties and by pensions, Edgar Crammond, English financier, told the Bankers' Institute at a recent meeting here.

He fixed the following as the real losses of the European belligerents:

Germany	£8,700,000,000
(£4,500,000,000 normal value)	$25,000,000,000
France	£2,500,000,000
The United Kingdom	£15,300,000,000
Italy	£2,100,000,000
Belgium	£500,000,000

To only two belligerent countries—the United States and Japan—did the war bring prosperity, Crammond said, but Spain, Holland, Switzerland, Greece and Scandinavia also had grown wealthier. He believed the "liquid capital of the world, now distributed in centers which are unaccustomed to the exercise of their new powers," would eventually again find its chief outlet through London.

America the Gainer.

"The war has produced an extraordinary change in the economic relations of the United States with Europe," he said. "Whereas, in 1914 America owed Europe £2,000,000,000, at present Europe owes America £2,000,000,000 ($10,000,000,000)."

Assuming that the post-war purchasing power of the dollar was 70 per cent of its pre-war value, Crammond said during the last five years there had been an actual increase in the national wealth of the United States of approximately 20 per cent, and he estimated this wealth now in the neighborhood of £70,000,000,000 to £90,000,000,000.

The national wealth of Japan, he estimated, had been doubled by the war.

Germany Heavy Loser.

On the basis of a post-war mark valued at 50 per cent of its pre-war value he estimated Germany has lost, apart from the indemnity, 20 per cent of her national wealth, the whole of her mercantile marine, all her colonial possessions, and practically the whole of her investments abroad. If the figures suggested at the Hythe conference, £0,250,000,000, were fixed as the German war indemnity, he declared the total losses of the German people arising out of the war, would be equivalent to about £15,000,000,000, or one-half her national wealth.

"So far as the world as a whole is concerned, the principal loss is in the fact that Europe is not yet 'a going concern,' he continued, 'but the underlying economic forces which made her the great center of the world's commercial activities are still at work and will rapidly transform the economic situation in Europe.'

He said the dominant characteristic of international trade in the next ten years will be a tremendous world demand for capital, and the internal financial policies of the nations should be framed with due regard to this condition.

HUSBAND IN DUNGEON 17 YRS.

"Widow," Married Again, Just Finds Out He Is Alive in Petrograd Hospital.

Tokyo.—A letter has been received from a man reported killed in the Russo-Japanese war in North Manchuria by his supposed widow, who has been married to a second husband ten years.

A sergeant named Jinkichi Onishi has been missing since the battle of Liaoyang. The authorities and his family concluded he had been killed, and funeral ceremonies were observed. His "widow" married again, children being born by the second husband. Now, after 17 years, Onishi writes, reporting himself safe in a hospital in Petrograd.

According to his letter, at the time of the Russo-Japanese war he was taken prisoner and has ever since been in a dungeon, which he was never allowed to leave until he became ill:

Keeps Old Violin.

San Antonio, Tex.—An ancient violin is owned by A. L. Campbell, which is kept with the records of the court in the safety vault. The instrument has that mellowness of tone which only age gives the violin. The lineage of this antique is thus traced by Mr. Campbell: "I bought it about 15 years ago from an old Italian, who had played on it for 15 years. He in turn received it from a German boy in Galveston, in whose family it was an heirloom." In the interior of the instrument is barely visible in old German type the following: "Josef Klotz, Miltenwalde in anno 1793, Germany."

Cannibals Once Peopled Texas

Discovery Made That Prehistoric People Were Different From Indians.

HAD REGULAR CAMP SITES

Life History Read From Records They Left in Their Burned-Rock Mounds —Advanced to Stage of Paleolithic Culture.

Austin, Tex.—Evidence that Texas was inhabited by a prehistoric people different from the Indian who roamed the plains when the first white man came has been unearthed by James E. Pearce, professor of anthropology of the University of Texas. The early inhabitants, he said, lived a nomad-like existence, roaming from one part of the wilderness to another and killing, with rude stone weapons, animals and even humans for food.

In co-operation with the Smithsonian Institution bureau of ethnology, Prof. Pearce has been investigating the mounds for more than a year, he reported.

"The life history of these people has been read from the records they left in their burned-rock mounds or kitchen middens," the professor said. "These mounds are piles of broken and charred bits of limestone three or four feet high and sometimes as long as 100 feet."

Had Regular Camp Sites.

"They are made up of the kitchen refuse of these prehistoric peoples, who had regular camp sites at frequent intervals along the Edwards plateau, extending from Austin westward to New Mexico.

"These people evidently were advanced to the stage of paleolithic culture, an earlier age than the period of heathen culture, to which most of the American Indians belonged. These early 'Texas' inhabitants had arrows and spears tipped with flint points, chipped but not polished. They did not polish their stone weapons, nor did they engage in any form of agriculture. They were, however, skillful skin dressers, for we have found scraping tools made of flint.

The kitchen middens which we discovered are the only thing of their kind in America, so far as I know, although they had been found in other parts of the world. At these sites, camps were located with a great fireplace in the center, over which huge slabs of limestone were placed as a sort of primitive stove, upon which to cook the meat the inhabitants killed.

Cannibalism Practiced.

"We know these people were cannibals, for among the refuse heaps have been found human bones split apart in order to get at the marrow.

"The soft limestone slabs, being exposed to the weather, broke from time to time, and were cast aside nearby, to be replaced by new ones."

"In the course of our investigations we have completely examined some fifteen of these mounds and in them have found thousands of splendid specimens of chipped arrow and spear heads, as well as scraping tools and other implements. Bones of the deer, which were prevalent in this region, are found in profusion, indicating that this was the principal article of diet."

FARMERS DO WELL

Record Prices Paid Wheat Growers of Western Canada.

Will Get Above 40 Cents Over the Fixed Scale Set—World Looking to the Dominion for Its Grain.

It will be of interest to many readers in Canada will do so well out of the wheat they grow on western Canada's prairies last year.

There was a fixed price of $2.15 per bushel paid for their wheat last season.

Not knowing the price at which it would be possible to market the crop, the Canadian grain board, which organization handled the whole of the crop last summer, fixed $2.15 as a minimum price for No. 1 wheat, and arranged that each farmer should be given certificates for the quantity of wheat he delivered. The amount received over and above the fixed price which was paid to the farmers when selling their wheat was to be divided pro rata at the end of the season, and the holders of these certificates will, therefore, participate in the extra price received according to the quantity of wheat sold.

The latest advices are that the wheat board will pay at least 40 cents a bushel over the fixed rate of $2.15 a bushel for their wheat of last season. This means that about $40,000,000 will be distributed among the farmers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. This sum represents the difference in the price at which the wheat crop was sold and the price that was fixed for last season's crop.

Canadian Wheat in Demand.

A declaration that Canadian wheat would in all probability sell this year at between $3 and $5 per bushel, was made recently before a conference of western supporters of the government by Dr. Robert Magill, who was one of a deputation from the Winnipeg grain exchange. Dr. Magill argued in favor of open trading from the aspect of world conditions. He stated that no wheat could be exported from Russia owing to internal troubles.

Roumania would have absolutely none to export, India was prohibiting export, while Australia's acreage would fall from 12,000,000 to 7,000,000. The result would be that Australia would scarcely have enough to feed herself, and there would be absolutely no wheat for Europe, except from the Argentine and North America.

Dr. Magill, according to formal announcement, though it would be impossible to secure as good a price for the producer by control as by the open market. The United States market was now open, and, according to present prospects, there would be mighty little to spare from that quarter. The net result would be that Canadian wheat would undoubtedly go to a record figure.—Advertisement.

NO MERCY FOR THE FLIRT

According to Dream, Modern Girl Met With Deserved Condemnation at St. Peter's Hands.

Cortlandt Bleeker was talking at Piping Rock about the modern girl. "I had a dream last night," he said. "I dreamed that a modern girl died and appeared before St. Peter."

"She wore a gown of flimsy, almost transparent tissue. She was very beautiful, and she had a conquering air."

"Let me in, please," she said. "My sweethearts were numberless, but my virtue remained unspotted. Though I slanted over miles of thin ice, I never once fell through. I am a modern girl."

"But St. Peter frowned and said, pointing downwards with his forefinger:

"I condemn you to the same flames to which you condemned your foolish lovers."

Sixty-Year-Old Apple Tree.

In 1839 a Missouri farmer decided that he wanted to take Greeley's advice and go West to do a little growing up with the country. He took with him a tiny apple tree growing on his farm, to see what luck it might bring him. From all appearances he made a wise move, for the tree is still growing and showering apples all over the orchard each year.

Don't Let Catarrh Drag You into Consumption

Avoid Its Dangerous Stage.

There is a more serious stage of Catarrh than the annoyance caused by the stopped-up air passages, and the hacking and spitting and other distasteful features.

The real danger comes from the tendency of the disease to continue its course downward until the lungs become affected, and then dreaded consumption is on your path. Your own experience has taught you that the disease cannot be cured by sprays, inhalers, jellies and other local applications.

S. S. S. has proven a most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh because it goes direct to its source, and tends to remove the germs of the disease from the blood. Get a bottle from your druggist today, and begin the only logical treatment that gives real results. For free medical advice write to Medical Director, 194 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.
